ALPHABETICAL LIST OF CONTENTS

OF

PUBLISHER'S NOTE

The English version of the Islahi Khutbat, has been published by Darul Isha'at Pakistan. This is solely because of the Favours of Allah on us and the prayers of our mentors.

This is the translation of the reformative speeches of Mufti Justice Mawlana Muhammad Taqi Usmani may Allah prolong his benefits over us. He has been given these lectures for about ten years every week at the Bait ul Mukarram Masjid, Karachi. Those who attend these lectures gain much knowledge theoretically and practically. I, too, attend these lectures and have been deriving much advantage. These lectures are being recorded on audio cassettes and books are published subsequently. These cassettes and books cater to those who understand the Urdu language.

We at Darul Isha'at desired that an increased number of people should benefit from these lectures. Allah helped us get these books translated into English and publish them and He also provided us the necessary means. Al-Hamdu-lil-laah, after six years of continuous effort a complete set of these books is available to the readers. Let our readers remember that these books have been translated from oral lectures of the honourable Mufti Justice Mawlana Muhammad Taqi Usmani and not from his writings.

They may, therefore, find in them the style of the spoken words that the translator may have retained here and there.

We have endeavoured to match the get up of the books with their invaluable content and have paid due care in the use of paper, printing and binding. We hope that this set of books will be very useful to our readers in Europe and the United States. They will gain beneficial knowledge from these books and be prompted to put their knowledge into practice.

Insha Allah they will find a great change in their everyday life.

We have published many books in English and many more are under preparation. Do write to us for a full list of these books.

Finally, I request my readers to remember me in their prayers as also my parents and family members. May Allah reward them.

KHALIL ASHRAF USMANI
S/O MOHAMMAD RAZI USMANI

CONTENTS

Series: 1
Limits of Reason

1.	The term, Fundamentalism has become a word of Abuse	27
2.	Why "Islamisation"?	28
3.	Allah has granted us intellect.	29
4.	Is Intellect the last standard?	29
5.	Sources of knowledge	29
6.	The Jurisdiction of the Five senses	30
7.	The second source of knowledge is the Intellect	30
8.	The Jurisdiction of the Intellect.	31
9.	The third source of knowledge is Divine Revelation	31
10.	The difference between Islam and Secularism.	32
11.	The need for Divine Revelation.	32
12.	The Intellect is a deceptive Faculty.	32
13.	To marry one's own sister is not against Intellect.	33
14.	The sister and sexual satisfaction.	33
15.	Impossible to repudiate this argument with the the help of the intellect.	34
16.	This is not immoral from the Intellectual point of view.	34
17.	Preservation of genealogy offers no intellectual argument.	34
18.	This too is a part of the human urge.	34
19.	The result of freedom from Divine Revelation.	35
20.	The deception of the Intellect.	35
21.	Another deception of the Intellec	36
22.	An example of the Jurisdiction of the Intellect.	37
23.	The difference between Islam and secularism.	37
24.	The hopeless condition of the organisation that advocates Freedom of Thought.	38
25.	The Survey being carried out to day.	39

26. Is the theory of freedom of thought Absolute? 40
27. You have no fixed standard or yardstick to determine this freedom of thought. 41
28. Mankind has no standard (yardstick) other than the Divine Revelation. 42
29. It is only the Faith that can serve as a standard. 42
30. We have no argument against this evil. 43
31. I fail to understand the reason for this Order. 44
32. Science and Technology in Qur'an and the Ahadith. 44
33. Science and Technology are experimental subjects. 44
34. The Islamic Laws possess Elasticity. 45
35. The Injunctions in the first category are incapable of any change till the Day of judgment. 46
36. Where does Ijtihad start from? 46
37. The meat of swine, i.e. pork should be lawful. 47
38. What is the difference between Usury and Trade? 47
39. An event. 48
40. The Ijtihad of present - day thinkers. 49
41. Dr. Muhammad Iqbal's opinion about the Ijtihad (Independent opinion) of this kind. 49
42. The cry for Tajdeed (Renovation). 49

Series: 2
The Month of Rajab

1. The practice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ on sighting the Rajab moon. 53
2. No proof is available for the virtues of the night of Mir'aj. 54
3. There is difference of opinion about the exact date of the night of Mi'raj. 54
4. Why was the date of Mi'raj not preserved? 55
5. It was a splendid night. 55
6. The night of Mi'raj occurred eighteen times during the Prophet's ﷺ life. 55
7. There is no greater fool than he..... 56

8. To be cleverer than a Baniya is madness. 56
9. Who has greater knowledge of Deen than the Companions? رضی اللہ عنہم 56
10. It is a Bid'ah to devote to special forms of worship on this night. 57
11. Fasting on the 27th of Rajab is not proved. 57
12. Hazrat Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ the great stopped this Bid'ah. 57
13. What harm is there in keeping night vigil? 58
14. Deen (Faith) is the name of obedient following (of injunctions). 58
15. He is committing excesses in Deen. 58
16. The reality of the self-invented custom of the Koonda. 59
17. This Ummah is lost in nonsense. 60
18. Summary. 60

Series:3
Be Quick in Doing Good

1. Rush towards good deeds. 66
2. Go in for competition in doing good deeds. 67
3. Satan's strategy. 68
4. Benefit by your precious lifetime. 68
5. The urge to do good is as if it were, Allah's guest. 68
6. Do not wait for an opportunity to arrive. 69
7. The best trick of working. 69
8. It is not undesirable to compete with one another in good deeds. 69
9. Competition is not lawful in worldly matters. 70
10. Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ competes with Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی اللہ عنہ on the occasion of the Tabook expedition. 71
11. An exemplary bargain. 72
12. An infallible prescription for us. 73
13. How did Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمہ اللہ علیہ receive comfort and contentment? 74
14. Contentment would never have been attained but for this (advice). 74

15. Peace and prosperity cannot be purchased with money. 75
16. What is the use of that wealth on account of which the children cannot see their father's face? 76
17. Everything cannot be purchased with money. 76
18. The way to get peace and contentment. 77
19. The age of trials is about to overtake us. 78
20. To think that one is still in the prime of youth is Satan's deception. 79
21. Seduce and cajole your souls to work. 79
22. If you receive a message from the head of the state! 80
23. The genuine claimant to paradise. 81
24. Reaction of the Holy Prophet ﷺ on hearing the prayer call (Azan). 81
25. The best charity. 82
26. A Will is valid only up to one-third of the property left. 83
27. Set aside a portion of your income for charity. 83
28. Almighty Allah does not mind the number (or the quantity). 84
29. My respected late father's routine practice. 84
30. Everyone should give alms according to his capacity. 85
31. What are you waiting for? 85
32. Are you waiting for poverty? 86
33. Are you waiting for affluence? 86
34. Are you waiting for illness? 87
35. Are you waiting for old age? 87
36. Are you waiting for death? 89
37. A dialogue with the Angel of death. 89
38. Are you waiting for Dajjal (Antichrist)? 91
39. Are you waiting for the Doomsday? 91

Series:4
Recommendation in Islam

1. Recommend for a needy person. 96

2. Recommendation is a source of gain and reward. 96
3. The story of a saint who made recommendation for someone. 97
4. After making recommendation for someone do not put him under an obligation. 97
5. Directions for making recommendation. 98
6. To make recommendation for an unfit fellow. 98
7. Recommendation is a kind of witness. 98
8. To recommend an examinee to the examiner. 99
9. A strange case of recommendation. 99
10. Satan of a Molvi (religious man) is also a Molvi 100
11. Do not prejudice the mind of the Judge with recommendation. 100
12. To make recommendation to the Judge of a court. 100
13. My reaction to recommendation. 101
14. Recommendation in unlawful cases is a sin. 101
15. Recommendation is nothing but a device to call attention. 102
16. This is exercising pressure. 103
17. The directions of Maulana Ashraf Ali Sahib رحمة الله عليه about recommendation. 103
18. It is not right to appeal for donations in a gathering. 103
19. The Manager of a Madrassah. collecting donations himself. 104
20. What should be the wordings of the recommendation? 104
21. The recommendation should include the interests of both parties. 105
22. The practice of making recommendation is a curse in the society. 105
23. Recommendation is only a sort of advice. 106
24. The events concerning Hazrat Burairah رضى الله عنه and Hazrat Mughis رضى الله عنه. 107
25. A slave-girl has the right to cancel her marriage. 107

26. The advice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 107
27. A lady turned down the prophet's advice. 108
28. Why did the Holy Prophet offer advice? 109
29. The Holy Prophet ﷺ taught the Ummah a lesson. 109
30. Why is recommendation a cause of displeasure. 110
31. Summary. 110

Series:5
The Fasting

1. A month of blessings. 114
2. Were the Angels not sufficient for this duty? 115
3. This is no credit of the Angels 116
4. There is no credit of a blind man in protecting his eyes from vicious glances. 116
5. This type of worship is not within the power of the Angels. 117
6. The credit of Hazrat Yusuf عليه السلام. 118
7. We have made a bargain for our souls. 118
8. One should sacrifice one's life for such a buyer. 119
9. Revert in this month to the basic objective of life. 119
10. The meaning of Ramadhan. 120
11. Get your sins pardoned. 120
12. Let this month be free from other engagements. 121
13. The correct way of welcoming Ramadhan. 121
14. A step beyond Fasting and Taraaweeh. 122
15. Pass one month in this way. 123
16. What kind of Fasting is it? 123
17. The reward for Fasting goes waste. 124
18. The aim of Fasting is to light the candle to Taqwa (righteousness) 124
19. Fasting is a step- ladder to righteousness. 125
20. My Master is watching me. 125
21. I alone shall recompense him for his fasting. 126
22. This training course shall not be completed otherwise. 127
23. As if, you have installed an Air-conditioner of fasting but. 127
24. The real objective is obeying Commands. 127
25. You disobeyed My Command. 128
26. Hasten in breaking the Fast. 129
27. To delay in taking Sihri (the pre-dawn meal) is better. 129
30. Try to pass one month without committing sins 130
31. The Importance of lawful means of sustenance during this month. 130
32. Shun forbidden sources of income. 130
33. What to do if the entire income comes from unlawful sources? 131
34. It is easy to avoid sins. 131
35. Refrain from anger during Ramadhan. 132
36. Indulge more in optional worship during Ramadhan. 132

Series:6
Freedom of Women: A Delusion

1. Today's topic. 138
2. You may inquire about the aim of women's creation from their Creator (Allah). 138
3. Men and women are two different sexes. 139
4. The means to put a question to Allah are His Prophets. 139
5. Two branches of human life. 140
6. Distribution of duties between men and women. 140
7. A women should take charge of household duties. 141
8. Distribution of duties between Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ and Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہ 141
9. What was the temptation in driving women out of the house? 141
10. Woman has been entrusted today with every kind of menial work. 143

11. A Queer philosophy of the modern civilisation. 143
12. Is this half population idle? 144
13. The Family system has been totally shattered today. 145
14. Gorbachev's opinion about women. 145
15. Money in itself is nothing. 146
16. Today's profitable business. 146
17. An instructive story of a Jew. 147
18. Money will increase in its count only. 148
19. What is the objective of earning money? 148
20. The child needs its mother's care and affection. 148
21. The basis of great achievements is the Home? 149
22. Contentment and comfort lie in purdah. 150
23. The condition of women's hair on their heads. 150
24. They are naked, although they are putting on clothes. 151
25. A flood of mixed social gatherings. 151
26. Why should there be no disorder? 152
27. We are pushing our children down into the abyss of Hell. 152
28. Matters have not yet gone out of control. 153
29. Boycott such gatherings. 153
30. How long will you go on cooperating with the worldly people. 154
31. Do not mind the people of the world, if they do not care for your advice. 154
32. Expel these men. 155
33. Dacoity is being committed against Deen. yet there is complete silence. 155
34. Be ready to face divine vengeance. 155
35. Create your own social circle. 156
36. The result of free mixing. 156
37. What is the source to satisfy sexual urge. 156
38. There is permission to go out of the house under emergencies. 157

39. Has ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا also been invited. 158
40. The reason for the Prophet's insistence. 158
41. A wife also needs lawful recreaction. 159
42. It is not lawful to go out with adornment and show. 159
43. Was the order for purdah only for the sacred wives of the Holy Prophet ﷺ? 160
44 They were pious ladies. 161
45. The command of purdah applies to all ladies. 161
46. The command of purdah during the state of Ihram. 162
47. A lady's strict observance of Purdah. 162
48. Do not mind the taunts of the Westerners. 163
49. You will be third grade citizens even then. 164
50. Tomorrow it will be our turn to ridicule them. 164
51. Honour lies in Islam. 165
52. He lost his beard as well as the opportunity of employment. 165
53. The face should also be kept under purdah. 166
54. Purdah on the intellect of men. 167

Series:7

Deen (Religion) A Complete Submission

1. Good deeds are recorded during the sickness and journey of a man. 172
2. Prayer is not excused under any circumstances. 172
3. One should not worry during sickness. 173
4. Give up your own choice. 173
5. It is Sunnah to take the easier course. 174
6. Deen (Religion) is the name of compliance). 174
7. Do not show your bravery to Allah. 175
8. The Highest status of man. 176
9. Do you desire to crush the pride of the beloved? 176
10. The Fasting days of Ramadhan will come back. 177

11. Allah resides in broken hearts. 178
12. Deen is nothing but submission and contentment. 180
13. Missing routine acts on account of nursing a patient. 181
14. Keep an eye on the needs of the time. 182
15. It is not Deen to satisfy one's wishes. 182
16. The desire to become a Mufti (A Doctor in the religious science). 183
17. The desire to preach religion (Tabligh). 183
18. The desire to go to the Mosque for prayer. 183
19. The auspicious and fortunate among the wives is one whom her husband loves. 185
20. My servant is displeased with both the worlds only for My sake. 185
21. Give up remembrance at the time of Azan (prayer-call). 186
22. All good lies in the obedience to My Command. 186
23. Namaz (Prayer) is an end in itself. 187
24. Why hurry in breaking the Fast? 188
25. Why delay in taking sihri(the pre-dawn food) 188
26. A servant is not free in his own will. 189
27. Tell me why are you doing this work? 189
28. Hazrat Owais Qarni رحمة الله عليه 191
29. This is the root of all Bid'aah(Innovations). 192
30. Entrust your case to Allah. 193
31. The importance of thanksgiving and its method. 194
32. The effective weapon of Satan is the generation of ingratitude. 195
33. The counter-measure against Satan-thanksgiving. 195
34. Always drink cold water. 195
35. A recollection of the blessings enjoyed during the day and thanksgiving for them before sleeping. 196

36. An easy way of thanksgiving. 197

Series:8

Bid'ah - A Heinous Sin

1. The meanings of the words Jabir and Jabbar 202
2. The setter of broken bones is only one. 203
3. The meaning of the word Qah-haar. 203
4. None of the names of Almighty Allah implies punishment. 204
5. The state of the Holy Prophet during delivering a sermon. 204
6. The Prophets style of preaching (Deen). 204
7. The familiar topic of the Arabs. 205
8. The Prophet's mission and the approaching Day of Resurrection. 206
9. The Resolution of a difficulty. 206
10. Every man's death is his Day of Resurrection. 207
11. The best speech and the best life. 207
12. Bid'ah (Innovation) is the worst form of sin. 208
13. Bid'ah is divergence from belief. 209
14. The worst evil of Bid'ah. 209
15. Bid'ah results in loss in this world and as well as loss in the Hereafter. 210
16. Deen (Faith) is the name of compliance 211
17. A wonderful event. 212
18. The account of a saint who used to offer prayers with his eyes closed. 213
19. The injunction about praying with closed eyes. 214
20. Evil suggestions and thoughts assailing during Namaz (prayer). 215
21. The correct definition and explanation of Bid'ah. 215
22. Send food to the bereaved family. 216
23. Just the opposite way is being followed today. 216
24. To add something new as a part of Deen is Bid'ah. 217
25. Hazrat 'Abdullah bin 'Umar رضي الله عنه fleeing from Bid'ah. 217

26.	The Day of Resurrection and Bid'ah both deserve to be dreaded.	218
27.	Who is our best well-wisher?	218
28.	What revolutionized the lives of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم?.	219
29.	What is Bid'ah?	220
30.	The literal meaning of Bid'ah.	220
31.	It is not lawful to restrict the freedom granted by the Shari'ah.	221
32.	The method of conveying Sawab (reward) to the dead.	221
33.	One may convey the Sawab of publishing a book.	222
34.	It is Bid'ah to specify the third day after death for conveying Sawab.	222
35.	To observe optional Fasting on Friday has been forbidden.	223
36.	What are Teeja (the third day). Daswan (the tenth day) and the Chehlam (the fortieth day)?	223
37.	Translator's addition	224
38.	The Bid'ah of kissing the thumbs.	224
39.	When is it Bid'ah to say (یارسول اللہ) (O Prophet ﷺ of Allah).	225
40.	A fine difference betwen actions.	225
41.	When is it an act of Bid'ah to embrace one another on Eid days?	225
42.	Is it a Bid'ah to read the Tablighi course?	226
43.	To appoint a particular procedure for delivering speeches on the Prophet's life.	227
44.	The recitation of the sacred Darood may also become a Bid'ah.	228
45.	No power on earth can declare it an act of Sunnah.	228
46.	A wonderful proverb.	229
47.	Summary.	229

FOREWORD

To The English Edition by
Justice Mufti Muhammad Taqi Usmani

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

On the advice of some of my elders I hold a weekly meeting in Jamia Masjid AlBaitul Mukaram attended by a large number of Muslim brothers and sisters. Rather than giving a formal lecture, my basic purpose intended to be achieved through these meetings is that we get together for some time to review our ways of life in the light of Islamic teachings and to deliberate what is going to happen to us after we leave this mundane world. When the Muslims having true Islamic orientation sit together for this purpose, each one of them benefit from the other to create a genuine concern about our coming life which is the real and eternal life as compared to the present one which may come to an end any time.

I this mutual meeting which is meant for self-correction I normally read a book of Hadith and explain it to the audience in the light of what I have learned from my elders with special reference to the current attitude prevailing in our society and touching upon the relevant practical issues, social evils and the major faults found in our practical life. My friend Maulana Abdulla Memon who regularly attended these meetings usually prepares the audio cassettes of these addresses which are widely circulated in the country and abroad. He has also transcribed some of these audio cassettes in an abridged form and after their compilation he has published them in separate translated from oral lectures of the honourable Mufti Justice Mawlana Muhammad Taqi Usmani and not from his writings.

They may, therefore, find in them the style of the spoken words that the translator may have retained here and there.

We have endeavoured to match the get up of the books with their invaluable content and have paid due care in the use of paper, printing and binding. We hope that this set of books will be very useful to our readers in Europe and the United States. They will gain beneficial knowledge from these books and be prompted to put their knowledge into practice.

Insha Allah they will find a great change in their everyday life.

We have published many books in English and many more are under preparation. Do write to us for a full list of these books.

Finally, I request my readers to remember me in their prayers as also my parents and family members. May Allah reward them.

KHALIL ASHRAF USMANI
S/O MOHAMMAD RAZI USMANI

CONTENTS

Series: 9

THE STATUS AND RIGHTS OF A WIFE IN ISLAM

1. Importance of the rights of the servants (of Allah) 31
2. Negligence in the matter of the Rights 31
3. Backbiting is a violation of People's rights 32
4. 'Ihsan is desirable at all times 32
5. That woman shall enter Hell 34
6. That woman shall enter Paradise 34
7. Who is a Pauper? 34
8. The Rights of people are three-fourths of Deen 35
9. The miserable condition of women before Islam 36
10. Amicable behaviour with women 36
11. The Holy Qur'an enunciates only the principles 37
12. Domestic life is the Foundation of the entire civilisation 38
13. Is the woman born of crooked Rib? 39
14. It is not a defect of woman 40
15. The deviousness of women is natural 40
16. "Negligence" is a part of beauty in a woman 40
17. Do not try to straighten her bent by force 41
18. The root cause of the entire conflict 41
19. Be conscious of her good habits 42
20. Everything has virtues and vices in it 43
21. An English proverb 43
22. There is nothing bad in the workshop of Nature 43
23. Always look for the good qualities of women 44
24. Educative story of A saint 44
25. Mirza Mazhar Jan-e-Jan'an and his over-sensitiveness 45

26. The women of our society are Nymphs of Paradise 45
27. It is immorality to beat one's wife 46
28. Three steps of reforming a wife 46
29. Physical punishment to a wife 47
30. The behaviour of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 48
31. The Prophet's Sunnah (practice) 48
32. A miracle of Dr. Abdul Hai رحمة الله عليه 48
33. Tariqat is nothing but public service 49
34. Verbal claim is not enough 50
35. Prophetic Address in the Farewel Pilgrimage 51
36. Mutual relations between husband and wife 51
37. Women are in your confinement 52
38. A Lesson from an Ignorant Girl 52
39. Sacrifices of the woman for your sake 53
40. You have no claim upon them 53
41. Cooking is not the duty of a wife 53
42. Serving the In-laws is not obligatory 55
43. To serve In-Laws is a virtue for a woman 55
44. Appreciate the services of a daughter-in-law 56
45. A Surprising Incident 56
46. The husband should serve his parents himself 57
47. Husband's permission for going out 57
48. Mutual co-operation is vital for smooth life 58
49. If she commits the immodesty 59
50. Pocket money for a wife 60
51. Being generous for Family 60
52. Simple or comfortable accommodation both are lawful 61
53. Decoration is also lawful 61
54. Show off is not lawful 62
55. The limits of extravagance 62
56. This is not Extravagance 62
57. Where to search Allah 63
58. Emotions should not be followed 64

59. Moderate way in spending money 65
60. The rights of the wives over husbands? 65
61. Leave sleeping with her as punishment 66
62. A proper way of separation 66
63. Wife's permission for a long period journey 66
64. Who are the Best People? 67
65. The meaning of "Good Character" in the modern age 68
66. Morality is a quality of the Heart 69
67. How to acquire High Morals? 69
68. Do not beat the Maids of Allah 70
69. Two kinds of Holy Traditions 70
70. The Audacity of the women 72
71. They are not good men 72
72. The Best thing in the world is a "virtuous Woman" 73
73. Seek refuge from a bad woman 74

Series:10

THE RIGHTS OF A HUSBAND AND HIS STATUS

1. Today every person is demanding his rights 81
2. Everyone should discharge his duties 82
3. Mind your own business 82
4. The style of the teachings of theHoly Prophet ﷺ 83
5. How to Regulate one's life 84
6. Satan's Court 85
7. Man is Incharge over woman 86
8. The Propaganda of the contemporary world 87
9. While on a Journey choose one of you as a Leader 87
10. Who should be the Leader of the journey of life? 88
11. The conception of a Leader in Islam 88
12. What an Amir (leader) shoud be like ? 89

13. An Amir (leader) is he who serves others 90
14. Husband and wife are friends 90
15. Such awe is not needed 91
16. The Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 92
17. A wife's self esteem 93
18. It is an act of Sunnah to please the wife 94
19. Bantering with wife is a Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 95
20. The Station of the "Presence" before Allah 96
21. The Responsibilities of women 97
22. The life cannot be based on the Laws only 98
23. Wife should take care of her husband's possessions 99
24. The Angels curse such a wife 99
25. Another Tradition 100
26. No optional fasting without husband's permission 100
27. Reward for doing Household work 101
28. Virtuous Reward for satisfying the sexual desire 102
29. Almighty Allah looks at both with Merciful Eye 102
30. A wife should not allow a stranger into the House 103
31. The Islam of Hazrat Umme Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا 104
32. Her marriage with the Holy Prophet ﷺ 105
33. The Reasons for the Prophet's Multi-Marriages 106
34. Non-Muslims extol this 107
35. Breach of Agreement 107
36. You are not fit for this Bed 107
37. The wife should approach her husband willingly 108
38. Marriage is the Lawful way of satisfying sexual desire 109
39. Marriage is an easy matter 109
40. A Blessed Marriage 110
41. The marriage of Hazrat ʿAbdur Rahman bin ʿAuf رضی اللہ عنہ 110

42. We have made marriage a problem 111
43. The Dowry is a curse on our Society 112
44. The husband's dignity 113
45. This is an attachment between two hearts 114
46. The most beloved personality 115
47. Modern Civilisation has reversed Everything 115
48. The Responsibility of a woman 116
49. Woman entering Paradise directly 117
50. He is your Guest only for a few days 117
51. The Greatest Trial for men 118
52. How is women a Trial ? 118
53. Everyone is a Caretaker and Guardian 120
54. The Ruler is the Guardian of his subjects 120
55. Caliphate a huge burden of responsibilities 121
56. Man is the Guardian and protector of his wife and children. 122
57. The woman is a Guardian over the household and the children 123
58. Follow the Sunnah of Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا 123
59. Tasbeeh Fatimah-a Unique formula 124
60. Mother is responsible for bringing up the children 125

Series 11

THE HAJJ AND SACRIFICE

1. This place was once a Minaret of Light 130
2. Due Order in worship 131
3. Qurbani (sacrifice of animals) is thanksgiving 132
4. Allah Swears by Ten Nights 133
5. The Supremacy of the Ten Days 133
6. Two special acts of worship during these days 134
7. Cutting off Nails and Hair in these days 135
8. Try to attain some likeness to Pilgrims 135
9. Mercy of Allah is waiting to Descend 136
10. Awareness to Virtues is needed 137
11. Fasting on the Day of Arafah 137
12. Only the Minor sins are forgiven 138

13. Takbeer-e-Tashreeq 138
14. We are fond of taking the opposite course 139
15. A Demonstration of the Dignity of Islam 139
16. Takbeer-e-Tashreeq is obligatory for women also 140
17. The Qurbani cannot be offered on other days 141
18. Real Islam is to follow the Injunctions 141
19. Leave Masjid-al-Haram 141
20. Place and Deed are not important 142
21. Hajj acts as seen by Reason 142
22. What lesson does Qurbani teach? 143
23. It is against Reason to slaughter one's own son 143
24. Like Father like Son. 144
25. Look at nature's wonder! 146
26. Allah's command has preference over all things. 146
27. Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام did not seek a rational justification 146
28. Is Qurbani harmful to Economy? 147
29. The Real Spirit of Qurbani 148
30. Qurbani ceases to be worship after three days 148
31. The Difference between Sunnah and Bid'ah 149
32. Four Rak'ats of Maghrib Instead of three 149
33. An interesting example of Sunnah and Bid'ah 149
34. The late night Prayer of Hazrat Abu Bakr and Hazrat Umar رضى الله عنهما 151
35. Moderation is needed 152
36. Negate your Propositions 152
37. Make your life a model of Obedience 152
38. The Excellences of Qurbani 153
39. The Story of a villager 153

40. The Value of our worship 155
41. Royal way of accepting gift 155
42. Allah looks for piety of the heart 155
43. Are these animals our Carriers on "Pul Sirat"? 156
44. I entrust to you my entire capital 157

Series 12

LET US ATTUNE OUR LIFE WITH 'SEERAH'

1. The Discourse about the Prophet ﷺ is a means to great Blessing 162
2. A Great Event of Human History 163
3. The Twelfth of Rabi'ul Awwal and the Companions رضى الله عنهم 164
4. The Origin of Christmas 164
5. The present Condition of Christmas 165
6. The Fate of Christmas 165
7. The Beginning of the Meeladun Nabi 166
8. This is like a Hindu Festival 166
9. This is not an Islamic practice 167
10. What was the objective of Prophetic Mission? 167
11. Man needs a model to follow 168
12. The "House Job" is compulsory for a new Doctor 169
13. One cannot prepare stew by reading a book on cookery 169
14. The Book alone is not sufficient 170
15. The Light of the Prophet's teachings is needed 170
16. The teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ are themselves light 171
17. The Prophet's life provides a model for every walk of life 171
18. An etiquette for Assemblies 172
19. An Example of Obedience 172

20. Maintenance of Etiquette on the Battlefield 173
21. An incident of Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ 173
22. I cannot relinquish my master's sunnah 174
23. Should I give up the Sunnah of Holy Prophet for the sake of these fools 174
24. He reduced Khosroe's Pride to dust 175
25. I shall not give up my usual dress 175
26. A Dialouge with a Courtier 176
27. It is they who conquered Iran 177
28. Why are the Muslims humiliated today? 177
29. Do not be afraid of being laughed at 178
30. A believer is bound to follow the Sunnah 179
31. Review your own life 179
32. Become a Beloved of Allah 180
33. Follow this practice 181

Series 13
ON THE CELEBRATIONS OF MILAD

1. The Blessed Discourses about the Holy Prophet ﷺ 186
2. The sacred Biography of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and the attitude of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم 187
3. Islam is not the Faith of formalities 188
4. The life of the Holy Prophet ﷺ is a perfect model 188
5. We are not sincere in our Intentions 189
6. Adultrated intentions 190
7. The functions are attended to please the friends 191
8. Enjoying the oratory and force of the orator's speeches 191
9. Just to while away spare time 192
10. The Prophet's life guides those hom Allah wills 192
11. A Fun is being made of the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 193

12. Seerat Assemblies and the violation of Purdah 194
13. Music in Seerah assemblies 194
14. Missing Prayers during Seerah Assemblies 195
15. Disturbing the Muslims through Seerah Gatherings 196
16. Taking out processions in imitation of others 197
17. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ and the Hajr-e-Aswad 199
18. For the sake of Allah change this practice 199
19. An Appeal 200

Series 14
DO NOT DESPISE THE POOR

1. These people are not weak 204
2. Who are the beloved of Allah? 205
3. A Loving Indifference 206
4. The seeker (of guidance) has a preference 207
5. Who are the people of Paradise? 208
6. Almighty Allah fulfils their oath 208
7. Who are the people of Hell? 210
8. The people who possess great excellence 210
9. These starving People! 211
10. The followers of the Prophets علیہم السلام 211
11. Hazrat Zahir رضی اللہ عنہ 212
12. The Holy Prophet ﷺ used to make the following supplication (Du'a) 213
13. The position of a servant in the Prophet's sight 214
14. A debate between Paradise and Hell 214
15. How could Paradise and Hell talk? 215
16. The limbs will speak on the Day of Judegment? 215
17. Hell will be filled with the proud people 217
18. Paradise will be filled with the weak and the poor	217

19.	Allah does not like Arrogance	217
20.	The Example of a Proud man	218
21.	Do not despise even an unbeliever	218
22.	Modesty of Maulana Ashraf Ali رحمة الله عليه	218
23.	Pride and faith cannot go together	219
24.	Pride is an inner disease	219
25.	Spiritual training by a Sheikh is imperative	219
26.	The treatment of spiritual Diseases	220
27.	Hazrat Thanawi's method of Treatment	220
28.	Pride leads to Hell	221
29.	Majority of the weak and the poor will be in Paradise	221
30.	The followers of the Prophets عليهم السلام were mostly the poor	221
31.	Who are the weak and the poor	222
32.	Poverty (in the second sense) and affluence can go together	222
33.	Poverty and "Maskanat" (humbleness) are two different things	223
34.	Allah's Judgment between Paradise and Hell	223
35.	A pious man did not laugh during his entire lifetime	224
36.	How can a believer sleep?	224
37.	He smiled at the time of death	224
38.	A life of negligence	225
39.	Do not be proud of physical health, strength and beauty	225
40.	The woman who used to sweep the Prophet's ﷺ mosque	226
41.	The Injunction about offering funeral (Janazah) prayer on graves	227
42.	Graves are cells of Darkness	227
43.	Do not despise anyone	227

44.	The people with their dishevelled hair	228
45.	Our Behaviour with the poor	228
46.	Hazrat Thanawi's رحمة الله عليه behaviour with his servant	229
47.	Those who shall enter Paradise and Hell	230
48.	The poor will be in Paradise	231
49.	Why will women be in Hell more in number?	231
50.	Ingratitude to Husbands	232
51.	The sin of ingratitude amounts to disbelief	232
52.	Prostration before husbands	232
53.	Two Formulas for safety from Hell	233
54.	The Angels curse such a woman	233
55.	Control your tongue	233
56.	The Importance of the Rights of the people	234
	Series 15
	ON RESISTING THE INNERSELF
1.	The meaning of Mujahadah (strife)	240
2.	Man's Self is fond of pleasures	241
3.	There is no peace in satisfying Carnal desires	241
4.	There is no limit to taste and enjoyment	242
5.	Open Adultery	242
6.	Rape cases in America	242
7.	InsatiableThirst	243
8.	Put some resistance	243
9.	Self over-powers the weak	244
10.	The 'Self' is like a suckling child	244
11.	The Self is fond of sins	245
12.	Real peace is in Allah's remembrance	245
13.	Allah's promise cannot be false	246
14.	Make your heart worthy of Allah	246
15.	Why does a mother endure all distress?	247
16.	Love does away with distress	248
17.	The love of Allah should not be less than that of Laila	248
18.	Love of Money	249
19.	Acquaint yourself with worship	250

20.	You will receive great enjoyment in negating the Self	251
21.	Cultivate the taste of Iman (Faith)	251
22.	The Essence of Tasaw-wuf (Mysticism)	252
23.	The Heart has to be broken	252
	Series 16
	ESSENTIALITY OF 'MUJAHADAH'
1.	The Reality of Mujahadah	258
2.	Mujahadah in worldly affairs	258
3.	Cultivation of the habit of Mujahadah from childhood	259
4.	There will be no Mujahadah in Paradise	259
5.	The world of Hell	260
6.	The present world	260
7.	Seek the pleasure of Allah	261
8.	When receiving the King's commands	262
9.	Almighty Allah will be with them	262
10.	The task will become easy	263
11.	Only take a step forward	263
12.	Mujahadah is to refrain from some lawful acts also	264
13.	Why should Mujahadah be necessary in lawful acts?	265
14.	Four kinds of Mujahadahs	265
15.	Allah's pleasure and freedom from fatness	266
16.	Keeping away from enjoyments	267
17.	The Frenzy of eating to one's fill	268
18.	(2) The Mujahadah of speaking less	268
19.	Save yourself from the sins of the tongue	268
20.	Lawful Recreation is permitted	269
21.	It is an act of Sunnah to converse with guests	269
22.	A Method of Reform	270
23.	(3) Less Sleeping	271
24.	(4) Reduce your contacts with the people	271
25.	The Heart is a Mirror	271

FOREWORD

To The English Edition by
Justice Mufti Muhammad Taqi Usmani

بِسْمِ اللهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

On the advice of some of my elders I hold a weekly meeting in Jamia Masjid AlBaitul Mukaram attended by a large number of Muslim brothers and sisters. Rather than giving a formal lecture, my basic purpose intended to be achieved through these meetings is that we get together for some time to review our ways of life in the light of Islamic teachings and to deliberate what is going to happen to us after we leave this mundane world. When the Muslims having true Islamic orientation sit together for this purpose, each one of them benefit from the other to create a genuine concern about our coming life which is the real and eternal life as compared to the present one which may come to an end any time.

I this mutual meeting which is meant for self-correction I normally read a book of Hadith and explain it to the audience in the light of what I have learned from my elders with special reference to the current attitude prevailing in our society and touching upon the relevant practical issues, social evils and the major faults found in our practical life. My friend Maulana Abdulla Memon who regularly attended these meetings usually prepares the audio cassettes of these addresses which are widely circulated in the country and abroad. He has also transcribed some of these audio cassettes in an abridged form and after their compilation he has published them in separate translated from oral lectures of the honourable Mufti Justice Mawlana Muhammad Taqi Usmani and not from his writings.

They may, therefore, find in them the style of the spoken words that the translator may have retained here and there.

We have endeavoured to match the get up of the books with their invaluable content and have paid due care in the use of paper, printing and binding. We hope that this set of books will be very useful to our readers in Europe and the United States. They will gain beneficial knowledge from these books and be prompted to put their knowledge into practice.

Insha Allah they will find a great change in their everyday life.

We have published many books in English and many more are under preparation. Do write to us for a full list of these books.

Finally, I request my readers to remember me in their prayers as also my parents and family members. May Allah reward them.

KHALIL ASHRAF USMANI
S/O MOHAMMAD RAZI USMANI

CONTENTS

Series 17
ISLAM AND THE NEW ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

1.	Todays Topic.	28
2.	Islam is a Mode of Life.	29
3.	Economics is not a basic problem of life.	30
4.	The Final Destination is the Hereafter.	30
5.	A most befitting example of the world.	31
6.	What does "Economics" of living mean?	32
7.	1. Determination of Priorities	33
8.	2. Allocation of Resources.	34
9.	3. Distribution of Income.	34
10.	4. Development.	34
11.	Their solution in the capitalistic system.	35
12.	Their Solution in Socialism.	37
13.	The Basic Principles of Capitalistic Economy.	38
14.	The Basic principles of Socialism.	39
15.	The Results of Socialism.	39
16.	Socialism was an unnatural system.	40
17.	The Evils of the Socialistic systems.	41
18.	Islamic injunctions of Economic Issues	43
19.	(1) Religious Restrictions.	45
20.	The Evils of the Interest - bearing system.	46
21.	The Benefits of Partnership and Muzarabah (cooperative enterprise)	47
22.	Gambling is unlawful	47
23.	Monopoly	48
24.	Hoarding is not Lawful.	48

25. (1) Another Example 48
26. (2) Moral Restriction. 49
27. (3) Legal Restriction. 50
28. Summary. 51

Series 18
THE WEALTH OF THE QUR'AN ITS VALUE AND GREATNESS

1. Value of the Blessings and wealth of the Qur'an. 56
2. The Holy Qur'an and the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم 57
3. The reward for reciting the Holy Qur'an. 59
4. The reason for showing apathy to the Holy Qur'an. 60
5. Who is a real pauper? 61
6. The importance of rights of the servants of Allah. 62
7. Who is a Muslim? 63
8. The Prophet's Teachings 64
9. The Honour and Esteem of a Muslim 65
10. The reality of the religion of Islam 66
11. An Event full of Admonition 68
12. The bliss and joy of Paradise and the severe torment of Hell 69
13. Our pitiable condition 70
14. All men of the world are unanimous on one Issue 70
15. An Event that contains a lesson 71
16. Anxiety for the Eternal life of the Hereafter 72
17. The Method of valuing the Holy Qur'an 73
18. The duties of Muslims towards Deeni schools 73
19. Child Education 74

Series : 19
THE DISEASES OF THE HEART & THE NEED FOR A SPIRITUAL PHYSICIAN

1. The Importance of Character 80
2. What is Character 80
3. The Importance of the soul 81
4. Bury it promptly 81
5. The Diseases of the soul 82
6. The Beauty of the soul 83
7. Physical forms of worship 83
8. Modesty is an action of the heart 83
9. Ikhlas (sincerity) is a particular state of the heart 84
10. Gratitude is an act of the Heart 84
11. The Reality of patience 84
12. It is an obligatory Duty (Farz) to attain inner Ikhlas (sincerity) 85
13. It is forbidden (Haram) to leave inner diseases neglected 85
14. The Reality of Anger 86
15. Absence of Anger, too, is a Disease 86
16. Moderation is needed during Anger 87
17. Anger and Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ 87
18. The need for limit in moderation 88
19. The Importance of the Heart 88
20. These unseen Diseases 89
21. The Doctors of the Heart are the Pious Sufis (Mystics) 89
22. Modesty or show of Modesty 90
23. The method of testing the modesty of a person 90
24. To straighten the shoes of others 91
25. What is "Tasaw-wuf (Mysticism)? 92

26. The Reality of Wazaa-if (Rehearsal of sacred names) and Ma'-moolat (Routine rituals) 92
27. The Real Objective of Mujahadat (spiritual exertions) 93
28. An account of the Grandson of Sheikh Abdul Quddoos Gangohi رحمة الله عليه 93
29. Reception given to the Sheikh's grandson 94
30. Kindle the Fire of the Hammam (Hot-bath) 94
31. The Training is not yet complete 95
32. The Idol of the Heart has now been smashed 95
33. Do not let the chain slip off your hands 96
34. The spiritual wealth was entrusted to him 96
35. The Real object of Reform 96
36. Why is the reform of the soul necessary 97
37. Seek for you a spiritual physician 98

Series 20
DO NOT LOVE THE WORLD

1. The comforts of the world depend on Deen (Faith) 102
2. The Reality of Zuhd (Asceticism) 103
3. The Love of the world is the root of all sins 103
4. I would make Abu Bakr my beloved 104
5. Only the love of one can occupy the heart 105
6. I am in the world but I do not cherish it 105
7. An Example of the world 106
8. The love of two things cannot get together 107
9. The World may be compared to a latrine 107
10. Worldly life should not deceive you 108
11. The Story of Shaikh Fareeduddin 'Attar رحمة الله عليه 109
12. The Story of Hazrat Ibrahim Bin Adham رحمة الله عليه 110

13. Take a lesson from this story 111
14. My respected father vis-a-vis love of the world 111
15. The thought of the Garden went out of my heart 111
16. The world comes humiliated and disgraced to those who hate it 112
17. The world is like a Shadow 113
18. Arrival of Wealth from Bahrain 113
19. I have no fear that poverty and starvation will befall you 114
20. Poverty during the times of the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم 115
21. Lest this world should perish you 116
22. When you will have carpets spread under your feet 116
23. Handkerchiefs of Paradise are better 117
24. The Entire world is not worth a gnats wing 117
25. The Entire world became their slave 118
26. Hazrat Ubaidah bin Jarrah, رضى الله عنه the Governor of Syria 118
27. The Residence of the Governor of Syria 119
28. I have only passed through the market; I am not a buyer: 120
29. Everyone has to die one day 121
30. The "World" is nothing but an illusion 121
31. How to attain Zuhd (Asceticism) 122

Series 21
DOES THE WORLD MEAN WEALTH AND PROPERTY?

1. Respected Elders and Dear Brothers! 126
2. A misunderstanding 126
3. The Qur'an and the Ahadith condemn the world 127
4. The virtues and goodness of the world. 128
5. It is not necessary to renounce the world for the sake of the Hereafter	129

6.	Nobody can deny Death	129
7.	Real life is the life of the Hereafter	130
8.	The Message of Islam	130
9.	A very befitting example of the world	130
10.	The world is a ladder to the Hereafter	131
11.	The World turns into Deen	132
12.	An advice to "Korah"	132
13.	Should the entire wealth be spent in alms?	133
14.	The cause of corruption on the Earth	133
15.	Comfort cannot be purchased with money	134
16.	The way by whch the world can be turned into Deen	135

Series 22

LYING AND ITS PREVAILING FORMS

1.	Three signs of a hypocrite	140
2.	Islam is a comprehensive Religion	141
3.	Lying and the Days of Ignorance	141
4.	I could not tell a lie	142
5.	False Medical certificates	143
6.	Do prayer and Fasting constitute Deen?	143
7.	False Recommendations	144
8.	Do not tell lies to children	145
9.	Do not tell lies even in Jokes	145
10.	The Prophet's way of cutting Jokes	146
11.	A Unique Style of Joke	146
12.	False Character certificates	147
13.	There are two ways of knowing someone's character	147
14.	Certificate is a witness	148
15.	False witness is equivalent to Shirk (شرك)	148
16.	One who issues a false certificate is a sinner	149

17.	Telling lies in a Court	149
18.	Certificate about a Madrasah (School)	150
19.	It is an act of bearing witness to write a review about a book	150
20	Abstain from lying	151
21.	Occasions on which telling lies is permitted	151
22.	How did Hazrat Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ avoid lying?	151
23.	Hazrat Gangohi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ and his abstension from lying	152
24.	Hazrat Nanotawi's abstention from lying	153
25.	Create in the hearts of the children aversion to telling lies	154
26.	One may be a liar by one's actions also	154
27.	To prefix the title sayyid (سید) to one's name	155
28.	To use the titles "Professor" and "Maulana"	155

Series 23

BREACH OF PROMISE

1.	A "Promise" should be fulfilled as far as possible	160
2.	Betrothal is a Promise	161
3.	A Promise made by Hazrat Huzaifah رضی اللہ عنہ to Abu Jahl	161
4.	The Battle of Badr - the first encounter of truth with falsehood	162
5.	A promise that was elicited by putting the sword on the neck	162
6.	You have escaped by giving a word of Honour	163
7.	The objective of Jihad (Holy War) is the upholding of the Truth	163
8.	This is how a promise is fulfilled	164
9.	Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ	164
10.	Military Strategy to gain victory	164
11.	This is a breach of Treaty	165

12. The entire conquered territory was returned 166
13. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ and an Agreement 167
14. The prevailing Forms of Breach of Promise 168
15. It is a binding to obey the laws of the country 168
16. Hazrat Moosa (Moses) علیہ السلام and Pharaoh's laws 169
17. To obtain a Visa is an implied undertaking 170
18. It is a sin to violate Traffic Rules 170
19. You will be responsible for the consequences of this violation here and in the Hereafter 170
20. This is Allah's Deen (Faith) 171
21. Summary 171

Series 24
BREACH OF TRUST AND ITS PREVAILING FORMS

1. Emphasis on the virtue of trustfulness 176
2. The conception of Trustfulness 177
3. The meaning of Trustfulness 177
4. The undertaking given on the Day of "A-last" (Am I not your Lord?) 178
5. This life is a Trust 178
6. This body is a Trust 179
7. The Eyes are a Blessing 179
8. The Eyes are a Trust 180
9. The ears are a Trust 181
10. The Tongue is a Trust 181
11. Suicide is forbidden (Haram) 181
12. It is a breach of Trust to commit sins 182
13. Borrowed things are a trust 183
14. These pots and plates are a Trust 183
15. This book is a Trust 183
16. Working hours are a Trust 184

17. The practice of the Teachers of Darul-Uloom, Deoband (India) 184
18. The monthly salary of Hazrat Shaikh-ul-Hind رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 185
19. Today is the age of demanding rights 186
20. Everyone should be watchful of his duties: 186
21. This is also fraud in weights and measures 187
22. "Post" and "Position" impose responsibilities 188
23. Should I appoint such a person as a Caliph? 188
24. Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ and his sense of responsibility 189
25. Problem Number one of Pakistan is Breach of Trust 190
26. Office materials are a Trust 190
27. Government and public properties are a Trust 191
28. The Drain-pipe (Aquaduct) of Hazrat Abbas رضی اللہ عنہ 191
29. Topics discussed in a meeting are a Trust 192
30. Secrets are a Trust 193
31. To overhear other's telephone conversation 193
32. Summary 194

Series 25
HOW TO REFORM THE SOCIETY

1. A unique and wonderful verse 198
2. Why do the efforts made to reform the society are ineffective 198
3. Diagnosis of the Disease 199
4. Mindful of others' interests and neglectful of one's own 200
5. The most ruined person 200
6. A sick man cannot afford to worry for others sickness 201

7. "But she is not suffering from colic" 201
8. Treatment of the Disease 202
9. Meetings of self-searching and self-accountability 202
10. Man's First task 202
11. What is Society? 203
12. The practice of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم 203
13. A distinction of Hazrat Huzaifah bin Yaman رضی اللہ عنہ 204
14. The second Caliph's suspicion about his own hypocrisy 204
15. What emanates from the core of the heart is effective, indeed 205
16. Our plight 206
17. The prayer (salah) of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 206
18. The Prophet's Fasting 207
19. Continuous Fasting is prohibited 207
20. The Holy Prophet ﷺ and Zakah (the obligatory alms) 207
21. The Beloved of Allah (i.e. the Prophet ﷺ) dug ditches also 208
22. To tie pieces of stone on the belly 208
23. The Holy Prophet ﷺ had tied two pieces of stone on his belly 209
24. The task and toil borne by Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا 209
25. To observe optional fast on the 30th of Sha'ban 210
26. The precaution of Hazrat Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 211
27. How to reform the society 211
28. Discharge your Duty 212
29. A misunderstanding about the meaning of the verse 213
30. Correct Interpretation of the verse 213

31. How long is it necessary to pursue the duty of reforming the children 214
32. Do not forget yourself 215
33. A dangerous situation for speakers and preachers 215
34. A candle is lighted from another candle 217

Series 26

OBEDIENCE TO ELDERS AND DEMANDS OF ETIQUETTE

1. To effect reconciliation among people 222
2. The way to draw the attention of an Imam (Leader of a Prayer) 224
3. The son of Abu Qahafah رضی اللہ عنہ could not dare to do so 224
4. The status of Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی اللہ عنہ 225
5. Order has preference over etiquette 225
6. It is necessary to obey the orders of the elders 225
7. Obedience is the essence of Deen (Faith) 225
8. My attendance in the meetings of my respected father رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 225
9. My father's attendance in a meeting of Hazrat Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 225
10. Decision on the dispute between Alamgir and Dara Shikoh to accede to the Throne 227
11. One should not resort to false excuses 228
12. To take up the shoes of the respectable elders 228
13. Two events relating to the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم 228
14. By Allah I shall not erase it 229
15. When obedience to an order becomes impossible 230
16. That state is better in which the beloved wants to keep the lover 230
17. Summary 231

Series 27
TRADE - IT IS DEEN AS WELL AS A WORLDLY AFFAIR

1. The Foundation stone of a Muslim's life 236
2. Traders will be raised up along with the Prophets عليهم السلام 236
3. Traders will be raised up alongwith the wrongdoers 237
4. There are two categories of Traders 237
5. Trade may lead to Paradise or Hell 238
6. Every activity has two angles 238
7. Change your angle of vision 238
8. It is an act of worship to take meals 238
9. Hazrat Ayyub (Job) عليه السلام and the golden butterflies 239
10. The eyes should be fixed on the giver of the blessings 240
11. This is Taqwa (Righteousness) 240
12. It is the company of the pious that breeds Taqwa 241
13. Only books are not enough for guidance 242
14. The result of becoming a Doctor only through reading books 242
15. Adopt the company of the Muttaqeen (the righteous) 243

Series: 28
THE IMPORTANCE OF MATRIMONIAL SERMON

1. Marriage Ceremonies 248
2. Three Qur'anic verses about Nikah sermon 248
3. The Point common to all the three verses 250
4. It is not possible for man to discharge his rights without Taqwa 250
5. It is an act of Sunnah to recite these three verses 251
6. The start of a New life 251

FOREWORD

To The English Edition by
Justice Mufti Muhammad Taqi Usmani

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

On the advice of some of my elders I hold a weekly meeting in Jamia Masjid AlBaitul Mukaram attended by a large number of Muslim brothers and sisters. Rather than giving a formal lecture, my basic purpose intended to be achieved through these meetings is that we get together for some time to review our ways of life in the light of Islamic teachings and to deliberate what is going to happen to us after we leave this mundane world. When the Muslims having true Islamic orientation sit together for this purpose, each one of them benefit from the other to create a genuine concern about our coming life which is the real and eternal life as compared to the present one which may come to an end any time.

I this mutual meeting which is meant for self-correction I normally read a book of Hadith and explain it to the audience in the light of what I have learned from my elders with special reference to the current attitude prevailing in our society and touching upon the relevant practical issues, social evils and the major faults found in our practical life. My friend Maulana Abdulla Memon who regularly attended these meetings usually prepares the audio cassettes of these addresses which are widely circulated in the country and abroad. He has also transcribed some of these audio cassettes in an abridged form and after their compilation he has published them in separate

CONTENTS

Series: 30
REFORM AND TRAINING OF CHILDREN

1.	The Beautiful Topic of the address	28
2.	The word "Son" is a way of address full of love and affection	29
3.	The Translation of the verses.	30
4.	Individual deeds are not sufficient for salvation	31
5.	What, if children do not obey you?	31
6.	How do you protect them from the worldly fire?	32
7.	Today care is taken of everything except Deen	33
8.	He has deviated only a little from the part of Deen	33
9.	Only the soul has departed from the body	34
10.	The Plight of the new generation	34
11.	Today the children have the upper hand over their parents	35
12.	The old father is in a Nursing Home	36
13.	You must reap what you have sown.	36
14.	The Prophets to عليهم السلام and their concern about their children	37
15.	The Masters will be questioned about their subordinates on the Day of Judgment	38
16.	These sins are in reality Fire.	39
17.	The result of one morsel eaten out of ill-gotten money.	39

18.	We have become accustomed to Darkness	40
19.	It is the divine saints who can observe sins.	41
20.	The world is filled with the Fire of sins	42
21.	First be regular in Prayers yourself	42
22.	Do not tell lies to children.	42
23.	The style of imparting training to children	43
24.	The limit of showing affection to children	44
25.	An incident that happened to the Shaikhul Hadith Hazrat Maulana Zakaria رحمة الله عليه	45
26.	An etiquette of taking food	45
27.	These are Islamic Rules of Etiquettes	46
28.	Teaching and training children before the age of seven year	47
29.	Let them learn at home	48
30.	Qari Fath Muhammad Sahib رحمة الله عليه	48
31.	The limit to which bodily punishment may be inflicted on children.	49
32.	The way how children should be beaten	50
33.	How to train children	50
34.	Everyone of you is a guardian	51
35.	Take care of your subordinates	51
36.	Spare only ten minutes	52

Series: 31
SERVICE TO PARENTS A MEANS TO PARADISE

1.	A description of the rights of the servants of Allah	56
2.	Which deed is the best	57
3.	Desire to do good deeds	57
4.	Alas! I have lost many Qeerats	58
5.	Different answers to the same question	58
6.	The Best Act for everyone is different	59

7.	The Excellence of Prayer	59
8.	The Excellence of Jihad	60
9.	The Rights of Parents	61
10.	Selfless Love	61
11.	Kindness and service to Parents	62
12.	It is not Deen (Faith) to satisfy one's fancy	62
13.	This is not Deen (Faith).	63
14.	Hazrat Owais Qarni رضى الله عنه	64
15.	The status of being a companion (Sahabi)	65
16.	Cotninue serving and looking after your mother	65
17.	Reward for mother's service	66
18.	Devotion of the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم	67
19.	The importance of service to parents	68
20.	When the parents have grown old	69
21.	An Instructive Event	69
22.	Kindness to. and nice behaviour with parents	71
23.	The curse of disobeying parents	71
24.	An event full of moral lesson	72
25.	Parents permission for receiving education	72
26.	An easy way to win Paradise	73
27.	How to compensate for negligence towards parents after their death	73
28.	The mother has three rights as against the father who has only one right	74
29.	Due respect to father and devoted service to mother	75
30.	The result and reward of service to mothers	75
31.	So go and do good to them	76
32.	Go and make your Parents laugh	77
33.	Deen (Faith) is the name of abiding limits	77
34.	Company of Godly men	78

35. Shari'at, Sunnat and Tariqat 78

Series: 32

BACKBITING A GRIEVOUS SIN OF THE TONGUE

1. Backbiting is a heinous sin 84
2. Definition of Backbiting 85
3. Backbiting is a major sin 86
4. Let them tear their faces 87
5. Backbiting is worse than adultery 87
6. The backbiter will be prevented from entering Paradise 88
7. Backbiting is the worst form of Usury 88
8. Backbiting is like eating the flesh of a dead brother 88
9. A dream full of admonition 89
10. The Darkness of eating forbidden (Haram) things 90
11. Occasions on which Backbiting is allowed 91
12. To commit Backbiting to save someone from another's wickedness 91
13. If the life of a person is in danger 92
14. To backbite a person who commits a sin openly and above board 93
15. This too is included in the sin of Backbiting 93
16. The Backbiting of a sinner and wrongdoer is not lawful 93
17. It is not Backbiting to speak ill of a tyrant 94
18. Resolution and courage are needed to give up the sin of Backbiting 95
19. The Remedy for getting rid of Backbiting 96
20. Expiation for Backbiting 97
21. How to compensate the outstanding rights and dues of others 97
22. The Excellence of seeking and offering pardon for sins 98
23. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has himself sought pardon 98
24. A golden principle of Islam 100
25. An easy way of getting rid of Backbiting 100
26. Have an eye on your own vices 100
27. Change the trend of the talk 101
28. Backbiting is the root of all vices 102
29. To commit Backbiting through hints and signs 102
30. Take care to refrain from Backbiting 103
31. How to refrain from Backbiting 103
32. Make a Resolution to refrain from Backbiting 103
33. Calumny - a grievous sin 104
34. Calumny is worse than Backbiting 105
35. Two reasons for the torment of the grave 105
36. Beware of sprinkles of urine 106
37. Beware of Calumny 107
38. It is Calumny to divulge a secret 107
39. Two serious sins of the tongue 108

Series: 33

ETIQUETTES OF SLEEPING

1. A long Du'a (supplication) for reciting at bed time 112
2. Perform Ablution before going to bed 113
3. The rules of Etiquette are dictated by Love 113
4. When going to sleep lie down on the right side 113
5. Entrust to Allah all the affairs of the day 114
6. Tafweez (Entrusting) brings peace and comforts 115
7. There is only one place of refuge 116
8. To protect yourself from the arrow take your seat by the side of the archer 116
9. Learn a lesson from an innocent child 116

10. You shall enter Paradise direct 117
11. A brief Du'a before going to bed 117
12. Sleep is minor death 118
13. Du'a to recite on awaking from sleep 118
14. Remember death most frequently 119
15. It is not good to be down on one's belly 120
16. The assembly will be regrettable 120
17. The Plight of our assemblies 121
18. It is lawful to indulge in recreation 122
19. The unique versatility of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 123
20. Compensation and reward for expression of love 123
21. Do every act only for the pleasure of Allah 124
22. Hazrat Majzoob and Allah's remembrance 125
23. The 'needle' of the heart in the direction of Allah 125
24. Allah has created the heart for Himself 126
25. The Du'a (supplication) are Kaffarah (Expiation) of an assembly 127
26. Convert sleep into worship 128
27. If you are the best of the creation 128
28. An assembly like this is a dead ass 129
29. Sleep is gift of Allah 129
30. The night is a great blessing of Allah 129

Series: 34

AN EASY WAY OF ESTABLISHING RELATIONSHIP WITH ALLAH

1. Du'a (supplication) to recite when putting on a new garment 134
2. There is a separate Du'a (supplication) for every time 134
3. The way of establishing relationship with Allah 135
4. Allah does not stand in need of anyone's remembrance 136

5. Indifference towards Allah is the root of all evils 136
6. Where has Allah gone 137
7. Indifference to rememberance of Allah leads to increase in sins and crimes 138
8. It is the Holy Prophet ﷺ who put an end to crimes 139
9. Even verbal remembrance of Allah is beneficial and desirable 140
10. The Reality of "Relationship" with Allah 140
11. Continue begging Allah at all times 141
12. It is a very cheap but effective formula 141
13. There are no preconditions for rememberance of Allah 142
14. The light of the Ahadith is indispensable for understanding the Qur'an 143

Series: 35

PROTECT YOUR TONGUE

1. Three blessed Ahadith 148
2. Take care of your tongue 149
3. The tongue is a great blessing 149
4. What if the tongue suddenly stops speaking 150
5. The tongue is a Trust from Allah 150
6. The correct use of the tongue 151
7. Keep the tongue wet with the remembrance of Allah 152
8. Utilize the tongue to teach Deen 152
9. To utter a word of solace 153
10. The tongue may lead to Hell 153
11. Think before you open your mouth to speak 154
12. Hazrat Mian Sahib رحمة الله عليه 154
13. Our Example 155
14. The remedy to keep the tongue under control 156
15. Put a lock on the tongue 157

16. Refrain from using the tongue in gossip 157
17. Our women and the use of the tongue 157
18. I guarantee Paradise for you 158
19. Three acts for salvation 159
20. O Tongue, fear Allah! 160
21. The limbs shall speak on the Day of Judgment 160

Series: 36
HAZRAT IBRAHIM عليه السلام AND BUILDING OF THE HOUSE OF ALLAH (AL-KA'BAH)

1. The Comprehensiveness of Deen 167
2. The Event of building the House of Allah (The Kab'ah) 168
3. It is a rule of etiquette that joint projects are ascribed to the elderly member of the team 169
4. Hazrat 'Umar رضى الله عنه and observance of Etiquettes 170
5. An outstanding event 171
6. There should be no feeling of superiority in the heart 172
7. The victory of Makkah and the Propeht's modesty 173
8. Help comes from Almighty Allah alone 174
9. Who is a genuine Muslim? 175
10. The objective of building a mosque 176
11. Deen is not confined to praying and fasting alone. 177
12. It is a compulsory duty to reform children 179
13. Why Istighfar (request for pardon) after Prayers? 180
14. A comprehensive Du'a 181
15. The importance of the Ad'yiah (supplications) occurring in the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 182

Series: 37
REALIZE THE VALUE OF TIME

1. Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه 188

2. A unique event that reformed his life 189
3. His status in the science of Hadith 191
4. His lack of itnerest in, and retirement from the world 191
5. His occupation with the Ahadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 191
6. Respect and love for him in the hearts of the people 192
7. A strange event of his generosity 193
8. His generosity and help to the poor 193
9. Another example of his generosity 195
10. Kitabuz-zuhd war-raqa-iq 196
11. Two great blessings are being neglected 197
12. Realize the value of Health 197
13. Act upon one Hadith 198
14. It is Satan's deception to feel that I am in the bloom of youth 199
15. Had we not granted you an age so long 166
16. Who are these warners? 200
17. A dialogue with the Angel of death 200
18. If you have anything to do, do it 201
19. The regret for inability to offer two Raka'ats of prayer 201
19. Fill your balance of Deeds with good Deeds 202
20. Hafiz ibn Hajar رحمة الله عليه and the realization of the value of time 203
21. Hazrat Mufti Sahib رحمة الله عليه and the value of time 203
22. The best formula for working 204
23. Will the "Self" be neglectful despite this? 205
24. The remedy to cure lustful thoughts 205
25. The Film of your life will be televised 206
26. Do not postpone it till tomorrow 207

27. It is desirable to make haste in doing good 207
28. Realize the value of five items 208
29. Realize the value of youth 208
30. Realize the value of Health, wealth and leisure 209
31. Recite these Ad'yiah every morning 210
32. Hazrat Hasan Basri رحمة الله عليه 211
33. Time is more precious than gold and silver 211
34. The value of two Rak'ats of Nafl (optional) Prayer 212
35. A voice is coming out of the graveyard 213
36. Only the "Deeds" will go with you 214
37. Do not long for death 214
38. Hazrat Mian Sahib's revelation 215
39. How to be safe from too much talking 215
40. Our Example 216
41. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه and the value of Time 216
42. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه and his Timetable 217
43. The Reality of Birthdays 218
44. A Dirge (مرثیہ) on the past years of life219
45. There are three categories of activities 219
46. In reality this too is a great loss 220
47. The queer loss of a businessman 220
48. The story of Bania (An Indian Hindu shopkeeper) 221
49. The present age and time-saving devices 222
50. Satan has involved us in show-business 224
51. Wastage of Time among womenfolk 224
52. Why should I waste time in taking revenge?224
53. Hazrat Mianji Noor Muhammad رحمة الله عليه and how he realised the value of time 225
54. The matter needs to be tackled more hurriedly 225
55. The relation of the Holy Prophet ﷺ with this world 227

56. A working principle in this World 228
57. An easy way of turning time to good account 228
58. Draw up a schedule for your time 229
59. This too is Jihad 230
60. Never postpone a good Deed 230
61. Man gets time for a deed which he considers in his heart to be important 231
62. Important work shall be accorded preference 231
63. You have at your disposal only today 232
64. This Namaz (Prayer) may perhaps be the last Namaz of my life 232
65. Summary 233

Series: 38

ISLAM AND HUMAN RIGHTS

1. The mention of his blessed name 238
2. To talk about the friend is not less enjoyable than an actual meeting with him 238
3. His ﷺ attributes and accomplishments 239
4. The propaganda of today's world 240
5. The concept of Human Rights 241
6. The Human Rights have been changing from age to age 241
7. Determination of the correct Human Rights 243
8. An organisation advocating the cause of Human Rights 243
9. The kind of surveys carried out nowadays 244
10. Is the theory of Freedom of thought absolute? 246
11. You have no standard 248
12. The human intellect has its limitation 249
13. Islam is not in need of you 250
14. Jurisdiction of the Intellect 251
15. Jurisdiction of the senses 251
16. The Intellect alone is not sufficient 251
17. How to protect the Rights 253

18. The condition of today's world 254
19. A Promise must be honoured 255
20. Protection of life in Islam 256
21. Protection of wealth and property in Islam 256
22. Protection of honour in Islam 259
23. Protection of livelihood in Islam 260
24. Protection of Belief in Islam 261
25. The practice of Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ 263
26. The practice of Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ 263
27. Human Rights as being propagated today 265

Series: 39

THE REALITY OF SHAB-E-BARA'AT

1. Deen (Faith) consists in compliance 270
2. It is not right to think that the excellence of this Night is baseless 271
3. Shab-e-Bara-a't and the earlier centuries 271
4. No specific form of worship is prescribed 271
5. To visit graveyards in this Night 272
6. Offer Nafl (optional) Prayers at home 273
7. Offer Farz (obligatory) Prayers in congregation 274
8. Seclusion is needed for Nafl prayers 274
9. Come to Me in loneliness 275
10. You have disregarded this blessing 275
11. The moments of loneliness 276
12. Hours are not counted there 277
13. It is sincerity that matters 277
14. Keep every form of worship within its prescribed limits 278
15. Congregation of women 279
16. Sweetmeats and Shab-e-Bar-a't 279
17. Distinctive features of Bid'aat (Innovations) 280
18. Fasting on the fifteenth Day of Sha'ban 281
19. Refrain from argumentation and altercation 282
20. Prepare and purify yourself for the month of Ramazan 283

FOREWORD

To The English Edition by
Justice Mufti Muhammad Taqi Usmani

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

On the advice of some of my elders I hold a weekly meeting in Jamia Masjid AlBaitul Mukaram attended by a large number of Muslim brothers and sisters. Rather than giving a formal lecture, my basic purpose intended to be achieved through these meetings is that we get together for some time to review our ways of life in the light of Islamic teachings and to deliberate what is going to happen to us after we leave this mundane world. When the Muslims having true Islamic orientation sit together for this purpose, each one of them benefit from the other to create a genuine concern about our coming life which is the real and eternal life as compared to the present one which may come to an end any time.

I this mutual meeting which is meant for self-correction I normally read a book of Hadith and explain it to the audience in the light of what I have learned from my elders with special reference to the current attitude prevailing in our society and touching upon the relevant practical issues, social evils and the major faults found in our practical life. My friend Maulana Abdulla Memon who regularly attended these meetings usually prepares the audio cassettes of these addresses which are widely circulated in the country and abroad. He has also transcribed some of these audio cassettes in an abridged form and after their compilation he has published them in separate complete set of these books is available to the readers. Let our readers remember that these books have been translated from oral lectures of the honourable Mufti Justice Mawlana Muhammad Taqi Usmani and not from his writings.

They may, therefore, find in them the style of the spoken words that the translator may have retained here and there.

We have endeavoured to match the get up of the books with their invaluable content and have paid due care in the use of paper, printing and binding. We hope that this set of books will be very useful to our readers in Europe and the United States. They will gain beneficial knowledge from these books and be prompted to put their knowledge into practice.

Insha Allah they will find a great change in their everyday life.

We have published many books in English and many more are under preparation. Do write to us for a full list of these books.

Finally, I request my readers to remember me in their prayers as also my parents and family members. May Allah reward them.

KHALIL ASHRAF USMANI
S/O MOHAMMAD RAZI USMANI

CONTENTS

Series:40
Modesty - a means to rise to high ranks

1. Modesty - a means to rise to high ranks 27
2. Importance of Modesty 28
3. The Foundation of the First sin of Disobedience 28
4. Do not use your intellect against Allah's Command 29
5. Pride is the root of all sins 30
6. Reality of Modesty 30
7. Examples of Modesty practised by our saintly elders 30
8. The Modesty of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 31
9. The style of walking of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 32
10. Hazrat Thanawi's announcement 33
11. Take to Humbleness and self-dedication 33
12. The way of the Holy Prophet ﷺ to express humbleness 34
13. The Time is not yet Ripe 35
14. Hazrat Sayyid Sulaiman Nadwi رحمة الله عليه and "Modesty" 36
15. Expel the idol of Ego 37
16. The example of a Proud man 38
17. Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه and Modesty 38
18. Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه and Modesty 39
19. Hazrat Mufti Aziz-ur-Rahman Sahib رحمة الله عليه and Modesty 39
20. Hazrat Maulana Muhammad Qasim Sahib Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه and Modesty 40
21. Hazrat Sahaikhul-Hind رحمة الله عليه and Modesty 41

22. Hazrat Maulana Muzaffar Husain Sahib رحمة الله عليه and Modesty 42
23. Another event relating to Hazrat Shaikul Hind رحمة الله عليه 43
24. Maulana Muhammad Ya'qoob Sahib Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه and Modesty 44
25. Another event about him, demonstrating Modesty 44
26. An event unique of its kind 45
27. The Remedy to cure Pride 46
28. The best Example of Public service 47
29. Dialogue with a dog 47
30. Otherwise the heart will become polluted 48
31. Hazrat Bayazid Bustani رحمة الله عليه 49
32. The gist of the discussion 50
33. The difference between Modesty and Inferiority Complex 50
34. Inferiority Complex a complaint against Creation 51
35. Modesty is the product of gratitude 51
36. Show of Modesty 52
37. Modesty and Ingra tude 52
38. This is not Modesty 52
39. Refrain from Pride as well as ingratitude 53
40. How to combine gratitude and Modesty 53
41. An example 54
42. A servant's position is below that of a slave 55
43. A story full of morals 55
44. Modesty in worship 56
45. You must do two things 57
46. Ecstatic experiences and feelings are not the objective 57
47. A sign to indicate the acceptance of worship by Allah 58
48. An event that occurred with a saint 58
49. The best example 59
50. The gist of the entire discussion 60
51. How to acquire the quality of 'Modesty' 60
52. Practise gratitude to the best of your ability 61
53. The meaning of gratitude 61

54. Summary 62

Series: 41
Jealousy A Fatal Disease

1. Jealousy is an Inner Disease 66
2. The Fire of Jealousy remains in flames 67
3. It is an obligatory duty to refrain from Jealousy 67
4. The Reality of Jealousy 67
5. To envy is lawful 68
6. Three Degrees of Jealousy 69
7. The First soul that committed the sin of Jealousy 69
8. The inevitable consequences of Jealousy 69
9. The causes of Jealousy 70
10. Jealousy leads to ruin both in this world and in the Hereafter 71
11. The Jealous man keeps burning in the fire of his Jealousy 71
12. Remedy for the disease of Jealousy 71
13. The Three Worlds 72
14. Who enjoys real comfort? 72
15. Sustenance is one form of blessing and to benefit by it is another form 74
16. Allah's Decree 75
17. An Urdu Proverb 75
18. Look at the blessings in your possession 76
19. Look at those who are below and inferior to you 76
20. Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه and comfort 77
21. Desires are endless 77
22. This is Allah's Dispensation 78
23. Another remedy for the disease of Jealousy 78
24. An event that happened with a saint 79
25. Imam Abu Hanifah's رحمة الله عليه refraining from Backbiting 80
26. Another event concerning Imam Abu Hanifah رحمة الله عليه 80
27. Who is a real pauper? 81
28. Glad tidings of Paradise 82
29. His Gain and my Loss 83

30. A third remedy for the disease of Jealousy 83
31. Two kinds of Jealousy 84
32. Seek pardon atonce 85
33. Pray for the victim of Jealousy 85
34. A clarification about usurpation of Rights 86
35. It is also not good to go on envying anyone too far 86
36. It is good to envy anyone in the matter of Deen 87
37. Envy is not desirable for the sake of the world 87
38. A Shaikh and Guardian is needed 88

Series: 42
Value of Dreams in the light of Shari'ah

1. True Dreams are a part of Prophethood 94
2. Two opinions about Dreams 95
3. The status of Dreams 96
4. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه and interpretation of Dreams 97
5. Hazrat Mufti Sahib رحمة الله عليه and Mubashshirat (that brings glad tidings) 97
6. Satan cannot assume the image of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 98
7. It is a great fortune to have a glimpse of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 99
8. Where is the qualification for this meeting 99
9. Hazrat Mufti Sahib and a visit to the sacred shrine of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 100
10. It is the deeds done during the waking hours that count 101
11. Let not a good dream deceive you 101
12. What should be done if the Holy Prophet ﷺ commands in a dream to do something? 101
13. A dream does not serve as a proof in the matter of the Shari'ah 102
14. A strange event concerning a dream 102
15. Injunctions of the Shari'ah about Dreams, "Kashf", etc. 103

16. An event that happened to Hazrat Sheikh Abdul Qadir Jilani رحمة الله عليه 104
17. It is not lawful to refute a Hadith with a dream 105
18. What should a dreamer do? 106
19. To pray for the man who has a dream 106

Series: 43
Smartness -- A remady for laziness

1. Cure Laziness with courage 112
2. These two Principles are the essence of Tasawwuf (Mysticism) 113
3. Tempt the "self" to do the right work 113
4. What will you do, if you receive a call from the President 114
5. Do not put off till tomorrow what you can do today 115
6. I attend these meetings for my own gain 116
7. What is the use of those moments? 116
8. Worldly High Offices and Positions 117
9. The benefit of attending on Saitns and Sheikhs 119
10. That topic becomes your property 119
11. To thrust points of advice into the ears 120
12. Difference between "Excuse" and "Laziness" 120
13. For the sake of whom were you fasting? 121
14. The Remedy for Laziness 121

Series: 44
Protect your Glances

1. Casting evil glances - A deadly disease 126
2. The reality of evil glances 127
3. You shall have to take this bitter dose 127
4. The coffee of the Arabs 128
5. You find it sweet and tasteful 128
6. The eyes are a great blessing 128
7. Seven miles' journey in one moment 129
8. Right use of the eyes 129
9. Remedy for recovery from the disease of casting evil glances 130
10. Remedy for the cure of lustful thinking 130

11. What will happen if the film dipicting your life is shown 131
12. The Heart's insistence on, and on inclination to, a sin is not a sin 132
13. It is forbidden to seek pleasure through imagination 132
14. While walking, let your glances point downwards 133
15. This Distress is less severe than the distress of Hell 134
16. Pluck up courage 134
17. Do Two things 135
18. Adopt the character of Hazrat Yusuf عليه السلام 135
19. Take the course of Hazrat Yunus عليه السلام 136
20. Call Me 137
21. To pray to Allah for worldly gains and objectives 137
22. A prayer for some gain of Deen (Faith) is sure to be granted 137
23. What to do if a sin is committed after prayer? 138
24. Allah grants an opportunity for repentance for sins 138
25. Then I shall raise you to a high station 138
26. There is only one formula for safety from sins 139

Series: 45
Etiquettes of taking Meals

1. There are Five branches of Deen (Faith) 144
2. Deen is incomplete without reforming the Social Life 145
3. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us everything 145
4. Three Etiquettes of taking meals 146
5. The first etiquette is to pronounce بسم الله (Bismillah) 147
6. Do not provide for Satan's lodging and fooding 147
7. Du'a (supplication) to enter the house 148
8. The elder should be the first to begin the meal 149
9. Satan wants to make the meal lawful for him 149
10. Look after the children 150
11. Satan vomited the food 150
12. The meal is Allah's bounty 151
13. How did the food reach you? 151
14. The difference between a believer's and a non-believer's eating 153
15. It is no credit to eat too much 153
16. The difference between an animal and a man 154
17. Hazrat Sulaiman عليه السلام invited Allah's creatures to a feast 154
18. Thank Allah after taking meals 155
19. Change the viewpoint at the time of doing every act 156
20. The Food - A blessing of Allah 157
21. A tasteful food - the second blessing 158
22. Availability of food with honour - the third blessing 158
23. To have appetite for food, the fourth blessing 158
24. Peace and security at the time of eating - the fifth blessing 159
25. To take food in the company of friends - the sixth blessing 159
26. This food is a combination of various forms of worship 159
27. How to compensate for an optional act? 160
28. Du'a at the time of folding up the dining - cloth 162
29. Get your sins pardoned after reciting this Du'a at the end of your meal 163
30. A small deed yielding a great reward 163
31. Do not find fault with food 164
32. None is bad or worthless in this universe 164
33. The story of a King and a fly 165
34. A strange incident about a scorpion 165
35. The worms that are born in filth 167
36. Do not disparage food 167
37. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه and the value of sustenance 168
38. The Right way of shaking off the dining - cloth 169
39. Our plight today 170
40. Vinegar is also a sort of Salan (Curry) 170
41. The condition of the Household of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 171
42. The Holy Prophet ﷺ valued and respected a blessing 171

43. We should praise the food 172
44. The cook should be praised 172
45. To praise a gift 173
46. Express gratitude to the people also 174
47. The Holy Prophet ﷺ teaching his stepson good manners 174
48. It is a rule of Etiquette to eat from one's front 175
49. Blessings descend on the middle of the food 176
50. If there are many items on the plate we can extend our hands to other sides also 176
51. It is not lawful to take food with the left hand 177
52. If one commits a mistake one should admit it and seek pardon for it 178
53. It is not righ to insist upon one's mistake 178
54. Refrain from being audacious to saintly men 180
55. Do not eat two dates together 180
56. How to use things of common use and joint ownership 181
57. Take out the food in your plate with due care 182
58. It is not lawful to occupy sitting space in a Railway compartment more than your share 182
59. The Rights of companions on a journey 183
60. It is compulsory to maintain proper accounts in a partnership business 184
61. Distinction among the properties of one another is a requirement of the Shari'ah 184
62. Hazrat Mufti Sahib's clarification about ownership of property 185
63. How to use common properties and goods? 186
64. How to use a common latrine? 186
65. The non-Muslims have adopted Islamic modes of living 187
66. An incident relating to an English lady 187
67. Why are non-Muslim Nations making progress? 188
68. It is against Sunnah to take food while supporting one's back against something 189
69. It is an act of Sunnah to eat in squatting position 190

70. The best posture for eating 190
71. It is also lawful to eat, while sitting cross-legged 191
72. To use tables and chairs for dining 191
73. It is an act of Sunnah to eat sitting on the ground 191
74. Provided this Sunnah is not ridiculed 192
75. An incident full of morals 192
76. Do not mind being ridiculed at such times 193
77. Do not use dining tables and chairs for eating, unnecessarily 194
78. To take food, sitting on a cot 194
79. To indulge in conversation during meals 195
80. It is lawful to wipe the hands with something after eating 195
81. It is an act of Sunnah to lick the fingers after eating 196
82. What is this (blessing)? 196
83. Material resources are not peace and comfort 197
84. Peace and comforts are gifts from Allah 197
85. What is the meaning of Barkat in food? 198
86. The influence of food on the inner self of man 199
87. An incident illustrating the influence of food 199
88. We are caught in the mire of materialism 200
89. Is it against the rules of etiquette to lick the fingers? 201
90. Good manners and civilized behaviour lie in following the Sunnah 201
91. It is unmannerliness to take food, while standing 201
92. Do not be a slave to fashion 202
93. It is an act of Sunnah to eat with three fingers 202
94. Observance of an order in licking the fingers 202
95. How long will you fear being laughed at 203
96. These taunts are the legacy of the Prophets عليهم السلام 203
97. The announcement of the Glad Tidings for following the Sunnah 204
98. Allah will make you His beloved 205
99. It is lawful to have the fingers licked by others 206
100. To lick the plate after taking food 206
101. The spoon should be licked 206

102. The morsel which drops down from the hand should be picked up cleaned and eaten 207
103. An incident concerning Hazrat Huzaifah bin Yaman رضی اللہ عنہ 208
104. We shall not give up our dress 208
105. You have seen the sword, now see the arm also that will wield it 208
106. Should I give up the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ for the sake of these fools? 209
107. These are the conquerors of Iran 210
108. The Pride of Khosran was levelled with the dust 211
109. It is not lawful to give up a Sunnah for fear of being ridiculed 211
110. What to do if a guest arrives at the time of taking food? 212
111. Do not turn away a beggar with a menace 213
112. An incident full of morals 213
113. The Advice of Hazrat Mujadid Alf Sani رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 215
114. Act upon Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 216

Series: 46
Etiquettes of Drinking

1. The first etiquette of drinking water 220
2. Miracle of the Divine water - supply system 221
3. The entire Kingdom is hardly worth a glass of water 222
4. Cool water is a great blessing 223
5. Water should be drunk in three breaths 224
6. The different capacities and positions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 224
7. Drink water and earn recompense 225
8. The distinctive mark of a Muslim 225
9. While breathing, remove away the glass from the mouth 226
10. Only one Sunnah act may earn the reward of many acts of Sunnah 226
11. Distribute things from the right side 227

12. The status of Hazrat Siddiq Abkar رضی اللہ عنہ 227
13. The right side contains blessings 228
14. Importance of the Right side 229
15. Drinking water by mouth from a big water container 230
16. Two reasons for this prohibition 230
17. The kindness of the Holy Prophet ﷺ to his Ummah 231
18. Drinking water with the mouth placed on the opening of the skin water-bag 231
19. How sacred becomes the spot that comes in contact with the Prophet's ﷺ sacred lips! 232
20. This hair became sacred 232
21. The nature of sacred Relics 233
22. The sacred Dirhams 233
23. The sacred sweat of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 234
24. The sacred Hair of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 234
25. The Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and the sacred Relics 234
26. The origin of Idolation 235
27. Moderation is necessary in the matter of sacred Relics 235
28. It is an act of Sunnah to drink water while sitting 236
29. It is also lawful to drink water while standing 236
30. The excellence of drinking while sitting 237
31. Form the habit of acting upon the Sunnah 238
32. The idea of doing a good deed is a "guest" from Allah 238
33. How to drink Zamzam water? 239
34. It is better and more virtuous to drink while sitting, Zamzam and wudu (Ablution) water. 240
35. Taking food while standing 240
36. Avoid eating while standing 241

Series: 47
Etiquettes of Inviting Guests to A Feast

1. It is the right of a Muslim to accept invitation 246
2. The objective of accepting an invitation 247
3. There is a spiritual light in a feast in which only boiled rice with Dal (curry of cereals) is served 247

4. The reality of a feast lies in the expression of "Affection" 248
5. Invitation to feast or invitation to enmity? 248
6. The best form of a Feast 249
7. The middle-category of a Feast 249
8 The lowest category of a Feast 249
9. A strange way of arranging a Feast 250
10. Affection demands that ease and comfort should be provided 250
11. It is an art to invite a guest to a Feast 251
12. The condition to accept an invitation to a Feast 252
13. How long shall you go on surrendering yourself to this situation? 253
14. The Purdah observing ladies become untouchables, in such mixed gatherings 254
15. The injunction of the Sharee'ah to accept an invitation 254
16. To abandon an optional Fast for the sake of a Feast 255
17. An uninvited guest 255
18. That man is a thief and a plunderer 256
19. Some rights of the Host 256
20. The Host must be informed in advance 257
21. A guest should not observe Fast without the permission of the host 257
22. The guest must be present at the meal time 258
23. It is a major sin to cause distress to a host 258

Series: 48

Islamic Shara'ee (legal)Principles about Dress

1. Introduction 262
2. The present day propaganda 262
3. Every type of dress has its specific impact 263
4. The effect of his gown on Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ 263
5. Another propaganda of the present day 264
6. A beautiful example 265
7. Attention is paid to the Betterment of the outside also in our worldly affairs 265
8. This is a Satanic deception 265
9. The Sharee'ah has not specifically prescribed any dress 266
10. Four basic principles of dress for Muslims 266
11. The first basic principle of dress 267
12. Three defects in a dress 267
13. The present naked garments 268
14. Women should conceal these limbs 269
15. Harmful results of sins 269
16. The state of women during this age near the Day of Judgment 270
17. Those who are committing sins openly 271
18. Relinquish the society 271
19. An event that is full of morals 272
20. These taunts are a blessing for the Muslims 273
21. The second principle concerning dress 274
22. To wear costly dresses to pelase one's heart 275
23. A rich man should wear a decent dress 275
24. Sometimes the Holy Prophet ﷺ has worn costly dresses 276
25. Ostentation and show are not lawful 276
26. A Sheikh (spiritual guide) is needed 277
27. Refrain from prodigality and pride 277
28. Do not run after fashion 278
29. Eat and wear whatever you like 278
30. Women and love of fashion 279
31. Hazrat Imam Malik رحمۃ اللہ علیہ and a new suit of clothes 279
32. An event of Hazrat Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 280
33. To please the hearts of others 281
34. The third principle concerning dress 281
35. The reality of تشبہ (Imitation) 282
36. To put a Zunnar round the neck 282
37. To put on mark made by Hindus on the forehead 282
38. It is not lawful to imitate other nations 283
39. To wear trousers 284
40. The difference between تشبہ (imitation) and مشابہت (resemblance) 284

41.	The Holy Prophet ﷺ took care to refrain from مشابهت (resemblance)	284
42.	Oppose the Mushrikeen (Polytheists)	285
43.	The Muslims are a distinguished nation	286
44.	It is shamelessness	287
45.	The narrow mindedness of the english	287
46.	May you change all your ways yet !	288
47.	Dr. Iqbal's comments on the western civilization	288
48.	Refrain from تشبہ (imitation) and مشابهت (resemblance) both	290
49.	The fourth principle regarding dress	290
50.	It is not lawful to cover the ankles	291
51.	It is a sign of pride to cover the ankles	291
52.	At the bidding of the Englishman they have bared their knees too	292
53.	An event relating to Hazrat Usman Ghani رضی اللہ عنہ	293
54.	Is it permissible to cover the ankles if. there is no involvement of pride?	294
55.	The correct decision of the Research Scholars	295
56.	White Dresses are desirable	295
57.	The Holy Prophet ﷺ has put on red stripped garments	296
58.	Dresses of pure red colour are not lawful for men	296
59.	The Holy Prophet ﷺ has also put on dresses of green colour	297
60.	The colours of the turbans of the Holy Prophet ﷺ	297
61.	How long should be the sleeves?	298

FOREWORD

To The English Edition by
Justice Mufti Muhammad Taqi Usmani

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

On the advice of some of my elders I hold a weekly meeting in Jamia Masjid AlBaitul Mukaram attended by a large number of Muslim brothers and sisters. Rather than giving a formal lecture, my basic purpose intended to be achieved through these meetings is that we get together for some time to review our ways of life in the light of Islamic teachings and to deliberate what is going to happen to us after we leave this mundane world. When the Muslims having true Islamic orientation sit together for this purpose, each one of them benefit from the other to create a genuine concern about our coming life which is the real and eternal life as compared to the present one which may come to an end any time.

I this mutual meeting which is meant for self-correction I normally read a book of Hadith and explain it to the audience in the light of what I have learned from my elders with special reference to the current attitude prevailing in our society and touching upon the relevant practical issues, social evils and the major faults found in our practical life. My friend Maulana Abdulla Memon who regularly attended these meetings usually prepares the audio cassettes of these addresses which are widely circulated in the country and abroad. He has also transcribed some of these audio cassettes in an abridged form and after their compilation he has published them in separate translated from oral lectures of the honourable Mufti Justice Mawlana Muhammad Taqi Usmani and not from his writings.

They may, therefore, find in them the style of the spoken words that the translator may have retained here and there.

We have endeavoured to match the get up of the books with their invaluable content and have paid due care in the use of paper, printing and binding. We hope that this set of books will be very useful to our readers in Europe and the United States. They will gain beneficial knowledge from these books and be prompted to put their knowledge into practice.

Insha Allah they will find a great change in their everyday life.

We have published many books in English and many more are under preparation. Do write to us for a full list of these books.

Finally, I request my readers to remember me in their prayers as also my parents and family members. May Allah reward them.

KHALIL ASHRAF USMANI
S/O MOHAMMAD RAZI USMANI

CONTENTS

Series: 49
REPENTANCE -
AN ANTIDOTE OF SINS

1. The Holy Prophet ﷺ recited Istighfar (to seek forgiveness) one hundred times 28
2. Everyone suffers from suspicions and doubts about sins 29
3. This is a wrong notion 30
4. Take to repentance while still young 30
5. Influence of the company of the pious 31
6. Keep a watch over yourselves every moment 32
7. The story of a wood-cutter 33
8. Mans self is also a serpent 33
9. Taubah (Repentance) and Istighfar (seeking forgiveness) are antidotes for sins 34
10. A wonderful marvel of nature 34
11. Allah appointed man His vicegerent and fortified him with antidotes 35
12. Repentance is a combination of three elements 36
13. Of the two recording Angels كراما كاتبين one is head and the other is his subordinate 37
14. Never mind if you have violated your Taubah a hundred times. Come back and repent again 38
15. Repent for your sins before going to bed 39
16. The fear of sins is not contrary to resolve 39
17. Do not lose heart 40
18. Satan creates despondency 41
19. Woe to my sins 41
20. The meaning of Istighfar 42

21. Should such a man lose heart? 43
22. What should a man earning unlawful income do? 43
23. Not Taubah, but Istighfar is the right course for such a person 43
24. The best words of Istighfar 45
25. The Master of Istighfars 45
26. The best Hadith 47
27. Allah has created in man the faculty of committing sins 47
28. This is no credit of the Angels 48
29. The pleasures of Paradise are reserved only for man 48
30. Creation of Kufr (infidelity) too is not free from wisdom 49
31. Worldly desires and sins are like fuel 50
32. The sweetness of Eeman (belief) 50
33. The wisdom of creating sin 51
34. Rise to higher stations by means Of Taubah (Repentance) 51
35. An account of Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ 52
36. Replacement by another creature 53
37. It is a prescribed obligatory duty to refrain from sins 53
38. Promotion in status on account of sickness 54
39. There are three categories of Taubah and Istighfar 54
40. Perfection of Taubah 55
41. Taubah in brief 55
42. Taubah in detail 56
43. Make a calculation of your prayers 56
44. Draw up a Will 57
45. How to compensate for lifelong missed prayers 58
46. It is not right to offer compensatory prayers in place of Sunnah prayers 59

47. Calculation of missed Fasts and writing a Will about them 59
48. Calculation of Zakat due for payment and its record in the Will 59
49. Discharge the rights of the servants (of Allah) or get them waived 60
50. Accounts of those who were worried about their Hereafter 61
51. What to do when some rights of the servants of Allah remain undischarged? 62
52. A wonderful example of Allah's forgiveness 62
53. Forget your past sins 64
54. Offer Istighfar on remembering your past sins 65
55. Reform your present 65
56. The best age 66
57. The precaution and fear exercised by the Tabi'een 67
58. Great precaution should be taken in narrating a Hadith 67
59. Iblees was right, but... 68
60. I am superior to Adam علیہ السلام 69
61. Iblees obtained respite from Allah 69
62. Satan possessed great knowledge 70
63. I shall remain beguiling him till death 70
64. I shall be accepting Taubah (repentance) till the Day of Judgment 70
65. Satan is a trial 71
66. Become the best sinner 72
67. Allah's mercy has one hundred parts 73
68. Never despair of Allah's mercy 73
69. Only wishful thinking is not enough 74
70. A strange account of a man 74

Series:50

THE EXCELLENCES OF DAROOD

1. The greatest benefactor of humanity 80

2. I am saving you from the Fire 81
3. Almighty Allah Himself is a partner in this act 81
4. How should the servants offer Darood? 82
5. It is Almighty Allah alone who Knows the status of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 84
6. There is cent per cent certainty that this Du'a shall be granted 84
7. The etiquette of submitting a Du'a 85
8. Reward and recompense for Sacred Darood 85
9. Sacred Darood is a combination of virtues 86
10. A warning for not reciting Darood 87
11. The shortest Darood 88
12. It is not right to use the abbreviations ﷺ (Sala'm) or only ص (SAD) 88
13. The reward for writing Darood 89
14. The Scholars Of Hadith (Muhaddi theen) are favoured servants of Allah 89
15. The Angels offer Du'a for mercy 90
16. Ten 'Mercies' and ten tranquillities 90
17. Angels engaged in conveying the Sacred Darood 90
18. I myself hear Darood 91
19. Recite Darood in sickness and distress 92
20. Try to get the benefit of the Du'a of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 92
21. What should be the words of Darood? 93
22. Do not recite Daroods that are not genuine 94
23. A sketch of the sacred shoes of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and its virtues 94
24. The injunctions about Sacred Darood 94
25. The difference between Wajib (compulsory) and Farz (Obligatory) duties 95
26. Sacred Darood should be recited on every occasion 95

27. To recite Darood, while performing Wudhoo (ablution) 96
28. When the hands or the feet become benumbed 96
29. Recitation of Darood on entering and leaving mosque 96
30. The wisdom contained in these Du'as 97
31. Open some important topic with the recitation of Darood 98
32. To recite Darood when excited with anger 99
33. To recite Darood before going to bed 100
34. To recite Darood three hundred times daily 100
35. Sacred Darood - a means to enhance love 100
36. By reciting Darood one may get a vision of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 101
37. To be favoured with a vision of the Holy Prophet ﷺ during wakefulness 102
38. The way to get a vision of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 102
39. The modesty of Hazrat Mufti Sahib رحمة الله عليه 103
40. Hazrat Mufti Sahib رحمة الله عليه at the sacred tomb of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 103
41. Acting upon the Sunnah is the crucial point 104
42. To invent new forms of Darood 104
43. This is a Bid'ah (innovation) 105
44. The style of reciting Darood during prayers 106
45. Does the Holy Prophet ﷺ visit the places where Darood is recited? 106
46. The etiquette of presenting a gift 107
47. This is quite a wrong belief 107
48. Recite Darood in a low voice and with due regard 108
49. Think with an unprejudiced mind 108
50. You are not calling a deaf Personality 109

Series: 51

ON UNFAIR TRADING

1. It is a great sin to give short weight 114
2. Translation of the verses 115
3. The crimes committed by the community of Hazrat Shoaib عليه السلام 115
4. The torment sent to the community of Hazrat Shoaib عليه السلام 116
5. These are embers of fire 117
6. It is a sin to pay less wages than due 117
7. Pay the wages of a wage-earner without delay 118
8. What quality of food should be given to a servant? 118
9. Not to devote the full working hours to one's duties 119
10. You will have to account for every single minute 119
11. The Professors of Darul-Uloom Deoband 120
12. The salary will become unlawful 120
13. The state of affairs in Government Offices 121
14. Default in discharging the rights of Almighty Allah 121
15. Adulteration is a case of usurpation of rights 122
16. What if the wholesaler commits adulteration? 122
17. It must be clarified to the customer 123
18. inform the customer about that defect If there is some defect in the goods 123
19. A cheat is not from amongst us 123
20. The honesty of Imam Abu Hanifah رحمة الله عليه 124
21. What are we today 125
22. Default in discharging the rights of a wife is a sin 125
23. It is the usurpation of a wife's right to have the amount of dower waived 126
24. It is a usurpation of the wife's right to allow her inadequate cost of living 126
25. This is a curse of our own sins 127
26. The result of ill-gotten money 128
27. It is the sins that attract punishment 129
28. The torment will encompass all 129

29. The reason of the progress and prosperity of the non-Muslims 130
30. The distinctive mark of Muslims 131
31. Summary 132

Series: 52

AN EASY WAY TO BROTHERHOOD

1. The meaning of the verse 136
2. Mutual quarrels cause harm to Deen (Faith) 136
3. The vice that destroys the inner self 137
4. Man's deeds are put up before Allah 137
5. That man shall be detained 138
6. Malice and hatred may lead to Kufr (infidelity) 138
7. They shall not attain salvation even in the Shab-e-Bara'at 139
8. The reality of malice 139
9. The best remedy to cure malice and hatred 140
10. To have mercy on enemies is a Prophetic character 141
11. Quarrels destroy the light of learning 142
12. The power of speech of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه 142
13. In general, debates do not prove useful 143
14. Guarantee for a dwelling in Paradise 144
15. Consequences of quarrels and disputes 144
16. How to put an end to quarrels 145
17. Do not entertain hopes from anyone 145
18. Do not intend to take revenge 146
19. A great sacrifice of Hazrat Mufti Sahib رحمة الله عليه 146
20. I do not see any blessings in it 147
21. It is an act of charity to make peace 148
22. A marvel of Islam 149
23. Such a man is not a liar 150
24. An open lie is not lawful 150
25. Speak out good words 151

26. The Importance of peace-making 151
27. The account of a Companion رضی اللہ عنہم 152
28. The state of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم 152

Series: 53

THE MANNERS OF VISITING PATIENTS

1. Seven acts 158
2. It is a form of worship to visit a sick person 159
3. To visit a sick person in compliance with the Sunnah 159
4. A weapon of Satan 160
5. The reality of maintaining blood relationship 161
6. The excellence of visiting sick persons 162
7. Try to secure the prayers of seventy thousand Angels 162
8. What to do if one is displeased with the sick person? 163
9. Let your visit to the sick person be brief 163
10. It is contrary to the Sunnah 164
11. An incident with Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 164
12. Choose an appropriate time to visit a sick person 165
13. A free intimate friend may remain with the sick person longer 166
14. Pray for the sick person 166
15. Sickness is a means of purging the sick person of his sins 167
16. An act to obtain cure from a disease 168
17. A cure for all diseases 168
18. While visiting a sick person change your viewpoint 169
19. What is Deen (faith)? 169
20. To visit a sick person with some gift. 170

Series: 54

ETIQUETTES OF BIDDING SALAM (SALUTATION)

1. Seven commandments 174

2. The benefits of bidding Salam 175
3. Salam is a divine gift 175
4. Reward and Recompense for bidding Salam 176
5. The "Nee'at" (intention) for bidding Salam 177
6. The "Intention" for Salam for concluding Salat (Prayers) 177
7. Response to Salam should be better than the initial-salam 178
8. Only one Salam is sufficient for a whole gathering 178
9. It is not lawful to respond to Salam on certain occasions 179
10. To communicate Salam through another person 179
11. Response to Salam received in writing 180
12. How to bid Salam to a non-Muslim? 180
13. How a Jew bade Salam to the Holy Prophet ﷺ 181
14. Be polite as far as possible 182
15. Salam is a Du'a (supplication) 182
16. The state of Hazrat Ma'roof Karkhi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 183
17. An event that happened with Hazrat Ma'roof Karkhi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 183
18. Instead of thanks one should say جزاکم اللہ (May Allah reward you) 184
19. Response to Salam should be made in audible words 185

Series: 55

ETIQUETTES OF HANDSHAKING

1. Hazrat Anas رضی اللہ عنہ the Personal attendant of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 190
2. The affection of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 191
3. Securing Du'as (Supplication) from the Holy Prophet ﷺ in his favour 191
4. Translation of the Hadith 192
5. The modesty of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 192

6. The style of the Holy Prophet ﷺ in handshaking 192
7. It is an act of Sunnah to use both hands in handshaking 193
8. It is countrary to the Sunnah to use only one hand in handshaking 194
9. Consider the Suitablity of the occasion before handshaking 194
10. This is not an occasion for handshaking 195
11. Handshakng is a way of expressing affection 195
12. It is a sin to shake hands on such occasions 196
13. This is not love but enmity 196
14. An event of extremism in the expression of devotedness 196
15. Sins are shed by the virtue of handshaking 197
16. A rule of etiquettes for handshaking 198
17. A rule of etiquettes for meeting someone 199
18. A Strange event of visiting a sick person 199

Series: 56

SIX VALUABLE PRACTICES

1. The first contact of a companion رضی اللہ عنہ with the Holy Prophet ﷺ 204
2. How to respond to Salam 205
3. It is essential (Wajib) for both to make a response 205
4. The words of the Hadith are also important in the Shari'ah 205
5. To bid Salam is a symbol of the Muslims 206
6. An event concerning a Companion رضی اللہ عنہ 207
7. Reward and recompense for following the Sunnah 207
8. Events concerning the Tahajjud prayers of Hazrat Abu Bakr and Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہما 208
9. Follow the ways I have taught you 208
10. I am a Messenger sent by Truthful Allah 209
11. We should seek advice from our seniors 210
12. The first advice 211

13. An event relating to Hazrat Siddiq Akbar رضی اللہ عنہ 212
14. Hazrat Jabir رضی اللہ عنہ acted on this advice throughout his life 212
15. Hate the sin and not the sinner 212
16. A wonderful account of a herdsman 213
17. Come back after returning the goats 215
18. He was admitted into the Paradise 215
19. It is the end and the final fate that matters 216
20. An event full of morals concerning a pious man 216
21. The extreme modesty of Hazrat Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 217
22. Three godly men 217
23. Look at your own shortcomings 218
24. To backbite Hajjaj bin Yousuf 219
25. The conduct of the Prophets علیہم السلام 220
26. An event concerning Hazrat Shah Ismail Shaheed رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 220
27. The second advice 221
28. Satan's strategy 221
29. Small deeds may also procure salvation 221
30. The event concerning a prostitute 222
31. Do not commit sins in anticipation of forgiveness 222
32. An event concerning the salvation of a saint 223
33. Virtue attracts virtue 225
34. The idea of doing good is Allah's guests 225
35. Satan's second strategy 226
36. Do not underrate any sin 227
37. Difference between a major sin and a minor sin 227
38. A Sin attracts another sin 228
39. The third advice 228
40. The fourth advice 229
41. The fifth advice 231

Series: 57

WHERE IS THE MUSLIM UMMAH STANDING TODAY?

1. Two conflicting sides of the Muslim Ummah 236
2. The "Truth" lies between the two extremes 237
3. An example of deviation from Islam 237
4. An example of Islamic awakening 238
5. The overall state of the Islamic world 238
6. Sacrifices in the name of Islam 239
7. What are the reasons for the failure of these movements 239
8. The conspiracies of the non-Muslims 240
9. Reasons for the success of the conspiracies 241
10. Neglect of Personality-building 241
11. Denial of secularism 242
12. The result of denying this trend of thinking 242
13. We converted Islam into a political issue 243
14. The life of the Holy Prophet ﷺ in Makkah 243
15. Personality-building was done in Makkah 244
16. What kind of personalities emerged after the process of personality-building? 244
17. We have leaned in one direction 245
18. We neglected to reform individuals 246
19. What emerges from the core of the heart gets into the depth of the heart 247
20. First of all try to think of your own reform 248
21. How should we behave in a spoilt society 249
22. An important cause of our failure 250
23. The Afghan jihad is a shining chapter of our history 250
24. The second important cause of our failure 252
25. In every age there has been a different method for implementing Islam 252
26. What should be the method of implementing Islam? 253
27. The point of searching for new interpretations is quite wrong 254
28. Summary 255

FOREWORD

To The English Edition by
Justice Mufti Muhammad Taqi Usmani

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

On the advice of some of my elders I hold a weekly meeting in Jamia Masjid AlBaitul Mukaram attended by a large number of Muslim brothers and sisters. Rather than giving a formal lecture, my basic purpose intended to be achieved through these meetings is that we get together for some time to review our ways of life in the light of Islamic teachings and to deliberate what is going to happen to us after we leave this mundane world. When the Muslims having true Islamic orientation sit together for this purpose, each one of them benefit from the other to create a genuine concern about our coming life which is the real and eternal life as compared to the present one which may come to an end any time.

I this mutual meeting which is meant for self-correction I normally read a book of Hadith and explain it to the audience in the light of what I have learned from my elders with special reference to the current attitude prevailing in our society and touching upon the relevant practical issues, social evils and the major faults found in our practical life. My friend Maulana Abdulla Memon who regularly attended these meetings usually prepares the audio cassettes of these addresses which are widely circulated in the country and abroad. He has also transcribed some of these audio cassettes in an abridged form and after their compilation he has published them in separate

CONTENTS

Series: 58
THE PLEASURE OF SIN - A DECEPTION

1. Paradise and Hell are concealed under curtains 28
2. The buyer of embers of Hell Fire 29
3. The path leading to Paradise 29
4. You should not aspire for the fulfilment of every wish 30
5. Man's soul is addicted to tastes and pleasures 30
6. There is no peace in hankering after sensual desires 31
7. Pleasure and enjoyment know no bounds 31
8. Commission of Adultery openly and above board 32
9. Why are rapes being committed in America in such large numbers 32
10. The thirst for Adultery cannot be quenched 33
11. An example of the tastes of sins 33
12. Endure a little hardship and inconvenience 34
13. The 'self' is like a lion over a weak 34
14. The 'self' is like a suckling child 35
15. The 'self' has acquired a taste for sins 36
16. Peace and Tranquillity lie in the Remembrance of Allah 36
17. Allah's promise cannot be false 37
18. Now I have resolved to make my heart worthy of of Allah's attention 38
19. Why does the mother face all these troubles in bringing up her infant? 39
20. Love puts an end to hardships and difficulties 39
21. The miraculous impact of love explained with the help of Love Stories 40
22. The employee loves his salary 41

23. Try to acquaint yourself with the pleasure of Allah's worship 42
24. An observation of Hazrat Sufyan Sauri رحمة الله عليه 42
25. I desire a state of ecstasy all day and night 43
26. You shall find enjoyment in crushing the 'self' 43
27. Try to acquire the sweetness of Eeman (Belief) 44
28. The Essence of Tasawwuf (Mysticism) 45
29. The Heart is meant for being broken 45

Series: 59
MIND YOUR OWN BUSINESS

1. Action upon one verse 52
2. Cause of the sad plight of the Muslims 52
3. Why do the efforts remain fruitless? 54
4. You begin the work of reform on others 54
5. You have no thought of reforming your ownselves 54
6. The sermons delivered remain ineffective 55
7. Everyone is accountable for his own deeds 55
8. An incident that happened with Hazrat Zun-noon Misri رحمة الله عليه 56
9. The saint had his eyes on his sins 57
10. None remained bad in his eyes 58
11. Look! How anxious man becomes about his own sickness 59
12. An event of a lady that is full of morals 59
13. Hazrat Hamzalah رضى الله عنه become obsessed with the idea that he had become a hypocrite 60
14. Hazrat Umar رضى الله عنه suspected hypocrisy in himself 61
15. Extreme Ignorance of Deen 63
16. This is our plight 63
17. The way of Reforming 64
18. How did the Holy Prophet ﷺ train the Companions رضى الله عنهم? 64
19. The Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم turned into gold 65
20. Let us make our own servery 67
21. One Lamp lights another lamp 68

22 How to create the thought of Self-Reform? 69
23. The Reformatory meetings are held in Darul Uloom 69

Series 60
HATE THE SIN, NOT THE SINNER

1. The curse of condemning a Sinner 74
2. The Sinner may be compared to a sick person 74
3. It is KUFR (unbelief) and not the KAFIR (unbeliever) that deserves to be hated 75
4. Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه regarded others to be better than himself 75
5. Who are those who suffer from this disease (of superiority complex) ? 76
6. On seeing a sick person one should recite this supplication 76
7. This Du'a (Supplication) should be recited also on seeing a sinner 77
8. Hazrat Junaid Baghdadi رحمة الله عليه kissed the feet of a thief 78
9. One believer is like a mirror for another believer what is the meaning of this maxim? 79
10. Do not disclose the vice of one man to another 79

Series 61
THE SIGNIFICANT ROLE OF 'MADRASAHS'

1. Introduction 84
2. Countless are Allah's blessings 85
3. The Greatest blessing 86
4. Religious schools and propaganda against them 87
5. Objections are raised to all activities of Molvis 87
6. This class of Molvis is a shield for Islam 88
7. The search for a Religious school in Baghdad 89
8. Never tolerate the abolition of the Madaris running on the classical pattern 91
9. A remedy to save Religious Fervour and Zeal from cooling down 91
10. Objections raised against the Madaris (schools) 92

11. The Molvi is a Die-hard 93
12. Give up worrying about the means of livelihood for these Molvis 94
13. Condemn this world 95
14. Do not make of the Molvi an ironmonger or a carpenter 96
15. An Instructive event 96
16. The blessings of the Teaching profession 98
17. Student life ameliorates the Hereafter 98
18. An event concerning Hazrat M'aroof Karkhi رحمة الله عليه 99
19. The Income and expenditure of the Madaris 100
20. We depend on, and seek help from, Allah only. 101
21. This is a Deeni Madrasah and not a shop 101
22. Know your worth 102

Series:62

SUFFERING, A BLESSING IN DISGUISE

1. Glad tidings for the miserable 108
2. There are two categories of Miseries 108
3. Some "Troubles" descend from Allah on man as punishment 109
4. "Troubles" are also due to Allah's Mercy 109
5. No man is free from troubles and worries 110
6. A story full of morals 111
7. Allah has granted different types of wealth to different men 112
8. Why should a favourite servant of Allah be burdened with cares and worreis? 112
9. Prizes for those who are patient and forebearing 113
10 A most suitable example of hardship 114
11. Another example 115
12. Those who recite انا لله (we belong to Allah) when afflicted with hardships 115
13. We put to trouble our friends 116
14. A unique story 116
15. The calamities coming down from Allah are forced Mujahadat(strivings) 118
16. A third example of hardships 119
17. A fourth example 119
18. The ordeals that fell on Hazrat Ayyub عليه السلام 120
19. The sign to indicate that a particular hardship is a Mercy from Allah 121
20. The sign of the acceptance of a Du'a (supplication) 122
21. An event that happened to Hazrat Haji Imdadullah Sahib رحمة الله عليه 123
22. The essence of the Hadith 124
23. When a hardship befalls anyone, the victim should display humbleness 124
24. The account of Righteous Man 124
25. An event full of Morals 125
26. The conduct of the Holy Prophet ﷺ during periods of distress 126

Series 63

STICK TO HALAL (LAWFUL) SOURCE OF INCOME

1. The means of Livelihood depends on Allah's dispensation 132
2. The systems of employment and livelihood are linked with Divine dispensation 133
3. An astonishing instance of Apportionment of Sustenance 133
4. It is the Divinely set system that the Night is for rest and the Day is for work 134
5. Do not close upon yourself the door of livelihood 135
6. This is a Gift from Allah 136
7. Allah is the Fontain-head for everything 136
8. Why did Hazrat Usman Ghani رضى الله عنه not relinquish the Caliphate? 137
9. The attribute of service to Humanity is a Divine Gift 138
10. An account of the ordeal of Hazrat Ayyub عليه السلام 139
11. An event of demanding more money as Eid Gift 140

12 Summary 141

Series: 64

THE EVIL OF INTEREST-BASED ECONOMY

1. The difficulties which the Muslims of the Western world are facing 146
2. Declaration of war against those who are involved in Usurious dealings 147
3. What is the meaning of Usury? 148
4. Giving something more without a prior agreement to this effect is not Usury 148
5. A nice procedure of repaying a loan 148
6. Which kind of interest has the Holy Qur'an forbidden and made unlawful? 149
7. Commercial loans were in vogue even in the earlier days 150
8. The reality does not change with the change of form 150
9. A pleasantry 151
10. The trend of today's thinking 152
11. A principle of the Islamic Shari'ah 152
12. A misconception about the Prophet's ﷺ time 152
13. Every tribe was a Joint-Stock company 153
14. The first amount of Interest to be remitted 154
15. An example of Banking during the time of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم 154
16. Simple Interest and Compound Interest are both forbidden and unlawful 155
17. There is consensus of opinion on the unlawfulness of the prevailing Bank Interest 156
18. What vice is there in Interest on Commercial Loans? 157
19. You will have to take the risk of possible loss 157
20. The existing system of Interest is fraught with vices and defects 158
21. The depositor remains a loser at all costs 158
22. The amount of Interest is included in the (indirect) cost of production 159
23. The advantage of Partnership 159
24. The Profit is enjoyed by one party and the loss is borne by another party 160
25. Who are the beneficiaries in the Insurance Business ? 160
26. The havoc done by Usury on the International Forum 161
27. Alternatives to the Usurious system 162
28. The Islamic Shari'ah has not forbidden things which are indispensable 163
29. A goodly loan free of Interest (قرض حسنہ) is not the only alterenative to an Interest bearing loan 163
30. Partnership is an alternative to Interest-bearing loans 163
31. Best results have been obtained from the partnership system 164
32. Practical difficulties in the partnership system 165
33. How to surmount these difficulties? 165
34. The second alternative solution to this problem is Leasing (اجارہ) 165
35. The third alternative is the Murabaha (profit-sale) 167
36. Which of these alternatives is more desirable? 168
37. Financial Institutions working in the present age on Islamic principles of economy and livelihood 169

Series: 65

ABSTAIN FROM MOCKING AT THE SUNNAH PRACTICE

1. The outcome of the least degree of arrogance 174
2. If we had lived during the time of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم 175
3. Allah distributes His bounties according to the capacities of the recipient 175
4. Why did the Holy Prophet ﷺ curse the person? 177
5. Saintly men possess different trends and tendencies 177
6. Commence every good deed from the right side 179

7. Two Sunnah acts at one time 179
8. Every item of the Sunnah is sublime 180
9. Every item of the western civilization is just the opposite of the right phase 181
10. Why the western world is on the path of progress? 181
11. The story of a wiseacre 182
12. There is only one way for the Muslims to prosper and progress 183
13. Surrender yourself totally to the servitude of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 184
14. Cutting joke with the Sunnah may result in Kufr (disbelief) 184
15. The teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and the examples of those who accepted and acted upon them 185
16. Three categories of Men 186
17. Invite others to the path of Deen (Faith) 187
18. One should not feel disgusted with the work of preaching 188

Series: 66
THE BLESSING OF CONTENTMENT

1. Do not be greedy of worldly resources 192
2. Love for Deen (Faith) is desirable 193
3. Love among the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم for doing good deeds 193
4. Create in yourself this love 194
5. An occasion on which the Holy Prophet ﷺ ran a race 194
6. Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ acted upon this Sunnah 195
7. Seek courage from Allah 196
8. Either you are helped to do the deed or granted its reward 196
9. The incident of an Ironsmith 197
10. An idea of the trend of thought of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم 198
11. The desire to do good is a great blessing 199

12. The word "If" is the key which opens the door to Satanic acts 200
13. The world is a mixture of comfort and discomfort 200
14. A man who is loved by Allah faces more hardships 201
15. What can a mean worm know about the expedience of things? 201
16. A pious man was moved to tears on account of hunger 202
17. The difference between a Muslim and an Infidel 202
18. Be contented with Allah's Decision 203
19. There is solace in remaining contended with one's Destiny 204
20. Destiny does not forbid taking preventive measures 204
21. After taking the necessary measures leave the result to Allah 205
22. An incident that took place with Hazrat Farooq Azam رضی اللہ عنہ 205
23. The correct concept of Destiny 207
24. To feel grief and shock is not against the principle of contentment with Destiny 207
25. A very convincing example 208
26. Failure in any project is also by Allah's Will and Leave 209
27. As a Mu'min you have put faith in the belief in Destiny 210
28. Why these worries ? 211
29. A sentence worthy of being written with Gold Water 211
30. Let the following advice be imprinted on your heart 212
31. The secret in the comfort and peace enjoyed by Hazrat Zun Noon Misri رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 213
32. Hardship too is mercy in disguise 213
33. An example 214
34. Do not ask for hardships, but endure them with patience when they come 215
35. Some accounts of Righteous men 215

36. There is none in this world who is not facing one or another hardship 216
37. A less severe hardship averts a more severe hardship 217
38. Seek help from Allah 218
39. Learn a lesson from an Innocent child 219
40. It is a sign of goodness to submit to Allah's Decision 219
41. The sense and meaning of blessing 220
42. The account of a Rich Prince 220
43. Remain contented with your Destiny 221
44. My cup contains the essence of the entire Tavern 222

Series: 67
SIGNS OF THE AGE OF 'FITNAH' (TRIALS)

1. The Holy Prophet ﷺ was commissioned as a Prophet for all peoples of the world till the Day of Judgement 226
2. Prediction about future events 227
3. Anxiety for the salvation of the Ummah 228
4. What Trials and Tribulations are expected to break out in the future? 229
5. What is a Trial? 230
6. The meaning of Trial 230
7. The word فتنه (Trial) as used in the Ahadith 231
8. A quarrel between parties is a فتنه (Trial) 231
9. Killing and robbing are فتنه (Trial) 232
10. A Hadith about the Holy City of Makkah 233
11. The cleaving asunder of the belly of the Holy City of Makkah 234
12. Rising of buildings higher than mountains 234
13. The present era in the light of the Ahadith 235
14. Seventy two (72) signs of Trials and Tribulations 235
15. A mountain of misfortune shall fall down 240
16. Who are the thieves of the Public Funds? 241
17. These are serious cases of theft 241

18. Wine will be drunk under the name of a harmless drink 243
19. Usurious transactions will be given the name of business 244
20. Bribery will be given the name of Gift 244
21. To come to mosques, sitting on cushions 244
22. Women will be naked, notwithstanding that they will be clad in garments 245
23. The Hair on the heads of women will be like camel humps 245
24. These are cursed women 245
25. The real purpose of garments 246
26. Other nations will eat up the Muslims 246
27. The Muslims will become like straws 247
28. The Muslims will become coward 247
29. The courage of the Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم 248
30. The burning desire of a Companion رضی الله عنه for martyrdom 249
31. The first command concerning the Period of Trials 249
32. The second command concerning the Period of Trials 250
33. The third command concerning the Period of Trials 250
34. The best property of a man during the Period of Trials 251
35. An important injunction to follow during the Period of Trials 251
36. Four signs of the Period of Trials 251
37. The conduct of the Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم on difference of opinions 254
38. The conduct of Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضی الله عنه 255
39. How to conduct ourselves during conditions of Peace and Disturbance 256
40. Amicable mutual relations in spite of differences 256
41. The conduct of Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی الله عنه 257
42. The reply of Hazrat Amir Mu'awiyah رضی الله عنه Caesar of Rome 257

43. All the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم are Honourable and Dignified in our eyes 258
44. The sincerity and Godliness of Hazrat Amir Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ 258
45. Retire into seclusion 259
46. Take care of your own Reform and Well-being 260
47. Look into your own weaknesses 260
48. Refrain from sins 261

Series: 68

HOW TO LIVE BEFORE ONE DIES?

1. Death is inevitable 266
2. What is the meaning of "Dying before Death" ? 266
3. I have to face death one day 267
4. Neglecting two sublime blessings 268
5. An incident of Hazrat Bahlol رحمۃ اللہ علیہ, containing morals 269
6. Who is wise ? 271
7. We are all fools 271
8. How to meditate on Death and the Hereafter 272
9. Hazrat Abdur Rahman bin Ni-'am رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 273
10. Eagerness to meet Exalted Allah 274
11. Take a reckoning of your activities just today 275
12. Make a covenant with your 'self' every morning 276
13. Supplication after the covenant 276
14. A strict control and supervision all Day long over one's deeds 276
15. Muhasabah (Reckoning) before going to bed at night 277
16. Rendeer thanks to Allah 277
17. If there has been a breach, repent for it 278
18. Now inflict a punishment on your 'self' 278
19. The punishment should be appropriate and moderate 279
20. Pull you courage 279
21. Do these four acts 280
22. You shall have to follow this practice continuously 280
23. An event that happened to Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ 281
24. Regret and repentance lead to elevation of status 282
25. Let my sins go to Hell 283
26. Wage a lifelong warfare against the 'self' 284
27. Take a step forward and Allah shall support you 284
28. What reply will you give to Allah when He questions you? 286
29. Pray to Allah to grant you courage and capacity 287
30. There is no deficiency, whatsoever, in Allah's Bounties and Mercy 288

Series 69

AVOID IMPRACTICAL QUESTIONING

1. The result of putting too many questions 292
2. What kind of questions should be avoided? 293
3. It is Satan's business to involve people in irrelevant questions 293
4. The tendency of trying to know the reasons for the Injunctions of the Shari'ah 294
5. A most convincing reply to questions underlying the wisdom of Religious Injunctions 294
6. Do not meddle with the Wisdom and Prudence of Allah 295
7. The Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم never put questions beginning with "Why". 295
8. This is a proof of deficiency in our love for Allah and in the acknowledgement of His Greatness 296
9. The similitudes of a child and a servant 297
10. Summary 297

Series: 70

THE ULAMA AND MODERN PROBLEM

1. The need for this study Seminar 302
2. The theory of Secular Democracy 303
3. The latest theory 304
4. What was spread with the Cannon ? 304

5. This was all due partly to the conspiracies of enemies and partly to our own negligence 305
6. The effect of the system of Education on students 307
7. Propaganda in favour of the Secular system 309
8. A wide gulf between the General Public and the Ulama 310
9. An ignorant person is he who is not aware of the Trend of the Times 311
10. Three Unique peculiarities in Imam Muhammad رحمة الله عليه 312
11. We have accepted the conspiracy 312
12. The responsibility of the scholars in the field of Research and Investigation 313
13. It is the responsibility of the Faqih (Jurist) to find out alternative Avenues 313
14. The Faqih (Jurist) is a Preacher also 314
15. The objective of this meagre attempt of ours 314
16. I have taken great pains in embarking upon this subject 315
17. A fresh example of the Importance of this course 315
18. The people's enthusiasm 316
19. The sparks of Eeman (Faith) are still simmering in the hearts of the Muslims 316
20. The fear to give explanation in the presence of Almighty Allah 317
21. We should take part in paving the path of Revolution 318
22. Knowledge of New Publications and Compilations is inevitable 318

FOREWORD

To The English Edition by
Justice Mufti Muhammad Taqi Usmani

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

On the advice of some of my elders I hold a weekly meeting in Jamia Masjid AlBaitul Mukaram attended by a large number of Muslim brothers and sisters. Rather than giving a formal lecture, my basic purpose intended to be achieved through these meetings is that we get together for some time to review our ways of life in the light of Islamic teachings and to deliberate what is going to happen to us after we leave this mundane world. When the Muslims having true Islamic orientation sit together for this purpose, each one of them benefit from the other to create a genuine concern about our coming life which is the real and eternal life as compared to the present one which may come to an end any time.

I this mutual meeting which is meant for self-correction I normally read a book of Hadith and explain it to the audience in the light of what I have learned from my elders with special reference to the current attitude prevailing in our society and touching upon the relevant practical issues, social evils and the major faults found in our practical life. My friend Maulana Abdulla Memon who regularly attended these meetings usually prepares the audio cassettes of these addresses which are widely circulated in the country and abroad. He has also transcribed some of these audio cassettes in an abridged form and after their compilation he has published them in separate

CONTENTS

Series: 71
The Principles of a
Preaching and Calling To Islam.

1. Stages enjoining the Right and forbidding the Wrong 28
2. Two approaches in Preaching & Calling Individnally and Collectively 29
3. The Collective method is also a Fard kifayah 30
4. Individual propagation is also an individual obligation 30
5. To Enjoin Riaght and forbid wrong is Fard 'Ayn 31
6. When does' Bidding the Right and forbidding The Wrong' become Obligatory? 32
7. When is it Not Fard to forbid the wrong 32
8. Forbidding one who Sins 33
9. When the Chances are Equal 33
10. When there is possibility of harm befalling the Preacher 34
11. When advising anyone the Intention must be Sincere 34
12. The style of delivery must be proper 35
13. The Preacher must be Soft-Spoken 36
14. The method of the Holy Prophet ﷺ 36
15. The method of Preaching by the Prophets عليهم السلام 37
16. An Incident in the life of Shah Isma'il Shaheed رحمة الله عليه 38
17. How may one create effective words 39
18. Who is authorised to make the 'Collective Call' 39
19. To impart lessons from The Qur'an and Hadith 40
20. The respected Mufti Muhammad Shafi and the Exegeses of the Qur'an 41
21. Imam Muslim on Hadith 41
22. Should one who does not practice not Preach 42
23. One who counsels must himself practice what he Preaches 43

24. When the Mustahab (desirable) is neglected, it is not wise to Reproach 44
25. Supplication after the Azan 45
26. Omission of an etiquette does not invite Reproach: 46
27. Sitting Cross-legged when eating is permitted 47
28. It is correct to eat at the Dining Table 47
29. It is Sunnah to sit on the floor to eat 47
30. Provided the Sunnah is not Ridiculed 48
31. Eating on the floor in Restaurant 48
32. An event to learn from 49
33. A Saying of Hazrat 'Ali رضی اللہ عنہ 50
34. An incident in the life of Maulana Ilyas رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 51
35. Summary 52

Series: 72

How May One Achieve Comfort

1. Look At Those Lower Than You In Status 56
2. Avoid The Love Of The World 57
3. How May One Obtain Contentment 57
4. Desires Of Worldly Things Are Unending 58
5. The World's Affairs Are Never Fulfilled 59
6. The Affairs of The World Are Never Over 59
7. In Religious Affairs One Must Look At The Elevated Ones 59
8. An Incident With Abdullah Bin Mubarak رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 60
9. He Attains An Eminent Position 61
10. The Comfort that Abdullh Bin Mubarak رحمۃ اللہ علیہ Received 62
11. Comfort Is A Blessin Of Allah 63
12. An Eye-Opening Event 64
13. The Adverse Effects Of Looking At the Higher Status 64
14. How To Cure Greed and Jealousy 65
15. That Person Ruins Himself 66

16. Ashab us Suffah 67
17. The Condition Of The Ahl us-Suffah 68
18. The Extreme Hunger Of Abu Hurayrah رضی اللہ عنہ 69
19. The Method Of The Prophet's ﷺ Training 70
20. You Will Be Asked Concerning The Blessings 71
21. Death Will Come Earlier 71
22. Is It Difficult To Observe Religious Duties? 72
23. Wish to be in The Times Of The Prophet ﷺ 73
24. Maulana Thanavi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ Was A Revivalist Of His Times 73
25. Four Reasons For Having A House 74
26. The Correct Meaning Of Contentment 75
27. Attain The Lowest Rank At Least 75
28. The Case Of A Jew 76
29. The Case Of A Trader 77
30. Worldly Possessions Can Turn Into Assets For The Hereafter 78
31. How May Love Of The World Be Lessened 78
32. He Was Given All The World 79
33. Be Grateful For These Blessings 80
34. Do Not Devise Ambitious Plans 80
35. Do Not Worry Much for The Next Day 81
36. Peace Is Found In Contentment 82
37. How Do Rich Fare 82
38. Money Cannot Buy Peace 83
39. The Costliest Place In The World Is Los Angeles 84
40. The Other Side Of Affluence 84
41. The Itching Hands 85
42. Qarun, (Korah) The Richest Man 86
43. An Incident In The Life Of Mufti Muhammad Shafi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 87
44. We Cannot Control Income But We May Control Our Expenses 87
45. We Must Make This Supplication 88
46. Meaning Of Blessings 88
47. The Age Of Statistics 89
48. Example Of Blessings & Lack Of It 89

49. Bribery & interest Lack Blessings 89
50. Blessings In The Salaries Of Dar ul Uloom 90
51. The Third Portion Of The Supplication 90
52. Contentment Is A Great Asset 91
53. The Contentment Of The Prophet ﷺ 91
54. Summary 92

Series: 73

Do Not Trouble Other People

1. He is Not A True Muslim 98
2. What Is Social Living 99
3. Importance Of Social Rules 99
4. Maulana Thanavi رحمة الله عليه Revives Rules Of Social Way of Living 100
5. First Become A Human Being 100
6. Three Type Of Animals 101
7. They Are Human Beings 102
8. Save other People From Harm 102
9. Importance Of Congregational Salat 102
10. When Is One Not Allowed To Go To The Mosque? 103
11. Causing Hardship To other People When Kissing The Black Stone 103
12. Reciting The Quran Loudly 104
13. How Did The Prophet Arise For Tahajjud Salat 104
14. Praying On The Thoroughfare 105
15. 'Muslim' Includes Security 105
16. The Meaning Of as-Salam 'Alaikum 105
17. The Meaning Of Security From The Tongue 106
18. A Unique Incident Of Oblique Speech 107
19. An Incident About A Biting Tongue 109
20. We Must Think Before We Speak 109
21. The Tongue Is A Great Blessing 110
22. Let Us Accustom Ourselves To Think Before We Speak 110
23. Maulana Thanavi's Case 111
24. It Is Not Proper To Hurt A Non-Muslim Too 112

25. Evidence In Support Of This Statment 112
26. To Retract On A Promise Is Like Hurting The Other Person With The Tongue 113
27. Greetings While The Quran Is Recited 113
28. Greetings When A Meeting is in Progress 114
29. Slutations to One Who Is Eating 114
30. Prolonging Conversation on The Phone 115
31. Use Of Loudspeakers 115
32. An Incident of the Times of Hazrat Umar رضى الله عنه 116
33. Our Behaviour Today 117
34. A Woman Of Hell 117
35. Causing Hardship with the Hand 118
36. To Put Something Out of Place 118
37. A Grave Sin 118
38. Causing Harship to Family and Relatives 119
39. To Stay away at the Times of Meals 119
40. It is Forbidden to Dirty the Thoroughfare 120
41. It is Forbidden to Cause Mental Agony to Any one 121
42. Agonising One's Servants 121
43. Where Should One Wait For a Worshipper Engaged in Salat 122
44. Adab ul Mu'ashirat 123

Series: 74

Fear of Allah Fights off Sins In Man

1. Assurance of Two Gardens 128
2. It is Taqwa (Fear of Allah) 128
3. The Greatness of Allah 129
4. My Respect for My Father 129
5. The Thing to Fear is the Wrath of Allah 130
6. An Incident of Mixing Water into Milk 131
7. A Lesson-giving Event 132
8. The Best Way to Eradicate Crime 132
9. The Taqwa of the Companions رضى الله عنهم 133
10. Proceedings in our Courts 134
11. An Eye-Opening Event 134
12. How the Devil Works 135

13. Television Spoils our Youth 135
14. Minor Sins Lead to Graver Sins 136
15. Is a Sin Minor or Major? 136
16. Or, This is What We Must Remember when Tempted 137
17. Sweetness of Sin is Fleeting 138
18. Let the Youth Fear and the Aged Hope 139
19. Life is Regulated by Fear 139
20. The Freedom Movement 140
21. The Red Cap Fear 140
22. No Longer was there any Fear 141
23. Instill Fear of Allah 142
24. Fearing Allah in Solitude 142
25. Fear of Allah When Fasting 142
26. Let us Fearful at All Times 143
27. Who will get Paradise? 143
28. Paradise is Surrounded by Difficulties 144
29. Seeking Forgiveness After Worship 144
30. The Condition of the Pious Men 145
31. Fear of Allah Depends on Closeness to Him 146
32. Hanzalah رضی اللہ عنہ and Fear of Allah 146
33. Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ And Fear of Allah 147
34. How May we Develop this Habit 147
35. Fate Overtakes 148
36. We Must No be Proud of Our Deeds 149
37. Inauspiciousness of Evil Deeds 149
38. Example of Minor & Major Sins 150
39. Result of Rude Behaviour with Elders 150
40. Blessings of piety 150
41. Reality of Faith 151
42. Let Us Not Be Careless 152
43. The Lightest Punishment of Hell 153
44. Stages In Hell 153
45. The Gathering Ground 154
46. The Expanse of Hell 154

Series: 75
Keep Good Bonds With Relatives

1. Keeping Good Relations Encouraged 161
2. Yet Another Verse 161
3. Shari'ah Is Another Name For Granting Rights Of Other People 162
4. All Human Beings Are Relatives 162
5. Giving Rights Results In Peace 163
6. Keep Good Ties For The Sake Of Allah 163
7. We Must Not Expect Gratitude And Reciprocation 164
8. Who Is The One To Keep The Bonds Of Kinship Intact 165
9. We Are Restricted By Custom 165
10. It Is Unlawful To Give An Equal Return On Occasions 166
11. Why Is A Gift Given 167
12. How May The Intention Be Verified 167
13. A Gift Is Lawful And Pure 168
14. A Gift That One Waits For Is Not Auspicious 168
15. The Case Of an Elder Religious man 169
16. Grow Love Through Gifts 170
17. Do Not Look At The Gift But At The Spirit That Prompts It 171
18. An Invitation From The Earner of Lawful Means 172
19. Gifts Must Not Be Given To Meet Obligations Of Custom 172
20. The Unique Gifts Of An Elder 173
21. A Gift Must Be Chosen Sensibly 173
22. Do Everything For The Sake Of Allah 174
23. Relatives Are Like Scorpions 174
24. The Prophet's Treatment Of His Relatives 175
25. Do Not Place Expectation With The Creatures 175
26. Man May Expect Pain and Sorrow In This World 176
27. Lives Of Men Of Allah 176
28. The Case Of A Righteous Man 177
29. The Peace Of The Righteous 178
30. Summary 178

Series: 76
The Muslim Fratenity

1. Do Good To Other People 183
2. A Comprehensive Hadith 183
3. Muslims Are Brothers One Of The Other 184
4. One Does Not Enjoy Excellence Over The Other 184
5. Difference Between Islam & Disbelief 185
6. The Abode Of Bilal In Jannah 186
7. Why Was Hazrat Bilal Ahead Of The Messenger Of Allah ﷺ 186
8. Islam Gathers Its Adherents Together 187
9. We Have Forgotten The Principle 188
10. A Muslim Helps Another Muslim 189
11. An Eye-opening Account Of Our Times 189
12. The Practice Of The Prophet 190

Series: 77
Love The Creatures Of Allah

1. What is Jawami ul Kalim 195
2. Reward on Removing Someone's Anxiety 195
3. Excellence Of Allowing Time To An Indigent 196
4. Allah Loves Mildness 196
5. Virtue Of Seeing To Another Muslim's Needs 197
6. Show Mercy To The Creatures 197
7. Majnun Loves The Edifices Of Layla's City 198
8. Can Love For Allah Be Less Than For Layla 199
9. A Dog Is Given Water To Drink 199
10. Another Case Of Showing Mercy To The Creation 200
11. A Unique Case Of Compassion On A Fly 200
12. Tasawwuf Is Really Service To The Creatures 201
13. Allah Loves His Creatures 202
14. A Unique Incident In The Life Of Hazrat Nuh (Noah) عليه السلام 202
15. Maulana Doctor Abdul Hayy رحمة الله عليه Used To Say 203
16. The Conduct Of Allah's Friends 204
17. An Incident With Junayd Baghdadi رحمة الله عليه 204
18. Love and Compassion Of The Prophet ﷺ For His Ummah 205
19. Do Not Hate The Sinner 205
20. A Unique Incident Of Forgiveness Gained By A Merchant 206
21. Mercy Over-ruled Law 207
22. A Child Abuses A King 207
23. Do Not Underrate Piety 209
24. Forgiven For Being Mild To The Slaves Of Allah 209
25. The Practice Of The Holy Prophet ﷺ 210
26. Instructions Of Imam Abu Hanifah رحمة الله عليه 210
27. Those Who Amass Wealth & Hoard It Are Cursed 211
28. Supplication For Those Who Spend Money 212
29. To Conceal The Secrets Of Other People 212
30. To Ridicule Another For A Sin 213
31. Think Of Yourselves 214
32. The Excellence Of Learning Religious Knowledge and The Good Tidings 214
33. Our Predecessors Preserved The Knowledge With Labour 215
34. A Long Journey Undertaken To Learn A Hadith 215
35. Form An Intention To Learn When You Come Here 216
36. Glad Tidings For Those Who Gather In The House Of Allah 217
37. Remember Allah And Allah Will Remember You 218
38. Ubayy bin Ka'b رضى الله عنه Requested To Recite The Quran 219
39. Glad Tidings For Those Who Make Mention Of Allah 219
40. High Lineage Is Not Enough For Salvation 220
41. Summary 222

Series: 78
Do Not Disgrace The Ulama

1. Do Not Follow The Ulama In Sinful Deeds 226
2. The Behaviour Of An 'Aalim Is Not Necessarily Reliable 227

3. We Must Not Mistrust An ʿAalim 227
4. The Ulama Also Are Human Beings 228
5. Pray For The Ulama 228
6. An ʿAalim Who Lags Behind in Doing Good Deed Is Also Entitled To Respect 229
7. Maintain Ties With The Ulama 230
8. Bandit Turns Into Man Of Allah 231
9. The Supplication Of The Disciples Does Is Work 232

Series: 79
Restrain Your Anger

1. Sin Is Prompted By Two Things Anger And Lust 238
2. The First Step To Self Reformation 239
3. Anger Is Instinctive 239
4. Sins That Result From Anger 240
5. Anger Mkess One Spiteful 240
6. Jealousy Grows From Anger 241
7. An Angry Person Violates Rights Of Other People 241
8. Excellent Reward On Controlling Anger 242
9. The Effort Of The Son Of Shah Abdul Quddus Gangohi رحمة الله عليه 243
10. Remedy For Arrogance 244
11. The Second Trial 245
12. The Third Trial 245
13. The Fourth Trial 246
14. A Great Trial And Inward Reward 246
15. Restrain Anger And Overtake The Angels 247
16. An Incident In The Life Of Imam Abu Hanifah رحمة الله عليه 248
17. Ablution Of Isha Was Intact Upto Fajr A Period Of Forty Years 248
18. Yet Another Unique Incident In The Life Of Imam Abu Hanifah رحمة الله عليه 249
19. Limits Of Patience 250
20. Forbearing Man Of His Times 251
21. Forbearance Adorns 251
22. Way to control Anger 252
23. Recite The Ta'awuz When Angry 252

24. When Angry Sit Down Or Lie Down 253
25. When Angry Think Of The Powers Of Allah 253
26. Forbearance Of Allah 254
27. Hazrat Abu Bakr رضي الله عنه Scolds His Slave 254
28. Hold Back Anger In The First Instance 254
29. Reasonable Anger 255
30. Varying Temperament Of Holy Men 255
31. Do Not Scold When Angry 256
32. An Incident In The Life Of Maulana Thanavi رحمة الله عليه 257
33. Certain Things Must Be Considered Before Telling Off others 258
34. The Proper Time To Show Anger 258
35. Four Signs Of Perfect Faith 259
36. The First Sign 259
37. The Second Sign 259
38. The Third And The Fourth Signs 260
39. Do Not Hate The Person 260
40. The Method Of The Holy Prophet ﷺ 261
41. An Incident In The Life Of Khwajah Nizam ud-din Auliya رحمة الله عليه 261
42. Anger Must Be Shown For The Sake Of Allah 262
43. An Incident Of Hazrat Ali رضي الله عنه 263
44. An Incident In The Life Of Hazrat Umar رضي الله عنه 264
45. Pretend To Be Angry and Scold 265
46. Consequences Of Excess On Subordinates 266
47. Summary 266
48. The Wrong Use Of Anger 267
49. An Expression Of Allamah Shabbir Ahmad Usmani رحمة الله عليه 267
50. You Are Not Supervisors On Behalf Of Allah 268

Series: 80
The Believer Is A Mirror

1. A Believer Is A Mirror For Another Believer 272
2. One Who Points Out Wrongs Is Truly A Well-Wisher 273
3. Why Is Objection Raised On The Ulama Who

Point Out A Mistake? 273
4. A Doctor Diagnoses, Does Not Give The Disease 274
5. An Incident Worth Learning From 274
6. We Must Not Show Anger to The Doctor 275
7. The Person Who Points Out Mistakes Must Not Curse 276
8. Pity Him Who Errs 276
9. Do Not Degrade Anyone Who Commits A Mistake 277
10. An Incident In the Lives Of Imam Hasan and Imam Husain رضی اللہ عنہما 277
11. The Shortcoming of One Should Not Be Told To Another 278
12. Our Ways Of Life 279
13. Do Not Feel Disheartened After Pointing Out A Mistake 279
14. The Method Of The Prophets علیہم السلام 280
15. Why Did Your Do That? 281
16. The Best Way To Reform Society 281
17. Summary 282

Series: 81
Two Approaches Books Of Allah-Men Of Allah

1. Two Approaches 286
2. Will Populate The Graveyard 287
3. Difference Between Man and Animal 287
4. Make A Cupboard From A Book 288
5. One Cannot Cook Food By Reading Books 288
6. Man Goes By Practical Example 289
7. Just The Book Alone Was Not Revealed 289
8. Two Lights Help In Reading The Book 290
9. The Slogan The Book Of Allah Suffices Us 290
10. The Men Alone Too Are Not Enough 291
11. The Middle Course 291
12. How Did The Companions رضی اللہ عنہم Learn The Religion 293
13. Grants Through A Means 294

FOREWORD

To The English Edition by
Justice Mufti Muhammad Taqi Usmani

بِسْمِ اللّٰہِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِیْمِ

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

On the advice of some of my elders I hold a weekly meeting in Jamia Masjid AlBaitul Mukaram attended by a large number of Muslim brothers and sisters. Rather than giving a formal lecture, my basic purpose intended to be achieved through these meetings is that we get together for some time to review our ways of life in the light of Islamic teachings and to deliberate what is going to happen to us after we leave this mundane world. When the Muslims having true Islamic orientation sit together for this purpose, each one of them benefit from the other to create a genuine concern about our coming life which is the real and eternal life as compared to the present one which may come to an end any time.

I this mutual meeting which is meant for self-correction I normally read a book of Hadith and explain it to the audience in the light of what I have learned from my elders with special reference to the current attitude prevailing in our society and touching upon the relevant practical issues, social evils and the major faults found in our practical life. My friend Maulana Abdulla Memon who regularly attended these meetings usually prepares the audio cassettes of these addresses which are widely circulated in the country and abroad. He has also transcribed some of these audio cassettes in an abridged form and after their compilation he has published them in separate

CONTENTS

Series: 82
The Four Signs of Perfect Faith

1. The First Sign 28
2. Form the same intention when buying or selling 28
3. It depends on the angle of seeing 29
4. Every piety is charity 30
5. The second sign 30
6. Giving a gift to meet custom 30
7. The third sign 31
8. Attachment With A Pious Man to Obtain Worldly Benefits 31
9. Turn every love for the sake of Allah 32
10. Let a husband love his wife for the sake of Allah 32
11. Our behaviour is influenced by sexual instincts 33
12. Who is An 'Arif 33
13. Difference between the beginner and the graduate 34
14. The example of a Mubtadi and a Muntaha 35
15. One needs to practice to achieve love for Allah 35
16. Love children for Allah's sake 36
17. Token of love for Allah 37
18. An incident in the life of Hazrat Thanavi رحمة الله عليه 37
19. The fourth Sign 38
20. Do not show hatred to the Person 38
21. The method of the Holy Prophet ﷺ in this regard 38
22. An incident in the life of Khwaja Nizam-ud-din Awliya رحمة الله عليه 39
23. Even anger must be shown for the sake of Allah 40

24. An incident in the life of Sayyidina Ali رضی اللہ عنہ 41
25. And incident in the life of Sayyidina Umar رضی اللہ عنہ 42
26. Pretend to be angry and scold someone 43
27. Result of excess on Juniors 44
28. Summary 44
29. The wrong use of anger 44
30. Words of Allamah Shabbir Ahmad Usmani رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 45
31. We are not appointed by Allah 46

Series: 83
The Obligations Of A Muslim Merchant

1. Introduction 50
2. The Topic 51
3. Recital of the Qur'an 51
4. The complaint of the Qur'an 52
5. Enter Islam whole-heartedly 52
6. The two Ideologies 53
7. Why was Socialism brought about 53
8. Drawbacks in a Capitalist Economy 54
9. Those who earn the most 54
10. The main defect of Capitalism 55
11. A meeting with an American Officer 55
12. Only the Islamic Principles are Just 56
13. Qaroon (Korah) and his Wealth 57
14. Four-point guidance to Qarun (korah) 57
15. The First Guiding Principle 58
16. The people of Sayyidina Shuayb علیہ السلام and their Capitalistic minds 59
17. Wealth & Possessions are given by Allah 60
18. There are three distingishing featurs of a Muslim & a Non-Muslim 60
19. Two types of Merchants 61
20. The second guiding principle 62

21. The world is not all there is to work for 63
22. Is man a materialist Animal? 63
23. The third guiding principle 64
24. The fourth guiding principle 64
25. Present an example before the world 65
26. Can one man bring about a change in Society 65
27. How did the Prophet ﷺ bring about a change 66
28. Let every individual bring about a change in himself 66

Series: 84
Let Your Dealings Be Fair

1. Fair dealings - An important Religious duty 72
2. Three-fourth of religion concerns dealings with others 73
3. Unfair dealings influence Worship 73
4. It is difficult to rectify wrong dealings 74
5. Mawlana Thanavi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ on this subject 74
6. An exemplary incident 75
7. An incident with Mawlana Thanavi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 76
8. Unlawful living because of unfair dealings 76
9. Mawlana Muhammed Yaqub رحمۃ اللہ علیہ on eating a few doubtful morsels 77
10. Two types of unlawful wealth 77
11. Ownership must be define 78
12. Combined business among father and sons 78
13. Inheritance must be distributed immediately on a father's death 79
14. Share of Co-owners in Construction of Joint Home 79
15. Mawlana Mufti Muhammad Shafi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ and defining ownership 80
16. The caution exercised by Mawlana Doctor Abdul Hayyi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 81
17. Make the settlement the same day 81
18. Imam Muhammad and the book on Tasawwuf 82

19. Using something belonging to another person 82
20. The subscription is not lawful 83
21. Property of everyone must be clearly defined 83
22. Land was not accepted for Masjid Nabavi 84
23. Pressurising for Mosque - Building 84
24. Paying personal expenses for the year 85
25. Treatment of wives at Par 85
26. Summary 86

Series: 85
The Meaning Of Islam

1. Introduction 90
2. Are belief and Islam two separate things 91
3. Meaning of entering Islam 91
4. The Command to sacrifice his son was not consonant with sense 92
5. Even the son was put to test 92
6. Lest the moving knife stop
7. Submit yourselves to the Command of Allah 93
8. If not, you will become slaves of your Intelligence 94
9. Means of receiving Knowledge 94
10. The working of these means is limited 95
11. Another means of acquiring knowledge — the "Intelligence" 95
12. The limits of Intelligence 96
13. Wahi "Revelation from Allah" is another means of acquiring knowledge 96
14. Revelation compared to intelligence 97
15. Revelation cannot be evaluated by intelligence 97
16. Revelation decides what is good and bad 98
17. Man's intelligence misguides him 98
18. Socialism was Intellgence 99
19. Submit to what Revelation says 99
20. Enter completely 99
21. The five sections of Islam 100

22. An Eye-opening Event 101
23. A surprising incident with a Shepherd 102
24. Go, return the sheep 104
25. Sayyidina Huzayfah bin Yaman رضی اللہ عنہ 104
26. The first clash between Truth and Falsehood, The Battle of Badr 105
27. A promise that is extracted after placing a sword on the throat 105
28. You have given your word 106
29. Jihad is fought to uphold the Truth 106
30. Faithfulness 107
31. Sayyidina Mu'awiyyah رضی اللہ عنہ 107
32. War tactics to gain victory 107
33. That is a violation of the Agreement 108
34. Returned the captured territories 109
35. Sayyidina Umar رضی اللہ عنہ and the Covenant 110
36. It is unIslamic to hurt anyone 110
37. Who is the real Indigent 111
38. We are not fully entered into Islam 112
39. Let us resolve to enter into Islam Completely 113
40. We must obtain knowledge of Religion 113

Series: 86
How You May Pay Zakah

1. Introduction 119
2. Admonition for not paying Zakah 119
3. From where is the wealth coming 120
4. Who sends the customers 121
5. An eye-opening event 121
6. Distribution of labour is by Allah 122
7. Who grows food from the land 122
8. Man is not capable of producing anything 123
9. The real master is Allah 123
10. Only 2 1/2% is to be paid 124
11. Emphasis on Zakah 124
12. Zakah must be calculated and paid 125

13. When Property causes Ruin 125
14. Benefits of Zakah in this life 125
15. Consequences of lack of blessings in wealth 126
16. The Nisab of Zakah 127
17. It is not necessary that each rupee should have been owned for a year 127
18. Zakah is payable on the wealth one owns on the date of Zakah 128
19. On what heads is Zakah payable 129
20. We must not apply reasoning in these matters 129
21. To offer worhsip is to obey the command of Allah 130
22. Method of valuing merchandise of trade 131
23. What is stock-in-trade 131
24. The date of valuation 132
25. Zakah on share certificates 132
26. Factory Assets that attract Zakah 133
27. Zakah on Loans Receivable 134
28. Debts be deducted 134
29. Loans are of two kinds 134
30. When are commercial borrowings duducted 135
31. Examples of brrowings 135
32. Zakah is paid to the entitled 136
33. Who is entitled 136
34. The entitled must be handed over ownership 137
35. The relatives who may be paid Zakah 137
36. The command to pay Zakah to a widow and to orphans 138
37. Deduction of Zakah from Bank Accounts 138
38. Deduction of loan from the Bank Balance 139
39. Deduction of Zakah on Shares by the Company 139
40. The date of Zakah 140
41. Can one fix a date in Ramadan 140

Series: 87
Do Thoughts Disturb You

1. Evil thoughts, sign of Faith 146
2. Satan robs Faith 146
3. One is not answerable for his evil thoughts 147
4. Thoughts about belief 147
5. Sinful Thoughts 148
6. Turn to Allah when you receive anm evil Prompting 148
7. Thoughts that distrub during Prayer 149
8. Do not disesteem Prayers 149
9. An incident in the life of Imam Ghazali رحمة الله عليه 150
10. Command to think over Qur'anic Verses 151
11. The Prostration is for Allah Alone 151
12. There is wisdom in promptings and thoughts 152
13. Reward on pious and evil intention 152
14. The most apt example of Thoughts 153
15. It is sinful to bring the thoughts intentionally 154
16. The Remedy 154
17. Prayers must be offered even if the worshipper is distracted 155
18. Man is responsible for deeds 155
19. Experiencing a condition is neither the aim nor within One's Powers 156
20. Deeds must be according to Sunnah 157
21. The prayer of a Retired Officer 157
22. The prayer of a Hawker 158
23. Which of the two Prayers is more devoted 158
24. Do not lose heart 159
25. We must be happy on receiving the whispers 159
26. Definition of promptings 160
27. Another way to protect oneself from promptings 160

Series: 88
The Damage That The Sins Cause

1. Sayyidina Abdullah Ibn Abbas رضی اللہ عنہما 166
2. hich man is preferred 167
3. The real thing is to abstain from sin 167
4. We must concentrate on giving up the sins 168
5. An excellent example of voluntary worship and sins 169
6. The first task for those who aim at reformation. 169
7. Forsake every sin 170
8. Protect the family from sin 170
9. Women's behaviour is significant 171
10. Disobedience and sin 171
11. Damages of Sin - First, selfishness 171
12. Second damage, rusting of the hearts 172
13. Difference in a believer's And a transgressor's idea of sin 172
14. A Belivers condition on missing a pious opportunity 173
15. Third damage, darkness 173
16. Example of being accustomed to sin 174
17. Fourth damage is to Intelligence 174
18. Sin caused the Devil to suffer intellectually 174
19. A lesson-giving incident with the Devil 175
20. One cannot ask to be told of the Wisdom behind everything 176
21. We are creatures not servants 177
22. The eye-opening account of Mahmud and Ayyaz 177
23. A diamond may break but not a Command 178
24. Slave of the Command 179
25. Enlightenment follows giving up of sins 179
26. Fifth damage, it stops raining 180

27. Sixth damage, Illnesses 180
28. Seventh damage, Killing 180
29. The only solution to Killings 181
30. We must worry about sins more than about Wazifah 181
31. Review sins 182
32. How to get ahead of one who offers Tahajjud Prayers 182
33. Example of a Believer and his Faith 183
34. Recording sins is delayed 183
35. Repent at the very instant a sin is committed 184
36. Keeping away from sin 184

Series: 89
Forbid The Disreputable.....Otherwise!

1. Three steps to forbidding the Disreputable 190
2. Four ways to prevent loss 191
3. A righteous man overturned 191
4. Even the sinless will suffer punishment 192
5. The first stage in resisting evil 192
6. An incident with poet Fayzi 193
7. Do not care if a heart breaks 193
8. Those who neglect the Fard 194
9. If there is fear of mischief then resist with the tongue 194
10. Head of family must stop these things 195
11. A marriage function or dance party 196
12. Consequences could be dangerous 196
13. The second stage in resisting evil 197
14. Sayyidina Musa علیہ السلام advised to speak gently 197
15. Manners of resisting by the tongue 198
16. The case of a young man 199
17. The case of a villager 199
18. Our method of inviting to Religion 200
19. Only the message be conveyed 201

20. The third stage in resisting evil 202
21. How is evil corrected with the heart 202
22. Must grow uneasiness within ourselves 203
23. The uneasiness felt by The Prophet ﷺ 203
24. We have given up arms 204
25. How may words have the desired result 205
26. An incident in the life of Shah Ismai'il Shahid رحمة الله عليه 205
27. Summary 206

Series: 90
Scenes of Paradise

1. How to find out the conditions in The Hereafter 210
2. The case of a Saint. 211
3. The lowest ranking dweller of Paradise 212
4. The Paradise of yet another Low-Ranking Inhabitant 213
5. Hadith of Continuous Biddahak (بالفحک) 214
6. Paradise equal to the Planet Earth: 215
7. Example of the next World 215
8. Paradise is for the Believers 215
9. The thought of the Hereafter in the mind of Sayyidina Abu Hurayrah رضی الله عنهم 216
10. Markets in Paradise 216
11. The court of Allah in Paradise 217
12. It will rain musk and saffron 218
13. The greatest blessing of Paradise - The Vision of Allah 218
14. Increase in beauty 219
15. The blessings of Paradise cannot be imagined 220
16. Fear and grief will be unknown in Paradise 220
17. A glimpse of those blessings 221
18. Paradise is for the God-fearing 222
19. Paradise is encompassed by forms of hardship 222
20. Hell is surrounded by desires 223

21. The thorny fence becomes rosy 223
22. The sacrifice offered by a Companion 224
23. Tolerate the taunts 224
24. It is the Religious-minded who are really respected 225
25. Worship will bring pleasure 225
26. The difficulty faced in fighting sin 226
27. Why does a mother face suffering for her child 226
28. Think of paradise and the Hereafter 227

Series: 91
Thought Of The Hereafter

1. Introduction 230
2. Our weakness 232
3. Cure of the weakness 233
4. No happiness is perfect 234
5. Three worlds 234
6. Happiness in the Hereafter will be Perfect 236
7. Death is certain 236
8. The case of the Saint Bahlul 237
9. Remember Death 239
10. An incident with Sayyidina Umar Faruq رضی الله عنه 240
11. Another incident with Sayyidina Umar رضی الله عنه 241
12. Thought of the Hereafter 241
13. How may we develop this thought? 242
14. The condition of the Companions رضی الله عنهم 243
15. The firm Faith of the Magicians 243
16. Advantages of good company 246
17. The situation today 246

Series: 92
Make other People Happy

1. Keep My Slaves happy 252
2. To please anyone is like performing The Hajj Akbar 253
3. The result of pleasing other people 253
4. It is Sadaqah to meet someone happily 243

5. Do not make anyone happy by Sinning 254
6. The case of the Poet Fayzi 255
7. Men of Allah keep other people happy 255
8. Do not involve in sin 256
9. Do not cease to command the approved 256
10. Forbid the disreputable gently 257

Series: 93
Dispositions Differ allow For Varying Natures

1. Allowance for the temperament of Sayyidina Uthman رضی اللہ عنہ 262
2. Even the Angels are modest 263
3. Perfect in modesty and Faith 263
4. Care for the temperament of Sayyidina Umar رضی اللہ عنہ 264
5. Consideration for every Companion 265
6. Consideration for the temperament of the Mothers of the Faithful Including Sayyidah Ayshah رضی اللہ عنہا 265
7. I too will not observe I'tikaf this year 266
8. Redemption of the I'tikaf 267
9. This too is Sunnah 267
10. The routine of Maulana Doctor Abdul Hayyi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 268
11. Spend the time at home instead of at the mosque 268
12. You will get a full reward for that 269
13. Visiting the sick instead of observing Zikr 269
14. Heed the demand of the moment 270
15. Will not be deprived of blessings of Ramadan 270
16. Do not compell anyone unnecessarily 271
17. How to recommend 271
18. Ties have become customary 273
19. The invitation of Maulana Mufti Muhammad Shafi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ 273
20. 'Love' is to provide comfort to the 'Beloved' 274

FOREWORD

To The English Edition by
Justice Mufti Muhammad Taqi Usmani

بِسْمِ اللّٰہِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِیْمِ

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

On the advice of some of my elders I hold a weekly meeting in Jamia Masjid AlBaitul Mukaram attended by a large number of Muslim brothers and sisters. Rather than giving a formal lecture, my basic purpose intended to be achieved through these meetings is that we get together for some time to review our ways of life in the light of Islamic teachings and to deliberate what is going to happen to us after we leave this mundane world. When the Muslims having true Islamic orientation sit together for this purpose, each one of them benefit from the other to create a genuine concern about our coming life which is the real and eternal life as compared to the present one which may come to an end any time.

I this mutual meeting which is meant for self-correction I normally read a book of Hadith and explain it to the audience in the light of what I have learned from my elders with special reference to the current attitude prevailing in our society and touching upon the relevant practical issues, social evils and the major faults found in our practical life. My friend Maulana Abdulla Memon who regularly attended these meetings usually prepares the audio cassettes of these addresses which are widely circulated in the country and abroad. He has also transcribed some of these audio cassettes in an abridged form and after their compilation he has published them in separate volumes under the title of "Islahi Khutbaat". Nine volumes of

CONTENTS

Series: 94
Cure For Worries 25

1. Cure for worries 27
2. Introductory words 28
3. Difference between a Muslim And a disbeliever 29
4. Seeking a job 29
5. The contrivance of the sick 30
6. Effort combined with Supplication 31
7. View point must be corrected 31
8. He is the curer 32
9. The curse of western culture 32
10. Protecting Islamic values 32
11. Anything against a plan is coincidence! 33
12. Nothing is ever coincidental 33
13. Remember the preparer of means 34
14. Khalid bin Walid takes poison 34
15. Everything depends on the will of Allah 36
16. An incident in the life of the Prophetﷺ 36
17. Means before reliance 37
18. Rely even when the means are available 38
19. That is the real time to rely on Allah 38
20. Ask Allah to favour in either case 39
21. Perform ablution Punctiliously 39
22. Sins are obliterated through Ablution 39
23. Supplications during ablution 40
24. No set pattern for salah al-hajah 41
25. The intention 41
26. Praise and glorification 42
27. Why praise & glorify him? 42
28. Grief and difficulty is also a blessing 43
29. A strange supplication of Haji Imdadullah 44

30. Recall blessings when in difficulty 44
31. Gratitude for fervors 45
32. Thankfulness for blessings received 45
33. Invoking blessings on the Prophet ﷺ 45
34. Supplication accepted with invocation of blessings 46
35. Reciprocate a gift 46
36. Words of the supplication 47
37. Offer salah al-hajah, for all needs 49
38. If the time is short 49
39. Our worries and our reaction 50
40. No point in commenting 50
41. Instead, make a supplication 50
42. Turn to Allah 51
43. We do not open our eyes 52
44. Be merciful to yourselves And do it 52

Series: 95
How To Behave In Ramadan 55

1. How To Behave In Ramadan 57
2. Ramadan – a month of blessing 58
3. Supplitcation for longevity 59
4. The Prophet's ﷺ supplication for life 59
5. Why wait for Ramadan? 59
6. Why was man created 60
7. Are not angels enough? 60
8. Two kinds of worship 61
9. First type direct worship 61
10. The second type, indirect worship 61
11. To make a lawful living is indirect 62
12. Direct worship is superior 62
13. The case of a doctor 62
14. One is not excused prayers under any circumstances 62
15. Service to humanity is the second type 63
16. Prayer is more important 63
17. Man is put to trial 64

18. The command would not have been cruel 64
19. We are merchandise disposed of 64
20. Man has forgotten the purpose of his creation 65
21. Peculiarities of worship 65
22. Peculiarities of worldly affairs 66
23. The month of mercy 66
24. Regain nearness 67
25. Welcoming Ramadan 67
26. Why annual vacations in Ramadan 67
27. The Prophet asked to worship 68
28. The devil of the scholar is a scholar 69
29. Forty opportunities 70
30. The mi'raj of the believer 70
31. Nearness in prostration 70
32. Excessive recital of Qur'an 71
33. Excess of optional worship 71
34. Excessive charity 72
35. Increase zikr 72
36. Keep away from sin 72
37. Intensify supplications 73

Series: 96
Exercise ModerationWith Friends & Foes 75

1 Exercise moderation with friends & foes 77
2. Principle of establishing friendship 78
3. The case of our friendship 78
4 One being worthy of friendship 79
5. Abu Baker رضی اللہ عنہ a true friend 79
6. In the cave Thaur 80
7. An incident during hijrah 80
8. Friendship with Allah alone 80
9. Friendship with anyone must be subservient to Allah's friendship 81

10. Sincere friends are missing 81
11. Moderation in enmity 82
12. Backbiting Hajjaj bin Yusuf 82
13. Political atmosphere of Pakistan 83
14. A lesson- giving case of Qadi Bakkar bin Qutaybah رحمة الله عليه 83
15. Make this supplication 84
16. If love exceeds the limits then make this supplication 85
17. Friendship leads to sin 85
18. Avoid exaggeration 85

Series: 97
Be Faithful To Relationships 87
1. Be faithful to relationships 89
2. Summary of Hadith 90
3. Try to be constant in relationships 90
4. Maintain relationships of dead relatives 91
5. It is Sunnah to carry on ties 92
6. My own case 92
7. Do not be the one to sever ties 92
8. Easy to sever difficult to join ties 93
9. It is easy to demolish a building 94
10. If relationship hurts 94
11. Reward against patience 94
12. What is it to be constant 95
13. The result of ignoring the Sunnah 95

Series: 98
Do Not Speak Ill Of The Dead 97
1. Do not speak ill of the dead 99
2. Do not call the dead bad people 100
3. It is impossible to get a dead man's forgiveness 100
4. Objections raised against Allah 101
5. Difference between the living and the dead 101

6. It will hurt the living 102
7. Backbiting the dead is proper if--- 102
8. The dead benefits if we speak good of him 103
9. Pray for the dead 103

Series: 99
Give Up Argument And Falsehood 105
1. Give up argument and falsehood 107
2. Two signs of perfect faith 108
3. Falsehood as a joke 108
4. An example of the Prophet's light heartedness 109
5. Another example 109
6. Hafiz Zamin's light heartedness 109
7. Muhammad bin sireern and laughter 110
8. Good nature exhorted 110
9. Sayyidina Abu Baker رضى الله عنه keeps away from lie 111
10. Mawlana Muhammad bin Qasim Nanotwi رحمة الله عليه abstains from lying 111
11. The rampant lie 112
12. Refrain from arguments 113
13. Only give your opinion 113
14. Surah "Al Kafiroon" 114
15. Take it or leave it 115
16. An unending issue 115
17. Debate is not advantageous 116
18. Only those with excessive intelligence argue 116
19. Argument grows darkness 117
20. A debate with Maududi 117

Series: 100
How To Learn And Teach Religion 119
1. How to learn and teach religion 121

2. The Hadith 122
3. Learn religion through company 123
4. What is company 123
5. How did the companions acquire knowledge? 124
6. Keep good company 124
7. Two sources 124
8. Care for the young 125
9. Staying away from home 125
10. Rights of others 126
11. It is an absolute obligation to learn that much 126
12. The fard kifayah 127
13. Impart religious knowledge to household members 127
14. Neglecting children 128
15. How may we pray 128
16. Observe the Sunnah, when praying 129
17. The attention paid by Mufti A`zam 129
18. Prayer becomes invalid 130
19. Correct intention alone is not enough 130
20. Significance of azan 131
21. Let the eldest lead prayers 132
22. To exalt the elder is part of Islamic etiquette 133

Series: 101
Seeking Of Divine Guidance 135
1. Seeking of divine guidance 137
2. Meaning 138
3. The method and the supplication 139
4. No time is fixed 140
5. Response not necessarily seen in dream 140
6. The resultant guidance 140
7. In that really lies good 141
8. You are like a child 141

9. The case of Sayyidina Musa عليه السلام 142
10. Go we have granted him plenty 142
11. All the world is not enough 143
12. Be composed after making istikhara 143
13. A seeker of guidance never fails 144
14. A brief supplication for istikhara 144
15. The practice of the Mufti A'zam 145
16. Turn to Allah before doing anything 146
17. Made a supplication before he replied to anyone 146

Series: 102
Goodness Is Reciprocated By Goodness 149
1. Goodness is reciprocated by goodness 151
2. Translation 152
3. Rewarding goodness 152
4. Niyota is disallowed 153
5. Let love be the criterion of give and take 154
6. Do not try to equal return gift 154
7. To praise is also a form of reciprocation 155
8. The way of doctor Abdul Hayy رحمة الله عليه 155
9. To present a gift in secret 155
10. Why invoke blessing on the Prophet frequently in times of distress? 156
11. Summary 156

Series: 103
Merit Of Building A Mosque 159
1. Merit of building a Mosque 161
2. First words 162
3. The place of the mosque 162
4. Muslims & the mosque 163
5. An example of South Africa 163
6. The Malaysians reach Cape Town 163
7. Prayers in the dark of the night 164

8. Let us offer prayers 164
9. Only the demand to build a mosque 164
10. The savoir of faith 165
11. We must be thankful 165
12. Mosque is inhabitude by the worshippers who pray 166
13. Mosques when the hour will approach 166
14. Conclusion 167

Series: 104
Seek Lawful Livelihood!
A Religious Obligation 169
1. Seek lawful livelihood! A religious obligation 171
2. To seek lawful livelihood is the next important obligation 172
3. Seeking lawful livelihood part of religion 172
4. Islam disdains monkery 173
5. The Prophet's ﷺ ways to lawful livelihood 173
6. A believer's world is also religion 174
7. Some Sufis leave everything to God 174
8. We must seek the lawful 175
9. All labour is not lawful 175
10. Is the occupation lawful? 176
11. What should a bank employee do? 176
12. Blessings of lawful earnings 176
13. Part of the salary that is unlawful 177
14. Voluntary pay cut of teachers of madrasah 178
15. Cheating the train 178
16. Excess baggage 178
17. Mawlana Thanavi's journey 179
18. The unlawful mingces with the lawful 180
19. Lack of blessings 180
20. Cheating on telephone and electricity 180
21. We must think about it 181
22. Men are molded here 181
23. A lesson- giving case of one of his deputies 182

24. The unlawful devours the lawful 183
25. Aim of life is not to seek livelihood 183
26. Obligations must not be overlooked 184
27. A doctor's argument 184
28. The case of a black smith 184
29. Regret at not being able to offer the tahajjud 185
30. Stopped work at prayer-time 185
31. If one of the two is to be selected, give up the search 186
32. A comprehensive supplication 186
33. Summary 186

Series: 105
Save Your Self From Being
Accused Of Sin 189
1. Save yourself from being accused of sin 191
2. List of hadith 192
3. A wife visiting her husband in the mosque 192
4. The wife must be respected 192
4. Doubts of other people must be removed 193
5. Protect yourself for being slandered 193
6. Two advantages of this behaviour 194
7. Preserve youself from opportunities of sin 194
8. The sunnah of the Prophet ﷺ 195
9. The style of the blameworthy 195
10. Commiting a sin to avoid one 196
11. Prayer must be offered in the mosque 196
12. Present your excuse 197
13. Mawlana Thanavi's explanation of the hadith 197
14. It is not necessary to explain a pious deed 197
15. Summary 198

Series: 106
Show Honour To Your Elders 199
1. Show honour to your elders 201
2. One way to show respect 202

3.	To stand up	202
4.	Hadith confirms the standing up	203
5.	To honour a Muslim is to honour his faith	203
6.	A lesson-bearing case of a young man	204
7.	What should an employee do?	204
8.	I have not come to seek advice	205
9.	Do not go by appearances	205
10.	Honouring a respectable	206
11.	Disbeliever	206
12.	Behaviour with the disbelifvers	206
13.	The case of A disbeliever	207
14.	Backbiting is allowed	207
15.	Why honour the evil man	207
16.	That man is very evil	208
17.	An incident with Sir Syed	208
18.	Why did he do it?	209
19.	Honouring religious links	209
20.	Honouring the great in a common gathering	210
21.	The hadith is followed	210
22.	There is reward in honoring other people	211
	Series: 107 The Importance Of Teaching The Qur'an	213
1.	The importance of teaching the Qur'an	215
2.	Introductory words	216
3.	Explanation of the verse	216
4.	Three rights of the Qur'an.	217
5.	Recital itself is the objective	217
6.	Tajweed, the science of recital	218
7.	The science of recital	218
8.	The first step	218
9.	Ten virtues per letter	218
10.	Virtues are currency of the Hereafter	219
11.	We have forsaken recital	219

12.	Protection from the curse of the Qur'an	220
13.	The case of a companion	220
14.	The Qur'an is thus preserved	221
15.	A way to preserve Arabic language	221
16.	'Donate' students	222
17.	Madrasah is not an edifice	222
	Series: 108 Refrain Form Attributing Worng Relation Ship	225
1.	Refrain form attributing wrong relation ship	227
2.	Words of the Hadith	228
3.	It is false & cheating	228
4.	To claim to be Farooqi or Siddiqi	228
5.	Why compare to garments	229
6.	Weavers describe themselves as Ansari and butchers as Qurayshi	229
7.	Lineage & family are not meriturious	229
8.	Relate the adopted son to his real fathe	230
9.	The case of Zayd bin haritha رضى الله عنه	231
10.	To call oneself Mawlana	232
11.	To call oneself Professor	233
12.	The word doctor	233
13.	Stay just as Allah has made you	233
14.	Pretending to be rich	234
15.	Display blessings of Allah	234
16.	A scholar must display his knowledge	235
	Series: 109 Signs Of Poor Governance	237
1.	Signs of poor governance	239
2.	To seek refuse from bad times	240
3.	Three signs of bad times	240
4.	A sign of the Qiyamah	241
5.	Like deeds like rulers	241
6.	What should we do?	242

7.	Our approach	242
8.	Turn to Allah	243
9.	The first two signs of a bad government	243
10.	The palace of the Aga Khan	244
11.	A question to the Aga Khan's followers	244
12.	The disciple's reply	244
13.	Those who mislead are obeyed	245
14.	The third sign of bad government	245
15.	How to preserve oneself from trial	246
16.	What a shayrh says	246
17.	The method of the Prophetﷺ	246
18.	The correct one of the seventy-two sects	247
19.	Summary	247

Series: 110
The Exellence Of Unselfish Behaviour 249

1.	The excellence of unselfish behaviour	251
2.	The got all the reward	252
3.	Selflessness of Ansar	252
4.	Agriculture	253
5.	The spirit of the companions	253
6.	You too can get the reward	253
7.	This life is fleeting	254
8.	If hereafter is before us	254
9.	Peace lies in selflessness	254
10.	The case of an Ansar	255
11.	The superior deed	255
12.	Help other people	256
13.	If you cannot help	256
14.	Protect people from your mischief	257
15.	Who is a Muslim?	257
16.	Do not burden other people	257
17.	Mufti A'zam	258
18.	Animals of three kinds	259

FOREWORD

To The English Edition by
Justice Mufti Muhammad Taqi Usmani

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

On the advice of some of my elders I hold a weekly meeting in Jamia Masjid AlBaitul Mukaram attended by a large number of Muslim brothers and sisters. Rather than giving a formal lecture, my basic purpose intended to be achieved through these meetings is that we get together for some time to review our ways of life in the light of Islamic teachings and to deliberate what is going to happen to us after we leave this mundane world. When the Muslims having true Islamic orientation sit together for this purpose, each one of them benefit from the other to create a genuine concern about our coming life which is the real and eternal life as compared to the present one which may come to an end any time.

I this mutual meeting which is meant for self-correction I normally read a book of Hadith and explain it to the audience in the light of what I have learned from my elders with special reference to the current attitude prevailing in our society and touching upon the relevant practical issues, social evils and the major faults found in our practical life. My friend Maulana Abdulla Memon who regularly attended these meetings usually prepares the audio cassettes of these addresses which are widely circulated in the country and abroad. He has also transcribed some of these audio cassettes in an abridged form and after their compilation he has published them in separate volumes under the title of "Islahi Khutbaat". Nine volumes of this compilations have already come out in Urdu by the grace of Allah which were widely circulated, read and benefited from.

Since long some of my friends were suggesting that these addresses be rendered into English as well so that they may be useful for the English readership. I was reluctant to act upon the suggestion because, as told earlier, these addresses were not formal lectures on a particular subject. They were in fact discussions, on different aspects of our lives, undertaken with frankness rather than formalism. They some time lack the sequence usually expected from a well considered writing. Therefore, I do not know how far their translation will be as meaningful and effective as it was proved to be in the original Urdu language. However, my nephew, Mr. Khalil Ashraf Usmani, the proprietor of Darul Ishaat, requested Mr. Iqbal Ansari and Mr. Rafiq Abdur Rehman to translate these Khutbaat into English. Both of these gentlemen undertook the task and the outcome of their noble effort is appearing before the readers. I had advised them not to be too strict in literal translation and to render the basic idea in their own style. I had no opportunity to go through the manuscript of their translation but had an occasion to have a cursory look on some passages. To the best of my assessment the translation I have seen is correct and conveying. I hope that it will help readers to understand the basic theme of these Khutbaat. May Allah grant the best reward to the translators and publisher of this book and make it beneficial for the readers. I would again remind the readers that it is not a book properly authored by me. It is the compilation of my extempore discussions therefore, I extend my apology if some readers find the sequence of thoughts somehow disturbed in some places. However, the readers should concentrate on the message given and not on the style adopted.

Muhammad Taqi Usmani

FOREWORD

To The Urdu Edition by
Justice Mufti Muhammad Taqi Usmani

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ

اَلْحَمْدُ لِلّٰهِ وَكَفٰى وَسَلَامٌ عَلٰى عِبَادِهِ الَّذِيْنَ اصْطَفٰى

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

All Praise belongs to Allah Who is Sufficient. And, peace be on His chosen servant.

For many years now, I have been delivering talks on religious subjects in compliance with the advice of my elders every Friday after 'Asr prayer.

People of different walks of life attend these meetings, and there are women too. By the Grace of Allah, I derive much benefit myself from these talks and my listeners too feel a sense of advantage. May Allah cause the series of talks a means of reformation for all of us. Aameen!

My close colleague, Maulana Abdullah Memon, has been recording these talks for some time and distributing the cassettes. I have been told by my friends that these cassettes have been much beneficial to the general body of Muslims.

The number of cassettes has now exceeded two hundred and fifty. Maulana Abdullah Memon has reduced some of these cassettes to writing and brought them out in the form of small booklets which are now compiled together in book-form under the name of Islahi Khutbaat (Discourses on Islamic Way of life)

I have revised some of the speeches and the Maulana has done a very useful work by annotating quotations of the Ahadith in my speeches with proper references to their source. This work has proved very useful.

In reading this book, my readers must remember that it is not a formal composition but a collection of speeches made at different times penned down from recording. Therefore, they will sense the style of an oral dialogue in these articles. The benefit that accrues to any Muslim from these articles is merely a blessing of Allah for which he must be thankful to Him. But, if there is a slip in these articles or something superfluous, then that is a lapse on my part I must say, however, that my aim in delivering these talks was not simply to speak out but-before everything else- I had my reformation in mind, and then that my listeners may be drawn towards their own reformation.

Do not let the written word please you
Or the working of fate worry you!
I have by your memory alone
What of the text and what of its meaning

May Allah through His Grace and Favour let these writings be a means of our reformation, and a treasure for the Hereafter. May He reward well the compiler and publisher of these articles. Aameen.

Muhammad Taqi Usmani.
12 Rabi-ul- Awwal 1414 A.H

Copyright Regd. No.
Ownership Rights of Translation are Reserved with DARUL - ISHAAT KARACHI
Copyright delegated to
Mohammad Asif 310-New Meena Bazar Jama Masjid Dehli India

FIRST EDITION
2009

PRINTED AT ILMI GRAPHICS

PUBLISHER
DARUL - ISHAAT URDU BAZAR KARACHI-1 PAKISTAN.
E-mail : ishaat@pk.netsolir.com, ishaat@cyber.net.pk

AVAILABLE AT
MAKTABA MA'ARIFUL QURAN, DARUL ULOOM, KORANGI, KARACHI

AVAILABLE IN U.K.

AZHAR ACADEMY LTD.
54-68 LITTLE ILFORD LANE
MANOR PARK, LONDON E12 5QA

ISLAMIC BOOK CENTRE
119-121, HALLIWELL ROAD
BOLTON, BL1 3NE

AVAILABLE IN U.S.A

DARUL-ULOOM AL-MADANIA
182 SOBIESKI STREET,
BUFFALO, NY 14212, U.S.A

MADRASAH ISLAMIAH BOOK STORE
6665 BINTLIFF, HOUSTON,
TX-77074, U.S.A.

AVAILABLE IN SOUTH AFRICA

AL-HUDA PUBLICATIONS
35 CENTRAL AVE. MAYFAIR2092
JOHANENSBURG, S.AFRICA

www.peopleofsunnah.com

CAUSES OF DISUNITY AND THE REMEDY-I ---------- 11
Wiseman of the ummah ---------- 11
Question creates interest ---------- 11
Create an interest in religion ---------- 12
The urge makes you restless ---------- 12
Religious urge in sahabah ---------- 12
Hanzalah's رضی اللہ عنہ thought of hereafter ---------- 13
Umar's رضی اللہ عنہ thought of the future ---------- 13
Help follows the urge ---------- 13
Salah takes one nearer to Allah ---------- 14
Merit of fasting ---------- 14
Merit of sadaqah ---------- 14
Most excellent deed is to reconcile warring groups ---------- 15
Reconciling people is more excellent than optional salah and fasting ---------- 15
Disharmony shaves off ---------- 15
Evil influence ---------- 16
He missed the congregation to arrange a patch up ---------- 16
Assurance for a house in center of paradise ---------- 16
No other deed gets this assurance ---------- 17
Murderer and murdered in hell ---------- 17
Obey the ruler even a black slave ---------- 17
A miserable life ---------- 18
Doing what promotes disputes ---------- 18
He is not a liar ---------- 18
Supplication for all Muslims ---------- 19
Successor of Iblis (satan) ---------- 19
Grower of hatred is a greater criminal ---------- 20
How to avoid discord ---------- 20
The condition ---------- 20
Haji Imdadullah رحمۃ اللہ ---------- 21

Two conditions-humbleness and sacrifice---- 21
Arrogance obstructs---- 21
Prescription for comfort---- 21
Have no expectations---- 22
No complaints against enemies---- 22
Place hopes in only one being ---- 22
First base of unity-humility ---- 22
The second baseselflessness---- 23
Sahabah's self-sacrifice---- 23
Example of a sahabi---- 23
Meaning of self-sacrifice---- 24
How a person was forgiven---- 24
Eliminate selfishness---- 25
One standard ---- 25
Remove double standards---- 25
CAUSES OF DISUNITY AND THE REMEDY-II--- 27
No monasticism in Islam---- 28
Hardship from staying together---- 28
Allah's perfect power seen in man's face---- 28
Nature demonstrated in colour---- 28
Fingerprints---- 29
What experts can do---- 29
Allah can recreate lines on the thumb---- 29
Embraces Islam on this verse---- 29
Allah's perfect ability---- 30
Temperaments differ---- 30
Sahabah's رضی اللہ عنہ temperaments differed---- 30
Disagreement between the Prophet صلی اللہ علیہ وسلم and His wives رضی اللہ عنہن---- 30
Sayyidah Ayshah's رضی اللہ عنہا displeasure---- 30
Displeasure as husband and wife---- 31
Variation in temperament of Abu Bakr رضی اللہ عنہ and Umar رضی اللہ عنہ---- 31
An example of disagreement between them---- 32
Differences in temperament is natural---- 33
Unless you are patient, you will fight---- 33

How to avoid hardship---- 33
Look only at the good thing---- 34
An interesting case---- 34
What does she do for you---- 34
If you look at the evil ---- 35
You might be wrong---- 35
Both are right---- 35
You might break her---- 35
Her beauty lies in her crookedness---- 36
Crookedness is in the viewer---- 36
Woman's crookedness is natural---- 36
An old woman and an eagle---- 37
Will never see peace---- 37
Show patience---- 37
What will you gain---- 37
Reward for patience---- 38
What do you gain by retaliating---- 38
Equal retaliation---- 38
Summary---- 39
CAUSES OF DISUNITY AND THE REMEDY -III--- 41
Enduring patiently hardship---- 41
The most patient being---- 42
Allah's perseverance---- 42
Consequences of submitting to democracy---- 42
Kindness to disbelievers---- 43
Grow in yourself Allah's character---- 43
Do not take revenge---- 43
Better to forgive---- 44
An incident in the life of Miyanji Noor Muhammad رحمۃ اللہ---- 44
Do not bear malice for anyone---- 45
Let Allah take account---- 45
Everyone must fulfill his duties---- 45
Do not annoy anyone---- 45
The chief justice offered two hundred raka'at every day---- 46

www.peopleofsunnah.com

An injustice I committed---- 46
The real Muslim---- 46
Prophet's method of training---- 47
Spoils to new Muslims---- 47
Hypocrites incite others---- 47
The Prophet's صلى الله عليه وسلم wise speech---- 47
The nearest to the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم ---- 48
The ansar were advised to be patient---- 48
They abided by the instruction---- 49
Heed the rights of the ansar---- 49
Everyone must discharge his duty---- 49
Everyone demands his rights---- 49
Let everyone examine himself---- 50
Summary---- 50
CAUSES OF DISUNITY AND THE REMEDY-IV---- 51
Another cause---- 51
Property should be well-defined---- 51
Partnership of father and son---- 52
Disputes arise---- 52
Keep transparency---- 52
Disburse the legacy immediately---- 52
Consequence of delay---- 53
Ownership in household articles---- 53
Caution of my father---- 53
Even between brothers---- 54
Construction of house and proper accounts---- 54
How to gift a house---- 55
Solution to problem lies in adherence to shari'ah---- 55
Summary---- 55
CAUSES OF DISUNITY AND THE REMEDY-V---- 57
Another cause of disunity---- 57
Do not quarrel---- 58
Go to court when necessary---- 58
Do not debate---- 58
Disputes remove light of knowledge---- 58
Your responsibility is to convey---- 59

Do not complain---- 59
Find an excuse for him---- 59
Mufti Aziz ur-Rahman's رحمة الله example---- 59
Let your heart be clean---- 60
This is a few day's life---- 60
What one was and what he is---- 60
The jest that is allowed---- 61
It is not allowed to ridicule anyone---- 61
Man's honour is greater than BaytAllah زاد الله شرفا و تعظيما---- 61
It grows hatred---- 62
Make good your promise---- 62
Three signs of a hypocrite---- 62
Fulfil promise made to children---- 63
To break principles and rules is to break promises---- 63
Laws that do not violate shari'ah must be followed---- 63
Disobedience to laws is like breaking a promise---- 64
Traffic rules---- 64
Receiving unemployment benefit---- 64
Conclusion---- 65
CAUSES OF DISUNITY AND THE REMEDY-VI---- 67
A serious betrayal---- 67
He holds the trust---- 68
False medical certificate---- 68
Confirming a madrasah---- 69
False character certificate---- 69
Certificate is worthless---- 69
Cause of dissension---- 69
How to atone---- 70
The Prophet's صلى الله عليه وسلم seeking forgiveness---- 70
The Prophet's صلى الله عليه وسلم high station---- 70
One companion sought compensation---- 71
Seek forgiveness from everyone---- 71
Mawlana Thanawi رحمة الله sought pardon---- 71
Mufti Muhammad Shafi's رحمة الله example---- 72
Pardon us---- 72

www.peopleofsunnah.com

Forgiveness from those who are not traced ---------- 72
Make this supplication ---------- 73
Consigning reward to the living ---------- 73
A general supplication ---------- 73
A wrong thought ---------- 73
Summary ---------- 74

CAUSES OF DISUNITY AND THE REMEDY-I[1]

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ

اَلْحَمْدُ لِلّٰهِ نَحْمَدُهٗ وَنَسْتَعِيْنُهٗ وَنَسْتَغْفِرُهٗ وَنُؤْمِنُ بِهٖ وَنَتَوَكَّلُ عَلَيْهِ وَنَعُوْذُ بِاللّٰهِ مِنْ شُرُوْرِ اَنْفُسِنَا وَمِنْ سَيِّئَاتِ اَعْمَالِنَا مَنْ يَّهْدِهِ اللّٰهُ فَلَا مُضِلَّ لَهٗ وَمَنْ يُّضْلِلْهُ فَلَا هَادِيَ لَهٗ وَاَشْهَدُ اَنْ لَّا اِلٰهَ اِلَّا اللّٰهُ وَحْدَهٗ لَا شَرِيْكَ لَهٗ وَاَشْهَدُ اَنَّ سَيِّدَنَا وَنَبِيَّنَا وَمَوْلَانَا مُحَمَّدًا عَبْدُهٗ وَرَسُوْلُهٗ صَلَّى اللّٰهُ تَعَالٰى عَلَيْهِ وَعَلٰى اٰلِهٖ وَاَصْحَابِهٖ وَبَارَكَ وَسَلَّمَ تَسْلِيْمًا كَثِيْرًا اَمَّا بَعْدُ!

اَعُوْذُ بِاللّٰهِ مِنَ الشَّيْطٰنِ الرَّجِيْمِ O

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ O

عن أبى الدرداء رضى الله تعالىٰ عنه عن النبى صلى الله عليه و سلم قال ألا أخبركم بافضل من درجة الصيام و الصلوة و الصدقة قالوا بلى قال اصلاح ذات البين و فساد ذات البين هى الحالقة۔

(ابو داود كتاب الادب، باب ما فى اصلاح ذات البين)

Wiseman of the ummah

The above Hadith is reported by Sayyidina Abu a d-Darda رضى الله عنه. He was a high ranking Companion and Wali (friend) of Allah. The Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم had described him as حكيم هذه الامة (the wise man of this Ummah). Allah had granted him wisdom.

Question creates interest

He reported that once the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم asked his sahabah رضى الله عنهم, "Shall I not disclose to you something that is [1] Venue: Jami' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram, Gulshan-e-Iqbal, Karachi.

www.peopleofsunnah.com

Copyright Regd. No.
Ownership Rights of Translation are Reserved with DARUL - ISHAAT KARACHI
Copyright delegated to
Mohammad Asif 310-New Meena Bazar Jama Masjid Dehli India

FIRST EDITION
2009

PRINTED AT ILMI GRAPHICS

PUBLISHER
DARUL - ISHAAT URDU BAZAR KARACHI-1 PAKISTAN.
E-mail : ishaat@pk.netsolir.com, ishaat@cyber.net.pk

AVAILABLE AT
MAKTABA MA'ARIFUL QURAN, DARUL ULOOM, KORANGI, KARACHI

AVAILABLE IN U.K.

AZHAR ACADEMY LTD.
54-68 LITTLE ILFORD LANE
MANOR PARK, LONDON E12 5QA

ISLAMIC BOOK CENTRE
119-121, HALLIWELL ROAD
BOLTON, BL1-3NE

AVAILABLE IN U.S.A

DARUL-ULOOM AL-MADANIA
182 SOBIESKI STREET,
BUFFALO, NY 14212, U.S.A

MADRASAH ISLAMIAH BOOK STORE
6665 BINTLIFF, HOUSTON,
TX-77074, U.S.A.

AVAILABLE IN SOUTH AFRICA

AL-HUDA PUBLICATIONS
35 CENTRAL AVE, MAYFAIR 2092
JOHANENSBURG, S. AFRICA

CONTENTS

IMPORTANCE OF THE SALAH AND THE CORRECT WAY TO OFFER IT ---- 9
First words ---- 9
Khushu and Khudu ---- 9
Reality of khudu ---- 9
Teachings of the righteous caliphs ---- 10
Proper posture of limbs is khudu ---- 10
Outside thoughts ---- 10
The honourable Mufti's رحمه الله care ---- 11
Standing posture ---- 11
Forming intention ---- 11
Takbir Tahrimah ---- 11
Folding hands ---- 12
Recital of the Quran ---- 12
Summary ---- 12
THE MASNUN METHOD OF SALAH
(The way the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم offered it) ---- 13
Introduction ---- 13
Standing posture ---- 14
Motionless ---- 14
In the presence of the ruler of all rulers ---- 14
Ruku (bowing) ---- 14
The qawmah (standing from ruku) ---- 15
Supplication ---- 15
An example ---- 15
Why did he not teach straightaway ---- 16
Offer it peacefully ---- 16
Will have to be repeated ---- 16
An etiquette of qawmah ---- 16
Into prostration ---- 16
Toes must be well grounded ---- 17
Prostration nearest to Allah ---- 17
Women must unlock their hair ---- 17

www.peopleofsunnah.com

Salah is believers miraj---- 17
Merit of prostration---- 18
The condition---- 18
Keep elbows apart---- 18
The jalsah and supplication---- 19
THE THREE STAGES OF KHUSHU---- 21
First words---- 21
Fingers and toes in ruku and sajdah---- 21
Sitting for attahiyat---- 22
Salutation---- 22
The fact of khushu---- 22
Not necessary to be visible---- 22
Passengers in the aeroplane---- 23
Sunlight---- 23
Everything is evidence of Allah's being---- 23
First step are the words---- 23
First step to khushu---- 24
Second step is the meaning---- 24
Why the distraction---- 24
Return if distracted---- 24
Exercise and effort---- 24
Third step thought of Allah---- 25
HOW TO KEEP AWAY THOUGHTS IN THE SALAH--- 27
Introduction---- 27
Three stages of khushu---- 28
Disturbed by thoughts---- 28
Prefaces of the salah---- 28
The first preface: purification---- 28
Istinja begins purification---- 28
Impurity is cause of thoughts---- 29
Ablution---- 29
Ablution washes off sin---- 29
Which kind of ablution---- 29
Concentration---- 29
Prayers during ablution---- 30
Conversation during ablution---- 30
The third preface---- 30

When to offer---- 31
The fourth preface---- 31
The four introduce khush u---- 31
Ignore the thoughts---- 31
Value the prostration---- 31
After the salah---- 32
Summary---- 32
CONSISTENTLY OBSERVE THE SALAH---- 33
First words---- 34
All characteristics in one perspective---- 34
Similarity in the first and the last quality---- 34
Punctuality of time---- 35
The salah of the hypocrite---- 35
Religion is obedience to Allah---- 35
With the congregation---- 36
Waiting for the salah---- 36
Put their houses on fire---- 36
Advantages of the congregation---- 37
Do not imitate Christianity---- 37
Women must offer the salah in the initial hour---- 37
The importance of salah---- 37
Inheritors of al-firdaws---- 38

www.peopleofsunnah.com

Venue : Da'wa Academy International Islamic University,
Islamabad

Date: : Sunday, the 25th. August, 1992
After 'Asr Prayers

LIMITS OF REASON

بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم۔ الحمد الله رب العالمين والصلوٰة
والسلام على رسوله الكريم وعلى آله واصحابه اجمعين اما بعد۔

This is not the first occasion for me to attend the various training courses of this Academy. I have had the opportunity to address some of the training courses held from time to time even before. On this occasion I have been called upon to talk to your assembly on the topic of Islamisation of laws, which is a very lengthy topic and comprehensive. However, in the short time I have at my disposal, I wish to invite your attention to only one aspect of the Islamisation of Laws.

The term "Fundamentalism," has become a word of Abuse

It is generally demanded by the Muslim population that our law, our living, our politics, rather every aspect of life should be moulded on the pattern of Islam. A question naturally arises as to why and on what grounds life should be so re-shaped and re-formed. This question arises only because, to day, we are living in a society in which secular and purely worldly trends of thinking and understanding have overpowered the hearts and minds of the world. It has been accepted universally as a maxim that the best and the most successful system of running the government of a country is the secular system. In a society so riddled with the dazzling charms of the secular system, it looks rather unnatural and strange to demand that "in our country we should mould every aspect of our life and activity into the Islamic pattern , including its laws, life-style and politics" or in other words, we should adopt that life-style which was in vogue fourteen centuries ago. Such a demand and call in this contemporary world sounds quite strange and this is dubbed, sarcastically, as "Fundamentalism." This term, i.e. "Fundamentalism" has been branded and introduced in the world as a repulsive term of abuse. In their sight everyone is a fundamentalist who demands that the affairs of the government should be settled in the light of the laws of Religion (Islam). Such a person is defamed with the title of "Fundamental", even though in its real import this is not a bad term. This term "Fundamentalist" only means one who adopts and abides by the basic principles of life. It is very sad that now-a-days the word has been given the meaning of an abuse.

Why Islamisation?

A question arises as to why we want to adopt the Islamic way of life and want to mould the laws of the country into the Islamic pattern when the Islamic teachings go back to a period fourteen centuries back or even more than that.

Allah has granted us Intellect.

In this connection a relevant question arises. How should secular state or a state not based on any religious principles conduct its affairs? This question is replied to by saying that we do possess intellect, we have also the facilities of observation and experience which may help us decide as to what are our needs and the demands of life in the present conditions of the world by meeting which we can make the wheels of government revolve peacefully and safely. We may indeed have to effect changes and amendments in the system of government, as and when needed. Thus can we follow the path of peace and prosperity.

Is intellect the last standard?

In a secular system of government Intellect, Observation and Experience have been taken as the final standard to rely upon. We have now to find out how efficient is really this standard. Can this standard be so effective and efficient as to guide humanity till the Day of Judgment? Can this so-called standard based on intellect, observation and experience alone, prove sufficient and effective for human life?

Sources of Knowledge

In order to find out an answer to this question we must realize the truth that no system of life can work successfully, unless it has at its back a treasure of knowledge to propel it onwards. It should also be noted at this stage that Almighty Allah has bestowed on man certain sources of knowledge, each source possessing a specific jurisdiction but beyond this jurisdiction it becomes in-effective.

The Jurisdiction of the Five Senses

It may be mentioned, as an example, that the first of these sources for acquiring knowledge are the five senses, viz., the eyes, the ears, the nose, the tongue, etc. Man is able to acquire knowledge about many things by using his eyesight, by tasting things with the tongue, by smelling things with the nose, by hearing words with the ears and by touching objects with his hands. However, each of these sources of knowledge which fall within the jurisdiction of observation has a limit of its own beyond which it can do nothing. For example, the eye can see but it cannot hear; the ear can hear but it cannot see; the nose can smell but it cannot see. If there is a man who desires to use each of these organs for a function for which it has not been created by Allah, that man shall be taken by the world to be a fool, for being ignorant of the functions of these organs.

The second source of knowledge is the Intellect

As already mentioned, the working limits of these five senses reach a boundary which they cannot cross. At this stage, neither of these senses is effective. This is the stage at which, knowledge of things cannot be acquired through observation. To meet this challenge, Almighty Allah has bestowed upon us another source of knowledge and that is the Intellect which helps man to acquire knowledge where the Five Senses become ineffective and helpless. For example, there is a table lying before me. I can know its colour by seeing it with the eyes. I can know by touching it with my hands that it is made of hard wood and is covered with Formica. Yet, none of these senses helps me to know how this table came into existence, because the process of its manufacture did not take place before me. I such a situation my Intellect guides me by suggesting to me that such a finely finished object cannot come into existence by itself. Some expert artisan has made this beautiful table and he is the expert carpenter. It is my Intellect that has taught me that the table was made by carpenter. It is thus proved that my Intellect came to my help when my Five senses left me helpless.

The Jurisdiction of the Intellect

It should however, be noted that just as the Jurisdiction of the Five senses is limited in the same way the jurisdiction of the Intellect is also limited. The Intellect, too helps man to a certain limit, then leaves him helpless, as if cannot go beyond the limit of its jurisdiction in providing guidance to man.

The third source of knowledge is Divine Revelation

Almighty Allah has granted man another source of knowledge to help and guide him where his Intellect leaves him helpless. That source is Divine Revelation, meaning provision of knowledge to man by Allah through heavenly revelation. This source of knowledge starts from the place where the jurisdiction of the Intellect fails. Thus to try to use the Intellect in the presence of Divine Revelation is just like trying to see things by the ears instead of by the eyes and so on so forth. It does not mean that the Intellect is a useless faculty. No, it is highly serviceable, rather indispensable to man but within its jurisdiction and not beyond that.

The difference between Islam and Secualrism

The difference between Islamic and secular system of life lies that in the secular system the process of knowledge comes to an end after reaching the limits of the first two sources, viz. the Five senses and the Intellect as there is no third source of knowledge available to propel the secular system onwards. As against this, Islam claims that there exists another source of knowledge for you and that is the Divine Revelation.

The need for Divine Revelation

We have not to see how far this claim of Islam holds good in our contemporary world that the Intellect cannot guide man to acquire knowledge and guidance without any limit and in all circumstances, but the world stands in need of Prophets and Messengers of Allah and Revealed Books.

The Intellect is a Deceptive Faculty

In these times great emphasis is being laid on the Intellectual Faculty (or Rationalism) and it is said that every decision should be taken after considering the pros and cons of every problem in the light of Rationalism. However, this Rationalism does not possess a set formula or fixed principles to provide universal truths, acceptable to all men, to serve as an infallible standard to judge what is right and what is wrong, what is to be adopted and what is to be rejected. If we leave this decision to the dictates of Intellect we are liable to commit devastating faults. Just turn the pages of history to find out for yourself how grievously and fatally the faculty of Intellect has misguided humanity into destruction and deluge. I cite below a few instances from the pages of history.

To marry one's own sister is not against Intellect

About eight hundred years ago a sect sprang up in the Islamic World under the name of the 'Batini' or the "Qaramitia" sect. Ubaiduallah Bin Hasan Qirwani was one of its renowned leaders. He wrote an interesting letter to his followers about how they should lead their lives. He writes:

The People have in their households a beautiful and well-behaved girl in the person of a sister who is well acquainted with the temperament and psychology of her brother, but this fool gives her hand in marriage to a stranger, without knowing whether or not the couple would pull on with each other peacefully and willingly. As for himself, be brings a wife who is much inferior to his sister in beauty, behaviour, adaptability and considerateness.

I fail to understand why one should hand over the wealth of one's own household to a stranger and bring to one's own household a girl who cannot provide her mate with the desired peace and comfort. This is a sheer folly. This is against wisdom. I therefore, advise my followers to shun this folly and preserve the wealth of their household in its original place.(Al-farq lil-haghdadie, p.297 and Bayanul-ma-za hib al-Batinya, lil Dalimi p.81)

The Sister and Sexual satisfaction

At another place the same Ubaidullah Bin Hasan Qirwani conveys the following message to his followers on the basis of wisdom:

"When a sister can prepare food for her brother to satisfy his hunger, wash his clothes, arrange his bedding and provide him with other comforts why can she not satisfy his sexual urge also? This is indeed against Wisdom"(Ibid)

Impossible to repudiate this argument with the help of the Intellect

However, vehemently you may curse this man, you will not be able to repudiate his arguments till the Day of Judgment with pure intellect that is devoid of Divine Revelation.

This is not immoral from the Intellectual point of view

If a man says that this is grossly immoral, grievously disgustful, this may be repudiated by saying that this feeling of immorality and disgust is the result of the prevailing social trends and customs. You have been born and are living in a society where this is considered as something very repulsive and hateful, otherwise in the eyes of the intellect this is not at all disgustful.

Preservation of genealogy offers no intellectual argument

If you say that this practice vitiates the genealogical line, this may be repudiated by saying that there is no harm in this. The idea of preserving the genealogical lineage is not based on any intellectual principle.

This too is a part of the Human urge

If you say in reply to this argument that this is harmful medically, because research has established that the system of Incest (sexual relations between close relation) is medically harmful.

Are you aware that books are being published today in the Western world that Incest is a part of the natural human urge; and it is not correct to say that it is harmful medically. Not only is this an echo of the same slogan which Ubaidullah bin Hasan Qairwani had raised eight hundred years ago, but it is now being actually practiced in the western countries.

The result of freedom from Divine Revelation

Why is all this happening? It is because we are trying to use the Intellect in matters which lie beyond its jurisdiction and in which the Divine Revelation alone can provide guidance. One result of releasing the Intellect from the grip of the Divine Revelation may be seen in the fact that the British Parliament has passed the law of legalizing homosexuality under the thump of clappings.

And now this vice has become a regular science. Once I happened to visit a library in New York. I found there a separate section devoted to literature on the subject, "Gay style of life". A large number of books have been published on this subject and many associations are working for this under the auspices of persons holding high positions. The then Mayor of New York was also a Gay.

The Deception of the Intellect

In one of the past issues of the famous American Magazine, "The Times", there was a report that about one thousand of the American soldiers engaged in the last Gulf war were discharged on the charge of being homosexual. A great hue and cry was raised against this action demanding their reinstatement. The argument of the protesters was that it was only the satisfaction of a human urge. On the basis of this Human Urge, most heinous vices are being declared lawful, because according to them intellectually there is absolutely no objection to such acts.

This relates to the human society but the vice has penetrated into the animal kingdom as well.

Another Deception of the Intellect

Today ways and means are being searched for in order to check the spread of the nuclear weapons the devastating effects of which are well known all over the world. In an article included in the Encyclopaedia Britannica on the topic of Atom Bomb, it is stated that experiment of the Atom Bomb was made in two places in the world, viz. Hiroshima and Nagasaki in Japan. Defending the devastations wrought by the Bomb, the article has mentioned first of all that the explosions of the Atom Bomb in these two places were made to save about ten million human lives. It has been argued that if this explosion had not taken place, there was a possibility of the continuance of these nuclear wars resulting in the death of about ten million human lives. Thus the Atom Bomb has been introduced to the world as a saviour and not as a destroyer of life. This justification of a universally accursed crime has also been offered on the basis of the so-called Intellect.

What is intended to impress by this example is that it is always possible to find some justification and excuse through the misconception and misuse of the Intellect even for the worst vices and misdeeds.

The entire world is cursing today the cult of Fascism and the names of its two Champions, Hitler and Mussolini have become words of abuse in the political world. Only go through their philosophy of Fascism to see how logically and cleverly they have presented it to the world in the garb of something quite feasible and reasonable. Why is it so? It is indeed the misplacement and misuse of the Intellect that misguided them. Thus, there is no vice and crime in the world for which some justification cannot be found because of the misuse and misplacement of this faculty.

An exmaple of the Jurisdiction of the Intellect

The well know historian and philosopher, Allama Ibn-e-Khaldoon has written that the Intellect which Almighty Allah has bestowed upon man is indeed very useful and valuable but this is subject to the condition that it is utilised within its jurisdiction. It may be compared to the delicate scale which is used to weigh gold. If anyone uses it to weigh a large block of stone it will break. Now if any person says that the scale is useless, as it could not weight the block of stone, that person will be declared to be a fool. The truth is that the scale was used for something which did not fall within its jurisdiction, so it broke. (Introduction of Ibn Khaldoon, p-440)

The difference between Islam and Secularism

The basic difference between Islam and secularism is that Islam recommends the use of the Intellect strictly within its jurisdiction and not beyond that. If it is pressed into service beyond that not only will it not work but it will also begin to furnish wrong answers. If you operate a computer to tell you something which has not been fed into it, not will it will not work but it will give wrong and misleading results. In the same way, this computer of the human intellect will give either no reply or misleading reply about something which has not been fed into it and that something is indeed the information that is preserved in the Divine Revelation. It will be absurd to utilise the Intellect and expect from it information which can be obtained only from the Divine Revelation. That is why Almighty Allah sent to this world from time to time His Prophets and Messengers with Divine Scriptures, the last of them being the Holy Prophet Muhammad ﷺ who came to this world with the last of the Revealed Books, the Holy Qur'an. There is a verse in the Holy Qur'an, saying:

إِنَّا أَنْزَلْنَا إِلَيْكَ الْكِتٰبَ بِالْحَقِّ لِتَحْكُمَ بَيْنَ النَّاسِ

We have indeed revealed to you the Book with the truth, so that you may judge between mankind (4:105)

This Revealed Book, the Qur'an, will tell you what is true and what is false, what is right and what is wrong, what is good and what is bad - things which you cannot know from your Intellect.

The hopeless condition of the Organisation that advocates Freedom of Thought

There is a renowned International Organisation known as "Amnesty International", with its Head Office in Paris - France. Sometime ago a research scholar of this organisation visited Pakistan for carrying out a survey. He also called on me for an interview. He began his interview by saying that it was the aim of his organisation to work for the freedom of thought and to secure the freedom of many people who are suffering from torture in prisons on the charge of their freedom of thought and we want to liberate them. This, he said, is an issue about which there is no dispute. He told me that he had been sent to Pakistan to collect the opinions of different classes of people in this country. He wanted to question me also on this subject.

The Survey being carried out today

I inquired from him about the purpose of the survey. He told me that he wanted to collect the opinions of different circles of people in Pakistan on this topic. The following dialogue took place between us:

I: When did you arrive at Karachi?

He: Just this morning.

I: When do you intend to go back?

He: I am leaving for Islamabad the next morning.(This meeting was held at night).

I: How long will you stay in Islamabad?

He: Only one day.

I: You are going to carry out a survey of the opinion of various circles of people in Pakistan after which you shall draw up a report to submit to your Organisation. Will your stay in two or three cities of Pakistan for two or three days be sufficient for your purpose?

He: It is obvious that three days are not sufficient to know the opinions of all sections of the people. I have however, met peoples of different schools of thought. I have come to see you for the same purpose. Kindly favour me with your guidance.

I: How many persons have you met in Karachi?

He: I have met three persons and you are the fourth.

I: You will draw up a report purporting to represent Karachi on the basis of the ideas if these four men only. I doubt about the seriousness of your survey report. Serious research work is not undertaken in this way. I am, therefore, unable to reply to your questions. He attributed his inability to interview more people for shortage of time. Still he insisted on my replies to some of his questions. I told him that I was unable to cooperate with him for such an incomplete survey. On the other hand, I asked him permission to put to him a few questions about the basic concept of his Organisation.

He: In fact I had visited you to put to you a few questions, but if you do not want to entertain my questions you are welcome to put some questions about my Organisation, if you so desire.

Is the Theory of Freedom of thought Absolute?

I said to him: You say that the organisation that has deputed you on this work is a champion of Freedom of thought. This Freedom of thought is indeed very good, but do you believe that it is totally Absolute in its import? Is it without any restrictions to keep it within some limits? He replied that he failed to understand my intention. I explained to him my intention by saying: Is the conception of Freedom of thought so Absolute that man should express himself before others and preach to others and exhort them to follow whatever occurs to him ? For example, I feel inclined to think that the capitalists have amassed great wealth, so the poor classes should have the freedom to commit dacoity and rob the capitalists of their wealth and there should be none to stop them from this? I should also propagate this thought of mine among the common people, because the capitalists have amassed this wealth by sucking the blood of the poorer classes. Now tell me if you would support this type of Freedom of thought.

You have no fixed standard or yardstick to determine this Freedom of thought

In reply he told me that he would not support such unbridled Freedom of thought. I told him that when the conception of Freedom of thought is not absolute, then should you not like that some restrictions should be placed on it? He replied in the affirmative, adding by way of an example, that the Freedom of thought should not allow the commission of violence and tyranny to others. I said: This is your view. Others should also have freedom to personal views about the imposition of restriction on the Freedom of thought according to their views. There is no reason why only your views about the restrictions on the Freedom of Thought should be accepted and those of others rejected. The whole issue boils to this question: What should be these restrictions and who should finally approve or disapprove them? I request you to let me know some universally acceptable standard or yardstick for the adoption of the desirable restrictions.

His answer to this question was: We have never given serious thought to this issue. I said: It is a pity that you belong to such a renowned International Organisation and have come out to carry out a survey on the topic of Freedom of thought, but you have not yet decided as to what should be the limits, scope and jurisdiction of this so-called freedom. This programme of yours cannot be successful without a clear-cut decision on this vital issue. I requested him to furnish me an answer to this question from the literature available with him or after consulting others.

Mankind has no standard (yardstick) other than the Divine Revelation

The gentleman promised to convey to his Organisation my views and furnish to me the relevant literature on the subject. He then took leave of me and thanked me coolly. I have been waiting for his literature or replies to my question to this day. I feel quite sure that he can furnish to me neither replies to my questions nor any universally acceptable literature on this topic till the Day of Judgment. This is because every person will fix a standard of his own choice. There is no one in this world who can propose a standard which is universally applicable. I can assert this without fear of any repudiation that there is no standard or criterion other than the criterion of the Divine Revelations which alone can impose necessary and eternal limits on these ambiguous thoughts and conceptions. Man has no guidance other than the Divine guidance.

It is only the Faith that can serve as a Standard

Just consider the theme of philosophy which studies the relation between law and morality. There is a school of thought which maintains that the law has nothing to do with morality and conception of what is good and what is bad is meaningless. The words, "Should, should not and ought",, etc, are the creation of man's own desire. So, whatever a society adopts is right for it. We have no criterion to decide what is good and what is bad. There is a well known text book on the subject of Jurisprudence in which the following sentence occurs at the end of the discussion on this subject.

> Mankind has one thing which can serve as a criterion or standard to determine these things > and that is Religion, but Religion belongs to man's Belief which has no place in the secular system of life. That is why we cannot adopt it as a basis.

We have no argument against this evil

There is another example. I have already mentioned that when the Bill of Homosexuality was passed in the British Parliament there was a thump to express clapping joy. Before its passage the Bill was vehemently opposed and it was entrusted to a committee to study and decide whether or not it should be passed. The report of this committee was published and its summary is available in Fridman's famous book, The Legal Theory. According to this summary the committee concluded its report with the following observation:

> There is no doubt that this is not good. We have, however, decided that the law should not interfere with the private life of man. As such, in the light of this principle we have no argument against this evil as long as we differentiate between sin and crime. This Bill can be opposed only when we regard sin and crime as being one and the same. There is, therefore, no justification to stop the passage of this Bill.

When we demand the Islamization of the law we, mean to say that the secular system recognises as source of knowledge only the eyes, the ears, the nose, the tongue, etc. and the intellect. We propose that going one step further, it should also adopt the Divine Revelation as a source of knowledge and guidance.

I fail to understand the Reason for this Order

It is an act of folly to reject an injunction on the Divine Revelation (i.e. the Qur'an) on the ground that one is unable to understand the reason behind that injunction, when it becomes clear that the Divine Revelation starts from the place which lies beyond the jurisdiction of the human intellect and understanding. If the human reason could be of help at such a stage, there should have been no need of Revelation. If man could grasp the ins and outs of this injunction through the faculty of his Reason, it was hardly necessary for Almighty Allah to send down Revelations through His Prophet ﷺ

Science and Technology in the Qur'an and the Ahadith

This also furnishes reply to another question which often arises among the educated classes. They say that this is the age of science and technology. The entire world has advanced in this field, but our Qur'an and the Ahadith do not give us any formula in this field, so that we might learn how to manufacture the Atom and Hydrogen Bombs. For this reason some people are suffering from an inferiority complex, while the world is reaching the moon and the planet Mars, the Divine Revelation and the Traditions are silent on this point.

Science and Technology are Experimental subjects

The question can be answered by saying that these subjects lie within the jurisdiction of the human intellect. These are experimental sciences, in which personal efforts and experiments are needed. Almighty Allah has left this branch of knowledge to the human research and experiment. The more a man devotes his energies, research and experiment to this technical work, the more will he go ahead in this field. The Qur'an has been, in fact, revealed for the guidance of humanity in matters which lie beyond the jurisdiction of the human intellect and which the faculty of intellect cannot grasp. Thus, it is the Divine Revelation (Qur'an) that has come to our help in understanding such spiritual and celestial issues.

Thus, the entire philosophy of Islamization of Laws consists in the proposition that we should mould our lives on the Laws of Islam.

The Islamic Laws possess Elasticity

Even after having discussed the truth in the foregoing pages, a question still arises as to how, in this ever-changing world, we can revert to a life-style which is fourteen centuries old. How can we apply to the contemporary conditions of life in the twentieth and twenty first centuries. These centuries old principles of our life-styles and its needs are ever-changing? This confusion arises from our ignorance of the Islamic Laws. It should be carefully noted that Islam has divided its laws into three parts.

1. Fixed Laws that are based on the final injunctions of the Qur'an and the Sunnah (Traditions and practices of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. These are irrevocable laws incapable of being subjected to any change irrespective of the changes which the world may undergo till the Doomsday.

2. Laws which are capable of being revised and amended through the juristic process of Ijtihad (Independent judgment) and Istimbat (Deduction.). They are not based on irrevocable fixed Laws. They do contain the elasticity of the Islamic Laws.

3. These are laws about which the Qur'an as well as the Sunnah are silent and contain no directions. Why is it so? This aspect of the law has been left to the discretion of our intellect and for the jurists to consider and decide. The scope of this part of the law is so wide that in every age and by his effort and independent judgment, man can fill this vacuum to meet the ever-changing needs of the world.

The Injunctions in the first category are incapable of any change till the Day of Judgment

The second category of the laws are capable of being changed and amended through the processes of Ijtihad and Istimbat to meet the ever-changing needs of the times. The laws in the first category can however, undergo no change in any circumstances till the Doomsday. This is because they are based on the nature, sensibility and temperament of man. The human life-style may change, in fact, it is under a continuous process of change, but human nature and temperament cannot change. So these laws, too, cannot be changed.

The Shari'ah (Islamic Laws), however, allow us to effect changes in the other categories of the laws within the limits imposed by the Islamic Shari'ah.

Where does Ijtihad start from?

Ijtihad starts from the point where the Fixed law based on the evidence of the Qur'an and the Sunnah, (i.e. the injunctions in the first category) are not available. In places where these Fixed Laws are available it is going beyond one's jurisdiction to apply one's own intellect to take decisions against these Fixed Laws. Such a practice leads to the distortion/corruption of Religion, of which I quote below an example.

The meat of swine, i.e. pork should be lawful

In the Holy Qur'an the eating of pork has been declared to be strictly forbidden. This prohibition is based on an injunction of Divine Revelation. To question on the basis of the intellect as to why pork has been prohibited and made unlawful is an example of using the intellect beyond its jurisdiction. That is why some misguided Intellectuals have gone to the extent of saying: In the days of yore, pigs were very dirty and were raised in very disgusting environments, eating filth and faeces. Nowadays they are bred in highly hygienic farms in very healthy environments. So the injunction which prohibits eating of prok should be repealed. This is using the Intellect beyond its jurisdiction where it is refusing to operate.

What is the differece between Usury and Trade?

Similarly, when usury and interest have been prohibited in the Holy Qur'an, they have become unlawful for all times, whether or not the Intellect is able to grasp the wisdom of this injunction. While quoting the argument of the unbelievers, the Qur'an has said:

إِنَّمَا الْبَيْعُ مِثْلُ الرِّبٰوا

"Trade is just like Usury. Man earns profit from Trading (sale and purchase) and from usury also." (2: 275)

Without explaining the difference between trade and usury, the Qur'an gave the following reply to the unbelievers:

وَاَحَلَّ اللّٰهُ الْبَيْعَ وَحَرَّمَ الرِّبٰوا ؕ

Allah has allowed trading and prohibited usury. (Ibid).

Now you have no business to object to this Divine Command, because when Allah has allowed trading, it is lawful; and when He has forbidden usury, it is unlawful. To raise objections to this Divine Command is nothing but using the Intellect beyond its Jurisdiction.

An Event

It is a famous event that once an Indian musician went on the Hajj Pilgrimage. After performing the pilgrimage, while he was going to Madina Munawwarah, he had to pass the nights at the various night stops. When this musician stopped at a place to pass the night, by chance an Arab musician also came there. He was a Bedouin and an untrained musician and did not know how to play on the usual musical instruments. His performance was hopeless and repulsive. When the Indian musician listened to Bedouin performance he said: Now I understand why the Holy Prophet ﷺ declared singing and musical performance to be unlawful, because he listened only to the hopeless performance of the Bedouins. If he had listened to my performance, he would not have declared music unlawful.

The intention in relating this event is to point out that now-a-days mis-directed and wrong thinking are being dubbed as Ijtihad. This is an example of using personal desires within the domain of the Shari'ah.

The Ijtihad of present-day thinkers

There is among us a so-called 'thinker'. I mention him here as a 'thinker' because he is regarded as such in his circle:

وَالسَّارِقُ وَالسَّارِقَةُ فَاقْطَعُوْٓا اَيْدِيَهُمَا

As for the thief, both male and female, cut off their hands (5:38)

Explaining this verse of the Holy Qur'an, this so-called thinker has said: The word "thief" stands for the capitalists who have established huge industries, the word "hands" stands for industries and "cut off" stands for nationalization of their industries. According to this, the verse means that all the industries of the capitalists should be nationalised to close the door of theft.

Note: Thus, according to his "great thinker", Allah has let free the thieves, robbers, dacoits and plunderers to continue their crimes without fear of punishment.

Dr Muhammad Iqbal's opinion about the Ijtihad (Independent opinion) of this kind

ز اجتہادے عالمانے کم نظر
اقتداء با رفتگاں محفوظ تر

To follow in the footsteps of the past learned men are safer than following the Ijtihad of such short-sighted men of today.

The cry for Tajdeed (Renovation)

Dr. Iqbal has said:

لیکن یہ ڈر ہے کہ یہ آوازۂ تجدید
مشرق میں ہے تقلید فرنگی کا بہانہ

The hue and cry being raised for introducing renovation and changes may, it is feared, be only a plea to impose on the East the Western trend of thought and civilisation.

It may be mentioned that only the use of the term "Islamisation" as a common slogan will not help at all, unless the philosophy of Islamisation is fully grasped and understood.

خرد نے کہہ بھی دیا لا الہ تو کیا حاصل
دل و نگاہ مسلماں نہیں تو کچھ بھی نہیں

It is no good if a man pronounces the words "Laa ilaaha ... ' by dint of his intellect, unless he becomes a Muslim by his heart and soul, and purity of sight.

Accordingly, the first step towards Islamisation is that we should, with full confidence and belief, full courage, without any favour or fear and apology, be ready to declare openly that if there is any way open to humanity to prosperity and success it is Islamisation and Islamisation alone and nothing else.

May Almighty Allah help us to understand this truth rightly and work to implement this. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد للہ رب العالمین

Venue : Jame'masjid Baitul Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal
Karachi

Date : Friday, the 24th January 1992
After 'Asr Prayers

After the event of the celestial ascension Mi'raj the Holy Prophet ﷺ lived in this world for eighteen years. It is, however, nowhere proved that he issued any particular injunctions during these eighteen years about the night of the Mi'raj, nor did he make arrangements to celebrate this event, nor did he mention that keeping vigil on this night would earn more recompense and virtue as in the Night of Power. It is also not proved that during his time the people took care to keep vigil during this night.

THE MONTH OF RAJAB

Removal of Some misunderstandings

الحمدلله و كفى وسلام على عباده الذين اصطفى اما بعد!

Many misunderstandings are current among the people about the month of Rajab. It is necessary to understand the true facts about this.

The Practice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ on sighting the Rajab moon.

What is proved about this month on the basis of authentic Ahadith from the Holy Prophet ﷺ is that on sighting the Rajab moon he used to recite the following Du'a (supplication):

اللهم بارك لنافى رجب و شعبان و بلغنا رمضان

This means: O Allah grant us blessings in the months of Rajab and Sha'ban and take us to the month of Ramadhan.

In other words, extend the days of our life that we may overtake the month of Ramadhan during our lifetime. Thus the believers anxiously waited for the arrival of the sacred month of Ramadhan. This Du'a is proved from the Holy Prophet ﷺ on the basis of authentic Hadith, so it is an act of Sunnah. If anyone did not recite this Du'a in the beginning, he should do so now.

There is no place in the Shari'ah for the many customs that have become vogue among the people, during this month.

No proof is available for the virtues of the night of Mi'raj

It has been widely circulated about the night of 27th Rajab that it is the night of Mi'raj which should be passed like the night of Power. They believe that the virtues of the night of Mi'raj are more or less like those of the night of Power. I have seen a board with a writing thereon mentioning that the night of Mi'raj is more virtuous than the night of Power. For this night people have invented certain forms of prayer to be offered with specific recitations and styles. It should be well understood that all these are baseless practices having no place in the Islamic Shari'ah.

There is difference of opinion about the exact date of the Night of Mi'raj

First of all it is not certain that the 27th of Rajab is the night in which the Holy Prophet ﷺ performed the celestial ascension. There are various narrations on this point. According to some of these the Holy Prophet ﷺ performed Mi'raj in the month of Rabi'ul-awwal and according to some others in the month of Rajab. Still some other narrations mention other months. So there is no certainty about the exact date of the night of Mi'raj.

Why was the date of Mi'raj not preserved?

You may think for yourself that if the night of Mi'raj had been a special night with special injunctions about it like the night of Power, the month and date of its occurrence must have been preserved. As this was not done, it is not right to specify with any certainty the 27th of Rajab as the night of Mi'raj.

It was a splendid night.

Whatever the date of its occurrence, it cannot be denied that it was a splendid night in which Almighty Allah conferred on the Holy Prophet ﷺ the unique honour of inviting him to His Elevated Court. Indeed, very splendid was that night about whose magnificence no Muslim can feel the slightest doubt.

The night of Mi'raj occurred eighteen times during the Prophet's ﷺ life.

The event of Mi'raj took place in the fifth year of his Prophethood. This means that after this unique event, the Holy Prophet ﷺ lived in this world for 18 years. During this long period of 18 years there is no evidence that he ever issued any special injunctions about the night of Mi'raj or made arrangements for its celebration or advised the Muslims to keep vigil on this night in devotion carries more reward. There is no evidence of any such injunction of the Holy Prophet ﷺ nor did he himself do anything to celebrate this night nor did he even ask the Noble Companions to do so, nor did the Companions arrange in this night any celebration on their own account.

There is no greater Fool than he.....

After the sad demise of the Holy Prophet ﷺ his Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم lived in the world after him for about one hundred years. During the entire period of this one century there is no proof of even a single incident in which the Noble Companion رضی اللہ عنہم took care to celebrate the night of the 27th Rajab. It is an innovation (Bid'at) to declare something as part of religion, as an act of Sunnah or to treat it as Sunnah which neither the Holy Prophet ﷺ nor the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم ever did. There is not a greater fool than he who says: Never mind, I shall do that; because I know more (God forbid) than the Holy Prophet ﷺ which night carries greater virtue, or I have greater enthusiasm for devotion and that I shall do what the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم did not do.

To be cleverer than a Baniya is madness.

My father, Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi' رحمۃ اللہ علیہ used to relate a proverb of the Hindi language which is widely popular in India. It runs:

He is mad who claims to be cleverer than the village Hindu shop keeper.

It means that he is really a mad man who claims that he is cleverer than the Hindu shop-keeper of the village in trading affairs. This is a common proverb that there is none cleverer than the village Hindu shop-keeper (Baniya).

Who has greater knowledge of Deen than the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم ?

So far as Deen (faith) is concerned, it is a fact that the Companions, then the Tabi'een, then the Taba' Tabi'een knew and followed Deen (faith) more thoroughly and sincerely than all others, He is really a madman who claims to know more of Deen, to have greater enthusiasm for it or to be more worshipful than these reverend personalities of Islam.

It is a Bid'ah to devote to special forms of worship on this night.

It is therefore, Bid'ah to arrange for special forms of worship in this night. Worship and devotion are good; there is no harm if one keeps vigil for the purpose of worship in this night and in other nights but no special emphasis should be laid on worship on this particular night because this night of the 27th Rajab has no distinction over other nights.

Fasting on the 27th of Rajab is not proved

Some people fast on the 27th of Rajab and believe that fasting on this day has the same virtues as the fasting on the days of 'Aashoorah and the 'Arfah. There is one or two weak narratives about this but none is proved by authentic evidences.

Hazrat Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ, the Great stopped this Bid'ah

Some persons started fasting on the 27th of Rajab during the Caliphate of Hazrat 'Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ. When he came to know that some persons take special care to fast on the 27th of Rajab, he went out to stop this Bid'at, as he could not tolerate the slightest deviation from the true path of the Faith. He approached everyone suspected of fasting and asked him to eat something before him to ensure that the man was not fasting. He did this to impress upon the people that the fasting on that day had no special virtue and was a Bid'ah. Fasting on this day was just like fasting on any other day. He took this care and trouble to eradicate from among the people the practice of Bid'ah, so that they may not add to or take from Deen anything of their own free will.

What harm is there in keeping night vigil?

Some people ask: What sin did we commit if we kept night vigil to worship and fasted during the day? Did we commit theft, drink wine or commit dacoity? We only devoted ourselves to worship during he night and fasted during the day. What harm is there?

Deen* (Faith) is the name of obedient following (of injunctions)

Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ told the people that Almighty Allah did not prescribe fasting on that date and the real vice lies in self-invented practices. I have explained many times that essence of the Deen (Faith) consists in the obedience to the injunctions of the Shari'ah. Allah demands absolute obedience. Prayer, Fasting etc., are worships only when Allah commands His servants to perform these acts of worship. It is also worship and devotion when Allah commands to shun them. It will be going against Deen if one does something as worship of his own free will which Allah has not prescribed. The essence of Deen is obedient following of Deen. If Allah lets people know this truth, then the practices of Bid'ah shall be uprooted

He is committing Excesses in Deen

Now if anyone gives special importance to fasting on this date he is wilfully committing an excess in the matter of Deen and is thus inventing a fake Deen of his own. To fast on this date from this point of view is not lawful. There is, however, no objection to fasting on this date by a man who fasts as he does usually on other days. It is however, a Bid'ah to fast on the 27th of Rajab under the mistaken impression that it is more virtuous; it is an act of Sunnah (which it is certainly not) and that it is desirable and it carries greater and better reward.

The Reality of the Self-Invented custom of the Koonda

The night of Mi'raj has an importance in being the night on which the Holy Prophet ﷺ performed his celestial journey. A custom made more important and binding in our days is that of the Koonda so much so that if a person does not observe this baseless custom he is looked down upon as though he were not a Muslim. He must observe this custom, notwithstanding that he may be missing his prayers, fasts, and may be committing sins. The person who does not observe this custom or advises others against this is cursed and hated. God knows how this irreligious and disgustful custom sprang up. It is traceable neither in the Qur'an nor in the Traditions, nor among the companions, their immediate and next followers, nor among the Muslim saints and Ulama. Its advocates say that it must be observed even if the obligatory and essential duties of Deen are being ignored. It may be attributed, like many other Bid'at, to the pleasures of eating and drinking and extracting fees from the ignorant public. In observing the custom of the Koonda and such other customs there is show, gaiety, exchange of nicely cooked dishes and merry-making. As these are joyous customs, full of fun, Satan has engaged the people in them and seduced them from other compulsory duties.

This Ummah is lost in Nonsense.

These nonsensical customs and activities have involved the Muslim Ummah in frivolities:

حقیقت روایات میں کھو گئی
یہ امت خرافات میں کھو گئی

The truth is lost in false stories and this (Muslim) Ummah is lost in nonsense and frivolities.

Such useless, rather harmful, practices and activities are regarded to be binding. It is necessary to train and instruct the unwary public in these matters. Most people have fallen victim to such nonsense only owing to their ignorance and not to any hostile tendencies towards religion. They think that just like the occasions of the Eid Festivals, this too may be a festivity allowed in the Qur'an and the Traditions, as so many people observe it. It is necessary, therefore, to teach such persons with love and sympathy the true spirit of religion and by avoiding attendance in such baseless and harmful practices.

SUMMARY

What has been explained above may be summarised by saying that the month of Rajab is an introduction to the holy month of Ramadhan. It is therefore, necessary to keep yourself prepared in advance for this month. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has prayed for His Ummah and drawn attention to the blessings of Ramadhan three months before its advent so that they should be able to amend their usual programme of life, in order to devote to piety and righteousness in this sacred month to the best of their capacity. May Almighty Allah have mercy on us and help us to understand and follow the path of Islam. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد للّٰہ رب العالمین

BE QUICK IN DOING GOOD

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه و نستغفره و نؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له واشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له واشهدان سيدنا وسندنا ونبينا ومولانا محمداً عبده ورسوله....صلى الله تعالىٰ عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيراً كثيراً

اما بعد:

فا عوذ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم. بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

وَسَارِعُوْٓا اِلٰى مَغْفِرَةٍ مِّنْ رَّبِّكُمْ وَجَنَّةٍ عَرْضُهَا السَّمٰوٰتُ وَالْاَرْضُ اُعِدَّتْ لِلْمُتَّقِيْنَ (سورة ال عمران: ١٣٣)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم و صدق رسوله النبى الكريم و نحن

It is a desirable and commendable act to vie with one another in doing good. It is, however bad to vie with one another in worldly matters, viz., earning money, achieving respect, fame, status and position. Do not sit idle, waiting for opportunities, but try to do a good turn as soon as an urge springs in your heart to do that good turn. Do not delay or defer it till tomorrow.

علىٰ ذالك من الشّٰهدين والشكرين والحمد لله رب العالمين

All praise to Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness and we believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the mischief of ourselves and the vices of our deeds. There is none to lead him astray whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God but Allah alone and that He has no partner. I also bear witness that our Master, our Authority, and our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah bestow upon him, his household and his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم, His mercy and blessings in abundance.

Rush to the forgiveness of your Lord and a Paradise as wide as the heavens and the earth. Prepared for the righteous. (3:133)

I believe in Allah. Our Great Master All has spoken the truth and His kind Prophet has also spoken the truth. We testify to this and we are grateful. All praise to Allah, the Lord of the worlds.

Rush towards good deeds.

Allamah Nuwawi رحمۃاللہ علیہ has framed a chapter, the Chapter of rushing towards good deeds. This means that man should reflect upon his reality, Allah's greatness, His Omnipotence and His extensive wisdom, His quality of providing sustenance (to His creation). As a result of such reflection his heart shall incline towards the worship of Almighty Allah. He will then feel disposed spontaneously realise in his heart that he owes something to that Master who has created this entire Universe, granted him blessings and showered on him His mercy. What then should he do when such thoughts arise in his heart?

Allamah Nuwawi رحمۃاللہ علیہ has framed this chapter to furnish an answer to this question whenever an urge arises to worship Allah and to do some good deed, it is the duty of a believer on such occasions to do that good deed without delay. The word Mubadarah means doing something promptly without hesitation and without deferring it to some future time.

Go in for Competition in Doing Good Deeds.

First of all Allamah Nuwawi رحمۃاللہ علیہ has cited this verse of the Holy Qur'an:

Addressing entire humanity Almighty, Allah says in this verse:

وَسَارِعُوْٓا اِلٰى مَغْفِرَةٍ مِّنْ رَّبِّكُمْ وَجَنَّةٍ عَرْضُهَا السَّمٰوٰتُ وَالْاَرْضُ ۙ اُعِدَّتْ لِلْمُتَّقِيْنَ (سورۃ ال عمران: ۱۳۳)

Rush to wards the forgiveness of your Lord and (His) Paradise whose width is equal to the width of the heavens and the earth, rather more which has been prepared for the righteous.

The word Musara'at means to do something as early as possible, and try to go ahead of others in this race. There is another verse:

فَاسْتَبِقُوا الْخَيْرَاتِ ۭ (سورۃ بقرۃ: ۱۴۸)

Go in for a competition in doing good deeds.

When an urge arises in your heart for doing some good turn do not defer it till another time.

Satan's Strategy

It is because Satan uses a separate strategy for every individual among the unbelievers and the believers. Satan will never inspire the heart of a believer that he should not do good deed, cleverly showing that good deed to be "bad deed". He knows very well that a believer cannot be beguiled to consider a good deed to be a bad deed, He whispers to the believer that these are indeed very good deeds but, "Better begin it", he suggests, "from tomorrow". Thus the good deed may be postponed from day to day and ultimately be forgotten altogether. So plausible is Satan's strategy.'

Benefit by Your Precious Lifetime.

Thus does revolve the wheel of time. None knows what is his decreed age. The Qur'an admonishes not to defer things for future time. If an urge arises to do some good deed do it at once, because the next day you may forget the urge or who knows one will live or not live the next day. Even if one lives, the urge may disappear in the rush of so many pressing vicissitudes of life. In case the urge remains, the circumstances favourable for execution may not be there.

The urge to do Good is, as if it were, Allah's guest

The urge to do good may be considered to be a guest sent of Allah that must be welcomed with honour. The honour lies in prompt execution of the urge. If the urge is to offer some optional prayer and you ignore it by arguing that it is neither obligatory nor essential, then you dishonour the divine guest that Allah had sent to reform you. If you show this cold attitude to the guest, it may never visit you again. Although the golden rule is to attend to all business with promptitude yet if an urge arises in you for some particular good deed it is highly appreciable to put that urge into practice quickly.

Do Not Wait For an Opportunity to Arrive

An urge arises in the heart of anyone for self-improvement before the expiry of life which is passing so fast, yet he thinks that he shall execute this urge after completing this task and that task. The precious moments of life thus lost in this dilly-dallying will never come back.

The Best Trick of Working

My respected father Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi' رحمة الله عليه used to say that a work which is deferred till the arrival of a suitable opportunity gets deferred for ever never to be undertaken again. According to him if two items are in hand and a third item suddenly arises, then insert this third item also between the two items under process and this third item will also get completed together with the other two. On the other hand if you decide to take up the third item after completing the earlier two items, the third item will remain undone. The habit of chalking out programmes to do one thing now and another one afterwards is a way of postponing things never to be done. This is satan's way of seduction.

It is not undesirable to compete with one another in good Deeds

The advice to hasten doing good deeds is based on the Qur'an and the Sunnah. That is why Allamah Nuwawi has framed a separate chapter for this topic: The chapter of rushing towards doing good deeds. On this occasion

Allamah Nuwawi رحمة الله عليه has used two words "Mubadarat" meaning rushing / hastening and "Musabaqat" meaning competing, racing or trying to get ahead of another person. This competition is desirable and commendable in the matter of good deeds, but it is condemnable and undesirable in worldly matters such as in acquiring worldly gains, status etc. The Qur'an itself has commanded:

فَاسْتَبِقُوا الْخَيْرَاتِ ط (سورة بقرة: ١٤٨) vie with one another in the matter of doing good deeds.

Therefore, try to excel a man whom you find engaged in worship, devotion, avoiding sins etc.

Competition is not lawful in worldly matters.

To day, we are on just the opposite track. Our entire existence has been devoted to competition in earning more and more money, constructing a more magnificent building, purchasing a better car and collecting costlier luxuries of life than such and such fellow. In this mad competition, the thought to make distinction between lawful (حلال) and unlawful (حرام) has disappeared. It is, however, a fact that it is impossible to win this competition with lawful money, so the competitors are taking resort to use ill gotten money. Forgetting the difference between lawful and unlawful money, all are vying with one another in undesirable activities and earning worldly gains and have lagged behind in competing with one another in desirable and worthier objects of life. What a pity!

Hazrat 'Umar رضی الله عنه competes with Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی الله عنه on the occasion of the Tabook expedition

Just look at the deeds of the sacred companions رضی الله عنهم on the occasion of the Tabook military expedition. It was a very hard expedition, perhaps the hardest of all other expeditions. The season was extremely hot, as if the land was emitting fire. A tortuous desert journey of about 1200 Kilometers lay before them; the date crop was about to mature and ripen on which depended their livelihood for the entire year. Every Muslim was being called upon to take part in the battle of Tabook at a time when there was a great shortage of conveyance and monetary resources. Standing in his mosque the Holy Prophet ﷺ declared that conveyance, camels and money were badly needed to finance the impending battle. The Muslims were asked to contribute to this campaign to the best of their capacities. He guaranteed paradise for the donors and every Muslim readily responded to the call. How could they remain behind in such a critical occasion? Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی الله عنه divided all the resources of his house in two parts. Reserving one part to meet the needs of his household he called upon the Holy Prophet ﷺ along with the other half. He thought that he might perhaps surpass Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی الله عنه on that occasion. This is an example of the term.

مسابقة الى الخيرات

(the burning desire to compete with someone in doing good).

He never entertained the desire to surpass Hazrat Usman Ghani رضی الله عنه or Hazrat Abdur Rahman bin 'Auf رضی الله عنه in their worldly wealth and resources. Instead the desire did arise to outdo Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی الله عنه on this critical occasion.

Soon after, Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی اللہ عنہ also came to the Holy Prophet ﷺ and placed before him whatever he had with him. The following dialogue took place between the Holy Prophet ﷺ and the two companions رضی اللہ عنہم:

Holy Prophet ﷺ :

O Umar رضی اللہ عنہ! What have you left behind?

Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ:

O Prophet ﷺ of Allah! I have left behind one half of my possessions for my family and I have brought the other half for the Holy War.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ then prayed for Umar رضی اللہ عنہ calling upon Allah to bless him in his possessions.

Then he ﷺ turned to Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی اللہ عنہ:

Holy Prophet ﷺ:

What have you left behind in your house?

Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی اللہ عنہ:

O Prophet ﷺ of Allah! I have left behind in the house the names of Allah and His Messenger and I have brought here everything that was available in the house.

Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ the great said that on that day he came to know that he could never surpass Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ even if he strived to do so the whole of his life. (Abu Daud, the Book of Zakat. Hadith no 1678).

An exemplary Bargain.

Once Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ requested Hazrat Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ to settle with him a bargain for which he would feel highly obliged. Hazrat Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ inquired as to what that bargain was. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ said in reply: Kindly take from me all the good deeds I have done in my life in exchange for the virtue of that sacred night which you passed with the Holy Prophet ﷺ in the cave of Saur, as the virtue of that night is heavier than all the good deeds of my life.

In short, if we consider carefully the lives of the Holy Companions رضی اللہ عنہم we shall never find in anyone of them a desire to compete with his fellow companions رضی اللہ عنہم in the matter of worldly possessions, viz., money, house, means of conveyance, etc. However, we do find among them competition in doing good deeds and making their lives righteous. As regards our own behaviour to day, it is just the opposite. We are busy whole day in competing among ourselves in the matter of worldly wealth and resources, but we never think of surpassing one another in righteous deeds.

An Infallible Prescription For Us.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has given us a wonderful piece of advice which is an infallible prescription for us: He has advised the Ummah, saying; In the matter of worldly resources always look at those who are at a lower level than you. Keep their company and have an eye on their conditions of life. In matters relating to religion, keep the company of those who are superior to you, and at a higher level than you. This is because when you see people inferior to you in worldly resources, you will value the good things with which Allah has favoured you, which others do not possess. This will create in you a sense of contentment and gratitude, and the love of acquiring worldly goods will be uprooted. On the other hand, when in matters concerning religion you cast your eyes on those who are superior to you and have gone ahead of you, you will realise your inferiority and think of getting rid of it by trying to catching up with your superiors. (Tirmidhi Shareef, Book on Qiyamah, ch. 58, Hadith No: 2512)

How did Hazrat Abdullah Bin Mubarak رحمةالله عليه receive comfort and contentment?

Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubrarak رحمةالله عليه is a renowned Muhaddis, Faqih as well as a sufi who has given the following account of his life:

"I spent the early part of my life with the wealthy people (he was himself wealthy). I passed my days from morning till evening with the rich, but as long as I lived with the wealthy, I did not find a more gloomy person than myself. Wherever I happened to go I saw that these wealthy men possessed better houses, better means of conveyance and better garments than my own. This produced in my heart jealousy against these favoured men. Later on, I adopted the company of men in poorer classes. As a result, I found comfort and peace of mind, because I saw that I was more well-off than these men. My food, my garment my house, my conveyance, in fact everything I possessed was better than theirs. Praise be to Allah that this change of company brought me peace, comfort and contentment."

Contentment would never have been attained, but for this (advice)

This is a blessing of acting upon the advice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Anyone may experience this formula for himself. It is impossible to attain contentment in this world as long as a man has an eye on those who are placed in a better position than he.

He will always be obsessed by the thought of an inferiority complex and jealousy as mentioned by the Holy Prophet ﷺ :

لو كان لابن ادم واديامن ذهب احب ان يكون له واديان (صحيح بخارى، كتاب الرقاق، باب مايقى من فتنة المال، حديث نمبر ٦٤٣٩)

(Sahih Bukhari, Hadith No: 6439)

If man gets a valley of gold, he will like to have two valleys. If he gets this, he will desire to have three and so on. In this greed he will spend his entire life without attaining contentment.

Peace and Prosperity cannot be purchased with money

What a nice point my respected father Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi' رحمةالله عليه used to mention which needs to be carefully remembered. "Peace and Prosperity", said he, "are one thing and the means of peace and prosperity another. The means of peace and prosperity cannot necessarily procure real peace and prosperity which are a gift of Allah. Can large amounts of hoarded money be eaten to satisfy hunger, be put on like a garment to remove nakedness, or can be worn to protect the body from heat; or can you purchase peace and prosperity, even by collecting around you all the means needed. Note carefully that the presence of all these means cannot guarantee the attainment of peace and prosperity. A rich man possesses all these means; He has an air-conditioned room, furnished with ultra-modern furniture and appliances; there are many servants to attend on him but he cannot sleep without taking sleeping pills. Did the means of comfort bring comfort? As against this, there is a man who lives under a roof of iron sheets and lies down on the floor with one of his arms under his head. Yet he falls into deep sleep and gets up in the morning having enjoyed about an eight hours' peaceful sleep. Now decide for yourself: Did this poor labourer get peace and prosperity or the millionaire in possession of untold means of peace and comfort?

Note carefully that if you become obsessed with the idea of acquiring the worldly means of comfort and of surpassing others in this race, you may be able to collect all these means, yet with all these you cannot necessarily attain peace, comfort and contentment.

What is the use of that wealth on account of which the children cannot see their father's face?

In my father's time there was a very big mill-owner who owned mills not only in Pakistan but also in various foreign countries. One day my father asked him incidentally: How many children have you? He replied: One son is in Singapore, another son is in another country, in short, all are carrying on business in foreign countries. My father said: You might be meeting your children from time to time on their visits? He told my father that he could not see one of his sons for fifteen years. Look here! Father and son have not seen each other's face for fifteen years! What is the good of such wealth which stands in the way of father and son to see each other for such long periods? All this hustle and bustle is for acquiring means of peace and comfort but peace and comfort are missing. Remember, peace and comfort cannot be purchased with money.

Everything cannot be purchased with money

It is not very long that a man was proceeding for Umrah in Ramadhan, and a very wealthy man was also going for Ummrah at the same time. The first man advised the second wealthy man to make advance arrangements for lodging and fooding and other necessaries, so that 'you may not have to face difficulties.' The latter, being proud of his wealth, replied; Never mind. I have enough money by the grace of Allah. All kinds of comforts and necessaries including fooding and lodging can be purchased with money. I am in a position to spend 20

Riyals where only 10 Riyals would suffice. After ten days the same wealthy man was seen sitting at the gate of the sacred Haram with his head down cast. On being asked he said: I got up at sihr time but there was no food available in the hotel and I had to go without it. Just note that Almighty Allah taught this wealthy man that with money in his pocket he had to fast without taking the sihr-food.

The way to get peace and contentment.

This money, these means and luxuries of life and these riches which you are collecting are not, in themselves, a source of ease and comfort. Comforts cannot be purchased with money which are only a divine gift, you can never attain peace, unless you believe that you are getting along with your life with whatever Allah grants you with lawful means. How many men there are who possess unlimited monetary resources but they are not able to enjoy a moment's peace. They have no rest, no sleep and no hunger. This is all due to the race for worldly gains. That is why the Messenger of Allah ﷺ has very kindly advised not to look at a man placed in a better and higher position than you. Look at one who is at a lower level than you to realise how much more Allah has given you than this man. Such thinking will bring you tranquillity and contentment. As for the faith, you have been advised to look at one who is at a higher level than you. This will urge you to surpass him in righteousness. The anxiety to earn worldly benefits is pinching and painful, as it disturbs sleep and kills hunger. On the other hand, the anxiety for the faith is very comforting and soothing. A man who is fortunate enough to be inflicted with this anxiety will pass his entire life in peace, comfort and contentment. But the condition of these hankering after the gains of the world is just the opposite. In their case the wheel of existence is revolving in the other direction.

May Allah reform our thinking and feelings and set our hearts right and help us to walk on the path which His Messenger ﷺ has shown us. Consider the following Ahadith on this topic:

The age of trials is about to overtake us

This first Hadith has been narrated from Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ

ان رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم قال:

بادروا بالا عمال الصالحة فتكون فتن كقطع الليل المظلم

يصبح الرجل مومنا ويمسى كافراً ويمسى مومنا ويصبح كافراً

بيع دينه بعرض من الدنيا (صحيح مسلم، كتاب الايمان باب الحث على البادرة بالا عمال قبل تظاهر الفتن، حديث نمبر ١٨٦)

(Sahih Muslim-Hadith no: 186)

This means that the people should be prompt in doing good deeds. They should value the time at their disposal. This is because horrible ordeals are about to crop up - ordeals like sections of a dark night. When the dark night sets in and a part of it has passed the remaining part is also a part of the same night in which the darkness deepens until the third part is still darker. In such a situation if a man thinks that it is the Maghrib time which is not so dark and he will do his work when there is more light with the advance of the night, that man is a fool, because the darkness will increase with the advance of the night.

That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has advised that the time to come is still darker. Every ordeal shall be followed by an ordeal more severe than the previous one. It is like the parts of the pitch dark night. The Holy Prophet ﷺ further said that the ordeal would be so devastating that a believer in the morning would turn an unbeliever in the evening and vice versa. Thus, the faith will be changing in short intervals. This will happen because a man will become fascinated so much by the worldly gains that he will sell his faith for small amounts of money. For changing his faith he will be offered charming returns in kind and money. Since he was used to postpone his work and avoid serious thought about his ultimate gains he will readily succumb to the temptation of this immediate gains and accept in exchange for his faith and the ultimate loss in the Hereafter. May Allah protect us all from the vices of such times.

To think that one is still in the prime of youth is Satan's deception

If you want to do some good deeds like a Muslim, what are you waiting for? Do whatever you want to do promptly. We should all look into our conduct to see if we are acting upon the injunctions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. We are in the habit of deferring work by deceiving ourselves that life is long and there is ample time to work for the Hereafter. The Holy Prophet ﷺ, being wise and well aware of the secrets and trends of our nature and Satan's seduction, has exhorted us to do good deeds without losing time and putting off things till tomorrow, because we do not know what ordeals the future has in store for us and where it shall lead us. May Allah protect us all. Aameen

Seduce and cajole your souls to work.

My Pir (spiritual guide) Dr. Abdul Hai رحمہ اللہ علیہ used to advise us to cajole and seduce our souls to work.

Relating his own story, he told us that he was regular in his Tahajjud (mid night) prayers. During his old age and weakness one night when he got up at the Tahajjud time, he felt weak and depressed. He thought that the Tahajjud prayer was neither obligatory nor compulsory, there was no harm in missing it one night. Yet as the Tahajjud time is very auspicious and blessed in which Almighty Allah has promised to accept calls of those who call Him at this time, Doctor Sahib decided to make his supplications (Du'a). When he got up and was going to start his Du'a he felt inclined to purify himself and perform the ablution. After doing all this he returned to his bed and started his Du'a but at the same time he seduced his soul to go to the place fixed for Du'a. Thus he beguiled his soul some how to go to the prayer carpet and then he formed the Niyat (intention) to offer two Rak'ats of the Tahajjud prayer.

Then doctor Sahib explained that our Self has some times to be beguiled to action. Just as your soul tries to divert you from good deeds, you should also try to seduce it to good deeds by clever tricks and cajoles. It is hoped that in this way Almighty Allah will grant you consistency in doing good deeds.

If you receive a message from the head of the state !

Doctor Sahib once said that it was his regular programme to spend two hours after the Fajr prayer in reciting the Qur'an, remembrance, counting over the rosary (Tasbeeh) etc. One day he felt inclined to miss this programme on account of weakness and dejection. On this occasion he asked himself this question: Suppose the Head of the state invites you to receive a prize; will you turn down his invitation because of this weakness and dejection? His 'Self' replied: No, the weakness will vanish at once and you will hasten to the Head of state to receive the prize. Thereafter, addressing himself he said: This too is the time to be present before Almighty Allah and to receive a prize from Him. Thus arguing I forgot weakness and laziness and busied myself with my daily usual programmes. Satan and this human 'self' are busy in beguiling man. You should also try to beguile them and take care to act upon your set programme of good deeds.

The genuine claimant to Paradise.

The third Hadith has been narrated by Hazrat Jabir عليه السلام. He says: It is the battle of Uhud between the Muslims and the unbelievers. The Holy Prophet ﷺ is the commander of the Muslims. The unbelievers are larger in number, better equipped and armed than the Muslims. The battle is very furious in all respects. At such a critical time, a Bedouin was eating dates. He asked the Holy Prophet ﷺ about the fate of him if killed in the battle. He replied that the fate of the martyr would be direct entry into Paradise. Hazrat Jabir عليه السلام relates that when the man heard the glad tidings he threw away the dates and plunged himself into the war and fought until he attained martyrdom. He did not like to waste a single minute in earning this honour by completing his meal of the dates. He got admission into Paradise, by the Grace of Allah, by seizing the opportunity when it arrived, without giving way to any hesitation or slackness.

Reaction of the Holy Prophet ﷺ on hearing the Prayer-call (Azan)

Once a Companion رضى الله عنه put this question to Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضى الله عنها the mother of the believers: O mother of the believers! We see what the Holy Prophet ﷺ does and we hear what he says when he is outdoor among us, but kindly tell us what he does indoors among his family. (The companion might have thought that the Prophet ﷺ of Allah might be offering prayers and be busy with remembrance of Allah, etc.) In reply to this question Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا said: while in the house with us, he helps us in the household affairs and listens to our problems, and intimately mixes with us in a jolly and pleasant mood. However, when, he hears the prayer-call, he atonce leaves us as if he does not know us:

In the fourth Hadith Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated:

جاء رجل الى النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم فقال:
يا رسول الله! اى الصدقه اعظم اجرا؟ قال: ان تصدق وانت
صحيح "شحيح" تخشى الفقر وتأ مل الغنى ولا تمهل حتى اذا
بلغت الحلقوم قلت: لفلان كذا ولفلان كذا وقد كان لفلان

(صحيح بخارى، كتاب الوصايا، باب الصدقة عندالموت)

The Best Charity

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ says: A man called upon the Holy Prophet ﷺ and asked: Which item of charity is the best in reward? He said: That charity is the best which you give when you are in good health and at a time when there is love in your heart for wealth, you are afraid of poverty and are thinking about becoming rich and that wealth is not something to be squandered in this way, you are also feeling pain in spending money and that after giving money in charity you may become poor and face uncertain situations later on. The money spent in such a situation will be of great value and reward. Thereafter he said that if an urge arises for charity, it should be fulfilled at once.

There is a religious ruling (Injunction) that if a man draws up a will during his illness regarding the distribution of his wealth and dies in that illness, his Will, will be valid only to the one-third of the amount willed, the rest two-thirds will be shared by the legal heirs. It should be noted that the rights of the heirs become due for execution before death during the illness.

If a man plans that he will invest towards, the end of his life his money in some charitable work of perennial reward and recompense, he should know that such charity is charity under compulsion. Charity carrying perennial reward is that which is given during the period of good health when the giver himself needs the money, has love for it and is trying to save it for his own needs.

A Will is valid only up to one-third of the property left.

It should be noted that some people desire to make a Will to finance some charitable work for permanent reward, so that the investor may continue to receive its reward even after his death. If a person makes a Will in his lifetime, while he is hale and hearty, that so much amount should be given to this or that needy person or invested in such and such charitable work after his death, this Will shall be valid only up to one-third of his legacy and not more than that. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has kindly advised that a muslim should give money in charity as soon as the urge for charity arises in his heart.

Set aside a portion of your income for charity.

I have already mentioned a tried method of doing this. If it is followed, man is enabled to practise charity, or else we have become used to postponing charitable work. Decide to set aside a convenient portion of your periodical income to be spent on charity in the name of Allah. When the income accrues to you, deduct and keep aside that portion in a separate envelope from period to period. That envelope will remind you to spend in charity the amount thus saved. Spend the amount on some right cause. This attracts blessings for this work otherwise man is always hesitating whether to spend it or not on charity. The presence of the envelope with the savings in it will be a reminder and man will not fall victim to hesitation and neglect.

Almighty Allah does not mind the number (or the quantity)

Remember that Allah attaches importance to the emotion and sincerity of a good deed and does not mind the number or the quantity of the thing spent on charity. A man with an income of one hundred Rupees spends one rupee and another man with an income of one lakh (1,00,000/=) spends one thousand Rupees on charity in the way of Allah. Both are equal and maybe the giver of Re 1/= may surpass the giver of Rs 1000/= because of his sincerity. So, do not mind the number or the quantity, but only mind the intention for earning excellence in the sight of Allah and His pleasure. So you must spend some portion of your income in the way of Allah.

My respected late father's routine practice

My respected late father, Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi' Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to set aside in a separate envelope for charitable purposes 20 p.c. of the income which he earned by his work and 10 p.c. of the income which accrued to as gifts and grants, etc. He followed this practice throughout his lifetime meticulously and with extreme care and regularity, even though some times this caused him inconvenience in obtaining small change, etc. I never saw the envelope empty during the whole of my life. The envelope itself used to remind the owner to spend the savings in the way of Allah. As a result of such schemes, Almighty Allah promotes charity.

Everyone should give alms according to his capacity

Once a gentleman complained that he had nothing to spend in charity. I asked him if he had one rupee he could easily set aside from it, one paisa. The ratio between this one paisa and one rupee is the same as the ratio between one thousand paisa and one lakh rupees. So do not look at the amount, but work to fulfil the urge for charity as soon as it arises.

This is an infallible prescription for self-reform. Just save yourself from the tactics of deferring action indefinitely. If you act upon this advice, Almighty shall open before you, through its blessings, wide roads for spending money on charitable works.

May Allah help us all to follow valuable advice.

What are you waiting for?

عن ابی هریرة رضی الله تعالیٰ عنه ان رسول الله صلی الله علیه وسلم قال: بادروا بالا عمال سبعا هل تنتظرون الا فقرا منسیا او غنی مطغیا او مرضا مفسدا او غرما مفندا، اوموتا مجهزا او الد جال فشر غائب ینتظر او الساعة، فالساعة ادهی وامر اوکما قال صلی الله علیه وسلم

This has been narrated from Hazrat Abu Hurairah

رضی اللہ عنہ It deals with the subject of hastening towards doing good, He has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said:

بادرو ابالا عمال سبعا

Make haste to do good deeds before the arrival of seven things, as after their arrival the opportunity to do good will not be available. Thereafter he mentioned these things one by one.

Are you waiting for poverty:

هَلْ تَنْظُرُوْنَ اِلَّا فَقْراً مُّنْسِيًّا

Are you waiting for doing good such poverty as will make you forget things? Presently you are well-to-do, have money and are not short in the means of sustenance and are leading a comfortable and easy life yet in such favourable circumstances you are deferring the doing of good deeds. Are you waiting for a time when the time of your wealth, prosperity and contentment changes into that of adversity as a result of which you will forget other matters.? Do you hope to do good in the period of your hardship? If you are under the wrong impression that presently you should enjoy life and you will do good deeds at some later time, then mind carefully the Prophet's admonition. He has said that during the period of financial difficulties the possibility of doing good becomes remote. That is a time when man forgets doing even very important acts. You should try to do good during the period of your prosperity, before you are face to face with financial difficulty and poverty. He further said:

Are you waiting for affluence?

اَوْ غِنًى مُطْغِيًا

Are you waiting for such affluence as makes man rebellious? In other words, if you are under the misconception that presently your resources are not up to the mark and you should, therefore, wait till they increase, when you can do good deeds to your satisfaction. But remember that if you become richer and richer and are surrounded by wealth on all sides, it is likely that this abundance of prosperity may make you rebellious and disobedient because a carefree and luxurious life generally makes man oblivious of Allah and His commands. So if you want to do anything good do it just now.

Are you waiting for illness?

اَوْمَرَضًا مُفْسِدًا

Are you waiting for some illness to befall you that may damage your health. Presently you are enjoying good health with strength and vitality and it is easy for you to do good deeds if you so desire. Are you then deferring the doing of good deeds till your health is lost - God forbid and various ailments assail you. When you are not able to do good deeds in good health, how can you do this during helplessness and disability? so do what you feel inclined to do before ailment falls on you.

Are you waiting for old age?

اَوْ غَرَمًا مُفَنِّدًا

Are you waiting for disabling old age under the proud impression that presently you are in the prime of your youth, rather too young and inexperienced to think of serious work. You feel that you should pass these early days of your life, in comfort and enjoyment, and defer doing serious work to some later stage of life. The Holy Prophet ﷺ asks: Are you waiting for old age? In this age sometime man becomes mentally and physically decrepit and even if he desires to do some good turn he is unable to do that. In this age man has neither teeth, nor intestine in his stomach. If he shuns sins that is no credit when he has no capacity to commit sins. So one should try to do good before reaching this abject old age. It is a prophetic quality in a man to shun sin and take to righteousness when he is young and energetic and has the natural urge to commit sins. The persian saint poet Shaikh S'adi has said in a couplet:

در جوانی توبه کردن شیوهٔ پیغمبری است
وقت پیری گرگ ظالم میشود پرهیز گار

A ferocious and cruel wolf becomes pious and harmless. The turning away from sin in youth is a Prophetic way.

The cruel wolf has not become pious because of some moral urge in him or fear of God, he has become too weak and helpless to harm anyone. As pointed out above to keep away from sins during youth is the way and character of the Prophets.

Take the example of Hazrat Yousuf عليه السلام. He is in the prime of youth, in full health and strength and enjoying all means and resources of life. He is being invited to sin but he utters these words:

مَعَاذَ اللهِ اِنَّهٗ رَبِّیْٓ اَحْسَنَ مَثْوَایَ (سورۃ یوسف: ۲۳)

I seek refuge with Allah, He is my Lord, He has treated me honourably. (12:23)

This indeed, is the way of the Prophets that man should turn away from sins and do good deeds during his youth. Man becomes helpless in his old age and can do nothing and can commit no sins. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ asks : Do you think that you will do good and start praying and remembering Allah during your old age? When the Hajj falls due people defer it till the advanced age, but they do not know how long they shall live, what is the interval of respite and whether they are going to reach the old age at all, and whether the conditions at that time are favourable or not. Please whatever you want to do, do it at once.

Are you waiting for death?

او موتا مجھزا

Are you waiting for that death which will overtake you all of a sudden? At the moment you are deferring good deeds in the hope that you can do them in the future. Do you not know that sometimes death gives ultimatum and warning about its arrival and often it arrives without any ultimatum or fore-warning. Specially nowadays fatal accidents have become very common and frequent. No one knows what is going to happen the next moment. However, Allah generally gives advance notice.

A dialogue with the Angel of death

There is a story, real or fictitious but full of moral, current among the people that once a man met the Angel of Death, Hazrat 'Izrael عليه السلام and addressed him thus: You follow a strange way that you call on persons suddenly and without any prior notice. The procedure followed in the world is that before punishing a criminal, first a notice is served on him that such and such action will be taken against him at such and such time. So he should be prepared for that. The Angel replied: I do issue notices in as large numbers as none else can issue in the world but none cares about these notices. What can I do? Do you not know that attacks on men with fever, headaches their affliction with old age white hair and birth of grand sons and daughters are all forms of notices from my side. I have thus been issuing notices continuously but the people do not notice them. All these ailments are notices and warnings from Almighty Allah calling attention that the time of death is coming soon. Allah says in the Qur'an:

اَوَلَمْ نُعَمِّرْكُمْ مَايَتَذَكَّرُفِيْهِ مَنْ تَذَكَّرَ وَجَاءَكُمُ النَّذِيْرُ

This means:

I shall ask you in the Hereafter: Did I not grant you a lifetime long enough in which a man could take advice if he wanted to do so? And the warner also had come to you.

Who was this warner? Some interpreters have said that the warner is the Holy Prophet ﷺ because it is he who warned that after death people will have to appear before Almighty Allah. Some interpreters have said that a warner means the white hair of the head or the beard to remind men of approaching death. Still some others said that it is the grand son who reminds the grand-father of imminent death. An Arab poet has expressed the same idea in a couplets:

اذا الرجال ولدت اولادها
وبليت من كبر اجسادها
وجعلت اسقامها تعتادها
تلك زروع قدنا حصادها

When the sons of men bear their sons and their bodies become old because of old age and diseases afflict them one after another, it should be understood that these are crops the time of whose harvesting has arrived. Anyway, these are notices issued from time to time from

Almighty Allah. It is Allah's practice to send these notices, yet sometimes death overtakes men all of a sudden without prior notice. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has asked: Are you waiting for death that may overtake suddenly without any notice. None knows how many moments are left in one's life. Why are they waiting for the last moment? Then He said:

Are you waiting for the Dajjal (Antichrist)?

اَوِالدَّجَّال

Are you waiting for the Dajjal and are you thinking that the time is not yet ripe for doing good deeds? Will the Dajjal's time be ripe for good deeds? Will you be able to do good during those tumultuous days? God knows what will happen at that time; what urges and motives for misconduct and straying may crop up at that time. Are you waiting for such a time (فَشَرُّ غَائِبٍ يُنتظَرُ) (Dajjal is the worst of all hidden objects to be awaited). Do whatever good you can do before his appearance. He said last of all:

Are you waiting for the Doomsday ?

اَوِ السَّاعَةَ، فَالسَّاعَةُ اَدْهٰى وَاَمَرُّ

If you are waiting for the Doomsday, then the Doomsday will be so calamitous that man will have no escape from that calamity. Then do good before it arrives.

The gist of the entire Hadith is that you should not defer any act for the morrow. Instead. When you feel an urge for and an interest in doing a good turn do it immediately without any hesitation.s

May Almighty Allah help us all to follow this advice.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

To day the practice of "Recommendation" has become a curse. No work can be completed today without unlawful Recommendation. It is because the people have forgotten the injunctions and demands of the Shari'ah. If Recommendation is made with due regard to these injunctions, it will be lawful and not otherwise.

RECOMMENDATION IN ISLAM

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه و نستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه ونعوز بالله من شرورانفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهدان لا اله الاالله وحده لا شريك له ونشهد ان سيدنا و سندنا و نبينا و مولانا محمد اعبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه و على اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا

اما بعد:

عن ابى موسى الا شعرى رضى الله تعالىٰ عنه قال كان النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم اذا اتى طالب حاجة اقبل على جلساء فقال اشفعوا توجروا (صحيح بخارى كتاب الزكوة باب التحريض على الصدقة والشفاعة فيها حديث نمبر ١٤٣٢)

All praise is to Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness and we believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the mischief of souls and the vices of our deeds. There is none to lead him astray whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God but Allah alone Who has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, our authority, and our Prophet and our master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah bestow upon him, his household and his noble Companions His mercy and blessings and salutations in abundance.(Sahih Bukhari - Hadith No: 1432)

Recommend for a needy Person.

Hazrat Abu Musa Ash'ari رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that when a needy person called upon the Holy Prophet ﷺ and requested him to meet his need, he would turn to the gathering and ask them to recommend the man to him for meeting his need, so that they might receive reward for their recommendation made by them to the Messenger of Allah. He further told them that his decision in the matter would be according to Allah's will, yet those who recommend the needy person to him for help would receive reward from Allah. Thus he asked them to make recommendations.

Recommendation is a source of gain and reward.

The intention of this Hadith is to point out that it is a matter of great gain and reward to recommend a Muslim to another Muslim to get the need of the needy person fulfilled. It is to urge that a Muslim should always remain occupied in doing good to another Muslim and he should do his best in meeting his brother's need. If he finds it useful, he should make recommendation for him to someone. For this act of recommendation he shall receive reward from Allah. Legal and lawful recommendation is a righteous act deserving recompense. It has always been the practice of saintly men to make recommendations for needy persons for the sake of their own reward and not to lay any obligation on the needy person.

The story of a saint who made recommendation for someone.

Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has related in his sermons the story of a saint, A man called upon that saint and complained that he had a problem which was not being settled and it was the concern of such and such person. He told the saint that his recommendation might prove helpful. The saint said to the man that the person concerned was a bitter opponent of the saint and instead of being useful his recommendation might prove harmful. The man insisted upon obtaining the saint's recommendation and argued that the saint's personality and influence were such that even his enemy could not reject his recommendation. Being so pressed, the saint handed over to the needy person a recommendatory letter. On receipt of the letter, the person concerned was agitated with anger and hatred against the saint and threw away the letter with abusive remarks. The needy person came back to the saint and related to him the sad story. The saint then promised the man to pray to God to solve his problem.

After making a recommendation for someone do not put him under an obligation

We come to know from this story that recommendation is a righteous act that carries great recompense, provided the intention is to benefit someone for the sake of reward from Allah and not for the sake of placing obligations upon anyone. A recommendation made with this pious intention is indeed an act of great reward and blessing.

Directions for making Recommendation.

There are, however, some prescribed rules for making recommendations. It has to be decided when recommendation is lawful and when it is unlawful, what does recommendation mean and what results it should yield and how it should be made. It is necessary to understand these rules. Recommendation which is an act of righteousness deserving reward may turn into a sinful act and spread mischief and disturbance in the society on account of the ignorance of these rules.

To make recommendation for a job for an unfit fellow

The first point to note is that recommendation should always he made for a legal and lawful purpose. Recommendation is not lawful in any circumstance for an unlawful act. It is unlawful to make recommendation in favour of a person about whom you are well aware that he is not fit for the job for which he is seeking your recommendation.

Recommendation is a kind of witness

Just as recommendation is a means of meeting someone's need, it is also a witness. When you make recommendation in favour of someone, you are really giving witness that in your opinion the man recommended is fit for the job he is seeking. In witness it is necessary to ensure that it is not against the truth. If you recommend in favour of a person, although he is unfit and undeserving, then such recommendation is unlawful and is calculated to yield punishment instead of reward. If an unfit man is given a job on the strength of your recommendation but, being unfit and unqualified, he causes harm to the public or otherwise commits some mischief. In such a case a part of the punishment for the mischief and the crime will also fall on you, because you are instrumental to the promotion or appointment of an unfit person. Think again that to make recommendations in a false and unlawful matters is not at all lawful.

To recommend an examinee to the examiner

Some times in the past answer-books were given to me for checking and valuating them in the M.A examination in the subject of Islamic studies and I accepted them for doing the needful. No sooner did the people know they began to call on me with a list of Roll numbers recommending them for special concession. What is strange, is that apparently these persons were honest, reliable and of good standing and character.

A strange case of Recommendation

Once it so happened that one day a man, appearing to be highly learned and responsible, called on me with a list of roll numbers. I told him that it was wrong and unlawful on his part to have come with a recommendation and that marks would be awarded according to the dictates of justice and the right of every candidate. In reply he at once recited this verse of the Qur'an:

وَمَنْ يَّشْفَعْ شَفَاعَةً حَسَنَةً يَكُنْ لَّهٗ نَصِيْبٌ مِّنْهَا (سورة النساء: ٨٥)

Satan of a Molvi (religious man) is also a Molvi

My father Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say that the satan of a Molvi is also a Molvi. The satan of an ordinary man seduces his victim in various ways, but the Satan who seduces a Molvi by becoming himself like a Molvi. This learned man justified his conduct by quoting a verse from the Holy Qur'an meaning that he who makes a good recommendation receives a share of the reward. Try to understand well that a recommendation of this type is not at all lawful.

Do not prejudice the mind of the Judge with recommendation

A judge is hearing a case in his court to pass a judgement thereon and evidences are being produced from both the parties. If any one recommends to the Judge to pass his judgment in favour of a particular person, such recommendation is not at all lawful. It is also not lawful to recommend an examinee to the examiner. This is because the recommendation may prejudice the mind of the examiner. The Judge is sitting on the seat of justice to pronounce a just judgement in the case to decide as to which party is right

To make recommendation to the Judge of a court

The Shari'ah has taken great care to impress on a Judge not to hear one party in the absence of the other party. When the hearing is in progress both the parties must be present in the court. The Judge should not allow one party to present his case to him,in privacy, the other party remaining totally in dark about this. If the facts of the case secretly disclosed, to the judge by one party become implanted on the judge's mind he cannot do full justice to the case. When the case has once been filed in the court, all doors to recommendation must be closed.

My reaction to Recommendation

I too receive from time to time a few suits for decision, and persons concerned with these suits see me to request that I should be sympathetic with them. I pay no attention to them and tell them frankly that it is not lawful for me to hear anything from them unless the other party is also present there. I therefore advise them to say, whatever they have to say, in the court in the presence of the other party, so that the other party may challenge if any lie is told against him. On this the person tries to impress upon that he is not saying anything unlawful. I tell him that I do not know whether what he is saying is lawful or unlawful. The other party should also be present to explain his stand and justify his case. Then alone a fair Judgement could be passed. It is not at all lawful to prejudice the Judge in privacy in that way.

It is also not lawful in anyway, on such occasions, to quote the Quranic verse من يشفع شفاعة حسنة يكن له نصيب منها . As the implementation of the Islamic laws has long since been absent from this country, the people have forgotten these problems. That is why recommendations are sometimes received from learned men.

So the whole issue boils to this: Recommendation should be made only in such cases in which it is lawful.

Recommendation in unlawful cases is a sin

Recommendation should be made only in such cases as are lawful in the shara'. To seek recommendation in unlawful cases is not lawful in any circumstances. For example, a friend of yours is working as an officer some where who has power to do something. Taking undue advantage from him you get an unfit person appointed to a post. This is not lawful but it is a forbidden act. That is why while the Holy Qur'an commends lawful recommendation as a source of reward, at the same time, it condemns unlawful recommendation as a sin:

وَمَنْ يَّشْفَعْ شَفَاعَةً سَيِّئَةً يَّكُنْ لَّهٗ كِفْلٌ مِّنْهَا (سورة النساء: ٨٥)

He who makes an unlawful recommendation will have to share the sin involved therein. (4:85)

Recommendation is nothing but a device to call attention.

It is very important and the people know it as a part of their belief that one should not make an unlawful recommendation. Apart from this there is another aspect of the issue which people generally do not think and do not understand the reality of recommendation. In reality it is a way only of calling the attention of the person to whom the recommendation is being made. You are calling his attention to a point and doing something about it, of which, you think he may not be aware. It is not to exercise pressure on him to do the work involved. Everyone has a method and principle to follow according to his own choice and conscience. If you want him to do some thing by bringing pressure on him, that is not recommendation; It is mere coercion. It is not lawful to coerce any Muslim in anything. People generally do not consider this important point.

They procure the recommendation of an influential personality which the person concerned cannot dare ignore. This is exercising pressure through a weighty personality. It is not recommendation at all. It is only a sinful act.

This is exercising Pressure

Once a man came to me to make a recommendation and wanted first of all to be assured that I would not reject his recommendation. In this way he wanted to bind me that I should not turn down his recommendation. I asked him to tell me the job he wanted me to do for him, to see if it was lawful or unlawful and if it was within my power to do that. Again, this is not recommendation; this is mere coercion which is not lawful.

The directions of Maulana Ashraf Ali Sahib رحمة الله عليه about Recommendation

May Almighty Allah have mercy on him that he was granted right understanding of Religion and he explained very terse and baffling religious issues and issued warnings from time to time in his speeches. He has warned that recommendation should not be made so as to pressurise the person whose help is sought. Such recommendation is not lawful. The intention by recommendation is to draw someone's attention to someone's need, saying that the person is deserving and it would be a good deed to help him and not that this and that must be done whether it is lawful or unlawful, otherwise I shall feel offended. This is no recommendation. This is mere coercion.

It is not right to appeal for donations in a gathering

Maulana Ashraf Ali Sahib رحمة الله عليه has expressed the same opinion about collecting donations. In such a situation a man who does not feel inclined to contribute anything offers something only to save his face in the gathering, in imitation of others. As he did not donate the money by a spontaneous urge it was not lawful. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said:

لایحل مال امراء مسلم الا بطیب نفس منه

That is, the money of no Muslim is lawful unless he gives it of his own sweet will.

(Majmauz-zawaid p. 172, vol. 4)

If anyone has, by the word of mouth, permitted anyone to take his money but did not part with it whole - heartedly, the money is not lawful. To raise money in this way is, therefore, strictly forbidden.

The manager of a Madrassah collecting donations himself

Maulana Ashraf Ali Sahib رحمةالله علیه has said that some times the seeker of donation takes with him some great maulana (learned theologian) or the Manager of a Madrassah for the collection of donations. This exercise will pressurise the public and the man approached will feel compelled by the personality of the Maulana to offer something willingly or unwillingly. Such donation is unlawful.

What should be the wordings of the recommendation?

It should be well borne in mind that the style of seeking recommendation should not be coercive. That is why, Maulana Ashraf Ali Sahib رحمةالله علیه would write these words: I think that this man is fit for the job. Kindly do the needful for him, if this lies within your power and if it also suits your principles and expediency. My own respected father رحمةالله علیه used to make recommendations in these very words.

I too, had to make recommendations in writing three or four times. I wrote the same sentences of recommendation as I had heard from my respected father or read in the sermons of Maulana Ashraf Ali Sahib رحمةالله علیه, viz, : Kindly help this man in his need if it is within your power and if it also suits your principles and expediency. The recommendation written in these words displeased the person for whom the recommendation was made because of the conditions stipulated therein, instead of giving direct advice to do the needful.

The Recommendation should include the interests of both parties

On one hand the recommendation should not cross the lawful limits and on the other hand it should also not exercise undue pressure on the person addressed, so as not to place him in an awkward situation, whether to ignore the recommendation and displease the person who has made it or to please him by breaking his own principles and doing something against his conscience. A recommendation creating such a situation is against the accepted principles of making a recommendation.

The practice of making recommendation is a curse in the society

The people have forgotten the golden principles and etiquettes of recommendation and thus it has now become a curse. To day even a lawful deed cannot be done without resorting to unlawful recommendation. The people have ignored the rules of the Shari'ah. Recommendation can be lawful only when the prescribed limits are not crossed nor are the rules laid down for it violated.

Recommendation is only a sort of advice

Recommendation is an act of advice and not a way of coercion. Nowadays people do not understand the meaning of advices. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said about advice:

اَلْمُسْتَشَارُ مُؤْتَمَنٌ

(Abu Daud, Hadith no: 5128)

The man who is consulted in some matter is a trustee. According to his honesty and trustworthiness the consultant must render his most considered and honest advice to the seeker of his advices. This is the privilege of giving advice. It is not a binding on the seeker of advice to accept the advice given. He has every right to reject it. This is implied in the meaning of advice. It is just inviting someone's attention to a matter. You have seen in the Hadith cited earlier how he advised that recommendation should be made to him, although he may or may not accept the recommendation and that he would take a decision according to Allah's will. This shows that a recommendation is not condemned, if it is not accepted for implementation. Nowadays a person feels offended if his recommendation is not accepted. This attitude is, however, not right. The intention was that one should participate in helping another person through his recommendation. Whether that intention is actually fulfilled is not a necessary part of recommendation. If the intention is not fulfilled and the seeker of advice does not accept the advice tendered, it should not be a cause of displeasure, as recommendation is only an advice and both situations are possible in an advice.

The events concerning Hazrat Burairah رضی اللہ عنہ and Hazrat Mughis رضی اللہ عنہ

Let us now see how the Holy Prophet ﷺ has explained the reality of advice. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned in full details even the minutest point relating to human life in this world. Now consider who can offer better and more useful and practicable advice about the affairs of this world, rather the vast universe than the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Just take an example. Hazrat Burairah رضی اللہ عنہ was a maid servant of Hazrat 'Ayesha رضی اللہ عنہا. Previously she was with some other person who married her to Hazrat Mughis رضی اللہ عنہ According to the rules of Shari'ah, master can marry his maid servant to anyone without obtaining her permission, as she is her master's property. Thus her master married her to a Hazrat Mughis رضی اللہ عنہ without obtaining her permission. Hazrat Mughis رضی اللہ عنہ was black and had not an attractive personality, whereas Hazrat Burairah رضی اللہ عنہ was an attractive and beautiful lady. Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا purchased her, then set her free.

A slave-girl has the right to cancel her marriage

According to the Shari'ah, if a married slave-girl becomes a free woman, she has the right to continue her matrimonial relation with her husband or sever it, and marry some other man of her choice.

The advice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

When Hazrat Burairah رضی اللہ عنہ became a free woman she was also allowed freedom to maintain or break her marriage with Hazrat Mughis رضی اللہ عنہ. When asked about it, she at once decided against Hazrat Mughis رضی اللہ عنہ and severed the marriage tie with him. On the other hand, this breach of relations proved a great torture to Hazrat Mughis

رضی اللہ عنہ as he was in deep love with his wife. Hazrat ibn ʿAbbas رضی اللہ عنہ has described the pitiable condition of Hazrat Mughis رضی اللہ عنہ roaming about in the streets of Madina with tearful eyes and entreating Hazrat Burairah رضی اللہ عنہ to revise her decision and join with him again. Hazrat Burairah رضی اللہ عنہ however, remained adamant in her denial. Hazrat Mughis رضی اللہ عنہ, then referred the matter to the Holy Prophet ﷺ and begged him for help in this ordeal. The Holy Prophet ﷺ called for Hazrat Burairah رضی اللہ عنہ and said to her:

لو راجعتيه فانه ابوولدك (ابن ماجد كتاب الطلاق، باب خيار الامة اذااعتقت، حديث نمبر ۲۰۸۵)

(Ibn Majah. Hadith no: 2085)

It will be good if you recast your decision, because, he (Mughis) is the father of your child and is in great distress. Hazrat Burairah رضی اللہ عنہ atonce put this question: O Prophet ﷺ of Allah. Is this a suggestion of yours that I should revise my decision, your command or only an advice? If it is your command I am ready to yield to it and re-marry him. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said: انما اشفع I am only making a recommendation. It is not my command. Upon this Hazrat Burairah رضی اللہ عنہ said to the Holy Prophet ﷺ: O Prophet ﷺ of Allah! If this is only an advice from you, then I am free to accept or reject it. As such, I decide that I should not, go to him again. Hazrat Burairah رضی اللہ عنہ , therefore, did not go to him again and remained aloof.

A lady turned down the Prophet's advice

Look here! The Holy Prophet ﷺ is granting an option to a woman who had until recently been a slave woman and attained freedom through the kindness of the Prophet's wife, Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا. Hazrat Burairah رضی اللہ عنہ exercised this option by turning down the Prophet's advice and the latter did not show the slightest displeasure at woman's behaviour. By this incident the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught the Ummah the principle that recommendation or advice is nothing but an act of calling the attention of the man to whom the recommendation is made. It is not an act of applying coercion in any way.

Why did the Holy Prophet ﷺ offer advice?

A question arises as to why the Holy Prophet ﷺ made a recommendation when he knew that Hazrat Burairah رضی اللہ عنہ had herself dissolved the marriage and was not willing to live with her ex-husband.

He made this recommendation for the reason that he knew that Hazrat Mughis رضی اللہ عنہ had no defect in him except his physical appearance and colour. If she had accepted the advice to re-marry him she would have become entitled to great reward, because in that way she would have fulfilled the wish of a servant of Allah. However, when she did not accept the recommendation, the Holy Prophet ﷺ did not express the least displeasure.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ taught the Ummah a lesson

He taught a lesson to the entire Ummah, including those to rise till the day of judgement, that an act of advice should never be misunderstood as an act of coercion or as an act being imposed as a binding duty. As already stated, recommendation is only an advice and a means of inviting attention. The man to whom this recommendation is being made has his full discretion to accept or reject the recommendation.

Why is recommendation a cause of displeasure?

Today recommendation and advice have become a cause of displeasure for us. If anyone's advice or suggestion is not accepted the person offering the advice takes it ill, feels offended and harbours malice on this account. Bear it well in mind that recommendation means nothing of the kind. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has advised that there is reward in making recommendation in favour of someone in a lawful cause and if the recommendation is not accepted, it should never be a cause of unpleasantness and ill-will against the person who does not accept the recommendation. Recommendation will be righteous deed deserving recompense, if it is made taking into account all these considerations.

SUMMARY

The whole issue may be summarised as:

Firstly, recommendation should be made only in such cases in which it is lawful to make recommendation.

Secondly, recommendation should not be made in cases where recommendation is unlawful, e.g. legal suits subjudice in Courts or checking of examination answer books.

Thirdly, recommendation should be in the form of offering an advice and not in the form of coercion.

Fourthly, if the recommendation or the advice is not accepted, it should not give rise to ill-will and malice, nor create corruption and antagonism.

Recommendation free from such defects will, God willing, attract divine mercy and reward.

May Almighty Allah enable us to understand and act upon these principles. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد الله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal
Karachi

Date : Friday, the 28th February 1992
After 'Asr Prayers

THE FASTING:

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه و نستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه و نعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله لا هادى له ونشهدان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهدان سيدنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعلى عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد:

فا عوذ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم، بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

شَهْرُ رَمَضَانَ الَّذِیْٓ اُنْزِلَ فِیْهِ الْقُرْاٰنُ هُدًی لِّلنَّاسِ وَ بَیِّنٰتٍ مِّنَ الْهُدٰی وَالْفُرْقَانِ ۚ فَمَنْ شَهِدَ مِنْكُمُ الشَّهْرَ فَلْیَصُمْهُ ؕ. (سورة بقره: ١٨٥)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم، وصدق رسوله النبى الكريم ونحن على ذالك من الشاهدين والشا كرين والحمد لله رب العالمين

All praise to Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness and we believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the mischief of our souls and the vices of our deeds. There is none to lead him astray whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God but Allah alone and that He has no partner. I also bear witness that our Master, our Authority, and our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah bestow upon him, his household and his Companions His mercy blessings and salutations in great abundance.

The month of Ramadhan in which was revealed the Qur'an, is a guidance for mankind and clear proofs of the guidance and the Criterion (of right and wrong). So whosoever of you finds it should fast during it. (2:185)

A month of Blessings

Only a few days are left for the blessed month of Ramadhn to begin. There is no Muslim who is not aware of the greatness and blessings of this Holy Month. Allah Almighty has evolved this month for His worship. None knows what mercies He sends down to His servants in this month! We can never imagine the volume of these mercies.

There are some deeds to be done in this month which every Muslim knows well and which he does not doubt. For example, he knows that fasting during this month is an obligatory duty and praise be to Allah that the Muslims are enabled to fast in this month. They also know that the Taraweeh prayer is Sunnah and they join this prayer for the sake of its blessings. At this time I want to call attention to another aspect of it.

People generally think that the Holy Month of Ramadhan has been specified for fasting and offering the Taraweeh prayer during its nights, and that is all. There is no denying the fact that these two forms of worships have great importance during this month, but the matter does not end here. The Holy month of Ramadhan, in fact, demands from us more than that. Almighty Allah has said in the Qur'an:

وَمَا خَلَقْتُ الْجِنَّ وَالْإِنْسَ إِلَّا لِيَعْبُدُونِ (سورة الذاريات:٥٦)

And I did not create Jinn and mankind but to worship Me. (Az-Zariyat: 56)

In this verse Almighty Allah has said that the basic object of man's creation is that he should worship Allah.

Were the Angels not sufficient for this duty?

Some people, particularly those of modern outlook, feel that if the object of man's creation was only Allah's worship, then what was the need of creating man, as the angels have already been discharging this duty most efficiently. They are busy ceaselessly in glorifying and sanctifying Allah. That is why when Almighty Allah decided to create Hazrat Adam عليه السلام and informed the Angels of His decision about man's creation, the angels at once reacted to this, saying: Are you going to create man who will commit corruption and shed blood on the earth, while we are busy worshipping, glorifying and sanctifying you. In the same way even today some people are objecting to man's creation, if the only object of his creation is nothing but worship. The angels have already been discharging this duty.

This is no credit of the Angels

The angels are no doubt worshipping Almighty Allah, but their worship is totally of a different type from that which has been entrusted to man. This is because the angels, by their very nature, cannot defy nor abandon their worship, even if they ever try to do so. Allah has deprived them of the ability to commit sins. Neither do they feel hungry nor thirsty nor do they feel any urge for lustfulness. Not even the slightest thought of sin arises in their hearts, not to say anything of their actually committing or desiring to commit sins: That is why, Almighty Allah has not allowed any reward for their worship. So, if the angels are not committing sins this is no credit of theirs. When there is no credit, the reward of paradise, too, cannot be granted to them.

There is no credit of a blind man in protecting his eyes from vicious glances

For example, there is a blind man who has never in his life seen a film nor the Television, nor did he even cast a lustful glance on a strange woman. Now consider, what credit can go to him for refraining from these sins, when being totally blind, he has no power to commit these visual sins. On the other hand, there is another man who has sharp eyesight, yet he saves his eyes from falling on forbidden scenes despite the fact that he has an urge for that, simply for the fear of Allah. Both are refraining from sin, yet there is a world of difference between the two. The blind person has no credit because he is unable to commit sin but the man with sound and sharp eyesight deserves credit because he shuns sin despite being able to commit it.

This type of worship is not within the power of the Angels

It is no credit of the angels if they do not take food from morning to evening, because they do not feel hungry, so no reward can accrue to them for abstaining from food. As for man, he has been born with all these needs. He cannot do without food and drink, even if he attains the highest rank of Prophethood. Thus, the unbelievers raised this objection to the Prophet ﷺ

مَالِ هٰذَا الرَّسُوْلِ يَاْكُلُ الطَّعَامَ وَيَمْشِيْ فِى الْاَسْوَاقِ(سورة الفرقان:٧)

This means: What kind of a messenger is he that he eats food and walks in the markets.

(al-Furqan:7)

The Prophets also, like all other human beings, feel hunger and are required to satisfy this natural feeling. If a man is hungry but does not satisfy his hunger by eating food in response to Allah's command, as he had to do during the month of Ramadhan this is indeed a credit for him. That is why Allah said to the Angels that He was going to create a creature (man) who will feel hungry and thirsty, will have sexual urge and desire to commit sin, yet he will abstain from sins by remembering Allah's Commands. This action on his part of keeping himself away from sin and this devotion and worship will have credit and value in the sight of Allah. Allah has prepared for his reward and compensation a Paradise vast and spacious like the earth and the heavens. This is because this man feels an urge to commit sins and satisfy thereby his lust, yet he suppresses his desire for sins out of fear from Allah and respect for His greatness. As such devotion and righteousness are not possible for the Angels so it became necessary to create man.

The credit of Hazrat Yusuf عليه السلام

There is no Muslim who is not aware of the ordeal which Prophet Yusuf (Joseph) عليه السلام was ordained to face to resist the seduction of Zulekha (Queen of Egypt). According to the Qur'an Zulekha invited Prophet Yusuf عليه السلام to sin and the urge to commit sin arose in the hearts of both. The common people regard it as a short coming of Hazrat Yusuf, عليه السلام yet the Qur'an tells that despite the urge of sin he abstained from sin in submission to Allah's Command and out of fear of Him. There would have been no credit at all in Hazrat Yusuf's act of saving himself from Zulekha's seduction and in abstaining from sin, if he had been devoid of the urge, and capacity, for sin. The real credit lies in that a man resists all temptations and urges for sin in spite of the fact that he has full power and favourable circumstances to commit the sin.

Notwithstanding all these temptations and natural urges Hazrat Yusuf عليه السلام yielded to Allah's Will and said:"معاذ الله" Chapter 12 (Yusuf) verse no: 24 meaning: "I seek Allah's protection.

This indeed is the kind of worship for which Allah created man.

We have made a bargain for our souls

When the aim of man's creation is only worship, this demands that after coming to this world man should do nothing except worship the whole day and he should not be allowed to do anything else. In another place the Holy Qur'an has said:

إِنَّ اللَّهَ اشْتَرَىٰ مِنَ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ أَنفُسَهُمْ وَأَمْوَالَهُم بِأَنَّ لَهُمُ الْجَنَّةَ(سورة التوبه: ١١١)

This means that Almighty Allah has purchased from the believers their souls and their wealth, the price being Paradise in the Hereafter. (9:111)

Thus when our souls have been sold, they are not our property; they have been sold for a price fixed for payment. This being the case of our lives; if Allah had ordered us to do nothing but devote ourselves all day and night in prostration before Him, His remembrance and abstain from earning money, eating and drinking, this order would not have been unjust, because the very aim of creation is worship and worship alone.

One should sacrifice One's life for such a buyer

What a Generous buyer, Allah has purchased our lives and properties for a very generous price that is paradise, yet He is so Generous that instead of taking possession of this purchased property, He has entrusted it to our care and custody with permission to appropriate it to our advantage in the struggle of life with the only condition to pray to Allah five times and to shun certain things and acts. This is an example of great mercy and kindness of Allah.

Revert in this month to the basic objective of life

Anyway, what is the result of making other actions of life lawful? Allah knew full well that the man by engaging himself in worldly affairs negligence would gradually seize him, making his heart oblivious of the basic aim of life. To remedy this negligence and oblivion, Allah has appointed certain periods of the year for devotion and spiritual overhauling, the month of Ramadhan being one of these periods. Having devoted the eleven months of the year to worldly affairs like trade, cultivation, service, etc, the hearts become affected with slackness and forgetfulness with regard to the main object of life viz. Allah's worship. Almighty Allah, therefore, appointed this one month of Ramadhan to work for the Hereafter to gain Paradise through fasting and devotion for which you have been sent to the world. Thus, let man devote himself in this month to the worship of Allah to efface, through repentance the effects of the sins committed during the eleven months of the year, to wash off the impurities and the negligence that may have found access to the hearts. It is for this duty of purification that this month has been appointed.

The meaning of Ramadhan

The correct pronunciation of the fasting month is Ramadhan رمضان with زبر sign on the letter م (meem). The real meaning of the word Ramadhan is 'scorching and burning'. The month was given this name because when the question of finding a suitable name was considered, the time was very hot and the sun was very scorching. The people, therefore, named it Ramadhan.

Get your sins pardoned

The learned theologians say that the name of Ramadhan has been given to this month, because by His mercy and kindness Almighty Allah scorches and burns the sins of His servants for which He has appointed this month: By devoting yourselves to the affairs of the world for the eleven months of the year you have committed some sins and negligence has crept into your hearts. Now is the opportunity to present yourselves before Allah and get your sins pardoned and your hearts cleaned of the layers of lethargy and negligence, to begin a new round of life. The Qur'an says:

يَآ أَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْ كُتِبَ عَلَيْكُمُ الصِّيَامُ كَمَا كُتِبَ عَلَى الَّذِيْنَ مِنْ قَبْلِكُمْ لَعَلَّكُمْ تَتَّقُوْنَ (سورة البقرة:١٨٣)

O You who believe! Fasting has been prescribed for you, as it was prescribed for those before you, that you may become righteous.(al-baqarah:183)

Thus the real objective of the Holy month of Ramadhan is to secure forgiveness of the sins committed during the year and clean the heart of the neglectfulness stuck to it and also to create righteousness in the hearts. When a machine has been operating for sometime it has to be serviced, repaired and cleaned. In the same way Allah has appointed the sacred month of Ramadhan for servicing and overhauling the human machine that is man. In this month man should give a new shape to his life.

Let this month be free from other engagements

Matters do not end simply by fasting and offering the Taraweeh Prayer. The month demands that man should make himself free from other worldly engagements, because they have been busy with these worldly affairs during the eleven months. This is the month to revert to the basic aim of man's creation. It is, therefore, necessary to devote to Allah's worship the whole month or the most possible part of it. For this man should prepare himself in advance and chalk out a programme for it.

The correct way of welcoming Ramadhan

Nowadays a new custom has sprung up in the Islamic world which originated in the Arab countries, particularly Egypt and Syria and spread in other countries including our own homeland of Pakistan. This consists in holding gatherings before the commencement of Ramadhan under the name of "gathering to welcome Ramadhan". In these gatherings the Qur'an is recited and speeches are delivered, letting the audience know that "We are welcoming Ramadhan". This keen interest in welcoming Ramadhan is indeed very nice and commendable, yet when it is exaggerated then after sometime it turns into Bid'ah (innovation). The real way of welcoming Ramadhan is to amend and change one's daily routine so as to be able to devote the major part of one's time to the worship of Allah. This has to be arranged before the start of Ramadhan. If one is not able to devote the whole of one's time to worship in Ramadhan, one should decide which of his activities he can totally give up and defer or reduce to the possible minimum for the sake of this month. This is the right way of welcoming Ramadhan by following which one can secure the true spirit of Ramadhan and its blessings and inner spiritual illuminations; otherwise this Holy month shall come and pass away without any true benefit from it.

A step beyond Fasting and Taraaweeh

When you have freed yourself from other usual engagements for the sake of Ramadhan, then plan as to how you shall utilise this spare time. So far as fasting and Taraaweeh prayers are concerned, the people are well aware of their importance and rituals. There is another aspect to which attention needs be invited.

A man who has the slightest vestiges of belief in his heart, feels the honour and sanctity of Ramadhan. This urges him to devote himself more and more to Allah's worship and to offer more of optional prayers. It is a common experience that those who do not visit the mosques even for the five time prayers during the other months of the year take part in the daily lengthy Taraweeh prayers during Ramadhan. This is nothing but a blessing of this month that people devote themselves to prayer, rehearsals of the sacred names of Allah and the recitation of the Holy Qur'an.

Pass one month in this way

There is, however, one item more important than all these optional prayers, rehearsals and the recitation of the Holy Qur'an, etc., to which attention is generally paid. All of us should avoid committing sins in this month by protecting our eyes, ears, tongues from seeing, hearing, and tasting forbidden things and shunning altogether disobedience to Allah. If you have passed this blessed month sinlessly, you deserve congratulation and this month will prove a blessing for you. We remain involved in sins during the eleven months of the year; let us keep ourselves away from sins in the ensuing month of Allah by avoiding disobedience to Him telling lies, backbiting and casting lustful glances on forbidden sights. So do not misuse your ears during this month, nor take bribe, nor deal in interest. Shun these sins at least during this sacred month.

What kind of Fasting is it?

You are fasting in the month of Ramadhan no doubt with great interest and enthusiasm, but have you understood the meaning of fasting? Fasting means avoiding food, drink and satisfaction of (lawful) sensual desires, even though these three things are lawful during non fasting days and hours. During the fasting hours you are giving up these lawful things and acts, but how is it that one indulges during this month in acts which have been forbidden for all times, e.g., telling lies, backbiting, casting sinful eyes. It is a pity that all these sins are being committed freely during fasting and just to pass the time fasting men are enjoying dirty film shows. What kind of fasting is it that you have given up what is lawful but are indulging in what is unlawful in all circumstances? There is a Hadith of the Prophet ﷺ to this effect: Allah says that He has nothing to do with a fasting person who gives up food and drink but tells lies during fasting. What credit does such a person take from abandoning food and drink when he does not give up telling lies?

The reward for Fasting goes waste

It is true that the fasting accompanied by sins is valid according to the rules of the Shari'ah. If a religious ruling is obtained on such fasting the Mufti will declare it valid and it is not necessary to offer a compensatory fast. Despite this, the reward earned by such fasting goes waste, because the man who is fasting did not acquire the spirit of fasting.

The aim of Fasting is to light the candle of Taqwa (righteousness)

I have recited the following verse of the Holy Qur'an:

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْا كُتِبَ عَلَيْكُمُ الصِّيَامُ كَمَا كُتِبَ عَلَى الَّذِيْنَ مِنْ قَبْلِكُمْ لَعَلَّكُمْ تَتَّقُوْنَ (سورة البقرة: ١٨٣)

This means: O you who believe: Fasting has been prescribed for you, as it was prescribed for those before you, that you may become righteous. (2:183)

Now we have to see how righteousness is generated.

Fasting is a step-ladder to Righteousness

Some men of religious learning have said that fasting generates Taqwa (righteousness) by crushing the animal instinct in man. If a man remains hungry his animal devices and urges will be crushed. This in turn will suppress the urge to commit sins.

Our Maulana Hazrat Ashraf Ali Sahib رحمة الله عليه has said: It is not a question of crushing the animal instincts. The truth is that if a man observes the fasts with its proper etiquettes and discipline, this will itself become a grand step-ladder to righteousness. What is the meaning of Taqwa? It means refraining from sin by visualizing in one's mind the greatness and grandeurs of Almighty Allah. That is, man should think that he is a servant of Allah and Allah has His eyes on him, and that he has to give an account of his deeds before Allah. This indeed is Taqwa when a man gives up sins with this background. Allah has said:

وَاَمَّا مَنْ خَافَ مَقَامَ رَبِّهٖ وَنَهَى النَّفْسَ عَنِ الْهَوٰى (سورة النازعات: ٤٠)

This means: And for him who fears to stand before his Lord and restrains his soul from lust...(An naazi'aat: 40)

This verse clearly brings out the meaning of Taqwa.

My Master is Watching me

Fasting is, therefore, the best discipline and training for acquiring Taqwa. However, sinful and wrongdoing may a man be, after having observed the fast, he goes through many hardships. It is a very hot summer day; he feels very thirsty; he is all alone, the door is closed with a latch; there is a refrigerator in the room with ice-cold water. The soul within the body is urging the thirsty fasting man to take a few draughts of this soothing water to quench his thirst when there is none to see this and curse him for breaking the fast and the people around him will still take him to be a fasting man. Notwithstanding this he does not break his fast for the only reason that he firmly believes that his Master and creator Allah for whose pleasure he is fasting is watching him.

I Alone shall recompense him for his fasting.

That is why Allah has said:

الصوم لی وانا اجزی به

(Tirmidhi Book of fasting, Hadith no: 764)

This means: Allah says that the fast has been observed for My sake and I shall recompense for it.

About other deeds Allah has said that He shall compensate for them ten-fold, seventy-fold, one hundred-fold, so much so that the compensation for charity is seven hundred times, but about fasting Allah has said: I shall personally recompense for it, because the servant has observed fast for Me alone. Inspite of severe thirst and inspite of all facilities available to quench the thirst, there being none to watch him, the servant of Allah did not drink water because he believed that one day he will be brought before Allah to give an account for his deeds. This feeling and belief is Taqwa. Thus fasting is a form of Taqwa and also a step - ladder to achieve Taqwa. Allah has, therefore, said that He has prescribed fasting to provide a practical training to practise Taqwa.

This Training Course shall not be completed otherwise.

When you are receiving this practical training through fasting, you should improve it and take it farther and farther. During the fasting days you refrained from food and drink only for fear of Allah although you badly needed food and drink. you should follow the same course in your other transactions of life. When you feel tempted to disobey Allah and violate His commands for some worldly gains, the fear of Allah should deter you from disobeying Allah. Thus during the month of Ramadhan you are undergoing a training course and the discipline learnt during this course should control your activities during your ordinary walks of life, otherwise the training will go waste.

As if you have installed an Air-Conditioner of fasting but. . . .

Prevention is as necessary as medical treatment. Allah prescribed fasting for you to generate in you Taqwa, but Taqwa will be generated only when you refrain from sins and disobeying Allah. This is just as the Air-conditioner cannot make the room cool unless the windows and doors etc. are kept closed. Exactly similar is the Air-Conditioner of Fasting which will bring you the cool air of Taqwa only when the windows and doors of sins and evil deeds are kept closed. What benefit can you get from fasting which is not protected from sins, wrongs and vices?

The real objective is "Obeying Commands"

The wisdom of crushing the animal instincts during Ramadhan by fasting is a secondary objective. The primary objective of Fasting is the obeying of the commands of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ when you take food in obedience to Allah's command it is Deen (faith) and when you refrain from taking food in obedience to Allah's command it is also Deen (faith). Almighty Allah has given us a wonderful programme for fasting. He has prescribed fasting during the entire day for which He has commanded to break the fast promptly at sunset which is Mustahab (desirable); but undue delay in breaking the fast is an undesirable act. This shows that the real spirit of fasting is obedience to Allah.

You disobeyed My Command

It is very bad to be greedy for anything in the ordinary circumstances of life, but when Allah commands His servants to be greedy, then greed becomes enjoyable and desirable. A poet has expressed this idea as under:

چوں طمع خواہد زمن سلطان دیں
خاک بہ فرق قناعت بعد ازیں

When the Sultan of Deen Himself demands that I should be greedy for anything, then the quality of contentment becomes condemnable and undesirable. This brings out the wisdom in the command for hastening in breaking the fast. If one puts into one's mouth before sunset even a particle of food, the command declares it to be a sin, such as deserves to be expatiated with penalty. For example, the sun sets at seven p.m. If one puts into one's mouth a single grain at six past fifty-nine minutes apparently there should be no deficiency in the fasting. But according to the injunction of the Shari'ah this intentional breaking of the fast earlier only by one minute entails a penalty of sixty days continuous fasting. The reason for it is really not the eating of a grain only one minute before the prescribed hour but it is a penalty for violating the divine command. So it is disobedience that is at the bottom of the punishment.

Hasten in Breaking the Fas.

No sooner does the sun set, than the command is to break the fast, as undue delay is a sin. Why is it so? The same dis-obedience!

To delay in taking sihri,
(the pre-dawn meal) is better.

The command about Sihri is that it is better to take it at the latest within the prescribed time. To hasten it is against the Sunnah. Some people take Sihri at mid night and go to sleep. This habit is totally against the Sunnah. It was the practice of the noble companions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ to be eating sihri till the last minutes of the appointed time. The reason for this is that not only is it permitted but it is also commanded to do so. In following this practice lies the obedience to Allah and His Messenger. To effect any change in the programme of fasting drawn up by Allah is not allowed. So the formula is to do something when Allah and His Prophet ﷺ command it to be done and to refrain from it when they command that it should be stopped. Hakeemul Ummah Maulana Ashraf Ali Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say that it is against obedience and submission not to eat or eat less when Almighty Allah commands His servants to eat to their fill. Neither is eating important nor abstinence is important; what is really important is obedience and submission to Allah's command and will. So avoid effecting any change in the programmes prescribed by Allah and His Prophet ﷺ.

Try to pass one month without committing sins.

If you are fasting, you must take care to save yourself from sins. This includes protecting the eyes, the ears and the tongues from misuse. The blessed saint once advised a very unique and effective way of shunning sins. He advised to seduce our souls by inducing them to abstain from sins during the month of Ramadhan with freedom to do whatever they wished to do in the rest of the year. This scheme, says the saint, is sure to put the person concerned on the right path during the rest of the year, rather the whole life. Let every man take a stock of his condition and resolve firmly that during this holy month, avoiding totally the misuse of his eyes, ears and tongue. What sense is there that a man is fasting and yet is engaged in forbidden sensual enjoyments.

The Importance of lawful means of sustenance during this month.

Another matter which our holy saint emphasizes in the arrangement for lawful income and sustenance during the month of Ramadhan. Let it not happen that you are fasting for Allah and breaking the fast with unlawful items of food, or food procured out of bribe, interest money or otherwise forbidden sources of income. So take special care to protect yourself and your family from forbidden income at least during this month and pray to Allah to help you in this matter.

Shun forbidden sources of income.

There is a group of men whose basic source of income is, thank God, lawful and not unlawful, except that on account of carelessness some unlawful items find way to their income. It is not difficult for such men to abstain from unlawful money if they pay a little attention and take care to keep away from unlawful income. Allah has declared that this is a month of patience and perseverance, consolation, mutual sympathy and fellow-feeling. Yet instead of all these virtues the business community begins to fleece the general public with relentless profiteering. They begin to hoard their merchandise to raise the price during Ramadhan. They should refrain from such un-Islamic rather, inhuman practices and dirty tricks at least during this sacred month.

What to do if the entire income comes from unlawful sources?

There is a group of men whose income comes from entirely unlawful sources. For example, they are serving in organizations like banks and insurance companies, etc. what should such men do in this month? Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه has suggested a way out for every man. If possible he should take leave in the month of Ramadhan and do something to procure lawful income to meet the expenses of this month. If this too is not possible, he should borrow money from someone for this purpose with a firm resolution to maintain his family in this month only with lawful money. He can do at least this much.

It is easy to avoid sins.

I want to point out that people pay much attention to optional and other forms of prayers and worship during Ramadhan but they hardly take care to protect themselves from sins, although Almighty Allah has provided facilities during this month for men to keep themselves away from sins if they so desire. In this month Satan is imprisoned and put under chains and fetters, with the result that the door of satan's seduction is closed. So it becomes easy to abstain from sins.

Refrain from anger during Ramadhan.

The third problem closely connected with Ramadhan is to protect oneself from anger. There is a hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ saying: This is the month of sympathy and cooperation with one another. Everyone should, therefore, avoid anger and the sins and crimes that are commutted during fits of anger, e.g., quarrels, fighting, exchange of hot words and abusing one another during the month are very common. In a hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has gone to the extent of saying:

وان جهل على احد كم جاهل وهو صائم. فليقل انى صائم

(Tirmidhi, chapter on Saum, Hadith no: 764)

That is, if anyone behaves with you indecently and rudely, tell him that you are fasting and I am not prepared to fall out with you and fight with you neither with my tongue nor with my fist. So avoid anger. These are all basic items of dealing.

Indulge more in optional worship during Ramadhan

So far as optional worship is concerned all Muslims know that fasting and Traweeh prayer are very necessary. There is a special affinity between the recitation of the Holy Qur'an and the month of Ramadhan. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ used to recite the Holy Qur'an completely to Angel Gibreel عليه السلام in the month of Ramadhan. The Muslims should therefore, devote themselves in this month to the recitation of the Qur'an to the best of their capacity. They should also be remembering Allah with their tongues while sitting, walking and during all their movements. In addition to this they should also likewise rehearse the third Kalimah:

سبحان الله والحمد لله ولا اله الا الله والله اكبر

They should also rehearse the sacred Darud and the Istighfar with the same regularity and continuity. Take part in optional forms of worship as best as you can. In other days of the year man does not get opportunity to offer the Tahajjud Prayer, but in the month of Ramadhan this opportunity is available. During Ramadhan a man has to get up for taking Sihri food. He should get up a bit earlier and make it his routine to offer the Tahajjud prayer before taking Sihri. He should also offer his prayers with the Jama'at (congregation) and with rapt attention, concentration and submission to Allah. It is necessary to discharge all these duties during this month, which form the distinctive activities of the month of Ramadhan. Yet it may be stated again by way of emphasis that the most important of all things is the anxiety to save oneself from sins in this holy month.

May Almighty Allah help us in doing all good deeds and enable us to benefit from the lights and blessings of this sacred month. Aameen!

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمدلله رب العلمين

Venue : Jame'Masjid Orlando,
Florida, USA
Date : Friday, the 22nd April, 1992

The modern culture and civilisation have a queer philosophy. If a woman is preparing food in her house for her husband and children, this is retrogression outmodedness. If the same woman becomes an, air hostess and serves the passengers becoming a target for their covetous glances, this is called freedom and modernism. If a woman stays in her house and manages the household affairs for her parents, sisters and brothers, this is called captivity and disgrace. On the other hand if she takes the job of a sales-girl in a shop and attracts the customers with her bewitching smiles and serves humbly her officers in an office is freedom and an honour. This is all condemnable.

FREEDOM OF WOMAN A DELUSION

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه و نستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه و نعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهدان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهدان سيدنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله

اما بعد:

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم. بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

وَقَرْنَ فِيْ بُيُوْتِكُنَّ وَلَا تَبَرَّجْنَ تَبَرُّجَ الْجَاهِلِيَّةِ الْأُوْلٰى (سورة الاحزاب:٣٣)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم وصدق رسوله النبى الكريم ونحن علىٰ ذالك من الشاهدين والشاكرين والحمد لله رب العالمين

All praise is to Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness and we believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the mischief of our souls and the vices of our deeds. There is none to lead him astray whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God but Allah alone and that He has no partner. I also bear witness that our Sire, and our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad is His servant and His Messenger. Stay in your houses and do not make a dazzling display (of your charms) as that of the days of Ignorance of old. (Al-Ahzab : 33)

Today's Topic.

My respected brothers and sisters:

The topic of taday's discussion is "The importance of purdah (veil). It is proposed to consider what are the injunctions of the Qur'an and the Sunnah about purdah for women folk and what is their importance.

Before embarking upon a detailed discussion of this topic, I invite your attention to an important point which consists in this question: Why is Purdah necessary for women and what are the injunctions of the Shari'ah about it? It is not possible to grasp this point thoroughly unless one understands the basic aim of women's creation and their appearance in this world.

You may inquire about the aim of women's creation from their Creator (Allah).

In a spate of western propaganda it is said everywhere that Islam has stifled women under Purdah and has imprisoned them within the four walls. The reason of all this propaganda is that the propagandists do not know the basic aim of women's creation. The truth is that it is Allah who has created this universe and its main inmates men and women both. If there is anyone who does not believe in this bare truth, then it is difficult to guide him on the right trend of thought. If, on the other hand he believes that Allah and Allah alone is the creator of all things on this earth, including men and women, he can very well ask Allah for an answer as to why He created men and women.

Men and Women are two different sexes.

A great hue and cry is being raised now-a-days that women should also work side by side with men. In the zeal of their ceaseless propaganda, they have failed to reflect that if men and women were created for doing the same kind of work why was it necessary to create them with different physical characteristics and bodily constitutions. Who can deny the fact that men and women have different bodily systems, habits, sentiments, susceptibilities and mental trends. Allah has created each sex with different constitutions. To declare that there is no difference between men and women is self-deception and revolt against nature, because it is disbelieving our eyes and our senses. The difference between the physical constitution and sentimental trends of each cannot be effaced by artificial means, i.e., by putting on the same dress, having the same hair-style. The fact remains that the difference between men and women is too palpable to be denied and too real and true to be ignored.

The means to put a question to Allah are His Prophets.

As already pointed out it is the Creator Himself who can tell for what purpose He created men and women and one can approach the creator for an answer through His Prophets, the last of them being Prophet Muhammad ﷺ.

Two branches of Human life

It appears, without any shadow of doubt, from the teachings of the Holy Qur'an and the Holy Prophet ﷺ that human life stands divided into two branches, viz., the indoor affairs and the outdoor affairs. Each branch is complimentary to the other. It is not possible to lead a balanced and moderate life without taking into account, and meeting the requirements of both the branches of life. It is equally important and necessary to plan and procure the indoor as well as the outdoor demands of life. Man's life can be stabilized and regulated with the help of these two branches. If one branch is ignored or preferred to the other, life will get shattered, disorganized and unbalanced.

Distribution of duties between men and women

Allah has distributed the duties between two sexes in such a way that men have been made responsible for outdoor duties, e.g. earning livelihood and looking after political and social affairs and women have been made responsible for all indoor duties. If an intelligent survey is made of the natural peculiarities of man's creation it will have to be admitted that there can be no better arrangement of the distribution of duties between men and women. None can deny that in physical constitution man is stronger than woman. Outdoor work demands more strength and endurance which has been bestowed upon man. Outdoor duties demanding physical and muscular strength can be discharged efficiently only by man power and not by woman power. As regards indoor duties which are easier and which require less physical strength have been rightly entrusted to women.

A woman should take charge of household duties

The Qur'anic verse which was quoted in the beginning contains a divine command addressed direct to the sacred wives of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and indirectly to the entire community of Muslim women. The command is:

وَقَرْنَ فِيْ بُيُوْتِكُنَّ

That is: (O wives of the Prophet ﷺ!) stay in your houses.

This does not mean to say that women should not go out of their houses, except in emergent conditions. The verse points out to a basic truth to the effect that women should stay in their houses and look after all indoor household affairs.

Distribution of duties between Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ and Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا

Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ and Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا had distributed their duties in such a way that Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ performed the outdoor duties and Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا looked after the indoor affairs, such as sweeping the house, grinding grain for flour, bringing water and cooking food.

What was the temptation in driving women out of the house?

In the present-day society a clean social living has no value, immorality and shamelessness are considered the final objective instead of modesty and chastity. In such an atmosphere not only will purdah, modesty and distribution of duties between man and woman be considered to be unnecessary but they will be considered as an stumbling block. Thus when in the West a storm raged of getting rid of all moral values, man considered women's stay in the house to be a double calamity. On one hand, his sensuous tendency urged him to enjoy a woman at every step without accepting any responsibility for her and on the other hand he regarded the maintenance of his legal wife as a burden for him. The clever solution which he found out for both these calamities was given the innocent name of "the movement for women's Emancipation". The woman was befooled by teaching that she had so far been a captive within the four walls of her house. Now has come the time of her freedom. She should get out of this confinement and take part in every task of life side by side with man. She should take equal part in the struggle of life including political and governmental responsibilities of which she had so far been deprived and that international honours and dignified offices were waiting for her.

Being charmed by these bewitching slogans the poor woman came out of her house. By means of full-throated propaganda and all forms of publicity campaigns she was duped into the belief that she had today been liberated from centuries' old slavery and that her ordeals have come to an end today. Under cover of these enchanting slogans she was dragged to the roads, made clerks in offices, was appointed as private secretary to strange men. She was "honoured" with the posts of steno-typist sales girls, model girls. By disgracing each of her limbs in the open markets, the customers were invited to patronise particular trade centers and shops. That woman whom nature had granted honour, grace, dignity of character, modesty and chastity, now became a show-piece for commercial firms and a source of recreation for men to relieve them of their tiredness.

Woman has been entrusted today with every kind of menial work.

While claiming women's emancipation, it was promised that after bestowing upon her freedom the doors to the chambers of politics and government are being opened for her. Now just consider how many women have been appointed in the Western world as Presidents, Prime ministers, ministers, Judges or other high posts. If statistics are collected, the number of such fortunate women will be only a few in one lakh. After allotting some respectable posts to a few women, the rest, their number running into millions, have been dragged mercilessly on to the roads. This is the most painful aspect of the fraud of women's emancipation. If you go to Europe and America you shall see that all menial and third-grade work has been entrusted to women, as waitresses in restaurants, maid-servants in hotels to clean travellers' rooms, change their bed sheets and serve as room attendants. Men are seldom seen doing this work. It is exclusively women who are working as sales-girls, in shops and as receptionists at the gates of offices. It is generally the weaker sex that is working as waitresses, clerks etc., after having been liberated from the four walls of their houses. What a pity!

A Queer Philosophy of the modern Civilisation

A strange philosophy has been imposed on the minds of people with the power of propaganda that it is a matter of confinement and disgrace for a woman to discharge household duties in her house for the sake of her husband parents, brothers and sisters and her children. On the other hand if the same woman cooks food for strange persons, serves them as a waitress or hostess in hotels, ships, attracts customers in shops with her smiles and serves her officers in offices with humble submission, then all this means freedom and honour for her. How sad!

It is the greatest irony of fate that even after discharging disgraceful and hard duties for earning a living, the woman has not been relieved of the duties of her household affairs which still lie on her weak shoulders. In Europe and America the majority of women, after their outdoor duties have on arriving home, to perform the duties of cooking food, washing utensils and doing sanitary work in their houses.

Is this half population Idle?

In support of the action of driving women out of their house for outdoor work a routine argument is put forward that we cannot let half of our population remain idle in a period of nation -building and development.

This argument is submitted with such gusto as if by providing employment to all labourers, they have reached the final limit of employment at least to the extent of the male population. Now we have reached, so to say, a stage in which not only is every one employed, but vast vacancies are waiting for the available manpower in the country.

Such things are being said in a country in which highly qualified males are roaming about on the roads in search of jobs. If a post of a peon or driver falls vacant tens of graduates apply for such jobs and similarly tens of M.As and Ph.Ds. apply for clerical posts when vacancies arise. First try to provide employment for the half male population in the work of nation-building and development, before thinking whether or not the half population consisting of the females is idle.

The Family system has been totally shattered today.

Almighty Allah created a woman to look after her household affairs, to manage them and stabilize the family system. As soon as she went out of the house, it had to be locked because both the parents are out on their jobs the children in their schools or nursaries. The family system is thus totally shattered. Woman was created to remain in the house to look after its affairs and to bring up the children in her affectional lap. The mother's lap is the first training school for her child. It is there that the child learns the principles of morality, character and living. This parental care and love are not available to children of to-day in the Western countries and the family system has been totally shattered. The husband and wife are working in different places in an atmosphere of free society and they have no contact with each other during their working hours. Sometimes this mode of working serves to weaken their relations as husband and wife, giving rise to unlawful contacts with strangers. Ultimately this leads to divorce, in turn, and destruction of the home.

Gorbachev's Opinion about women.

If I had said these things myself, one would have charged me with partiality. The last President of the earst-while USSR Mr. Mikhael Gorbachev, wrote a book a few years' ago entitled "Prostrika". This book has become famous all over the world and is available in Printed Form. Mr Gorbachev has provided in his book a chapter on "Status of Women". In this chapter he has written in clear words:

"The woman in our Western society was driven out of the home. As a result of her expulsion from the home we gained some economic benefits in the form of some increase in production, because men and women are both working. Despite this increase in production its inevitable result was that our family system was shattered. The loss sustained by this destruction of the family system is more than the gains obtained from increase in production. I am, therefore, going to launch in my country a campaign in the name of Prostrika: The basic objective of this campaign is to think how we can bring back to her home the women who has gone out of her home. We have to think about this, otherwise the entire nation will be destroyed. Mikhael Gorbachev has written these words in his book which is easily available in the market, and which can be seen by anybody.

Money in itself is nothing.

The basic cause of the destruction of the family system is that we failed to understand the object of women's creation. Allah created women to establish and maintain intact the household management and the family system. The gist of all the efforts of today's economic and social planning converges on the largest monetary gains. But look! Can this money by itself provide any benefit? If you are hungry and have money with you, can you satisfy your hunger by eating this money? Money in itself is nothing unless you purchase with it the necessaries of life to meet your real needs.

Today's profitable business.

In the near past the details of a survey were published in a magazine which studied as to which is the most profitable business in the world. The survey has reported that the most profitable business in today's world is that of a "model girl". A model girl submits herself for different naked poses being taken of her body for advertising purposes and for this the girl charges 25 million dollars as her wages for only one day. This woman today has become a merchandise for sale to be used by the capitalist according to his desire. This is because after going out of her house the woman has lost her respect, dignity and status.

An instructive story of a Jew.

It is related from a saint that once upon a time there lived a very rich Jew. In those olden days people used to deposit their money in underground cells. This Jew had amassed in this cell heaps of gold, silver and other valuables. Once the Jew entered his underground cell to inspect his treasure secretly, without informing the guard appointed for this purpose of this secret programme. He did this to see if the guard was misappropriating the treasure. The door to this cell was such that it could be closed from inside but could not be opened from inside. The Jew entered the cell and closed the door from inside without thinking how he could open it, as the door could be opened only from outside. The guard at the door thought that the cell was closed and safe. He had no idea at all that the owner of the treasure was inside the cell. After having inspected the treasure, when the owner came to the door, he found no way out and remained imprisoned there. After sometime he felt hungry and thirsty, but there was no food and no water, although there was gold and silver in abundance. During the night he wanted to sleep, but there was no bedding, although there was gold and silver. The result was that he remained alive there as long as he could do without food and water, then he died helplessly in the cell. The gold and silver heaped there could be of no avail.

This money is not in itself, of any use and gain to man, unless it is used to purchase the necessaries of life, and the monetary and the economic systems are planned and run on the right lines.

Money will increase in its count only.

The contemporary world says that if we drive the women out of their houses, we will get workers who in turn will raise production, and increase in wealth. To some extent it is correct that the wealth will increase only in count, but your family system will be totally shattered, resulting in closing the door to national progress. How tremendous is this loss?

What is the objective of earning money?

In the Qur'anic verse: وَقَرْنَ فِي بُيُوتِكُنَّ (stay in your houses), Allah has pointed out that He has created women to render the most important service of establishing and stabilizing the family system and managing the affairs of her household. There is absolutely no sense in the attitude that the entire attention is being laid to outdoor work at the cost of the safety of the household and the family system. Is it not a fact that man earns money for the purpose of making his household restful and comfortable? If this is not achieved and the peace of the home has been sacrificed at the altar of money, this hard-earned money is useless, whatever its quantity. It is absolutely worthless.

The child needs its mother's care and affection.

Allah has created women to take over the duties of bringing up and training the children on the right lines and putting them on the right trend of thought. That is why Allah has put in the heart of the mother more love for the child than in that of the father, although the child belongs to both, when the child feels some discomfort he will at once call its mother and not its father, wherever she may be, because the child knows well that it is its mother who can remove its discomfort. The child is brought up in the shadow of this affectionate relation. It is not possible for a father to breed and bring up his child without the assistance of the mother. Actual experiment will support this statement. Nowadays people submit their children to nurseries for their upbringing. Remember that no nursery can provide the child with a mother's care and affection. The child does not stand in need of an institution like a poultry farm, but instead, the child needs the mother's care and love to ensure the provision of this care, love and affection, it is imperative that the mother should take charge of the management of the household. If a women is not doing this, she is rebelling against nature. The result of this rebellion against nature is the same which is before our eyes today.

The basis of great achievements is the "Home"

Allah has said in His Book, the Qur'an, fourteen centuries ago وَقَرْنَ فِي بُيُوتِكُنَّ (Stay in your houses). The "Home" alone is your world, your Hereafter and your life. O Women! Do not think that as man is doing great deeds outdoors, you too can do the same by going outdoors. You should think that the "home" is the foundation of all great deeds. If you breed and bring up your children in the right way sow the seeds of Iman (faith) in their hearts and generate Taqwa in them, then this achievement of yours will be much greater than the so-called great deeds done by man by going outdoors, because you have brought up and trained a child on the path of Deen.

The anti-propaganda and blind following of the West have begun to eradicate gradually the care of the women in our society for the religious training of their children. In such a situation those women who confined within their homes also sometimes begin to think that the people are right in saying that they have been confined within the four walls of their houses and those women who have gone out of these four walls are perhaps more advanced and progressive than they themselves. At any rate, bear in mind that the services which these 'confined' women are rendering within the bounds of their houses have no substitute and those valuable services cannot be rendered by going outdoors to work in market places and shops.

Contentment and comfort lie in Purdah.

Women should never think that the Purdah is a source of inconvenience to them. To be under Purdah is a part of women's nature. The very meaning of the word 'Aurat which is the Arabic equivalent of the word women is something which requires to be kept concealed. This is women's nature and if nature is distorted, then there is no remedy for its reform. The contentment and comfort to be received in living within Purdah cannot be received from a life without Purdah in which women are exposed to public gaze. The protection of the Purdah system is therefore, an assential part of modesty and chastity.

The condition of women's hair on their heads.

It seems that the eyes of the Holy Prophet ﷺ were seeing clearly todays conditions of life. He is reported to have said in a Hadith: In the days close to the Day of Judgment there will be women the hair on whose heads will be like the humps of camels. He made this prophesy at a time when none could think of such a hair-style. Now see for yourselves that women are now dressing their hair like the humps of camels.

They are naked, although they are putting on clothes.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is also reported to have said that although they will be wearing clothes, yet they will not fulfil the condition of concealing the body. This is because the clothes will be either so thin or of tight - fitting that all the contours of the body will become apparent and visible and all this is the result of disappearance of modesty and shame. It could not be imagined in the past that women would ever wear such clothes, because then they had the sense of modesty. It could not be imagined in the past that women would ever wear such clothes, because then, they had in their hearts sense of modesty and shame. She had a natural aptitude not to wear such clothes. Women are nowadays putting on clothes from which their breast, neck, arms all appear to be naked. What kind of clothes are these that instead of concealing the body, they are making certain limbs of the body more prominent.

A flood of mixed social gatherings.

During marriage celebrations, senses of shamelessness are seen even in those families that claim to be religious-minded and whose members sit in the first row in the mosque to offer prayers. Just visit a marriage ceremony of their family and see what is happening there. There was a time when none could imagine that there would be a mixed gathering of men and women in marriage parties. Now there is a flood of such gatherings in which women participate, well embellished with make-up and attractive precious garments and ornaments with no regard for purdah, modesty and shame.

Why should there be no disorder?

Not only this but video films are being made of these parties so that those who could not enjoy these scenes because of their absence could be enabled to enjoy them later on with the projection of these films. All these sins are being committed, yet those concerned are looked upon as pious and religious. They do not show the slightest abhorence for such activities, nor does in their hearts arise any motive to discard these open vices. Now think! Should this open atrocity not beget disturbance disorder restlessness and lawlessness in the society, as we now see everywhere? Everyone's life, property, peace and honour is at stake. After all, it is Allah's great mercy and it is a blessing due to the Holy Prophet ﷺ that punishment is not being inflicted upon us to destroy us all. Our deeds do deserve such punishment- God forbid.

We are pushing our children down into the abyss of Hell.

All this is the result of the carelessness and negligence and the insensibility of the elders that they take no exception to the behaviour of their children to control them. Their children are hastening towards Hell and there is none to hold them back. They do not realize at all that they are pushing their children down into the abyss of Hell. When asked to check their children they take no notice on one plea or another and surrender themselves totally to their younger generation.

Matters have not yet gone out of control.

Matters have not yet gone out of control. Even now if the heads and controllers of the households resolve firmly against certain deeds namely, that they will not allow mixed gatherings in their houses; there will be no celebrations without Purdah among the females, nor will they allow the making of video films, the onslaught of lewdness and shamelessness can be held in check. Fear the time when a well wisher shall try to remedy this situation but he will not succeed. If not all, at least those families who think that they are religious-minded and followers of Islam should firmly resolve that they shall not allow these mixed and out of Purdah gatherings.

Boycott such Gatherings.

Our elders did not teach us to resort to boycott, but sometimes situations do arise when decisions of non-cooperation and boycott have to be taken by men to have their demand accepted. If you do not participate in a mixed gathering people will complain against you. You are advised to take no notice of their complaint when they take no notice of your advice to shun sin. If you are a Purdah observing lady and they want to invite you to a marriage ceremony why do they not make arrangements for Purdah. If they have no consideration for your preference and choice reject their invitation outright as attendene in such gathering is not a binding. This flood of lewdness and shamelessness cannot be stopped, unless the women take a firm resolution to stop it. Think as to how long you will be yielding to them in flouting the injunctions of Islam and let this flood go unchecked.

How long will you go on cooperating with the worldly people?

Hazrat Maulana Muhammad Idrees Sahib Kandehlawi رحمة الله عليه was a great saint of his time. In those days in the drawing rooms people used to sit on carpeted floors and the same sitting arrangement was in the drawing room of this pious saint. The women of his household suggested to the Maulana to replace this old fashioned sitting system by sofa set seats. The Maulana did not approve of the idea and preferred the same old-fashioned arrangement which, he said, was comfortable for him. The women argued with the Maulana to adopt the changed fashion of the time for the sake of his visitors. To this arguments the Maulana gave a unique reply. He said: What good turn did anyone listen to my advice and improve the way of his life? If they did not have any regard for me why should I have any regard for them?

Do not mind the people of the world if they do not care for your advice.

Why do you have regard for those who do not have regard for your Purdah system and your other religious ways of life.

If a woman without Purdah comes to the sitting arrangement made for the exclusive use of female guests and does not appear before the male guests, there is no harm for her. On the other hand if a Purdah observing women clad in her-veil appears among the male gathering, it is regarded as something highly objectionable. If you attend a party of mixed gathering only because the host shall be displeased with your absence, then is it not your right also to express your displeasure on being invited to a mixed gathering? Bear in mind that unless such retaliatory attitude is put to practice, this flood of lewdness and shamelessness cannot be stopped.

Expel these men.

Even parties where separate sitting arrangements are made for men and women, men encroach upon the tents reserved for women and try to be free with the female guests and the advantage of separate arrangement is lost. Why do women on such occasions not stage a protest against the male intruders and demand their expulsion?

Dacoity is being committed against Deen, yet there is complete silence

It is a common occurrence on occasions of marriage celebrations that causes of complaints among the guests and the hosts concerning want of due attention and regard, etc. leading to bitterness. If you do not make complaints and protest on such occasions, there is no objection but it is highly objectionable for you to be silent when your Deen is being flouted and dishonoured. The Deen calls upon you to stand up and protest vehemently against the violation of the religious injunctions and orders. The growing onslaught on religion cannot be stopped unless a joint campaign is launched against this onslaught.

Be ready to face divine vengeance

This flood of shamelessness cannot be eliminated unless those who claim to have some regard for religion resolve to do their best to eradicate this social evil. If you do not get up to wage a war against this evil, then be prepared to face divine vengeance which is sure to come sooner or later.

Create your own Social Circle.

My respected father Hazrat Maulana Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to give very useful advice worthy to preserve. He said: You complain against the existing social conditions and the surroundings. You should create a congenial social circle of your own. by gathering round you those who think and feel alike with you. Your society and the society of those who think differently from you are quite different from each other. So try to form a circle of your own friends and keep away from those who are against you.

The Result of free mixing.

One evil in a woman's going out of Purdah is the breaking of the family system. The other aspect is that Almighty Allah has created an attractive magnet among the sexes for each other. This is a natural instinct which cannot be denied. When there is free mixing of men and women this natural instinct must be aroused at sometime and lead to commission of sin. You are living in a society where there is free mixing of men and women and you are also seeing with your own eyes the heinous outcome of this aspect. Against having unlawful sexual intercourse, there is no check in the present society; there is no law and no social check against this sin. Despite this the number of rapes committed in this country is greater than elsewhere. Only the other day I read in the papers that in America a rape case takes place after every 46 seconds. Now consider what is the reason for committing rape in a country in which the door to adultery by mutual consent always remains wide open?

What is the source to satisfy sexual urge?

The reason is that man has transgressed his natural limits. As long as a man satisfies his sexual urge within his natural limits, he will be able to satisfy this urge with full satisfaction. On the other hand when he crosses his natural limits to satisfy this urge, he will turn into ravenous hunger and an insatiable thirst for adultery. On reaching this stage man's greed for adultery grows more and more.

Therefore, the custom of mixed gathering and free contact between the two sexes cannot result in anything other than what you are seeing with your own eyes today. This indeed is due to the violation of Allah's command contained in this verse.

وَقَرْنَ فِيْ بُيُوْتِكُنَّ

That is, stay in your houses.

By ignoring this command women have taken just the opposite course.

There is permission to go out of the house under emergencies.

A question does arise. Being a human being a women too has some needs for which she may have to go out of her house. She may wish to go out to meet her relatives or to satisfy some of her personal needs, or at times to take part in some recreation.

It must be understood that the command "stay in your house"does not mean that women should be locked up in their houses. She has permission to go out, with certain conditions, in times of need. In normal conditions a girl lies on the shoulders of her parents and after marriage this responsibility is transferred to her husband. In abnormal conditions in which a women has neither parents nor her husband, in such a situation a women has permission to go out of her house She is also allowed to go out for lawful recreation. The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have taken Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضى الله عنها out of the house.

Has ʿAyesha رضی اللہ عنہا also been invited?

It occurs in a Hadith that once a companion رضی اللہ عنہ invited the Holy Prophet ﷺ to a feast. The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked: اعائشة معی؟. Is ʿAyesha also invited with me? It was a time of informality, so the companion رضی اللہ عنہ replied to the prophet's query in the negative. Then the Holy Prophet ﷺ also refused to accept the invitation by saying: اذا فلا meaning that he cannot accept the invitation without ʿAyesha رضی اللہ عنہا. After some time the same companion رضی اللہ عنہ again invited the Holy Prophet ﷺ to a feast. At this time also the Holy Prophet ﷺ inquired if ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا was also invited. The companion again replied to the Prophet's query in the negative. The Holy Prophet ﷺ refused the invitation. After some time the companion رضی اللہ عنہ again invited the Holy Prophet ﷺ and requested him to accept the invitation. The Holy Prophet ﷺ again put to the companion the same question: اعائشة معی؟ (Is ʿAyesha رضی اللہ عنہا also invited with me?). This time the companion رضی اللہ عنہ replied to the Prophets question in the affirmative saying: نعم! یا رسول اللہ! (Yes O Prophet ﷺ of Allah). The Prophet ﷺ accepted the invitation saying: اذا فنعم! (Then yes). (Muslim, Hadith no: 2037).

The Reason for the Prophet's insistence.

The reason is not mentioned in the narrative, but some 'Ulama (learned men) have observed that generally its was not the practice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ to insist on to taking with him Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا also when some one invited him to a feast, and he used to accept the invitation without any condition. It seems, as some Ulama say, that perhaps that particular companion رضی اللہ عنہ bore some grudge towards Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا and the Prophet ﷺ wanted to remove this grudge of the Companion رضی اللہ عنہ. That is why he repeatedly put the condition of taking Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا with him

A wife also needs lawful recreation.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ was invited to a feast at a place outside Madina. He ﷺ set off with Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا and on the way they found an open plain where no stranger was present. At that time the Holy Prophet ﷺ ran a race with Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا. This racing was a lawful recreation and the Holy Prophet ﷺ provided it for Hazrat Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا. Islam allows this kind of recreation with the condition that it should be within Purdah and away from the eyes of strangers. (Abu Daood. Hadith no: 2578).

It is not lawful to go out with adornment and show.

The Shariʿah has allowed women to go out of their homes in times of need on the condition of due Purdah and with strict care not be shown openly the charms of their bodies. The Qurʿan has therefore said further:

وَلَا تَبَرَّجْنَ تَبَرُّجَ الْجَاهِلِيَّةِ الْأُولَىٰ

This verse means that if it ever becomes necessary to go out of the house, do not go with adornment and show your charms as women in the days of Ignorance used to do. Never use decoration to attract the peoples attention. You should go out under Purdah, concealing your bodies in loose garments. The Burqaʿ (veil) is widely used now but during the time of the Holy Prophet ﷺ cloth - sheets were used which covered the whole body from head to feet. In short, women are allowed to go out in times of need, but the order of Purdah has been given to forestall the evils that may result from going out without Purdah.

Was the Order for Purdah only for the sacred wives رضی اللہ عنہن of the Holy Prophet ﷺ ?

Some people say that the order of Purdah in the Qur'an related exclusively to the sacred wives رضی اللہ عنہن of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and it was not for general application. They base this argument of theirs on this verse. This stand is wrong traditionally and rationally both ways. On the one hand, this verse contains many injunctions of the Shari'ah, one being.

وَلَا تَبَرَّجْنَ تَبَرُّجَ الْجَاهِلِيَّةِ الْأُولَىٰ

(Do not go out with adornment and make-up like women in the days of Ignorance).

Is this injunction applicable only to the sacred wives of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and not also to other women of the Ummah? Are they free to indulge in decoration and show like the women of the days of Ignorance? It is quite obvious that the order applies to all women. Next comes another command وَأَقِمْنَ الصَّلَاةَ (Establishe the prayer), Does this command regarding prayer not apply to other women? Thereafter another command follows: وَآتِينَ الزَّكَاةَ (Pay the obligatory charity). Is this command also applicable only to the sacred wives of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and not also to other women? Still another command follows:وَأَطِعْنَ اللَّهَ وَرَسُولَهُ (And obey Allah and His Messenger). Is this command also not applicable to women other than the wives of the Holy Prophet ﷺ ? The context of the entire verse clearly shows that the commands are of general application, although the verse has been addressed direct to the wives of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and indirectly through them to all women of the Ummah.

They were pious ladies.

The Purdah system was intended for stopping the evils arising among the society on account of non-observance of the Purdah. One may ask, if evil and disorder should arise only when the sacred wives of the Holy Prophet ﷺ go out of their houses. God forbid, this is impossible, because women pious and righteous like them have not been born on the surface of the earth. The fact is that by addressing these commands to the sacrad wives of the Holy Prophet ﷺ all other women are also being addressed in particular, because they are more susceptible to error and straying.

The Command of Purdah applies to all ladies.

Further there is another verse in which all women of the Muslim Ummah have been addressed:

يَا أَيُّهَا النَّبِيُّ قُلْ لِأَزْوَاجِكَ وَبَنَاتِكَ وَنِسَاءِ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ يُدْنِينَ عَلَيْهِنَّ مِنْ جَلَابِيبِهِنَّ (سورة النور)

This means: (O Prophet ﷺ!) say to your wives and your daughters and the women of the believers to draw their cloaks close round them. (33:59)

There can be no clearer command than this. The word جلابیب (Jalaa beeb) is the plural of "Jilbaab" which means a sheet which a women draws over her body in such a way that her entire body is covered with it. Moreover, the Qur'anic order is not restricted only to the covering of the body with the jilbaab, but the word ﴿يدنين﴾ (Yudneen) has been used to mean that the Jilbaab should be drawn over in front so as to screen the face. What command can be clearer than this?

The Command of Purdah during the state of Ihram.

You know that on the occasion of the Hajj Pilgrimage, it is not lawful for a woman during the Ihram to apply cloth to her face. Men cannot cover their heads nor can women cover their faces. When the Hajj season came and the Holy Prophet ﷺ set off for Hajj with his sacred wives, the question arose that on one hand there is the order of Purdah and on the other hand is the order that during Ihram cloth should not touch faces. Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا has said: When we were performing the Hajj journey on camels we used to turn aside our face-covers when there was no stranger to gaze at us and we had fixed a wooden frame on our forehead, so that when some strangers or a caravan appeared we would turn back the face-covers on that wooden frame to ensure that the covers do not touch our faces nor is the order for Purdah violated. This shows that the sacred wives did not forsake the Purdah even during the state of Ihram.(Abu Dawud, Hadith no: 1833).

A lady's strict observance of Purdah.

It occurs in a narrative of Abu Dawud that a woman's son had gone with the Holy Prophet ﷺ to take part in a ghazwa (Holy War). After the battle all returned home except this woman's son. In such a state of anxiety and restlessness she ran to the Holy Prophet ﷺ to inquire after her son. She was told by the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم that her son was martyred in the battle. On hearing the news about her son's death she was stunned with grief. Yet she bore the sad news with patience and courage. On this occasion someone put her this question: O lady! you have called upon the Holy Prophet ﷺ in a state of such distress and grief, yet you are putting the face-cover on your face and you did not give up the purdah even at such a critical moment. The brave women replied:

ان ارزأ ابنی لم ارزأ حیائی

My son has indeed passed away but my modesty and shamefullness did not pass away.

Even in such a critical moment the order of Purdah was strictly obeyed by this Sahabiah رضی اللہ عنہ (Abu Dawud, Hadith no: 2488).

Do not mind the taunts of the Westerners.

Almighty Allah issued the order of Purdah in the Holy Qur'an and the Holy Prophet ﷺ taught us its details in the Ahadith and the sacred wives of the Prophet ﷺ and his sacred female companions gave practical demonstration by actually obeying the order.

Now the people of the West have launched a propaganda campaign against the Muslims that they are treating their women with cruelty, by confining them within the four walls of the house and keeping them under Purdah and have thus turned them into cartoons. Should we ignore the commands of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ in deference to the jokes of the West and its propaganda? Remember that you must create confidence in your hearts that the ways of life taught by the Prophet ﷺ of Allah are true and right. We should not mind if anyone ridicules and taunts on that account. Such jokes and taunts are nothing new for the Muslims. These taunts were levelled also against the Prophets of Allah who came to the world to guide humanity. They and their followers were ridiculed as backward, old-fashioned and retrogrades, who wanted to deprive the people of the comforts and pleasures of life.

The Prophets endured all these taunts and troubles. You being the inheritors of the Prophets must take over from them these taunts and jokes like all other legacies from them. If you have faith in Allah and His Prophet ﷺ you must endure these jokes and taunts with patience and Jovially.

You will be third-grade citizens even then.

Under pressure of these jokes and taunts if you agree to yield to the wishes and suggestions of the West, even then you will remain third-grade citizens. If you give up at their bidding the Purdah system and let your women go out, as the West desires for outdoor work and activities, do you think that they will accept you as their equals and bestow upon you the same rights and respect which they themselves enjoy? No, never; even then you will be considered as backward, fundamentalists and old-fashioned retrogrades. After all you will be treated as a third grade citizens.

Tomorrow it will be our turn to ridicule them

If you ignore their jokes and taunts and decide firmly to walk on the path shown and followed by the Holy Prophet ﷺ and his sacred wives, then a day will surely come when you will laugh at and ridicule them.

The Qur'an says:

فَالْيَوْمَ الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْا مِنَ الْكُفَّارِ يَضْحَكُوْنَ ۝ عَلَى الْاَرَآئِكِ ۙ يَنْظُرُوْنَ

But on this day, the believers will laugh at the unbelievers: On thrones (of dignity) they will command (a sight) (of all things). (83: 34-35)

The unbelievers used to laugh at and redicule the Muslims, specially when they saw a Muslim passing by them. This verse describes how in the Hereafter the believers shall laugh at and ridicule the unbelievers and will be looking at them while sitting on sofas, God willing. After all, life in this world is very short. How long will the unbelievers make fun of the Muslims. They will know the truth when they pass away from this transitory world. The only way of success and honour left for us is to stick to our way of life and conduct, as given by Allah and His Prophet ﷺ which alone is the guaranteed way of success and salvation.

Honour lies in Islam

He who firmly resolves to carry out the injunctions of the Shari'ah is the man to receive honour and regard from the world. In fact, honour lies in embracing and following Islam and not in renouncing it. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ has said:

اِنَّ اللّٰهَ قَدْ اَعَزَّنَا بِالْاِسْلَامِ

Allah has honoured us with Islam. If we renounce Islam Allah will disgrace us.

He lost his beard as well as the opportunity of employment

An elder of mine told me a true story which is highly admonitory, which runs thus. A friend of his was living in London and was in search of a job. He had a beard on his face and went to appear at an interview. The man who was interviewing him told him that he could be considered for appointment only if he shaved off his beard. He left the place in disappointment and for a few days tried his luck at other places, but in vain. At long last he decided to get rid of his beard. After having his beard shaved off, he went to the same place where he had been rejected on account of his beard. The officer asked the reason of his visit. In reply he said that earlier he had been rejected on account of his beard which he has shaved of. Then the following dialogue took place between the two:

Officer: Are you a Muslim?

Candidate: Yes.

Officer: Did you consider your beard to be necessary or unnecessary?

Candidate: I considered it to be necessary. That is why I had kept it.

Officer: You had kept your beard in obedience to Allah's command and now you have removed it at my bidding. It means that you are not faithful to Allah and one who is not faithful to his Allah cannot be faithful to his officer. Therefore, now we are unable to provide you employment. خَسِرَ الدُّنْيَا وَالْاٰخِرَةَ He lost the beard and the opportunity for a job both.

It is not only the beard, it is a common experience that if anyone violates any of Allah's commands only because the people will make fun of him, he most often suffers loss in this world and also in the Hereafter. One should be on his guard against such conduct.

The Face should also be kept under Purdah

The order of Purdah implies that the entire body, including the hair, should be covered from head to feet with a sheet, a Burqa or a loose gown. The face is also subject to Purdah, so it should be covered. While explaining the meaning of the verse:

﴿ يُدْنِيْنَ عَلَيْهِنَّ مِنْ جَلَابِيْبِهِنَّ ﴾

Hazrat Abdullah bin Mas'ood رضی اللہ عنہ, has said that in his days the women used to wrap a cloth-sheet round their bodies, including the face, except the eyes, and this is the correct way of Purdah. Allah has, however, allowed that at times of very pressing needs only the face and the hands up to the wrists may be bared. But for this relaxation in very special circumstances, the real purdah according to Allah's command is as mentioned above.

Purdah on the intellect of men.

What has been stated above is in a nut shell the command of Purdah. It is a fact that Purdah is inevitable to protect the chastity and piety of a woman. It is the duty of men to press their woman to observe Purdah and likewise it is binding on women to observe Purdah. What is most regretable is that some times women want to observe Purdah but their men stand in their way and force them to go without Purdah. Late Akbar of Allahabad has very beautifully depicted men's attitude in two couplets :

بے پردہ کل جو نظر آئیں چند بیبیاں
اکبر زمین میں غیرت قومی سے گڑ گیا

پوچھا جو ان سے پردہ تمہارا وہ کیا ہوا
کہنے لگیں کہ عقل پہ مردوں کے پڑ گیا

The other day I saw a few ladies without Purdah

Akbar was overwhelmed with a feeling of national shame

When I asked them what happened to your Purdah

They said that their Purdah fell on the intellect of their men

As mentioned in these couplets, the intellectual faculty of men has been totally paralysed and they are opposing the Purdah system.

May Allah save us all from wrong thinking and enable us to mould our lives on the pattern given by Allah and His Prophet ﷺ and live accordingly. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame'masjid Baitul-Mukarram,
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi.

Date : Friday, 2nd August, 1991
After 'Asr Prayers

DEEN (Religion) is not the name of a particular act or the completion of one's daily routines. Deen is the name of obedience to Allah. Deen is the name of acting upon what He commands. Deen is the name of adopting what He wills. Deen is the name of total submission to His will.

DEEN (RELIGION) A COMPLETE SUBMISSION

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه و نستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه و نعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهدان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهدان سيدنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعلى عليه وعله اله اصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد:

عن ابى موسى الا شعرى رضى الله عنه قال قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم اذا مرض العبد او سافر كتب له مثل ما كان يعمل مقيما صحيحا (صحيح بخارى كتاب الجهاد باب يكتب للمسافر مثل ماكان يعمل فى الاقامة، حديث نمبر ٢٩٩٦)

All praise is to Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and we believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the mischief of our souls and from the vices of our deeds. There is none to lead him astray whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God but Allah alone and that He has no partner. I also bear witness that our Master, our Authority, and our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah bestow upon him, his household and his Companions, His mercy blessings and salutations in great abundance.

(Bukhari. Hadith no: 6992)

Good deeds are recorded during the sickness and journey of a man

Hazrat Abu Musa Ash'ari رضی اللہ عنہ is one of the most eminent Companions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and one of the Jurists among them, He is one of those who migrated twice, once to Habashah and lastly to Madinah. He has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: When a servant of Allah falls sick or goes out on a journey, Allah records in his register of deeds the reward of all those deeds which he could not do during his sickness or journey. How encouraging is this saying of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that one should not feel disappointed for the deeds one is prevented from doing them on account of sickness or journey, because Allah, by His mercy, is crediting to the man's account the recompense of his missed deeds.

Prayer in not excused under any circumstances

The concession mentioned above relates only to the optional prayers and duties. Those items of worship which are obligatory فرض must be performed with the concessions or reduction allowed by the Shari'ah therein. For example take the case of prayers صلوٰۃ. It is not exempted, how seriously ill a man may be. Almighty Allah has, of course, allowed certain concessions that prayer may be offered sitting if the person cannot offer it standing, or lying down, if he is not able to offer it while sitting. If one cannot perform Wudhu (ablution) one may perform Tayammum, or if the clothes are not pure one may offer prayer in the impure clothes. Prayer is, however, not excused in any circumstances, as long as man is alive. If anyone faints or becomes unconscious and misses six prayers in this condition, these six, prayers are excused, but not otherwise and as long as he is in his senses and alive.

One should not worry during sickness

Sometimes during sickness a man is compelled to pray sitting instead of standing or lying instead of sitting. Some men feel dejected on account of this inability and unnecessarily torture their minds. As already mentioned, the Holy Prophet ﷺ has provided solace and encouragement that if you give up these deeds on account of sickness, Allah by His mercy, records the reward of these deeds which man used to do during the days of his normal health.

Give up your own choice.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said in a Hadith:

"ان اللہ یحب ان توتی رخصه کما یحب ان توتی عزائمه"

(مجمع الزوائد، جلد ۳ صفحه ۱۶۲)

(Majma-uz-zwaid, vol. 3, p. 162)

Just as Allah likes action on His determined command in the same way He likes action on allowed concessions on occasions of sickness and inability. Therefore, do not care for your own choice, because only that course of action is desirable which Allah also desires:

It is Sunnah to take the easier course

Some people are hardship-loving by their very nature and want to undertake difficult jobs. In fact, they are always looking for difficult tasks under a misconception that thereby they can earn more reward. This, however is not the practice of the Sunnah. The practice of the Sunnah is mentioned in this Hadith:

"ما خير رسول الله ﷺ بين امرين قط الا اخذ ايسر هما" صحيح بخاری،

كتاب الادب،حديث نمبر ٦١٢٦

(Sahih Bukhari, Kitabul-Adab, Hadith no: 6126)

This means that when the Holy Prophet ﷺ had to choose between two alternatives, he always chose the easier one.

Was this practice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ due to ease-loving or indolence? Never! Such ideas cannot be entertained about the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The reason for this practice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ is that in choosing the easier alternative there is more devotion and ease. In this practice there is no display of bravery before Allah. It is rather a display of weakness, humbleness and slavery before Omnipotent Allah. Choosing the difficult alternative may be taken as a show of arrogance.

Deen* (Religion) is the name of compliance

Deen is not the name of any special practice or action, nor the name of completing one's routine programme or following the dictates of one's own habits. Deen is the name of obeying the injunctions prescribed therein by Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. It is the name of giving up one's own preferences and wishes in preferences to Allah's commands. It is the name of total submission to His will. It is not a matter of regret if one is praying while sitting instead of standing during sickness or some other disability. You should feel sure that the easier course taken by you under some duress is appreciated by Allah. On this occasion you should forget your preference of praying in the normal way. It is no devotion and submission at all to insist upon one's own choice.

Do not show your bravery to Allah

When it is the will of Allah that His servant should groan under pain he must groan. Once a saint visited another ailing saint. The latter was suffering from much pain and distress but instead of groaning, he was rehearsing "Allah, Allah" and "Al-Hamdu lillah (Praise be to Allah). The visitor saint said to the ailing saint: O brother! your rehearsing "Al-hamdu lillaah" is highly appreciable but this is the time for praying to Allah for the grant of recovery from the ailment. Uttering "Al-hamdu-lillaah" during this suffering is a show of bravery before Allah, as if you are saying to Allah: You have made me sick but I am too brave to express pain by groans. Such conduct is not the expression of servitude before Allah. Expression of servitude before Allah is to display submission and humbleness. Call upon Allah as a helpless and humble slave, when He so desires, just as Hazrat Ayyub عليه السلام had done:

اَنِّیْ مَسَّنِیَ الضُّرُّ وَاَنْتَ اَرْحَمُ الرّٰحِمِیْنَ (سورۃ الانبیاء: ۸۳)

This means: (O Allah!) Distress has fallen on me and You are the Most Merciful of those that are merciful.(21:83)

So when some distress has fallen on man and Allah wills that he should express his distress by groaning, then pleasure lies in these groans; and this is the real spirit of devotion. To resist pain and distress to an undue degree is also against the spirit of sincere devotion.

The Highest Status of man.

Remember that the highest status of man is the status of being a servant (of Allah). How many attributes has Almighty Allah mentioned in the Holy Qur'an for the Holy Prophet ﷺ :

إِنَّا أَرْسَلْنَاكَ شَاهِدًا وَّمُبَشِّرًا وَّنَذِيرًا ۝ وَّدَاعِيًا إِلَى اللهِ بِإِذْنِهِ وَسِرَاجًا مُّنِيرًا

(سورة الأحزاب : ٤٥، ٤٦)

That is, I have sent you as a witness, a bearer of glad tidings, a warner, a caller to Allah with His permission and illuminating candle. (33: 45-46)

How grand these are, yet on the occasion of the (Ascension), when Allah called the Holy Prophet ﷺ to Him. He remembered him by the simple attribute of servant).

"سُبْحَانَ الَّذِيْ أَسْرٰى بِعَبْدِهٖ" (سورة بنی اسرائیل :

Glorified is He who carried His servant... (17:1)

Here Allah did not use the attributes of "witness", giver of glad tidings and illuminating candle etc. Instead, He has used the attribute of servant just to tell that servitude is the highest status of man. The highest status of man before Allah is that of servitude, humbleness and help-lessness.

Do you desire to crush the pride of the beloved?

Muhammad Zaki Kaifi was my elder brother رحمة الله عليه. Who was a very good poet. Once he composed a line whose correct meaning the people could not understand. He has expressed the same meaning very beautifully in the following couplet.

اس قدر بھی ضبط غم اچھا نہیں
توڑنا ہے حسن کا پندار کیا

(کیفیات :زکی کیفی ص ۱۴۱)

(Kafiyat Zaki. p. 141)

Someone has inflicted you with a grief and you endure that so completely that even the cry of 'Ah,' Oh, does not escape from your mouth. Do you want by this endurance to crush the pride of him who inflicted you with that grief? Do you want to display before him your bravery? This is not the duty of a servant. A servant's duty is to call upon Allah to relieve him of the distress which Allah has inflicted on him. If Allah has sent down on you some grief, you are required to express that grief within the limits prescribed by the Shari'ah, as did our Holy Prophet ﷺ on the death of his son:

إِنَّا بِفِرَاقِكَ يَا إِبْرٰهِيْمُ لَمَحْزُوْنُوْنَ

"O Ibrahim! We are grieved at your departure".

(Sahih Bukhari Book on Funerals Hadith no: 1303)

To sum up, the servant should be pleased with the condition in which Allah wants to keep him. If Allah wants you to offer the prayer while lying down, do that without hesitation. This mode of praying will bring you the same reward as praying in the normal standing posture.

The Fasting Days of Ramadhan will come back

Our Dr. Muhammad Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to relate an incident related to him by Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanavi رحمة الله عليه . A man had to give up his fasting during Ramadhan because of his sickness for which he felt very much aggrieved and dejected. The saint told the man: There is no cause for grief. Think for whom you were fasting. If you are fasting only for your pleasure and satisfaction, then you may lament for the loss. However, if you had been fasting for Allah's pleasure then, Allah has Himself allowed to give up fasting during Ramadhan because of sickness. Thus the object has been attained in either way. There is a Hadith to this effect:

ليس من البر الصيام فى السفر (صحيح بخارى، كتاب الصوم، باب قول النبى ﷺ : ليس من البر الصوم فى السفر، حديث نمبر ١٩٤٦)

(Sahih Bukhari, Book of Siyam... Hadith no: 1946)

It is no righteousness to fast during a journey when fasting becomes very hard and unbearable. When you compensate these missed days of fasting in other ordinary days, you will receive all the blessings, spiritual gains and rewards which you would have received by fasting during Ramadhan. For such a sick person the Ramadhan days will come back. It is not at all necessary to feel sorry if fasting is being missed on account of some Shara'i handicap, viz., sickness, journey, during the natural handicap in the case of women. In such a situation Allah's pleasure lies in giving up fasting. You will receive the same reward and blessings without fasting which others are receiving by fasting. All the benefits of the Ramadhan fasting will revert to you when you compensate for your missed fasting during other convenient days.

Allah resides in broken hearts

A man who has to give up fasting during sickness or journey feels dejected and aggrieved and broken hearted. Allah is pleased with a man's state of dejection and grief, whether it is due to some shock, sorrow, anxiety, Allah's fear or the fear of the Hereafter, etc. A heart so broken becomes the target of Allah's mercy and bounty.

According to a divine narrative Allah has said:

انا عندالمنكسرة قلوبهم من اجلى(اتحاف: ٦/٢٩٠)

I am with those whose hearts are broken for my sake. (At-haf 6/290)

(Although the Muhaddiseen, have described this Hadith as baseless; yet the meaning contained in it is correct).

The heart of a man frequently receives shocks in various ways, e.g. anxieties, troubles, accidents and casualities, etc. thus the heart is being broken, but why? Just to make it a target for Allah's mercy and bounty. consider this couplet of Dr. Iqbal:

نہ چا چا کے تو رکھ اسے تیرا آئینہ ہے وہ آئینہ
جو شکستہ ہو تو عزیزتر ہے نگاہِ آئینہ ساز میں

(اقبال)

The heart is like a mirror. Do not prevent it from being broken. Its breakage is dearer in the sight of its maker (i.e. Allah), than its safety. Almighty Allah being indeed the maker.

Our Dr. Hazrat Muhammad Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to recite a couplet of poetry. He used to say that when Almighty Allah breaks the heart of any of His servants He desires to lift him to greater heights. These shocks, anxieties and sorrows which come to men are forced exertions in the path of Deen (faith) by which men progress by leaps and bounds to higher degrees and this is not possible in normal circumstances. He frequently recited this couplet:

یہ کہہ کے کاسہ ساز نے پیالہ پٹک دیا
اب اور کچھ بنائیں گے اس کو بگاڑ کے

The potter threw down the pot to break it saying that after breaking it he would re-shape it (in a better form).

Thus, when this heart is broken, it becomes the receptacle of Allah's mercies and divine reflections. He also used to recite another couplet:

بتان ماہ وش اجڑی ہوئی منزل میں رہتے ہیں
جسے برباد کرتے ہیں اسی کے دل میں رہتے ہیں

The moon-like beloved ones take up their residence in deserted houses. They reside in the heart of those whom they ruin.

The divine lights penetrate into broken hearts, so do not be afraid of these occasions of sorrows and shocks. If you truly and firmly believe in Allah then this broken heart, these rising sighs and these tears will take you to greater heights of spiritual achievements:

وادی عشق بسے دور و دراز است ولے
طے شود جادہ صد سالہ بہ آہے گاہے

(اقبال)

The valley of love is too far off, but some time a hundred years' long journey is covered with one sigh, in the twinkling of an eye. Man should not therefore, get dejected and disappointed with these shocks, anxieties and worries.

Deen is nothing but submission and contentment

May Almighty Allah make us understand well that Deen is not the name of fulfilling our wishes and usual habits. Deen is the name of the habit of doing without hesitation what we are being commanded to do. The real success lies in the attainment of Allah's pleasure; it lies neither in prayer, nor fasting nor in any other deed.

عشق تسلیم و رضا کے ماسوا کچھ بھی نہیں
وہ وفا سے خوش نہ ہوں تو پھر وفا کچھ بھی نہیں

(کیفیات۔زکی کیفی ۲۰۳)

Love is nothing but submission and loyalty. If the beloved is not pleased with loyalty, then loyalty too has no value. (Kafiyat Zaki Kaifi- p. 203)

That deed is good and worth doing and tasteful with which Allah is pleased.

نہ تو ہے ہجر ہی اچھا نہ وصال اچھا ہے
یار جس حال میں رکھے وہی حال اچھا ہے

(غالب)

Neither separation is good, nor union is good;
Good is the condition in which my beloved wants to keep me. (Ghalib)

If Allah impresses upon our hearts this truth, then the paths to the understanding of Deen will open before us.

Missing routine acts on account of nursing a patient

It has already been explained in the foregoing pages that if some routine acts are missed during sickness, the same reward and blessings are recorded in favour of the sick person which used to be recorded when he actually did those acts during the days of his good health. The learned men of religion have said that this concession is also available to a person for whom it has become binding to attend on a sick person and nurse him. For example, a son is occupied in nursing his ailing father on account of which he is able neither to offer his optional prayers, nor to recite the Qur'an nor complete his routine rehearsals. All these occupations are being missed because the son is busy with nursing his father day and night. Despite this, the reward of his regular deeds are being credited to his account as usual.

Keep an eye on the needs of the time

Our respected Dr. Muhammad Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to give very useful advice: It is true that little hints received from the elders prove helpful in reforming the life. Keep an eye on the needs of the times He used to say: Do not look to what you feel interested in doing, but try to find out, and act up to, the demands of the times. This is what Allah wants you to do. For example, you had chalked out a programme for offering Tahajjud, reciting so many Parts of the Qur'an and so on. However, when the time arrives for these actions, your wife falls sick and you are compelled to postpone your programmes in order to do other things in attending on your sick wife. You feel disturbed on account of these sudden changed factors. As stated, it is your duty to respond to the demands of the time which is to help and nurse your ailing wife, although this may seem some what repulsive to you. Now Allah's pleasure lies in your looking after your wife's health and by so doing you shall receive all the rewards which you would have received in following your set programme of deeds. Indeed this is our Deen.

It is not Deen to satisfy one's wishes

Our Hazrat Maulana Maseehullah Khan Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say that it is not Deen (Faith) to satisfy ones own desires; Deen is to obey Allah and Allah's Prophet ﷺ. It is not at all Deen to hanker after a certain personal choice, e.g. the wish to study religious courses and become a theologian, whether one is qualified or not for that line of study. Some member of the family, father, mother or any other person is seriously ill and there is none to look after him and the son is intent upon going to school. This is not Deen. In such a situation Deen is to devote one's services exclusively to nurse the sick in the family.

The desire to become a Mufti
(A Doctor in the Religious Science)

For example, one desires earnestly to specialise in the religious studies and become a Mufti. Many students in the Darul-Uloom, express this desire. When asked about the desire of their fathers about their choice they say that their parents are not agreeable to such programme of study. Now look! They want to qualify themselves as Muftis against the will of their fathers. This is not Deen; it is only the satisfaction of their desire.

The Desire to preach religion (Tabligh)

Another example may be given of a person who wants to go out for Tabligh for a period of forty days (Chilla). In the ordinary circumstances this is a very praiseworthy, useful and righteous work, but not when someone in the family is sick and requires an attendant. Going out for a a 40 days (Chilla) in such a situation is not Deen; it is merely the desire to satisfy one's own choice. The demand of the time is that the sick should be looked after, properly nursed and given medical treatment. All this is not worldly work; it is pure Deen.

The desire to go to the Mosque for Prayer

Hazrat Maulana Masihullah Khan Sahib رحمة الله عليه once set an example in his assembly. He said: A man is living with his wife all alone in a deserted place in a forest. The husband felt a longing to offer prayer in the mosque in the nearby township. The wife does not like the programme of her husband, because she would feel afraid and helpless if left alone in that forest. She, therefore, requests her husband to pray in the house; but the husband does not care for his wife and goes out for prayer in a distant mosque, leaving behind his wife all alone. This is not at all Deen. The demand of the time was that the husband should have prayed in his house for the sake of his wife.

This advice holds good in a case where the couple are living all alone in a deserted place. If they are living in a populated village or town, then it is all right to go to the mosque for prayer.

Someone is desirous to go out for taking part in Jihad, another to join a Tablighi tour, still there is another who wants to become a Maulana or a Mufti, unmindful of the many obligatory duties that lie on him. It is not at all Deen to ignore these demands of the time and insist on satisfying one's own desires.

The advice to get oneself attached to a Shaikh (spiritual guide) is for this very purpose. The Shaikh tells his disciples what the demands of the times are. This never means that I am advising against becoming a Mufti or going on a Chilla (period of 40 days) for Tabligh or proceeding on Jihad. The intention is to say that all these are highly valuable duties, but each in its proper time. A man has to find out what the time demands of him. It is not Deen to determine a course of action of one's own choice and follow it ignoring other important considerations, particularly the advice of the Shaikh, if any, one may have chosen for guidance.

The auspicious and fortunate among the wives is one whom her husband loves

My respected father Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to mention frequently a proverb of the Hindi language. Its meaning is brought out in the following example. A young damsel is being lavishly decorated with best matrimonial robes and ornaments to make her an attractive bride. As a bride she looks so beautiful and charming that everyone is praising her appearance, garments and make-up, yet she remains dumb found. Someone asked the reason for her silence she quietly says: The praise of these persons is of no use to me. What really matters is the praise and appreciation of my prospective husband for whose sake I have been decorated. If unfortunately my would-be husband does not like and appreciate me, the praise and appreciation of these guests are meaningless.

My servant is displeased with both the Worlds only for My sake

After relating this story, my respected father went on saying: If you are doing anything, you must think if the person for whom you are doing the work appreciates that work. The people are praising you as a Mufti, a great learned man and Maulana or a Muballigh having spent a long time in Tabligh, or someone calls you a great Mujahid. These expressions of praise and appreciation mean nothing unless the deeds or the titles are appreciated by the personality for the sake of whom these are being done and intended. This idea is beautifully expressed in the following couplet of Zafar Ali Khan Sahib:

توحید تو یہ ہے کہ خدا حشر میں کہہ دے
یہ بندہ دو عالم سے خفا میرے لئے ہے
(ظفر علی خان)

The true belief in Tauheed (oneness of Allah) is that in recognition of which Allah shall declare on the Day of Resurrection that this servant of mine is displeased with the two worlds only for my sake.

All this discussion suggests that if the aim of every deed is to please Allah, then man should always be on the look out as to what is being demanded of him on the moment.

Give up Remembrance at the time of Azan (Prayer Call)

A man is busy with remembrance of Allah, but no sooner does he hears the words of the Azan than he responds to the command of stopping his remembrance. This command requires that on hearing the Azan one should reply to the words of the Azan and stop all other things, as listening to the Azan and responding to its words are the most imperative and pressing engagement.

All good lies in the obedience to My Command

Almighty Allah has appointed Hajj as a wonderful and unique form of worship. If you closely look into the various rituals of the Hajj you will find that Almighty Allah has allowed flagrant violations of His own commands on this occasion. Just see that the reward for offering one time prayer in the Masjid Haram is equal to that of one lakh prayers offered elsewhere. But on the 8 th of Zilhijjah the command is issued to leave Masjid Haram and camp at Mina. There is neither the Haram nor the Ka'bah, nor Wuqoof, nor any work, like the Rami and the Jamarat. The command was given to ignore the reward of one lakh prayers and offer instead, five prayers in the forest of Mina. Why all this? Just to tell the believers that neither this Ka'bah has any value nor the Haram nor the Masjid Haram, but it is my command that has value. If you pray in the Masjid Haram you will get the reward for one lakh prayers. When Allah commands to leave the Masjid Haram, if someone still insists on staying and praying in this mosque, then not only will he not get the reward for one lakh prayers but the man will also be committing a sin of violating Allah's command.

Namaz (Prayer) is not an end in itself

Great emphasis has been laid in the Qur'an and the Sunnah on offering Namaz (prayer) in its prescribed time. The Qur'an says:

اِنَّ الصَّلٰوةَ كَانَتْ عَلَى الْمُؤْمِنِيْنَ كِتَاباً مَّوْقُوْتاً (سورۃ النساء ۱۰۳)

That is prayer on fixed times has been enjoined on the believers. (An-Nisa : 103)

It has been made binding upon the believers to offer prayers on the fixed times and not earlier or later. As for the Maghrib prayer stress has been laid that it should be offered as early as possible on the arrival of the fixed time: Despite this if anyone offers this prayer with haste on the plain of the Arafah during the Hajj days this Namaz will not be valid. The Holy Prophet ﷺ was coming out of the plain of Arafah at the Maghrib time and Hazrat Bilal رضی اللہ عنہ was reminding him of salat by saying: Assalaat, O Prophet ﷺ of Allah; Assalaat, O Prophet ﷺ of Allah. The Holy Prophet ﷺ was replying to Bilal: Assalaat is ahead of you. This was only to teach that there was nothing in the time fixed for the Maghrib prayer itself, and all that is important lies in obeying Allah's command. When the order was to offer the Maghrib prayer early, the reward lay in early praying. When it was ordered that the Maghrib prayer should be delayed and offered later on along with the Isha prayer, then it became obligatory to obey this order during the Hajj days. Allah has Himself allowed violation of His own orders from step to step. Thus He ordered advanced offering of the Asr prayer and delayed offering of the Maghrib prayer and every action was almost turned up side down from the normal course. It is only to teach that prayer, fasting or any other form of worship is not important in itself; what is important is obedience to Allah's commands and seeking His pleasure and that is all.

Why hurry in breaking the Fast?

Command has been given that a fasting man should, on the arrival of the fast-breaking time, hurry in breaking the fast and it has been declared a repulsive act to delay in fast breaking without justification. Why is it so? It was worthy of reward to be hungry and thirsty during fasting till the fixed time. When the permission for eating and drinking at the end of the fast has been given, it is a sin to violate this order by delaying the fast breaking, in so doing violation of Allah's order is involved.

Why delay in taking Sihri (the pre-dawn food)?

It has been declared preferable to take Sihri rather delayed within the prescribed time. It is against the Sunnah to take Sihri very early and then to go to sleep. Sihri should be taken just when the prescribed time is about to expire.

Why so? It is because if a person takes Sihri much earlier and goes to bed then he extends the fasting period by his own free will and goes out of the discipline of obedience. The intention of mentioning all these points is to emphasize the formula that all good lies in obeying Allah. A servant is always bound to obey the orders of his Master.'

A servant is not free in his own will

Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Hasan Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say that there is a servant or employee who is allotted a job, to sweep the house, and he is not responsible to do any work other than his allotted job. Again there is a servant employed to work eight hours only. After completing eight hours, he is off. There is another category of the slave who has neither an allotted duty nor specified hours of work. He is duty bound to obey his master and do whatever he is ordered to do and as long as his master desires. If his master asks him to work as a judge he will work as a judge and if the master asks him to work as a cleaner of lavatories he will do that work as well. Thus he has free will neither in the matter of his duty nor the length of time. Yet there is another status beyond that of a servant and that is the or the slave. This little or slave is used with reference to the real Master Allah. The difference between the two becomes quite clear. The ordinary servant does not worship his master but the slave worships his master. He has no will of his own. He is subject to the will of his Master who is Allah. This position of the slave represents the spirit of Deen.

Tell me why are you doing this work?

I have drawn up a time table for my day's work and fixed a period of time for each of my duties, e.g. writing books, taking classes for teaching, and so on. After studying some books and collecting my thoughts I take up the pen to write, suddenly someone calls on me, bids Assalamu ʿalaikum and extends his hand for a hand-shake. In such a situation, as is very natural, I feel very much distracted and the mental plan set up so studiously is totally shattered. This continues every day from morning till evening. This results in great mental torture and disappointment on account of the failure of the entire day's timetable. May Allah bless Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمة الله عليه that he came to my rescue at such an irritating moment. He asked, after all what is the aim of all these activities like writing books teaching students and Fatawa writing etc? He said:

If these activities are intended for projecting you as a great writer, a great teacher or Fatawa writer that a grand biography may be written of you, then indeed the unexpected visit of the person is an undesirable intrusion in your work. As such, you may feel sorry for your loss in time and work and the ultimate result. You should consider what is the use of all these activities. Is it the earning of fame and public applause? If so, then, all your efforts and labour are totally lost and gone to the winds, as your work has no value in the sight of Allah. On the other hand, if you are working for the pleasure of Allah, then it does not matter whether you are able to work according to your timetable or you are prevented from that. If Allah is pleased with your set programme of working then this is welcome and desirable. If Allah is pleased with your conduct during the upsetting of your working programme, then this, disturbing situation, is preferable. You should respond to the demand of the time which in the present situation is to satisfy and cooperate with the persons who call upon you for some purpose. He too has a claim on you which you should meet. You should bear in mind that the attention paid to this man to meet his need is now more valuable and praiseworthy in the sight of Allah than the undisturbed completion of your timetable. You have to keep a watchful eye on the demand of the time and try to respond to that demand. This is Deen and it means that you should forget yourself and surrender yourself totally to the pleasure of Allah. In everything you want to do, look for Allah's pleasure and then adapt yourself accordingly. You should not care for your own plans and programmes, because they are always subject to failure during sickness, journeys and other disturbing factors of the times. Take care of Allah's will and pleasure and, in turn, Allah's protective vigilance will take care of your problems and programmes.

Hazrat Owais Qarni رحمة الله عليه

Hazrat Owais Qarni رحمة الله عليه had not the good fortune of seeing the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Is there any Muslim who does not long for a vision of the Prophet ﷺ when such a vision is possible, particularly person is living in the Prophet's time? This was Hazrat Owais Qarni رحمة الله عليه whom the Prophet ﷺ desired to serve his mother instead of trying to see him . Hazrat Owais preferred to continue to serve his old mother depriving himself of the honour of visiting the Holy Prophet ﷺ. What was the result? The unique rank of Hazrat Owais Qarni was that the Companions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ who had been honoured with the companionship of the Prophet ﷺ used to call upon Hazrat Qarni for blessings and intercession to Allah. There is a Hadith to the effect that the Holy Prophet ﷺ once told Hazrat Umar Farooq رضى الله عنه that an Ummati of his lived in Qarn who in obedience to the order of Allah and the Prophet ﷺ preferred the blessing of serving his mother to the honour of meeting the Prophet ﷺ If there had been a disobedient person he would have set off to meet the Holy Prophet ﷺ, leaving behind his mother, unattended and uncared for, just to satisfy his own self-will. Hazrat Owais Qarni was a true and obedient believer who realised that what Allah and His Prophet ﷺ desired was worthy of attention and action and his own preference had no value in these special circumstances.

(Sahih Muslim, Fazail Hazrat Owais Qarni Hadith no: 2542)

This is the root of all Bid'aah (Innovations)

All these bid'aah prevailing in the world may be eradicated if the truth is realised fully that our own choice means nothing in the presence of Allah's choice. What does Bid'ah mean? It means devising our own ways and means to serve and please Allah. for example, we have established the festival of 12th Rabiul-Awwal of our own free will in support of which there is evidence and authority neither from Allah, nor from His Prophet ﷺ, nor did the noble Companions ever celebrate such a festival. We have derived this festival without any authority, only to serve our own interests. Likewise, we have invented the Teeja (3rd days) and Chehlam (40th day) gatherings to commemorate the death of our men without consulting the injunctions of the Shari'ah. This is nothing but the grievous sin of Bid'ah about which it has been said:

كل محدث بدعة وكل بد عة ضلالة (سنن نسائی، كتاب صلاة العيدين باب كيف الخطبة، حديث نمبر ۱۵۷۸)

(Nisai, chapter on salat-ul-Eedain, Hadith no: 1578)

That is, every Bid'at (innovation) is an act of going astray from the right path. Teeja (third day after death) looks to be a very good deed in which the Qur'an is recited and food is distributed among the people. What sin is there in this? The sin involved in this is that all this is being done without Allah's permission and against the course taught by the Holy Prophet ﷺ That is why the apparently nice deed is not acceptable to Allah.

میرے محبوب میری ایسی وفا سے توبہ
جو ترے دل کی کدورت کا سبب بن جائے

(کیفیات۔زکی کیفی ص ۷۸)

(Kaifiyyat Zaki Kaifi p. 78)

That is this is, an act which looks to be loyalty, but that is disgustful to my beloved. So I seek refuge from this act. This is Bid'ah from which you should keep yourself away. Try to do what Allah and His Prophet ﷺ want you to do and there ends the matter. Do not create a new Deen of your own.

Entrust your case to Allah

What a beautiful point Maulana Roomi رحمة الله عليه has mentioned!

چونکہ بر میخت ببند و بستہ باش
چوں کشاید چابک و برجستہ باش

If the beloved throws you aside after binding your hands and feet, remain in this condition, but jump and be playful when he removes your bondage.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ, has also said alike that, you should not feel afraid of sickness. Allah has allowed certain concessions and relaxations during sickness and He is pleased with His servant when he avails himself of these concessions. It is necessary that you should take proper care to benefit from this facility provided by the Shari'ah. May Allah enable us to understand this point. Aameen.

The importance of thanksgiving and its method

The last Hadith of this chapter is as follows:

عن انس رضی اللہ عنہ قال قال رسول اللہ صلی اللہ علیہ وسلم ان اللہ لیرضی عن العبدان یا کل الاکلة فیحمدہ علیھا او یشرب الشربة فیحمدہ علیھا۔(صحیح مسلم، کتاب الذکر والدعاء، باب استحباب حمد اللہ تعالیٰ بعد الاکل والشرب، حدیث نمبر ۲۸۳٤)

(Saheeh Muslim, chapter on thanksgiving an eating, drinking, Hadith no: 2734)

Hazrat Anas رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Allah is pleased with that servant who eats a morsel of food and thanks Allah for that and drinks a draught of water and again thanks Allah for that.

This means to say that Allah is highly pleased with that servant who thanks Allah for every favour and bounty received from Him.

I have stated repeatedly that thanksgiving is a most important form of worship. It is not possible for weak persons, as we are, to undergo hard Mujahidat and difficult spiritual exercises which the saints underwent in the past. Dr. Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ advised us to act upon a very easy formula to attain spiritual excellence. That formula is the forming of the habit of thanking Allah on every bounty and fovour He is granting us every moment, like eating, drinking, enjoying some comfort, some nice scene and thousands of other blessings. Form the habit of saying (Alhamdulillah- praise be to Allah); (Allahuma lakal-hamdu wa la-kash- shukr - O Allah to you is praise and thanks). This habit is an infallible treatment for spiritual maladies like, pride, jealousy greed, malice, etc. This is the experiment of our saints and it is based on firm and final Shara'i injunction.

The effective weapon of Satan is the generation of ingratitude

When Almighty condemned accursed satan and turned him out of His Court, Satan requested Allah to allow him respite for the whole life time. Almighty Allah accepted his request. Then Satan said that he would misguide Allah's servants, whom he would approach from all sides and would lead them astray from the right path. At last he said:

وَلَا تَجِدُ اَكْثَرَهُمْ شٰكِرِيْنَ (سورۃ الاعراف:۱۷)

That is: you shall not find most of them grateful. (7:17)

The counter - measure against Satan -- Thanksgiving

Hazrat Thanwi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has said on this topic as follows:

The satan's basic weapon of leading astray the servants of Allah is to generate and spread ingratitude. If this vice finds access to the people, it may generate many other vices. This vice may be counteracted by promoting the virtue of thanksgiving. The more one thanks Allah the safer one shall become from Satan's attack. Therefore, the most effective way of escaping from spiritual diseases is to form the habit of rendering thanks to Allah at all times of the day rising. Sitting and lying, by rehearsing the words. This will, God willing, counteract effectively Satan's attacks.

Always drink cold water

Hazrat Al-hajj Imdadullah Sahib, Muhajir Makki رحمۃ اللہ علیہ used to advise his disciple in this way: Mian Ashraf Ali, always drink cold water so that every vein and hair on your body may feel grateful to Allah. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that one of the three things most desirable for him is cold water. It is not established from any source that care was taken to bring any item of food for the Holy Prophet ﷺ from some other place but special arrangements were made to obtain water for him from a well named Ghars situated at a distance of about three miles from Madinah Munawwarah. The Haji Sahib has pointed out the secret of drinking cold water by saying that when it is drunk in a state of thirst every pore and hair of the body turns grateful to Allah.

A Recollection of the blessings enjoyed during the day and thanksgiving for them before sleeping

Before falling into sleep on your bed at night you should recollect in your mind the blessings enjoyed and pay thanks to Allah for each one by one, e.g., the house is safe and secure, the food was nice, the bedding is comfortable and you are in good health, and the children are also hale and hearty; for each blessing say: اللهم لك الحمد ولك الشكر make it your habit to repeat these words continuously.

Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to relate a story about his maternal grandfather. Dr. Sahib says, once he visited the house of his maternal grandfather he saw that the latter, before falling into sleep, was rehearsing these words اللهم لك الحمد ولك الشكر and that he was doing this in a strange state of ecstasy. On being asked about this act he replied, saying: At this time I try to recollect all the blessings of Allah that I enjoyed during the day and I utter these words of thanks for each and every blessing. Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه has said that since that moment he too included this practice in his daily routines and repeated it before going to bed.

An easy way of Thanksgiving

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us each and every act of righteousness for which we cannot thank him ﷺ enough. Shaikh S'adi, the famous poet saint of Shiraz, Iran, has said that for every breathe two thanks are due. If you breathe in but are not able to breathe out or breath out but are not able to breathe in, death is sure. Thus two thanks are due on every breathe which we take. It is therefore, not possible for man to render thanks for the untold number of breathes of his life."وَاِنْ تَعُدُّوْا نِعْمَةَ اللهِ لَا تُحْصُوْهَا" (If you try to count the blessings of Allah you cannot count them) The Holy Prophet ﷺ has therefore, taught his Ummah a method of rendering thanks which every Muslim should learn and follow:

"اللهم لك الحمد حمدا دائما مع دوامك، وخالدامع خلودك، ولك الحمد حمدا لا منتهٰى له دون مشيتك، ولك الحمد حمد الا يريد قائله الا رضاك" (كنزالعمال، ض ٢ ص ٢٢٣، حديث نمبر ٣٨٥٧)

(Kunzul-umaal vol.II P. 223 Hadith No: 3857)

This means: O Allah thanks are due to you, everlasting thanks to last with your lasting; to remain eternal with your eternity; thanks which have no end, without your will; praise is for you such that the man praising has no wish but your pleasure.

In another Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said:

اللهم لك الحمد زنة عرشك ومداد كلماتك وعدد خلقك ورضا نفسك۔(ابو داؤد، كتاب الصلاة، باب التسبيح بالخفى)

(Abu Dawud, Book of Salah chapter on silent Tasbeeh)

This means: O Allah! praise is for you equal to the weight of your 'Arsh and the ink used in writing your words and the number of your creatures and the pleasure of your self.

It is mentioned in the Holy Quran that if someone wants to write words of Allah, he cannot do that even if the water of the seven oceans are used as writing ink; I thank you equal to the number your creation which covers Jinn, men, animals and all animate and inanimate objects. In the end He ﷺ said: I thank you as much as may please you. Men should, therefore, rehearse these words daily at the time of going to bed:

اللهم لك الحمد مليا عند طرفة كل عين۔ و تنفس نفس (کنزالعمال، ج ۲ ص ۲۲۳، حدیث نمبر ۳۸۵۷)

(Kanzul Ummal, vol. II, p. 223 Hadith no: 3857)

O Allah! All praise be for you during the twinkling of every eye and the breathing of every breath.

The chapter is closed with the sincere advice that the sacred words taught by the Holy Prophet ﷺ for rendering thanks to Allah should be learnt and remembered and should be uttered every day at the time of going to bed. Aameen!

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين۔

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram,
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi.
Date : Friday, 18th October, 1991
After 'Asr Prayers

The greatest evil of Bid'ah (Innovation) is that man himself begins to play the role of the inventor of religion, although Allah Alone is the Inventor of religion. The Bid'ati (Innovator) claims inwardly that whatever he says is religion; and that he knows religion -- God forbid - more than Allah and His Prophet ﷺ and that he is more religious than the noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. What the Bid'ati says and does is no religion. It is only the fulfilment of his desires.

BID'AH (INNOVATION), A HEINOUS SIN

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه و نستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه، و نعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهدان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهدان سيدنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله

اما بعد:

عن جابر رضى الله تعالى عنه قال كان رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم اذا خطب احمرت عيناه و علا صوته واشتد غضبه حتى كانه منذر جيش يقول صبحكم ومساكم، ويقول: بعثت انا والساعة كهاتين ويقرن بين اصبعيه السبابة والوسطى ويقول

امابعد :

فان خيرالحديث كتاب الله و خيرالهدى هدى محمد صلى الله عليه وسلم وشرالا مورمحدثا تها وكل بدعة ضلالة ثم يقول انا اولى بكل مومن من نفسه من ترك مالا فلا هله ومن ترك دينا اوضيا عا فالى وعلى

(صحیح مسلم، کتاب الجمعة، باب تخفیف الصلاة والخطبة. حدیث نمبر ۸۶۷)

All praise is to Allah. We praise Him and seek His help, and we believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the mischief of our souls and from the vices of our deeds. There is none to lead him astray whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. We bear witness that there is no God but Allah alone and that He has no partner. We also bear witness that our sire, our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad is His servant and His Messenger.

(Sahih Muslim, Hadith no: 867)

The meanings of the words Jabir (جابر) and Jabbar (جبار).

This Hadith is narrated from Hazrat Jabir bin Abdullah رضی اللہ عنہ who had a special status with the Holy Prophet ﷺ resided in Madinah and his name was Jabir. Some people doubt that the word Jabir means a tyrant, Why then was this name given to a companion? The same doubt arises about Allah's exalted name Jabbar (جبار). The word (جبار) means in the Urdu language a very great tyrant, so people generally doubt as to how this name was used for Almighty Allah.

These doubts are now being resolved. The word Jabbar is interpreted in the Urdu and the Arabic language differently. While in Urdu the word means a tyrant, in Arabic it means the setter of bones. As such, the word has not a bad meaning. Bone-setter is rather a nice meaning of the word Jabir. Likewise the word Jabbar is superlative degree of the word Jabir, meaning a most expert bone-setter. Thus Allah's name Jabbar does not mean a tyrant or the inflictor of punishments. It only means that Almighty Allah is one who joins together broken things.

The Setter of Broken bones is only one

That is why in one of the many Adʕiah (supplications) which the Holy Prophet ﷺ taught his Ummah, Almighty Allah has been called by the following words:

"یا جابر العظم الکسیر" (الحزب الاعظم ملا علی قاری، ص۲۲۳)

O, Setter of broken bones. (Alhizbul Azam, Mulla Ali Qari, p. 223)

Allah has been called by this name, because it is a unanimously agreed opinion of all the physicians, surgeons and bone specialists that there is no medicine and no treatment for joining together broken bones. All that man can do is to place the broken parts together in position and after this there is no medicine, whatsoever, to be applied to the broken pieces. The personality who alone does the setting of the bones is Allah. It is in this sense that Allah is called Jabbar, and not as the people commonly misunderstand the meaning of this word.

The meaning of the word Qah-haar

The word Qah-haar (قہار) is also one of the ninety-nine names of Almighty Allah. In Urdu the word is wrongly taken to mean a Great Oppressor and inflictor of torture and distress on the people. The word Qah-haar included in the sacred names of Allah is the Arabic word Qah-haar which means All-Powerful, Omnipotent, i.e. the One that over powers and controls everything.

None of the names of Almighty Allah implies 'Punishment'

None of the names included in the list of the names of Allah implies punishment. All the names imply mercy or omnipotence etc. This is an evidence that the basic attribute of Allah connotes mercy, kindness, etc. He is Merciful and Kind to His servants. It is, however, different when His servants exceed the limits in sin and wrongdoing, and Allah's wrath and vengeance descend on them. His punishment is also a truth, as mentioned in many Quranic verses. But the word Punishment is not clearly mentioned among the "Beautiful Names" of Allah.

The state of the Holy Prophet ﷺ during delivering a sermon

Hazrat Jabir رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that:

كان رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم اذا خطب احمرت عيناه وعلا صوته واشتد غضبه

When the Holy Prophet ﷺ delivered his sermons among the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم, his eyes often used to become red and his voice rise high.

The reason of this was that the words of his sermon emanated from the core of his heart and it was his desire that his words should penetrate into the depths of the hearts of the audience, so that they may understand and act upon the advice given.

The Prophet's style of preaching (Deen)

حتى كانه منذر جيش يقول صبحكم ومساكم۔

At times it seemed as if the Prophet ﷺ was warning his audience against the imminent attack of an army approaching them very soon in the morning or the evening.

He thus exhorted them to be prepared to confront this army.

The army mentioned in the Hadith is a symbol for the Day of Judgement and the Day when man will have to appear in the presence of Allah to account for his deeds and to face Hell as a punishment for his sins. He ﷺ used to warn them that the dreadful day might overtake them at any moment so they should remain alert.

You might have heard that when the Holy Prophet ﷺ invited his people to Islam on the Safa hills for the first time, he assembled all the tribes of Makkah and called them, each by their names and put this question to them: Will you testify to or deny my statement if I tell you that a large army is waiting for you at the back of this hill and wants to attack you? All of them replied with one voice, saying: O Muhammad ﷺ, we shall testify your statement because you never told a lie in your life and you are renowned as truthful and trustworthy. Thereafter, the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: I inform you that a very grievous torment from Allah is waiting for you in the Hereafter. If you want to be safe from that torment, then believe in the oneness of Allah. (Sahih Bukhari kitab tafseer chapter 'Anzir' Ashirataka Hadith no: 4770)

The Familiar topic of the Arabs

This style of expression is most often found in the addresses of the Holy Prophet ﷺ: I am going to warn you against a very large army of the enemy that is ready to attack you. The Arabs were familiar with this expression of warning because they frequently fought against one another and remained engaged in attacking one another. They considered that man who informed them that an enemy was lying in wait for them and wanted to attack them was their well-wisher. The Holy Prophet ﷺ adopted the same familiar style in his address in which he invited his clans-men to Islam.

The Prophet's Mission and the approaching Day of Resurrection

He ﷺ further said :

بعثت انا والساعة كهاتين ويقرن بين اصبعيه السبابة والوسطى۔

I and the Day of Resurrection have been sent down like this: Raising up his index and middle fingers he said: Just as there is little space between these two fingers, in the same way there is not much space of time between me and the Day of Resurrection, and that Day is very close at hand.

When the Prophets عليه السلام sent among the past nations warned their people against the Day of Resurection, they mentioned to them the coming of the last Prophet ﷺ as a very prominent sign of the Day of Resurrection:

(اخرجه ابن ابى حاتم عن الحسن رضى الله عنه قوله: ــ فقد جاء اشراطها" قال: محمد صلى الله عليه وسلم عن اشراطها. تفسير الدر المنثور للسيوطى(آيت: فهل ينظرون الا الساعة ص ٦ ص ٥٠)

Ibn Abi Hatim brought it out from Hasan رضى الله عنه who said: Its signs have come and the coming of Muhammad ﷺ is one of its signs. Are they then waiting only for the Hour? Verse of Quran.

(Tafsir Darul-Mansur, Sayuti, vol. 6, p. 50)

The Resolution of a Difficulty

The people often feel perplexed that the Day of Resurrection has not arrived even fourteen centuries have passed since the arrival of the Holy Prophet.ﷺ This may be explained by saying that the period of 1400 or even 2000 or 3000 years is nothing as compared with the age of the universe. That is why the Prophet ﷺ said that the Day of Resurrection is very close to us.

Every man's death is his Day of Resurrection

However, far off the Day of Resurrection of the universe, as a whole, may be but the Day of Resurrection of every individual is undoubtedly very near at hand, because:

من مات فقد قامت قيامته (رواه الديلمى عن انس مرفوعا بلفظه: اذامات احد كم فقد قامت قيامته، المقاصد الحسنة للسخاوى. ص ٤٢٨)

Narrated by Dailmi from Anas رضى الله عنه, traceable with his words: (When anyone of you dies, in so far as he is concerned. the Day of Resurrection has arrived. Sakhavi p.428)

Thus, the day of a man's death is for him the Day of his Resurrection. The intentions of the Prophet's warning is to exhort every one to prepare himself in advance for rendering an account of his deeds so that he may save himself from the punishment of the grave as well as of the Hereafter.

The Best speech and the Best Life

فان خير الحديث كتاب الله وخير الهدى هدى محمد صلى الله عليه وسلم

The best speech of all the speeches in this world is the Book of Allah. No speech and no book can be conceived better, truer, purer and loftier in all respects than the Book of Allah that is the Qur'an. Similarly no life-style can be conceived pure and better than that of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Mind well that the Prophet ﷺ is himself making this claim that his way of living is the best of all. It was necessary for him ﷺ to make this claim, because it was the very purpose of his mission that Allah sent him to this world to serve as a beautiful model for his Ummah. It is, therefore, impressed upon all to follow the Holy Prophet ﷺ in all walks of life, rising, sitting, eating, drinking, sleeping, waking, dealing with other fellow-men and with Almighty Allah Himself. His ﷺ is indeed the best life-style.

Bid'ah (innovation) is the worst form of sin

The Prophet ﷺ then indicated such acts and deeds as may lead man to straying from the straight path.

شرالا مور محدثا تها و كل بدعة ضلالة

The worst and most hated deeds on the surface of this world are those which imply openly or secretly fresh additions to the Deen (Faith). The word "Worst" has been used in the Hadith, because Bid'ah is even worse than the sins committed openly. A man with the slightest trace of Eeman in his heart is sure to feel disgusted with the sins, evils and vices that are committed openly. A man is addicted to drinking wine, to lewdness, telling lies, backbiting, etc. If you ask him about these sins, he will admit that they are indeed bad, but he is unfortunately involved in them. When a man admits that a sin is sin there is every possibility that Allah shall help him to turn away from those sins.

As for Bid'ah (Innovation) which has been newly introduced to Religion is peculiar that in reality it is a sin, but the person who is committing it thinks that he is doing a very good deed. With such mistaken belief he is ready to argue with anyone who objects to his baseless innovation and often he begins to fight with the person raising the objection. When a person does not regard a sin as sin but regards it as a virtue worth cultivating he becomes confirmed in the sin. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has called it the "worst of all acts". As already pointed out Innovation is introducing in Deen (Faith) some practice or rite which is contrary to the pratice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and his sacred Companions رضی الله عنهم. The Prophet ﷺ has also said that a man who practises Innovation has definitely deviated from the right path of Deen.

Bid'ah is divergence from Belief

Deficiency may be of two types. There is a person who is deficient or slack in his duties. He is negligent and is committing sins and excesses. There is another person who is deficient or slack in his belief. He belives sin to be a virtue and infidelity to be faith. It is easy to remedy and eradicate deficiency and slckness in doing or not doing something, it is expected that the person will reform himself and turn away from sins at one time or another. Deficiency in the matter of belief in which a man takes sin for virtue and infidelity for belief is a hard nut to crack. That is why Innovation has been declared to be the worst sin from which the Companions رضی الله عنهم kept themselves away to the best of their ability.

The worst evil of Bid'ah

The worst evil of Bid'ah is that man himself plays the role of the inventor of Deen (Faith), although it is Allah alone who is the Inventor of Deen. As against this truth, the Innovator thinks that it is he who is framing the rules and practices of Deen. His greatest apostasy lies in his heretical conception that he is more religious - God forbid - than the Holy Prophet ﷺ and the Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم. This is not the way of acting upon the laws of the Shari'ah; it is merely the act of following ones own selfish desires. A great sin and straying away, indeed!

Bid'ah results in loss in this world as well as loss in the Hereafter

Among the Hindus there are devotees who practice strange self-mortifying spiritual and physical excercises to please their gods. These practices are terrifying to see. Some Hindu Sadhu (Saint) has been standing for years with his hands up. Another one has imprisoned his breath inside his lungs and is able to hold his breath for hours together. They practise similar other torturous physical feats. If you ask them the reason for all this they will reply that they are doing this to please their gods. Are their deeds of any value, although apparently they are doing all this with good intention? The answer is "Certainly not", because what they are doing is not in conformity with the ways taught by Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. They have devised these gymnastical exercises with their own mind and understanding. Such acts are not acceptable. Allah has said about such deeds:

وَقَدِمْنَآ إِلَىٰ مَا عَمِلُوْا مِنْ عَمَلٍ فَجَعَلْنَاهُ هَبَآءً مَّنْثُوْرًا۔(سورة الفرقان: ٢٣)

This verse means: We throw away their deeds like scattered dust. (al-Furqan: 23)

The deeds of these Sadhus go to the wind, condemned and valueless. In another place Allah has expressed the same idea in a very appealing and sympathetic style.

قُلْ هَلْ نُنَبِّئُكُمْ بِالْاَخْسَرِيْنَ اَعْمَالًا ۝ اَلَّذِيْنَ ضَلَّ سَعْيُهُمْ فِي الْحَيٰوةِ الدُّنْيَا وَهُمْ يَحْسَبُوْنَ اَنَّهُمْ يُحْسِنُوْنَ صُنْعًا ۝ (سورة الكهف: ١٠٣-١٠٤)

In this verse Almighty Allah is addressing the Holy Prophet ﷺ and asking him to tell the people: Should we inform you the worst with regard to their deeds? They are those whose efforts go waste in the world and yet they think that they are doing good deeds. (18:103-104).

It should be understood that the sinners or the unbelievers enjoyed themselves in the world, though they ruined their Hereafter. As for the Bid'ati, he is taking pains in the world and enduring hardships and at the same time he is ruining his Hereafter because he has invented and adopted forms of worship which Allah and His Prophet ﷺ did not prescribe for him.

That is why Bid'ah has been described as the worst of all deeds, a man takes pains in worship without gaining anything from that worship.

Deen (Faith) is the name of compliance

May Almighty Allah impress firmly on our hearts that Deen is really the act of complying with the injunctions of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. It is not at all Deen to forge something from one's own will. Two words are used in the Arabic language in this behalf. The one is اتباع (Ittibaa'), meaning to comply with the Injunctions of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ the other word is ابتداع (Ibtidaa') meaning the invention of something from ones own choice and will and complying with that. When Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ was appointed Caliph his first address as Caliph contained the following words:

انی متبع ولست بمبتدع(طبقات ابن سعد، جلد ثالث ص ١٨٣)

(Tabaqat Ibn Sa'd Vol. III, p.183)

I am a follower or complier; I am not a Bid'ati (Innova-tor). He wanted to tell the people thereby that he would not forge or fabricate anything from his own choice, but would follow the commands of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ.

Thus, Deen is the name of compliance with the injunctions received from Allah and His Prophet ﷺ and what people invent themselves has no value at all.

A Wonderful Event

Once the Holy Prophet ﷺ went out of his house at Tahajjud time in the night and passed by the house of Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ and saw that he was reciting the Holy Qur'an in his Tahajjud prayer with great submissiveness and attention in very low voice. Going further and passing by the house of Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ He ﷺ saw that Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ was reciting the Qur'an loudly which could be heard from outside. After observing all this, the Holy Prophet ﷺ came back.

Afterwards He ﷺ sent for Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ and Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ both. First, He ﷺ said to Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ. At the Tahajjud time during the night I passed by your house and found you reciting the Holy Qur'an in a very low voice what was the matter? In reply to this Hazrat Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ uttered a very beautiful phrase:

اسمعت من ناجیت

I recited the Qur'an in low voice because I was reciting it to Him whom I was addressing and emploring and He is All Hearing.

Thereafter, the Holy Prophet ﷺ asked Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ why he was reciting the Qur'an loudly. Hazrat Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ replied:

انی اوقظ الوسنان واطرد الشیطان

I recited the Qur'an loudly to awaken those who were sleeping and to drive out Satan.

Now Consider! The reply given by each was correct in the particular trend of thought of each person. On hearing their replies the Holy Prophet ﷺ addressed both of them and said:

O Abu Bakr, you chose to recite the Qur'an in low voice. And O Farooq, you preferred to recite the Qur'an loudly. Each of you decided to recite the Qur'an according to his own choice and will, therefore, this is not appreciable. Allah has commanded to follow the medium way in reciting. The medium way is more blessed and commendable. (Abu Dawud, Kitabus-salaat .. Hadith no: 1329).

The details of this event bring out that Allah does not approve of the practice of devising ways of worship according to one's own choice and will. He approves only the ways shown by Himself and His Prophet ﷺ. This is more acceptable and profitable.

In short, the real spirit of Deen is in following the ways and practices prescribed and approved by Allah and His Prophet ﷺ, Man should not himself try to invent his own ways and forms of worhsip.

The Account of a saint who used to offer prayers with his eyes closed

Hazrat Haji Imdadullah Sahib Muhajir Makki رحمۃاللہ علیہ has reported an event which Hazrat Thanwi رحمۃاللہ علیہ has narrated in his sermons. The event runs as follows.

In the near past there was a saint who used to pray with his eyes closed. The jurists say that it is repulsive to pray with one's eyes closed, but it is allowed to pray with closed eyes for one who is not able to pray with due attention and concentration with open eyes. That saint was renowned among the people for the quality and superiority of his prayers on account of his attention and sincerity with which he prayed and his full compliance with the Sunnah, yet he used to pray with his eyes closed.

The saint was also a man of Kashf (i.e. endowed with spiritual insight). Once this saint requested Allah to show him the result of his prayers, whether they were accepted or rejected. Allah granted his request and brought before him a very charming and beautiful woman. All the limbs of her body were made in due proportion and fitness, but she had no eyes. The saint was amazed to see such a beautiful woman having no eyes. When he inquired about the secret he was informed that, as he prayed with closed eyes, the reality and value of his prayers were shown in the form of a blind woman.

The Injunction about praying with closed eyes

Then Haji Imdadullah Sahib Muhajir Makki رحمة الله عليه related the event of praying with closed eyes and Hazrat Thanwi Sahib رحمة الله عليه offered his comments on it. Allah and His Prophet ﷺ have taught the Sunnah way of praying with open eyes fixed on the place of prostration. Praying with closed eyes is also allowed but it does not posses the advantage and the light of praying with open eyes. The Holy Prophet ﷺ never prayed with closed eyes during his entire lifetime. The Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم too, did not ever pray with closed eyes. That is why the prayer with closed eyes is devoid of the spiritual light available in the other way of praying:

لم يكن من هديه صلى الله عليه وسلم تغميض عينيه فى الصلاة

(زاد المعاد لابن قيم ض ١ ص ٧٥)

(Zadul Ma'aad by Ibn Qayyim vol. 1, p. 75)

Evil suggestions and thoughts assailing during Namaz (prayer)

It is thought that prayer may be offered with closed eyes simply to dispel evil suggestions and confusing thoughts. It may be noted that if these evil suggestions and thoughts come unintentionally without any fault of the Namazi, Allah does not condemn and take notice of this. The prayer which is offered according to Sunnah with open eyes but with disturbed concentration is much better than the one offered with closed eyes for the sake of concentration, because the former is according to the Holy Prophet's ﷺ way of praying (Sunnah), but the latter is not so.

The entire issue is based on the question of compliance with the injuncjtions of the Shari'ah and not on following one's own invented ways. If you have devised methods of praying of your own choice and desire this is condemned and rejected by Allah because "كل بدعة ضلالة" every Innovation is a deviation from the right path and a perversity.

The correct Definition and Explanation of Bid'ah

Some people argue that when every new thing is a deviation and wrong, then what about the use of the fans, the tube lights, the cars and so many other invented appliances in general use in the world to day which did not exist during the prophet's days? Note carefully that Bid'ah is that invented act or system which is made a part of Deen. for example, you create a system of your own to send reward and blessings to the dead like the customs of Teeja (after three days), Daswan (after ten days) and Chelam, etc., which have not been prescribed by the Shari'ah.

Send food to the bereaved family.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has exhorted the Muslims to send food to the bereaved family. When Hazrat Ja'far bin Abi Talib رضی اللہ عنہ was martyred in the battle of Mootah the Holy Prophet ﷺ said to his family:

اصنعو الِآل ابی جعفر طعاما فانه قد اتا هم امر شغلهم (ابو داؤد، کتاب الجنائز، باب صنعة الطعام لاهل المیت، حدیث نمبر ۳۱۳۲)

(Abu Dawod. food for the dead, etc. Hadith no: 3132)

That is send food to Ja'far's family, because they are in grief and bereavement. Thus the Holy Prophet ﷺ has preached help to a beareaved family, because they are afflicted in with a sudden shock.

Just the opposite way is being followed today

The opposite system followed these days is that the bereaved family should provide food to the visitors and erect tents and invite them to a feast. If all this is not arranged the bereaved family will stand condemned and insulted among its relatives. More than this, if all this is not provided then even the deceased person is remembered with contempt and taunt.

It is believed, as if the deceased will not be granted salvation in the Hereafter if a feast is not arranged in his house. The feast arranged for this purpose is out of the legacy of the deceased, which is to be shared by all the heirs including the majors as well as the minors. It is unlawful in the Shari'ah to misappropriate the share of the minors. All this is a flagrant violation of the teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and he who does not commit this violation is condemned.

To add something new as a part of Deen is Bid'ah

If anyone adds something new to the Deen as a necessary part of it, then the addition is Innovation. It may be noted that the invention and introduction of something new for a purpose other than Deen is not Innovation. So, it is not at all Bid'ah to use the electric fan for breeze, the electric bulbs for light, the car for journey and so on and so forth. Allah has given general permission to invent machines and appliances to make life easy and comfortable. You cannot declare something as Mustahab (desirable) which is not Mustahab or something as Sunnah which is not Sunnah or something as compulsory which is not compulsory. If such additions are made to Deen this will be Innovation and Haram (forbidden)

Hazrat 'Abdullah bin Umar رضی اللہ عنہ fleeing from Bid'ah

The Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم of the Holy Prophet ﷺ shunned Innovation to the best of their ability. Hazrat 'Abdullah bin Umar رضی اللہ عنہ once went to a mosque for praying. The Azan had been called but the Jama'at (congregation) had not yet started. In the mean-time the Muazzin called out "الصلاة جامعة" (The prayer is about to begin so hurry up). Probably he also repeated the words "حی علی الصلاة" come to the prayer) on hearing these words Hazrat 'Abdullah bin Umar رضی اللہ عنہ once said to his companions.

اخرج بنامن عند هذا المبتدع (سنن ترمذی، ابواب الصلاة، باب ماجاء فی التثویب فی الفجر. حدیث نمبر ۱۹۸)

(Sunan-e-Tirmidhi, chapter on salat Hadith no: 198)

That is: Take us away from this Bid'ati, the Azan, as prescribed by Allah and His Prophet ﷺ, has been called out. This second call is against the sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

The Day of Resurrection and Bid'ah both deserve to be dreaded

By means of this Hadith while the Holy Prophet ﷺ warned his Ummah against an army which is about to wage a battle in the morning or the evening, he ﷺ also spoke these words to warn them against errors and heresies expected to confront them in the future: The worst things are those which men have forged of their own free will and made them a part of the Deen although Allah and His Prophet ﷺ did not impose those things as Deen. So avoid them otherwise they will drive you to deviation from the true Deen.

Who is our best well-wisher?

The Holy Prophet ﷺ next spoke the following words:

انا اولى بكل مؤمن من نفسه

I am nearer and dearer to every believer than his own soul.

In other words man himself cannot be a better well-wisher of himself than the Holy Prophet ﷺ, just as the parents who bear all sorts of worries and troubles for the welfare and comfort of their children. The Prophet ﷺ emphasised that whatever he said was in the interest of his Ummah and not in his own interest. He ﷺ feared lest the Ummah may make itself liable to Hell, by deviating from the straight path. The Holy Prophet ﷺ next said:

من ترك مالا فلا هله، ومن ترك دينا اوضيا عا فالى وعلى۔

This means: I am your well-wisher in the Hereafter. As regards in this world, if anyone has died leaving behind him some wealth as heritage, it belongs to the members of his family, which they should distribute among them according to the rules of the Shari'ah. If one has left some loan against him which cannot be discharged out of the heritage left by him or has left behind children and there is none to look after and support them bring them to me. I should support them for their entire lifetime. The Prophet ﷺ said all this to tell that he is your well-wisher; he does not covet your wealth. He said in the above mentioned Hadith: I want to save you from Hell towards which you are hurrying headlong. So, for God's sake, you should refrain from these sins and Bid'ah and remain safe from Hell.

فانا اخذ بحجز كم عن النار وانتم تقتحمون فيها (صحيح بخارى، كتاب الرقاق، باب الانتها عن المعاصى، حديث نمبر ٦٤٨٣)

(Sahih Bukahri ... Hadith no: 6483)

What revolutionised the lives of the noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم

It was the teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that revolutionized the lives of the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم which raised them to very high positions of honour, dignity and authority. Every word that escaped from the mouth of the Holy Prophet ﷺ penetrated direct into their hearts and changed the entire course of their lives. Nowadays the preachers of Deen are delivering speeches nights and days to large gatherings without bringing about any change in the lives of their audience. This is mostly due to the fact that the preachers themselves do not follow the advice and good teachings of Deen which they are projecting before their listeners. Their hearts are devoid of the sincerity and true sympathy and fervour of the teachings of the Prophet ﷺ of Allah that revolutionised the lives of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم. May Allah grant us sincerity and effective speech to reach the hearts of the people. Aameen.

What is Bid'ah?

Some people maintain that Bid'ah is of two kinds-Bid'ah Hasanah (good Bid'ah) and Bid'ah Saiy-yiah (bad Bid'ah). They mean to say that there are some actions that are Bid'ah, but they have some good aspects in them and that there is no harm in doing actions which fall within the catogory of Bid'ah-e-Hasanah (good Bid'ah).

The Literal meaning of Bid'ah

Note carefully that there is no good or bad Bid'ah and all that is called Bid'ah is bad. In fact, Bid'ah has two shades of meanings. The d ictionary meaning of Bid'ah is something quite new. So, in the light of its literal meaning you can call every new thing Innovation, e.g. the electric fan, electricity, Railway trains, aeroplanes, etc.all these and such other objects are new to us which did not exist in the past and in the early days of the Muslims.

All new things are not called Innovation in the terminology of the Shari'ah. Innovation in the Shari'ah is the practice of inventing new ways of worship or customs and rites and declare them as Mustahab (desirable), compulsory, or an act of Sunnah, which the Holy Prophet ﷺ nor the Sahabah (Companious) declared as Sunnah. All such acts and practices are Innovation. According to this terminology Innovation is sin and bad and there is none among this category of things and acts that can be termed as good Innovation.

It is not lawful to restrict the freedom granted by the Shari'ah

There are certain things and acts which Allah has declared permissible. There are also certain things and acts which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has allowed as Sunnah and deserving of reward, but no procedure has been laid down for doing those things or acts, which have been left to the option and convenience of the people.

The method of conveying sawab (reward) to the dead

It is an act of great virtue and credit to convey Sawab to the soul of a dead person. This brings to the doer twofold sawab, viz., the one for the actual conveying of the Sawab to the dead and the other for showing sympathy with a Muslim soul. The Shari'ah has not prescribed any specific form for this act that the Sawab should be earned and conveyed only by reciting the Holy Qur'an, or by giving alms or by offering optional prayers, or by rehearsal of the sacred names of Allah. Any convenient form may be adopted. The sawab of any righteous deed like the publication of a book, delivering religious sermons, etc. In short Sawab accruing from any good and righteous deed can be transferred to the soul of the dead. For this purpose no particular days or hours have been fixed by the Islamic Shari'ah. This may be done on any convenient day after the death of the person without any restriction as to the first, the second or the third day. There is no harm or sin in conveying Sawab to the departed soul in any convenient way permitted by the Shari'ah.

One may convey the Sawab of Publishing a book

For example, I write a book for the benefit of the general Muslim public, the intention being to propagate Islam. After completing the book I pray to Allah to convey the Sawab of the book to the soul of a certian person. This method of Sawab is quite all right, although neither the Holy Prophet ﷺ nor the Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم ever conveyed to anyone this Kind of Sawab, because they never wrote books. The Holy Prophet ﷺ however, has mentioned the excellence of conveying Sawab to the dead. Thus, my action of conveying the Sawab of writing a book is not an Innovation. If I claim that the way of conveying Sawab by publishing a book is better than other ways and it is based on sunnat, then this claim of mine will become an Innovation. This is because I am inserting on my own discretion something in Deen which is not a part of Deen.

It is Bid'ah to specify the third day after death for conveying Sawab

There is no harm and sin in conveying Sawab, on the first, the second or the third day or any other day after death according to one's convenience, It is quite lawful. However, if there is a man who claims that the third day has been appointed specifically for conveying Sawab, or it is much better, or a Sunnah way of conveying Sawab, or the person who does not convey Sawab on the third day will become a target of the blames and curses of the ignorant, then this action will become an Innovation because the man has appointed for this purpose a particular day of his own sweet will.

To observe optional Fasting on Fridays has been forbidden

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has attached great importance and superiority to Fridays. Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی الله عنه has narrated.

قل ما كان يفطر يوم الجمعة (ترمذی، كتاب الصوم، باب ماجاء فی صوم يوم الجمعة، حديث نمبر ٧٤٢)

(Tirmidhi, book of fasting ..... Hadith no: 742)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ hardly missed fasting on Fridays, because this is an auspicious day and most fitting for righteous deeds like fasting. Observing the Prophet's practice, the people also began to fast on Fridays and reserved this day for fasting as the Jews have reserved Saturday for fasting, because they believe that fasting on Saturdays has special importance and significance. When the Holy Prophet ﷺ saw this he stopped the Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم from fasting on Fridays. He did so lest the people should appoint a day for fasting which Allah did not appoint for that. The Holy Prophet ﷺ did not himself specify Fridays for fasting nor did he want his Ummah to do that. (Tirmidhi, Kitabus salah .... Hadith no: 742)

What are Teeja (the third day) Daswan (the Tenth day) and the Chehlam (the fortieth day)?

I have said that the customs of Teeja, Daswan and Chehlam are not lawful, because people have specified these days for conveying Sawab to the soul of the dead of their own free will and without authority. If a man does not specify a particular day for conveying Sawab but only by chance does so on any of these days, there is no sin in it. It is suggested that people should better avoid these specified days for conveying Sawab, so as not to resemble those who are involved in this Innovation.

Translator's addition:

The translator was present on the occasion of a burial when it was announced that Recitation of the Qur'an for conveying sawab (i.e. Teeja) would be held as usual on the third day but the head of the breaved family objected to this and anounced that Qur'an Khani would be held the very next day. He argued very convincingly that if the soul of the departed was in need of help why should it be delayed till the third day, why should it not be sent to the needy soul as early as possible?

The Bid'ah of Kissing the thumbs

When you hear the sound of prayer-call (Azan) coming out of the mosque, at the words "اشهدان محمدارسول الله" (Ashadu anna muhammadar rasoolullaah) you suddenly feel in your heart a current of love for the Holy Prophet ﷺ and in such a state of ecstasy you kiss your thumbs and then touch your eyes with them. This action is, in itself, not an Innovation because you did it out of love and respect for the Prophet ﷺ and for this spontaneous, expression of love you deserve reward, However, a man who advises the entire population that they should all kiss their thumbs when they hear the words "اشهدان محمدارسول الله" in the Azan, because this is Mustahab or an act of Sunnah and he who does not do so lacks in love and sincerity for the Holy Prophet ﷺ. This act, which was otherwise, lawful will now become an Innovation. There is a very minute difference between the two ways of looking at and doing the same act. If this Lawful act is done in right earnest without making it an essential duty, it is not an Innovation. It, however, becomes an Innovation if it is done in the behalf that it is binding and is an act of Sunnah and he who does not do it is condemnable.

When is it Bid'ah to say (يا رسول الله) (O, Prophet ﷺ of Allah).

Sitting in an assembly a man hears the name of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, and he feels spontaneously that the Prophet ﷺ of Allah is present there and he calls out الصلوة والسلام يا رسول الله (O Prophet of Allah, salat and salam be on you) without being prompted by the belief that the Prophet ﷺ is Present and seeing, then there is no sin in this innocent behaviour. This is just as a man may visualise someone in his mind and begins to talk to him in a state of ecstasy.

On the other hand, if someone utters these words in the belief that the Prophet ﷺof Allah is present, on the spot and is seeing every thing then this act turns into the grievous sin of shirk (polytheistic), because the attribute of omnipresence exclusively belongs to Allah. If the man who does not utter these words with this polytheism belief, yet he thinks that it is an act of Sunnah, then the act of calling "الصلوٰة والسلام عليك يا رسول الله" (O Prophet ﷺof Allah salat and salam be on you), becomes an innovation and straying from the straight path.

A fine difference between actions

Thus, a very fine difference between beliefs and actions may turn a lawful thing or act into an unlawful, Innovation. If you look closely into the innovation prevailing in the society today that most of them were lawful and permissible but when they were adopted as obligatory duties or acts of Sunnah they became Innovation.

When is it an act of Bid'ah to embrace one another on Eid Days?

After the Eid prayer two Muslim brothers embrace each other out of love, fraternity and joy and this act is not at all unlawful. Similarly, when you get up from an assembly and embrace someone this too is not at all unlawful, nor a sin. On the other hand, there is a man who believes that it is an act of Sunnah to embrace one another after the Eid prayer and it is also a part of the prayer and the Eid will not materialise unless the custom of embracing is followed, then the practice of embracing will become a Bid'ah. This is because neither the Holy Prophet ﷺ declared it as Sunnah nor did the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم ever followed it. If one embraces another person out of a natural urge, without considering it binding and a compulsory act of Deen, it will not be a an Innovation. Anyway, it should be borne in mind that if any permissible and otherwise a good act is declared as binding or an act of Sunnah then it turns into an innovation and in turn, into a sin.

Is it a Bid'ah to read the Tablighi course?

Once a man came to me and told me that people object to the people of the Tablighi parties that they read the Tablighi course, because none read Tablighi courses during the days of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم including the four Orthodox Caliphs. Thus, they claim that this pracitce is also a Bid'ah. What I have stated in detail in the foregoing pages makes it quite clear that to propagate subjects of learning and Deen (Faith) is always lawful. For example, we see that members of the Tablighi party and others assemble after the 'Asr' Prayer on every Friday and discuss topics relating to religion and its preaching. Now if one says that this practice is also an Innovation because the practice of holding meetings after 'Asr on Fridays and preaching Deen was not seen in the days of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

Bear well in mind that this practice is not an Innovation, because it is always lawful to spread learning and preach Deen. On the other hand, if anyone claims, that holding such Tablighee meetings only in a particular mosque (e.g. Baitul-Mukarram) and only on Fridays and not on any other day is an act of Sunnah, then Tablighi work which we are doing will become an Innovation May Almighty Allah save us from this.

People read and listen to the Tablighi course and chapters on religious subjects. This is an act of great virtue and recompense. If someone claims that, it is binding to read only this Tablighi course, and it is not an act of sunnah to read any other book on the subject of Deen, then in this way the reading and listening to the Tablighi Course will become an Innovation. Thus, to confine any desirable and permissible deed to a particular time or manner is innovation.

To appoint a particular proceedure for delivering speeches on the Prophet's life

To deliver speeches on the Prophet's life and deeds is a righteous deed of great value and reward. The precious moments, in which the biography of the Holy Prophet ﷺ is studied and projected to others, are the pick of human life.

In reality the most precious times are those during which the pious life of the Holy Prophet ﷺ is mentioned. Notwithstanding this truth if a particular, procedure, day or assembly is specially appointed for this auspicious and blessed act, then the act will become an Innovation.

The recitation of the sacred Darood may also become a Bid'ah

Take an easy example. After reciting the التحيات (At-taheeyyat) at the end of the second or the fourth Rak'ats of prayers we have been ordered to recite the sacred Darood:

اللهم صلِّ على محمد وعلىٰ آل محمد كما صليت علىٰ ابراهيم

و علىٰ آل ابراهيم انك حميد مجيد

The Holy Prophet ﷺ taught us this sacred Darood and it is lawful and an act of sunnah to recite it. If anyone recites some other Darood like this:

اللهم صلِّ علىٰ محمد النبى الامى وعلىٰ آله وصحبه وبارك وسلم

it is also lawful and there is no sin in it. Now if anyone advises not to recite the first Darood but to recite the second Darood which is the act of Sunnah, then in this situation the recitation of Darood, which is an act of great virtue, will become a Bid'ah.

No Power on earth can declare it an act of Sunnah

Try to understand that it is absolutely wrong to classify Innovation in two categories of 'Good' and 'bad' Innovation. There is no 'good' Innovation, but every Bid'ah is bad and a sin. No power on earth can declare it as obligatory, Sunnah or Mustahab (desirable) what has not been declared as such by the Holy Prophet ﷺ the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم including the four orthodox Caliphs. If anyone thinks on these lines, he will fall into error and go astray. This will mean that the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم did not understand Deen as we do.

A wonderful proverb

My respected father رحمة الله عليه used to relate to us a proverb of the Hindi language.

The Baniyas among the Hindus are a caste who are very competent businessmen; in fact they are born traders. This proverb concerns them and means that one is foolish who claims that he is cleverer than the Baniyaa in trading affairs and business. Experience proves that in the Indian sub-continent there is no class more expert and cleverer in the sphere of business activities. My respected father related this proverb as an analogy to prove that the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم were experts in the matter of Deen. He is a fool and idiot who claims that he is cleverer than they in the matter of Deen and that he is competent to declare as binding and obligatory which the companions ignored. A great idiot and fool is such a fellow indeed.

SUMMARY

To sum up, there are some new additions which no one considers to be part of Deen (Faith), e.g. the electric fan, the electric light, Railway trains, the aeroplanes etc. They are not Innovation, because, no one thinks that these facilities are unnecessary and inevitable for the practice of Deen. We are free to practise such rites and acts of Deen according to our choice and convenience for which Allah and His Prophet ﷺ have not imposed on us any particular line of action or procedure to follow. If we prescribe for such items some particular ways and rites of our own will and choice, then this will become an act of Innovation. If we keep this principle in our minds we shall not suffer from any doubts or misgivings in this behalf.

May Allah protect us from the evils of and grant us right understanding of Deen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين۔

Venue : Jame'Masjid Baitul-Mukarram,
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi.

Date : Friday, 29th May, 1992
After 'Asr Prayers

When the relation of wife and husband is established by uttering, the two sacred words of offer and acceptance during the Nikah ceremony, the girl (now a bride) honours the implications of these two words so solemnly that she leaves her parents, brothers and sisters, her hearth and home, her family and the entire clan, and becomes, as it were, a purchased maid of her husband. She has thus become bound to pass her lifetime with a stranger, in a strange house and a strange environment. Will you not take notice of all this sacrifice on the part of that girl who is now your wife and at your exclusive disposal? How would you have felt if the matter had been the reverse; if, after the marriage, you had been asked to leave your family and your parents? What a trying predicament it would have been for you! So have regard for this sacrifice of her and behave with her amicably and fairly.

THE RIGHTS OF A WIFE IN ISLAM

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه، ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيدنا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالىٰ عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا

اما بعد!

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم، بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم.

وَعَاشِرُوْهُنَّ بِالْمَعْرُوْفِ ج (سورة النساء: ١٩)

قال الله تعالى :

وَلَنْ تَسْتَطِيْعُوْٓا اَنْ تَعْدِلُوْا بَيْنَ النِّسَآءِ وَلَوْ حَرَصْتُمْ فَلَا تَمِيْلُوْا كُلَّ الْمَيْلِ فَتَذَرُوْهَا كَالْمُعَلَّقَةِ ط وَاِنْ تُصْلِحُوْا وَتَتَّقُوْا فَاِنَّ اللّٰهَ كَانَ غَفُوْرًا رَّحِيْمًا. (سورة النساء ١٢٩)

وعن ابى هريرة رضى الله تعالىٰ عنه قال قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم استو صوا بالنساء خيرا فان المرأة خلقت من ضلع وان اعوج مافى الضلع اعلاه فان ذهبت تقيمه كسرته وان تركته لم يزل اعوج فاستوصوا بالنساء. (صحيح بخارى كتاب النكاح باب المداراة مع النساء-حديث نمبر ٥١٨٤)

All praise to Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness and we believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the mischief of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is none to lead him astray whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God but Allah alone and that He has no partner. I also bear witness that our master, our authority, and our Prophet and our master, Muhammad is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah bestow upon him, his household and his Companions. His mercy and blessings in abundance.

And Almighty Allah said: But consort with them in kindness. (4:19)

You will not be able to deal equally between (your) wives, however, much you may wish to do so. But turn not altogether away (from one), leaving her in suspense, If you do good and be righteous, then surely Allah is ever Forgiving, Merciful.(4:129)

Importance of the rights of the servants (of Allah)

Allamah Nuwawi رحمة الله عليه is commencing a discussion of the rights of the servants (of Allah) in the light of these verses and the traditions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ I have already mentioned repeatedly that "the Rights of the servants are a very important branch of religion. Its importance lies in the fact that "the Rights of Allah" may be pardoned by repentance. If God forbid-some negligence ever occurs in the matter of Allah's rights, it is very easy to remedy this negligence by means of repentance and seeking Allah's pardon with a feelings of remorse and regret. The negligence can thus be remedied. As for the rights of the servants, if they are violated, they are not pardoned by repentance and feelings of remorse and regret and by seeking pardon, unless the usurped rights are restored to the right-holders or the latter willingly forgoe their rights in his favour. Therefore the matter of rights of people is a matter of serious consideration.

Negligence in the matter of the Rights

Serious indeed is the subject of the rights of the servants of Allah, yet equally serious is the negligence of people towards this subject in our society. There are only a few aspects of worship that we have taken as Deen (Faith), e.g, Prayer, Fasting, Hajj, Zakat, Remembrance, Recitation of the Holy Qur'an, the recital of some sacred names or words. We regard these items as Deen but we have excluded from Deen the Rights of the servants; similarly we have also excluded from Deen the rights concerning social living. One who is negligent in the discharge of these rights does not feel that he is committing any serious offence.

Backbiting is a violation of People's rights

Take a simple example. If a Muslim is addicted (God forbid) to drinking wine he will be looked down upon by every Muslim who has even the least touch with the faith and the drunkard himself will feel ashamed that he is committing a sin. On the other hand a person who is addicted to backbiting is not hated in the society like the drunkard, nor does the backbiter himself feels that he is a sinner or criminal, although both the sins are equally heinous and base. But no, backbiting is more vicious sin than drinking wine; firstly, because it comes within the definition of the rights of the servants and secondly, because Almighty Allah has used for it in the Holy Qur'an a very horrid similitude the like of which He has not for any other sin. He has thus said in surah Al-Hujarat, verse no 12:

> And do not spy: nor backbite one another. Would one of you love to eat the flesh of his dead brother; you would then abhor that. (49:12)

Thus a backbiter has been compared to one who eats the flesh of his dead brother. So vicious is this sin! Yet it has become common in the society. There is hardly an assembly where this sin is not committed. What is worse, it is not condemned at all as if the faith has nothing to do with this sin.

'Ihsan* is desirable at all times

Hazrat Dr. Muhammad Abdul Hai رحمةالله عليه may Allah exalt his status, is my spiritual Guide (Shaikh or Pir). One day he related the following incident:

A man called on me and told me with a gusto of pleasure and pride that thank God, he had attained the rank of "Ihsan". "Ihsan" is a very exalted status, as is mentioned in a tradition:

ان تعبد الله كانك تراه فان لم تكن تراه فانه يراك (صحيح البخارى، كتاب الايمان، باب سؤال جبريل حديث نمبر ٥٠)

(Sahih Bukhari. the book of belief-chapter Inquiry in Hadith Jibrael tradition no: 50).

This means that you should worship Almighty Allah, as you are seeing Allah and if this be not possible worship Him with the belief that He is seeing you. This is the rank of "Ihsan". That gentleman told the respected Doctor Sahib that he had attained the rank of "Ihsan" Hazrat Doctor Sahib congratulated him on the attainment, as it was a great blessing of Allah and put to him this question: Do you realise the blessing of "Ihsan" only during the prayers or do you realise it also during your dealings with your wife and children that Almighty Allah is seeing you? He replied: What the Tradition says is that while pray one should feel that one is seeing Allah, or Allah is seeing him. I thought that "Ihsan" is related with worship only and not with other activities of life Hazrat Doctor Sahib said to him: That is why I put this question to you, because it is generally misunderstood that "Ihsan" is required during prayers, remembrance or recitation only, although it is required at all times and in all stages and walks of life. If you are sitting in a shop doing some business, "Ihsan" is required there also. You should realise in your heart that Almighty Allah is seeing you. "Ihsan" is also required when you are dealing with your subordinates. You should feel that Allah is seeing you even when you are dealing with your wife, children friends and neighbours. This is really what "Ihsan" means. It is not confined only to prayers and worship.

That woman shall enter Hell

It should be borne in mind very well that the teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ cover every branch of life. It is narrated that once the people inquired from the Holy Prophet ﷺ about a woman: O Prophet ﷺ of Allah, there is a woman who remains engaged with worship all day and night. She is mostly busy with optional prayers, remembrance of Allah and recitation of the Holy Qur'an, she is always seen engaged in these acts of devotion. What do you think about the fate of this woman? The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked that Companion رضی اللہ عنہ about her dealings with the neighbours. The Companion رضی اللہ عنہ replied that she did not behave well with the neighbours. The women of the neighbourhood are not pleased with her. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said: She will enter the Hell.(Bukahri p-48, tradition no: 911, chapter Does not trouble his neighbour)

That woman shall enter Paradise

At another time a question was put to the Holy Prophet ﷺ about a woman who did not observe many items of optional worship and remained contented only with the obligatory and essential duties and sometimes she performed the Sunnah Muwakkadah (the confirmed sunnah) prayer She did not observe the optional prayers, rememberance, recitation, etc. more than this. Her dealings with the neighbours and others were however, amicable. The Holy Prophet ﷺ replied: She will enter the Paradise.

Who is a Pauper?

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has explained in these traditions that if anyone observes optional prayers it is very good, but if he does not do so he will not be asked in the Hereafter why he did not observe such and such optional forms of worship. This is because the very word Nafl (optional) means that if anyone performs this optional worship, he will receive reward, and if he does not do so, there is no sin on him. On the other hand the rights of the servants (of Allah) are something about which the people will be questioned on the Day of Judgement. The entry into Paradise or Hell depends on the nature of replies given to these questions.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has explained in a Tradition as to who is a pauper; he is reported to have said: A person will bring with him on the Day of Judgement lots of good deeds; but in the world he usurped someone's rights, spoke ill of someone, injured someone's feelings and hurt someones heart. The result of all this will be that he will have to pay to others all the good deeds he brought with him and will have to take upon himself the sins of others while he has no good deeds left with him to compensate his creditors. The matter of the rights of the servants (of Allah) is thus a very important matter in the Shari'ah. (Tirmidhi, chapter on Accounts taking and ransom Tradition no: 2533).

The Rights of people are three-fourths of DEEN

It has already been pointed out that if the "Islamic Jurisprudence" which deals with the injunctions of the Shari'ah is divided into four equal parts, only one part will be found to deal with matters relating to worship, and the remaining three parts will be found to contain injunctions with regard to matters that are related to people and their life. You may know the name of 'Hidayah' which is a renowned book of Hanafi jurisprudence in four volumes. The first volume deals with forms of worship in which problems concerning Purity (Taharat), Prayer (Salat), Fasting, Zakat and Hajj have been discussed. The remaining three volumes are concerned with the subjects dealing with people and their rights, social living and the rights of the servants (of Allah). It can be easily inferred from this that the subject of the rights of the servants represents one-fourth of Deen (Faith). Therefore, a very important chapter is now commencing. May Almighty Allah help us, by His mercy, to read and listen to it with a firm mind, to act upon the injunctions. May He also help us to discharge the rights of the servants (of Allah) according to His pleasure and will.

The miserable condition of women before Islam.

The first Chapter which Allamah Nuwawi رحمة الله عليه has included is the "Chapter of counsels about women", meaning those counsels which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has given about the rights of women. The reason for allotting this subject in the first chapter of the book is that the greatest shortcoming and negligence are committed in the matter of women's rights. During the Days of Ignorance, before the advent of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, women were treated like cattle, devoid of humanity, deprived of all rights, whatsoever. In those days of darkness the people did not recognise any rights due to women who were tolerated in the houses no better than pet animals like goats and sheep; but the conditions totally changed after the advent of Islam and under the sacred teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

Amicable behaviour with women

At that time the world was unaware of heavenly guidance. It was the Holy Prophet ﷺ who for the first time made the world alive to the rights due to women whereunder they should be accorded nice treatment.

At the very out set Allamah Nuwawi رحمة الله عليه has cited a verse of the Holy Qur'an that is very comprehensive on this subject:

وَعَاشِرُوْهُنَّ بِالْمَعْرُوْفِ ج

But consort with them in kindness (4:19)

Almighty Allah has addressed all Muslims, commanding them to behave, and consort with women in kindness; associate with them in life with goodwill and sympathy and never give them trouble. This is a general guidance. This verse is, as it were, the heading and the text of this chapter. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has explained this verse by his words and practice. He ﷺ gave such importance to the need of showing misbehaviour to women that he is reported to have said in a Tradition:

خیارکم خیارکم لنساء هم وانا خیار کم لنسائی

Meaning: The best of you are those who behave well with their women and I am best of you in behaving well with my women. (Tirmidhi - chapter on right of a women over her husband, Tradition no: 1172)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ attached so much importance to the protection of the rights of women and ensuring good behaviour with them that he has explained this matter in many Traditions. The first Tradition on this subject is one narrated by Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی الله عنه wherein the Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said:

استو صوا بالنساء خیرا

I advise you to wish well for the women. You should accept this advice of mine.

The Holy Qur'an enunciates only the principles

Before proceeding ahead it is better to advise that the Holy Qur'an generally gives the basic principles, without going into the minute details of the issue. This procedure is followed even in describing the injunctions about the prayer which is such an important pillar of Deen (Faith) to the establishment of which reference has been made in the Qur'an at seventy three places. Yet the Holy Qur'an does not furnish any details about how prayer (salat) is offered, how many Rak'at should one offer and other injunctions validating or invalidating the salah. The Qur'an itself has not detailed these factors but left it for the Holy Prophet ﷺ who taught the companions these details both by his words and practice. The same is the case with Zakat which has also been mentioned in the Qur'an almost at the same number of places.The Qur'an, however, does not clarify the prescribed value on which Zakat becomes due for payment, nor it speaks of possessions on which it is leviable. Like the prayer these details about Zakat were also left for the Holy Prophet ﷺ to explain. Thus it becomes clear that generally the Qur'an mentions only the basic principles and does not go into minute details.

Domestic life is the Foundation of the entire civilisation

The relationship between man and woman and among the members of the family are so important that the Qur'an has described in clear terms its minutest details and has spoken in details relating to this important topic. Thereafter the Holy Prophet ﷺ has explained fully those points. The edifice of the entire human civilisation stands on the relations between man and woman and on the domestic life of man. If the relationship between man and woman is sound, smooth and one discharges the rights of the other, then the affairs of the household shall run smoothly and the children shall be brought up on the right lines and this ensures the betterment of society on which stands the edifice of the social living as a whole. On the other hand, if the household affairs are mismanaged and there are differences and disagreements between husband and wife the children are affected adversely and you may very well imagine about the standard and character of the nation manifested by such spoilt and ill mannered children. The rules and regulations governing this aspect of the society are called family laws or household regulations. In view of their importance, the Holy Qur'an has dealt them in details:

Is the woman born of crooked Rib?

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has set a nice example for this – an example that is unique in its effect and import. Some have explained it by saying that first of all Allah created Hazrat Adam عليه السلام then He created Hazrat Hawwa عليه السلام (Eve) from his rib. Some learned men have said by way of explanation that the Holy Prophet ﷺ has compared a woman to a rib which is crooked to see but its beauty and health consist in its crookedness. If anyone tries to remove its crookedness by straightening it, it will break and cease to be a rib. To restore to its previous state, it will have to be made crooked then joined together with plaster. The same idea has been beautifully expressed in a Tradition:

ان ذهبت تقيمها كسرتها

That is, if you want to straighten it, you will only break it.

وان استمتعت بها استمتعت بها وفيها عوج

And if you want to enjoy it you may enjoy it despite its crookedness.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has, thus set a wise example that its crookedness is its beauty and health which will be destroyed by straightening it.

It is not a defect of woman

Some people use this saying against women as being their defect in a woman. In other words, they say that since a woman has been created from a crooked rib, so is she crooked in her conduct and character, by her nature. This is, however, not the meaning of the Tradition of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

The deviousness of women is natural

It needs to be borne in mind that Almighty Allah has created man and woman, each with different tendencies and attributes. On account of this difference between the nature and temperament of the two, man thinks about a woman that she is opposed to his masculine nature and sentimentality, although this natural tendency of a woman against a man's natural bent and tendency is not a defect. It is the natural requirement of her nature that she should reflect in her character some innocent crookedness. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: If you find in a woman something which is against your natural tendency on account of which you think that she is crooked, do not condemn her on this account; rather ignore it by thinking that it is the natural demand of her nature. If you want to straighten her she will break; if you want to benefit by her you can do so despite her crookedness.

"Negligence" is a part of beauty in a woman

Today the times have changed; as a result the values have also changed. A defect in a man is more often looked upon as a point of virtue and beauty in a woman. If we go through the Holy Qur'an carefully we shall see what, is generally considered a defect in a man is considered a point of beauty in a woman. For example, it is a defect in man to be ignorant and negligent, on account of which he is unaware of what is happening in the world. A man has been entrusted with the affairs of the world. To discharge these he needs learning and awareness. If he is devoid of these qualities and abilities, he is faulty and defective to this extent. As for a woman, negligence has been considered by the Qur'an as an item of beauty for her. Allah has said:

إِنَّ الَّذِيْنَ يَرْمُوْنَ الْمُحْصَنٰتِ الْغٰفِلٰتِ الْمُؤْمِنٰتِ (سورة النور:٢٣)

Surely, as for those who slander virtuous, negligent believing women..... (24:23)

The word "negligent" meaning that they are unaware of what is happening around them in the world. The Qur'an has considered here "negligence" or "unawareness" as an attribute of beauty. It is obvious from this that if a woman is ignorant of the affairs of the world, duties, excepted, this is not a defect but an attribute of beauty as described by the Qur'an.

Do not try to straighten her bent by force

Thus we see a defect in man is not considered a defect in woman and what is not a defect in man is sometimes looked upon as a defect in woman. A man is, therefore, not allowed to be harsh to a woman and misbehave with her if he finds her behaving in her womanly way. The very meaning of her comparison with a rib is that, by nature, she should be different in temperament from you. So now do not try to straighten her by force.

The root cause of the entire conflict

The above is based on a Tradition of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Who can claim to know more about the nature of man and women than the Prophet of Allah? He diagnosed the root cause of all the conflicts between man and woman.

Man insists that a woman should he exactly like himself in all her behaviours. This is not possible as she has been created different from him.

Be conscious of her good habits

In another tradition of this chapter Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated;

عن ابی هريرة رضی الله عنه قال: قال رسول الله صلی الله عليه وسلم:

لا يفرك مؤمن مؤمنةً ان كره منها خلقا رضی منها آخر (صحيح مسلم، كتاب الرضاع، باب الوصية بالنساء)

(Sahih Muslim-Book of suckling chapter consel about women)

In this Tradition the Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned a wonderful principle that a believing man should not hate a believing woman altogether. In other words, the man should not condémn her totally on the false plea that she is no good. If she has some undesirable triats in her conduct she must have in her some desirable traits also.

The first principle which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught is that when two persons live together, some habit of the one is pleasant and some other habit unpleasant to the other. If the woman has some unpleasant habit in her, then do not condemn her on account of that habit altogether, rather look for and remember her pleasant habits and thank Almighty Allah for them. If you follow this practice it is quite possible that the hatred in your heart for the dark side of her conduct and character may gradually lose its severity and importance.

Man, in fact, is ungrateful. If he finds any defects in her he totally changes his opinion about the person concerned and forgets about his good qualities. In view of those few faults and defects, he is always critical about him and misbehaves with him. Such attitude is unreasonable.

Everything has virtues and vices in it

There is nothing in the world which is all virtue and all vice. Almighty Allah has, by His wisdom, endowed everything of His creation with virtue and vice. You are sure to find some good qualities in every person, may he be an infidel, an idolater or even worse.

An English proverb

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said; A word of wisdom is a lost property of a believer. He must pick it up wherever he finds it. So there is no harm in picking up a word of wisdom even from an English Proverb.

The proverb said that even a watch which has gone out of order speaks the truth at least twice every day. Suppose that the watch stopped at 12 hrs., 5 mts,. As the time 12-5 occurs twice during the 24 hours, the dead watch shall tell the correct time twice at 12-5 hrs, although it will remain silent at other times.

The moral we draw from this English proverb is that if one is in search of goodness with hope and sincerity one can surely find this goodness even from the most condemned and throw-away objects.

There is nothing bad in the workshop of Nature

My father Mufti Muhammad Shafi' Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ used to recite frequently the following Urdu couplet of the late Dr. Muhammad Iqbal:

نہیں ہے چیز نکمی کوئی زمانے میں
کوئی برا نہیں قدرت کے کارخانے میں

There is nothing useless in the earth
There is nothing bad in the workshop of nature.

Whatever Almighty has created has created it with His wisdom and by His will. If you reflect on it you will surely find in Allah's creation point of Wisdom and benefit. Instead man looks for faults and short comings only and ignores the good points and bright sides of things. Thus he becomes pessimistic and commits transgression and injustice.

Always look for the good qualities of women

Almighty Allah has said in His Book :

فَاِنْ كَرِهْتُمُوْهُنَّ فَعَسٰٓى اَنْ تَكْرَهُوْا شَيْئًا وَّيَجْعَلَ اللّٰهُ فِيْهِ خَيْرًا كَثِيْرًا

For if you hate them, it may happen that you hate a thing wherein Allah has placed much good. (4:19)

If for some reason you do not like those women whom you have married, yet it is just possible that Almighty Allah may have endowed them with much goodness and blessings. Hence this command that you should look only for the good qualities of women, so that you may receive solace and comfort from them and thus the doors of mistrust and misbehaviour may not be opened.

Educative story of A saint

Hazrat Maulana Shah Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has related the story of a saint who had a very ill mannered and aggressive wife. She always found faults with her hushand. Whenever the saint entered his house the wife started quarrelling with him. Someone asked him why he did not get rid of those daily wrangles and squabbles by resorting to divorce. The saint replied: it is very easy for me to divorce her but there is one reason for not doing so. Despite all her defects, she has one very good quality which prevents me from parting with her; and that is the quality of loyalty with which Almighty Allah has adorned her. Supposing I am arrested and imprisoned for some crime, for a term of fifty years, she will not move even an inch from the corner to which I confine her, and she will never cast a glance at anyone else. This quality of loyalty is invaluable.

Mirza Mazhar Jan-e-Jan'an and his over-sensitiveness

Hazrat Mirza Mazhar jan-e-Jan an رحمة الله عليه was a renowned saint of the Indian sub-continent. He was so touchy and over-sensitive in his temperament that if anyone put the glass on the pitcher in a tilting position or if he saw his bedding creased he would feel headache, unfortunately he had to deal with an ill-mannered wife. She was always murmuring something against her husband. Strange are indeed the ways whereby Allah tests His servants and raises their ranks. The wife of this pious saint was an ordeal for him which he tolerated with patience throughout his lifetime and expected that Allah may pardon his sins as a recompense for this ordeal.

The women of our society are Nymphs of Paradise

Hakimul Ummat, Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه used to say that the women of the Indo-Pakistan are like nymphs, because they are endowed with the qualities of faith and loyalty. Although these qualities are slowly fading under the impact of the modern Western civilisation and culture, yet the spirit of loyalty is so deep-rooted in them that they are always ready to sacrifice their lives for their husbands in all circumstances, and they can never cast their glances on anyone other than their husbands. In fact the saint, referred to above demonstrated obedience to the injunction implied in the following Tradition.

ان كره منها خلقًا ر ضى آخر

If one habit of the woman is unpleasant, there must be some pleasant habit in her which should be taken into consideration and good treatment should be meted out to the woman on account of this one pleasant habit in her.

People generally look at the dark side in the conduct and character of their women and lose sight of the bright side in them. This tendency is the root cause of the bitterness prevailing in our society.

It is immorality to beat one's wife

The third Tradition of this chapter is as under:

عن عبدا لله بن زمعة رضى الله عنه أنه سمع النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم يخطب ثم ذكر النساء فوعظ فيهن فقال:

"العبد احد كم فيجلد امرأته جلد العبد فلعله يضاجعها من اخريومه"

(Sahih Bukhari the book of marriage - It is hateful to beat women tradition no: 5204).

Once the Holy Prophet ﷺ delivered a sermon in which he mentioned many important topics of Islamic behaviour. The following is the point which he ﷺ touched on the subject under discussion: He said: It is very bad that one of you beats his wife as a master beats his slave and on the other hand he uses the same wife to satisfy his sexual desire. Then how immoral and shameless it is that one should beat one's wife so severely!

Three steps of reforming a wife

As I have already stated, the Holy Qur'an has taken great care to mention in detail concerning husband-wife relations:

The differences and disagreements between husband and wife start when the husband feels offended at some action or habit of the wife. The Qur'an advises that in such a situation the husband should look for some lovely and pleasant quality in the character and dealings of his wife. If the husband fails to discover in his wife any such good points and feels that correction and reform are needed, then the Holy Qur'an has prescribed the following course to reform and rectify it.

وَالّٰتِيْ تَخَافُوْنَ نُشُوْزَهُنَّ فَعِظُوْهُنَّ وَاهْجُرُوْهُنَّ فِى الْمَضَاجِعِ وَاضْرِبُوْهُنَّ (سورة النساء ٣٤)

As for those (women) from whom you fear disobedience, admonish them and banish them to beds apart (from yours) and beat them. (4:34)

First of all you should advise them in a lenient and polite manner and with love to give up their bad habits and reform themselves. This is the first step of reform. If they respond favourably to admonition and accept your advice, do not go further and treat the chapter closed. If this does not help and they insist upon their misconduct then the second step is to separate your bed and give up sleeping with them on the same bed. If they have sense, they will surely reform themselves and act upon advice. (Details of separating the bed will follow shortly).

Physical punishment to a wife

If the second step of the reform also fails then it will be necessary to resort to the third step, which is to inflict on the wife some physical punishment; but what kind of physical punishment and to what extent? The Holy Prophet ﷺ answered these questions in his sermon on the occasion of his Farewell Hdjj (حجة الوداع) in which he said: (واضربو هن ضرباغير مبرح) (beat them very lightly so as not to injure them). To sum uxdsw3p, effort should be made so as to settle matters without the expedient of this punishment. If it is found unavoidable, it is permitted only with the condition that it should be very light, the intention being only to enforce discipline and not to inflict pain and injury. It is not lawful beating one's wife in a way that should leave a mark on the body. (A Tradition on this subject follows).

The behaviour of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

When the Holy Prophet ﷺ passed away from this world he left behind nine sacred wives رضی اللہ عنہما. These wives were not angels sent down from the heaven; they were members of this world and society. Sometimes, bitterness occurred among them as is usual and natural among co-wives. Sometimes such problems also arose as usually arise between husbands and wives. Hazrat Ayesha رضی اللہ عنہا has narrated: Not only did the Holy Prophet ﷺ ever raise his hands on any of his wives, but it was also his habit to enter the house with a smiling face.

The Prophet's Sunnah (practice)

It is the Sunnah (practice) of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that men should not raise their hands at women (to beat them). The permissibility of punishing physically is restricted only to abnormal and unavoidable situations. In fact beating women is not the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ; his Sunnah is what Hazrat 'Ayesha رضی اللہ عنہا has narrated.

A miracle of Dr. Abdul Hai رحمۃ اللہ علیہ

Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai رحمۃ اللہ علیہ my spiritual guide sometimes related to us, by way of a lesson, that a period of fifty-five years had passed of his marriage, he never talked to his wife during these fifty five years in an angry tone. The walking of a man on the surface of the water and his flying in the air is taken as a miracle. It is more surprising that one should not talk to his wife even in an adverse tone for as long as fifty five years.

And his respectable wife says that her husband, Dr. Sahib, never asked her to bring to him a glass of water. She, however, served him as best as possible of her own sweet will and as a blessed and virtuous duty.

Tariqat is nothing but public service

Hazrat Dr. Sahib used to say: I consider myself to be a servant whom Allah has sent to this world for service. This is my belief and with this belief I want to serve others and depart from this world. I am duty bound to serve all my friends, acquaintances, associates and pupils. I was not sent to this world as a master to be served by others. He considered the position of a servant of people to be an elevated rank. He then recited the famous persian couplet:

زتسبیح و سجادہ و دلق نیست
طریقت بجز خدمت خلق نیست

Tariqat (spiritual way) is nothing but public service. It does not consist in the robes and the prayer-rag and the saintly garments (signs of godliness).

Tariqat in fact, stands for public service. Dr. Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ used to say: When I understood that I am a servant and not a master, how can a servant order others to do this and that? He spent his entire life by doing his personal work without the assistance of anyone else. This is a practical example of how the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ should be followed. As for ourselves we do follow the Sunnah in rituals only. It is necessary to follow the sunnah in dealings with others social living and in every mode of leading our private life.

Verbal claim is not enough

Living according to the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ is highly rewarding. Through such living man can smoothen his worldly life as well as his life in the Hereafter. But this success cannot be attained only by making empty claims.

وكل يدعى حبا ليلى وليلى لا تقر لهم بذاك

This means that everyone claims to love Laila, but Laila herself does not acknowledge their claim).

This is achieved only by means of sincere work and devotion. By his character, conduct and practice man should ensure that he does not cause the least harm even to the person with whom he happens to be on unfriendly terms.

In short, the Holy Prophet ﷺ has illustrated, by his own practice, the THIRD STEP of reforming an errant wife. Throughout his lifetime he never raised his hands on any one of his sacred wives. However he was sometimes irritated by their behaviour, but he never reacted to it. Those who beat their wives are declared the worst men by the Prophet ﷺ.

عن عمرو بن الأَحْوص الجشمى رضى الله عنه انه سمع النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم فى حجة الوداع يقول بعد ان حمد الله تعالى واثنى عليه وذكره ووعظ ثم قال:

"الاواستو صوا بالنساء خيرا فانما هن عوان عندكم ليس تملكون منهن شيئاً غير ذلك الا ان ياتين بفاحشة مبينة..... الخ" (ترمذى، كتاب التفسير، باب ومن سورة التوبة، حديث نمبر ٣٠٨٧)

(Tirmidhi book of Tafsir, chapter Surah Taubah Tradition no: 3087).

Prophetic Address in the Farewel Pilgrimage

In the above Tradition an extract has been given from the Farewel address of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. In this address he ﷺ addressed the assembly of the companions in clear words that after that year he might not see them at that place. So in this address he included all those points that he feared that the Ummah might deviate from the right path, and thus he wanted to leave behind for the guidance of the Ummah a perfect code of life to be followed. In this address he ﷺ tried to block all the possible paths of deviation and error.

The address is quite lengthy but different parts of this address have been stated on different places. This is also a part of it in which the various aspects of relationship of man and woman has been discussed. Special stress has been laid on the need that men should acknowledge the rights of women and honour them. You may realise the importance of these rights from the fact that he delivered that sermon on the occasion of the Last Pilgrimage when he ﷺ indirectly informed people that the next year he may not get an opportunity to address the people. Thus the mutual rights of men and women are one of the topics which he selected for discussing towards the close of his life on account of their importance. He wanted his Ummah to honour and follow the injunctions in all circumstances.

Mutual relations between husband and wife

This shows the importance of husband-wife relations in human life and how the law-maker the Holy Prophet ﷺ himself felt this importance. If the husband and wife do not discharge each other's rights properly and, instead, usurp these mutual rights, not only will this result in the violation of each other's rights, but it will also adversely affect both the families as well as the children whose proper upkeep, development, mental and moral growth will be affected. As the family is the foundation of the entire civilisation, with its ruination civilisation is itself ruined. That is why the Prophet ﷺ has laid great stress on the importance of mutual relation between husband and wife.

Women are in your confinement

Hazrat Umr bin al-Ahwas al-Jashim رحمةالله عليه has narrated that in the Farewel sermon the Holy Prophet ﷺ praised Almighty Allah, offered consels and delivered a speech and then said: Beware! I advise you to do good to women. Accept this advice. This is the sentence which occurred in the previous Tradition. His next sentence was :

فانما هن عوان عندكم

because those women live with you confined in your houses.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned an attribute of women that if man reflects over this attribute only, he can never think of misbehaving with them.

A Lesson from an Ignorant Girl

Our dear Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمةالله عليه used to tell his disciples to learn a lesson from an ignorant, uneducated girl who surrenders herself to a stranger after uttering at the time of the Nikah only two words of acceptance. She honours these two words so solemnly and completely that she leaves her mother, father, brothers and sisters and the entire family and becomes inseparably tied to and confined with her husband. An ignorant girl honours these two words so truly and sincerely that she surrenders herself to one person, her husband but you could not honour your pledge of these two words by surrendering yourself to Almighty Allah. This girl is much better than you. She honoured so completely her pledge of Nikah, but you did not honour your pledge of the two words of the article of Faith.

Sacrifices of the woman for your sake

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in this Tradition, "How tremendous sacrifice the woman has undergone for your sake. If the matter was just the reverse and it were said to you, you would have to leave your family, your parents, after your marriage what an awkward situation it would be for you. As for the woman she has become confined to a strange surrounding, a strange house and a strange person and that, too, for the whole of her life. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ said in his tradition: Will you not mind this sacrifice? Do take heed of this and treat her well and with love.

You have no claim upon them

Thereafter the Holy Prophet ﷺ has spoken a very serious sentence of far-reaching consequences. When the meaning of this sentence is explained to men they get annoyed. That sentence is:

ليس تملكون منهن شيئا غير ذٰلك

This means that according to the laws of the Shari'ah the only demand you can make of them is that they should live with you in your house. You have no other claim upon them

Cooking is not the duty of a wife

From this Tradition the Jurists have deduced a ruling of delicate nature and which makes men annoyed. The ruling lays down that according to the Shari'ah it is not the responsibility of a woman to cook food for the household. For this purpose the Jurists have divided women into two classes. Women of one class are those who do household work, including cooking food in their parent's houses. The other class consists of women who do not cook food in their father's house where cooks are employed for this work. If after marriage a woman of the latter class goes to her husband's house she is not at all responsible to cook food, religiously, legally, morally or otherwise. On the other hand, that wife may ask her husband to hire a cook for her as man is obliged to provide her with food along with other necessaries of life. The Jurists write:

يأتها بطعام مهيئًا

It is the responsibility of the husband to provide his wife with cooked food.

The wife cannot be forced to cook food neither by force, nor by the law, because the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in clear words:

ليس تملكون منهن شيئا غير ذٰلك

This means: You have a right to keep them in your house which it is not lawful for them to leave without your permission.

With this exception the laws of the Shari'ah have imposed no responsibility on them.

However, If she belongs to the first category the one who used to cook food in her parents' house she too is not legally responsible to cook food i.e. she cannot be compelled by law to cook food. However, the responsibility falls on her only morally. In such a case the husband is responsible only to provide the food materials. Even then it is not her responsibility to cook food for the husband and the children. A wife in this class cannot ask her husband to provide her with cooked food. However, if she refuses to cook food for her husband and the children, the court cannot force her to do it. The respected Jurists have explained these problems at great length.

Serving the In-laws is not obligatory

There is another fact worthy of notice about which much negligence is observed among the people. When a wife is not responsible to cook food for her husband and his children, then she is more appropriately not responsible to cook food for the parents of the husband and his brothers and sisters. A custom has gained currency in our society that the parents of the son think that their right over the daughter-in-law has a priority over the right of the son. Therefore she is bound to serve them, no matter if she serves her husband or not. Such a misleading conception gives rise to quarrels and disputes among the daughter-in-law and other members of the family. The negative results of this conception are obvious to require any comments.

To serve In-Laws is a virtue for a woman

Bear in mind well that it is the responsibility of the son to serve his parents. It is, however, a matter of blessing and virtue for the daughter-in-law if she serves the parents of her husband willingly, as a righteous deed and source of reward for her in the Hereafter. The son does not have any right to force his wife to serve his parents in case she does not feel inclined to serve them of her own sweet will. It is also not lawful for the parents to force their daughter-in-law to serve them. As already mentioned, if the daughter-in-law voluntarily decides to serve her in-laws for the sake of recompense in the Hereafter she is welcome to do so. This will create happy and pleasant atmosphere in the household.

Appreciate the services of a daughter-in-law

If a daughter-in-law is serving his father and mother-in-law, she is doing favour out of her moral character because she is giving this service to them only of her free will and she is not in any way liable for such services. Her in-laws should, therefore, appreciate this voluntary service from her. They should try to requite her for this and encourage her. Ignorance of these rights and liabilities create various problems in social life which play havoc to the solidarity and welfare of families through quarrels and disputes. All these troubles are taking place simply because the people have banished from their minds the limits of these mutual rights and liabilities which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has fixed in his Traditions.

A Surprising Incident

Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه one day related a very wonderful event. He said that among his acquaintances, there was a couple who used to visit his assembly and receive spiritual training and instructions from him. One day both of them invited him to a dinner at their house. It was the habit of respected Dr. Sahib to utter at the end of the feast a few words of praise in favour of the lady who cooked the food just to encourage and please her. The lady who had prepared the food came and stood behind the curtain and greeted him. After replying to the greeting Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه uttered a few words of praise and appreciation about the quality and taste of the food and the art of cooking. Dr. Sahib heard the woman sobbing from behind the screen. It was disturbing. Was there anything in Dr. Sahib's words that pinched her? On being asked to state the cause of her grief and sobbing, she said, "I have been living with my husband for the last forty two years, but during this long period of association I never heard from him a word of appreciation about my cooking. When I heard these words from you sir, I could not control myself from sobbing".

The respected Dr. Sahib used to relate this story in his assemblies off and on to emphasize that such callousness can never be expected from a husband who is able to realize that it is a great favour on the part of his wife that she is serving him so selflessly and faithfully of her own sweet will and is doing all this service for which she has not been made legally responsible by the Shari'ah. A man who thinks that his wife is a maid servant and has to serve him at any cost, has no need to drop a word of praise and appreciation if she is an expert cook and sincere worker.

The Husband should serve his parents himself

A question arises as to who should serve the parents when they are old, weak, or otherwise helpless on account of sickness when there is none in the house except their son and his wife? Even in such a situation the daughter-in-law is not bound, according to the Shari'ah to serve her in-laws. It is, however, a matter of blessings and virtue for her if she serves them of her own free will with the belief to please Allah and to receive reward in the Hereafter. The son should, however, realise that it is his responsibility to help and serve his parents personally or by employing a servant for this purpose. If the wife is looking his old parents the husband must appreciate this service and be thankful to her.

Husband's permission for going out

But here is another requirement to note in order to understand the true position. After knowing only one side of a case and being ignorant of the other side people begin to take undue advantage. It has already been explained in detail that it is not obligatory for a wife to cook food, according to the laws of the Shari'ah. In his Tradition the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that "women remain confined to your houses like captives". It means that it is not lawful for them, to go out of the house without the permission of their husbands. Just as the jurists have explained in detail the issue of cooking food, in the same way they have also explained in detail that women cannot leave the house for meeting kinsmen, even their parents without the permission of their husbands. If the parents visit the house of their son-in-law to meet their daughter, the husband cannot prevent them from seeing her. The jurists have prescribed limits for such casual visits. The parents may visit their daughter only once a week and go back after seeing her. This is their daughter's right which a husband cannot deny, yet she cannot go out of the house without her husband's permission. Thus Almighty Allah has, in His mercy, created a balance between the rights and responsibilities of husband and wife. On the one hand the wife is not legally bound to cook food and, on the other hand, she is legally bound not to go out of the house without her husband's permission.

Mutual Co-operation is vital for smooth life

Whatever has been stated above is only the legal side of the matter; but the beauty of mutual behaviour with each other is that each should try to please the other. Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ and Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا had distributed the duties of the household between them in such a way that Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ did all the outdoor wok, while Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا performed the indoor work. This is exactly the Sunnah (practice) of the Holy Prophet ﷺ which should be followed. Husband and wife should not always involve themselves in the implications of the law. The best way is that both should behave with each other open-heartedly. The division of work between husband and wife on outdoor and indoor basis is a natural division to enable them both to keep the vehicle of life going smoothly.

If she commits the immodesty

اِلَّا اَنْ يَأْتِيْنَ بِفَاحِشَةٍ مُبَيِّنَةٍ فَاِنْ فَعَلْنَ فَاهْجُرُوْهُنَّ فِى الْمَضَاجِعِ وَاضْرِبُوْهُنَّ ضَرْبًا غَيْرَ مُبَرِّحٍ فَاِنْ اَطَعْنَكُمْ فَلَا تَبْغُوْا عَلَيْهِنَّ سَبِيْلًا (ترمذی باب تفسیر القرآن فی تفسیر سورۃ التوبہ)

If these women commit open lewdness, that lewdness cannot be tolerated in any case. In such a situation they should be dealt with according to the injunction laid down by the Holy Qur'an. First of all they should be admonished, then, if they insist on their sin, let their bed be separated. If they still do not accept the admonition and continue in their lewdness, then it is permitted to inflict them with light beating which should not cause any injury. If they refrain from the lewdness and mend their ways, then one should not find fault with them, but they should be let off, without further pinching them.

اَلَا وحقُّهن عليكم ان تحسنو ا اليهن فى كسوتهن وطعامهن (ترمذی باب تفسیر القرآن فی تفسیر سورۃ التوبہ)

> Beware! These women have rights over you that you behave with them well. Be generous in discharging your obligations in the matter of providing them with clothes, food and their other needs.

This does not mean that you should meet only their basic needs; you are expected to be generous and liberal in supplying their lawful needs.

Pocket money for a wife

Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمةالله عليه has dealt in his guiding sermons with some topics with special emphasis. I intend to reproduce two or three of these in this discourse, as they are generally overlooked by the people. Firstly, the liabilities about a wife does not mean that she should be provided only with food and clothes. It is also a part of this cost that she should be paid a suitable amount as pocket expenses in addition to the cost of living, making her free to spend this additional amount as she likes. There are persons who arrange for food and clothes but do not care for pocket expenses. Hazrat Thanawi رحمةالله عليه has said that payment of some amount as pocket money is also necessary, because there are many items when a person feels ashamed to disclose to other that she needs a certain thing. The wife should, therefore, must have some extra amount as pocket money so that she may not seek other means to satisfy her needs. Hazrat Thanawi رحمةالله عليه has warned that those who do not provide pocket money to their wives are blamable.

Being generous for Family

Another point to note is that one should be generous and liberal in spending money on the needs of the household. One must not limit expenses to basic needs. One should provide money with a generous hand so that the expenses of the household may be met with ease and freedom according to the financial means of the house-keeper. Some people complain that, on the one hand, there is stress that one should not be extravagant and at the same time there are instructions not to be miser in spending money on the household. A question now arises as to what is the line of demarcation between the two. What is extravagance and what is not extravagance?

Simple or comfortable accommodation both are lawful

To remove this confusion Hazrat Thanawi رحمةالله عليه has said: that accomodations are of two kinds, a place which is just enough to accommodate the members of the family. It may be an ordinary hut, it is possible for a man to live some how even in such structures. This is lawful in the first degree. The second kind is that the house should provide living accommodation as well as a reasonable degree of comforts. For example, the house should be concrete-built, equipped with fans and electric lights. If a person provides this service in his house in order to make life easy and comfortable, this cannot be regarded as extravagance.

Decoration is also lawful

In the third degree, along with means of comfort a house should also have some decoration. For example, a man has a concrete built house with plastered walls, electricity and fans, but it has no paint on it. Even an unpainted house like this is fit for living, but without white-washing and proper painting it lacks in decoration. If the house owner gets the house colour washed and painted for the sake of decoration this too is lawful in the laws of the Shari'ah.

In short to live in an ordinary house is lawful, it is also lawful to live in a house provided with certain comforts and amenities as well as some decoration. Decoration here means some additional improvement made in the house, like painting, etc, which is pleasing to the eyes and cheering to the heart. There is no harm in this and is permissible in the Shari ah.

Show off is not lawful

Then follows the fourth degree which is mere "Show off". The house-owner is doing something which aims neither at comfort, nor at decoration; the aim is to show his riches. Thereby he wants to impose his superiority on others and to show that he is a big thing. All this comes within the definition of "Show off" which is not lawful in the laws of the Shari'ah. It is also extravagance.

The limits of extravagance

These four categories also apply to food and clothes, and in all other things of life. A man wears costly clothes in order to receive comfort, to please himself and the members of his household and his acquaintances, friends and visitors, there is no harm. On the other hand there is a person who wears valuable clothes with the intention that he may be considered a rich and wealthy man, a man of exalted position in society, then this is mere exhibition and show and therefore it is prohibited. Hazrat Thanawi رحمةالله عليه has therefore drawn a clear line of demarcation between the two extremes. If money is spent on something for the sake of meeting a necessity, providing comfort or for decoration for his own pleasure and satisfaction, it is not extravagance.

This is not Extravagance

Once it so happened that I was coming back to Karachi from some other city, and it was the hot summer season. I requested someone to have my seat booked in an airconditioned coach and I gave him the required amount of money. Another man who was sitting nearby at once objected to this because in his opinion I was committing extravagance by sitting in an airconditioned coach. Many people are under the wrong impression that to travel in a higher class is extravagance. Bear in mind that if travelling in an upper class is for comfort, e.g., to save oneself from heat in the summer season, and the man can afford it. It is neither extravagance nor a sin. If one travels in an upper class simply to show that he is rich, then it is extravagance and it is unlawful.

The husband should therefore, keep in mind these degrees in meeting the cost of living of his wife with generosity and liberality. Capacity differs from man to man, Maulana Maseehullah Khan Sahib once observed: There is a man who is all alone in this world, without relatives, without friends and without acquaintances. For such a man a bed, a dish and a jug are sufficient to pass his life. If he collects more articles, it will mean a show and will be reckoned as extravagance in his case. There is a man who receives guests, has a large circle of acquaintances and friends, and has many relatives. The standard of his needs and extent of requirements will be quite different. If such a man has in his house at times even one hundred sets of pots and beddings, not a single piece of this will be counted as extravagance, because all these are necessities of life. The standard of life differs from man to man.

Where to search Allah

Hazrat Ibrahim bin Adham رحمةالله عليه was once a great Ruler but he renounced the world in search of Allah. There are some people who seek from his life arguments to prove their stand. The story runs as follows: One night Hazrat Ibrahim bin Adahm رحمةالله عليه saw a man walking about on the roof of the palace. Hazrat Ibrahim bin Adham رحمةالله عليه caught him and asked him what he was doing on the roof of the palace. The man replied: I have come here to search my lost camel. Hazrat Ibrahim bin Adham رحمةالله عليه said: Stupid fellow! Are you searching your camel on the roof at this hour of night? How can you find the camel here? The man asked with some surprise: Can I not find the camel here? Hazrat Ibrahim bin Adham رحمةالله عليه answered: certainly not! How can you find the camel on the roof of the palace? The man then retorted: If the camel cannot be found in this palace and the man who is searching the camel in this palace is a fool, how can you find Allah while staying in this palace? If I am a fool you are a greater fool than me. This answer of the stranger shocked the heart of Hazrat Adham رحمةالله عليه. He atonce relinquished his kingdom and took his way to the jungle. He took with him only a bowl and a pillow, so that he might eat food and drink water from the bowl and use the pillow while lying down on the ground. After walking some distance he saw a man drinking water from the river with his palms cupped together. He saw that he could also drink water in that way, so he threw away the bowl and resumed his journey. After walking some distance he saw that a man was sleeping on the ground with his hand placed under the head to serve for a pillow. He felt that he could very well do without the pillow so he threw it away, too.

Emotions should not be followed

After listening to this story some people may misunderstand that keeping a bowl and a pillow is also extravagance. May Allah exalt the rank of Hazrat Thanawi رحمةالله عليه who has at his credit of separating right from wrong and wheat from chaff. He رحمةالله عليه has advised that none should compare himself with those of Hazrat Ibrahim bin Adahm رحمةالله عليه. Firstly, because the change that had come over him was due to an ecstatic state of rapture. A man in this condition should not be followed, because the man so overwhelmed goes out of himself and loses his normal consistency of thought and feeling. We are not, therefore, to follow in the footsteps of Hazrat Ibrahim bin Adham رحمةالله عليه because he was not at his normal when he decided to leave the palace. Besides such renunciation of worldly relation is not permissible in Islam generally. It would mean that Allah cannot be found in palaces.

Moderate way in spending money

The requirements of one man is different from that of other. The standard of spending also differs from man to man. The standards of a man with low income, and of a man with a moderate income or a man with a high income are different from one another. The liberality in spending of each person should, therefore be proportionate to his income. It should not happen that the husband is a man of moderate means and his wife is asking for items of comforts and luxuries which she sees in the houses of rich men that her husband cannot afford. Demand for such articles of luxury is not lawful. The husband should however, try to meet the demands of his wife as far as possible within his means and should not be niggardly towards his wife.

The rights of the wives over husbands?

عن معاوية بن حيدة رضى الله عنه قال قلت يا رسول الله ماحق زوجة احدنا عليه؟ قال ان تطعمها اذا طعمت وتكسوها ذاكسيت ولا تضرب الوجه ولا تقبح ولا تهجر الافى البيت (ابو داؤد، كتاب النكاح، باب حق المرأة على زوجها، حديث نمبر ٢١٤٢)

(Abu Dawud. the Book of Marriage-chapter on the Right of the wife over her husband, Tradition no: 2142)

Hazrat Mu'awiyah bin-Hidah رضى الله عنه has narrated that he asked the Holy Prophet ﷺ: O Prophet ﷺ of Allah what are the rights of our wives over us?

The Holy Prophet ﷺ said: when you take food, feed her also and when you wear clothes, provide her also with clothes to wear. Do not beat her on the face, nor curse her. Do not part with her but only within the (bounds of the) house.

Leave sleeping with her as punishment

As has already been explained, if you ever observe in the wife some lewdness, try first to admonish her. If she does not mind your admonition, then leave her bedding, and sleep on a separate bed. Leaving the bed does not imply that you should go out of the house; you should separate your bedding while remaining in the house. You may, however, change the room by way of a psychological punishment and as a sort of protest, and thus keep yourself aloof from her for some days.

A proper way of separation

The learned jurists have explained the meaning of this Tradition also by advising that on such occasions her bed may be separated, but the talking terms should not be terminated totally. The separation should not be so strict as not to offer salutations to each other from time to time and not to return the greeting if one bids it, nor to avoid answering important questions. A separation of this kind is not lawful.

Wife's permission for a long period journey

While explaining this Tradition the learned Jurists have gone to the extent of saying that it is not lawful for the husband to leave the house for more than four months without the permission and pleasure of his wife. As such, Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ had promulgated this order throughout his empire that the freedom-fighters who take part in Jihad should not remain away from their homes for more than four months. The jurists have, therefore, deduced that if anyone is going on a journey for a period not exceeding four months, it is not necessary for him to obtain his wife's permission. If the journey takes longer than four months, it is essential for him to obtain his wife's permission, no matter how desirable that journey may be. This ruling is applicable to the journey for the Hajj (Pilgrimages). If the pilgrim returns from the journey within four months no permission from his wife is necessary, but if he prolongs his stay in the Holy city beyond four months the wife's permission must be taken. This ruling is also applicable to journeys undertaken for Tabligh, Da'wah and Jihad. If the wife's permission is necessary for such blessed journeys then her permission will all the more be necessary for a journey undertaken for the sake of employment, business, etc. If journeys exceeding four months are taken without the wife's permission it will be a violation of her rights and, therefore, unlawful in the laws of the Shari'ah.

Who are the Best People?

وعن ابی هریرة رضی الله عنه قال قال رسول الله صلی الله علیه وسلم اکمل المؤمنین ایمانا احسنهم خلقا وخیارکم خیار کم لا هله. (ترمذی، کتاب الرضاع، باب ماجاء فی حق المرأة علی زوجها، حدیث نمبر ۱۱۶۲)

(Tirmidhi Book of Suckling, Chapter on the rights of a wife over her husband tradition no: 1162)

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: The most accomplished of the believers in respect of Iman (Faith) is one who is the best of them in conduct and character. The more refined a man is in behaviour and character, the more accomplished he is in Iman (Faith). Perfect Iman, therefore, demands that a man should behave and deal with others politely. The best of you are those who are the best in their behaviour and dealings with their wives and women.

The meaning of "Good Character" in the modern age

We see that in our days the meanings of things have greatly changed and the values of all things have been reversed. Hazrat Maulana Qari Muhammad Tayyib Sahib رحمة الله عليه of Deoband used to say: As compared with the past everything has turned upside-down in the present age. For example, in the olden days there was darkness beneath the lamp and now there is darkness above the bulb. Today values have changed and so has changed the import of everything, so much so that even the meaning of character has undergone a total change. Today only some outer acts and expressions of modern etiquettes are regarded as tokens of good character. For example, it is regarded sign of good character to meet someone with a smiling face or to utter formal pleasing words. I am very glad to see you, it is pleasing to meet you, etc. while the heat of enmity, jealousy and hatred is burning in the hearts. Today this way of behaviours has been named good behaviour and character. It has been recognised as an art, how to deal with others so as to make them impressed with our personalities. Books are being written today on the art of winning over sympathies of others. All energies are being utilised to achieve this aim: Do all that is possible to get others attracted by your superficial personality. This is called "character". Bear in mind well that all this formal show has nothing to do with high morality which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has enjoined upon his followers. This is a mere hypocrisy, ostentation, a trick to attract others to one's own personality. This is nothing but love for honour, fame and regard and this desire, in itself, is a disease and immorality. This has nothing to do with Islamic concept of morality.

Morality is a quality of the Heart

Morals are in fact a particular state of the heart which find expression in the movements of the limbs and the organs. The heart should be filled with the feeling of welfare for the creation of Allah and love for them, irrespective of what they are, friends foes, believers or unbelievers. One should remain alive to the fact that every being on the earth is a creation of His Master, Allah. This originates a kind of love for all in one's heart. This conception, in turn, generates good actions and deeds, and then man does good to others. Now the smile shining on ones face on account of this feeling is not artificial, nor is it displayed to arrest public attention; it rather springs up from the heart as a result of heart-felt longing and emotion. Thus, there is a world of difference between the morals taught by the Holy Prophet ﷺ and the artificial and superficial show of morals in modern society.

How to acquire High Morals?

Only reading books or listening to lectures is not enough to attaint the standard of the desired degree of morals. For this purpose it is imperative to seek the company of some spiritual reformer and guide. The order of Tasaw-wuf (Mysticism) and the system of becoming a disciple of a spiritual Guide (Piri-Muridi) has been handed down from the past men of Allah. It aims at inculcating in high morals and eliminating the germs of immorality from a man. Anyway, the most accomplished in the realm of Iman (Faith) are those individuals who posses high morals, whose hearts generate right motives and these right motives are reflected in their acts and deeds. May Allah admit us all into the company of these perfect personalities Aameen!

Do not beat the Maids of Allah

وعن اياس بن عبد الله بن ابى ذباب رضى الله عنه قال قال رسول الله صلى الله وسلم لا تضربوا اماء الله فجاء عمرا لى رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم فقال ذئرن النساء على ازواجهن..... الخ (ابوداؤد، كتاب النكاح باب فى ضرب النساء، حديث نمبر ٢١٤٦)

(Abu Dawud, Book of Marriage, chapter on beating women Tradition no: 2146)

Hazrat Iyas bin Abdullah رضى الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ, while delivering a sermon said: Do not beat the maids of Allah, because beating women is not desirable. When the Holy Prophet ﷺ prohibits something, the act becomes totally unlawful for one who heard the prohibition direct from the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Now it is not lawful for him in any circumstances to beat women.

Two kinds of Holy Traditions

It may be noted carefully that there is a category of Traditions which we hear from someone or read in the books. They reach us through a long chain of authorities: giving us the names of the reporters in ascending order carrying to the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The Traditions of this category are called Zanni because they reach us through a channel of reporters. It is obligatory to act upon the injunctions contained in such Traditions; and deviating from this is a sin. Traditions which the Companions رضى الله عنهم heard direct from the Holy Prophet ﷺ are not Zanni (conjectural), but are Qat-i (confirmed). If any one denies such Traditions, not only will he be a sinner, but he will also become an unbeliever. According to the juristic ruling the denier of an order of the Holy Prophet ﷺ at once turns to be an infidel.

Sometimes we entertain the foolish desire in our hearts to have lived at the blessed time of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, to reap the virtues and blessings of that blessed time. We should remember that whatever Almighty Allah does, He does it in His infinite wisdom and it is He who has raised us in this later age. If He had raised us in the time of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, who knows what would have happened to us. There is no guarantee that we would not have fallen into the dare ditch of ignorance.? May Allah save us. The question of Iman in those days was a very delicate issue. A slight turn from the right path could change the destiny of man.

The devotion with which the sacred Companions رضى الله عنهم of the Holy Prophet ﷺ rallied round him ﷺ was exclusively their distinction. It was due to this that they reached the unique rank. Allah alone knows what would have been the fate of our selfish far-seeing and ease-loving persons as we are. It is indeed a great favour of Almighty Allah that He saved us from ruin and raised us up in an age in which we enjoy many facilities. We are in an age in which we have Zanni Traditions. If anyone denies it he will only be a sinner and not an unbeliever. As regards the sacred Companions, رضى الله عنهم if anyone of them heard some Tradition from the Holy Prophet ﷺ and denied it he would instantly become an unbeliever. May Allah save us from such a fate.

The Audacity of the women

When the Holy Prophet ﷺ ordered the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم not to beat their women, this punishment was totally suspended. It was not possible for the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم to continue an act which the Holy Prophet ﷺ had forbidden them to do. Thus when the Practice of beating women ceased then after some time Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ called on the Holy Prophet ﷺ and said:

ذئرن النساء علی ازواجھن

O Prophet of Allah ﷺ, these women have now become lions (i.e. fearless and bold) with their husbands, because you have stopped us from beating them. Now none beats his wife, nor does he ever threaten her with that. That is why they have become fearless, are violating their husbands' rights, and are misbehaving with them. So what are we to do now?

فرخص فی ضربھن

Then the Holy Prophet ﷺ permitted them to beat their wives, if they violate their rights and when beating was unavoidable. Only a few days after the restoration of the order of beating, the women began to approach the Holy Prophet ﷺ and complained to him ﷺ that their husbands were taking undue advantage from the permission of beating and were beating them severely.

They are not good men

فقال رسول اللہ صلی اللہ علیہ وسلم لقد اطاف بآل محمد نساء کثیر

یشکون ازواجھن لیس اولئك بخیارکم

Mentioning his own name, the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Many women are repeatedly viiting the house of Muhammad ﷺ complaining against their husbands' misbehaviour with them that they severely beat them. You should note it very carefully that those who resort to this beating are not good men.

It is not the work of good believers to beat their wives. The Holy Prophet ﷺ made it quite clear to the gathering that permission was given to beat their wives as the last alternative only in unavoidable circumstances and subject to the condition that the beating should be light, so as not to cause injury and leave its mark on the body. Despite this, it is the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and also his sincere desire that no man should raise his hand to beat a woman. The mothers of the believers have narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ never raised his hands at any woman. Therefore, this is what the sunnah demands.

The Best thing in the world is a "virtuous Woman"

وعن عبد اللہ بن عمرو بن العاص رضی اللہ عنہما ان رسول اللہ صلی اللہ علیہ وسلم قال الدنیا متاع وخیرمتاعھا المرأۃ الصالحۃ (صحیح مسلم کتاب الرضاع باب خیر متاع الدنیا المراۃ الصالحۃ حدیث نمبر ۱۷۶۸)

(Sahih Muslim. Book of suckling. chapter-the best object of the world. a virtuous woman)

Hazrat Abdullah bin Amr bin Al'Aas رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: This world as a whole is an enjoyment, profit and advantage.

The Almighty Allah has said in the Holy Qur'an:

هُوَالَّذِیْ خَلَقَ لَكُمْ مَّافِی الْاَرْضِ جَمِیْعًا (سورۃ البقرہ: ۲۹)

It is Allah who has created whatever there is in the world for your benefit, enjoyment and for meeting your needs. (Al-Baqarah: 29)

The best of all these objects is a virtuous woman created for your service and enjoyment. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in another Tradition:

حُبب اِلیَّ من دنیا کم النساء والطیب وجعلت قرة عینی فی الصلاة

(کنز العمال، حدیث نمبر ۱۸۹۱۳)

(Kanzul-Umwal, Tradition no: 18913)

Of all the things of your earth there are three things that are dearest to me: (Here note the Phrase "Your earth" as he ﷺ said about his approach this world in these works) viz., a woman, scent, and the coolness of my eyes lies in the prayer.

Thus the foremost among the blessing of the world are these things. In another place he ﷺ said:

مالی للدنیا ما انا والدنیا الاکراکب استظل تحت شجرة ثم راح وترکها (ترمذی، کتاب الزهد، حدیث نمبر ۳۳۷۸)

(Tirmidhi, the Book of Abstinence, Tradition no: 2378)

What have I to do with the world? I am like a rider who takes rest for a short time under the shade of a tree, then he sets off, leaving behind that tree.

Seek refuge from a bad woman

In short one of the three desirable gifts is a virtuous woman, because the Holy Prophet ﷺ has sought refuge from bad woman.

اللهم انی اعوذبك عن امرأة تشیبنی قبل المشیب واعوذبك من ولد یکون علیَّ وبالا

O Allah! I seek refuge from that woman who will make me old before I attain the old age. I also seek refuge from a child who proves to be a trial in the Hereafter. May Allah save us from them. Aamen!

So if you are in search of a woman for yourself or for one of your children, try to find out one who is religious, virtuous and righteous. If God-forbid she is not righteous, then she may prove a distress. If a man is lucky enough to get a virtuous wife, he should value her, and should never degrade her. To value her means that you should fulfil her rights and behave with her nicely.

May Almighty Allah assist us in acting upon these injunctions.Aameen!

واخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمین

And we close with the call that all praise be to Allah, the Lord of the worlds.

Venue : Jame'Masjid Baitul-Mukarram,
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi.

Date : Friday, 26th June, 1992
After 'Asr Prayers

As Almighty Allah has appointed man a Supervisor of the family, His decision will have to be accepted and acted upon. But you (i.e. women) are at liberty to express your opinion and offer your advice. On the other hand I have ordered man to seek your pleasure, as far as possible and the right to take the final decisions will be his. If the wife wants that she should have the right to take decisions in all matters and man should not pose as Incharge and this status should belong to her, then this is absolutely against nature, wisdom and the dictates of justice. The result of such dispensation will be nothing but destruction of the household.

The Rights of a Husband and His Status

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent the Merciful

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه،
ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا
مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده
لاشريك له ونشهدان سيد نا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا
عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالىٰ عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك
وسلم تسليما كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم، بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

اَلرِّجَالُ قَوَّامُوْنَ عَلَى النِّسَآءِ بِمَا فَضَّلَ اللّٰهُ بَعْضَهُمْ عَلٰى بَعْضٍ وَّبِمَآ اَنْفَقُوْا مِنْ اَمْوَالِهِمْ ؕ فَالصّٰلِحٰتُ قٰنِتٰتٌ حٰفِظٰتٌ لِّلْغَيْبِ بِمَا حَفِظَ اللّٰهُ ؕ

(سورة النساء: ٣٤)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم و صدق رسوله النبى الكريم و نحن علىٰ ذالك من الشٰهدين والشٰكرين والحمد لله رب العالمين

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness and we believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the mischief of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is none to lead him astray whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God but Allah alone and that He has no partner. I also bear witness that our master, our authority, and our Prophet and our master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah bestow upon him, his household and his Companions رضى الله عنهم. His mercy and blessings in abundance.

Men are the incharge of women because Allah has made some to excel the other and because they (men) spend of their moneys (for the support of women). So virtuous women are obedient, guarding in absence which Allah has guarded. (4:34)

I believe in Allah. Allah our Great Master has told the truth and His kind Prophet and Messenger has (also) told the truth and we are witnesses to that.

The previous discourse dealt with the rights of a wife which are due to her by her husband. It contained directions how a husband should behave with his wife. The fact is that the Shari'ah which is a law appointed by Almighty Allah is not partial to anyone but it takes into consideration both sides. and guarantees the good and welfare of both in this world as well as in the Hereafter. Just as the fulfilment of the rights of the wife has been made binding on the husband, in the same way Almighty Allah and His Messenger ﷺ have mentioned the rights of the husband, wife has been made responsible to discharge. The Holy Qur'an and the Traditions both lay great emphasis and stress on the fulfillment of both categories of these rights.

Today every person is demanding his rights

The Shari'ah has directed every person to discharge his bounded duties. It has not encouraged any one to demand only his rights. We see that the present day world is a world of struggle for rights. Everyone is demanding his rights through agitation. demonstrations, and by going on strikes. In fact, all possible efforts are being made everywhere in the world and associations have been established for this one-sided objective of attaining Rights, e.g. "The Association for the Protection of Rights of.....". There is no association to ensure the fulfilment of duties and liabilities. None cares to think whether or not he is discharging the duties entrusted to him. The workers and the capitalists both are demanding their rights, but none of them ever thinks how he should discharge his duties and obligations. Husband and wife both are crying for their rights and making frantic efforts to that end. A battle, as it were, is raging on this account. Yet none is seen inclined to consider for a while whether or not he is himself discharging his own duties and liabilities.

Everyone should discharge his duties

The essence of the teachings of Allah and His Messenger ﷺ is that every person should pay attention to the duties entrusted to him and do his best to discharge them. If people begin to discharge their duties the rights of others will automatically get discharged and settled amicably. If a labourer discharges his duties and liabilities will naturally result in the satisfaction of the rights of the capitalist and the employer. Similarly, if the capitalists and the employers discharge their duties the rights of the labourer will be fulfilled. Again, if the husband and the wife discharge their duties to each other their mutual rights will be discharged automatically. What the Shari'ah demands of its followers is that everyone should realize his responsibilities and seek to discharge them with sincerity and faithfully.

Mind your own business

Values have changed in a very strange way. Whenever a leader rises to lead others he totally forgets himself and does not search his own heart and actions to discover that he too, may have faults and shortcomings which he should rectify. The Holy Qur'an says:

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْا عَلَيْكُمْ اَنْفُسَكُمْ ۚ لَا يَضُرُّكُمْ مَنْ ضَلَّ اِذَا اهْتَدَيْتُمْ ۭ (سورة المائدة: ١٠٥)

> O you who believe ! Take charge of your own souls. He who errs cannot injure you if you are rightly guided. (5:105)

The direction contained in this verse advises you to take care of your own selves to find out what duties lie on you, what Almighty Allah and His Prophet ﷺ demand from you, what you owe to the Shari'ah, concerning honesty, trust and morality. Discharge your part of obligations and liabilities. As for those who are in error and are not discharging their duties, you will not suffer for their misconduct and failure, if you are rightly discharging your own duties.

The style of the teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

You may be aware that during the days of the Holy Prophet ﷺ government officials used to call upon the public to collect Zakat (obligatory tax) from them. In those days possessions consisted mainly of cattle including camels, goats, cows, etc. While deputing his officers on this work the Holy Prophet ﷺ used to furnish them with a letter containing instructions as to how they were to discharge their duties. The letter also contained this direction:

"لا جلب ولا جنب في زكوٰة ولا توخذ زكاتهم الافي دورهم" (ابو داؤد كتاب الزكوة، باب اين تصدق الاموال حديث نمبر ١٥٩١)

(Abu Dawood, Book of Zakat, chapter - Tasadduqul-Awamal Tradition no: 1591)

This means that the collectors were to collect the amounts of Zakat personally at the doors of the people. They should not sit at some place to trouble the people taking their Zakat to the collectors. He ﷺ used to advise them as under:

"المعتدى في الصدقة كما نعها" (ابو داؤد كتاب الزكوة، باب زكاة السائمة، حديث نمبر ١٥٨٥)

(Abu Dawood, chapter Zakat Tradition no: 1585)

This means that a man who is not honest in collecting the Zakat, i.e. he is collecting more amount or quantity (of the animals, etc.) than was due, is committing a sin equal to the sin of the one who is not paying his Zakat. This the collectors of Zakat are being warned not to wrong the payers by receiving from them even a penny more than the due amount, because if they did they would be called to account on the Day of Judgment. On the other hand, the payers of Zakat were addressed thus:

اذاجاء كم المصدق فلا يفارقكم الاعن رضى (ترمذى، كتاب الزكوة، باب ماجاء في رضى المصدق، حديث نمبر ٦٤٧)

(Tirmidhi. Book of zakat chapter - Tradition no: 647)

The collectors of Zakat will visit you. Take care that they do not leave you displeased. You should please them and should not do them anything to make them displeased, because they are in fact my emissaries and representatives. To displease them would be to displease me ﷺ.

Thus, the Holy Prophet ﷺ has reminded each one of his responsibilities and duties. He ﷺ did not incite the payers of Zakat to make an agitation against the collectors of Zakat that they might not usurp their rights, nor were they advised to form an association which usually becomes a source of contention between the two.

The Shari'ah has laid great emphasis on discharging duties honestly because everyone is accountable for every action before Almighty Allah. He should, therefore, prepare himself for giving an account in the Hereafter. The entire philosophy of religion consists in this principle and not that everyone should be demanding his rights from others and should at the same time be unmindful of his own obligations and responsibilities.

How to Regulate one's life

In the matter of mutual relations between husband and wife Almighty Allah and His messenger ﷺ have adopted the same method that they have informed each side of his/her duties which each one should strive to discharge. Life may be compared to a vehicle the two wheels of which are husband and wife. To let this vehicle of life run smoothly it is necessary that each of its wheels, husband and wife, should discharge his/her duties faithfully and be considerate towards the rights of the other, and think her or his rights more than their duties. Such feeling shall bring about stability in life. This aspect is so important and Allah and His Prophet ﷺ are so particular and concerned about the stability and smoothness of human life that the Qur'an and the Traditions are full of injunctions about the duties and responsibilities imposed on man and woman. There is nothing more displeasing to Allah and his Messenger ﷺ than the discord between husband and wife.

Satan's Court

According to a Tradition the Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said: This Iblis or Satan sometimes places his throne on the surface of the ocean and holds his court there. At that time all his disciples and followers assemble in his court. They are asked to submit their progress report and every disciple submits his report to Satan for his perusal. One disciple submits that he saw a man going to the mosque but he involved him in some work that detained him from the prayer. Satan pleased to hear this but not too much. Another disciple relates a similar story of stopping a Namazi from some worship and Satan is pleased with this too. Such submissions continue until a disciple told Satan that a pair of husband and wife was leading a very happy life with love and co-operation, but he through some schemes, sowed the seed of distrust and conflict between them and they parted with each other. When Satan hears this of creating hate and enmity between couple who were living together in peace and contentment he stands up from his throne with joy and embraces the disciple and acknowledges him as his true representative, because he had performed a feat which none else had done .(Sahih Muslim. Book of attributes of the hypocrites. Tradition no: 3813).

Now you can see how hateful and condemnable in the sight of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ are the mutual quarrels, hatred and separation between husband and wife by divorce, etc.! And again how pleasing and blissful the same detestable acts are to Satan! That is why Allah Almighty and His Prophet ﷺ have mentioned in details in the Qur'an and the Traditions rights and obligations of man and woman. If men obey these injunctions, they can reform and rectify their worldly lives as well as their Hereafter.

Man is Incharge over woman

As such Imam Nuwa-wi رحمة الله عليه has framed another chapter under the title "The rights of husband over wife." The Imam has cited under this chapter Qur'anic verses and Traditions and has opened the chapter with the verse:

اَلرِّجَالُ قَوَّامُوْنَ عَلَى النِّسَآءِ بِمَا فَضَّلَ اللّٰهُ بَعْضَهُمْ عَلٰى بَعْضٍ (سورة النساء: ٣٤)

Men are incharge of women, because Allah has made one of them to excel the other. (4:34)

In other words men are watchmen and look after women. Some have also translated this verse to mean that men are rulers over women. The dictionary meaning of the word "Qaw-waam" is a person who is responsible to do or manage some work. Thus, men are incharge over women; they manage their affairs and are their rulers. Here a guiding principle has been provided. Without such a principle man may go on doing wrong in all their affairs misled by a mis-conception. Thus, while describing men's rights the Shari'ah has advised women at the very outset about the basic principle that men are protectors and administrators of women's affairs in their lives.

The Propaganda of the contemporary world

In today's world great emphasis is being laid and agitations are launched in support of equality of women with men and their emancipation from man's upper hand. In such an atmosphere people feel ashamed to admit that the Shari'ah has made men incharge of women because today full-fledged propaganda is going on that men have imposed their superiority over women. They have been imprisoned under men's hand as helpless subjects and have been declared inferior to men.

While on a Journey choose one of you as a Leader

Man and woman are indeed the two wheels of the vehicle of life. They have both to make the journey of life together. In this journey of life it is very essential that for the sake of management and guidance one of the two should be made leader to manage the whole journey. The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said in a Tradition:

> Whenever two men are on a journey together let one of them make the other his leader, irrespective of that the journey is long or short. It is not right for them to undertake a journey without a leader, so that all the policies and the management of the journey in progress may be subject to the decisions of the leader. Without a responsible leader there may be disorder and confusion.
>
> (Abu Dawood. Book of Jihad. chapter about appointing a leader. Tradition no: 2608)

When so much emphasis has been laid on appointing a leader on a short journey, why should this emphasis of appointing a leader not apply to this long journey of life which has to be undertaken together, to avoid mismanagement and to ensure a safe and smooth journey ? Thus, it is imperative to appoint a leader to establish this order.

Who should be the Leader of the journey of life ?

Only two alternatives are open: either the man should be appointed as leader in the journey of life, or the woman should be appointed as leader in the journey of life and the man made her sub-ordinate: there is no third alternative. Now man and woman have been created with distinct physical features. Man is stronger and distinctly more capable of facing the hardship of life than a woman who has been created with tender features. It is, therefore, man alone and not woman, who can discharge rightly and efficiently the duties of this leadership. Instead of relying on one's own wisdom one should better ask Almighty Allah, the Creator as to which of the two should be appointed the leader of the journey. No human judgment, however, wisely made on this issue, can be accepted, except Almighty Allah's infallible judgment. Allah has commanded that man is.. "Incharge, the ruler and manager". If man accepts this divine judgment it will ensure prosperity and success. On the other hand, if man rejects and disobeys this judgment and rebels against it, he is going to ruin his life. In fact, the divine punishment is in progress. Look at the fate of the transgressors!

The conception of a Leader in Islam

Try to grasp the meaning of the word which Almighty Allah has used in His command. He has not used the word Amir (leader), Hakim (Ruler) or Badshah (King). He has used, instead the word Qaw-waam (Incharge) which means a person who is responsible for some work and to be responsible means that he will decide upon the overall policy of life. To be a Qaw-waam never means that the husband is the master and the wife is his slave girl or maid servant. The relation between husband and wife is that of a leader and follower, ruler and subject. However, it is not the concept of Amir in Islam that sitting on a throne he should be governing his subjects. On the contrary the concept of Amir in Islam is that which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has stated:

"سَيِّدُ الْقَوْمِ خَادِمُهُمْ"

The leader of the people is their servant. (Kanzul Umwal Tradition no: 17517)

What an Amir (leader) shoud be like ?

My hon'ble father Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi' Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to relate an incident which is reproduced below in his own words:

Once we were going from Deoband (India) on a journey to some other place. My teacher Hazrat Maulana 'Izaz Ali Sahib رحمة الله عليه who was known in Deoband as "Shaikhul Adab" was also accompanying us in the journey. When we reached the Railway Station there was yet some time for the arrival of the train. Maulana 'Izaz Ali Sahib رحمة الله عليه said: It is in a Tradition that when you go on a journey, appoint someone your leader, so we too should appoint someone our leader. He being our teacher and we his pupils, I said: We already have an Amir with us. Hazrat Maulana asked : Who is he? I replied: You being our teacher and we your pupils, you are the Amir. Maulana said: All right, but you will have to obey every order of the Amir, because an Amir means that he should be obeyed. I said: When we have appointed you our Amir, We shall, God willing, obey you in all matters. The Maulana was satisfied. When the train arrived, the Maulana took up some luggage of the companions on his head and some in his hands and moved towards the train. At this, we exclaimed: What are you doing Sir? Let us carry the luggage. The Maulana replied: No when you have appointed me an Amir, you will have to obey me. Let me carry this luggage. Thus he loaded the entire luggage into the compartment. Apart from this, during the entire journey; when there was some hard job, Maulana himself did it and when we objected, he would at once say: Look here ! You have appointed me an Amir and you will have to obey your Amir's orders. So, obey my orders. It turned out to be very hard on us to appoint him an Amir. This indeed is the concept of Amir in Islam.

An Amir (leader) is he who serves others

Today when we conceive in our minds an Amir, we conceive him as a King and a Lord who does not tolerate even to talk to his subjects and subordinates. On the other hand, the concept of an Amir, according to the Qur'an and the Traditions is that of a person who is a servant and is ready to serve others. The concept of Amir is not that he has been appointed a King to issue his commands to others to obey him as his servants and slaves. If an Amir issues some command his command will be valid and binding, yet its objective will be their service and to ensure their comfort and welfare only and not a show and exercise of authority.

Husband and wife are friends

Hakimul Ummat Hazrat Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has said: Men are particular in preserving in their minds the Qur'anic verse, "اَلرِّجَالُ قَوَّامُوْنَ عَلَى النِّسَآءِ" meaning that men are incharge and rulers over women. On the basis of this divine command they are domineering upon women and harbouring in their minds the notion that a woman should in all circumstances be obedient and the relation between the two sexes should be that of master and servant; this is indeed horrible! Almighty Allah has revealed in the Qur'an another verse also which these men do not remember. The verse runs thus:

وَمِنْ اٰيٰتِهٖٓ اَنْ خَلَقَ لَكُمْ مِّنْ اَنْفُسِكُمْ اَزْوَاجًا لِّتَسْكُنُوْٓا اِلَيْهَا وَجَعَلَ بَيْنَكُمْ مَّوَدَّةً وَّرَحْمَةً ط (سورة الروم ٢١)

And it is of His signs that He created for you wives from your own species (i.e. women) so that you may get comfort from them, and He created between you (husband and wife) love and mercy. (30:21)

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has said that man is indeed incharge over woman but at the same time the two are on friendly terms with each other. From the administrative point of view man is incharge or a ruler but internally husband and wife are friends. They are not as master and maid servants with each other. They are just like two friends going on a journey and one makes the other a leader of the journey. The husband is, therefore, an Amir (Leader), because he is responsible to take decisions on affairs arising during the journey of the entire lifetime. This does not permit him to treat his wife as a maidservant and slave girl. This friendship between husband and wife entails some discipline and demands. Within these discipline and demands there are also some tender emotions of coquetry closeness which do not negate their status as being a controller and the controlled.

Such awe is not needed

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has said that there are some persons in our society who are under the impression that they are ruler over their wives, they should be so awe-inspiring that their wives should shudder with fear when their names are mentioned and should not be able to have conversation with freedom. A class fellow of Maulana once said to him with great pride that when he returned home after many months, his wife and children did not have courage enough to approach him and talk to him. Maulana Sahib asked him: Do you turn into a ravenous animal like a lion or a tiger that your wife or children fear to go near you when you enter your home? He replied: No, this is not the matter, but this is because I am incharge and they should be overawed in my presence. It should be well understood that being incharge never means that wife and children should feel afraid to go near the head of the family and talk to him. There should also be a relation of friendship between them. Read in the following pages what kind of relationship it should be:

The Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

Once the Holy Prophet ﷺ said to Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی الله عنها: I become aware of both the occasions when you are pleased and when you are displeased with me. Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی الله عنها asked: O Prophet ﷺ of Allah, how do you come to know this? The Holy Prophet ﷺ replied: When you are pleased with me you swear by the name of the Lord of Muhammad" and when you are displeased with me you swear by the name of the "Lord of Ibrahim", without pronouncing my name at that time. In reply to this Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی الله عنها said:

اِنِّیْ لَا اَهْجُرُ اِلَّااسْمَكَ

O Prophet ﷺ of Allah I omit only your name, I do not omit any other feeling. (Sahih Bukhari book of Etiquettes, chapter "It is not lawful to leave the sinner" Tradition no: 6-78)

Now think a while who is being displeased and with whom? Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی الله عنها is displeased with the Holy Prophet ﷺ. This shows that Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی الله عنها sometimes used to say something by way of complacency which gave the impression that she had some ill-will and displeasure in her heart - a mater which the Holy Prophet ﷺ did not take to be against his authoritative 'Inchargeship'. On the other hand he ﷺ told her in a very pleasant mood that he could know the occasions of 'Ayeshah's' رضی الله عنها displeasure.

A wife's self esteem

When the charge of a heinous slander was levied against the Mother of the believers, Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی الله عنها may Allah forgive us, it shocked her as a bolt from the blue; so distressing it was! The Holy Prophet ﷺ himself was shocked with deep grief that such an undesirable rumour had spread among the people. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said to Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی الله عنها:

O 'Ayeshah, look here! You need not be so sad. If you are innocent, Allah will surely disclose your innocence. On the other hand, if you have committed - God forbid - Some fault or sin, then turn to Allah in repentance. He shall pardon you.

Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی الله عنها felt it too shocking for her that the Holy Prophet ﷺ should have spoken these words: If you are innocent Allah will surely disclose your innocence. On the other hand, if you have committed some fault or sin, then turn to Allah in repentance. This shows that there was some slight suspicion in his ﷺ heart about the possibility of this sin. On account of a very great shock which she had from this speech she lay down and in this very state the verses exonerating her were revealed. Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی الله عنه was also present on that occasion. The Holy Prophet ﷺ was also overjoyed to listen to those verses. Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی اللہ عنہ also was very happy and he said that God willing, the entire calumny would come to an end. He said to Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا: Receive the glad tidings that Almighty Allah has revealed verses to exonerate you. Get up, stand up before the Holy Prophet ﷺ and salute him. Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا was lying on her bed, listened to the verse of exonerating and said, while still lying: It is Allah's mercy that He has revealed my innocence. I, therefore, want to thank none, but Allah, because you (both) had allowed a suspicion to enter your hearts about a possibility of my having committed a sin. (Sahih Bukhari, the Book of Tafasir of Surah An-Noor, chapter Lau laa... Tradition no: 750).

Apparently Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا avoided standing before the Holy Prophet ﷺ, but the Holy Prophet ﷺ did not take it ill because this was matter of feminine self-esteem which emanated from Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا.

It should be noted that this practice of self-esteem is a natural demand of love and friendship. Thus, the relation between husband and wife is not only that of authority and subordination but also of friendship and love. Friendship rightly demands that the play of such feminine coquetry should be tolerated with masculine patience and generosity. It is, however, quite a different matter that in very extreme cases of misconduct the Holy Prophet ﷺ expressed his anger. He ﷺ has, however, always tolerated such behaviours.

It is an act of Sunnah to please the wife

This is how the Holy Prophet ﷺ allowed the demand of friendship. The Holy Prophet ﷺ enjoyed a very elevated rank and status with Almighty Allah with his close contact, and the unique privilege of conversation with Him. Yet he ﷺ at all times tried to please his sacred wives, sought to keep them heartily happy and satisfied, and behaved with them most amicably. An example of this amicability on his part was that one night he related to Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا the story of eleven women of Yaman. He told her how these women decided among them that they would disclose to one another the true conducts and characters of their husbands. They depicted the true conditions of their husbands in the most eloquent, chaste and lucid language. He ﷺ related this story for the sake of Hazrat 'Ayeshah's رضی اللہ عنہا pleasure. (Shamail Tirmidhi, chapter on the prophet's night-talk).

Bantering with wife is a Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

One day the Holy Prophet ﷺ was staying at the house of Hazrat Sawdah رضی اللہ عنہا as it was her turn Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا prepared a sweet dish for the Holy Prophet ﷺ and brought it to Hazrat Sawdah's house and placed the dish before the Prophet ﷺ. She asked Hazrat Sawdah رضی اللہ عنہا sitting in front, to take some from the dish. Hazrat Sawdah was annoyed at it. Because it was her turn. Hazrat Sawdah رضی اللہ عنہا refused to take the sweet. Thereupon Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا insisted upon Hazrat Sawdah رضی اللہ عنہا to eat the sweet or otherwise she threatened that she would smear Sawdah's face with it. Hazrat Sawdah رضی اللہ عنہا again refused to eat it. Then Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا took a small amount of the sweet and rubbed it on Hazrat Sawdah's رضی اللہ عنہا face. Hazrat Sawdah رضی اللہ عنہا complained to the Holy Prophet ﷺ against this behaviour of Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said:

وَجَزٰٓؤُا سَيِّئَةٍ سَيِّئَةٌ مِّثْلُهَا

The reward of an ill is an ill the like thereof. (42.40)

In other words if anyone misbehaves with you, you may also misbehave with him in retaliation. The Holy Prophet ﷺ, therefore, asked Hazrat Sawdah رضی اللہ عنہا to take her revenge from Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا by rubbing the sweet on her face. Hazrat Sawdah رضی اللہ عنہا did this. Now both the wives رضی اللہ عنہما had the sweet on their faces. All this happened before the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

In the meantime there was a knock at the door. On inquiry it came to knowledge that Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ was there (probably the Hijab (veil) had not been enforced by that time). On hearing this the Holy Prophet ﷺ asked the two wives to wash their faces, because Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ had arrived there. They, therefore, washed their faces.(Majmauz-zawaid-Haishmi, vol. iv p.316)

The Prophet ﷺ who was constantly in communion with Allah, was continuously in conversation with Him and revelation was descending down; it was indeed a personality that enjoyed the privilege of presence before Allah which none else enjoyed on the surface of the earth. Despite all this, the Holy Prophet ﷺ cared so much for the happiness and pleasure of his sacred wives رضی اللہ عنہ.

The Station of the "Presence" before Allah

We all utter the word "Presence", but do not know what is its real impart. If anyone ever had the taste of this 'Presence', then only he could realize what it is. Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai رحمۃ اللہ علیہ a spiritual leader in Pakistan used to say that sometimes the idea of "Presence" (before Allah) so thoroughly overtakes some servants of Allah that they cannot lie down or sleep with their legs stretched. That is because they are constantly absorbed in a feeling that they are in the presence of their Creator, Allah, and indeed how can one lie down with his legs stretched before an elder and far superior to him? He can never do so. Thus how can a person who enjoys such an exalted and rare status of "Presence" afford to joke with his wife. It is only a Messenger of Allah who can enjoy this unique privilege. Nevertheless, as Almighty Allah has conferred on man the status of an "incharge" or a ruler over women, his decisions will have to be obeyed. It is, however, open to women to offer their opinions; and Allah has indeed enjoined upon men to please their wives as far as possible. If a house-lady does not keep this in view and wants to impose her decision on her husband in all affairs and become a ruler in place of her husband, then this is against nature, the Shari'ah wisdom and justice. The result of such an attitude on the part of housewives can lead to a total ruin of the household.

The Responsibilities of women

Allma Nuwa-wi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has further stated, quoting a verse of The Holy Qur'an:

فَالصّٰلِحٰتُ قٰنِتٰتٌ حٰفِظٰتٌ لِّلْغَيْبِ بِمَا حَفِظَ اللّٰهُ ط

So virtuous women are obedient, guarding in secret what Allah has guarded. (4:34)

In the explanation of this verse the Allamah has said that it is the duty of virtuous women to be obedient (Qaa-ni-tah) to Allah, obedient to their husbands in the matter of the rights which are due by them to their husbands and to guard the houses of their husbands in their absence. Almighty Allah has mentioned it among the essential attributes of women. He has entrusted to them the duty of guarding the houses of their husbands when the latter are away from their houses. Guarding the houses means firstly to guard their own honour and chastity and guard the money and properties of their husbands, because, the duties of guarding these value rests on wives. This is confirmed in a Tradition:

المرأة راعية في بيت زوجها (صحيح بخاری، کتاب الجمعة، باب الجمعة فی القری والمدن رقم ۸۹۳)

(Sahih Bukhari. the Book of Friday chapter. Tradition no: 893)

A wife is the protector of the house of her husband, i.e. it is her responsibility to protect the money and property of her husband.

Under most circumstances it is not binding on a wife to prepare food, but she has been made responsible to protect the money and property of her husband in such a way that they may not be squandered. The Holy Qur'an has appointed this act of guarding as her essential responsibility:

The life cannot be based on the Laws only

It has been explained that preparation of food does not fall within the responsibilities of a wife. But this is a matter of legal technicality. It is, however, not possible to lead meaningful life under the duress of dry laws. Just as wife is not responsible legally to prepare food, in the same way a husband is not responsible legally to provide medical treatment to his wife if she falls ill. It is also not the legal responsibility of the husband to take his wife to the house of her parents to see them, nor is it necessary to welcome to his house the parents of the wife when they visit their daughter. The jurists have gone to the extent of ruling that the wife's parents can see their daughter only once in a week, see her from a distance only and then go back. The husband is not responsible to welcome them into the house and offer them seats to sit and see their daughter. If life is confined within the thorns of the law, the household of both will be doomed. The wheels of life will run smoothly only when both pass their lives according to the Traditions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and follow in the footsteps of the sacred wives of the Prophet ﷺ.

Wife should take care of her husband's possessions

Hazrat Maulana Thanawi has stated in his sermons that it is among the duties of a wife to take care of the money of her husband that it may not be wasted and squandered lavishly. If a wife is careless in this matter then she frustrates the requirements of her legal obligations.

The Angels curse such a wife

عن ابی هريرة رضی الله عنه قال قال رسول الله صلی الله عليه وسلم اذا دعا الرجل امرأته الی فراشه فابت ان تجئ لعنتها الملائكة حتی تصبح (صحيح بخاری کتاب النكاح باب اذاباتت امرأة مهاجرة فراش زوجها حديث نمبر ۵۱۹۳)

(Sahih Bukhari, Book of Nikah, chapter women remaining away.... Tradition no: 5193

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: When a husband calls his wife to his bed for intercourse but she does not obey the call or behaves with her husband in such a way that the husband is displeased, then the Angels curse such a woman the whole night till dawn.

Cursing means that the woman will not receive Allah's mercy that night. This is because in spite of so many rights which the wife enjoys from the side of the husband, she fails to safeguard the chastity of the husband so as to prevent him from falling into some undesirable desires. The basic object of marriage is to provide safeguard against lewdness. If the wife fails to provide this safeguard the Angles must curse her.

Another Tradition

اذا باتت المراة مهاجرة فراش زوجها لعنتها الملائكة حتى تصبح

(حوالہ بالا، حدیث نمبر ۵۱۹۴)

(Preceding reference to Tradition no: 5194)

If a woman passes the night away from the bed of her husband, the Angels curse her until dawn.

Now just consider how a small matter has been mentioned in the Tradition that if the wife fails in satisfying her husband's call for intercourse or to disappoint him in any other way, then she is cursed the whole night. Similarly if a wife leaves her husband's house without his permission, then the Angels of Allah curse her until her return. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has explained all these matters one by one in all details, because negligence in these matters may lead grave consequences.

No optional fasting without husband's permission

وعن ابی هریرة رضی الله عنه ان رسول الله صلی الله علیه وسلم قال لایحل للمرأة ان تصوم وزوجها شاهد الا باذنه ولا تاذن فی بیته الا باذنه (صحیح بخاری کتاب النکاح باب لاتاذن المرأة فی بیت زوجها حدیث نمبر ۵۱۹۵)

(Sahih Bukhari, Book of Nikah, Tradition no: 5195)

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی الله عنه has narrated that Holy Prophet ﷺ said: It is not lawful for a wife to observe optional fast in the presence of her husband except with his permission. Great virtues have been mentioned in the Traditions for optional forms of worship, but a wife cannot observe them without the permission of her husband, because this may be a source of inconvenience to him. However, it is not like a good husband to prevent his wife from optional worship, unless it is unavoidable. He should be liberal in according permission as far as possible. Undue strictness in this matter leads to tension and bitterness. Husband and wife both should adopt a flexible attitude in this matter. However, if the husband does not permit his wife to observe optional fasts, she should not insist on it and obey her husband because obedience to the husband has preference to the optional fasting.

This shows that Allah and His Prophet ﷺ prefer husband's obedience over all optional forms of worship. So the virtuous reward which a wife will earn by obeying her husband will be much more than that from the optional fasting. The wife should not misunderstand that she has been deprived of the virtue of fasting. She should think that she wanted to observe fasts only to earn reward of the Hereafter and to please Allah. On the other hand Allah has said that He shall not be pleased with a wife unless the husband of that wife is pleased with her. Thus, a wife can earn the same reward by eating and drinking which she could earn by observing the fasts, only if she pleases her husband.

Reward for doing Household work

Sometimes we are led to think that the husband and wife relation is only a worldly affair and a source of satisfying a sensual appetite. This is not correct. It is purely religious matter. If a wife is able to understand that Almighty Allah has imposed on her a duty and the aim of this husband-wife relation is to please the husband and through his pleasure to please Almighty Allah, then this entire affair becomes a source of virtuous reward. The housewives are busy doing household work the whole day from morning till evening. If they do all this with the intention of pleasing their husbands then all this work is recorded in their accounts as worship, whether the work consists of cooking food looking after the house, brining up the children, minding the comforts and needs of the husband or pleasing the husband with an amicable and warming style of conversation. All these actions are rewarded in the Hereafter with divine favours, only when these are done with pure and sincere intention.

Virtuous Reward for satisfying the sexual desire

There is a definite and clear Tradition on this subject. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that Almighty Allah grants recompense on the mutual contacts between husband and wife. The Holy Companions رضی الله عنهم asked: O Prophet ﷺ of Allah, man does this only to satisfy his sexual desire; how can it fetch him a reward? The Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Will not man commit a sin if he satisfies this desire with unlawful means? The Companions said. Yes, Prophet ﷺ of Allah. it will indeed be a sin. The Holy Prophet ﷺ then said: The husband and wife satisfy their sexual desires in a lawful way, by shunning the unlawful ways, in compliance with Allah's injunctions so they shall receive reward for this action as well. (Musnad Ibn Hambal. vol. 5. p. 169167)

Almighty Allah looks at both with Merciful Eye

There is a Tradition which Hazrat Maulana Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has quoted in many places in his writings and sermons, although I myself have not seen it. The Tradition mentions that if a husband on entering his house casts a glance of love on his wife and the wife also responds with similar glance on her husband Allah also looks at them with mercy. Therefore, the husband-wife relation is not only a worldly affair. They are source of happiness or distress in the Hereafter.

According to a Tradition in the Tirmidhi Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی الله عنها has narrated: To compensate the fasts which I missed in the month of Ramadan on account of natural period I used to observe compensatory fasts generally during the month of next Shaʿban, i.e. after the lapse of eleven months. I followed this practice because the Holy Prophet ﷺ also observed fasts on most days in the month of Shaʿban. Fasting in the month of Shaʿban was better because the Holy Prophet ﷺ also used to fast in most of the days of Shaʿban. Although these were not optional fasts but obligatory fasts of Ramadan. Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی الله عنها postponed these fasts for such a long time to avoid inconvenience to the Holy Prophet ﷺ. (Sahih Muslim. Book of Siyam, Chapter Qaza Ramadan in Shaʿban Tradition no: 11466).

A wife should not allow a stranger into the House

The next sentence of this Tradition is:

ولا تأذن فی بیته الابأذنه

It means that it is also an obligatory duty of the wife that she should allow none to enter her husband's house without his permission, nor should she allow a person to enter the house whom the husband does not like. It is strictly forbidden for a wife to allow anyone to enter the house at her own option. The same point has been emphasized in greater detail in another Tradition:

الاان لکم علی نسائکم حقًاولنسا ئکم علیکم حقًا فحقکم علیهن ان لا یوطین فرشکم من تکرهون ولا یأذن فی بیوتکم لمن تکرهون

(ترمذی کتاب الرضاع باب ماجاء فی حق المراة علی زوجها حدیث نمبر ۱۱۶۳)

(Tirmidhi. The Book of suckling. chapter about the wife's rights over her husband. Tradition no: 1163)

You should remember that you have some rights over your wives and your wives have some rights over you, i.e., both have some rights over each other. It is necessary for each side to fulfil and protect the rights of the others. What are those rights? They are: O men your rights over your wives are that they should not allow those persons to use your bed whom you dislike, nor should they allow those persons to enter your houses whose entry you dislike. Here two rights have been mentioned:

(1) It is binding on the wife not to allow a person to enter the house whose entry the husband dislikes. This applies even to such person as may be close relatives of the wife. The parents are allowed to visit the house only to have a look at their daughter. The husband cannot stop them from this, but it is not lawful for them to stay in the house without the permission of the husband, because the Holy Prophet ﷺ has asked them in clear words not to allow the entry of undesirable persons whoever they may be.

(2) The Holy Prophet ﷺ has also advised that the wives should not allow those persons to use the bed of their husbands whom their husbands do not like. It includes sitting, lying down, and sleeping on the bed of the husband.

The Islam of Hazrat Umme Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا

The mother of the believers, Hazrat Umme-Habeebah (RAA) is one of the sacred wives of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The history of the Holy Companions رضی اللہ عنہم is fraught with guidance. Hazrat Umme-e-Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا is the daughter of Hazrat Abu Sufyan رضی اللہ عنہا who spent about twenty-one years in opposing the Holy Prophet ﷺ and took parts in battles against him ﷺ. He was one of the leaders of Makkah and embraced Islam on the occasion of the victory of Makkah and thus became a Companion. It is a manifestation of the omnipotence of Almighty Allah that Hazrat Umme-Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا the daughter of such a great infidel leader, and her husband both embraced Islam, while her father was engaged in opposing and resisting the Muslims. The Islam of his daughter and son-in-law greatly displeased Abu Sufyan and he was not able to tolerate their conversion to Islam. He was, therefore, always taking all possible steps to torment them. At that time many Muslims, compelled by the cruel treatment of the unbelievers, had migrated to Abyssinia and Hazrat Umme-Habeebah and her husband were also among the Muslim migrants. They both lived there. Strange are the ways of Almighty Allah! After sometime Umme-Habeebah dreamt that the face of her husband had altogether changed and distorted. When she awoke she feared lest something untoward should happen to the faith and religion of her husband. After the lapse of a few days the meaning of that dream was revealed. Her husband used to visit a Christian on account of which he lost his Islamic faith and turned a Christian. This mishap struck Hazrat Umme-Habeebah as a bolt from the blue. For the sake of Islam she left her parents, her homeland and all her dear ones and settled in this foreign land, and the only sympathiser and helper, her husband, turned a Christian. It was like a doomsday for her. After sometime her husband died in this condition and she remained all alone with none to look after her.

Her marriage with the Holy Prophet ﷺ

The Holy Prophet ﷺ received the sad news in Madinah that her husband had become Christian and died as such and Hazrat Umme-Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا was left all alone in a foreign land. In this state of her loneliness and helplessness the Holy Prophet ﷺ sent a message to the King of Abyssinia, Negus, to convey to Umme-Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا the Prophet's proposal of marriage with her. The message was conveyed to her through Negus.

Hazrat Umme-Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا herself relates her story:

"One day I was sitting in the house alone when someone knocked at the door. When I opened the door I found a maid standing there. I asked her, "From where have you come?" She replied: "Negus the King of Abyssinia has sent me to you (This is the same Negus who had believed in the Holy Prophet ﷺ and embraced Islam) I again asked her, "Why has he sent you to me?" She replied, "He has sent me to you because Hazrat Muhammad, the Prophet ﷺ of Allah has sent through King a proposal of his marriage with you." Hazrat Umme-Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا says that when the words of the proposal entered her ears she was struck with surprise as well as happiness to such an extent that she gave the maid in return for the glad news whatever she had with her at that time. Thereafter both were married, while Hazrat Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا was in Abyssinia and the Holy Prophet ﷺ was in Madinah. After sometime the Holy Prophet ﷺ made necessary arrangements to bring her back to Madinah. (Al-Isabah fee Tameezis Sahabah, vol. 4, p. 298 Ramlah).

The Reasons for the Prophet's Multi-Marriages

It is a fact that the Holy Prophet ﷺ married many wives to which ignorant and evil-disposed people raise objections. It is, however, also a confirmed fact that at the back of every marriage lies some marvelous wisdom. Look at the wisdom at the back of this marriage. In what a pitiable condition Hazrat Umme-Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا was living in Abyssinia, no one to help or look after her. If the Holy Prophet ﷺ had not sympathised with her what would have happened to her? After marrying her in this deplorable condition, he ﷺ called her back to Madinah.

Non-Muslims extol this

It is also a marvelous event and miracle of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that after the Prophet's marriage with Hazrat Umme-Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا, when the news reached Hazrat Abu Sufyan in Makkah, and he was then an arch-enemy of Islam and of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and an infidel, the following words spontaneously escaped from his mouth:

This is a happy news, because Muhammad ﷺ is not among those men whose proposal can be turned down. It is indeed a matter of good luck that she has gone there.

Breach of Agreement

At Hudaibiyah a treaty of truce was signed between the Holy Prophet ﷺ and Abu Sufyan the full details of which are available in history books. Abu Sufyan and other infidels abided by the conditions of this treaty for one year only. Thereafter, they began to violate those conditions. In consequence the Holy Prophet ﷺ declared that he was no longer bound to abide by the treaty and as such he ﷺ could attack the Holy Makkah as and when he wished. When his enemies did not honour their covenant he ﷺ too was not bound to honour it. After this declaration Hazrat Abu Sufyan feared that the Holy Prophet ﷺ could attack the Holy Makkah at any time.

You are not fit for this Bed

Once Hazrat Sufyan was returning from Syria, the Muslims arrested him and his caravan. Hazrat Abu Sufyan, however, managed some how to enter the Holy city of Madinah secretly. He did this with the idea that his own daughter was in the house of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and would talk to him ﷺ and might thus secure his release: He, therefore, secretly entered the house of Hazrat

Umme-Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا, his daughter welcomed him. When he entered the house the bedding of the Holy Prophet ﷺ was lying spread and Hazrat Abu Sufyan wanted to sit on it. Seeing this Hazrat Umme-Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا quickly went ahead, rolled up the bedding and kept it aside. (Hazrat) Abu Sufyan was very much astonished at this action of his own daughter and said:

> Ramlah! Is this bedding not worthy of me or am I not worthy of this bedding?
> Hazrat Umme-Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا replied:
> My dear father! The truth is that you are not worthy of this bedding. It is the bedding of Muhammad the Prophet of Allah ﷺ and I cannot allow in my life a Mushrik (Idolater) to sit on this bed.
> (Hazrat) Abu Sufyan رضی اللہ عنہا said in reply:
> Ramlah! I little knew that you would become so changed that you would not allow even your own father to sit on this bed.

This action of Hazrat Umme-Habeebah رضی اللہ عنہا that she did not allow even her own father to sit on the bed of the Holy Prophet ﷺ was in accordance with this Tradition: "لایوطن فرشکم من تکرھون" your wives should not allow such persons to use your bedding as you do not like. (Al-Isbah Tameez-Sahabah vol. IV. p. 298 Ramlah).

The wife should approach her husband willingly

The Holy Prophet ﷺ said: a husband calls his wife for his desire she must come to him even if she is in a kitchen.

وعن طلق بن علی رضی اللہ عنہ ان رسول اللہ صلی اللہ علیہ وسلم
قال" اذا دعا الرجل زوجتہ لحاجتہ فلتأتہ وان کانت علی التنور"

(ترمذی کتاب الرضاع باب ماجاء فی حق الزوج علی امرأۃ حدیث نمبر ۱۱۶۰)

(Tirmidhi. Book of suckling - Haqqul Zauj 'alal-mirati Tradition no: 1160)

Hazrat Talaq bin Ali رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: When the husband calls his wife for his need, it is binding on the wife to go to him at once, even if she is busy at the oven (baking bread). That is she should not refuse to respond to the husband's call even in such critical moments.

Marriage is the Lawful way of satisfying sexual desire

Almighty Allah has created in every man and woman a natural desire of sexual satisfaction and He has prescribed for the satisfaction of this natural desire a lawful way and that way is the institution of marriage. Amicable relations between husband and wife are most important in the fulfilment of this natural demand. That is why through His many commands and injunctions Allah has opened all the lawful ways for the satisfaction of this natural instinct and desire, so that no man and no woman may ever think of taking resort to unlawful ways to satisfy this desire. Husband and wife must cooperate with each other in the satisfaction of this desire, so that none may be induced to look to someone else for this purpose in violation of Allah's commands.

Marriage is an easy matter

That is why Allah has made it very easy to establish a matrimonial relation. It requires only the presence of two (man and woman) and two witnesses is necessary. The man and the woman agree before the two witnesses to accept each other as wife and husband and that is all. The marriage stands finalised. It is not necessary even to recite the matrimonial recitation – it is only a Sunnah. It is also not necessary that this simple rite should be performed by a Qazi (a professional official to solemnise marriage) or any other person. It is also a Sunnah if a third person, say a Qazi, does the job.

If before two witnesses one of the couple says: "I married you" and the other says, "I accepted the offer of marriage", the marriage stands solemnised. Neither it is necessary to go to mosque nor is it necessary to have a person as an intermediary. The lawful way of marriage in Islam has been made so simple!

A Blessed Marriage

It has also been ordained that the marriage ceremony and formalities must be very simple and easy. No observance of customs, no special conditions and no elaborate and pompous celebrations are necessary. According to a Tradition once a son or daughter comes of age the parents should arrange their marriage so that they may not feel the need of taking an unlawful course and the lawful course may become easy for them to follow. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Tradition:

ان اعظم النكاح بر كة أيسره مؤنةً

The best marriage is one which is very simple and easy.

The more a marriage ceremony is extended with various rites and pomp and show the lesser shall be the blessings in it.

The marriage of Hazrat ʿAbdur Rahman bin ʿAuf رضی اللہ عنہ

Hazrat ʿAbdur Rahman bin ʿAuf رضی اللہ عنہ is a companion of high dignity and one of the ten Promised of Paradise, viz., those companions whom the Holy Prophet ﷺ had given in their lifetime the glad tidings of Paradise. Once when he came to the meeting of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, the prophet saw on his shirt a yellow stain. When the Holy Prophet ﷺ inquired from him about the coloured spot, he said:

O messenger of Allah ﷺ, I have married a woman and at the time of the marriage I had applied scent, and this is the stain of the scent. Then the Holy Prophet ﷺ said:

بارك الله لك وعليك أوْلم ولو بشاةٍ (صحيح بخاری، كتاب البيوع، باب "فاذاقضيت الصلاة فانتشروا" حديث نمبر ۲۰٤۸)

(Sahih Bukhari, Book of purchases, Tradition no: 2048)

"May Allah grant you blessings in it. Arrange a matrimonial feast (Walimah), even it is with one goal only."

The point to be noted in this Tradition is that Hazrat ʿAbdur Rahman bin ʿAuf رضی اللہ عنہ is one of the ten Promised of Paradise and a most closely associated companion of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, yet not only he did not invite the Holy Prophet ﷺ, to the marriage ceremony, but he did not also even inform him ﷺ of the marriage. He informed the Holy Prophet ﷺ at the time of answering his ﷺ question about the coloured spot on his shirt. The Holy Prophet ﷺ did not complain to him that he ﷺ was not invited to the marriage. This is because the Islamic Shari ʿah has prescribed no conditions and restrictions for marriages.

We have made marriage a problem

Once Hazrat Jabir رضی اللہ عنہ called on the Holy Prophet ﷺ and told him: O Prophet ﷺ of Allah! I have married a woman. (Sahih Bukhari, Tradition no: 5079)

Hazrat Jabir رضی اللہ عنہ a was closely associated companion and he was frequently in his ﷺ company, yet he did not invite the Prophet ﷺ to the marriage ceremony, because in the Prophet's time it was a general custom that no special formalities were observed on the occasion of marriage, as is done in these days. Preparations are made from months ahead and the entire family is engaged in various activities. Without these a marriage is considered to be impossible. With our meaningless, rather undesirable customs and useless formalities we have made marriage a difficult and expensive venture. The Shari'ah with its injunctions has made it simple and inexpensive. With the result that girls are sitting in their parents houses without marriage growing over age, because their guardians are not in a position to afford dowry, magnificent celebrations in stately marriage halls. In collecting money for this purpose the difference between lawful and unlawful is totally ignored. We have given up the Sunnah of marriage and have, instead, adopted the ways of the Hindus and the Christians. Large amounts of money are needed to arrange a marriage and they can hardly be procured through lawful means. Film shows are going on in the houses day and night on the TV which mostly excite evil passions and deform the morals of the youth. If you go out in the markets your eyes will hardly meet any scene of temperate nature. As a result of this curses of obscenity, nakedness, shamelessness are gaining currency in society. These un-Islamic customs and formalities have driven our society to the brink of ruin.

The Dowry is a curse on our Society

With regard to this evil the responsibility mainly devolves on those families that are well-fed well-to-do, rich and wealthy. The society cannot get rid of this curse unless the wealthy, the well-to-do and the rich people resolved to take practical steps to perform marriages in their families with simplicity and do away with the useless and wrong customs. A poor man is compelled by the prevailing trends that he has to go through all these vicious and expensive formalities to maintain his apparent social position. If dowry is not provided the in-laws will taunt the girl her lifetime for lackness. Today dowry is considered as an essential part of marriage. The burden providing the couple with the household necessities which should fall on the shoulders of the bride-groom has now been thrown on the weak shoulder of the bride's father. As if the grief and shock of parting with his dear daughter for good was not enough to break the nerves of the girls' father that he is made to bear the liability of lack of rupees to provide furniture, etc. To furnish another's house. There is no justification for such things in the Shari'ah. It is all right if some father wants to give his daughter anything: he can do so quietly and with simplicity without making a demonstration of the gifts.

In the end it may be repeated that if the rich classes of the society do not launch a campaign to eradicate these evils first from their own circles and show the path of simplicity to the less privileged classes, this curse cannot be eradicated from our society. May Allah infuse the truth in our hearts by His mercy. Aameen.

The husband's dignity

وعن ابی هریرة رضی الله تعالی عنه عن النبی صلی الله علیه وسلم قال

"لو کنت آمُر احدا ان یسجدَ لاحد لَاَ مرت المرأة ان تسجد لزوجها"

(ترمذی کتاب الرضاع باب ماجاء فی حق الزوج علی المرأة حدیث نمبر ۱۱۵۹)

(Tirmidhi, Book of Suckling Chapter right of husband over wife, Tradition no: 1159)

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی الله عنه has reported the Holy Prophet ﷺ as saying: If it had been lawful for me to command a person to prostrate before a person I would have commanded a woman to prostrate before her husband. As it is unlawful for any person to bow down before any other person, I cannot give this command before anyone but Allah.

This is an attachment between two hearts

In the journey of life where men and women are journeying together Allah has appointed the man an Incharge and a guardian. Except for this rank, all other ranks are short lived and temporary. Today a man is incharge, ruler or king but this rule and kingship is for a limited and appointed time. Yesterday he was an incharge and ruler, today he is in a jail; yesterday he was a king but today he is not worth a penny. These positions of rulership and kingship are only transitory. What is in existence today will perish and vanish tomorrow. As against this the attachment between husband and wife is a lifelong attachment, a continuous companionship, inseparable even for a single moment. The authority which a man wields lingers till death or till the validity of the marriage. This special authority or rank is, therefore, quite different from the commonly known authorities. In other authorities the attachment between the ruler and the ruled, the King and the subjects is only a formal, conventional and legal attachment, but this is not the case with the attachment existing between husband and wife. It is a welding together of two hearts, a fusion of two hearts whose effects encompass the entire lifetime. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: If I were to order anyone to prostrate before any person I would order a woman to bow down before her husband, because he is the leader of the wife's life-journey.

The most beloved personality

It is the Sunnah (practice) of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that he draws the attention of every person to his bounden duties. When he ﷺ addressed the husband he stated all the rights of the wife, one by one. Now when he is addressing the women her attention is being drawn to her duties and she is advised to note well that the most honourable and beloved personality for her on the surface of the earth after Almighty Allah and His Prophet ﷺ is her own husband, and that she cannot do full justice to the rights of and obedience to her husband unless she fully understands the truth. However, there is no denying the fact that the commands of Almighty Allah and His Prophet ﷺ have preference and priority over all other things. When the question of obeying commands of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ arises the commands to obey father, mother and husband are ignored. The status of the husband comes next to that of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. So, try to please him, pay the dues of his rights and obey him.

Modern Civilisation has reversed Everything

Today all things have taken an apposite course. Hazrat Qari Muhammad Tayyib رحمة الله عليه of Deoband (India) used to say that in modern civilisation everything has been reversed, so much so that in olden times there used to be darkness below the lamp but now there is darkness over the electric bulb.

Attending to the household affairs may not be an obligatory duty for women in the Shari'ah but it is surely a Sunnah (practice) of Hazrat Fatimah رضى الله عنها who used to do all the work of her house herself and with her own hands. Apart from this a woman has also been commanded to obey her husband. As such, if a woman does her household work cooks food for her husband and children, she is entitled to great rewards from Almighty Allah. But the concept of today's perverted civilisation is that a women's abiding within her house and performing the household duties is retrogression backwardness. What is happening today? A woman works as an air hostess serves food to four hundred passengers, stands before them with a tray decorated with drinks and food. She becomes the target of thirsty and greedy gazes of four hundred men. Each passenger on the aeroplane takes from her a different service, sometimes calling her for nothing but only for lustful enjoyment and armorous exchange of words. The meaning of all this in the lexicon of modern civilisation is freedom and emancipation of women. If the same woman provides the same services to her husband, children, brothers and sisters, it is termed as being out of fashion and regarded as opposed to advancement and progress.

If the same woman is working in a hotel as a waitress and serving customers day and night with food and drinks she is an emblem of emancipation of women. It is her freedom if she becomes a secretary or a stenographer of some officer, but if the same woman does the same work within the bounds of her house for her husband, children and parents, this is considered to be out dated style of life:

خرد کا نام جنوں رکھ دیا جنوں کا خرد
جو چاہے آپ کا حسن کرشمہ ساز کرے

You have named wisdom insanity; And named insanity wisdom,; Your wonder causing beauty is at liberty to do whatever it likes.

The Responsibility of a woman

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said that it is not obligatory for a woman to serve any individual of the world. She is free from all burdens and all responsibilities, except that she should stay peacefully in her own house, obeying her husband, and bringing up her children with care and love. This is her bounden duty and thereby she would be building the nation and she would be its architect. This is the place of honour which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has granted to a woman. Now it is up to her to choose between the place of honour or the place of disgrace.

Woman entering Paradise directly

وعن ام سلمة رضى الله تعالىٰ عنها قال قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم " أيما امرأة ماتت و زوجها عنها راض دخلت الجنة " (ترمذى كتاب الرضاع باب ماجاء فى حق الزوج على المرأة حديث نمبر ١١٦١)

(Tirmidhi, the Book of suckling. chapter on the rights of a husband..... Tradition no: 1161)

Hazrat Umme Salmah رضى الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: If a woman dies in a state that her husband is pleased with her she will enter Paradise directly.

He is your Guest only for a few days

عن معاذ بن جبل رضى الله تعالى عنه: عن النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم قال "لا تؤذى امرأة زوجها فى الدنيا الا قالت زوجه من الحورالعين لا تؤذيه قاتلكِ الله! فانما هو عندك دخيل يوشك ان يفارقك الينا" (ترمذى كتاب الرضاع باب نمبر ١٩ حديث نمبر ١١٨٤)

(Tirmidhi Book of suckling chapter no: 19. Tradition no: 1174)

Hazrat Ma'az bin Jabal رضى الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: When a wife troubles her husband (because sometime a woman is ill natured and teases her husband), then his wife whom Allah has ordained for him in paradise in the form of houries, address his worldly wife form Paradise as under:

Do not torture him, because he is a guest of yours for a few days and is expected to leave you and come to us soon.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has addressed the following words of admonition to ill-natured women:

You are doing no harm to your husbands by troubling them. You may harm them in this world as you like, but in the Hereafter Almighty Allah shall marry them with Houries of beautiful eyes who love their worldly husbands so dearly that they are pained to see even now that their worldly husbands are in trouble by their worldly wives.

The Greatest Trial for men

وعن اسامة بن زيد رضى الله عنه عن النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم قال

"ماتركت بعد فتنة هى اضرعلى الرجال من النساء" (صحيح بخارى كتاب النكاح باب مايتقى من شوم المرأة حديث نمبر ٥٠٩٦)

Sahih Bukhari, Book of Nikah. chapter on maa yat-taqi... Tradition no: 5096)

Hazrat Usamah bin Zaid رضى الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: I have not left behind for men a trial more harmful than the trial by women.

The trial by women is the hardest trial for men in this world. It will require a voluminous book to record how these women become a trial for men.

How is women a Trial ?

The Arabic word "Fitnah" means a trial. Allah has created women a trial for men in this world. But how is woman a trial? It is not possible to clarify this point thoroughly in a short time. She is a trial as she was to Hazrat Yousuf عليه السلام (Joseph) Allah has endowed man with the tendency of being attracted by a woman. Allah has given clear instructions about the unlawful and lawful channels of satisfying one's desires. To leave man free to choose between two ways is a trial, indeed. The second trial by means of a woman how he behaves with his wife. In other words, does he deal with her in the way which Allah and His Prophet ﷺ have shown him or does he deviate from that way and exploits her rights?

A woman becomes a trial when man is involved in her love that he ignores the demands of the Shari'ah. Is he satisfying her and meeting her demands without minding what is lawful and what is unlawful? Is he not providing his wife religious teaching and training? This is also a trial because, man is facing two contending problems. Love for the wife demands that he should not interfere with her in her actions, whereas it is the demand of Shari'ah that she should be compelled to keep within the limits of its laws. In short, there are trials at every step and a man cannot steer clear of these trials except with the help of Almighty Allah. A man should, therefore, try his best to discharge the rights of his wife and also pay attention to her training and education. While keeping in view her loss and gain, he should at the same time also shun all unlawful activities and temptations. As man cannot succeed in all these trying situations without Allah's help, the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us a supplication:

اللهم انى اعوذبك من فتنة النساء

O Allah! I take refuge in you from the trials of women.

This contains a hint that it is not possible to go through this trial and remain safe from its harms without Allah's specific help. It is, therefore, necessary to turn to Almighty Allah and pray with submission and sincerity that He may protect us from falling into the pit of errors and sins and temptations. Everyone should make this supplication a part of his daily prayers.

Everyone is a Caretaker and Guardian

وعن ابن عمر رضى الله عنهما عن النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم قال

"كلكم راع وكلكم مسؤل عن رعيته" (صحيح بخارى كتاب الجمعة باب الجمعة فى القرى والمدن حديث نمبر ٨٩٣)

Sahih Bukhari. the book of Friday. chapter Friday prayer in villages.....Tradition no: 893)

This is a wonderful Tradition and is very comprehensive in its import and the Tradition has been addressed to everyone of us. Everyone will be questioned about the persons and things which have been placed under his charge. The Arabic word "Ra'i" means a guardian or a caretaker. It also means a herdsman, because he feeds the herds of goats and sheep. It also means a ruler and those over whom he rules are his "Ra'yiyah" subjects. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has, therefore, said that everyone is a guardian or caretaker and he will be asked on the Day of Judgment how he discharged his duties of caretaking and guarding, his subject.

The Ruler is the Guardian of his subjects

"والامير راع"

Every Ruler is the guardian of those placed under his care. He will be asked on the Day of Judgment: How did you look after them? The conception of a Ruler in Islam is not wearing the crown of Rulership, and keeping himself aloof from his subjects. The conception of a Ruler in Islam is to serve and take care of the subject. That is why Hazrat Umar Farooq رضى الله عنه has said: Even if a dog dies hungry on the bank of the river Euphrates I think that on the Day of Judgment I shall be asked, "O Umar why a dog died hungry during your rule."

Caliphate a huge burden of responsibilities

When Hazrat Umar Farooq the Great رضى الله عنه was fatally wounded, the people requested him to nominate someone to succeed him as caliph after him. At that time they recommended to him his son for the Caliphate. Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضى الله عنه was undoubtedly a dignified Companion. None had any doubt about his learning, righteousness, and sincerity. When the people proposed to him the name of his son, Hazrat Umar Farooq the Great رضى الله عنه said: Do you want me to nominate after me as caliph a person who does not know how to divorce his wife? The incident is as follows:

During the days of the Holy Prophet ﷺ Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضى الله عنه divorced his wife during her menstruation period and he did not know that to divorce a woman in this condition was forbidden . The Holy Prophet ﷺ ordered him to revoke the divorce, and in obedience to the Prophet's order he did revoke the divorce. In rejecting the people's advice to nominate Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضى الله عنه as caliph after him. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضى الله عنه referred to this event of divorce.

The people again insisted on their proposal on the plea that Hazrat Abdullah's fault in the matter of divorce was due to his ignorance of the injunction about divorce and this did not disqualify him for the Caliphate. The reply which Hazrat Umar Farooq رضى الله عنه gave to the people is worth remembering. He told them:

It is quite enough that the noose of Caliphate fell around the neck of one of the sons of Khattab. Now I do not want to put this noose of Caliphate on the neck of any other member of my clan. The reign and Caliphate are really a very heavy burden of responsibility. On the occasion of accountability in the Hereafter it will be a great boon for me if I am let off with no loss and no gain.

This is the conception of a Ruler and a Guardian in Islam. He further added:

Man is the Guardian and protector of his wife and children.

والرجل راع على اهل بيته

Man is Guardian and Protector of his household.

His wife, children and other members of which he is head are all included in the meaning of household. The head of the household will be questioned in the Hereafter about every member. He will be asked: This household was placed under your control How did you deal with your wife and children? In what manner did you look after them and how did you discharge their rights? Did you ever take care if they were following the path of religion or not to see if they were going in the direction of Hell? Did you ever pay attention to such vital matters? Man will be questioned about all these things on the Day of Resurrection as has been said in the Holy Qur'an:

يٰۤاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْا قُوْۤا اَنْفُسَكُمْ وَاَهْلِيْكُمْ نَارًا (سورة التحريم:٦)

O believers save yourselves and your family from the Fire.... (66:6)

According to the injunction contained in this verse it is not enough that the believers should save only themselves from the punishment of the Fire of Hell by doing good deeds like praying, fasting, optional acts of devotion, remembrance of Allah, etc. while paying no attention to the activities of their children and other persons under their charge and thus failing in their duty to save the latter also from the punishment of the Fire of Hell. Beware, that on the Day of Judgment you will be questioned why you did not discharge your duty. You will be punished for this neglect on your part. That is why it was said that man is a guardian over his household.

The woman is a Guardian over the household and the children

والمرأة راعية على بيت زوجها وولده

And the woman is a guardian over the house of her husband and his children.

Thus, the care of two things have been entrusted to the woman, the house of her husband and his children. She is required to guard the house, manage it efficiently in all its affairs, including the care and supervision of the children in matters relating to the world as well as to the faith. This is included in the duties of women. This Tradition has thus explained the duties of man and woman.

Follow the Sunnah of Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا

Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا is the leader of the women of Paradise. After marriage she went to Hazrat Ali's house. Hazrat Ali and Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا both decided between themselves that Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ would attend to outdoor work and Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا would discharge her duties within the house with great diligence and enthusiasm and she would also serve her husband with love and faith. The work she had to do required great labour and was hard for her. It was not an easy job as it is in our times that you switch on the electric stove and the food is ready. In those days the preparation of food involved grinding the barley on a hand mill, collecting wood, and firing the oven for baking the bread. It was indeed a tedious job to do which Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا did willingly and without murmur. When, as a result of the battle of Khaibar, great spoils including slaves and maids fell into the hands of the Holy Prophet ﷺ he ﷺ began to distribute them among the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم . Someone advised Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا to approach the Holy Prophet ﷺ for a slave or a maid. Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا therefore, called on Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا and requested her to tell the Holy Prophet ﷺ that owing to grinding flour her palms were hard and knotty and while carrying the water bag the straps had left its mark on her breast. It would be a great relief to her if a slave or maid was given to her. After making this request Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا returned home.

When the Holy Prophet ﷺ came home, Hazrat 'Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا conveyed to the Prophet ﷺ his daughter's problems and her request for a slave or maid. After all the Holy Prophet ﷺ was a father and Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا his dearest child. You may well imagine how he must have felt stirred in his heart, but he remained calm and sent for Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا and said to her: Fatimah you have asked me for a maid or a slave. I would not like to provide a maid or slave to Muhammad's daughter, unless every resident of Madinah had one.

Tasbeeh Fatimah - a Unique formula

The Holy Prophet ﷺ said: I, however, prescribe for you a remedy that will serve you better than a slave or a maid and it is this: On the night when going to your bed make it a regular practice to recite 33 times سبحان اللہ (Sub-haa-nallah), meaning Glorified is Allah, 33 times الحمدللہ (Al-ham-du lil-laah), meaning all praise be to Allah and 34 times اللہ اکبر (Al-laa-hu Akbar) meaning Allah is the Greatest of all.

Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا was not an ordinary woman, she was the daughter of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. She felt contented with these divine words, and went back. That is why this Zikr is called "Tasbih-e-Fatimah."

The Holy Prophet ﷺ made her dear daughter a model for women to be followed by other wives. Whatever the legal position, the sunnah is that the wife should be a guardian of her husband's house and as a guardian she should work for her own self.

Mother is responsible for bringing up the children

The woman is not only the guardian of the husband's house but she is also the guardian of his children. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has placed on the shoulders of the housewife the responsibility of bringing up and serving and educating them. If the children are not being brought up on the right lines if they are not learning the Islamic etiquettes and ways of living, the mother will be questioned first and her husband will be questioned later. She will be asked: Why did the children being in your lap remained devoid of the Islamic conduct, character and etiquette of Islam. The Holy Prophet ﷺ, therefore, repeated the same sentence:

وکلکم راع وکلکم مسئول عن رعیتہ

Everyone of you is a caretaker and everyone will be questioned about the person and things placed under his charge. May Almighty Allah, by His mercy, help us in understanding these obligatory duties and in discharging them. Aameen!

واخر دعوانا ان الحمد للہ رب العالمین

And we close with the call that all praise to be Allah, the lord of the worlds.

Venue: Residence of Dr. Abdu Hai رحمة الله عليه
Date: Friday, 5th June, 1992
After ʿAsr Prayers

THE HAJJ AND SACRIFICE

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه، ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيد نا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالىٰ عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطٰن الرجيم، بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم.

وَالْفَجْرِ ۝ وَلَيَالٍ عَشْرٍ ۝ وَالشَّفْعِ وَالْوَتْرِ ۝ وَالَّيْلِ اِذَا يَسْرِ ۝ هَلْ فِيْ ذٰلِكَ قَسَمٌ لِّذِيْ حِجْرٍ ۝ (سورة الفجر: ٥:١)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم، وصدق رسوله النبي الكريم ونحن على ذالك من الشاهدين والشاكرين. والحمد لله رب العالمين

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness We believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Allah from the evils of our selves and from the vices of our acts. There is none to let him go astray whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah the Only One. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our master, our authority, our Prophet, Muhammad is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah bestow upon him and his household and His companions His mercy and bless them and send peace on them in great abundance.

This place was once a Minaret of Light

It is after a very long time that I have received the honour of attending and addressing an assembly at this place (i.e. the house of Hazrat Dr. M. Abdul Hayi Sahib 'Arifi رحمة الله عليه. It seems to be a trying venture to open my lips to say something at this place. Previously we all used to assemble at this place as listeners and seekers of knowledge, and Almighty Allah had made this place a minaret of light for us. By the grace of Almighty Allah, we used to get opportunities at this place to hear and understand the realities and knowledge of the Faith from the late learned saint رحمة الله عليه. Today, however, I have been invited to speak here which seems to me a trying situation. It is a bounty from late Dr. M. Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمة الله عليه. Anything that occurs to the heart or escapes from the tongue is nothing but an endless kindness from him. He repeatedly explained to people like us those precious points of Deen without waiting for any request from us and for which we had hardly any right. He implanted this knowledge in our hearts and poured them into our ears which will remain preserved with us for the whole of our lives. That is why, I am discharging this trying duty in compliance with an order of my respectable brother, Mr. Hasan Abbas. Let me tell you that in the past Hazrat Maulana M. Yusuf Ludhianwi Sahib, who is a competent authority, used to address regularly. On every Friday the audience assembled at his place. Maulana Ludhianwi being on his Hajj pilgrimage this year, brother Hasan Abbas insisted on me to say something to day in this meeting and I am here to speak before you in compliance with this order. May Allah enable me to speak before you with sincerity. May Allah help us all to listen to and act upon with sincerity, the points of Deen to be discussed here.

Due Order in worship

Allah Almighty has blessed these ten days with peculiar rewards. These days are from the first to the tenth, of the sacred month of Zilhijjah (the month of the Hajj). If we look closely we shall find that this chain of virtues and excellence starts from the blessed month of Ramazan.

Almighty Allah has maintained a wonderful order and arrangement among the various forms of worship. Thus, first of all He brings the month of Ramazan and from the next day following the end of Ramazan the preliminary activities of the worship connected with the Hajj are started. This is because the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that the Hajj is spread over three months. Shawwal, Zil-qa'dah and Zil-hijjah. Although the main rituals of the Hajj are observed in the month of Zil-hijjah, yet it becomes lawful and desirable to put on the Ihram for the Hajj with effect from the month of Shawwal. Thus, it is lawful for an intending Hajj pilgrim to go out in Ihram from the first day of Shawwal. It is not lawful to put on the Ihram before this date. In the past a lot of time was needed to perform the Hajj. Sometimes the journey took three months. As such, intending pilgrims started preparations for the Hajj pilgrimage as soon as the month of Shawwal arrived. Thus, the worship of Hajj starts with the expiry of the month of Ramazan and is completed in the first ten days of Zilhijjah. The most important element of the Hajj is the "Wuqoof-e-Arafah" (stay on the plain of Arafah). This takes place an the 9th of Zilhijjah (and that is exactly the date today).

Qurbani (sacrifice of animals) is thanksgiving

Almighty Allah has helped us complete these splendid worships, the Holy month of Ramazan and the Hajj rituals. Then He has also prescribed for the Muslims as a compulsory duty to offer thanks to Allah by slaughtering animals in His name which is called Qurbani. This thanksgiving is performed on the 10th, 11th and 12th of the month (of Zil-hijjah). Almighty Allah appointed the Eidul-Fitr on the completion of the Fasting month of Ramazan and appointed the Eidul-Azha on the completion of the splendid worship of Hajj. He commanded the Muslims to celebrate the Eidul-Fitr by paying the Sadaqah (alms) of Eid-ul-Fitr and the Eidul-Azha by offering sacrifices (of animals).

Allah Swears by Ten Nights

The month of Zil-hijjah has commenced and it is the beginning of the ten days period. It is, therefore, quite appropriate to say something about these ten days of Zil-hijjah. This period of ten days, commencing from the first and ending on the tenth of Zil-hijjah, occupies a very prominent position among the twelve months of the year, so much so that Almighty Allah has sworn by these ten nights in the opening verses of the Surah Al-Fajr in part - 30 of the Holy Qur'an: والفجر وليال عشر (By the Dawn and the nights). It is not necessary for Almighty Allah to swear to confirm and ensure anything, but if Allah swears by anything, it is to emphacise the esteem and honour of that thing. A large group of the commentators of the Holy Qur'an are of the opinion that the ten nights by which Allah has sworn are these first ten nights of the month of Zil-hijjah. This indicates the esteem and grace of these nights.

The Supremacy of the Ten Days

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has himself mentioned in clear words in a Hadith the importance and superiority of these ten days. He ﷺ has also mentioned that Almighty Allah does appreciate acts of worship in these ten days more than other days of the year whether that worship is in the form of optional prayers, recital of the sacred names of Allah or some charitable deed.(Sahih Bukhari, the Book of Edain, chapter of deeds during the days of Tashreeq, Hadith no: 969).

He ﷺ has also said in a Hadith. If anyone observes fasts during these days, he is granted reward for one fasting equal to the reward for fast for a full one year. He ﷺ has also said that worship in one of these nights is equal to the worship performed during the ليلة القدر (the Night of value). Such a high degree of excellence has Allah bestowed upon these ten days of Zil-hijjah!(Sunnan Tirmidhi. Book of Fasting. acts during the ten days. - Hadith no: 758).

Two special acts of worship during these days

How excellent are these days that Almighty Allah has chosen this period (of ten days) for acts of worship which cannot be done in other days of the year! An example, is the Hajj, which cannot be performed in any period of the year other than in these days. The other worship is the sacrifice of the animals for which Allah has fixed three days that is from 10th to 12th of this month. Contrary to it all other worships obligatory or optional are allowed to be performed throughout the year. If these two worships are performed in any period other than those appointed by Allah they will not be counted as worship and will go waste. Anyone performing the acts of Hajj in other days will not get any reward for them.

The other item of worship is the Qurbani for which Almighty Allah has appointed the 10th, 11th and the 12th of Zil-hijjah. The Qurbani cannot be offered during any period other than the period of these three days. It is possible to slaughter an animal and distribute the meat among the poor as an optional item of worship, but obligatory Qurbani cannot be offered in any period other than that of these three days. Thus Almighty Allah has specially favoured this period. That is why the learned theologians have written, in the light of this Hadith, that next to the sacred month of Ramazan, the days of excellence are these ten days of Zil-Hijjah during which the reward for worship is increased and Almighty Allah sends down His special mercy and blessings. The law-maker ﷺ has, however, prescribed some other special acts for these days which should better be mentioned here.

Cutting off Nails and Hair in these days

Immediately after the sighting of the Zil-hijjah moon a strange command is brought to our notice. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that it is not right for him who has to offer Qurbani to clip his nails and cut his hair after sighting the Zil-hijjah moon. As this order has been narrated from the Holy Prophet ﷺ, it has been declared as Mustahab (desirable). According to this order a man should not clip his nails, nor cut his hair, unless he has offered the Qurbani. (Ibn majah. Chapter on clipping nails.... Hadith no: 3187)

Try to attain some likeness to Pilgrims

Apparently it looks strange that after sighting the moon of Zil-hjja, clipping the nails and cutting the hair have been forbidden. The reason is not far to seek. Almighty Allah has appointed during these days the splendid worship of the Hajj and a very large number of the Muslims remain engaged, by the grace of Allah, in this worship at this time. It seems, as if, the House of Allah is charged with a magnetic power which is attracting to itself from all sides the sons of Tawheed (Muslims) and thousands of men are arriving there every moment from all corners of the world and are assembling round the House of Allah. Allah has granted these pilgrims the honour of performing the Hajj. These Pilgrims have been ordered that, when they are advancing towards the House of Allah, they should be dressed in Ihram which is the prescribed uniform of that sacred House. Again, the Shari'ah has imposed many restrictions on the pilgrims while in Ihram, e.g., they cannot put on stitched garment, nor apply scent nor cover their faces, etc., that they should not clip their nails nor cut their hair is also one of these restrictions. As for those who are not participating in the worship (Hajj) of the House of Allah, by visiting it, the Holy Prophet ﷺ has, in order to enable such persons also to qualify for Allah's mercy, ordered that they should try to achieve some likeness to the pilgrims of the House of Allah by imitating them in leaving their nails unclipped and their hair uncut. This is a way to attain some similarity to those actually performing the Hajj.

Mercy of Allah is waiting to Descend

Our Dr. Hazrat M. Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say that Allah's mercy is always in search of an excuse to descend on His servants. When Allah has commanded us to attain some similarity to the Hajj Pilgrims, it only means that He wants to bestow on those who attain this similarity some part of the mercy and blessings which He showers on the Hajj Pilgrims, so that when the clouds of Allah's mercy rain on these servants of Allah on the plain of Arafah, a part of these clouds may overtake us also with its munificent showers. Thus, the attainment of this similarity, is a great blessing. Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه frequently recited this couplet of Hazrat Majzoob رحمة الله عليه:

تیرے محبوب کی یارب شباہت لیکر آیا ہوں
حقیقت اس کو تو کردے میں صورت لے کر آیا ہوں

Meaning: O my Lord! I have come to you with an assumed similarity to your beloved. I have brought the form only, kindly turn it into reality.

It is not at all unlikely that Almighty Allah may turn this form into reality by the blessing of His beloved Prophet ﷺ. It is hoped that you and we shall not be deprived, God willing, of the clouds of mercy that pour down there.

Awareness to Virtues is needed

It was the habit of our saint رحمة الله عليه to say from time to time: Will Almighty Allah deprive a man of these blessings and bounties of Arafah only because he has no money, or the circumstances are not favourable for him to undertake the journey? No, that is not so. Almighty Allah wants to include us all in His mercy, provided we pay a little attention and care, we develop a little similarity to the pilgrims of Hajj. We should at least adopt the form, if not the reality of the Hajj. There is every hope that Almighty Allah shall encompass us with His mercy and blessings.

Fasting on the Day of Arafah

As already mentioned, these ten days are so auspicious that a day of fasting on one of these days is equal, in the matter of reward, to fasting for the whole year; and one item of worship in one night of this period is equal to worship in the Night of Power (شب قدر). A Muslim must devote himself to worship and good deeds during these days to the best of his ability. The ninth of Zil-Hijjah is the Day of Arafah during which Allah has prescribed for the Hajj Pilgrims to stay on the plain of Arafat which is the most essential part of the Hajj. He has also prescribed for us optional fasting specially on the ninth day. The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said about this fast: I have every hope from Almighty Allah that the fasting observed on the day of Arafah, by a Muslim will become, an expiation for his sins committed or to be committed during one year in the past and one year in the future. (Ibn Majah, book of Fasting - Arafah Day, Hadith no: 1734).

Only the Minor sins are forgiven

It is necessary to clarify here that some people who are not well-informed of religious subjects think on the basis of such Ahadith that when the sins committed during the past year and to be committed during the future year stand forgiven, as if they are on one year's leave and they are free to do whatever they please. It must be noted that the concessions so granted in the various Ahadith relate only to minor sins. For example, during ablution the sins committed by the limbs being washed are pardoned; one sin is pardoned at each step and his status is raised by one degree when a Namazi goes to the mosque for prayer; similarly it has been said about fasting during Ramazan that one year's sins of the man fasting are pardoned. Remember that the sins mentioned in all such Traditions are only the minor sins. As for major sins, according to the rules of the Shari'ah they are not forgiven except by repentance (توبہ). Almighty Allah has, however, the sole authority to pardon all sins whether minor or major unconditionally. Even after repentance only such sins are forgiven as are committed against the rights of Allah. Sins committed against the rights of the servants of Allah cannot be forgiven, unless the rights usurped or violated of a servant are compensated or condoned by the claimant. In short, all these Ahadith about the forgiveness of sins relate to minor sins only and not to major sins.

Takbeer-e-Tashreeq

The third practice during these days is the Takbeer Tashriq which commences from the Fajr prayer of the Day of Arafah and continues till the 'Asr prayer of the 13th of Zil-hijjah. It has been made compulsory to recite this Takbeer once after every Farz (obligatory) prayer. The Takbeer, is as follows:

"الله اكبر الله اكبر لا اله الا الله والله اكبر الله اكبر ولله الحمد"

(Allahu Akbar, Allahu akbar, laa ilaaha il-lal-laahu wallahu akbar allaahu akbar wa lillaa-hil-hamd).

It is compulsory for men to recite these words in audible voice. It is against the Sunnah to recite these Takabeer in a low voice. (Musnif Ibn Abi Shaiba vol: 4 Page 171. Shami. vol: 2 Page 178).

We are fond of taking the opposite course

We have become fond of taking just the opposite course in every matter. When the Shari'ah orders something to be recited in a low voice, the people recite it loudly as they do while reciting a Du'a (supplication). The Qur'an says about Du'a:

اُدْعُوْا رَبَّكُمْ تَضَرُّعًا وَّخُفْيَةً ط (سورة الاعراف:٥٥)

That is, (Allah commands you) "to call upon your Lord humbly and secretly".

As such it is better in ordinary circumstances to call upon Allah secretly rather than loudly. However, this may be done loudly where it is proved to be a sunnah to pray loudly. The sacred Darood being a Du'a, it is better to recite it in a low tone. The people have, however, invented their own ways to recite this loudly. As against this, they recite the Takbeer Tashreeq in low tone which should be recited loudly after every Farz (obligatory) prayer:

A Demonstration of the Dignity of Islam

My late respected father رحمة الله عليه used to say that the very object of prescribing this Takbeer Tashreeq is to demonstrate the dignity of Islam. It is, therefore, necessary to recite it loudly after bidding the concluding Salam, so that the mosque may resound with the collective echo of this Takbeer.

Similarly, it is also a Sunnah to recite the Takbeer loudly, while going out for the Eidul Azhaa prayer. The Takbeer for the Eidul Fitr prayer should be recited in a low tone.

Takbeer-e-Tashreeq is obligatory for women also

The Takbeer Tashreeq is prescribed for women as well, but which being generally ignored. Women generally forget to recite the Takbeer Tashreeq. As regards men who offer their prayers in the congregation in the mosque, they necessarily recite the Takbeer. This is, however, not a common practice among women. There are two opinions about its imposition on women as a compulsory duty (wajib). Some Ulama' say that it is wajib and some say that it is only Mustahab (desirable) for women. The more reliable opinion is that the Takbeer Tashreeq is a compulsory duty for women as well. They should also recite this Takbeer after every Farz prayer five days from the Fajr prayer of the Day of Arafah till the 'Asr prayer of the Thirteenth of Zil-Hijjah. Men are required to recite it loudly but women should recite it in a low tone. Women should be mindful of this duty. As women generally omit this duty I advise them to hang a card-plate with an inscription of the Takbeer at the place where they pray in their houses, and they should recite it without fail after the concluding salam, because this is wajib for them also. (Musnaf Ibn Abi Shaibah. vol. II, p-190. Shami vol.II, p 179)

The Qurbani cannot be offered on other days

The fourth excellent duty which Almighty Allah has prescribed to be discharged during the days of Zil-Hijjah is Qurbani. This Qurbani can be offered only during the three days, viz. the 10th, the 11th and the 12th of Zil-Hijjah and no other days of the year. The animals slaughtered on other than these days of the year shall not be the Shari'ah Qurbani.

Real Islam is to follow the Injunctions

Almighty Allah wants to teach us the reality of Deen by means of the Hajj and the Qurbani which are the two outstanding acts of worship during these days. We are asked to note that no act is important in itself, nor is any particular place or form is important in itself. Acts become important and virtuous only because of the command of Allah to do them. When Allah commands to do certain thing then only it carries a reward, but the moment the command is withdrawn, the reward also stands withdrawn.

Just take the example of the stay on the plain of Arafah. If you spend there 359 days of the year, excluding the 9th day of Zil-Hijjah, you shall not get an iota of sawab (reward) for your staying there, although this is the same plain of Arafah and the same Mountain of Mercy. This is because there is no command of Allah to stay there on other days of the year. The reward or punishment of an act is absolutely dependent on Allah's commandment.

Leave Masjid-al-Haram

You are all aware that offering prayer in the Masjid-al-Haram is such a virtuous act that the reward of one prayer offered there is equal to one lac (1,00,000). Prayers offered elsewhere and the Hajj pilgrims reap this additional reward. Almighty Allah commands the Pilgrims to leave the Masjid-al-Haram on the 8th of Zil-Hijjah despite its one lakh-fold (1,00,000) reward for the prayers and to camp at Mina. Thus, the Pilgrims are commanded to stay at Mina from the Zuhr of the 8th till the Fajr of the 9th day of Zil-Hijjah. At Mina they have no duty other than offering five prayers, ignoring the reward of one lakh prayers of Masjid-al-haram. In this command there is an indication that virtue, righteousness and reward lie in obeying the commands of Allah. If anyone disobeys this command and decides to stay at Makkah to offer five prayers in the Masjid-al-Haram to reap the reward of five lakh prayers, he is a loser; He will not reap even the reward of one prayer for disobeying Allah's command and missing one important ritual of the Hajj.

Place and Deed are not important

While performing the rituals of the Hajj it is observed at each step that the 'idols' which man sometimes erects in his mind are smashed to pieces. Thus, there is no importance in a particular deed or place. It is the obedience to Allah that counts. Almighty Allah desires that His servants should do what He commands them to do and abstain from what he forbids. In obedience lies the credit and recompense.

Hajj* acts as seen by Reason

The entire worship of the Hajj presents the above philosophy. Just see that a block of stone is standing at Mina and lacs of men are throwing pebbles at this block. If you ask anyone about the objective of this strange ritual, you can get no satisfactory answer. It is just like insanity that pebbles are being pelted at a block of stone without any apparent cause. The cause lies that this is done in obedience to a command of Allah and there ends the whole matter. If one says that this is mere insanity, then it will be dismissed by saying: Yes in this insanity lies the blessing and Allah's pleasure.

What lesson does Qurbani teach?

The same philosophy is visible in the ritual of Qurbani. The word "Qurbani" literally means something which is done to attain nearness to Allah. The word "Qurbani" is derived from the word "Qurban" and the word "Qurban" is derived from the root "Qurb". Thus, the word "Qurban"means something by which one may attain nearness to Allah. We learn from all the acts concerning the Qurbani that Deen (Faith) is the name of compliance with the commandments of Allah. When Allah's command is issued there is no scope to tax the mind in order to seek the wisdom and benefits underlying the divine command. All that is needed is total submission and surrender to it. "Order is order" is the common saying well known to everyone.

It is against Reason to slaughter one's own son

A command of Allah came to Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام in a vision to slaughter his son. If Allah had desired, He would have issued the command through a revelation (Wahi), but He did not do so. Instead, he was shown in a vision that he was slaughtering his son. If this had happened to an ordinary man he would have ignored the command on the plea that it was only a vision. However, a vision in the case of a prophet is as good as a revelation. It was, therefore, a trial for Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام to see whether he was ready to obey the divine command. When Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام came to know that it was an order from Allah to slaughter his son, he did not question Almighty Allah why such a command was being given to him and what wisdom and benefit lay in it. No law and no custom on the surface of the earth can allow and appreciate that a father should slaughter his son. A command like this can in no way be justified and accepted on the scale of Reason.

Like Father like Son.

Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام did not inquire from Almighty Allah the reason for this command to slaughter the son. However, in order to test the son he put to him the following question:

يَا بُنَيَّ اِنِّيٓ اَرٰى فِي الْمَنَامِ اَنِّيٓ اَذْبَحُكَ فَانْظُرْ مَاذَا تَرٰى ط صافات ۱۰۲

O my son, I have seen in a dream that I must sacrify you. So look, What do you think? (37:102)

Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام did not inquire from his son his opinion so that if he did not agree to be slaughtered he would not carry out Allah's command to slaughter him. He asked this question only to test the son about his attitude towards Allah. The son was after all his father's son from whose progeny the last of all Prophets was to come. The great son also did not inquire why and for what fault he was going to be slaughtered. His only reply to the question was:

يٰٓاَبَتِ افْعَلْ مَا تُؤْمَرُ ز سَتَجِدُنِيْٓ اِنْ شَآءَ اللّٰهُ مِنَ الصّٰبِرِيْنَ ۝ ۱۰۲

O my father! Do what you have been commanded to do. God willing, you will find me Patient. (37:102)

The obedient son encouraged his father to obey Allah's command, assuring him that he would not offer any resistance against his action.

The father as well as the son being of so high status, resolved that Allah's command be executed. The father made the son lie down on the ground Hazrat Isma'el عليه السلام requested his father to place him on the ground, forehead downwards, for if his face was upwards, he Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام might not be able to use the knife on account of paternal love. Almighty Allah appreciated these charming manners so much that He mentioned them in the Qur'an thus:

فَلَمَّآ اَسْلَمَا وَتَلَّهٗ لِلْجَبِيْنِ ۚ (سورة الصافات:۱۰۳)

Then when they had both surrendered (to Allah) and he had flung him down upon his face.....

(37:103)

The Qur'an has used a very wonderful word on this occasion,"فلما اسلما" i.e. when father and son both surrendered (themselves). It may also be translated as, "When both of them accepted Islam", because Islam means to surrender oneself before Allah's commands. This contains a clear indication that man must obey Allah's command, however difficult, painful, harsh and opposed to reason that command may be and however tremendous sacrifices one may have to make of life, wealth and honour for that. Man must surrender himself to Allah's command. This is the reality of Islam. That is why Allah has said in the above verse: When both of them embraced Islam and surrendered themselves to Allah's command and the father flung the son down upon his forehead. He made the son lie down in this way lest the knife should stop cutting the son's throat on account of the face being in sight of the father. Almighty Allah has mentioned this unique scene in the Qur'an with special emphasis. It is stated in narratives that when Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام was flinging the son down, the latter asked his father to gather together his clothes lest they should become spoiled with blood and seeing them his mother might be stunned with grief.

Look at nature's wonder!

When these two had completed their part of duty Allah had to do His part. He said:

وَنَا دَيْنَاهُ اَنْ يّٰٓاِبْرٰهِيْمُ ۙ قَدْ صَدَّقْتَ الرُّؤْيَا ۚ (سورة الصافات ١٠٤، ١٠٥)

That is: We called to him: O Ibrahim, you fulfilled the vision (37:104-105).

Now see the wonder wrought by Allah's Omnipotence when Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام opened his eyes, he saw that Hazrat Isma'el عليه السلام was sitting beside, smiling and a slaughtered ram was lying there.

Allah's command has preference over all things.

The entire event related above is in fact the basis of the worship of Qurbani. It is declaring from the very outset that the Qurbani was prescribed in order to impress firmly on the heart of man and to teach him that Allah's command has preference over all other things and that Deen is the name of total obedience. When the Divine Command arrives it must be obeyed without trying to find out its wisdom, benefit or reason.

Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام did not seek a rational justification

Deviation and going astray from the right path are a common feature of our society today. The reason is that for every Divine command the people want to know the wisdom and benefit underlying that command, and its rational justification. They will obey the command; if they come to know its benefit, otherwise not. This is no Deen and obedience. Obedience is what Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام and his son Hazrat Isma'el عليه السلام demonstrated by their own unprecedented acts. Almighty Allah appreciated this sacrifice of theirs so much that He prescribed the sacrifice (Qurbani) to be offered every year till the Day of Judgement. Allah said:

" وَتَرَكْنَا عَلَيْهِ فِى الْاٰخِرِيْنَ "

This means: We prescribed the imitation of this act for the later generations. (37:108)

The Qurbani which we offer is an imitation of the splendid Qurbani offered by Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام and Hazrat Isma'el عليه السلام. This means that we should mould our lives on the pattern of the unique behaviour shown by father and son in obeying Allah's command without any hesitation and without seeking to know its rational background and justification. This is the lesson that we learn from the Qurbani.

Is Qurbani harmful to Economy?

A section of the people are raising objections to the very objective for which Almighty Allah prescribed the performance of Qurbani. They say that Qurbani has been imposed without - God forbid any benefit. Millions are spent to make the blood flow through the drains which is highly wasteful from the economic point of view. It means a great loss of our animal wealth. It would be much better, they suggest, to help the poor with the huge sums of money spent on Qurbani. The propaganda is being carried on so forcefully that every day persons come to ask if it would not be better to distribute the money to be spent on Qurbani among their relatives. Apparently there is no harm in this, they suggest.

The Real Spirit of Qurbani

It should be noted that every form of worship has an appointed time and procedure for example, if a man wishes to spend his time in helping the poor instead of praying, he will be guilty of missing the prayer which is an obligatory duty, even though he may earn some sawab (reward) for helping the poor. This holds good also in respect of other obligatory (Farz) and compulsory (wajib) duties. The propaganda campaign, launched against Qurbani that it is irrational and unjustifiable from the economic point of view, defies the very philosophy and spirit of the Qurbani. The worship of Qurbani has been prescribed for you and you should comply with it, whether you understand its wisdom and reason or not. The spirit of Qurbani is that it is Allah's command and you have to obey it unconditionally and unhesitatingly. Man is not man unless he cultivates in him the quality of obedience. The root-cause of all evils, wrongs, and sinful activities lies in the fact that man has forgotten the basic principles of following the Divine commands and is running after the dictates of his own mind and intellect.

Qurbani ceases to be worship after three days

So far as other forms of worships are concerned, they can be performed on optional basis as and when desired. As for Qurbani, Almighty Allah has commanded that it is only for the three appointed days. If one offers Qurbani after these three days, it will no longer be a worship. Allah has ordained this to teach us that the Qurbani is nothing in itself; it assumes the form of worship only because of His command. We wish that we had understood this basic point. On this depends to understand the Deen as a whole. The cardinal point and basis of Deen is that it is nothing but obedience to Allah's commands. What lies beyond is not Deen.

The Difference between Sunnah and Bid'ah

The same principle differentiates Bid'ah from Sunnah. Deeds done in the light of the Sunnah deserve credit and reward, but Bid'ah has no value in the sight of Allah. People ask what harm is there if they observe Teeja (the 3rd day after death), Daswan (the 10th day) and Chehlam (the 40th day) in which the Qur'an is recited and its Sawab is conveyed to the departed soul. The harm is that all this is done without any commandment by Allah and His Messenger ﷺ. They have themselves invented these rituals. What we do from our own choice and wish carries no reward and return.

Four Rak'ats of Maghrib Instead of three

Instead of three Rak'aat of the Maghrib prayer a man offers four Rak'aat, and argues that the number four is greater than three, and after all what harm is there in increasing the number only by one? They argue that adding something to the prayer, while observing all its prescribed elements, should be no sin. It will invalidate the all four rak'aat simply because Allah has not commanded it. This is not according to the procedure prescribed by Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. This is the difference between Sunnah and Bid'ah. The practice taught and followed by the Prophet ﷺ is Sunnah, and that invented by a man himself is Bid'ah. Bid'ah may seem to be attractive but it earns no credit and reward.

An interesting example of Sunnah and Bid'ah

Shah Abdul Aziz Sahib Du'a-jo رحمة الله عليه, a leader of the Tablighee Jama'at used to visit my respected father رحمة الله عليه from time to time. One day he related to my father a strange dream he had seen. The dream was as follows:

He said that my father was standing by the side of a black-board and teaching some people who had gathered round him to take lessons. My father wrote on the black-board with a piece of chalk the number one (1) and asked the people what it was. They replied that it was one (1). Thereafter, my father put a zero (0) on the right side of the digit (0) and asked the people what it then became,. The people replied that it has become ten (10) My father added another Zero (0) to ten (0) and asked them what number it was. The people replied that it was one hundred (100). Again he added one Zero (0) making the number one thousand (1000) and put the same question to the people who replied that it was one thousand (1000). My father told them that the addition of every Zero on the right side of the number increased it ten-fold. He then erased all those zeros and added one to the number one (1) on the left side and asked the people about the result. They said it was (01), one tenth. He went on adding Zeroes till the number became 0001. Then he asked the people about the number and they replied that it was one thousandth (1/1000). Then my father told the people that every zero added to a number on the right side increased it ten fold and every zero added to the number on the left side reduces it by one-tenth. My father explained by saying that the Zereos added to the right represented Sunnah and those added to the number on the left represented Bid'ah. In other words, deeds done according to the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ increases the reward of the deeds many-fold. On the other hand, deeds falling within the definition of Bid'ah not only earn any reward, but they diminish the reward many-fold and all actions go waste. This example amply explains the difference between the Sunnah and Bid'ah.

As already emphasized, Deen is the name of compliance with the commands of Allah which alone earns credit and reward.

The late night Prayer of Hazrat Abu Bakr and Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہم

It reminds me a speech of my respected father رحمۃ اللہ علیہ. It is a well-known fact that sometimes the Holy Prophet ﷺ used to go out on nights to assess for himself the conditions of his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم. During one of these nights he saw that Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ was reciting the Qur'an in the Tahajjud prayer in a low tone. When he ﷺ went further he ﷺ saw that Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ was reciting the Qur'an in his Tahajjud prayer very loudly. Then the Holy Prophet ﷺ came back home leaving them in their prayers. In the morning when Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ called on the Holy Prophet ﷺ, he asked Hazrat Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ why he was reciting the Holy Qur'an in a very low tone in his Tahajjud prayer. In reply Hazrat Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ uttered a very beautiful sentence:

I was reciting the Qur'an to one (Allah) to whom I was addressing my supplication and who heard it. Recitation of Qur'an loudly is not a necessary condition.

اسمعت من ناجیت

Thereafter the Holy Prophet ﷺ put the same question to Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ who was reciting the Qur'an so loudly. He replied:

"I was reciting the Qur'an loudly so that I could awaken those in sleep and drive away the Satan.

اوقظ الوسنان واطرد الشیطان

Then the Holy Prophet ﷺ said to Hazrat Siddique رضی اللہ عنہم(Recite a bit louder); and said to Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ (Recite a bit in lower tone). (Abu Dawud Book salat. ch. on loud recitation etc. Hadith no: 1329).

Moderation is needed

The above is a famous saying mentioned in the Ahadith. Commenting on this incident it is said that the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught his Ummah, to take a middle course while reciting the Holy Qur'an i.e. neither too loudly nor in low tone. This teaching is in conformity with the injunction of the Holy Qur'an about recitation. It said:

" وَلَا تَجْهَرْ بِصَلَاتِكَ وَلَا تُخَافِتْ بِهَا وَابْتَغِ بَيْنَ ذٰلِكَ سَبِيْلاً "

That is, do not recite the Qur'an in your prayers very loudly nor in a very low tone, but seek a middle course between the two. (17:110)

Negate your Propositions

Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمة الله عليه has on the authority of Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه, furnished a wonderful interpretation of this Hadith. It was not wrong on the part of Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddiq رضى الله عنه when he said that it was not necessary to recite the Qur'an loudly as He to whom he was reciting it had heard it. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضى الله عنه had a loud voice. If it becomes louder during his prayer, there was nothing unlawful in it. The Holy Prophet ﷺ explained to them something like this: Previously you were reciting the Qur'an according to your own choice, so it was not so enlightening. If you recite the Qur'an according to my suggestion (i.e. in a moderate tone) it will bring more spiritual light and blessing, as it will comply with the Sunnah.

Make your life a model of Obedience

The essence of Deen is that one should not insist one's own opinion in matters concerning Deen. Everything concerning Deen should be done strictly in compliance with the procedure taught by Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. If this point becomes firmly impressed upon the minds all forms of Bid'ah shall be uprooted. It was to attain this goal that the ritual of Qurbani was prescribed. We are all prone to be unmindful of it while offering the Qurbani, it is necessary to recall that this worship contains the lesson that our entire life should be subject to the commands of Allah. It should be a complete model of obedience and total submission, whether we understand or do not understand the wisdom and reason behind the commands. This is the philosophy of Qurbani. May Almighty Allah help us all to understand this philosophy and grant us its blessings.

The Excellences of Qurbani

According to the Ahadith the ritual of Qurbani has many blessings and benefits. The number of sins forgiven is equal to the number of hair on the body of the slaughtered animal. That is, one sin for one hair. No act is dearer to Allah during these three days than the shedding of Qurbani blood. The more Qurbani a man offers, the more he is liked by Allah. The blood of the slaughtered animal reaches Allah before it falls on the ground. Thus it becomes a cause of nearness to Allah. Almighty Allah has ordained this great reward for Qurbani in recognition of the fact that His servant is offering the Qurbani only in obedience to His command without carning to know the reason and wisdom behind this worship and without minding the money he is spending on it'.

The Story of a villager

It is said that it was a custom in olden days that when anyone attended a King's court he presented to the King some gift. The King obviously was not in need of that gift, but it was presented to gain the King's favour and pleasure and some good return from the King. Maulana Rumi has illustrated this point through an interesting story, as follows:

Once a villager decided to pay a visit to the Caliph of Baghdad. He wanted to carry a gift for the King. He consulted his wife about the gift suitable for the Caliph. In her natural naivety she advised her husband to take with him for the Caliph a pitcher of water, as in her opinion, the Caliph might not be enjoying such sweet and cool water in the capital. The villager appreciated her wife's suggestion and set off for Baghdad on foot with a pitcher of water on his head. On approaching the Caliph he presented to him the gift of water, saying that it was pure and cool water, the like of which might not be available to the Caliph in his capital. It may be noted that on account of the long journey and contamination of dust and dirt the water gone dirty.

The Caliph ordered the villager to open the cover of the pitcher. As soon as the mouth of the pitcher was opened, the entire hall was filled with foul nauseating smell. Realising that the villager had decided to present that useless, rather disgustful present in his extreme simplicity and sincerity the caliph accepted and appreciated it and ordered the pitcher to be filled with gold coins. The villager, was very happy and heartily thanked the Caliph for his generosity. When the villager was going back home with his reward, the Caliph asked one of his servants to see him off along the bank of the river Tigris.

The villager was going back home joyfully with the caliph's escort, suddenly he saw the River Tigris proudly flowing with its cool, crystal clear and sweet water. He felt ashamed at the gift of worthless water he had presented to the Caliph and realised from the core of his heart the Caliph's generosity and magnanimity, because not only did he punish him for presenting him such a worthless gift but filled his pitcher with gold coins.

The Value of our worship

Drawing a moral from the above story Maulana Rumi رحمة الله عليه has said that our worship is just like the villager's pitcher of dirty and foul water, deserving to be pelted at our faces. It is, however, the unlimited mercy of Almighty Allah that He accepts them for valuable recompense. Allah takes account of man's limited power and thanks that His servant has presented it with faith and sincerity. The example which Maulana Rumi رحمة الله عليه has given holds good of all our worships which are in fact no better than the villager's pitcher of worthless water.

Royal way of accepting gift

In the olden days it was a common custom that if anyone presented some precious gift of gold or gems etc, to a king, the king only touched the gift with his hand in token of having accepted it. The gift was then returned to the giver, because, the King fully realised that the need of the giver of the gift was greater than his own.

Allah looks for piety of the heart

Maulana Rumi رحمة الله عليه has said that the Qurbani which a Muslim presents to Almighty Allah is such a gift that no sooner is the knife applied to the animal's throat than the Qurbani is completed and accepted by Allah, and the slaughtered animal with all its meat and skin etc. is at your disposal. It is, as if, Almighty Allah has touched it with His hands and the entire gift is left to you for use as you please. Look at Allah's mercy and generosity shown to the Ummah of the Holy Prophet, Muhammad ﷺ that a gift is being demanded and when it is offered in the form of the slaughtered animal then the obedience to the command is enough to please Allah. He does not require anything more. Thus He has said:

لَنْ يَّنَالَ اللّٰهَ لُحُوْمُهَا وَلَادِمَآؤُهَا وَلٰكِنْ يَّنَالُهُ التَّقْوٰى مِنْكُمْ

It means that "neither their flesh nor their blood reaches Him". (22:37).

In other words, if a person offers the Qurbani with piety and purity of his heart Allah readily accepts his Qurbani. Allah does not require the flesh of the slaughtered animal but leaves its disposal to the option of the man who has offered the Qurbani. If he himself uses the entire flesh, there is no sin in it. It is, however, very desirable that he should himself use only one-third of it and distribute one-third among his relatives and the remaining one-third among the poor. The point to note here is that it does not displease Allah at all if the entire flesh is consumed by the person himself who is offering the Qurbani.

Are these animals our Carriers on "Pul Sirat"?

It is a common saying among the people that these animals of the Qurbani will serve as riding animals, sitting on which the men offering the Qurbani will cross over the Bridge leading to Paradise. This is based, on a weak narrative which is:

سمنوا ضحا يا كم فانها على الصراط مطايا كم

That is, fatten your sacrificial animals, because they will be your riding - animals to cross over the pul-sirat (the bridge leading to Paradise).

This is a weak narrative to which much attention need not be paid. Yet the saying has become very common. I neither accept it nor reject it. Only Allah knows its reality. However, that Hadith is quite authentic which says that Allah accepts the Qurbani before the blood of the slaughtered animal falls on the ground.

I entrust to you my entire capital

All this has been prescribed, so that a spirit may develop in the heart to comply unconditionally and unhesitatingly with the commands of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ and to surrender oneself totally to Allah. This has been clearly emphasized in the Holy Qur'an:

وَمَا كَانَ لِمُؤْمِنٍ وَّلَا مُؤْمِنَةٍ اِذَا قَضَى اللّٰهُ وَرَسُوْلُهٗٓ اَمْرًا اَنْ يَّكُوْنَ لَهُمُ الْخِيَرَةُ مِنْ اَمْرِهِمْ (سورة الاحزاب: ٣٦)

That is believing men and women have no option in their affairs, when Allah and His Messenger have decided upon an affair.(33:36)

سپردم با تو مایۂ خویش را
تو دانی حساب کم و بیش را

This is a persian couplet which means:
I have entrusted to you my entire capital (of life). It is up to you to decide whether it is more, or less, enough or deficient.

I have tried in the foregoing pages to define the reality of Deen. May Allah help us understand this reality and grant us all the lights and blessigns this Deen contains. May He also help us to remember this reality and live up to it the whole of our lives. Aameen.

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram,
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi.

Date : Friday, 11th Septemebr, 1992
After 'Asr Prayers

During assemblies held in the name of the "SEERAT" (biography of the Holy Prophet ﷺ) we indulge in such activities as are totally opposed to the injunctions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Speeches are delivered in these assemblies about the Prophet's teachings and Sunnah, but actually we ridicule these very teachings of Sunnah and directions which the Holy Prophet ﷺ brought with him.

LET US ATTUNE OUR LIFE WITH 'SEERAH'

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه، ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له نشهدان سيد نا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالىٰ عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

لَقَدْ كَانَ لَكُمْ فِيْ رَسُوْلِ اللهِ اُسْوَةٌ حَسَنَةٌ لِمَنْ كَانَ يَرْجُواللهَ وَالْيَوْمَ الْاٰخِرَ وَذَكَرَ اللهَ كَثِيْرًا ﴿سورة الاحزاب:٢١﴾

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم و صدق رسوله النبى الكريم و
نحن علىٰ ذٰلك من الشٰهدين والشٰكرين والحمد لله رب العٰلمين

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness and we believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Allah from the evils of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is none to let go astray whom Allah guides and there is none to guide whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah Alone. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, and our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah send on him on his household and on his Companions his mercy and bless them and send them peace in abundance.

In the messenger of Allah there is a beautiful model for such of you who hopes in Allah and Last Day and remembers Allah a great deal. (33:21)

The Discourse about the Prophet ﷺ is a means to great Blessing

The twelfth of Rabi'ul-Awwal of the Islamic month has assumed the status of regular celebration and festival in our society, in our country and in the Indo-Pak sub-continent. No sooner does the month of Rabi'ul-aw-wal arrives than an endless chain of Seerat (Biography of the Prophet ﷺ) and his Birth-Day celebrations commence. Discourses held on the subject of the biography of the Holy Prophet ﷺ are obviously the highest source of blessings for the believers. The difficulty however, in our society is that we confine these blessed and enlightening discourses and speeches only to the month of Rabi'ul-Awwal, rather, only to the twelfth day of this month. This practice is justified by saying that these celebrations are held on this date because this is the date of the blessed arrival of the Holy Prophet ﷺ in this world.

While doing all this we forget to consider what are the teachings of the reverend personality of the Prophet ﷺ on whose sacred biography seminars are being held and whose sacred birth-day is being celebrated. Do the Prophet's teachings contain any hint at the desirability of following such practices?

A Great Event of Human History

No Muslim can have a doubt that the event of the birth of the Holy Prophet ﷺ is the most splendid, blissful and blessed of all the phenomena that ever occurred on the surface of the earth. It was due to this unprecedented phenomenon that the humanity received the light of the Holy Prophet's teachings and the blessings of his unique personality. If Islam had allowed the celebration of the birth-day of any person, then the birth-day of the Holy Prophet ﷺ would have been the greatest celebration and the fittest occasion to be declared as an Eid (a joyous festival). The fact, however, is that after having been graced with the Prophetic mission, the Holy Prophet ﷺ lived in this world for twenty three years and witnessed the day of his blessed birth every year but he never thought of celebrating this day as a festival, as people do nowadays. It also never occurred in the mind of any of his Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم that they should celebrate the birthday of the Holy Prophet ﷺ with any zeal and fervor.

The Twelfth of Rabi'ul Awwal and the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم

After leaving behind about one and a quarter Lakh (1,25,000) loyal Companions رضی اللہ عنہم the Holy Prophet ﷺ left this world. The Noble Companions were so faithful, loving, true and devoted that they were ready to sacrifice even their lives for every breath of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. You will however, not find a single Companion who ever took care to celebrate the Prophet's birthday by holding meetings, taking out processions, burning candles or decorating places with flags and doing such other acts of merriment. Why did the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم not care to do so? This is only because Islam is not, like other religions, a religion of customs and festivals. The very existence of other religions depends on observing some rites, customs and formal traditions. On the other hand, Islam is a practical religion in which every Muslim is called upon to live his entire life up to the principles of Islam, reforming his conduct, guarding himself against sins and following the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It is his life long duty from birth till death.

The Origin of Christmas

The idea of celebrating birthdays has crept into our society from the Christians. The birthday of Hazrat Eesa (Jesus Christ) is celebrated in the name of Christmas every year on 25th of December. If you go into the records of history you will find that none thought of celebrating the birthday of Hazrat Eesa علیہ السلام at least for about three hundred years since the date of his ascension. None of his helpers and companions ever celebrated his birthday. This Bid'ah (Innovation) was started three hundred years after his leaving the world, by a section of the Christians. Even at that time the true christians objected to this innovation on the ground that there was no hint in the teachings of Prophet Jesus علیہ السلام at such celebration. The innovators replied by asserting that there was no harm in this, as during such celebrations and gatherings the Prophet علیہ السلام would be remembered along with his teachings and this would induce the people to follow them. On the basis of such flimsy arguments this Bid'ah started.

The present Condition of Christmas

In the beginning the Christians used to assemble in a Church and a priest addressed them on the topic of the life and teachings of Hazrat Eesa علیہ السلام and then the assembly would disperse. This innovation started in a harmless and innocent way. Later on they felt that it lacked the colour and glamoaur. To give it colour and jubilation they added to these innocent celebrations music and recitations of poems and with the passage of time merry-making musical concerts, dancing, even drinking gambling, etc., became the hall mark of this celebration. Thus, all immoral activities and festivities came to the foreground driving into the background the teachings of Hazrat Eesa علیہ السلام.

The Fate of Christmas

You may be unaware of the havoc played by this so-called Christmas in the western countries. The wine consumed on this one day exceeds the quantity consumed during full one year. Fatal accidents, rape cases and other evils that occur on this day far surpass the number of casualties and such crimes during the entire year.

The Beginning of the Meeladun Nabi

Almighty Allah is well-Aware of the psychology and weaknesses of man. He knew that if the slightest hint was given to him about celebrating someone's birthday, he would make a great fuss out of it. So He left no hint for man in this regard. It is very unfortunate that what happened to "Christmas" also happened to the twelfth day of the Rabi'ul-Awwal. This Bid'ah was originated by some king in imitation of "Christmas" celebrations to commemorate the birthday of Hazrat Eesa عليه السلام In the beginning the celebrations of the twelfth Rabi'ul-aw-wal were simple. They contained only some speeches on the Prophet's biography and the recitation of a few eulogistic poems (Na'at). Now think for yourself how formidable form this Bid'ah has assumed.

This is like a Hindu Festival

It must be admitted that as a miracle of the Holy Prophet ﷺ even after the passage of fourteen centuries, matters concerning the celebrations of his birth-day, have not yet reached the level of the unbridled festivities of the "Christmas". Despite this, paper and wooden structures of the Prophet's mausoleum and of the Ka'bah are set up on the roads and people are seen going round this artificial Ka'bah. Look also at the extensive recordings, expensive illumination of houses and mosques with multi-coloured flags. In all respects these resemble the Hindu and Christian celebrations and have nothing to do with the prophet's birth-day and biography.

This is not an Islamic practice

The worst of this Bid'ah is being done in the name of Deen (Faith) and in the sacred name of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. This is being done in the hope that these activities will bring great credit and reward from Allah. They think that by lighting their streets, their houses and mosques on this day they have paid their due homage to the Holy Prophet ﷺ. If you complain to them about their apathy to Deen they will reply that they celebrate the Prophet's birthday, decorate every nook and corner with illuminations and take out processions on this occasion in order to pay tributes to the Holy Prophet ﷺ. This is not the way of Islam, nor that of the Holy Prophet ﷺ nor of his Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم. If there had been any good in such celebration then Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddiq رضی الله عنه, Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی الله عنه Hazrat Usman Ghani رضی الله عنه and Hazrat Ali Murtaza رضی الله عنه would never have missed these virtues if they were of any notice.

What was the objective of Prophetic Mission?

The Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم did not believe in assemblies and processions, illuminations, flags and decorations. The distinctive feature of their lives was that they had moulded their lives on the pattern of the Holy Prophet's life and had fully imbibed the essence and spirit of his beautiful teachings. Every day that dawned on them and every moment of their lives was for them a day or moment of the Prophet's Seerah (the Prophet's biography). Every thing they did, reflected the Prophet's Sunnah. They knew full well that the Holy Prophet ﷺ had not been sent to this world to popularise the celebration of his birthday, nor to have his own praise sung in eulogistic poems (Na'at) composed and recited in his praise - no nothing of this sort. It is well known that the unbelievers of Makkah offered to make him their richest man, to give him in marriage the hand of the most beautiful damsel of Arabia or even to appoint him their king on the only condition that he ﷺ relinquished the preaching of his new faith. If the Holy Prophet ﷺ had the slightist inclination towards these offers he would have readily accepted them for the sake of worldly power, fame and authority. What was the Prophet's reaction to these attractive offers? His famous reply was:

I am not going to relinquish my divine mission of preaching Allah's Deen even if you place the sun on my one hand and the moon on the other.

Was it the aim of his mission to enforce the celebration of his birthday? The aim of his mission has been mentioned in the Qur'an in the following words:

لَقَدْ كَانَ لَكُمْ فِيْ رَسُوْلِ اللهِ أُسْوَةٌ حَسَنَةٌ لِمَنْ كَانَ يَرْجُواللهَ وَالْيَوْمَ الْآخِرَ وَذَكَرَ اللهَ كَثِيْرًا ۝ (سورة الاحزاب: ٢١)

That is, in the messenger of Allah there is a beautiful model for such of you as looks for Allah and the last Day and remembers Allah a great deal. (33:21)

Thus this verse makes quite clear the divine intention of the Prophetic mission.

Man needs a model to follow

What is the need of a model when Almighty Allah has revealed His Book (the Qur'an) which we can study and follow its injunctions? It is because man, by his very nature, is incompetent to reform himself or to learn some art or trade only by reading books. Almighty Allah has so constituted man's nature that he must have before his eyes the practical demonstration of a teacher and a model to follow for learning any art or trade.

The "House Job" is compulsory for a new Doctor

If a man commits the folly of taking up the medical profession only by studying books on the medical subject he is doomed to fail in his practice; he can but cause only death and casualties to humanity.

It has, therefore, been prescribed as an international law that a man who passes the M.B.B.S. examination cannot practice as a physician, unless he undergoes a practical training in some hospital for a prescribed period, and observes during this period the practical medication and operations performed on patients under the guidance and supervision of some expert and experienced medical professors or surgeons. This is necessary because he has so far studied the medical science only in books and through class lectures, but he has not yet learnt how to put into practice his book knowledge. He must, therefore, undergo a thorough practical training before he can be given license to practice as a physician or a surgeon.

One cannot prepare stew by reading a book on cookery

Books are available in the market on the art of cooking with detailed recipes for preparing various dishes. If there is a man who has never cooked but wants to cook a dish, say of "stew", by reading the relevant recipe in the book lying open before him, he cannot succeed in preparing the desired dish. He can, however, prepare his desired dish under the instructions and practical demonstration of an expert cook.

The Book alone is not sufficient

Thus, it seems that Almighty Allah has so devised and moulded man's disposition that he cannot take the right course without the practical model of an experienced guide, nor can he learn or practice any art or trade without guidance. That is exactly why Almighty Allah evolved the system of sending to the world Prophets and Messengers عليهم السلام to provide practical demonstration as to how to put into practice the divine injunctions, as this could not be possible only by reading the divine scriptures. Thus Allah sent the last Prophet Muhammad ﷺ to serve as a perfect model for complying with the Qur'anic injunctions.

The Light of the Prophet's teachings is needed

How nicely has the Holy Qur'an expressed this idea in another place!

قَدْ جَآءَكُمْ مِنَ اللهِ نُوْرٌ وَّ كِتَابٌ مُّبِيْنٌ (سورة مائدہ: ۱۵)

A light and a clear Book has come to you from Allah. (5:15)

There is an indication in this verse that if a man has a book, but has no light, whether sunlight, electricity or candle light, he cannot benefit from the contents of the book. If a man has sources of natural or artificial lights but is blind, he too, cannot receive any benefit from books. In the same way Allah sent along with the Qur'an, the guiding light of the Holy Prophet Muhammad ﷺ without which you can neither fully understand the injunctions contained in the Qur'an, nor can you comply with them according to Allah's will.

The teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ are themselves light

Some ignorant and inconsiderate people interpret the above quoted Qur'anic verse to mean that the Holy Prophet ﷺ was not a man in his personal capacity but was a "Light". Just think, what is the worth of these electric and other artificial lights as compared with the light of the teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ? This verse is telling us that the teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ are a kind of light in which you can understand and follow rightly the injunctions of the "Clear Book", that is the Qur'an. Allah sent His Messenger ﷺ to this world that the light of his teachings may provide a practical explanation and demonstration of the Book of Allah before you. For this purpose Allah has made the Prophet's life a complete model, the like of which humanity is unable to produce. You have been commanded to see and follow this model.

The Prophet's life provides a model for every walk of life

If you are a father, then see how Hazrat Fatimah's father ﷺ behaved. If you are a husband, be like the husband of Hazrat 'Ayesha رضی اللہ عنہا and if you are a Ruler, then see how the ruler of Madinah ﷺ ruled over his territory. If you are a labourer, see how the shepherd of Makkah tended his goats on the hills of Makkah. If you are a trader see how the Holy Prophet ﷺ carried on his trade in Syria. The Prophet ﷺ was a businessman, a farmer, a labourer, a politician a ruler and a social being. There is no walk of life for which the Prophet's life does not serve as a perfect model. It is the will of Almighty Allah that men should observe that model and follow it. Allah did not send the Holy Prophet ﷺ that the people should celebrate his birthday by means of joyous gatherings and processions and then think that they have paid their dues to Allah and His Prophet ﷺ by indulging in these activities. The Holy Prophet ﷺ was sent to the world that he should be followed and obeyed as did his Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم.

An etiquette for Assemblies

The Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم always remained in search of ways and means of following the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It was not a joke to become a Companion of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Once the Holy Prophet ﷺ was delivering a sermon in his mosque. He ﷺ saw that some men were standing on the sides of the mosque, as persons generally do on such occasions in our times also. This is against the etiquettes of an assembly not to take their seats in the assembly nor leave the place. Such behaviour distracts the attention of the speaker.

An Example of Obedience

The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked the people to sit down. At that moment. Hazrat Abdullah bin Masood رضی اللہ عنہ was at the door and had not yet entered the mosque. Hearing the Prophet's words he رضی اللہ عنہ sat down at the door. When he met the Holy Prophet ﷺ he told Hazrat Abdullah bin Masood رضی اللہ عنہ that he had asked those to sit down who were standing on the sides of the mosque and not him, as he was at the door. Hazrat Abdullah bin Masood replied saying: When the Prophet's order to sit reached my ears I had no courage to take a step forward.

It is not that Hazrat Abdullah bin Masood رضی اللہ عنہ did not understand the real aim of the Prophet's order to sit. He knew it very well but his fondness and love to obey the Prophet ﷺ were so deep rooted that he dared not ignore the order. It is one thing to make empty claims of love and loyalty and quite another thing to have in the heart true love and loyalty for the Holy Prophet ﷺ. (Abu Dawud. Book of Friday....)

Maintenance of Etiquette on the Battlefield

In the battlefield of Uhud, Hazrat Abu Dujanah رضی اللہ عنہ saw that arrows were being shot at the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Hazrat Abu Dujanah رضی اللہ عنہ wanted to become a protecting shield for the Holy Prophet ﷺ against those arrows. His difficulty was that if he turned his chest against the arrows he would have to turn his back towards the Holy Prophet ﷺ which he did not like: So he stopped the bunch of arrows on his back, keeping his chest towards the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He took care to ensure that he did not commit the slightest disrespect towards the Holy Prophet ﷺ even in a battlefield.

An incident of Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ

Once Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ took up residence in a house quite far off from the Prophet's mosque. On account of distance he could not visit the Prophet's mosque for prayer frequently. He رضی اللہ عنہ, therefore, arranged with one of his neighbours that each of them would go to the Prophet's mosque on alternate days and relate to his companion what he heard from the Holy Prophet ﷺ, so that each would, by this arrangement, remain fully informed of the Holy Prophet's sayings. Thus did the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم devote themselves even to the smallest items of the Prophet's directions and teachings.

I cannot relinquish my master's sunnah

On the occasion of the Treaty of Hudaiybiah Hazrat Usman Ghani رضی اللہ عنہ went to Makkah as an emissary of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. In Makkah he stayed at the house of his cousin. When he left his place in the morning for the place of the conference with the leaders of Makkah, his trousers were above his ankles reaching up to the half of his shins. The Holy Prophet's ﷺ order about this is that it is unlawful to hang the trousers below the ankles. The Prophet's own practice was to keep the trousers up to half of his shins; not lower than that. The cousin of Hazrat Usman Ghani رضی اللہ عنہ told him that it was a mark of honour and dignity among the Arab dignitaries to let their trousers or loin clothes hang down below the ankles. He therefore, suggested to Hazrat Usman Ghani رضی اللہ عنہ to lower his trousers below the ankles, otherwise the leaders of Makkah would look down upon him and the result of the conference might be affected adversely. On hearing this advice of his cousin Hazrat Usman Ghani رضی اللہ عنہ gave this decisive reply:

لا ! هكذا ازرة صاحبنا صلى الله عليه وسلم

No, I cannot lower my trousers, because the trousers of my master remain like that. He did not care at all how the leaders of Makkah would behave with him. He would under no circumstances give up the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. That was not possible for him.

Should I give up the Sunnah of Holy Prophet for the sake of these fools

Hazrat Huzaifah ibn Yaman رضی اللہ عنہ is the conqueror of Iran. When Iran was attacked its Ruler, khosroe, invited him to his court for negotiations. When he رضی اللہ عنہ entered the court, food was served to him as a mark of entertainment, which he began to eat. During eating a morsel of the food fell down on the ground. It is the teaching of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that on such occasions the morsel should be picked up, cleansed and eaten, as it is God's gift of sustenance and none knows which part of the food contains Allah's blessing. When Hazrat Huzaifah رضی اللہ عنہ intended to take up the fallen morsel from the ground, a man sitting by his side tried to stop him from that act, as it might degrade him in the eyes of the King and his courtiers. In reply Hazrat Huzaifah رضی اللہ عنہ uttered this wonderful sentence:

اَاَتْرُكُ سُنَّةَ رَسُوْلِ اللهِ ﷺ لِهٰؤُلَآءِ الْحُمْقٰى؟

That is, "Should I give up the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ for the sake of these fools? I cannot do that, irrespective of what the Iranians thought of him.

He reduced Khosroe's Pride to dust

Now consider! Did this Noble Companion رضی اللہ عنہم attain honour by following the Prophet's Sunnah or are we attaining honour by giving up this sacred Sunnah? He picked up the fallen morsel from the ground and ate it in compliance with the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and at the same time by bending with disgrace the proud head of Khosroe, he realised this prophecy of the Holy Prophet ﷺ:

اذا هلك كِسرٰى فلا كِسرٰى بعدهٗ

The day Khusroe perishes there will be no Khosroe after him. We all know how Khosroe's name was effaced from the surface of the earth.(Sahih Bukhari. signs of Prophet ﷺ food....)

I shall not give up my usual dress

It happened prior to this event that when Hazrat Huzaifah bin Yaman رضی اللہ عنہ and Hazrat Rub'i bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہ proceeded for the negotiations and entered Khosroe's palace, they were in their usual flowing robes which might have possibly become soiled during their long journey. Seeing them in this unworthy dress the gatekeeper stopped them from entering the Court and gave them official cloaks to put on before appearing before the Emperor. Hazrat Rub'i bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہ refused to change his dress and said if the Emperor could not tolerate to give him an audience in his own dress he too was not anxious to see the Emperor and would prefer to go back.

A Dialouge with a Courtier

The gatekeeper sent words inside the palace telling that strange persons had arrived who were not prepared to accept a better cloaks. In the mean time Hazrat Rub'i bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہ was repairing the broken part of his sword which was wrapped up with pieces of cloth. The gatekeeper desired to see the sword which was handed over to him. On looking at it the gatekeeper said tauntingly: Are you going to conquer Iran with such a sword? Hazrat Rub'i bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہ replied: So far you have seen only the sword; you have not yet seen the hand that will use this sword. The gatekeeper desired to see the hand also. Hazrat Rub'i bin 'Amir asked him to procure the strongest shield available. The strongest iron shield was brought which, it was believed, no sword could cut or break. A man stood with that shield before Hazrat Rub'i bin 'Amir. He struck the shield with his sword with such force that it was broken into two pieces. The people present there to see the test were amazed at the strength of Hazrat Rub'i bin 'Amir's arm and wondered what kind of men they were.

It is they who conquered Iran

Thereafter, the gatekeeper sent words to the Emperor, telling him that a strange people had arrived who refused to put on the Emperor's official robe and one of them had cut in two the strongest shield with a broken sword. At last they were called in.

It was the custom of Khosroe's court that he was sitting on his throne, while his courtiers remained standing before him. Hazrat Rub'i bin 'Amir told Khosroe that they followed the teachings of the Holy Prophet, Muhammad ﷺ who disliked the custom one man sitting, while the rest were standing before him. They could therefore, not take part in the negotiations, unless arrangements were made for all to sit or Khosroe too stood up like others.

When Khosroe saw that they were insulting him he ordered them to be sent away with a basket full of dust placed on the head of the leader. The Emperor's order was obeyed at once. While leaving Khosroe's court with the basket of dust on his head, Hazrat Rub'i bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہ spoke these words: O Khosroe! Remember that you have gifted to us the dust of Iran. The people present there who heard those words thought that it was a very bad omen. They, therefore, sent their men to get back the basket of dust, but Hazrat Rub'i bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہ could not be overtaken. This is because Almighty Allah had ordained that those people with broken swords were the custodians of Iran's soil.

Why are the Muslims humiliated today?

It is the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم of the Holy Prophet ﷺ who subjugated the world as a result of their unflinching compliance with the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Today we feel ashamed in acting upon the Sunnah of the Prophet ﷺ, and we think that if we comply with a Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, the people of the world, including the English, the French, etc. will laugh at us. The obvious result is that we Muslims have lost our prestige and are being ridiculed and humiliated everywhere.

Today the Muslims make one-third of the world population and they are larger in number and richer in material resources than they were ever before. The Holy Prophet ﷺ had, however, prophesied that a time would come when the Muslims would be in a large number, yet they would be like straws floating on the surface of flood water, Today we have gone down to a position in which we have sacrificed everything to please our enemies. We have given up our character, our good deeds and have altered our appearances and form, in fact everything from head to feet to show that we are their slaves. Even then they are not pleased with us. How disgraceful it is for the Muslims that they are being constantly smitten by one nation or another! It must be borne in mind that when a Muslim turns his back on the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ he should expect nothing except humiliation and disgrace.

Do not be afraid of being laughed at

Asad Multani رحمة الله عليه was a good poet who has composed very good poems full of wisdom and wise morals.

کسی کا آستانہ اونچا ہے اتنا
کہ سر جھک کر بھی اونچا ہی رہے گا
ہنسے جانے سے جب تک تم ڈرو گے
زمانہ تم پر ہنستا ہی رہے گا

The meaning of these lines, in a nut shell, is that the more you feel afraid of being laughed at by the people, the more they will laugh at you. On the other hand, if you will place your head at a highly raised threshold of someone high your head will, in spite of being lowered down, remain at a higher level.

Thus, if you place your head at the feet of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and follow his sunnah you will achieve honour, dignity and authority.

A believer is bound to follow the Sunnah

A question is frequently asked. It is alleged that we have been doomed to disgrace and humiliation for having abandoned the Sunnah. As against this, the unbelievers of the advanced countries of America, Europe and also some eastern countries are enjoying honour, peace and power and worldly gifts of life. Whose Sunnah are these unbelievers following?

The answer to this question is not far to seek. Almighty Allah has granted you, by His mercy, the wealth of Iman and you have pronounced the Kalimah (Article of Faith) of the Holy Prophet Muhammad ﷺ. So, you will not be safe from being smitten and disgraced, unless you surrender yourself completely to Allah and follow sincerely and submissively His Prophet ﷺ. As for the unbelievers, they have no share in the bounties and blessings of the Hereafter. If they are placed in authority, wealth, honour and progress in this world, you should not apply their analogy to yourself. Just go through the pages of history encompassing these fourteen centuries. You will surely find that as long as the Muslims complied with the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, they enjoyed, Power, Authority, Honour and Grandeur. They however, went down the abyss of humiliation want and poverty when they relinquished the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

Review your own life

We all take part in religious gatherings and listen to sermons, yet it hardly brings any change in our lives. Let us resolve today to review what are the Sunnah acts which we are doing and those which we are ignoring. Which are those acts of the Sunnah which we can start immediately and those which call for a little time. The acts which we can start immediately must be started from today. As for acts which call for time, we should give them that time so as to be able to start them as early as possible.

Become a Beloved of Allah

Our Dr. Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to advise us that, while going to the toilet, we should enter it first with the left foot and recite this Du'a (supplication):

"اَللّٰهُمَّ اِنِّی اَعُوْذُبِكَ مِنَ الْخُبْثِ وَالْخَبَائِثِ"

O Allah I seek refuge with you from wickedness and wicked spirits.

While reciting this, form the intention in your heart that you are doing this in compliance with the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. By so doing you will become a beloved of Allah because Allah has said in the Holy Qur'an:

فَاتَّبِعُوْنِیْ یُحْبِبْكُمُ اللّٰهُ (سورۃ ال عمران: ۳۱)

This means: (O Prophet! ﷺ say): If you follow me Allah will love you. (3:31)

Thus, if man forms the habit of doing small acts of Sunnah he will be taken into the attribute of belovedness and when he becomes a perfect follower of the Sunnah he will become a perfect beloved of Allah.

Dr. Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمة الله عليه related to us a practice of his in this way: When food was brought before him, he liked the food and was also feeling hungry, but he refrained for a moment from taking that food. The next moment he remembered the sacred Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that when, delicious food was placed before him ﷺ he would thank Allah then take the food. Following the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, Dr. Sahib also took the food placed before him. By taking his food in this way he complied with the Sunnah, satisfied his hunger and, what is more he became a beloved of Allah.

Follow this practice

While entering your house. You see that a child is playing and you feel inclined to take it up in your lap, but you refrain for a moment from taking the child up. The next moment you remember that the Holy Prophet ﷺ was very fond of, and kind to, children and he used to pick them up in his lap. Thinking all this you too take up the child in your lap in compliance with the Prophets' practice. This act of yours will make you beloved of Allah. There is no act in this world in which one cannot make the intention to follow the Prophet's sunnah. A book named uswa-e-rasool-e-akram ﷺ has been published and is readily available. Get a copy of it, keep it before you and with its help introduce the Sunnah in your life gradually and one by one. In a few days you will be able to realize the light of the Sunnah. In this way every day of your life will become a seerah Day of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

May Allah help us all to act on these lines. Aameen.

Venue : Jame'Masjid No'man,
Lasbela Chowk,
Karachi.

Date : Friday, 12 Rabi'ul-Awwal
1405 A.H.,
After 'Asr Prayers

In the gatherings held in the name of discoursing about the life of the Prophet ﷺ we indulge during these discourses in acts which are totally against the injunctions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. In these gatherings we mention the sacred name of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, talk about his Sunnah, but in actual practice we ridicule the teachings, Sunnah and his guidance with which he ﷺ was sent to this world. This is highly regrettable, indeed.

ON THE CELEBRATIONS OF MILAD

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيد نا و سندنا نبينا ومولانا محمداً عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالىٰ عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

لَقَدْ كَانَ لَكُمْ فِيْ رَسُوْلِ اللهِ اُسْوَةٌ حَسَنَةٌ لِّمَنْ كَانَ يَرْجُو اللهَ وَالْيَوْمَ الْاٰخِرَ وَ ذَكَرَ اللهَ كَثِيْرًا ﴿سورة الاحزاب: ٢١﴾

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم و صدق رسوله النبى الكريم و

نحن علىٰ ذٰلك من الشٰهدين والشٰكرين والحمد لله رب العالمين

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness and we believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Allah from the evils of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is no one to let go astray whom Allah guides and there is no one to guide whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah Alone. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our authority, our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah send on him, on his household and on his Companions his mercy and bless them and send peace on them in abundance.

Indeed, you have beautiful model for such of you as looks for Allah and the Last Day and remembers Allah a great deal. (33:21)

I believe in Allah, Allah our Master has truly said and said His Messenger the truth. We bear witness to their truth and are thankful to them. We Praise Allah the Lord of the world.

The Blessed Discourses about the Holy Prophet ﷺ

To mention the biographical anecdotes of the Prophet's sacred life is a source of great blessing and fortune. To talk about no one's biographical sketches who lived or is living in this world is so praiseworthy and rewarding as to talk about the Holy Prophet's sacred life. Notwithstanding thus, we have begun to mention in these gatherings of the Prophet's birthday celebrations unauthantic and baseless anecdotes. So we do not reap the true reward and benefit from these birthday gatherings.

The sacred Biography of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and the attitude of the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم

One of the serious mistakes we commit on this auspicious occasion is that we have confined these speeches, addresses or the celebration exclusively to the month of Rab'iul Awwal and that too only to one day and only to a few hours of that day. We think that by so doing we have done full justice to the discourse about the Prophet's sacred "Seerat" (biography). This is indeed a great rather the greatest, injustice to the Holy Prophet's biography.

We find the no traces of such trends in the lives of the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. You will also not get a single occasion in their lives on which they ever celebrated the twelfth day of the month of Rab'iul-Awwal or held special gatherings in this month to celebrate the Prophet's birthday. On the other hand, every moment of their life reflected a remembrance of the Prophet's beautiful biography. Whenever two Companions رضى الله عنهم met, they talked about the Prophet's Ahadth, his teachings and different events and aspects of his ﷺ sacred life. In this way every gathering or meeting of the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم was a meeting of discussion on the Prophet's biography. As such, they did not require any formal celebration or procession in the name of the birthday of the Prophet ﷺ to express the love of, and attachment they had with, the Holy Prophet ﷺ not a single instance of such showy and formal activities can be produced from the times of the Noble Companions, رضى الله عنهم the Tabi'een and their followers.

Islam is not the Faith of formalities

In fact it was not the practice of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم to indulge in formal and showy processions and celebrations. They had imbibed the very spirit of the Sunnah and the practices of the Prophet's sacred life. They always tried to understand why the Holy Prophet ﷺ had came to this world, what were his mission and teachings and what he ﷺ expected from the world concerning his mission. The Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم had devoted their entire lives to reflection on, and promotion of, such ideals concerning the Faith; they were not after such formal, empty and showy celebrations and processions which we have borrowed from the non-Muslims, like Christians and Hindus. We invented the festival of celebrating the Prophet's birthday in blind imitation of these infidel nations living around us who celebrate the birthdays and death anniversaries of their prominent leaders. We fail to consider that these so-called leaders of the infidels did not possess lives worthy of being followed; they were only either political leaders or leaders in some other field of worldly activities. These leaders were not, in general, men to be emulated on account of some moral spiritual or religious distinction.

The life of the Holy Prophet ﷺ is a perfect model

As for the Holy Prophet ﷺ, the very divine intention of sending him to this world was that he ﷺ should present a perfect practical model for the entire humanity, so that men may follow his way of life and try to mould their own lives on the pattern available in the Holy Prophet's Sunnah. Every moment of his life is a valuable example for us to follow. As Muslims, it is a binding on all of us to imitate the Prophet's life to the best of our abilities. The Holy Prophet ﷺ should not be compared to any other leader of the world in memory of whom a particular day relating to his life is celebrated and the matter ends there. Every day of our lives is a day to celebrate the memory of the Prophet's life concerning everything we do or say, Allah sent him ﷺ to this world to serve as a complete model till the Day of Judgement.

We are not sincere in our Intentions

It is true that Seerah (biographical) meetings are held from place to place and speeches are delivered therein about the sacred life and practices of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. However good and appreciable this action may be in itself, it will not produce the desired effect in the heart of the doer of that action unless he is true and sincere in his intention. If the action is not based on sincere intentions it is fruitless. At times such actions may become harmful and even sinful. For example, how highly dignified is the prayer! It is an act of worship of Almighty Allah. The Qur'an and the Ahadith are full of its virtues and importance, this dignified worship goes waste, if anyone does it only to show it to the people, so that they may regard him as a very pious and righteous man. It is not only useless, but it is possible that such worship may attract punishment instead of reward. It is said in a Hadith:

من صلی یرائی فقد اشرك یالله

This means: He who prays only to show his praying to the people, commits the grievous sin of attributing a partner to Allah.

This is quite obvious, because he is not praying to please Allah, but he is praying to please the people and to impress upon them that he is a pious and righteous man. It is just as if he has made someone a partner in the Divinity of Allah. An action so virtuous and elevated as prayer became a sin for want of sincerity of intention.

The same applies to those who arrange and take part in assemblies held for having discourses and speeches on the sacred life of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It is no doubt an act of great virtue and reward which may produce revolutionary results, if such assemblies are arranged and attention in right earnest and, true intention, sincerity of purpose and warmth of faith. If there is a man or a group that participates in Seerah (Biography of the Prophet ﷺ) Assemblies and processions, devoid of sincere intentions but prompted only by some hidden, worldly purposes and not in honour of and obedience to him ﷺ in whose sacred name these celebrations are being staged, then all this is a bad bargain. To all appearance these activities are very righteous deeds, but in reality they are sins incurring Allah's wrath and punishment.

Adultrated intentions

If we review our attitude and activities from this angle of vision to find if the gatherings we are holding and the celebrations we are staging on the twelfth of Rabi'ul-Awwal are to please Allah and follow the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and to make his teachings the guiding light of our lives, the result will be disappointing. There may be a few sincere persons attending these functions to reform their lives, but on the whole, the intention of holding these glamourous shows is something else. Some local groups usually arrange for purposes other than religion. There may be a group participating in these celebrations, so that people may praise the grandeur illumination and the number of the audience, the number of the speakers taking part and their formal high worded, well-prepared speeches eleciting applause from the listeners. At places assemblies may be held to gain some political advantage or some sectarian attainment, not possible to attain it through open and direct approaches to the public. The general practice on such occasions is to open the meetings with a few words devoted to the topic of the prophet's ﷺ biography then to shoot, accusations and charges against the rival parties or sects in cleverly concealed words. These assemblies are held, in general, for such irreligious and mundane purposes.

The functions are attended to please the friends

The form and method of these celebrations would have been totally different had they been intended to sincerely seek guidance from them. These birthday celebrations take the form of private functions in which invitation cards are issued and displeasure is expressed against those who do not attend the functions held in the name of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Those attending these functions do not do so out of love for the Prophet ﷺ, but they participate in such functions only to avoid resentment and complains of the patrons of the function arranged to please men and the society and not Allah and His Prophet ﷺ.

Enjoying the oratory and force of the orator's speeches

Sometimes a person attends this function to enjoy the exciting speech of a famous speaker because he is renowned for his firy and thrilling speeches. In short, this gentleman is going to attend the birthday Assembly only to satisfy his lust for enjoying the sophisticated, well studied speeches and not to take any useful lessons from the sacred life of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

Just to while away spare time

Some people attend seerah assemblies for no purpose other than whiling away their spare time in listening to speeches, enjoying the lights and decoration and thus having a good time. It is obvious that a good number of men attending these auspicious assemblies have no special interest in listening to the speeches and learning lesson from the sacred sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ projected in these assemblies. They attend them, as mentioned above, to satisfy their own desires. Although even while attending these gathering, in such a carefree and amusing mood, a man may be moved by some word or point and his life may be reformed, yet this happens in very exceptional cases. People in general do not participate in the gatherings with sincere intention to learn lessons from the life of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

The Prophet's life guides those whom Allah wills

The Holy Qur'an declares:

لَقَدْ كَانَ لَكُمْ فِيْ رَسُوْلِ اللهِ اُسْوَةٌ حَسَنَةٌ

You have a beautiful model in the Prophet ﷺ of Allah. (33:21)

In the light of this Qur'anic verse, it may be emphasized that the Prophet's sacred life is a beacon of light, a message of guidance and a complete, flawless model. It is, however, a beautiful model only for such people as desire to please Almighty Allah, have unflinching belief in the Hereafter and want to ameliorate their Hereafter, and are busy most often with the remembrance of Allah. So the Prophet's life is a message of guidance only for those who are endowed with these attributes and qualities. There is no guarantee that the Prophet's life will prove a guiding light also for those who are devoid of these qualities, particularly, belief in the Hereafter and a desire to reform and beautify it. The light of the Prophet shone brightly even before Abu Jahl and Abu Lahab, but they could not receive any benefit from that light.

بران که درلطافت طبعش خلاف نیست
درباغ لاله روید و در شوره بوم و خس

This persian couplet means: The rain-water has the same refreshing and reviving properties, but in the gardens it brings out the beautiful crimson tulip flowers but it brings out the useless, thorny shrubs in the saline, barren lands. The meaning of this couplet applies with equal force to these two wretched infidels into whose hearts the light of the Prophet's life could not penetrate, as they neither believed in, nor had they any desire to prepare for their Hereafter, nor to please Allah. What effect can the discourse about the sacred life of the Holy Prophet ﷺ have on such errant and hard-hearted persons?

Most often we are not sincere and true in our intentions in organising these assemblies and the birthday celebrations. The result of all this is that no change for the better takes place in our lives even after listening to thousands of speeches on the Prophet's life and after attending thousands of gatherings held in the month of Rabi'ul Awwal in every nook and corner of the country. The temptation to commit sins and enjoy worldly pleasures is not at all eradicated or even reduced through these celebrations.

A Fun is being made of the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

Moreover, during these assemblies held on the subject of the Prophet's life we indulge in activities which are totally opposed to the injunctions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. This is nothing but making a fun of the Sunnah, the teachings and the guidance of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. These are topics on which we are delivering, and listening to, and attending full-throated speeches, without paying any serious attention to them.

Seerat Assemblies and the violation of Purdah

It is an increasing practice in our society that male and female joint gatherings are held on the topic of Seerah. This is being done in flagrant violation of the command of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The command lays down that if women have to offer prayer they should do this in their houses instead of going to mosque. Even in the house women have been commanded to pray not in the courtyard, but in a room, rather in a separate small room. This is the command of the Holy Prophet ﷺ about Purdah, but in an assembly held to talk about his life and Sunnah men and women are present side by side. None feels how fun is being made of the Seerah Assemblies. Women are participating in the assemblies alongwith men with glamorous make-up, in attractive dresses and without Purdah.

Music in Seerah assemblies

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said that one of the important duties for the sake of which he ﷺ was sent to this world was the total eradication of music and the forms of musical instruments. What an irony of fate it is that meetings are held in the name of seerah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ in which his praise "Na't" is sung to the accompaniment of musical instruments along with Qawwali "Shareef " (a special musical performance of the mystics). This Qawwali is called "Shareef " meaning pious. No difference is made between the songs sung in praise of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and song on other worldly themes. What a greater fun one can make of the sacred, theme of the Holy Prophet ﷺ! More than this, both men and women are taking part in the Radio and Television Seerah programmes together with female partners with highly attractive make-up, showy attires and without Purdah. Is she not the same women about whom the Qur'an has said?

وَلَا تَبَرَّجْنَ تَبَرُّجَ الْجَاهِلِيَّةِ الْأُولَىٰ (سورة الاحزاب: ٣٣)

That is, do not display your features (before men) as you used to display in the early days of Ignorance.

What a greater wrong and disrespect can be done to the pious Na't (praise) and Seerah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that such ornately prepared women are taking part in these Seerah celebrations by delivering speeches and singing Na't along with males. You are in a great delusion if you think that this behaviour and conduct on your part will attract Allah's mercy. You are trying to efface the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, to violate his teachings and ridiculing his sacred Seerah. These are sins which can invite only Allah's wrath and punishment. While holding the Seerah meetings and making speeches on his Sunnah, we flagrantly violate and disobey the Prophet's teachings. May Allah guide us on to the right path.

Missing Prayers during Seerah Assemblies

In the beginning only some rules of the Shari'ah were violated during participation in these Seerah gatherings and none minded this, but with the passage of time things have gone too far. People involved in managing these gatherings and listening to the speeches delivered therein forget to offer their prayers and miss them quite frequently. These gatherings with their programmes continue till two O'clock in the night and the Fajr prayer is missed deliberately. The injunctions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ about the importance of prayer are violated, although he ﷺ has emphasized in his injunctions that if a man who misses his one ʿAsr prayer is like one who loses all his property and all the members of his family: What a tremendous loss indeed! How strange it is that, we are busy with an apparently sacred programme concerning the Holy Prophet's life and at the same time we are freely violating his ﷺ imperative command regarding the protection and preservation of the obligatory Prayers!

Disturbing the Muslims through Seerah Gatherings

The Seerah programmes are in progress with only about two or three dozens of participant but a very big loud speaker has been installed which is transmitting the speeches of the speakers at its full volume disturbing all living in the surrounding area. This means that no sick, old or disabled person of the area can sleep as long as the programmes are going on. Was this the pious conduct of the Holy Prophet ﷺ?

When the Holy Prophet ﷺ got up at night for the Tahajjud prayer, as narrated by Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا he rose from his bedding very quietly, and opened the door also quietly, lest ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا should be awakened from her sleep. As for the Holy Prophet's behaviour in an obligatory duty like the Prayer, he ﷺ is reported to have said: When I hear during prayer a child weeping I shorten the prayer, lest by hearing the child's weeping his mother should be in distress. But look! What is being done in these Seerah celebrations. Such powerful loudspeakers are installed unnecessarily only for the sake of two to three dozen participants with the result that an old and sick person cannot sleep in his house peacefully. Those responsible for all this are ignorant of the fact that by so doing they are committing grievous and major sins, because to cause distress to a Muslim is a major sin. Yet nobody is mindful of this serious situation. (Nasaee. Book of ten women..... Hadith no: 3963)

Taking out processions in imitation of others

All these activities prove that we are not true in our intentions - which are concentrated on something other than adopting and acting upon the teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. As already mentioned, in the beginning our activities are confined only to holding gatherings and meetings at various places. Crossing this limit we have now gone ahead to the extent of taking out processions on the plea that such and such sect takes out processions in remembrance of the name of its Imam in a particular month. Why should we, too, not take out processions in Rabiʿul-Awwal in the name of our Prophet ﷺ? In other words, in taking out processions in the month of Rabiʿul-Awwal we are imitating the sect that takes out processions in the month of Muharram. By so doing we are only deluding ourselves into the belief that we are following the commands of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and are doing full justice to his ﷺ dignity and honour.

Would the Holy Prophet ﷺ appreciate the processions, if he ﷺ was ever to see them which are being taken out in his name? Our Holy Prophet ﷺ has always taught this Ummah to refrain from such formal and showy processions and demonstrations. He ﷺ has commanded us that instead of hankering after showy, useless and formal activities like these, we should resort to his sacred teachings and try to make them the guiding light of our lives. Nobody can point out a single instance from the pious lives of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم that they ever took out any procession in the month of Rabi'ul-Awwal or any other month of the year in the name of the Prophet's Seerah (biography). I at least have not come across even a single evidence during the history of this entire period of thirteen centuries which may prove that anyone ever took out such a profession. It is, however, true that the Shia community takes out processions in the month of Muharram in the name of their Imams. We also become tempted to take out processions in the name of our Prophet ﷺ in imitation of the Shi'as, in violation of this Hadith of the Prophet ﷺ.

من تشبه بقوم فهو منهم

(Abu Dawood,Book garments... Hadith no: 4031)

A man who tries to make resemblance with any community becomes one of them.

It is a pity that we have not confined our activities to taking out only processions. We have gone too far beyond that. Now we are making images of the sacred Ka'bah the sacred Rozah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ including the green dome. A large number of men, women and children visit these images and touch them with their hands for blessing and ask for boons there and vow offerings for some need and the fulfilment of some desire. And all this is in the name of the sacred Seerah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The Holy Prophet ﷺ was sent to this world to efface from the surface of the earth, apostasy, idolatry, Bid'ah, and ignorance, but today we have started all these innovations and sinful practices in the very name of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The image of the mausoleum of the Holy Prophet ﷺ which you have made with your own hands has absolutely no virtue in it. Yet this false and artificial image is being touched and kissed for blessings. May Allah save us from this.

Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ and the Hajr-e-Aswad

At the time of Kissing the Black stone Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ said:

O Black Stone! I know that you are nothing more than a piece of stone. By Allah, I would never have kissed you, if I had not seen the Holy Prophet ﷺ kissing you. I am kissing you only because I have seen the Holy Prophet ﷺ kissing you and because this is his Sunnah. (Sahih Bukhari chapter on Hajj - Black stone, Hadith no: 1597)

This is what Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ said to the Black Stone, but here we have made with our own hands a Green Dome, and an image of the Ka'bah which are regarded as a source of blessing and which are being kissed. This is reviving what the Holy Prophet ﷺ had uprooted. There is illumination, record-playing, musical entertainments and enjoyments. Festivals are held in the name of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. This is an excuse for turning the Deen (Faith) into a play and sport, which Satan has taught us to do. I appeal to you to have, for Allah's sake, mercy on your souls and do full justice to the dignity and honour of the Prophet's seerah. The Prophet's dignity and honour demand of us that we should try to mould our lives on the pattern of the Prophet's sacred practice.

For the sake of Allah change this practice

How many people attend these meetings with the intention that they shall change their practices according to the Sunnah? If they are deviating fifty of the Prophetic Practices after listning to these sermons they shall correct at least ten of them. Is there a single soul who changed himself like this? They are, however always ready to devote their time, effort and spend money to take out processions, stage festivals, erect arches and arrange illuminations, because they receive joy and satisfaction from such activities. On the other hand neither the Self nor Satan are pleased with the real conduct and course of life shown by the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

An Appeal

I appeal, in the name of Allah, to relinquish this misconduct and disobedience and do full justice to the dignity and honour of the Holy Prophet ﷺ by strictly following his teachings. May Almighty Allah help us all to follow the straight path of his sunnah. Aameen.

وآخر دعوٰنا ان الحمد لله رب العلمين

And we close with the call that the praise be to Allah, the Lord of the worlds.

Venue : Jame'Masjid Baitul Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi.

Date : Friday 21st February, 1992
After 'Asr Prayers.

Values and views have totally changed today. Now respected, honoured and worthy of public attention is he who has dignity, high status, high office and wealth. On the other hand, he, who is weak in worldly resources, poor and who belongs to a lower profession, has neither respect, nor honour, nor public attention; he is rather treated with contempt. Remember well that such conduct has nothing to do with Deen (Faith).

DO NOT DESPISE THE POOR

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيد نا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالىٰ عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم بسم لله الرحمٰن الرحيم

وَاصْبِرْ نَفْسَكَ مَعَ الَّذِيْنَ يَدْعُوْنَ رَبَّهُمْ بِالْغَدٰوةِ وَالْعَشِيِّ يُرِيْدُوْنَ وَجْهَهٗ وَلَا تَعْدُ عَيْنَاكَ عَنْهُمْ(سورة الكهف: ٢٨)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم وصدق رسوله النبى الكريم ونحن على ذلك من الشاهدين

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness and we believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Allah from the evils of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is no one to misguide whom Allah guides and there is no one to guide whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah Alone. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our authority, our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah have mercy on him, his household and on his Companions and bless them and send peace on them in great abundance.

Restrain yourself along with those who call their Lord in the morning and the evening seeking His countenance and let not your eyes overlook them. (18:28)

Allama Nuwawi رحمة الله عليه has framed another chapter, viz., "باب فضل ضعفة المسلمين والفقراء والخاملين" The subject of this chapter deals with the virtues of such Muslims as are financially and socially weak.

These people are not weak

The intention of touching this topic is to invite attention to a sad state of affairs, that people whom Almighty Allah has granted some status in worldly life, e.g., wealth, rank and fame, etc. generally look down upon the people in the lower class of the society and treat them with contempt. They are being told, as a warning, that they should not despise those who appear to be weak financially or bodily or in status. May be that such less privileged people are more respectable in the sight of Allah than those in the upper grade of the society. Allama Nuwawi رحمة الله عليه has, therefore, opened this chapter with a relevant verse of the Holy Qur'an:

وَاصْبِرْ نَفْسَكَ مَعَ الَّذِيْنَ يَدْعُوْنَ رَبَّهُمْ بِالْغَدٰوةِ وَالْعَشِيِّ يُرِيْدُوْنَ وَجْهَهٗ وَلَا تَعْدُ عَيْنٰكَ عَنْهُمْ (سورة الكف: ٢٨)

This verse has been addressed to the Holy Prophet ﷺ saying "Restrain yourself along with those who call their Lord in the morning and the evening, seeking His countenance and let not your eyes overlook them".

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is asked not to refrain from paying attention to those who are poor, low in status and who belong to the depressed classes of the society.

Who are the beloved of Allah?

There is no Muslim who is not aware of the intimate relations existing between Almighty Allah and the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He ﷺ is most beloved in the sight of Allah of all that is in the universe, so much so that the entire Qur'an abounds in his ﷺ praise. Allah has said:

اِنَّآ اَرْسَلْنٰكَ شَاهِدًا وَّمُبَشِّرًا وَّنَذِيْرًا ۙ وَّدَاعِيًا اِلَى اللّٰهِ بِاِذْنِهٖ وَسِرَاجًا مُّنِيْرًا ۝ (سورة الاحزاب: ٤٥، ٤٦)

"(O Prophet ﷺ!) We have indeed sent you as a witness and a bringer of good tidings and a warner; and a summoner to Allah by His permission and as an illuminating lamp. (33:45-46)

Whenever Almighty Allah decides to praise His beloved Prophet ﷺ, He is very generous in using beautiful words of praise.

A Loving Indifference

There are two or three places in the Holy Qur'an where Almighty Allah has expressed towards the Holy Prophet ﷺ a little, mild reproof in a lover's style, showing His disapproval of some action of the Prophet ﷺ. One of these is the incident mentioned in the 80th Surah of the Holy Qur'an. It so happened that once a few leaders of the unbelievers were on a visit to the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Considering that preaching Islam to them would be more profitable for the cause of Islam, he ﷺ became more attentive to them. In the meantime Hazrat Abdullah ibn Umme Maktoom also came to the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He was a blind Companion whom the Holy Prophet ﷺ had also appointed as a Muazzin of his mosque. He began to ask the Holy Prophet ﷺ some questions about some religious points. As he was the Prophet's follower he ﷺ ignored him for the moment and continued talking to the leaders of the unbelievers. The Prophet's ﷺ idea was that if these leaders embraced Islam their entire clans would become muslims. Almighty Allah did not appreciate this conduct of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and revealed this verse :

"عَبَسَ وَتَوَلّٰى اَنْ جَآءَهُ الْاَعْمٰى"

In this verse the Holy Prophet ﷺ has been addressed in the third person as:

He frowned and turned away, because the blind man came to him. (80:1-2)

(This shows that Allah did not appreciate this act of the Holy Prophet ﷺ).

Allah further said:

وَمَا يُدْرِيْكَ لَعَلَّهٗ يَزَّكّٰٓى ۝ اَوْ يَذَّكَّرُ فَتَنْفَعَهُ الذِّكْرٰى

What could make you (O Prophet ﷺ!)know that he might perhaps become reformed or take head, so the reminder night benefit him. (80:3-4)

اَمَّا مَنِ اسْتَغْنٰى فَاَنْتَ لَهٗ تَصَدّٰى ۝

As for him who thinks that he is independent, you pay attention to him. (80:5-6)

وَمَا عَلَيْكَ اَلَّا يَزَّكّٰى ۝

Yet, it is not the responsibility of your's if they (the leaders) do not reform themselves. (80:7)

وَاَمَّا مَنْ جَآءَكَ يَسْعٰى ۝ وَهُوَ يَخْشٰى ۝ فَاَنْتَ عَنْهُ تَلَهّٰى ۝

As for him who hurries up to you in right earnest and feels afraid, you are unmindful of him. (80:8-10).

The seeker (of guidance) has a preference

All this was a very mild reproof to the Holy Prophet ﷺ, as if from a lover to his beloved. It was never the intention of the Holy Prophet ﷺ to ignore the weak and the poor blind man in preference to the rich and powerful leaders of the unbelievers. The Holy Prophet ﷺ considered it better to attend to the leaders first to convey the Truth. His own blind, poor Companion could be attended later on. Yet Allah did not appreciate even this inattention and explained that the man who had come seeking guidance had a preference over the one who had come without no crave for knowledge.

Although these verses have been addressed to the Holy Prophet ﷺ yet through them the entire Ummah has been taught that they should not despise anyone who looks to be poor and weak, because no one knows that this poor man may enjoy a respectable place and position in the sight of Allah.

Who are the people of Paradise?

The first Hadith which Allama Nuwawi رحمة الله عليه has cited under this chapter is as follows:

عن حارثة بن وهب رضى الله عنه قال" سمعت رسول الله صلى عليه وسلم يقول الا اخبر كم باهل الجنة؟ كل ضعيف متضعف لو اقسم على الله لا بره الا اخبر كم باهل النار؟ كل عتل جواظ مستكبر" (صحيح بخارى، كتاب الادب، باب البر، حديث نمبر ٦٠٧١)

(Sahih Bukhari, Book of Etiquettes; Kibr (pride), Hadith no: 6071.

Addressing the Noble Companions, the Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said: Should I not tell you who are the people of Paradise ? Then he ﷺ himself said in reply: Every one who is weak, financially or bodily or weak in rank and status and the people of the world also look down upon such a person yet that weak person may be so beloved in the sight of Allah that if he takes an oath for anything, Allah fulfils his oath. In other words, if he swears that this and this shall happen Allah, by His mercy, shall cause that to happen as desired by the weak and low person, because he is Allah's beloved. Allah rewards His love in this way.

Almighty Allah fulfils their oath

It Occurs in a Hadith that once two women fought with each other and one of them broke a tooth of the other. According to the Islamic Shari'ah judgment was passed that a tooth of the criminal should also be broken. On hearing this punishment the guardian of the criminal uttered these words in the presence of the Holy Prophet ﷺ:

والذى بعثك بالحق لاتكسر ثنيها

(I swear by Him who has sent you with the truth that her tooth shall not be broken).

The guardian of the criminal did not mean to object to the Holy Prophet's judgment, nor was he malicious in any way. He uttered these words, depending on Allah's Omnipotence that circumstances might arise suddenly in which the judgment might not be executed. As the man did not utter those words by way of an objection to the Prophet's ﷺ judgment the Prophet ﷺ did not feel offended at his words.

Retaliation has been prescribed in Islam: tooth for tooth, eye for eye subject to the condition that if the person wronged or his guardians forgive the wrongdoer, then retaliation will be waived. It so happened in this case that the woman whose tooth was broken agreed to forgive the offender so it was not executed. On that occasion the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Some men are dearly loved by Allah, yet outwardly they are in bad condition; with dishevelled hair, are so weak and repulsive that if they call at anyone's door, they shall be driven out by force. They are, however, so honourable in the sight of Allah that if they take an oath, Allah will fulfil for them their oath. This is also one such favoured person that he swore that the tooth of the criminal would not be broken and Allah fulfiled the oath by inducing the woman wronged to forgive the criminal and give up retaliation. (Sahih Bukhari, book of Compromise.. ransom Hadith no: 2703)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has referred in the Hadith to the same point, viz., there is a man apparently weak and depressed, but he is pious and righteous, closely attached to Allah and deeply devoted to Him. Such a man is so dear to Allah that if he takes an oath for anything Allah fulfils his oath, such persons are the habitants of Paradise.

Who are the people of Hell?

Thereafter the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Should I not tell you who are the people of Hell? Then he ﷺ said:

"كل عتل جواظ مستكبر"

A person who is ill-tempered, ill-mannered and talks very rudely and is never polite in speech is generally seen in angry mood, and despises others, and has other vices is called "عتل" (utual)'. The other word is "جواظ" (Jawwaz) which means a person who is fussy highly irritable and has a frowning face, too haughty to talk to ordinary people. He regards it an insult to talk to those who are weak, poor and depressed and low in rank and position. He always remains in a proud mood. The third word is مستكبر (Mustakbir) which means a person who is arrogant and thinks that he is far superior to others. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said that people having these evil traits are inmates of Hell.

The people who possess great excellence

In this Hadith it has been pointed out that people should never look down upon those who are poor and in lower grades of the society, because they have great excellence and value in the sight of Allah. The community of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم who embraced Islam at the hand of the Holy Prophet ﷺ consisted of persons of different economic and social status. Their majority came from the poorer classes, yet they attended the Prophet's assemblies without any discrimination shown to them. On one side sat highly affluent Companions رضی اللہ عنہم like Hazrat Abdur-Rahman bin 'Auf رضی اللہ عنہ and Hazrat Usman Ghani رضی اللہ عنہ and on the other side sat poor companions like Hazrat Bilal, Hazrat Salman, the Persian and Hazrat Suhaib Rumi رضی اللہ عنہم who frequently suffered from Hunger.

These starving People!

Once the unbelievers of Makkah told the Holy Prophet ﷺ that they were prepared to call upon him and listen to him but they were prevented from doing this because he was always surrounded by poor and starving persons. They said that to sit along with such degraded persons was below their dignity and status. They proposed that they should be invited to see him ﷺ in separate meetings. There was apparently no harm in accepting their request in the interest of Islam. As it involved a point of principle, Allah did not approve of such a proposal and revealed the following verse :-

وَلَاتَطْرُدِ الَّذِيْنَ يَدْعُوْنَ رَبَّهُمْ بِالْغَدٰوةِ وَالْعَشِيِّ يُرِيْدُوْنَ وَجْهَهٗ (سورة الانعام: ٥٢)

Do not repel those who invoke their Lord morning and evening, seeking His countenance. (6:52)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ, therefore announced that if they (the unbelievers) were desirous to seek and find the truth, they would have to sit with the general public for the purpose. If they did not like to sit with poor classes, they, should know that Allah and His Messenger ﷺ are in no need of them. Separate meetings would not be held for them. (Sahih Muslim, Book of the superiority of the companions....)

The followers of the Prophets علیہم السلام

The other Messengers in the past also faced the same situation and the unbelievers of their days made similar remarks:

وَمَانَرٰكَ اتَّبَعَكَ اِلَّاالَّذِيْنَ هُمْ اَرَاذِلُنَا بَادِيَ الرَّأْيِ (سورة هود: ٢٧)

We see that it is only the most degraded ones among us who follow you, without reflection. (11:27)

It means: "How can we follow you, as we are wise and highly dignified and noble persons?" Almighty Allah told them that whom they regarded mean, weak, poor and helpless, had great respect and status with Allah, so they should not be despised and looked down upon. A question of principle is involved here. It was not possible that the unbelievers should be accorded preference on account of their wealth, leadership and worldly possessions. This is a principle on which no compromise was to be made. Those believing servants of Allah enjoyed great status in the sight of Allah, in spite of their apparent conditions of weakness, poverty and disgrace.

Hazrat Zahir رضی اللہ عنہ

Sometimes a villager called upon the Holy Prophet ﷺ. His name was Zahir رضی اللہ عنہ. He was a rustic fellow, black - Complexioned and very much depressed financially. He had no respect and regard among the people. The Holy Prophet ﷺ had great affection for him. Once while passing through the market, the Holy Prophet ﷺ saw Hazrat Zahir رضی اللہ عنہ standing there. Who will take notice of a black, poor and unimportant villager, standing in a market in tattered clothes. When the Holy Prophet ﷺ passed through the market, ignoring everything he approached Hazrat Zahir رضی اللہ عنہ from the back and closing his arms round Hazrat Zahir رضی اللہ عنہ he blind folded his eyes with his hands - a kind of joke which intimate friends often make with one another. Finding himself in this grip, Hazrat Zahir رضی اللہ عنہ tried to liberate himself from this, not knowing who was behind him. The Holy Prophet ﷺ, then pronounced these words loudly as the hawkers generally do:

من یشتری العبد؟
غلام کون خریدے گا؟

(Who will purchase the slave?)

As Hazrat Zahir رضی اللہ عنہ did not know who had held him from behind he was trying to liberate himself from the grip. When he came to know that the person holding him was the Holy Prophet ﷺ then, instead of liberating him from the grip, he began to press his waist closer and closer to the sacred body of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and the following words spontaneously escaped from his mouth.

O Messenger of Allah! If you sell me as a slave a very scanty price will be offered for me, because I am a very ordinary and poor man, having no value. What a wonderful sentence the Holy Prophet ﷺ spoke in reply!

"لکن عند اللہ لست بکاسد"

O Zahir, whatever value the people may place on you. Your value in the sight of Allah is not little, it is great. Now consider there are many rich and successful businessmen in the market rolling in millions but ignoring them all, the Holy Prophet ﷺ met Hazrat Zahir رضی اللہ عنہ to please him. He ﷺ gave him glad tidings and behaved with him freely and informally as two intimate friends behave with each other. (Musnad Ahmad, vol.3, p.161)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ used to make the following supplication (Du'a)

اَللّٰھُمَّ اَحْیِنِیْ مِسْکِیْنًا وَّاَمِتْنِیْ مِسْکِیْنًا وَّاحْشُرْنِیْ فِیْ زُمْرَۃِ الْمَسٰکِیْنِ

(ترمذی، کتاب الذھد، باب ماجاء ان فقراً المھا جرین یدخلون الجنہ قبل انمنیاء ھم حدیث نمبر ۲۳۵۲)

O Allah let me live as a poor man and let me die as a poor man and raise me to life (in the Hereafter) among the poor. (Tirmidhi... Hadith no: 2352)

The position of a servant in the Prophet's sight

Today values and conceptions have totally changed. Today the respected, honoured is one who occupies a high position and is wealthy. On the other hand he who lacks in worldly resources, is weak and depressed, is disgraced and despised. Remember that a man who behaves with the poor and the weak in this way has no share in Deen (Faith).

Sometime we do recite with our tongues this verse:

اِنَّ اَكْرَمَكُمْ عِنْدَاللهِ اَتْقَاكُمْ (الحجرات:١٣)

Indeed, the noblest of you, in the sight of Allah is the best in conduct: (49:13)

It is regrettable that in actual practice we do not follow the principle laid down in this verse How do you talk to your own servants and the beggars who knock at your doors for alms? Do you try to solace them and please them or do you despise them? do you act upon the Ahadith on this subject? It is very dangerous to misbehave and despise the weak and the poor. May Allah protect us from this sin:

عن ابى سعيد الخدرى رضى الله عنه عن النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم
قال احتجت الجنة والنار فقالت النار فى الجبارون والمتكبرون
قالت الجنة فى ضعفاء الناس ومَسكينهم فقضى الله بينها انك الجنة
رحمتى ارحم بك من اشاء وانّك النار اعذب بك من اشاء ولكليكما
على ملؤها (صحيح مسلم، كتاب جالجنة، باب النريد خلها الجبارون، حديث نمبر ٢٨٤٧)

(Sahih Muslim. book of Paradise Hadith no: 2847)

A debate between Paradise and Hell

The above Hadith said:

Hazrat Abu Saeed Khudri رضى الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: A debate once took place between Paradise and Hell (as to which of the two is superior). Hell said: I am higher in dignity because I shall accommodate great tyrants and proud people, including the rich and the high placed dignitaries. In reply paradise said: I shall accommodate the weak and the poor. Both were proud of their inmates. Allah judged between them. He addressed Paradise, saying: You are Paradise, the token and target of my mercy. Through you shall I send down my mercy on whom I please. Addressing Hell Allah said: You are Hell, the token and target of my wrath and punishment. Through you shall I send down my punishment on whom I displease. I promise that I shall fill both of you. I shall fill Paradise with those on whom I send down My mercy and shall fill Hell with those on whom I send down my punishment. May Allah protect us from Hell and qualify us for Paradise! Aameen.

How could Paradise and Hell talk?

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has described the details of a debate between Paradise and Hell. A question arises how two inanimates can debate and argue with each other. It is quite possible that a dialogue actually took place between the two. Paradise and Hell both are Allah's creation and Allah has the power to grant each of them power to speak. People are surprised to know that even such things, as have no tongues, can speak. They should consider how man is able to speak; who has given him the power of speech? It is Allah who has bestowed upon man speaking power. Even stone, a tree or the earth, can speak, if Allah allowes them the same speaking power.

The limbs will speak on the Day of Judegment?

Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه was once on a journey when a gentleman with modern education met him. He expressed doubt about the truth of the Qur'anic verse or some Hadith which states that human limbs will speak on the day of Judgment. The Qur'an says that the hand, the leg, etc. will bear witness that they were used in committing such and such sin. How will they be able to speak? Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه told him that they will speak by Allah's power; Allah has absolute power to do what ever He likes. The gentleman asked if any example was available ? Did this ever happen? He was told by the saint that it is not necessary that there should be an example of every phenomenon. The gentleman insisted on being given some example of this possibility. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه explained to him, by way of an example, that the tongue is only a piece of flesh, yet it speaks though it has no tongue of itself. It speaks only with the power of speech bestowed upon it by Allah. In the same way any limb, or for that matter, any thing, can speak if Allah grants it the power of speech.

Anyway, the debate between Paradise and Hell related by the Holy Prophet ﷺ may be a total truth that the two will actually speak to each other or it may have been related by him ﷺ only as an allegory - both are possible.

[Translator's Note: If we look closely into Allah's creation and keep our mind's eyes and ears open we can easily discern the truth of many things stated in the Qur'an and the Prophet's Ahadith which appear to be impossible. Take, for example, the faculty of speech. We have seen people born quite sound with their tongues but devoid the power of speech. Similarly, some malady inflicts a man and his power of speech is taken away and he remains dumb for the rest of his life. These phenomena demonstrate Allah's absolute ability to do anything, as the Qur'an has said at many places: على كل شئى قدير Allah has indeed power to do every thing.]

Hell will be filled with the proud people

Anyway, Hell will be filled with the proud men who used to display their superiority and behaved with their fellow - men with arrogance, despised them and talked proudly about themselves.

Paradise will be filled with the weak and the poor

Paradise will be filled with the weak and the poor who were in their worldly life to be weak, modest and poor, Paradise will have for its inmates those who behaved with others with leniency, modesty and humility.

Allah does not like Arrogance

Allah shall fill Hell with the arrogants, because arrogants are those who display their superiority over others, consider themselves to be great and others to be inferior and low in status. Allah does not appreciate this pride and arrogance even for a single moment. It is narrated that Allah has said:

"الكبرياء ردائى فمن نازعنى فيه قذفته فى النار (ابو داؤد، كتاب اللباس باب ماجاء فى الكبر حديث نمبر ٤٠٩)

(Abu Dawud. Bk. of garment - Kibr Hadith no: 409)

This means: Greatness is my cloak. I shall throw him into the fire who disputes with Me about this. This pride is indeed an evil which drives the sinner into Hell. May Allah protect us from this sin. This is so grievous a sin that it may be called the mother of sins and the root of evils. Many sins emanate from this single sin of pride. Once this sin takes root in a man, it involves him in all sorts of sins.

The Example of a Proud man

There is a wonderful and wise proverb the Arabic language in which a proud man has been compared to a man who is standing on the peak of a mountain and sees those at the foot who look to him smaller than he and at the same time those at the foot see the man at the peak smaller than they. When a proud man casts his glance at others, he will feel in his heart contempt for them. It is a major sin to look down upon a believer, even upon a nonbeliever. May Allah save us from this. Aameen. Thus a proud man despises others and the greater the number of the persons he despises, the larger will be the number of the major sins recorded in his character roll.

Whenever a proud man talks to others, he talks in such a harsh tone as hurts the heart. It is a sin to hurt the heart of a Muslim.

Do not despise even an unbeliever

It is also a sin to despise even an unbeliever, because who knows that Allah may, by His mercy, help the unbeliever to embrace Islam, and he may become a better believer than you. So even an unbeliever should not be despised. It is only the sin of disbelief that should be despised. You may have in your heart contempt for sin and disobedience, but not the hater and the sinner. Sometime a man may not be able to realize whether he is despising the sin or he is despising the sinner and the disbeliever. One learns this fine difference by adopting the company of saintly persons.

Modesty of Maulana Ashraf Ali رحمة الله عليه

What to say of ourselves, even the Maulana رحمة الله عليه has said about himself:

> "I consider myself to be inferior to every Muslim in his present state of belief and to an unbeliever > with regard to his final fate. In other words, I regard myself inferior to a Muslim in his present condition of being a believer and inferior to an unbeliever, because, it is just possible that the unbeliever may turn a Muslim in the future and become a better Muslim than me."

Pride and faith cannot go together

Pride and belief cannot go together, when pride enters the heart of a man - God forbid, sometime it becomes difficult for him to protect his Iman (faith) Was it not pride that drove Iblis (Satan) into ruin and destruction? He thought that he was created out of fire and Adam out of earth, thereby he fell a victim to the grievous sin of pride and despised Adam. He was, therefore, condemned for eternity. How dangerous is the sin of pride!

Pride is an inner disease

The Holy Prophet ﷺ, kind as he was to his Ummah, has taught them a very important lesson in a Hadith, saying that they should never go near pride. It is such a dangerous disease that the patient himself sometime does not realize that he is suffering from it. It is difficult for anyone to diagnose this inner disease. It is, therefore, necessary to attach oneself to some highly qualified spiritual guide for the diagnosis and treatment of this disease.

Spiritual training by a Sheikh is imperative

Under this institution a man attaches himself to some peer (spiritual Guide) and takes a pledge at his hand to lead a pious life. The disciple wrongly thinks that this action will prove to be blessed and the rehearsal of a few sacred words taught by the guide will be sufficient for salvation. The intention of going to a Pir or a Reformer is to obtain cure from the inner diseases at the top of which is the grievous disease of Pride. Exactly as we consult a physician or visit a hospital for the treatment of our bodily diseases. In the same way the Sheikh (Spiritual doctor) provides treatment for our inner or spiritual diseases. It is only a formality to place the hand on the hand of the Shaikh in token of having become his disciple, otherwise the objective is to get the inner disease diagnosed and treated by the Sheikh.

The treatment of spiritual Diseases

Another harmful feature of the society is the increasing use of amules (Ta'weez) charms which has been given the false name of spiritual Treatment. Just go to some 'Amil (dealer in Talisman and charms), purchase from him a Talisman and let him blow upon you after chanting some charm and you have received the spiritual Treatment. This is not spiritual treatment. The real spiritual treatment is to consult some righteous Sheikh for the treatment of your spiritual diseases, like pride, jealousy, malice, feeling of enmity, etc. It is the Sheikh who will correctly diagnose your spiritual disease and will, on the basis of his knowledge and experience, prescribe for you some easy treatment. To submit yourself to the Sheikh's treatment is called bai't (Pladge).

Hazrat Thanawi's method of Treatment

Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه laid great emphasis in treating the spiritual diseases of persons who visited him for such treatment. His method of treatment was based on sincere work and not on prescribing for them some doses of medicine in the form of some talisman or charm. For example, a man suffering from pride came to him the treatment prescribed for him was that he should arrange in the proper position the shoes of the namazis. The Sheikh did not prescribe for him any charm, rehearsal or counting something on beads.

Pride leads to Hell

May Allah save us from the disease of Pride. This disease creeps into the heart of man so secretly that most often he does not feel its presence. He thinks that he is quite sound in heart and soul, yet he is a patient of the disease of pride. True faith and pride cannot go together. Pride leads to Hell. It is, therefore, imperative that the patient of this disease should do his best to seek a speedy cure. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has issued a warning against this disease in the above Hadith:

Majority of the weak and the poor will be in Paradise

In the second part of this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said: Paradise is filled with the weak and the poor. In other words, among those who are near Allah are mostly, the poor and the needy, the down-grade people wearing very ordinary and cheap garments who attract nobody's attention. They harbour in their hearts feeling of Allah's greatness and love and His mercy descends on them. Such people form the majority of the habitants of Paradise.

The followers of the Prophets عليهم السلام were mostly the poor

Any one going through the Qur'an finds out that the followers of all the Prophets عليهم السلام sent to this world were the poor and weak people. That is why the idolaters refused to sit with this depressed class of people, consisting of fishermen, carpenters and other labour classes who were always surrounding the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The unbelievers claimed that, being highly dignified persons, they were not prepared to sit with these low class people.

These apparently depressed classes are the recipients of Allah's mercy and honour, not granted to others. Such people should never be looked down upon and treated as mean and depressed.

Who are the weak and the poor

Another point deserving attention in this Hadith is that the Holy Prophet ﷺ has used, two words "ضعفاء" (the weak) and "مساكين" (the poor). The word "ضعفاء" signify those who are weak physically, financially and socially. As for the word "مساكين" (poor). It has two shades of meaning, viz, (i) the poor men who have no money, and are needy and (ii) those who may or may not have money, but they are meek and mild in temperament and have no trace of pride in their hearts. This group lives among the poor people and has humility in their nature. A person who is assuming, simple and humble comes within the definition of the word "مساكين" (the poor).

Poverty (in the second sense) and affluence can go together

It should not be misconceived that a man who is well-to-do and has wealth is ordained to enter Hell. What is meant to say is that if Almighty Allah has conferred on any one the blessing of wealth, yet he is humble and mild in his temperament and not proud, behaves with others nicely and discharges fully the rights of Allah and those of His servants, then he too will be counted among the class of the Masakeen (in the second sense).

Poverty and "Maskanat" (humbleness) are two different things

In another Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has prayed to Allah as follows:

اللهم احينى مسكينا وامتنى مسكينا واحشرنى فى زمرة المسكين

(Tirmidhi book of Zahr Chapter on the poor emigrants entering Paradise before their rich men Hadith no: 3352)

O Allah! let me live as a poor man and die as a poor man, and raise me to life (in the Hereafter) in the group of the poor.

In another Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has prayed to Allah in the following words :

اللهم انى اعوذبك من الفقر (ابوداؤد ، كتاب الصلوة، باب الاستعاذة، حديث ١٥٤٤)

O Allah, I seek refuge with you from poverty and want. (Abu Dawod, book of Salah Hadith no: 1544)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ sought refuge with Allah from poverty but prayed for maskanat (humbleness). This shows that this maskanat is something other than want, poverty and starvation. As mentioned earlier, Maskanat means modesty in temperament and natural disposition and nice behaviour with the poor. If this humbleness and leniency of character and conduct are born in anyone's heart he will be entitled to the rewards mentioned in this Hadith:

Allah's Judgment between Paradise and Hell

At the end of the Hadith Allah has given His judgment between Paradise and Hell thus: He said to Paradise: You are the token of my mercy, Through you I shall bestow my mercy on whom I please. He said to Hell: You are the token of my punishment. Through you I shall punish him whom I please. I shall fill Paradise and Hell both with men because both types of men are found in the world those who deserve Paradise through their good deeds and also those who deserve Hell by dint of their bad deeds. May Allah include us among the men of Paradise.

A pious man did not laugh during his entire lifetime

There was a pious man who was known to have never laughed during his entire lifetime, nor was even a smile ever appear on his face. He was always seen pining with some anxiety. When asked about the reason for this condition of his life, his reply was:

I have read in a Hadith that some of Allah's creatures are such whom He has created for Paradise and some others whom He has created for Hell. I do not know to which group I belong. How can I laugh, unless I know that I belong to the group of Paradise? This is the anxiety that is always pressing upon me.

How can a believer sleep?

Some saint has composed this couplet:

وكيف . تنام العين وهى قريرة
ولم تدر فى اى المحلين تنزل

That is, how can a believer's eye sleep with coolness and comfort, unless it knows which of the two places (Paradise or Hell) is its final resort?

He smiled at the time of death

Thus, the pious man mentioned above did not laugh during the whole of his life. Observers say that while dying, as soon as his soul was taken out of his body there was smile on his face because it was on that day that he came to know the group for which Allah had created him: it was certainly the group destined for Paradise.

A life of negligence

How one who cares for the Hereafter can sleep peacefully when he does not know if he belongs to the people of Paradise or the Ones of Hell. It is also Allah's kindness to us that He does not allow such an anxiety to dominate everyone,otherwise the entire work and administration of the world would be disturbed and upset. So Allah does not make such extreme cases of anxiety a regular feature. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has warned his Ummah at many places against negligence which prevents them from thinking which course - right or wrong - they are taking. They are advised to consider from time to time whether the path they are following leads to Paradise or to Hell. They should also keep a vigilant eye on their acts and deeds. May Almighty Allah include us all in the group which He has created for Paradise. Aameen.

Do not be proud of physical health, strength and beauty

عن ابى هريرة رضى الله تعالى عنه عن رسول الله ﷺ قال انه ليأتى الرجل العظيم السمين يوم القيامة لايزن عند الله جناح بعوضة

(Sahih Bukhari, book of Tafsir of Surah Kahf... Hadith no: 4829)

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضى الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: On the Day of Judgment a great man will be brought fat and bulky in body, yet he will not be equal in weight even to the wings of a mosquito.

This entire worldly pomp and power, this physical strength and health and beauty will be of no avail in the Hereafter. This is because the man, inspite of all his greatness, power and beauty, did not work during his worldly life to please Almighty Allah; so he has not the least value in the sight of Allah. The intention of this Hadith is also to emphasize that man should not feel proud of his apparent beauty, health and strength, his wealth and status, as these worldly gifts may not be of any value in the sight of Allah. The real value lies in assuring that a man's deeds are righteous and he is following the path shown by Allah and His Prophet ﷺ.

The woman who used to sweep the Prophet's ﷺ mosque

وعنه رضى الله عنه ان امرأة سوداء كانت تقم المسجد او شابا ففقدها او فقده رسول الله صلى عليه وسلم فسأل عنها أ و عنه فقالوا! مات قال افلا كنتم آذنتمونى به فانهم صغروا امرها اوامره فقال دلونى على قبره فدلوة فصلى عليه ثم قال ان هذه القبور مملوة ظلمة على اهلها وان ينور لهم بصلا تى عليهم (صحيح بخارى، كتاب الجنائز، باب الصلاة على القبر بعد مايدفن، حديث نمبر ١٣٣٣٧)

(Sahih Bukahri. book of funerals. chapter on salat. Hadith no: 13337)

In this Hadith Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضى الله عنه has related an incident which occured during the days of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He has narrated that there was a black woman who used to sweep the Prophet's mosque from time to time. The Holy Prophet ﷺ did not see that woman for sometime and asked his noble Companions رضى الله عنهم about her. Look! How the Holy Prophet ﷺ remembered that black woman and felt for her! The Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم replied that she has passed away. The Holy Prophet ﷺ complained to them that they did not inform him of her death. The Companions did not say anything in reply but it appeared from their attitude that they regarded that woman too ordinary to tell the Holy Prophet ﷺ about her death. The Holy Prophet ﷺ then asked the Companions رضى الله عنهم the way to her grave which he visited along with the Companions and offered there her funeral prayer.

The Injunction about offering funeral (Janazah) prayer on graves

The general injunction about funeral prayers is that if anyone's funeral prayer has been offered, then it is not lawful to offer the funeral prayer again at the grave of the dead. If a dead body has been buried without funeral prayer, the order of the Shari'ah prescribes that funeral prayer may be offered at the grave before the body has not become decomposed. It is not lawful to offer funeral prayer at the grave when as much time has passed as the body takes to decmpose.

Graves are cells of Darkness

The Holy Prophet ﷺ offered funeral prayer at the grave of that women as a special tribute to her and to show this to the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم. After having offered the funeral prayer, he ﷺ is reported to have said: The graves are filled with darkness, but by the blessings of my prayer Allah illuminates these graves, by His mercy.

Do not despise anyone

The Holy Prophet ﷺ did all this to warn the people that it was not good to despise any man or woman and to consider him or her worthless, simply because he or she had no status and standing from the worldly point of view. This was because none knows what rank he or she occupies in the sight of Allah.

ہر بیشہ گماں مبر کہ خالیست
شاید کہ پلنگ خفتہ باشد

This Persian couplet means:

Do not think about every forest that it is empty. It may be that a tiger is sleeping there.)

If a man is in a depressed and down-trodden state do not think that he is of no worth because he may possibly have a great value in the sight of Allah.

The people with their dishevelled hair !

وعنه قال قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم رب اشعث مدفوع بالا
بواب لواقسم على الله لابره (صحيح مسلم كتاب البروالصلة باب اوضعفاء والخاملين حديث نمبر ٢٦٢٢)

(Sahih Muslim, Book on charity-the weak Hadith no: 2622)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said: There are many people with dishevelled and uncombed hair on their heads. Their bodies and faces are dusty, as they earn their livelihood by hard labour. They command no respect anywhere in the world and are likely to be turned out by force if they visit any house. They are worthless from the worldly point of view, but if they swear by Allah about anything, Allah shall fulfil their oaths. That is, if they say an oath, that such and such thing shall be done, Allah, by His grace and power, does that thing. If they swear by Allah that such and such thing will not happen, Allah stops the execution of that thing.

Our Behaviour with the poor

All these Ahadith show that we should not judge the value of anyone by his outer appearance and condition.

We admit and declare verbally that all Muslims are brothers, high and low, poor and rich, are equal before Allah and that the poor and the deprived have great value in the sight of Allah. Do we keep these principles in view when we actually deal with them? Do we follow these golden rules in dealing with our servants, our subordinates, and the poor and depressed persons whom we happen to come across during our daily lives? What actually happens is that we preach and listen to the golden principles of behaviour but we forget them in our actual practices and dealings.

Hazrat Thanawi's رحمة الله عليه behaviour with his servant

Take mindful notice of the stories of those favoured saints Allah grants the ability to comply with these rules.

Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Sahib رحمة الله عليه had a servant, named Niaz who was called "Brother Niaz" by all who visited the saint's convent. He was very intimate and informal servant of the Maulana. While serving the saint and being too close to him all the time, he had developed in him an informal attitude. Sometime he became harsh with the visitors. A visitor one day complained to the saint that "Brother Niaz" was rude with him. Such complaints against him had reached the saint earlier also. The saint called and scolded him for his rude behaviour with his guests. The servant at once retorted very arrogantly: Hazrat do not tell a lie and fear Allah. See how a servant is uttering such words to his own master who was the renowned saint! It is believed that the servant wanted to tell the saint that the complaint was false and the complainants had told lies. They should fear Allah. However, in a fit of confusion he used wrong words. See, how the great saint reacted to the servant's reply. The saint bent down his head and uttered these words استغفر الله، استغفر الله (I seek Allah's forgiveness).

He observed the limits laid down by Allah. The saint then said later on that he was mistaken as he began to scold the servant on hearing only one side of the sotry, whereas according to the rules of the shari'ah a judge should pass judgment on hearing both parties, which the saint forgot to follow and passed his judgment against the servant without hearing his explanation. The saint said that he was mistaken and when he was advised by the servant to fear Allah he had no alternative but to beg Allah's forgiveness by uttering: استغفرالله استغفر الله

These are people about whom it has been said: كان وقافا عندحدود الله (He observes the limits laid down by Allah). Thus, the lesson we learn from these incidents is that we should all behave properly with our servants, and subordinates and never despise them. May Allah protect us from this sin. Aameen.

Those who shall enter Paradise and Hell

وعن اسامة رضى الله عنه عن النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم قال قمت على باب الجنة فاذا عامة من دخلها المساكين واصحاب الجد محبوسون غير اصحاب النار قد امربهم الى النار وقمت على باب النار فاذا عامة من دخلها النساء (صحيح بخارى كتاب لاتأذن المرأة فى بيت زوجها لأحد الاباذنه حديث نمبر ٥١٩٦)

(Sahih Bukhari - Kitab Nikah.... Hadith no: 5196)

Hazrat Usamah رضى الله عنه was a favourite Companion رضى الله عنه of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He was the son of Hazrat Zaid Bin Harith, رضى الله عنه an adopted son of the Prophet ﷺ. In other words, he was an adopted grand son of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: I was standing at the gate of Paradise... (This might have been during Mi'raj (the Ascension), because on that occasion the Holy Prophet ﷺ was taken to see Paradise and Hell. Or it might have been on some other occasion during a vision Allah knows better. I saw that the people of Paradise belonged mostly to the humble and the poor classes. I also saw that those who were regarded in the world as fortunate. Prosperous, wealthy and high placed in their worldly lives were detained at the gate of Paradise and could not enter it. It may mean two things; either they were entitled to enter Paradise, but were subject to stern reckoning of their deeds after clearing which they could enter Paradise. Therefore, they were detained at the door. Some of them had been ordained to enter Hell. The Prophet ﷺ went on saying: Standing at the gate of Hell I saw that the majority of the inmates of Hell were women.

The poor will be in Paradise

This Hadith has two parts. It is said in the first part that most people in Paradise appeared to be from among the poor classes as has already been mentioned. The poor class does not necessarily include only the needy but it also includes those who are humble by their nature and temperament.

Why will women be in Hell more in number?

The other part of the Hadith tells that the majority of the inmates of Hell appeared to be women.

Addressing women, the Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said in another Hadith:

انى اريتكن اكثر اهل النار

(Musnad Ahmad, vol. 2, p. 67)

I was shown that you form the major part of the inmates of Hell. It appears from this that the number of the female will be greater than that of its male dwellers in the Hell. This, however, never means that a women shall enter Hell only for being a women. That is not so. In another Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned the reason for this. While addressing women. He ﷺ is reported to have said: Women form a greater part of the population of Hell. When the women asked the reason for this. The Holy Prophet ﷺ mentioned two reasons for this, He (Prophet ﷺ) said: You frequently indulge in cursing and defaming one another on small and trivial issues. Women are more involved to these vices than men:

Ingratitude to Husbands

The other reason for this is. You are very ungrateful to your husbands. Your husbands try their best to please you with their hard-earned money, yet instead of thanking them you generally utter words of ingratitude. These are the two main reasons which will drive most of you to Hell. May Allah protect us from this. Aameen.

The sin of ingratitude amounts to disbelief

Ingratitude is a contemptible act in all circumstances. It is highly disliked by Allah. In the Arabic language and in the terminology of the Shari'ah شکر (ingratitude) is کفر called (disbelief), because an infidel (disbeliever) actually shows ingratitude to Allah, for the countless blessings granted by Him and thus he attributes a Partner to Allah, or denies the unity of All Compassionate Allah by his ingratitude.

Prostration before husbands

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith: If I were to command anyone in this world to bow down before anyone other than Allah, I would command a wife to bow down before her husband, but it is forbidden to bow down before anyone other than Allah. The intention is to tell that it is among the obligatory duties of a woman to obey her husband and not to be ungrateful to him, because this will be showing ingratitude to Allah. Allah is displeased with a woman's ungratefulness to her husband. That is why he ﷺ told women that they will be sent to Hell for this sin. How dangerous it is!

Two Formulas for safety from Hell

Allah has clearly prescribed the rights of a husband and his wife against each other. Our sisters must remember that he ﷺ took special care to address an assembly of women and tell them that these two sins are the causes for their entering Hell in larger numbers. Who knows better the secrets of Allah's Deen and the natural tendencies of the members of his Ummah more than the Holy Prophet ﷺ? There is none other than he ﷺ who can correctly diagnose the disease and prescribe the right remedy for its cure. Thus, the Holy Prophet ﷺ has prescribed two formulas for women to save themselves from the torment of Hell. These are: to refrain from the sins of (1) cursing and taunting one another and (2) being ungrateful to their husbands.

The Angels curse such a woman

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has gone to the extent of saying that if a wife disobeys her husband's call to go to his bed or if he passes a night in which she does not fulfils her husband's desire and he is displeased with his wife, the angels curse that woman the whole night. How terrible a warning of punishment the Holy Prophet ﷺ has given !

Control your tongue

It has been said that the number of women entering Hell will be larger than that of men. This saying is being used by some ill-disposed persons as an argument to accuse that women have been degraded to such an extent that even Hell will receive a larger number of women than men. It should be borne in mind that women will not be thrust into Hell for being women; they will enter Hell because of their sins and misconduct, - the sins of the tongue, in Particular. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that of all his limbs the tongue is the most notorious in pushing man into Hell. The tongue is instrumental to many grievous sins if it is not kept under strict control. You can experience yourself that women are generally weaker than men in controlling their tongues. They are advised to use their tongues with due care so as not to utter words to hurt the hearts of others particularly of their husbands. Allah has commanded the wives to keep their husbands pleased and satisfied in all conditions. They can save themselves from the torment of Hell by correcting themselves and following strictly the laws of the Shari'ah. This responsibility lies equally on men and women both. You know that Allah appointed head of the women of Paradise and that leader is Hazrat Fatimah رضی اللہ عنہا. Allah has not debarred women from Paradise, but has declared them to be entitled to Paradise. The whole matter depends on the good deeds they do and the straight path they follow.

The Importance of the Rights of the people

There is another important point emanating from this Hadith which demands attention. The Holy Prophet ﷺ did not say that a larger number of women would enter Hell because they are more deficient in worship, offer less optional prayers or are slack in reciting the Holy Qur'an or in remembering the sacred names of Allah. The reasons mentioned by the Holy Prophet ﷺ for women entering Hell their indulgence in the sin of cursing and taunting one another and being ungrateful to their husbands. Both these sins are related to the rights of Allah's servants which they violate. This brings out the importance of discharging fully the rights of Allah's servants. This is indeed more important than the offering of optional prayers and doing other optional items of worship.

وصل اللہ تعالیٰ علی خیر خلقه محمد واله واصحابه اجمعین آمین

برحمتك یا ارحم الرّحمین

May Almighty Allah grant us by His mercy, the correct understanding of the importance of discharging the rights of Allah's servants and help us in discharging this responsibility and liability to the best of our ability. Aameen.!

May Allah have mercy on Muhammad ﷺ who is the best of His creation, and on his household and his Noble Companions. All of them with your mercy who are the most Merciful. O Allah.

Venue : Jame'Masjid Baitul Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi.

Date : Friday 10th May, 1991
After 'Asr Prayers.

Our Self is proved to get addicted to worldly pleasures. It hastens up to the acts in which it finds taste and joy. As a result of this tendency it produces an inclination to satisfy lust and desire. Man ceases to be man if he leaves his Self controlled, accedes to its all demands works to attain all possible means that may prove conducive to the satisfaction of his tastes and enjoyments.

ON RESISTING THE INNERSELF

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نومن به و نتوكل عليه، ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيد نا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالىٰ عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطٰن الرجيم، بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

وَالَّذِيْنَ جَاهَدُوْا فِيْنَا لَنَهْدِيَنَّهُمْ سُبُلَنَا ۚ وَاِنَّ اللّٰهَ لَمَعَ الْمُحْسِنِيْنَ (سورة العنكبوت:٦٩)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم و صدق رسوله النبى الكريم و
نحن علىٰ ذالك من الشٰهدين والشٰكرين والحمد لله رب العالمين

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness and believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Allah from the evils of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is no one to let go astray whom Allah guides and there is no one to guide whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah Alone. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, our authority, our Prophet and our. Master, Muhammad is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah have mercy on him, on his household and on his Companions and bless them and send peace on them in abundance.

And those who strive in Us We surely guide them to our paths. Indeed, Allah is with the good indeed. (29:69)

The meaning of Mujahadah (strife)

Allama Nuwawi رحمة الله عليه has formed another chapter on "Mujahadah" (strife). "Mujahadah" means to strive hard. The word "Jihad" has also been derived from the same word. So in the Arabic language "Jihad" does not mean fighting, but it means striving hard and putting in physical effort. The word "Mujahadah" also means the same, i.e. putting in efforts and exertions. In the terminology of the Qur'an, the Sunnah and the Sufism the word means efforts and endeavours whereby man may reform and rectify his deed, actions and character, so as to refrain from sins and stop his Self from taking a wrong course. This is "Mujahadah". The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith.

المجاهد من جاهد نفسه (ترمذى فضائل الجهاد باب ماجاء فى فضل من مات مرابطا حديث نمبر ١٦٢١)

(Tirmidhi virtue of Jihad .... Hadith no: 1621)

"Real "Jihad" is fighting against one's own Self to keep it tamed. It is also "Jihad" to fight against an enemy in a battle field, but the true Jihad is to launch a war against Self. The Self is always enticing man to fulfil its desires and submit to the temptations; On the other hand, man, resisting all these demands of the Self, takes the opposite direction of goodness and piety. This is "Mujahadah". A man who wishes to amelorate his life and take the path of righteousness for the sake of Allah has to take resort to "Mujahadah", by opposing his Self and exerting himself utmost to suppress his desires, however distressing and repulsive all this exertion may be. This struggle against one's own Self is called "Mujahadah".

Man's Self is fond of pleasures

Our 'Self' or the power which prompts man to action, has become addicted to worldly pleasures. So it hastens to those acts which provide it with immediate enjoyment. It is inherent and natural tendency of the Self to entice man towards pleasures and enjoyments by creating in him desires and lust. Now if man lets loose his Self so as to indulge freely in the pleasures which his Self invites him, then he degrades himself to the level of animals and ceases to be a man.

There is no peace in satisfying Carnal desires

It is a tendency of sensual desires that more you go on satisfying them, the more these desires will show with greater force and speed. It is nearly impossible to make an end of such desires. Man can never claim to have satisfied all his desires and he has nothing more to desire. Thus, man can never attain peace in life. Let any one having any doubt can experience this for himself.

There is no limit to taste and enjoyment

Some people of modern time today advise that the private life of man should not be interfered by religion. Everyone can do and enjoy freely whatever one pleases. As a result man is free to satisfy his desires and enjoy himself to his hearts content without any restriction. In this respect he is not answerable to anyone. If you ask any of these pleasure-lovers whether they have reached the limit of their enjoyment and nothing more is left for them to desire, their reply will be in the negative. He would say that he has still countless wishes to realize. In fact, the satisfaction of one wish gives rise to another wish, and there is no end to it.

Open Adultery

If a couple in the western civilisation want to indulge in sexual intercourse with each other, there is no restriction, whatsoever, to stop them from this. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that a time will come when people will commit adultery in public view on the road and there will be none to stop them from this. If there is a man who advises them to do this behind a tree or wall he will be a pious man of that time. That time has come and we are seeing all this today with our own eyes.

Rape cases in America

If a man wants to satisfy his sexual urge in unlawful ways all facilities are available to him for committing this sin with the mutual consent of the partner without a fear of censure from any quarters. Notwithstanding this, America is the country where the largest number of rapes are committed every year. This is because after getting tired of adultery committed with the mutual consent man's insatiable desire for adultery urges him to enjoy the sensation of rape. As already stated man's desire, if left uncontrolled and unbridled knows no limits and ends.

InsatiableThirst

There is a disease called جوع البقر (Joo'ul baqar) in the Arabic language, gluttony being its English equivalent. In this disease the patient's hunger does not find satisfaction with all the quality and quantity of the food that he is given to eat. There is another disease called استسقاء (Istisqaa) in the Arabic language in which the thirst of a man becomes insatiable with any quantity of the water he may drink to quench it. Man's desires may be compared to these two diseases which cannot be kept under restraint, unless they are suppressed and controlled by the laws of the Shari'ah. If left free, these desires go on increasing by leaps and bounds.

Put some resistance

Allah and His Prophet ﷺ have forbidden us to pursue all the desires because they may throw man into the ditch of destruction. We have been advised to control them and keep them within the reasonable limits laid down by the Shari'ah. In doing so you may feel some difficulty in the beginning. A man used to listenng to the Radio programmes of music and enjoying the musical concerts and dramas on the Television will find it quite annoying in the beginning to forego and forget these enjoyments. However, if man wants to save his Self from destruction he should try to put some resistance like a patient who tolerates bitter doses of a medicine.

Self over-powers the weak

Almighty Allah has created this 'Self' in man with a peculiar characteristic. If a man decides to oppose it firmly, despite all the distress, hardships and sufferings involved the desire begins to give way and yield to man's resolution. This 'Self' and Satan overpower him who shows weakness before them and obeys them, but they slacken their grip and surrender before those who stand against them and decide to confront them with an iron will and determination. As a result, the distress and difficulties faced in opposing 'Self' will disappear one by one and thus man ultimately will defeat and overpower his 'Self'.

The 'Self' is like a suckling child

Allama Busairi رحمة الله عليه was a very prominent saint. His eulogistic poem, namely "Qasidah Burdah", in praise of the Holy Prophet ﷺ is famous all over the Muslim world. It contains a couplet full of wisdom.

النفس كالطفل ان تهمله شب على

حب الرضاع وان تفطمه ينفطم

The 'Self' of man is like a little suckling child which is suckling the milk of his mother and he has become used to it. If he is weaned from suckling by force, the child will protest against this by crying. Now according to Allama Busaire's opinion, if the parents decide to get rid of this problem, fury and fuss of the child by letting him continue suckling, the child will not give up suckling even when he grows into a young man. Suckling has become his nature, he refuses to eat hard food. There are, however, no parents in the world who will leave the child in this state. They will wean him from suckling by all means because it ensures the child's welfare.

The Self is fond of sins

Allama Busairi has further said that man's Self is like a child. It has become fond of sins. If it is left undisturbed and uncontrolled in this condition, committing whatever sins it likes (e.g., casting sinful glances, telling lies, backbiting, accepting bribes and indulging in usurious dealings) for the only reason that reliquishing these sins will be hard upon the 'Self' then what will be the result? The result will be that this Self will pass its entire life in these sins and will never receive peace.

Real peace is in Allah's remembrance

Note carefully that there is no peace in disobeying Allah. You might collect all the worldly resources of life, yet you cannot have peace. I have set before you an example from the Western society where there is great abundance of wealth, a high standard of living. All avenues of enjoyment and pleasure -seeking are wide open before them. Inspite of all this they have no peace. They cannot sleep without taking sleeping pills. Why is it so? It is because they are immersed in sins and disobedience to Allah. Peace resides only in Allah's remembrance.

اَلَا بِذِكْرِ اللّٰهِ تَطْمَئِنُّ الْقُلُوْبُ

Beware! the hearts receive peace and contentment from Allah's remembrance. (13:28)

You can never receive peace as long as you are committing sins and disobeying Allah.

Almighty Allah grants peace and contentment only to those who remember Allah in their hearts. You will find people who are poor careworn and starving, yet they have in their hearts the blessings of peace and contentment. So one who desires to have peace and tranquillity must quit sins by undergoing a little hardship and taking a firm stand against the seduction of Self.

Allah's promise cannot be false

Besides, Allah has also made this promise:

وَالَّذِيْنَ جَاهَدُوْا فِيْنَا لَنَهْدِيَنَّهُمْ سُبُلَنَا ۚ (سورة العنكبوت:٦٩)

And those who strive in Us, We surely guide them to Our paths. (29:69)

This verse declares that there are those who strive hard in the path of Allah, inspite of the unfavourable conditions and opposition of their society and the demands of their own Self and Satan. Allah guides them on to His straight path. As regards the words

لَنَهْدِيَنَّهُمْ سُبُلَنَا ۚ (سورة العنكبوت:٦٩)

we shall guide them to Our paths

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has explained the true sense of these words saying that "Allah will put them on the straight path by taking them to the path not showing them the path only from a distance. For getting this help from Allah sincere and firm intention and keen longing are, however, necessary. This is Allah's promise and it cannot be false.

In short, "Mujahadah" is the name of firm resolution in which a man resolves that he will not commit such and such sins in any circumstances happen what may. The day man presents such a resolute stand against the demands of his Self and Satan, he becomes Allah's beloved whom Allah puts on His straight path as though holding by his hands.

Make your heart worthy of Allah

Thus, the very first step towards correction is "Mujahadah" for man will have to take a firm resolution. Dr. Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمة الله عليه frequently used to recite this couplet:

آرزوئیں خون ہوں یا حسرتیں پامال ہوں
اب تو اس دل کو بنانا ہے تیرے قابل مجھے

That is; I have to make this heart worthy of you (O Allah) at all costs notwithstanding that for achieving this objective I may have to kill all my pleasant wishes and ambitions. Now the divine light will descend on my heart and it will become a target of Allah's love. Hence forward I shall commit no sins.

You must remember that you will have to face great difficulties in the beginning in relinquishing for ever your favourite plans of pleasures and enjoyments only for the sake of Allah. It will not be long before this struggle of yours will make your Self will become a source of peace and satisfaction for you. In fact, you cannot imagine the pleasure and contentment which you will receive at the thought that you are undergoing all this test and torture for the sake of Allah to seek His pleasure.

Why does a mother endure all distress?

See how a mother sacrifies her comfort for her child. She is sleeping peacefully in her bed on a cold winter night. Her child beside her. The child urinates on the bed. The chilling cold of night stops her leaving the warmth of her bed, but she resists this desire for her chlid and gets up thinking that if the child remains wet he may catch cold and may have fever. Opposing the seduction of her Self she gets up from her warm bed changes the child's clothes, goes out in this cold night and washes the child's clothes with cold water. This is an arduous task, yet she is doing this in the interest of her child's health and welfare.

Love does away with distress

There is a barren women with no child. She consults doctors to cure her sterility and visits holy men for prayer that she may have a child . For this purpose she also uses talisman, charms and such other things. Another woman tells her about the pains a woman has to undergo on account of child birth and in delivering a baby. She will have to get up on cold nights and wash the baby's clothes and do many other odd things for the health and welfare of her baby. In reply the childless woman will says that she would sacrifice the peace and comforts of a thousand winter nights for her baby. This woman places a great value on a baby for which she is willing to go through the tortures and troubles involved in this way. They mean pleasure and comfort to her. So a woman is taking so much pains and is tolerating untold tortures, but she is satisfied with all this and feels contented that she is tolerating these hardships for the sake of her child. With this in mind she feels pleasure in giving up her desires and comforts. Maulana Rumi رحمة الله عليه has expressed the same idea in the following words:

از محبت تلخها شیریں شود

When in love even the bitterest things become sweet. Actions, otherwise hard and despised, turn pleasant in love.

The love of Allah should not be less than that of Laila

In his famous Masnawi (poetical work) Maulana Rumi رحمة الله عليه has written many interesting love - stories including the famous story of Laila-Majnoon. In his matchless love for his beloved Laila, Majnoon, the lover, underwent great tortures and distress, yet he was quite satisfied, and pleased with his ordeals in love. He was ready to sacrifice all for his love. Maulana Rumi has thus expressed this idea in a couplet:

عشق مولی کے کم از لیلیٰ بود
گوئے گشتن بہر او اولیٰ بود

The love of Allah cannot be less than that of Laila. It is, therefore, a credit to become (kicked and thrown like) a ball.

Love of Money

In order to take up his job, an employee has to get up early in the morning.It is winter and cold outside a man is sleeping comfortably on a warm bed. He has to go to his job, leaving behind his wife and children at home. After having toiled the whole day he will come back home late at night. There is a good number of workers who go to their work, leaving their children sleeping and come back at a time when the children have gone to bed. If anyone advises him to give up such an arduous job for the sake of his comfort and his family, he will reject this advice with contempt. He is pleased to get up and go to his job at an early hour, leaving behind his wife and children. This is due to the love of the salary which he will draw at the end of the month. For the sake of this love all his troubles and exertions for earning this salary have become pleasant for him. If he by chance loses his job at anytime he becomes deeply aggrieved and strives hard for another job. This is to say that in the way of love all hurdles and difficulties turn to be pleasure and enjoyment.

In the same way it is, indeed, difficult to give up sins. In the beginning one finds oneself unable of giving up some sins being committed for a long time, but when one resolves to relinquish it, divine help comes to his rescue with the result that the pains and distresses involved in quitting a sin in obedience to Allah's command begin to yield pleasure and joy.

Acquaint yourself with worship

Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ once mentioned a wise point. He said: This 'Self' of man is fond of pleasure. This pleasure is not confined to any particular type. The Self craves for pleasure and enjoyment alone despite its nature and constituents. You have made this 'Self' addicted to a pleasure which is in reality unpleasant and disgustful and the 'Self' finds taste and enjoyment in it on account of the habit. Try to make it accustomed to the pleasure of Allah's worship and devotion and to the joys of passing life according to the injunctions of Allah. Then you will see that it will not be long before this 'Self' begins to feel pleasure and enjoyment in this transformed life of piety and purity.

مے سے غرض نشاط ہے کس روسیاہ کو
اک گونہ بے خودی مجھے دن رات چاہیئے

This is a couplet from a poem composed by the renounced Urdu poet Mirza Ghalib. Our Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ interpreted it in a very unique way. According to him the couplet means: This sinful man does not drink wine for the sake of pleasure like other drunkards. He thus expresses himself: I drink it only that I may remain beside myself the whole night and day. When you have accustomed me to wine I am enveloped in a state of rapture. If you had accustomed me to Allah's remembrance and obedience, I would have received the same rapture and taste in Allah's remembrance. It is your mistake that you have accustomed me to wine instead of these virtuous occupations.

You will receive great enjoyment in negating the Self

This 'Mujahadah' appears to be difficult in the beginning, as it demands that one should oppose one's Self when it incites one to the pursuit of desires. It is hard indeed to check yourself from backbiting when your friends freely indulging in it in a jolly assembly. Remember that the task of abstinance appears to be difficult from a distance but when you once take a firm resolution against this sin, Allah's help will overtake you and in this opposition of the seduction of 'Self' you will find a pleasure much greater than that you found in obeying the dictates of your Self.

Cultivate the taste of Iman (Faith)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said in a Hadith: Once a man felt in his heart an urge to cast a glance on a forbidden sight and who is there who does not feel such an urge? His heart was in a fix whether to cast the glance on the sight or not. The heart struggled hard and at last got control on the urge. In return for such a struggle and exertion Allah granted him a pleasure which far exceeds the pleasure of satisfying the forbidden urge. This is a promise from the Holy Prophet ﷺ which is available in the books of Ahadith. (Musnad, vol. 5, p. 264)

This promise is not confined to protecting the eyes from falling on forbidden sights, but it is general in its scope and applies to renouncing all sorts of sins. For example the sin of backbiting is pleasing, but a man holds his tongue back from it, just when it was on the verge of doing it. In the exercise of this Self-control there is a pleasure and when man becomes used to it, a relation and love springs up between him and Allah.

The Essence of Tasaw-wuf (Mysticism)

Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanwi رحمة الله عليه has said something very instructive and worth remembering. The essence of 'Tasaw-wuf, the Maulana said, abstinence is that when one feels lazy and hesitant in discharging some religious duties, e.g. the prayer, he should withstand with courage this hesitation and discharge the duty. Similarly, when his heart is inclined to commit some sin, he should oppose this inclination also with courage. This exertion and struggle will generate relation with Allah and develop that relation. A man who attains this capacity requires nothing more. Thus when a man crushes his desires with strenuous effort his heart becomes a mirror to reflect and absorb divine light.

The Heart has to be broken

My respected father, Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to quote an example in this behalf. In the olden days he said, there used to be Unani physicians who prepared medicines with by burning gold, silver, lead etc., to ashes commonly known as kushta. He said that the more the metal was burnt to reduce it to ashes, the more effective was the medicine. My respected father compared man's desires to the metals so processed. If these desires are crushed, burnt and reduced to something like ashes, then man's heart will become strong and worthy to receive Allah's love. The more man breaks his heart the more beloved it will become in the sight of Allah The renowned, poet Dr. Muhammad Iqbal has expressed this idea in a couplet:

نہ بچا بچا کے تو رکھ اسے تیرا آئینہ ہے وہ آئینہ
جو شکستہ ہو تو عزیز تیر ہے نگاہِ آئینہ ساز میں

This means: Your heart is like a mirror which, when broken, becomes dearer in the sight of the maker of the mirror. so the more you subject your heart to strife and exertion in the cause of Allah, the dearer it will become in His sight. The heart is to be broken and purged of all desires and lusts to become worthy of Allah's attention and love. Our Dr. Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to recite a couplet:

یہ کہہ کہ کاسہ ساز نے پیالہ پٹخ دیا
اب اور کچھ بنائیں گے اس کو بگاڑ کے

It means: The potter broke the pot by throwing it down and said that he would make another and a better pot in place of it.

Do not think that the troubles you are receiving and the tortures you are enduring by crushing your desires are going waste. By this process of Mujahadah" when this heart becomes a resting - place for Allah's love, remembrance and devotion, you will receive a joy and rapture before which the entire enjoyments received from committing sins and disobeying Allah are not worth an iota.

All that is needed is a little resolution and sincere work. In the beginning everything looks difficult but it will become easy later on. This is "Mujahadah".

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said in a Hadith:

المجاهد من جاهد نفسه

That is, a Mujahid is one who struggles with his Self, crushes and suppresses his desires, instead of becoming a toy in the hands of his desires. May Allah protect us from this disgrace and help us to control efficiently our desires. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمدلله رب العالمين

And we close with the call that all praise be to Allah, the Lord of all the worlds.

Venue : Jame'Masjid Baitul Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi.

Date : Friday 17th May, 1991
After 'Asr Prayers.

True "Mujahadah" means the act of confronting the Self in such a way that man does not yield to the desires, demands and dictates of 'Self', but takes the opposite course by crushing them all. He who wishes to reform and ameliorate his Self has to take to 'Mujahadah' and endure the distress and tortures which confront him in his struggle against his carnal desires. This is called 'Mujahadah'.

ESSENTIALITY OF MUJAHADAH

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه، ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيد نا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالىٰ عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم، بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

وَالَّذِيْنَ جَاهَدُوْا فِيْنَا لَنَهْدِيَنَّهُمْ سُبُلَنَا ط وَاِنَّ اللّٰهَ لَمَعَ الْمُحْسِنِيْنَ (سورة العنكبوت:٦٩)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم و صدق رسوله النبى الكريم و
نحن علىٰ ذالك من الشهٰدين والشٰكرين والحمد لله رب العالمين

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness we believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Allah from the evils of our souls and the vices of our deeds. There is no one to let go astray whom Allah guides and there is no one to guide whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah Alone. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, our Prophet and our. Master, Muhammad is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah send mercy on him, on his household and on his Companions and bless them and salute them in great deal.

And those who strive in us we surely guide them to or paths. Indeed, Allah is with the good. (29:69)

The Reality of Mujahadah

The gist of what was said in the earlier meeting about 'Mujahadah' is that we should try to leave the carnal desires. This is the meaning of Mujahadah. This has to be discussed to day in greater details, so that it may become amply clear why it is necessary to take to Mujahadah.

Mujahadah in worldly affairs

It is difficult to pursue Deen (Faith) without resorting to Mujahadah. It is necessary even in the execution of worldly affairs. In order to earn a living one has to crush the dictates of the Self. The man feels inclined to take rest at home but does not. He cannot earn his living, unless he exerts himself and works hard on his job.

Cultivation of the habit of Mujahadah from childhood

It is necessary to train a child for Mujahadah from his childhood. When the child is sent to school for the first time he resents and dislikes this. He does not feel inclined to go to school, but he is induced to do so by different ways. This is Mujahadah. Man has, therefore, to do many things against his natural disposition to receive education, earn his living, and attain all other objectives of life. If anyone decides not to do anything which is disagreeable to his nature, such a man can succeed neither in his worldly life nor in the religious field.

There will be no Mujahadah in Paradise

There are three worlds created by Allah. In one of these worlds all desires will be fulfilled without your doing anything against your will; everything will happen according to your sweet will. In this world man will be free to pursue his desires, without any hindrance. That world is the world of Paradise about which the Holy Qur'an has said:

وَلَكُمْ فِيْهَا مَاتَشْتَهِيْٓ اَنْفُسُكُمْ وَلَكُمْ فِيْهَا مَا تَدَّعُوْنَ (سورۂ حم سجدہ ۳۱)

You shall get in it (Paradise) all that your hearts desire and there will be for you what you call for. (41:31)

Details are available about this in the Ahadith. For example; if you desire to drink pomegranate juice, it will be before you the moment you desire it. You will get, by the grace of Allah, everything that you may desire. There will be no need to suppress and crush your desires in Paradise, nor will you have to undergo any Mujahadah there. That is the world of Paradise. May Allah grant us a seat in Paradise by His mercy.

The world of Hell

The second world, i.e. Hell is just the opposite of Paradise. Everything in Hell will be tortuous and contrary to one's desire and choice. Every act in Hell will be painful and full of distress. That is the world of Hell. May Allah save every Muslim from that. Aameen.

The present world

Our world is the world in which things occur which are pleasant as well as unpleasant to us. There is joy and grief, distress and comfort. There is none in this world whose life is exclusively a bed of roses or a bed of thorns. Every comfort and joy has some painful features and every pain and distress has some pleasant aspects. In this world you may be a great capitalist, a millionaire, or a man of countless resources, yet you cannot claim that you have always been comfortable and carefree having, never tasted worry and anxiety, or that things have always been going according to your wishes and choice. Comfort and discomfort, joy and sorrow, health and sickness go side by side in this world of ours. It is not possible for anyone in this world to have all joy with no grief, nor all grief with no joy. This world is a place of trials and ordeals. A poet has thus expressed this idea:

قید حیات بند و غم اصل میں دونوں ایک ہیں
موت سے پہلے آدمی غم سے نجات پائے کیوں

That is, the prison of life and the confinement of grief both are one and the same. So, man cannot get rid of grief before his death. Allah has created this world that you may enjoy and also may suffer from distress. It is, therefore, not possible for man to be relieved of pains and grief until his death. What to say of the common people even the Prophets علیہم السلام the most beloved personalities of Allah, were not spared from the tortures and distresses of this world. At times they suffered more grievously than the common people. They, too, had to face, situations distasteful to their nature. No man, whether he is a believer or an unbeliever can remain safe from these bitter and pinching vicinitudes of life in this world.

Seek the pleasure of Allah

In this worldly life you have to face things which are disgustful and abhorrent to your nature and temperament. When such is the situation from which there is no escape, then there are two ways open to you. One way is to do things which are against, and abhorrent to your nature and which involve pains and troubles, and yet you gain no reward and benefit for them in the Hereafter nor is Allah pleased with them.

The other way open to man is to work against the inclinations of his nature and Self and crush his desires to ameliorate his Hereafter and to please Allah. The Prophets of Allah علیہم السلام advise that in this world there is no escape for man from doing things which go against his nature and will, whether he appreciates this situation or not. Man should, therefore, resolve firmly that, if it is unavoidable to do things which are against his nature, why not should do only such of them that will please Almighty Allah.

For example it is the prayer time and the prayer-call (Azan) is coming from the nearby mosque but you do not feel inclined to go to the mosque on account of lethargy. In such a situation you follow the dictate of your Self and remain in your bed, ignoring the prayer-call. Then somebody knocks at the door. The man is so important that you have to leave your comfortable bed and go out with him. The result is that you opposed your Self, crushed your desire, disturbed your rest, and could not avoid the trouble. Man should think positively that he has no control over troubles and distress; then why should he not endure these troubles and disturbance for Allah's pleasure? Thinking this way, he should at once get up and go to the mosque to offer prayers.

When receiving the King's commands

Our Dr. Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say useful things for us. Once he said: You are feeling laziness and inconvenience in going to the mosque for prayers, e.g. the Fajr or the Tahajjud prayers. You have risen from sleep, but your eyes are still heavy with sleep and in such a situation you do not want to leave your bed. Now in this condition if you receive a message that the King or the Head of the state wants to confer on you a great honour how will you react to this. Your sleep will diminish instantly. Because you place great value on the King's award for the sake of which you are ready to oppose your desires and your natural inclinations. When you can sacrifice your rest and comfort and sweet sleep for the honour to be confirmed by a King why can you not make the same sacrifice for the sake of Almighty Allah, the most Elevated and the Greatest of all King's and Rulers? You should certainly offer this sacrifice.

Almighty Allah will be with them

This has always been the message of the Prophets of Allah that men should form the habit of opposing their Self in doing such acts as are expected to please

Allah and that is what we call "Mujahadah". Apparently no benefit is received from the shocks and distresses being suffered unintentionally in "Mujahadah". It is, however, Allah's promise that He shall surely guide in His path those who exert themselves sincerely and oppose their Self and desires for His sake.

وَالَّذِيْنَ جَاهَدُوْا فِيْنَا لَنَهْدِيَنَّهُمْ سُبُلَنَا ط وَإِنَّ اللهَ لَمَعَ الْمُحْسِنِيْنَ (سورة العنكبوت:٦٩)

And they will not be alone on this path. Those who are walking on this path are among the (the good) and Allah becomes a companion of the good.

The task will become easy

Allah becomes a companion of the Mujahid and makes his path easy. It is indeed, very difficult to oppose the 'Self' in the beginning and to do something against the demands of man's natural dispositions. Yet when man decides to struggle against Self in favour of Allah the job becomes smooth and easy, because he has resolved firmly to please his Creator. A man finds it very difficult to offer five-time prayers, yet he fights against his Self and, opposing its seductions and ultimately succeeding some how in making himself a regular Namazi. Now not only does he not feel any difficulty in offering the prayers regularly, but he will not allow to miss his prayers even if he is offered a great prize for this. Now with the help of Allah, his Mujahadah has made him a regular Namazi and a pious man.

Only take a step forward

What is true of prayer (Namaz) is true of all other righteous deeds of Deen. If man sits idle only contemplating wishfully without action, everything will appear to him difficult. However, if he once resolves firmly to fight against his Self and opposes his desires, Allah makes his work easy. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه used to quote an example to illustrate this. There is a very long and straight road with rows of trees on both sides of it. Standing on one end of the road, a man looks ahead, he will find that at some distance the two rows of the trees meet each other and block the way. Now if a fool thinks that it is useless to go on this road, because it is blocked, he can never reach his destination. Only that man shall reach his destination who takes a step forward and begins his journey, in spite of the fact that the road appears to be blocked at some distance ahead. After covering a little distance he will find that the road is not blocked, but it is giving him way, as he advances step by step. Thus, Allah is advising the travellers on the path of Deen not to lose heart and sit disappointed, finding the path difficult from a distance. They should go ahead and Allah will render the journey easy. All that is needed is a little courage, determination and resolution to oppose and struggle against the Self. This is what is called Mujahadah.

Mujahadah is to refrain from some lawful acts also

The essence of Mujahadah is that man should protect himself from unlawful acts and acts that are contrary to the laws of the Shari'ah by exercising pressure against his Self. Our Self has, however, become easy going in violating the injunctions of the Shari'ah and it is very difficult to divert it to the path of righteousness. In order to tame the Self and follow the straight path of the Shari'ah it becomes necessary to stop it even from some unnecessary but lawful actions, so that it may be compelled to relinquish enjoyments. After this it will be habituated to refrain from undesirable and unlawful actions. This too is called Mujahadah in the terminology of the sufis (mystics).

For example, it is not a sin to eat one's fill but the mystics advise against eating too much, because if makes the Self negligent and fond of enjoyments. It is therefore, Mujahadah to eat less than what is necessary to satisfy the hunger.

Why should Mujahadah be necessary in lawful acts?

Someone put a question to Hazrat Maulana Muhammad Yaqub Sahib رحمة الله عليه as to why the mystics stop their disciples even from some lawful acts, although Allah has declared them to be lawful. Hazrat Sahib رحمة الله عليه asked the questioner to fold the leaf of a book. This was done. Then Hazrat Sahib رحمة الله عليه asked the questioner to straighten the leaf. He tried but could not make the leaf straight. Hazrat Sahib رحمة الله عليه told him that to make it straight it was necessary to fold it back in the opposite side. When he folded the leaf in the opposite side it became straight as before. Hazrat Sahib رحمة الله عليه then explained that the leaf of this Self stands folded on the side of the sins and cannot be straightened unless it is folded on the opposite side away from the sins. In other words, compel the Self to give up some desirable and permissible acts also and it will become straight like the leaf. This is also a form of Mujahadah.

Four kinds of Mujahadahs

The respected sufis Spiritual doctors are known to subject their disciples in four kinds of Mujahadahs, viz., (1) Eat less, (2) Speak less, (3) Sleep less, (4) Mix with the people less.

(1) Eating less: In olden days, the respected sufis used to subject their disciples to very hard Mujahadahs by reducing their food, to the extent of starvation. Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Sahib رحمة الله عليه has said that the present age is not suitable for this kind of Mujahadah, as the people are weaker and poorer in health than their predecessors in the past. If they eat less they may fall sick and may be prevented from their usual course of worship on account of weakness. He رحمة الله عليه said that in the present time, if a man follows discipline at the time of eating the benefit of less eating will be obtained. While taking food a stage arrives when a man becomes hesitant whether to continue eating or stop it. When this stage arrives man should stop eating. This will ensure for him the benefit of less eating.

What is the cause of this hesitation at the time of eating? This is due to a confrontation between reason and Self. As there is a taste in the food the Self urges man to eat more to enjoy the taste, the reason urges the person not to eat more, as eating more may disturb his digestion and cause some sickness. The struggle between reason and Self is called hesitation. At such a stage in eating and on other occasions, accept the urge of reason and reject the urge of Self.

Allah's pleasure and freedom from fatness

I heard discussions on this topic many times in the meeting of my respected father, Maulana Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه as well as those of Dr. Abdul Hayi Sahib رحمة الله عليه and read them in their printed sermons. Later on I happened to read an article on this topic by an expert physician who wrote:

People use medicines to reduce the weight of their bodies some give up eating bread others avoid the midday meal. In modern terminology this is called 'Dieting' The practice of 'Dieting' has spread like an epidemic in Europe. The objective of 'Dieting' is to reduce weight. Women have become more accustomed to 'Dieting' and are taking pills to slim themselves. In so doing sometimes they lose their lives."

Thereafter that physician writes:

My medical opinion is that it is not possible to reduce weight either by giving up a meal or by refraining from eating bread. On the other hand the best way for man to reduce weight is to form a lifelong habit to stop eating a little before fully satisfying his hunger. The physician has concluded his article by giving exactly the same advice namely taking food one should give up eating as soon as he becomes hesitant to continue eating or not. The man who stops eating at the time of this hesitation will never be a prey to obesity, indigestion, nor will it be necessary for him to take to 'Dieting'.

Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Sahib Thanawi رحمة الله عليه had recommended the same prescription in his printed sermons many years ago. Now it is up to you to take this prescription either to reduce your weight or to please Allah. If you take this advice to cure your sick Self and to please Allah, you will get reward and your weight will also get reduced automatically. On the other hand if you act upon this advice only to reduce your weight, then you may perhaps succeed in reducing your weight, but you will get no virtue and reward from Allah.

Keeping away from enjoyments

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has greatly simplified matters for us in this behalf. In olden days the respected sufis used to subject their disciples to diverse exercises in the name of Mujahadah. There used to be at their monasteries a general kitchen in which, it is said, a kind of soup was prepared which was distributed among the disciples in cups. They had orders that they should, each, mix their soup with an equal part of water and then use that mixture as food, so that the Self might be cured of the vice of enjoying taste. They were also made to starve from time to time. However, those were different times and we are in a different age. In the same way, the Hakimul Ummah has prescribed treatment keeping in view the age we are living in and the demand of our natures and temperaments. The way, he has prescribed of less eating, serves the purpose of 'Dieting'.

The Frenzy of eating to one's fill

It is not unlawful from the Shari'ah point of view to eat to one's fill, but this is a cause of diseases both spiritual and physical. This is because all sins and disobedience are the outcome of eating to one's fill. A man with empty stomach can hardly think of sins and wrongdoings. It has, therefore, been advised that man should try to avoid eating to his fill. This is the Mujahadah of 'Less Eating' or Dieting' as they call it.

(2) The Mujahadah of speaking less

The second kind of Mujahadah is 'speaking less'. We chatter from morning till evening non-stop and there is no brake on this. This is highly undesirable. This tongue will go on committing sins, unless it is kept under strict control. You must remember that the Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said in a Hadith: It is man's tongue which will cause him to be thrown into Hell face-down, because if it is left uncontrolled with no check, whatsoever, it is bound to indulge in telling lies in backbiting and hurting the hearts of others. These are grievous sins which will take him to Hell.

Save yourself from the sins of the tongue

For avoiding the sins of the tongue man has to undergo the Mujahadah of 'Less speaking'. This requires that man should speak only when necessary, avoid talking about useless things and should more his tongue only when it becomes absolutely necessary. Before talking about anything he must first think coolly if it is necessary and proper for him to talk on that topic if so it is not a sin. Man must guard himself against using his tongue unnecessarily. By following this method man becomes used to speak less. When man feels tempted to speak but suppresses this temptation, he gradually achieves control over his tongue, and then he does not commit sins of telling lies, backbiting and the like.

Lawful Recreation is permitted

Sometimes a few friends get together in their spare times and involve themselves in sinful gossips for nothing. The Shari'ah has, however, allowed us to enjoy and recreate. The Holy Prophet ﷺ is himself reported to have said:

روحوا القلوب ساعة فساعة (كنز العمال: ٥٣٥٤)

(Kanzul A'amal - 5354)

This means: provide relief to your hearts from time to time:

How useful and appealing the teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ are! There is none who knows more than he ﷺ our psychology, needs and temperament. He ﷺ knew it fully well that if the Ummah was commanded to do nothing other than remembering Allah and to keep them engaged in reciting His sacred names, they would not be able to do so, because they are not angels. They are human beings. They need, by their very nature, some recreation, like relaxation and light pleasantry with one another. Not only is it lawful but it is also desirable, and it is a Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. However to indulge in such recreation for long hours and waste precious time may lead to sins. The people have, therefore, been advised to talk less, as this is also a kind of Mujahadah.

It is an act of Sunnah to converse with guests

A man used to call upon my respected father, Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه the man was very talkative. He talked continuously on irrelevant topics. It has been the practice of our elders to honour their guests, listen to them and please them as far as possible. This is a difficult and tiring situation for a busy person. Those whose lives remain fully occupied with work can very well realize this difficulty. The usual practice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ was that whenever any person called upon him and started talking to him, he ﷺ never turned his face from him but remained listening to him unless the visitor himself turned his face. The words of the relevant Hadith are:

حتى يكون هو المنصرف (شمائل ترمذی باب ماجاء فی تواضع رسول الله ﷺ)

Until the visitor himself departed.(Shamail Tirmidhi).

This is indeed a very difficult task. Some people are continuous talkers and it is very tiring to listen to them patiently. It has, however, been the practice of our elders to pay full attention to such visitors in compliance with the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

A Method of Reform

Any one visiting my father with the intention of remedy, he used to point out his short comings. This visitor used to call upon my respected father رحمة الله عليه and the latter listened patiently to his conversation. One day that visitor expressed his desire to become a disciple of my respected father رحمة الله عليه for spiritual guidance and training and asked for some Zikr to recite. My respected father رحمة الله عليه advised him that he did not need any incantation or recitation. What he needed was to hold his tongue and maintain complete silence in the meetings. The Mujahadah prescribed for him of sitting silent was more difficult for him than a thousand Mujahadahs. By dint of this single Mujahadah he completed, with Allah's help, all the stages of his spiritual course. My respected father رحمة الله عليه had diagnosed his disease of unnecessary and irrelevant talking. When this was cured all other weaknesses and short-comings disappeared. Thus, only after a short period of time Allah bestowed upon him a high rank. Thus, like a specialist physician, the Shaikh prescribes for his disciples spiritual treatment according to the disease of each individual patient. This is the Mujahadah of 'Less speaking'.

(3) Less Sleeping

The third 'Mujahadah' is sleeping less. In olden days the disciples were prevented from sleeping except a little. It is well known that Hazrat Imam Abu Hanifah رحمة الله عليه used to offer his Fajr prayers with the ablution (Wudu) performed for the Isha prayers. The saints have, however, advised that a man must sleep at least six hours during the 24 hours of the day. Sleeping less than six hours may cause sickness. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has stated that if anyone is addicted to sleeping at wrong hours he should give up this habit and follow proper sleeping hours. This change of sleeping hours also comes within the definition of 'Less sleeping' and is a kind of Mujahadah.

(4) Reduce your contacts with the people

The fourth Mujahadah consists in reducing contacts and mixing with the people to the minimum, because the wider a man's circle of acquaintance, the more exposed he is to the opportunities of sins. You may experience for yourself the truth of this assertion. Today it has become a recognised art to widen the circle of one's contacts which is called 'Public Relations'. The objective of this department of public Relations is to bring more and more people under the circle of your contacts and acquaintance and thereby to increase your influence among the people, so that you may reap all sorts of benefits from these contacts. Our elders have however, advised us to reduce, rather than increase, our contacts with the public as far as possible.

The Heart is a Mirror

Almighty Allah has made man's heart a mirror. Whatever passes by a man's eyes is, like a film, impressed upon man's heart. When man's circle of contact is wide, the heart will receive impression from good as well as bad people. When people involved in vicious activities will meet him, the heart will be impressed with the vices of their bad activities, thus spoiling the purity of the heart. Hence the advice to have contacts with the public to the minimum. the lessor a man's contacts with the public, the greater the possibility of increase in his relation with Allah. Maulana Rumi has said:

تعلق حجاب است وبے حاصلی
چوں پیوندھا بکسلی واصلی

Maulana means to say in this couplet that contacts with the public serve as a screen between man and his relation with Allah. The greater a man's intimacy and friendship with the people, the weaker and lesser will be his relations with Almighty Allah. So the advice forwarded here to reduce contacts with the public is subject to the condition that this should not adversely affect man's liability to the rights of the servants of Allah which has to be discharged at all costs. It should not be man's tendency to widen his circle of contacts and acquaintances unnecessarily. This is a kind of Mujahada named 'Reduction of contacts with the people'.

These Mujahadahs (spiritual drills or exercises) have been prescribed in order to control our 'Self' and to stop it from seducing us to commit sins and unlawful acts. Every body should, therefore, try to take up these Mujahadah but under the expert guidance of some experienced Sheikh. A disciple cannot himself decide the quantity of food he should take, the time of his sleeping and the number and type of people he should contact. Some Sheikh will guide him on these points and he will - god willing - receive benefit from these Mujahadahs.

May Allah help us all to act accordingly. Aameen!

واخر دعوانا ان الحمدلله رب العالمين

And we close with the call that all praise be to Allah, the Lord of the world's.

Venue : Seminar Hall
Jama' Karachi
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi.

Date : 5th. July 1992
After 'Asr Prayers.

"Economics" is indeed a very important branch of the Islamic teachings. You can get an idea of the amplitude of the Islamic teachings on the subject of "Economics" from the fact that, if any book on Islamic Jurisprudence is divided into four parts, the two parts thereof will be found to be concerned with "Economics". It must, however, be borne in mind that unlike other systems, "Economics" is not the basic issue of life in Islam. In fact, the basic issue of life in Islam is the belief that this world in which man is living is not his final resort; it is rather a ladder to take man to his final resort, the Hereafter. The existing life is only a transitional stage. It is not compatible with the basic characteristics of Islam that man should exhaust all his energies and abilities on this transitional state of life.

ISLAM AND THE NEW ECONOMIC PROBLEMS OF LIFE

الحمد لله رب العالمين والصلاة والسلام على سيدنا ومولانا محمد النبي الامين وعلى اله واصحابه اجمعين وعلى كل من تبعهم باحسان الى يوم الدين

امابعد:

All Praise be to the Lord of the worlds and mercy and peace on our sire and our Master, Muhammad ﷺ the un-lettered and trust-worthy Prophet and on his household and his companions, all of them and on all who followed them with goodness till the Day of Judgment:

Todays Topic.

The President, respected ladies and Gentlemen! As-salamu 'alai-kum war rah-matullahi wa barakaatuh:

"Islam and the New Economic Problems" has been fixed to be the topic of todays sitting and I have been asked to speak on this, so that I may mention to you the basic features of this topic.

This in fact is a topic which requires to be dealt with thoroughly and in details for which an hour's space of time is quite insufficient. So, ignoring the formal introduction I want to take up the topic direct in order to mention to you some of its distinctive features in this short period, according to my capacity and knowledge. It is a topic so comprehensive and complicated that voluminous books have been written on it and full justice cannot be done to it in an hour or in a short sitting like this.

The new economic problems are so numerous and diverse that it will prove a very trying duty even if only one of them is selected for discussion, to the exclusion of the rest. So, instead of discussing partially many of its problems I want to present to you a basic and fundamental outline of the teachings of Islam relating to the economic activities of man, so that at least the basic conceptions of Islamic economics may become quite clear. This is because all the partial economic problems to which Dr. Akhtar Saeed has referred are in fact based on the basic conceptions and whatever solutions are found to them will lie within the framework of these basic conceptions.

It is the foremost and basic necessity that we should have in our minds a clear conception of the Islamic economics and its definition. What are its basic characteristics and in what respects it stands distinguished from other modes of economic system? No discussion of these problems or their logical solutions will be in order unless the conception of Islamic economic system becomes quite clear in our minds. I, therefore, want to put before you a brief comparision between the basic conception of the Islamic economic system and the various other modes of such systems prevailing in the world. I pray to Almighty Allah that may He help me, by His mercy, to say something useful and correct on this important topic in this short time at my disposal. Aameen.

Islam is a Mode of Life.

The first thing which needs to be kept in mind about Islamic economics is that it is not an "economic system" in the typical sense of the term which is applied to the various other economic systems prevailing in the world today.

Islam, it should be noted, is a comprehensive mode of life, economics in an important branch of it. It is not right to define Islam as an "Economic System" or a "system of economic living", like capitalism or socialism. So when we talk of Islamic way of economic living or its conceptions or fundamentals, we should not expect that the Holy Qur'an and the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ contain theories and conceptions similar to those enunciated in the books of Adam Smith, Marshall and other economists. This is because Islam, in its entity and origin is not an economic system, but it is a comprehensive mode of life of which economics forms a very small branch. Islam has, indeed, laid stress on this branch but it has not declared it to be the aim of life. It should be borne in mind that, while on this subject, we shall not find in the Holy Qur'an and the Prophet's sunnah such economic theories, conceptions, terms and terminologies as are generally found in the various books of Economics. One can, however, find in Islam those basic conceptions on which the foundation of an "economic system" can be laid. This is why in my personal conversation and writings I like to use the term "the Economic Teachings of Islam" instead of the term "Islam's Economic System". Now what shape does the economy of living take in the light of the teachings of Islam and what is the framework that emerges before us? This question is of a great importance for a student of Economics.'

Economics is not a basic problem of life.

Another point to note is that "Economics" is no doubt a very important branch of the Islamic teachings. You may get an idea of the amplitude of the Islamic teachings on the subject of Economics from the fact that if any book on Islamic jurisprudence is divided into four parts then of these four parts the two will be found to deal with the "Economics". You might have heard the famous book 'Hidayah' on Jurisprudence with its four volumes. Its last two volumes deal mostly with teaching on "Economics". From this you can form an idea of the amplitude of the teachings of Islam on the subject of Economics. It must, however, be borne in mind always that in Islam "Economics" is not a basic problem of human life. In all other secular economic systems this has been considered to be the greatest basic problem of human life, on which the foundations of all related systems have been laid. As against this, in Islam the subject of Economics does occupy an important place, but it is not a basic problem of human life.

The Final Destination is the Hereafter.

The basic problem in Islam really, revolves round the belief that this world which man is inhabiting is not his final destination nor is it the target of his aspiration. It is rather a stage to take him to the final destination.

This world is only a transitional stage. This transitional stage should also be transversed with due care and piety yet it is not consistant with the basic characteristics of Islam which forbid that one should exhaust one's total endeavours, energies and exertions on the betterment of this world.

Islam has indeed laid great stress on the (resources of this) world as means of living, so much so that this has been given the name of Khair (Goodness) and Allah's Fazl (Bounty) and the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith:

طَلَبُ كسبِ الحلال فريضةٌ بعد الفريضةِ (كنز العمال حديث نمبر ٩٢٣١)

(Kanzul Ummal, Hadith no: 9231)

This means: To earn a living by lawful means occupies the second position among the obligatory duties imposed on man. It has also been commanded that one should not make it the pivot of all one's effort and exertions because beyond this world lies the Hereafter which is eternal and which everyone has to enter. The amelioration of this Hereafter and its welfare are really the most important duty of man.

A most befitting example of the world.

Maulana Rumi رحمة الله عليه has explained this conception of Islam through a very beautiful example:

آب اندر زیر کشتی پشتی است
آب در کشتی ہلاک کشتی است

(مفتاح العلوم شرح مثنوی مولانا روم جلد ۲ ص ۳۷)

(Miftahul 'Uloom, Key to the Masnavi, vol. II, p. 37)

The world and man have been compared to water and a boat respectively. Just as a boat can not sail without water in the same way man cannot do without the world and its resources. However, this water is useful for the boat as long as it remains below and around it. If the water gets into the boat, instead of supporting it, it will drown it. In the same way these worldly things and resources are very profitable for man without which he cannot live. They are, however, beneficial only as long as they are around and below the boat of man's heart. If these worldly resources get into the boat of man's heart, they will drown and perish him.

This is the conception of Islam about "Economics". This, however, never means that this is totally useless. No, it is something very useful, because Islam does not teach its followers monasticism. The world and its resources are useful for man as long as they are procured and used within the prescribed, lawful limits and they are not made the basic aim and aspiration of life.

After the clarification of these two basic points we should now try to ascertain the basic problems of any economic system and how they have been solved by the capitalistic and the socialistic systems and thirdly, how Islam has solved them.

What does "Economics" of living mean?

In so far as the first question is concerned as to what the basic problems of "Economics" are, even the primary student of economics knows that the basic problems of Economics" are four. Before understanding these four problems we must first be sure about the meaning of the term economics which is called Iqtisad (اقتصاد) in the Arabic language. The dictionary meaning of this term is "man's efforts to satisfy his necessaries of life economically; in other words the science of "Economics" too contains a sense of economy, in fact it is derived from the word economy. Man is facing a situation in which his wants are much more than the supplies with which he can satisfy his wants. If the resources had been equal to the necessaries and wants of man, the science of "Economics" would not have come into existence. The fact is that the needs of human life are more than the supplies necessary to satisfy them, and this disparity has given rise to the science of Economics. Then it became necessary to devise ways and means to remedy this disparity so as to make both ends meet. This is indeed the subject of the science of Economics. Four basic problems are involved in the study of the science of Economics.

1. Determination of Priorities

The first problem involved in "Economics is called, in the terminalogy of Economics, the determination of priorities. A man's means and resources are limited, but his needs and necessaries are more than his means. He has, therefore, to decide which of his needs he should first meet and postpone the rest. For example, a man has only Rs 50/- which he can spend on any of these items: flour for bread, garments, refreshment in some hotel, or enjoyment of a film-show in a cinema hall. The man concerned has to decide on which of these items he should spend this amount of Rs. 50/- and which he should ignore. This is what is meant by the Determination of Priorities.

Just as an individual is confronted with this problem in the same way, the entire state, country and the entire Economy are confronted with it. For example, Pakistan possesses some natural resources, man-power, mineral resources, and financial resources, but they are all limited. Against these, our needs are unlimited. We can utilize these resources in raising crops of wheat, rice or tobacco, or we may also squander them all on enjoyments and luxuries. All these options are available for us. The foremost problem facing any economic system is to determine priorities, and how.

2. Allocation of Resources.

The second problem is known in the terminalogy of Economics as the "Allocation of Resources i.e., how should we distribute these and in what proportions, among the various items of expenditure we have to meet? For example, we have land, factories and man power. We have to decide what areas of the available land should be allocated to the cultivation of wheat, cotton and rice. In the terminology of Economics it is called "Allocation of Resources".

3. Distribution of Income.

The third problem relates to the "Distribution of Income", i.e. the result of Productions viz, the income received from production has to be distributed amongst the various classes of the society. This is technically known as Distribution of Income.

4. Development.

The fourth problem is called, in the terminalogy of Economics. "Development". This requires us to consider how we can develop our economic activities to ensure that the quantity, quality and the standard of the commodities produced may not deteriorate, but continue improving. In addition to this research work should be done to find out and introduce new commodities.

These are the four problems which every branch of economic activity has to face and solve. After having tackled these problems it is necessary to find out how the prevailing economic systems have tackled and solved these problems. It is only then that we will be able to understand how Islam has tackled and solved these problems. You might have heard this Arabic proverb:

وبضدها تتبين الاشياء

This means that we come to know the reality of things by looking at their opposites. It is the darkness of night that brings out the value and brilliance of the daylight. Man could not appreciate the bliss of the refreshing rains, if there was no stiffling heat. In the light of this proverb we have to review briefly how the prevailing economic systems have solved these problems.

Their solution in the capitalistic system.

First of all we take capitalism. This system has tried to solve all these four problems, as it were, by one magic wand and that is by leaving every man free to earn as much profit as possible. In this way as man goes on exerting himself to earn profits to the best of his ability, all these problems will be solved automatically. It is, however, necessary to consider how all this will lead to automatic solution to these four problems.

This question may be answered by saying that the laws of Nature are in operation in this universe. One of these is called the law of Supply and Demand. Besides students of Economics, every common man knows that the price of a commodity increases when its supply is less than its demand, and conversly the price decreases when the supply of the commodity is more than its demand. For example, if the quantity of mangoes available for sale in the market is less than the number of the customers, the price will go up and conversely if the available quantity of mangoes is more than the buyers of mangoes the price will go down. In short, according to this law of Supply and Demand the price of a commodity increases or decreases in sympathy with the decrease or increase in the supply of that commodity.

According to the capitalistic system it is the law of Supply and Demand that determines what should be produced and in what quantity and how the resources should be allocated. When we have allowed everyone in this system to earn as much profit as possible, for his maximum profit he will produce only that commodity which has a roaring demand in the market.

If I want to start a business today I shall ascertain first of all which commodity commands a great demand in the market, so that by bringing that commodity in the market I may earn my maximum profit by selling my merchandise at a good price.

Thus, working under the incentive of their profit the people will bring to the market only that commodity that has a good demand. On the other hand they will refrain from bringing more of it to the market. because if they increase its supply its price will decrease and they may sustain loss or may not maintain the level of their profits. It is believed that it is the law of Supply and Demand that determines the quality and qauntity and the type of the commodities to be produced and offered for sale in the market. The same law also determines the allocation of resources, i.e., man will utilize his land and his factory in producing that commodity which has a greater demand in the country and brings more profit to the businessman. In other words, these four problems are solved in the Capitalistic system on the basis of the law of Supply and Demand and this process is called Price Mechanism.

The same law of supply and demand applies to the problem of Distribution of Income. For example, an industrialist opens a factory to manufacture some commodity and engages a few labourers to run the factory. A question now arises in what ratio the income earned from the factory should be shared between the industrialist and the labourers. This too will be settled under the operation of the law of Supply and Demand, i.e. the greater the demand for the labourers, the more will be their wages. Conversely, the less the demand for the workers, the less will be their wages.

The last problem of Development will also be solved on the same basis. When under the Capitalistic System everybody is bent upon earning the maximum profit, he will try to make such inventions and introduce such devices as may attract to his factory the largest number of workers.

Thus, if everyone is left free to earn the maximum amount of profit, these four problems will be solved automatically. The same law determines the Priorities, the Allocation of Resources, the Distribution of Income and the pace of Economic Devolopment. This is the theory of Capitalism.

Their Solution in Socialism.

When Socialism came into the picture of world economics it protested against the prevailing system of entrusting every thing to the tyrannical and relentless forces of the market which are controlled by the law of Supply and Demand. The belief under this law that production should follow the trends of the Demand may be correct in theory, but man is able to ascertain the correct position of the Demand after a very long time and often his calculation about the Demand is misleading and unreliable. His action to increase or decrease production on this misleading calculation leads him to loss and causes depression of business in the market. The depression is very devastating for country's economy. Matters cannot, therefore, be left to the blind forces of the law of Supply and Demand.

Capitalism had, as we have seen, presented a magic wand, and socialism presented another magic rod, claiming that all these four problems could be solved by putting all the factors of production under collective instead of individual control and ownership. This could be done by giving over charge to the Government of all the factors of production. After having taken charge of these factors, it would be the responsibility of the Government to plan the allocation of these factors, viz. how much land should be allotted to the cultivation of wheat and how much to that of rice or cotton and so on so forth. Similarly how many factories should produce cloth and how many should manufacture shoes? All these and related matters would be handled by the Government. The Government would also plan and chalk out the scales of wages to be paid to the workers. Thus, it was only the Government that would take decisions about Priorities, Allocation of resources, Distribution of Income and the Development plans.

Under Socialism all these activities are entrusted to the Government and its Planning Department. That is why socialistic economy is also called Planned Economy. As the Capitalistic Economy has surrendered its Economy to be governed by the law of Supply and Demand, operating in the market, it is also called Market Economy and laissez faire Economy.

These are two different theories which are presently in vogue in the world.

The Basic Principles of Capitalistic Economy.

The first principle that emanates from the philosophy of the Capitalistic Economy is private ownership. In other words, any individual can be the owner of all factors of production in his private capacity. The other principle is the Principle of laissez faire Policy of the state which means the principle of non-interference, which allow man a free hand in earning profit without any let or hindrance. The third principle is the principle of personal incentive to profit-earning and that impetus should be given to this incentive to stimulate and accelerate economic activities. These are the basic principles of the Capitalistic system.

The Basic principles of Socialism.

As against this, the basic principles of Socialism consist in the total abolition of private ownership in so far as the factors of production are concerned. In other words, the factors of production cannot form the private property of anyone, i.e., neither, the land, nor the factory can be owned by anyone as his private property. The other principle consists in the need that everything should be done under well planned programmes. These are two different theories that have been mentioned to you.

The Results of Socialism.

By now the results of both systems have appeared and are before us. You have seen the consequences of Socialism that only within a period of seventy four years the building of the entire system has collapsed and its greatest advocates and supporters are seen lying prostrate and defeated. This is despite the fact that "nationalisation" remained in vogue in the world like a flourishing fashion. If anyone ever spoke against it he was dubbed as an agent of Capitalism and retrogressive person. But today the President of Russia is himself declaring:

> I wish that this theory of socialism had been experimented in some small country of Africa instead of in Russia. In the least it would have saved us from its devastating consequences.

Socialism was an unnatural system.

At any rate, socialism was an unnatural system. The world is teeming with countless social problems, in addition to its economic problems. If we try to solve them through planning they can never find a solution. After all, this is also a social problem that man has to marry a woman and for this he has to find out for him a suitable wife. Similarly a woman needs a suitable husband for her. If anyone proposes that the institution of marriage should be entrusted to the Government and it should be left to the Planning Department to select matching bridegrooms and brides, because the existing system of private selection by individuals is not efficient. The system controlled by individuals and private families results in frequent divorces and family disruptions, leading to so many social problems. If the question of marriage is sought to be solved in this way, it will indeed be quite unnatural and no good can be expected from such an experiment.

This is exactly what is taking place in Socialism in which the settlement of all problems have been left to Government's planning. Now who will do this planning? This will be done by the Government which is controlled and run not by angels but by a group of men liable to commit all sorts of mistakes. The socialists complain that the capitalists control the entire resources of the country and appropriate them to their advantage as they like. The advocates of socialism do not see that although the smaller capitalists have disappeared from the scene, yet their place has been taken by a single all-dominant and over-bearing capitalist which is called "Bureaucracy" and is composed of dominant Government officers. This body controls all the factors of production and other resources of the country. Who can guarantee that the members of this body could not do wrongs and injustice. After all, they were not innocent angels. The system did develop defects and evils in its body and we have all seen how it collapsed and disappeared from the international forum so disgracefully in such a short period of time, in less than a century.

The Evils of the Socialistic systems.

The capitalistic countries of the west are very vehemently expressing joy and satisfaction on the collapse of socialism. They think that the failure of Socialism is a proof of the truth and soundness of Capitalism. Thus, in their opinion, this is the only feasible system on which the world shall have to fall back.

It needs to be understood that the philosophy of the capitalistic system is based on the existence of a free market and likewise freedom of the people to earn profit to the best of their ability. In theory this philosophy appears to be quite reasonable and plausible, yet it totally failed when action was carried to extremity. It is true that when the people are left free to earn profit without any restrictions, the law of Supply and Demand will come into play and set matters right, but it must be noted that this will happen only when there is free competition in the market which is not hampered by the hurdles of monopoly.

For example, you want to purchase a walking stick from the market and there are many shopkeepers in the market who sell sticks at various prices ranging from Rs. 400/-, 450/-, 500/- per stick. I am free to purchase a stick at any of these prices. In such a situation the forces of Supply and Demand will operate in the normal way. On the other hand if there is only one shopkeeper in the market who owns a monopoly to sell sticks, I have no alternative but to purchase the stick from this shopkeeper at whatever price he charges from me. Here the forces of Supply and Demand fail to operate and do not take their natural course. Thus, the forces of Supply and Demand operate in a free atmosphere and fail where a monoplistic system is in operation.

Again when a man is left scot-free to earn profit to the best of his ability, he uses whatever method he finds useful to his end. As a result, the evil of monopoly finds its way to the market. As regards Capitalism it leaves man to earn profit by any method whatsoever, be it interest, gambling, and speculation all of which are unlawful and strictly prohibited in the laws of the Shari'ah. As a result of this freedom, sometimes monopolies spring up and the forces of Supply and Demand fail to operate and become totally paralysed. As a result of all this in actual practice the philosophy of Capitalism does not come into play.

The other evil that is born out of the unhampered freedom allowed for earning profit, is that there remains no moral value to determine what is useful and what is harmful for the society. I recently read in the famous American Magazine, the Times, that a model girl charges 25 million Dollars per day for being photographed for advertising products. One will surely ask where from does the businessman concerned gets this huge amount for advertisement? Obviously he will extract this amount from the common consumers, as this amount will be added to the cost of the product.

Look at these Five-Star Hotels! Their one day's rent ranges from Rs. 2500/- to Rs. 3000/- A man of average means cannot think of staying there. Yet all these hotels have been built with the earnings of the common public. Generally Government Officers stay at these hotels at Government costs and this comes out of the tax-payers' money. The other class that stays in these hotels are the rich Businessmen and Industrialists during their business tours. From which source do they meet the high charges of these hotels? They do not pay the charges out of their own pockets but they include the charges in the cost of the products which they bring to the market for sale, which, in turn, becomes a part of the price recovered from the consumers.

There is, thus, no moral standard or moral yard-stick to guage as to which way of earning profit is useful and which is harmful for the society. This naturally breeds immoralities, injustice and many forms of other wrongs.

Islamic injunctions of Economic Issues

Now I turn to the economic teachings of Islam, so that they may be understood well in the foregoing background. Islam admits the truth of this basic philosophy that the economic problems should be solved under the forces of the market instead of by Planning. The Holy Qur'an says:

نَحْنُ قَسَمْنَا بَيْنَهُمْ مَّعِيْشَتَهُمْ فِى الْحَيٰوةِ الدُّنْيَا وَرَفَعْنَا بَعْضَهُمْ فَوْقَ بَعْضٍ دَرَجَاتٍ لِّيَتَّخِذَ بَعْضُهُمْ بَعْضاً سُخْرِيًّا ؕ (الزخرف:٣٢)

We have apportioned among them their livelihood in the life of the world, and have raised some of them above others in rank that some of them may take labour from others. (43:32)

In other words Almighty Allah has created this universe and its administrative setup and He has devised a system for the distribution of its means of livelihood and resources, fixation of price and other related issues. The solution to these issues does not come from planning. Almighty Allah has so devised the systems of the life in this world that the resources and means of livelihood become distributed automatically. When Allah says that "We have apportioned livelihood", it does not mean that He has personally made this apportionment. It only means that Allah has devised such laws of nature that these means of livelihood and resources find their automatic distribution among the people. In another Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned a very beautiful principle of livelihood and its apportionment:

دعوالناس يرزق الله بعضهم من بعض (صحيح مسلم كتاب البيوع باب تحريم بيع الحاضر للبادى حديث نمبر ١٥٢٢)

(Sahih Muslim, the Book of sales... Hadith no: 1522)

This means: Let people be free to work for their livelihood as it is Allah who provides them livelihood by means of one another. They should therefore, not be subjected to unnecessary checks and restrictions. Allah has devised a very wonderful economic system. For example, it occurred to me that I should purchase some fruit, say mangoes, and it occurred to a fruit-seller in the market to sell mangoes. I went to the market, saw a man there selling mangoes. After settling the price with him. I purchased some mangoes and paid the seller the price. This Hadith prescribes free trade and open competition against monopoly and artificial restrictions.

Islam accepts this basic principle that it is the natural market conditions that regulate these dealings of sale and purchase. Islam, however, does not accept the basic distinctive theory of Capitalism that the economics of livelihood should be left free and unhampered at the mercy of the forces of the market. Islam advocates that man should not be left so free that he encroaches upon the freedom of another person and establishes his monopoly in the market. Islam has, therefore, imposed some restrictions on this freedom, which may be divided in three categories:

(1) Restrictions imposed by the laws of the Shari'ah. This may also be called Religious Restrictions;
(2) Moral Restrictions;
(3) Legal Restrictions.

(1) Religious Restrictions.

The first category of restrictions, based on the religion of Islam, is very important which distinguishes Islamic conception from other economic ideologies. After having recanted its basic principles, the capitalistic system has stooped so low that now the Government is able to interfere with it in one way or another. This interference from Government is based on personal intellect and worldly conceptions. On the other hand the restrictions imposed by Islam are based on moral and religious conceptions. What are these moral and religious restrictions? These are total abstension from interest, gambling, hoarding, monopoly, speculation. Islam has totally forbidden these immoral and sinful dealings. Ordinarily, Islam allows dealings between two persons or groups on the basis of mutual agreement and regards such dealings as lawful, Islam, however, does not permit mutual agreement on dealings which may lead to the ruin of the social integrity and morality and are against the Shari'ah. For example, mutual agreement on usurious dealings has been totally forbidden in Islam, because this leads to serious corruption and degeneration of the society. Many books have been written on the evils of interest which cannot be enumerated here, yet I set before you a simple example which will give you a little idea of the devastating effects of this evil, that is interest.

The Evils of the Interest - bearing system.

The theory of interest is based on the fact that one party's gain is guaranteed but the other party's gain is quite uncertain. A man borrows some money from someone on interest. The money lender is sure to get the amount of interest accrued on the money lent. As for the borrower, he has to pay the amount of interest to the money-lender at an agreed rate every year, whether the business carried on with that borrowed money results in profit or loss. So, the debtor's gain is not guaranteed at all and some times he is a loser.

Sometimes it so happens that the debtor makes a huge profit with his loan. Suppose a man starts business with a capital amount of Rs. ten crores (10,00,00,000) borrowed from a Bank on interest and he makes a profit of 50%. Out of this profit he pays to the Bank only 15% and appropriates the remaining 35% of the profit to his own end. Now consider, with whose money did he conduct the business? It was public money and 35% of the profit earned on that money went into one man's pocket i.e, the businessman. The remaining 15% went to the Bank. After deducting therefrom its own share the Bank distributed a small portion thereof, say 10%, among its depositors. The result was that out of the profit of 50% earned with public money only 10% is distributed among the public and 35% thereof goes to one man's pocket. The public becomes quite satisfied with their deposit of Rs. 100/- which became Rs. 110/-at the end of the year, but they do not know that even this meagre profit of 10%-reverts to the capitalist businessman. That is because the payment of 15% which he paid to the Bank will be added to the cost of the product and will be reflected in the price of the commodity produced. Thus the businessman will recover this amount from the cusumers. As a result of this vicious circle the businessman ultimately reaps the profit in every respect and remains safe and secure from the risk of loss. Even if he ever suffers any loss the Insurance companies are there to cover his loss and they also pay this compensation out of the money of the premiums charged from the policy holders in periodical instalments. Thus the Capitalistic system thrives on the public money.

I have tried in the foregoing lines to give only a faint idea of the interest-ridden system of public economy which breeds injustice. inequity and unfairness in the distribution of wealth which the Islamic Shari'ah has strictly forbidden.

The Benefits of Partnership and Muzarabah (cooperative enterprise)

If this very business was based on the principle of partnership and Muzarabah (cooperative profit - Sharing), it would not be necessary for the borrower and the Bank to agree on an interest rate of 15%. The agreement between the parties would be based on the principle of profit-sharing, viz., the businessman and the Bank would share the profit, say, on 50:50 basis. In other words, if the rate of profit was 50%, 25% of it would go to the Bank and the remaining 25% to the businessman. In this way the trend of wealth would be downwards and not upwards, because the depositors would receive on their deposits through the Bank 25% of the profit earned. It is thus obvious that interest-taking adversely affects the process of distribution of wealth which, in turn, disturbs the smooth economic process.

Gambling is unlawful

Islam has totally prohibited gambling. In gambling a man places at stake some fixed amount of money. The money so invested will either be lost or will bring with it a much larger amount to the gambler. Gambling has many attractive forms. It is very strange that gambling is unlawful in many western countries, but when it takes a civilized shape it becomes lawful and legal. For example, if a poor man is gambling on the roadside the police shall apprehend him. On the other hand, if gambling is given some other name and is commited under the protection and auspices of some gambling association, it is considered to be lawful. Such form of camouflaged gambling is very common in today's capitalistic system. Small amounts collected from many persons are handed over to a few fortunate persons in the form of huge sums of money. The various forms of lotteries so widely prevailing in the world are nothing but a form of gambling. Islam has, therefore, totally prohibited gambling.

Monopoly

Monopoly is also prohibited in Islam. Everyone is well aware of this evil, so no prolonged discussion is considered necessary on the topic of monopoly.

Hoarding is not Lawful.

Iktinaaz, i.e. hoarding of monetary resources so as not to pay zakat (the compulsory tax) and other dues levied by the Shari'ah. This is also forbidden in Islam.

(1) Another Example

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said in a Hadith:

"لا يبع حاضر لباد" (صحيح مسلم كتاب البيوع باب تحريم الحاضر للبادى حديث نمبر ١٥٢٢)

(Sahih Muslim. Book of sales.... Hadith no: 1522)

No one living in a city should sell merchandise belonging to a villager.

A villager brings his commodity for sale in the nearby city, but a person living in the city offers to sell the villager's commodity on his behalf. Apparently this involves no objection, because both the parties agree to this arrangement. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has, however, forbidden such a bargain. This is because the city-dweller will hold the commodity back from the market until the price rises up. This will cause dearness and shortage. If the villager himself sells his commodity, he will desire to sell it as early as possible and return home. In such a case the price of the commodity will be determined by the real Supply and the real Demand. In the case of the presence of a middleman the free operation of the law of Supply and Demand will be disturbed, leading to increase in the price.

Thus, the Islamic Shari'ah has blocked all doors to the birth of dearness, injustice and inequity in the society. This is the first restriction which has been imposed on this free economic activity in trading.

(2) Moral Restriction.

The second restriction which has been imposed on free Economic activities is called "Moral Restricition". There are many things and acts which are called "Mubah" (permissible) in the terminalogy of the Shari'ah. They are neither unlawful nor are there any orders to do them. The people have, however, been induced to do these "Mubah" or permissible things. I have already mentioned that Islam is not the name of an Economic system. It is a religion and a mode of life. The first lesson which Islam teaches is that the final goal of man is the Hereafter, and the blessings and prosperity provided for man there. Islam does not stand in the way of a Muslim in earning profit for himself, but Islam attaches more importance to the effort which a Muslim puts in the way of ameliorating his life after death, that is the Hereafter. Islam has, therefore, taught us to earn profit in this world by lawful means but not at the cost of the Hereafter which is his final abode.

Islam has taught us to avoid evils and do good deeds in this world which will be beneficial in this world, but their benefit in the Hereafter will be countless. For example, if a man goes to the market with the intention that his dealings in the market will be useful not only for himself but for the society as a whole, this deed of him will become an act of worship and deserving of reward from Allah. In capitalism the capitalist satisfies the demand of the people without considering whether that demand is moral or immoral, but Islam always takes into consideration the moral and ethical aspects of our activities. A worldly wise businessman will not hesitate in opening a brewery when he finds that there is a brisk demand for wine and the enterprise will be very profitable - an act which Islam does not allow. If a man finds that if he invests his money on the construction of houses, knowing that the enterprise is not very profitable but it will relieve the people of a great difficulty by providing them with accommodation at reasonable rental, his act will be of high morality and value in the sight of Allah. Thus, Islam attaches more importance to moral and religious values than to profit - earning for worldly purposes only.

(3) Legal Restriction.

The third restriction is the legal restriction. If an Islamic Government feels that it is necessary, in the interest of Islam as well as the moral integrity of the people, to guide them on a particular track, Islam allows the Government to issue a suitable ordinance for this purpose and that ordinance will be binding on the people.

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْٓا اَطِيْعُوا اللّٰهَ وَاَطِيْعُوا الرَّسُوْلَ وَ اُولِى الْاَمْرِ مِنْكُمْ ۚ (سورة النساء ٥٩)

This means: O you believers! Obey Allah and obey the Messenger and those of you who are in authority. (4:59)

By those "who are in authority" are meant, as say the jurists, the high officials of a truly Islamic Government. Thus, if the Government finds it expedient for some reason that the people should observe fast on a particular day. It will issue an order to this effect and the people will have to obey that order. Those who defy this order will commit a sin, because it is an obligatory duty to obey this order in compliance with the above verse of the Holy Qur'an. (Shami, vol. iv p-464. Ruhul Ma'ani. vol. 5. p-66).

The jurists have also written that if "those in authority" issue an order that people should not eat melon, it will become unlawful for the people to eat melon. "Those in authority" have been authorised to issue such orders on the condition that the orders should serve some interest of the people. This may include partial planning. For example, the Government may order the people to invest money on such and such scheme and avoid investment on other schemes. Government can legally impose such restrictions within the limits of the Shar'iah.

Summary.

This brings out the basic difference between Capitalism and Islamic economic system. As regards legal restrictions, they are also found in capitalism but they are the product of the human mind. In Islam the restrictions are based on religion which is derived from Divine Revelations in which the lawful and unlawful, the useful and the harmful for man are declared by Allah who is the Creator of the Universe. Humanity cannot take the right course of harmony and moderation, unless it turns to ways shown by Allah.

Socialism has, indeed, been defeated, but have the evils and inequities of capitalism been also defeated and eradicated? No, they as usual linger even today and their remedy lies in the restrictions imposed by Allah. Man cannot get peace and prosperity, unless he accepts and abides by the restrictions imposed by Allah, through the Islamic Shari'ah. It is our misfortune that we have not so far been able to bring before the world a practical form of economic system based on the 'Divine Restrictions'. It is a great challenge before this Islamic Jumhuriyah of Pakistan that it should bring before the world a practical example of these economic teachings, so that the world may know the basic characteristics of the Islamic economic system and how they can be adopted.

I think that I have taken your time more than my due and I also feel that I have kept you engaged in rather an uninteresting subject. I am also grateful to you that you have given me a patient hearing during this discussion.

May Almighty Allah make this useful for the listeners as well as for myself and bring out better results out of it. Aameen.

Vanue : Madarsah Ashraful - ʿUlum
Liqquat Colony
Hyderabad
Date : 22nd March 1988

THE WEALTH OF THE QUR'AN ITS VALUE AND GREATNESS

الحمد لله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرو انفسنا ومن سيّات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يُضْلِلْهُ فلا هادى له واشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له واشهدان سيدنا وسند نا وشفيعنا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله ـ صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا ـ

اما بعد!

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطٰن الرجيم بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

اِنَّ هٰذَا الْقُرْاٰنَ يَهْدِىْ لِلَّتِىْ هِىَ اَقْوَمُ (بنی اسرائیل:۹)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم وصدق رسوله النبى الكريم ونحن

على ذالك من الشاهدين والشاكرين والحمدلله رب العٰلمين ۔

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His assistance and forgiveness. We believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is none to let him go astray whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah, the one Who has no partner. I bear witness that our sire, our authority, our intercessor and our master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah Almighty have mercy on him, on his household, his companions and bless them and salute them in great abundance.

Surely, this Qur'an guides to that which is the straightest (17:9).

Respected Ulama, honoured saints and dear brothers! It is a great bounty of Allah that I am attending a meeting which has been held at the end of the academic year of the teaching of the Holy Qur'an during which many boys have completed their Hafizah (memorisation) of the Holy Qur'an. It is a matter of the greatest blessing for every Muslim to participate in a meeting held to mark the completion of the learning and teaching of the Holy Qur'an

May Almighty Allah help us all to share this honour and blessing.

Value of the Blessings and wealth of the Qur'an.

In fact today we are not aware of the blessings and the value of the Hoy Qur'an. Our boys learn the Holy Qur'an, some memorise it and become Hafiz-e-Qur'an.

We, by Allah's grace, express on such occasions joy and satisfaction on this achievement. The truth still remains that, it is not possible for us in this world to realize correctly the blessings and the inestimable wealth of the Holy Qur'an. This is because Almighty Allah has graced us with this wealth of the Holy Qur'an as a free gift without any toil or sacrifice on our part. We had to put in no efforts and offer no sacrifices to attain this blessing, nor did we spend any money to gain it. That is why we fail to realize, as it should be realized, the value and blesings of this wealth. Just go through the biographies of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم of the Holy Prophet ﷺ who put at stake their wealth, lives, their peace and comfort and even their honour and prestige to learn a single verse of the Holy Qur'an. It is difficult to find in the annals of human history examples of such sacrifice and dedication.

The Holy Qur'an and the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم

We are not fully aware of the difficulties, hurdles, distresses and the tortures which the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم endured for the sake of a single verse of the Holy Qur'an. We have before us the Holy Qur'an in a very beautifully and artistically bound volume. Qur'an schools are open from place to place and teachers are available to teach the Holy Qur'an. All that we have to do is to avail ourselves of these very cheap facilities like gulping a morsel of food, but even this we do not do as it should be done. We take all these things very easy.

Ask the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم about the value of the Holy Qur'an who took floggings, endured tortures from the infidels to get small verses of the Holy Qur'an. Today it seems hardly credible to realise what tyrannies and tortures they endured in the path of acquiring and learning the verses of the Holy Qur'an. There is a story of a Companion رضی اللہ عنہم recorded in the Sahih Bukhari. He was a small boy at the time of the Holy Prophet ﷺ who lived in a village situated at a long distance from Madinah Munaw-warah. It was not possible for him to travel to Madinah. He had embraced Islam, but it was very difficult for him to go to Madinah Munawwarah to learn religion from the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He himself relates his story:

"I would daily go to the road leading to Madinah and wait for some caravan coming from the Holy City. When some caravan came I would ask if anyone of them remembered a verse of the Holy Qur'an. If so, he may kindly teach me that verse. In this way I was able to collect in my memory a good many verses of the Holy Qur'an, one by one, two by two or three by three from these caravans.

Ask of them the value of the Holy Qur'an who had to beg these caravan people to teach them one or two verses. As for ourselves, we have in our possession the Holy Qur'an in its complete form, in beautifully bound volumes, we forget the toils and sacrifices of the men of God who so laboriously collected and conveyed the Holy Book to us. All that we have now to do is to learn the Qur'an, try to understand it then act upon its injunctions. It is, as if, the table has been laid before us and we have only to extend our hands to partake of the feast. That is why we do not value the Qur'an as it deserves to be valued.

Every Muslim knows full well the ordeal of Hazrat Umar's sister and her husband رضی اللہ عنہ Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ had not embraced Islam by that time, and these two persons knew that if Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ came to know about their recitation of the Holy Qur'an he would severely punish them. They, therefore, learnt and recited the Holy Qur'an very secretly.

It so happened that one day, instigated by the infidels of Makkah, Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ was going to kill the Holy Prophet ﷺ. When a man came to know Hazrat Umar's intention he told him tauntingly: You are going to kill Muhammad ﷺ but you do not care for what is happening in your own house. Being taken aback by this taunt Hazrat 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ at once turned back towards his house. He رضی اللہ عنہ saw there that his sister and his brother-in-law were learning and reciting the surah Taa-haa. It is not necessary to relate the whole story, as it is lengthy and well known to every Muslim.

It is to say that the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم got the wealth of the Holy Qur'an by putting in great exertions and making tremendous sacrifices, and that is why they recognised and valued the worth and value of the Divine Book. We do not realize the value of the Holy Qur'an because this inestimable wealth has come to us without any effort on our part. As long as these eyes are open, the world's administration is on foot, and we are alive, our eyes and our minds are fixed on its apparent glamour and temptations, enjoyments and pleasures. The time is not very far away when man will leave this world for the Hereafter through the dark grave, the doorway to the next world. Man will realize the value, esteem, and blessings of the Qur'an then and there. He will know what light what blessing and what bounty each single verse of the Qur'an has for those who esteemed and honoured it.

The reward for reciting the Holy Qur'an.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said in a Hadith: When anyone recites the Holy Qur'an he gets ten virtues for one letter. He ﷺ went on elucidating this Hadith:

I do not say that الم (Alif laam-meem) is one letter; it consists of three letters Alif, Laam and Meem. Thus when a man recites this word thirty virtures will be recorded in his Record of Deeds.

Some men doubt about the benefit of reciting the Holy Qur'an without understanding it. They maintain that it is a prescription of guidance, requiring to be understood and then acted upon. What is the use, they say, of committing it to memory and uttering its words like a parrot? The Holy Prophet ﷺ has stated that the Qur'an is indeed, a prescription of cure for those who recite it and act upon its injunctions by understanding them, but even a person who recites it without understanding it is rewarded, by Allah's mercy, ten virtues for each word as elucidated by the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

The reason for showing apathy to the Holy Qur'an.

Why is it that no desire, interest or attraction is born to reap these virtues and bounties by reciting the Holy Qur'an with or without understanding its meaning, because the virtues and Divine Rewards are not the Legal tender of our present world. It carries no meaning to the worldly men of today to talk of increasing virtues in the Record of Deeds and generous compensation in the Hereafter for doing good turns in this world. Man's heart would feel elated if it was said that ten rupees would be paid for each single word and the recitation of (Alif-lam-meem) would thus earn thirty rupees. People would rush to the recitation of the Holy Qur'an if the recitation was compensated in terms of money. We are not moved at all at the prospects of the reward for good deeds in the Hereafter. People today think in terms of money and not virtues and good deeds. They think that with the increase of money they can purchase more necessaries and luxuries of life, but they cannot purchase a car, nor can they build a house with these unseen virtues and bounties. It is difficult to convince them that just as the Pounds, Rupees and Dollars are the legal tenders in this world these virtues and good deeds are legal tender of the Hereafter.

The value of the virtues, good deeds and good turns vis-a-vis the current coins will be realized, the moment the eyes are closed, the heart fails to pulsate and the doors to the next world are opened for the departed souls.

Who is a real pauper?

It occurs in a Hadith that the Holy Prophet ﷺ once asked the Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم to tell him ﷺ who was a pauper, and what the word pauper meant. The Noble companions رضی الله عنهم replied: O Prophet ﷺ of Allah, a pauper is one who has no money. A man who has no gold or silver coins is indeed poor. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said that a person who had no worldly wealth was not a real pauper, and asked them: Who is a real pauper? After putting the question he ﷺ himself answered his question, saying: A real pauper is that person whose scale of deeds will be weighty with good deeds when he is presented before Allah on the Day of Judgement. He will have to his credit virtues of prayers, fasting, Hajj and Zakat, Allah's remembrance, teaching and preaching Deen and other services to Islam and to the servants of Allah, etc.

When these good deeds were presented before Allah along with him, it appeared that he had not discharged the rights of Allah's servants due by him. He had beaten someone, abused and backbitten some person, had attacked to kill someone, disgraced some one's honour, deprived a man of his money by fraud. In fact despite all his good deeds, he had hurt his fellow men with his tongue and hands and in many other ways. It was Allah's court of Justice: Those who had been wronged were commanded to recover their dues from that man. But alas he had no money there to pay off his debt. He therefore, had to pay his creditors with his good deeds which alone will be legal tender in the Hereafter. The reward of his prayers, Haj, Zakat, remembrance, teaching and preaching Deen was all exhausted yet the claims of some creditors remained unpaid who would press for compensation. Rendered so helpless and destitute, nothing will be left with him to pay his debt to others. As the only remedy the bad deeds of his creditor's will be wiped off their records and debited to the account of this man who had appeared with heaps of good deeds and virtues but it all disappeared in no time.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ told the people how this man was rendered destitute and a pauper not only because all his good deeds were exhausted in payment of his debts to others, but also because the bad deeds of others were added to his account. See how this man had come with a heap of good deeds and is now going with a heap of bad deeds. May Allah save us from such a horrible situation.

The importance of rights of the servants of Allah.

One must be cautious about these rights of the servants of Allah. To usurp the rights of the people whether they are in the form of money, honour or life is a very grievous sin. Other sins are forgiven through repentance, but the sin of usurping the rights of the servants of Allah cannot be forgiven through repentance. Sins like drinking wine, adultery, gambling etc., are forgiven if the sinner repents for them sincerely before Almighty Allah by uttering the words

اَسْتَغْفِرُ اللّٰهَ رَبِّیْ مِنْ کُلِّ ذَنْبٍ وَّاَتُوْبُ اِلَیْهِ

(I seek Allah's pardon from every sin and turn to Him in repentance).

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said in a Hadith:

اَلتَّائِبُ مِنَ الذَّنْبِ کَمَنْ لَاذَنْبَ لَهٗ

This means:

A sinner who repents for his sins is like him who has committed no sins.

If one has usurped the rights of anothr man, by taking his money unlawfully, speakig ill of him, backbiting him or hurting his feelings, then these are sins which cannot be forgiven even by repentance, unless the sinner compensates those whom he has wronged or gets the sins committed against them forgiven or the dues outstanding against him waived by the claimants and the creditors.

An example of teasing the people and disturbing their peace is the use of the loudspeakers opened at their full volumes. Sometimes these loudspeakers are used so ruthlessly that not only patients but even healthy person cannot sleep in their beds. This is an example of hurting the feelings of the people. On the Day of Judgement Almighty Allah will question the wrongdoers. What answer will they give to the Lord of the universe?

Who is a Muslim?

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said in a Hadith.

اَلْمُسْلِمُ مَنْ سَلِمَ الْمُسْلِمُوْنَ مِنْ لِّسَانِهٖ وَيَدِهٖ

This means: A muslim is he who does not harm other Muslims through his tongue or hand. In other words, a Muslim does not speak ill of another Muslim nor does he inflict on him any kind of trouble, or cause distress to him in any other way. We think that we are preaching Deen but we do not preach it in the right way taught by Islam. A man is not interested in your preaching for some reason but you are thrusting your words into his ears by force through the loudspeaker. There is no justification in the Shari'ah for such misconduct.

Once Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ went to the Mosque and saw that a man was preaching Deen in the mosque to a gathering in a very loud voice which could be heard out of the mosque. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ asked that preacher to preach as loudly as it was necessary for the listeners present around him. He رضی اللہ عنہ threatened to use his whip on him if his voice exceeded the limit. This warning was given at a time when there was no loudspeaker. Now imagine the noise pollution careated intentionally over the loudspeakers. If Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ had lived in our days none of us would have escaped his whip.

The room of Hazrat Ayeshah Siddiqah رضی اللہ عنہا was adjacent to the Prophet's mosque where he ﷺ lies buried. It was Hazrat Ayeshah's routine to take rest there after the Friday prayer. A preacher used to call at that place and preach Deen very loudly. Hazrat Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا sent words to that preacher asking him to preach as loudly as it was necessary for his listeners. The preacher did not mind Hazrat Ayeshah's advice on the plea that he was only preaching Deen. Hazrat Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا made a complaint to Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ against that preacher and demanded that he should be stopped from his troublesome practice by lowering his voice.

The Prophet's Teachings

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has always taught us the right course of Deen (Islam), although we have misunderstood and forgotten his teahings. Look! He is getting up for the Tahajjud prayer, but what etiquette does he ﷺ follow while getting up from his ﷺ bedding? It occurs in a Hadith:

قام رويدا وفتح الباب رويدا

He got up quietly and opened the door quietly.

Why so! Lest Ayeshah Siddiqah رضی اللہ عنہا may be disturbed in her sleep - that Ayeshah siddiqah رضی اللہ عنہا who was ready to sacrifice even her life for every command and gesture of her dear husband, the Holy Prophet ﷺ.Notwithstanding that, the Prophet of Allah ﷺ is teaching us that even if we are going to do some act of worship we should never do this in a way that others may be put to inconvenience and be disturbed.

This is the way of discharging the rights of servants of Allah which His Prophet ﷺ has taught us; but what is our behaviour? If we do some good deed, some act of Deen, we consider it necessary to show it to the entire world without ever considering that some one is sleeping, ailing seriously or busy with some worship. It never occurs to anyone that he is committing a grievous sin by this misbehaviour and is violating a "human right".

The Honour and Esteem of a Muslim

It is a major sin to cause distress to a Muslim, just like the sin of drinking wine, committing robbery, theft, adultery, etc. It occurs in a Hadith of Ibn Majah that once the Holy Prophet ﷺ was making Tawaaf (going round) of the Holy Ka'bah, along with Hazrat Abdullah bin Mas'ood رضی اللہ عنہ. He has narrated: I saw that addressing the Ka'bah, the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: O House of Allah, how great, honourable and sacred you are! After a little pause the Holy Prophet ﷺ again said, addressing the Ka'bah: yet there is something which is more elevated, honourable and sacred than you! Hazrat Abdullah bin Mas'ood was taken aback at hearing these words and remained thinking what that thing might be. Then the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: It is the life, possessions and honour of a Muslim!

What does this saying of the Holy Prophet ﷺ mean? It means that to kill a Muslim, injure him or otherwise harm him, rob him and defame and dishonour him, are sins equal in grievousness to the sin of demolishing the Ka'bah.

Now think for yourself, what great stress the Holy Prophet ﷺ has laid on the soul, possessions and honour of a Muslim! If some wretched tyrant musters courage to attack and disgrace the Holy Ka'bah, is there any muslim who will not rise at once to punish such a tyrant for his audacity? No, never will a true Muslim put up with one who does the slightest harm or desecrates the Holy Ka'bah in any way.

Yet look! How many Ka'bahs are we demolishing from morning till evening? Today the soul of a Muslim, declared by the Holy Prophet ﷺ to be so sacred, has become cheaper than the soul of a fly, or mosquito. All the diverse ways of troubling and torturing a muslim including his killing are being practised, what a grievous sin it is! That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that on the Day of Judgement a man will come with a large heap of good deeds but at the end of the accounts-taking he will have no good deeds left to his credit, because his misdeeds and misbehaviour with the servants of Allah will nullify his good deeds.

The reality of the religion of Islam

Today we have conferred the name of Deen on some external forms of worship. These are prayers, fasting, payment of Zakat, Hajj and Umrah, etc. There is no denying that these items are, in their places, great blessings, yet Deen is not confined to them alone. The science of religion which is called Fiqh (Islamic Jurisprudence) has been divided into four parts. Only one part deals with worship; the remaing three parts deal with the rights of the people. We have however, excluded totally from Deen the topic of the rights of the people which covers the three parts of Deen. If we commit some excess towards the servants of Allah by distressing them, injuring or harming them we do not feel that we have committed a sin or have done some unlawful act or have displeased Allah. We forget totally that sins or excesses committed towards the servants of Allah cannot be forgiven by repentance. They can be forgiven only when the people wronged and oppressed forgive the wrongdoers.

Bribery is rampant in our society today. We are causing distress to others, usurping their rights, depriving them of their possession unlawfully -- all these acts relate to the rights of the servants of Allah. Anything that causes pain and distress is a violation of this right. It is a very serious matter to violate these rights of the servants of Allah. May Almighty Allah help us to understand the importance of the rights of the people and discharge them rightly.

This Deen -- Islam -- is not the name of a few external and formal rituals. It teaches us everything about our lives, including religion. I was telling you that we do not realize the value of these virtues while we are alive in this world. We believe that all goodness and blessings lie in worldly wealth and resources, eg. a good bank balance, a car and a palacial building. We are concentrating all our thoughts, hopes and energies on worldly temptations in preference to the virtues and rewards of the Hereafter.

An Event full of Admonition

My respected father Hazrat Maulana, Mufti Muhammad Shafi رحمه الله عليه related to us an incident of his life. Men of God always take some warning from things and events that happen to them. He told us that when he was a small boy he was playing with his brother. In Deoband (India) of father's time the games of our time were not in vogue. Boys enjoyed themselves with very primitive, simple games like making small pieces of reed sticks. They used to roll it down and the boy whose piece of the reed covered the larger distance was the winner and the loser had to give one piece as penalty.

My father said: One day I was playing this game with my brother for which, I had collected many sticks. My brother had also brought with him many sticks. It so happened that this time I lost in the game all the sticks to my brother who was the winner and now he had with him a double number of sticks. At this loss I was so much shocked that I wept bitterly for a long time and I thought that by losing my valueless sticks I had lost all my world.

Today when I recollect that incident and imagine the cause of my weeping, I simply laugh to think how foolish I was that I was so grievously shocked at something which had absolutely no value it was not even worth a feather. Now we think that we have become wise and feel that it is the money, bungalow, property and cars that are worthy of acquisition and retention.

My father continued saying: When we close our eyes, leave this world and appear before Almighty Allah in the Hereafter, we shall come to know that all these valuable and attractive possessions were worthless and valuless like the sticks of reed mentioned above. We shall all realize in the Hereafter that these possessions and treasures do not constitute real wealth. Real wealth is our good deed and righteousness that will take us to Paradise.

The bliss and joy of Paradise and the severe torment of Hell

It occurs in a Hadith that on the Day of Judgment Almighty Allah shall summon a man who had spent his worldly life in distress and difficulties and all sorts of shocks. He will be asked how he spent his life in the world. He shall reply, saying: O Allah! I had a life full of troubles, worries, distresses, wants and shocks that I do not remember to have the faintest glimpse of joy and happiness. Allah will then command His angels to take him to the outskirts of Paradise. The angels will take that man round about Paradise to feel a gust of wind emanating from it. The same question will be put to him again: How did you pass your life in the world. He shall reply saying: O Allah! I lived in the world a life in peace, prosperity and satisfaction that I did not have a single moment of distress. I lived my life surrounded on all sides by joys, comforts and luxuries. Thus a little touch of the breeze of Paradise will be so pleasing and soothing that he will forget all the discomforts and distresses of his worldly life.

Then Allah shall command His angels to produce before Him a man who never faced any distress, worry or shock in his worldly life but passed his lifetime in complete peace and pleasure. He will be questioned! How did you pass your life in the world? He shall reply, saying: O Allah! I passed my life in peace and comfort without any trouble, anxiety or shock. Allah shall ask His angels to take him round the outskirts of Hell. The angels will comply with Allah's command and the man, while going round Hell, will feel slightly the hot wind escaping from Hell.

He will then be asked: Tell me how did you pass your life in the world? He will say: O Allah! I had been facing distress and trouble the whole of my lifetime and I never tasted bliss and happiness. A few moments of his exposure to the hot wind of Hell and its horrible effects will make him totally forget the peace, contentment, joys and pleasures of his entire worldly life. Such are the joys of Paradise and the torments of Hell which shall make man forget how he faced in his worldly life.

Our pitiable condition

As for our state of affairs we are so much bewitched by the temptations of this world that all our thoughts, movements and efforts are concentrated on the acquisition of the transitory luxuries and riches of this world to the total neglet of our eternal life of the Hereafter:

All men of the world are unanimous on one Issue

There is no subject in this world on which the entire world is unanimous except one. There is some difference of apinion wide or narrow on every issue. There is, however, one phenomenon on which all are unanimous and that is Death. This is a phenomenon on which there is no difference of opinion. Every one in this world feels sure that sooner or later he has to die. Despotic infidels, tyrants atheists, enemies of God and religion take for granted this undisputed truth that death must overtake everyone. He also believes that all are ignorant of the hour of death. He also feels that at the most one will live 100 to 150 years, then he must breath his last to go to the other world.

An Event that contains a lesson

There is a very interesting, wonderful and instructive event. All should take lesson from it. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ was once on a journey. During that journey he felt hungry. In those days there were no hotels or restaurants where one could go to take food. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ looked for some village where he could get something to eat, but there was none. By chance he found a herd of goats grazing there. He approached the herdsman and asked him for some milk on payment. The herdsman replied, saying: My dear Sir, I must have entertained you with milk but these goats do not belong to me. I am only a keeper engaged to look after them. I am not authorised to give milk to anyone until my master permits me to do so. It was also the habit of Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ to test the people. He رضی اللہ عنہ said to the herdsman. I want to tell you something in your own interest. Sell one of these goats to me and I shall pay you the price just now. Our interest lies in this that I shall satisfy my hunger with its milk and if necessary, I may slaughter it for its meat and you shall get its price. When the master asks you about the goat you may tell him that the wolf killed and ate it and this excuse is quite plausible, as the master would not worry to make an investigation. You may retain the money for your personal use. Thus both of us shall be benefited.

Hearing this the herdsman spontaneously uttered these words: O Prince, but where is Allah? O prince, you want me to tell a lie to the master that a wolf has eaten one of the goats. But then where is Allah? My master and creator is indeed watching me. The Master of the owner of these goats is watching me. I can convince the owner but how shall I convince Allah, the Master of all masters.

Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ said: As long as men like you are found in this Ummah no calamity can befall it. Peace will pervade the world as long as there are men who realize that they will have to account for their deeds to Almighty Allah. The moment this feeling of accountability disappears from among them, man will cease to be man and degenerate into wolves, as we see him now.

Man is no longer man. He has gone down to the level of beasts, always trying to flay his own fellow men and suck the blood of others -- all these beastly acts only to reap some trifling benefit of this world.

Anxiety for the Eternal life of the Hereafter

The Holy Prophet ﷺ fostered the idea among the Ummah, that the duration of the worldly life is not known to anyone and everyone is bound to render accounts to Allah. People should, therefore, prepare themselves for the Hereafter, which represents an eternal life into which man is destined to enter soon. The legal tender of this future eternal life is not the coins and money of this world, whatever its quantity and value, Millions, Billions a Milliards. All this wealth will have to be left in this transitory world. If there is anything of this world which will pass on to the next world, it is the good deeds.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said in a Hadith: When a dead body is taken to the graveyard, three things accompany it -(1) its kinsmen who got to see the body off, (ii) its possession, e.g. its shroud in which the body is wrapped up and the cot on which the body is carried to the graveyard and (iii) its' deeds. The first two, i.e. its kinsmen and the possessions come back from the side of the grave. Only the man's deeds, whether good or bad are left that go with the body to the next world,.

Thus, the legal tender of that world is not the wealth of this world but it is the good deeds the man did in this world during his lifetime. The greatest wealth which Almighty Allah has bestowed upon us is the Holy Qur'an. This is a panacea for this Ummah. It is a great virtue and cause of reward for man to read and understand it and to act upon its injunctions and to convey its teachings and commands to others.

The Method of valuing the Holy Qur'an

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said: I am leaving behind for you something so valuable that if you hold fast to it you will not go astray and that is the Book of Allah, the Holy Qur'an. The least which we are required to ensure is that no child of a Muslim should remain ignorant of the Holy Qur'an. No child should be engaged in any work unless he has learned the recitation of the Qur'an correctly.

There was a time when in the morning sounds of recitation of the Holy Qur'an used to come out of the villages and townships. Now our ears are deprived of hearing this ravishing sound. You can hear all sorts of film-songs and various disgusting music, but not the soul-lifting and life-giving sounds of the recitation of the Holy Qur'an.

The duties of Muslims towards Deeni schools

These Deeni schools have been opened to create in the members of the Ummah a sense of religion and to make them religious-minded, so that they may turn towards the Holy Qur'an and take care to grasp and convey the words, meanings and their importance to others. It is a great mercy of Allah and His bounty that this school is running in your area. May Allah develop it externally and internally and in all aspects. The Managers of the school have told us that their institution is dedicated to the service of Deen. All Muslims should, therefore, cooperate with them. These people have dedicated their lives to the service of Islam. They deserve to be relieved from the disgrace of holding out their hands before the people to collect donations.

I am of the opinion that it is more important to collect donations from the Muslims for the sake of Muslim children to teach them the Holy Qur'an. It has now become a common practice to engage children in learning worldly subjects and doing other work, depriving them of the learning of Allah's Book - the Qur'an. This is deplorable. This practice must stop.

Child Education

Teach your children during their early childhood the Holy Qur'an and enlighten their pure hearts with its light. Thereafter engage them in any form of education, training or work. The blessings of the Holy Qur'an will always assist them in their later life. The seed of the Qur'an sown in their hearts in the tender age will always keep the candle of Eeman burning in their hearts, in whatever condition and profession they may be.

Instead of teaching your children the sacred words of الحمد لله، سبحان الله ، بسم الله etc, if you teach them in the very beginning the words, "C-A-T cat, B-A-T. Bat" you impress upon their impressionable minds these useless words. If you stop the blessings and light of the Qur'an from entering their minds. How can the light of Eeman enter into their minds? How will they vlaue Islam and think of the Hereafter? without the teaching of the Holy Qur'an? Without proper religious education we shall be producing the same worldly men whom we see wandering around us every day. This group does not care at all for the truth that one day they will have to appear before Almighty Allah. Devoid of spiritual light they are busy day and night in perpetrating wrongs on others and robbing their wealth.

I, therefore, appeal to all of you not to engage your children in any work unless you have taught them the Holy Qur'an. The purpose of today's meeting will be achieved if while getting up from here we firmly resolve that we shall not engage our children in any work, unless we have taught them the Holy Qur'an. If we do not take lessons from the speeches delivered in these meetings, then we are simply wasting our precious time:

نشستند و گفتند و بر خاستند

They sat, talked and dispersed without doing anything useful.

What we heard with one ear we let it go out from the other ear. If we disperse from this gathering with the resolution that we shall teach our children the Holy Qur'an and will divert the attention of our friends, acquaintances and relatives towards this pressing need, then our attendance here will be fruitful, indeed. May Almighty Allah help us in pondering over and acting upon what we have said and heard in this gathering May Allah develop this school into a Jami'ah and radiate its light and blessings far and wide. Aameen.

وَ آخِرُ دعوانا ان الحمد للّٰه رب العلمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi.

Date : Friday 18th December, 1991
After 'Asr Prayers.

Just as the humanbody suffers from various diseases, like fever, stomach-ache, constipation, dysentery, or some trouble in the waist, in the same way the human spirit, too, suffers from diseases. These disease are:
Pride jealousy, malice, and ingratitude. These are spiritual diseases. It is compulsory to treat and cure them. To leave them without treatment is forbidden (Haram).

THE DISEASES OF THE HEART & THE NEED FOR A SPIRITUAL PHYSICIAN

الحمد لله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرو انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهدان سيدنا وسند نا وشفيعنا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

قال النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم:

الا ان فى الحبسد مضغة اذا صلحت صلح الحبسد كله واذا فسدت

فسد الجسد كله اذا وهى القلب (اتحاف السادة المتقين ص ٣ ص ١٥٣)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness. We believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evil of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is none to let him go astray whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God but Allah the one Who has no partner. I bear witness that our sire, our authority, our intercessor and our master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah Almighty have mercy on him, on his household, his Companions and bless them and salute them in great abundance.(Athaafus-saadatil-muttaqeen vol. 3. p. 153)

The Importance of Character

To reform character and shape it in conformity with the commands of Allah is as important and necessary as the performance of worship. If we look into the matter a bit more closely we shall see that no orders relating to worship, dealings and living can be obeyed properly unless the character is refined and polished. If the character is not good, sometimes worship like prayers and fasting go waste, rather they turn into an scourge. That is why the ameliorating character and moulding it on the pattern of the pleasure of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ form the foundation of man's practical life. It is not possible to raise a building without a foundation.

What is Character

The character of which I am talking is quite different from what it is commonly understood by the people.

What is character, as the common public understands it? It is to meet someone with a smile, to speak to him pleasantly and politely to show that the man is gifted with high morals and has an amicable conduct and character. However, the character of which I am talking and the character which our Deen demands of us is more comprehensive. It is not that one behaves with the people cordially and pleasantly. Although this is also a part of the Islamic character, yet this is not true character. The real character is an attribute of man's inner self, his heart and his soul. Many kinds of emotions, thoughts and desires are born and bred in man's inner self. These represent character. Stress has been laid on their improvement and betterment.

The Importance of the soul

If we want to understand the details of this aspect of the issue, we must first understand 'man'. What does man mean? Man is the name of a combination of body and soul. Man is not the name of the body. Man is the name of that body which has a soul in it. Look at a dead body. The dead body has all the limbs and forms of a man, it has a tongue, a nose, eyes ears, hands and feet, etc, yet it is deprived of the soul / spirit. When a man is deprived of his soul, he ceases to be a man; he is only a lifeless corpse, like dust, stone and metals.

Bury it promptly

While a man has his soul in his body, i.e., while he is alive, he is dear to his friends and relatives; he possesses landed property, looks after his family, loves his society and is loved by them. In fact, he was active and energetic. Yet what happens when he breathes his last? He is motionless, devoid of all his activities and possessions. He is now a corpse which every body is trying to bury as soon as possible. None will agree to retain and look after this dead bundle of meat and bones for long. In an emergency the body may be retained in cold-storage at the most for a weak. Those very persons who loved him in his life and respected him are now anxious to deposit the body into the grave without losing any time.

It is related that a man fell into deep coma and thinking him to be dead, the people buried him. By chance the state of coma came to an end and the man somehow managed to get out of the grave and went to his house. When his near and dear ones saw him, they thought that it was not the man, but his ghost was standing before them. They were awfully frightened. They, therefore, killed him. Thus the man who had not died earlier died now at the hands of his own men.

What is this drastic change that the entire body of the deceased is there in his own house, but no body is now ready to let him remain there. The change is due to the soul of the man which has left the body and the man is now a corpse. So, the body without its soul has ceased to be the man once it was and has now become a waste matter to be buried.

The Diseases of the soul

The human body passes through different stages of health and sickness. Sometimes it is quite healthy, radiant with beauty and energy and at times it is sick, weak, unsightly and shrivelled. In the same way the human soul also passes through the stages of health and sickness. Sometimes it is strong; at other times weak. It faces stages of goodness and evils. Just as the human body suffers from various diseases which are well known to all, in the same way the human soul contacts and suffers from various diseases like pride, jealousy, malice, ingratitude, etc.

The Beauty of the soul

Just as the human body has attributes of beauty like a glowing attractive face, a handsome, healthy body, beautiful piercing eyes, in the same way the soul, too, has its attributes of beauty like modesty, patience, gratitude, sincerity and open mindedness, truthfulness and leniency, etc. These attributes make the soul beautiful.

Physical forms of worship

Almighty Allah has commanded us to discharge many duties, including worship. Some of these relate to our body, e.g., prayers in which the body takes different postures like standing, kneeling, prostrating and sitting. These are all bodily movements that occur while performing a physical item of worship. The fasting, the payment of zakat (compulsory tax), the Hajj are performed with the body and are also physical forms of worship.

Modesty is an action of the heart

Just like these physical forms of worship, Allah has prescribed for us many inner and spiritual forms of worship, e.g. abiding by the rules of modesty and humbleness in our dealings. This attribute of modesty is not a physical act; it is a spiritual act which belongs to the heart. Allah has commanded us to cultivate this quality in our hearts.

Many ignorant persons misunderstand the meaning of 'modesty' and think that to entertain a guest with due generosity and respect is modesty. Those who are educated also think that modesty means behaving with others with due humbleness. With the necks slightly bent down along with the breast. A man who deals with his fellow-men in this way is generally called (modest), yet this is not quite true.

Note it carefully that (modesty) has nothing to do with the body. It is related to the soul and the heart. A man should wholeheartedly believe that he is only a helpless, humble creature of Allah. When this thought takes root in a man's heart and soul he is or modest and Allah has commanded us to cultivate in us this attribute.

Ikhlas (sincerity) is a particular state of the heart

Almighty Allah has commanded us to cultivate in our lives the quality of sincerity. This means that there should be sincerity in all our acts and activities, in our worship and all that we do should be for the pleasure of Allah and in compliance with His injunctions. Ikhlas (sincerety) is not attained by a word of the mouth or some act of the body. It is a particular state of the heart and a quality of man's inner self and Allah has commanded us to attain this quality as well.

Gratitude is an act of the Heart

Almighty Allah has commanded us to cultivate the attribute of gratitude or thankfulness. When Allah bestows upon us anything, we should thank Him: This, too, is more an act of the heart than that of the tongue. The more we show gratitude to Allah, the stronger shall become our souls.

The Reality of patience

Allah has also commanded us to be patient when something unpleasant happens to us. We have been taught to believe that everything good or bad that happens to us is due to Allah's will and pleasure and His ordinance. However, unpleasant an event may be, it should be borne with patience, because in it lies Allah's dispensation. Who knows, it may ultimately turn beneficial to us.

It is an obligatory Duty (Farz) to attain inner Ikhlas (sincerity)

Many duties and responsiblities which Allah has imposed on us belong to our soul and inner self. You must note very carefully that it is an obligatory duty, just, as prayers, to show and maintain patience when a situation calls for patience. To practise patience, gratitude, sincerity, etc., where each is called for and indicated is an obligatory duty, jsut like praying, fasting, zakah. These are all obligations which Allah has prescribed for us.

It is forbidden (Haram) to leave inner diseases neglected

Many visible and bodily acts have been declared to be sins. These are lies, backbiting, bribery, usury, drinking wine, robbery, etc. which are committed with one or another limb of our bodies Allah has likewise declared many inner acts to be sins. Examples of these sins are pride, jealousy, malice, etc. They are sins like lies, backbiting, bribery, drinking wine, eating pork, lewdness, etc.

In short, Allah has issued some commands which apply to man's heart and his inner soul. Allah, has commanded man to cultivate certain attributes and qualities of the heart and to refrain from certain vices and evils only then a man will be regarded to be of a good moral and inner character. Character is the name of these inner states and qualities of the soul, to which a referance has been made in the foregoing paragraphs. Good moral character which man has been commanded to cultivate in him is called (good moral habits and character). Similarly bad moral character which man has been commanded to shun is called رذیلہ (bad moral habits and character).

You must have understood by now that it is not the meaning of good character that people should behave with one another with smiles playing on their faces and with cordiality. Although they emanate from good moral character yet they are not true moral character. Such traits of nice behaviour may, indeed, be seen in man when he succeeds in reforming his moral character. The reality of moral character lies in the amelioration of man's inner rectitude and integrity, by cultivating in the soul nice manners and eradicating from it bad manners.

The Reality of Anger

What is the method of reforming character? An example is quoted here which provides an answer to this question. Anger is an attribute of the inner soul of man. It takes its birth in man's heart and finds its expression in the acts of the hands and the feet and sometime through the tongue. During a fit of anger the face becomes red, the nerves are strained and the tongue goes out of control, and the person starts using abusive language, resulting in violance. These are the visible outcome of anger but real anger is born in man's heart and this is the root-cause of many inner evils and vices, and gives rise to many sins and inner ailments.

Absence of Anger, too, is a Disease

It is also a disease if a man does not feel angry in any circumstance even when the worst wrongs are being committed before his eyes and he remains unaffected. Allah has created anger in man, so that he may defend his life, honour, property and above all his faith. If a murderer is standing, pistol in hand, to shoot his victim and the victim remains calm, unaffected by the crisis of the situation, then he is suffering from a disease. If a man does not at all feel offended and excited with anger on occasions, which call for the expression and use of anger, he is a patient devoid of normal human feelings. The expression and use of anger are virtues on their right occasions.

Moderation is needed during Anger

It is also a disease if the faculty of anger exceeds its limits. It is quite right that a man feels angry to defend himself against the attrocities of his enemies. If the opponent deserved only one stroke but the defender is striking him hard mercilessly, this is going beyond the limits which is a sin. Thus, to exceed the limits of anger or to feel no anger at all is an inner disease. Man should be careful to maintain normal limits of anger on either side. If anger overpowers a man although there is no occasion for anger, the man concerned should suppress this anger with effort.

Anger and Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ

It is a well known event that happened with Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ that a jew spoke some abusive words about the Holy Prophet ﷺ. How could Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ put up with such a situation? He at once got the Jew down and sat on his chest. When the Jew found himself totally helpless, he spat on the face of Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ. Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ stood up releasing the Jew. When asked about this strange behaviour Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ explained the reason saying:

First I had punished him because he had been insolent to the Holy Prophet ﷺ. At that time my anger was not for my self; it was to defend the honour of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. That is why I sat on his chest to punish him. When he spat on me, anger arose in my heart for my own self inciting me to take revenge from the Jew for my own self. Then it occurred to me that to take revenge for my own self is not good.

It is the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that he ﷺ never took revenge from anyone for his own self. I, therefore, stood up and let him go.

This event illustrates moderation in anger. On the first occasion anger was justified so anger arose rightly and was rightly expressed. On the second occasion it was not justified, so no action was taken in response to it.

The need for limit in moderation

It is a characteristic of all morals of man's inner soul that they are not bad in themselves, as long as they remain within the prescribed limits. They become bad and a disease only when they exceed the limits. The reform of the self means that these morals are kept confined within the proper limits. They should neither be more nor less.

The Importance of the Heart

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said in a Hadith:

الا ان فی الجسد مضغة اذا صلحت صلح الجسد کله واذا فسدت فسد الجسد کله الا وهی القلب (اتحاف ص ۳ ص ۱۰۳)

(Athaf. Vol. 3, p-103)

Note it well that there is in man's body a lump of flesh; if it is good, the whole body is good and if it becomes bad, the whole body becomes bad, and that is the heart. By heart is not meant the lump of flesh which is visible to our eyes. If the heart is cut open, we shall not see in it the spiritual diseases like pride, jealousy, malice etc. If you go to a Doctor after check up he will tell you its physical diseases concerning its pulpitation, arteries, circulation of blood. This check-up is carried out with the help of fine instruments and presents only a chart of apparent working of the heart:

These unseen Diseases

The human heart has some characteristics and peculiarities which are invisible and cannot be seen with our eyes. Those unseen characteristics and peculiarities are the presence or absence of these inner diseases, i.e. pride, jealousy, ingratitude, want of patience, etc. These diseases cannot be checked up and detected by a heart specialist. No machine has been invented to detect these inner, spiritual diseases of the human heart as yet.

The Doctors of the Heart are the Pious Sufis (Mystics)

There is another class of Doctors who can check and detect these inner diseases of the heart and treat them. These Doctors are the respected Sufis. They are masters of the science of ethics and morality. This is a specialised branch of knowledge which is learnt and practised in the same way as the usual medical sciences are taught, learnt and practised in the medical colleges.

You may have experienced that some physical diseases are felt by the patient himself, like fever, pain in the body, etc. If the patient is himself not able to find out the name of the disease he will visit a Doctor who will diagnose the disease and prescribe for him some medicines.

The matter with the inner diseases is quite different. Most often the patient does not feel that he is a patient of an inner disease like pride or Jealousy. So far, no machine has been invented to detect these inner diseases. It is, therefore, indispensable that to find out the inner diseases the patient should consult some spiritual physician for treatment.

Modesty or show of Modesty

By now you must have understood the meaning of modesty which is that a man should regard himself to be worth nothing, of no consequence. This quality is commonly called "humbleness". Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanwi رحمة الله عليه has said that some people declare that they are worthless, without any substance, ignorant, sinful, unfit and undeserving. Thus, by using these words they apparently claim to be modest.

This behaviour appears to spring from modesty and the person concerned also seems to be modest, yet it is far from the truth. Such a man is a patient of two inner diseases. Pride and show of modesty. He is not sincere in claiming that he is worthless, ignorant and sinful, but he is making these claims simply that the people should regard him to be a modest person.

The method of testing the modesty of a person

The respected saint has said that the method of testing the modesty of such a man is that some one should say to him that he is a very worthless ignorant and sinful person and then see how he reacts. Will he be thankful to you that you have informed him of his weaknesses? No, he will take it very ill and may fall out with you for having insulted him.

This shows that he was calling himself worthless, ignorant, sinful, etc. with his tongue only outwardly and not from the core of his heart. He thought that when he declared himself to be worthless, ignorant and sinful, the addressee would contradict this by saying: No sir, you are very able and learned, you are simply showing your modesty. The truth is that his heart is filled with pride, arrogance and ostentation, although he is trying to show that he is a very modest person.

Now think who can ascertain that a person is claiming some attribute only outwardly or from the bottom of his heart, or that he is suffering from an unseen spiritual disease? Only that physician can diagnose the inner disease who is an specialist of hidden diseases. It is, therefore, necessary that a person desirous of knowing his spiritual diseases must consult an specialist in that line of treatment and that specialist is the spiritual guide or the Peer.

To straighten the shoes of others

A gentleman used to attend the meetings of my respected father, Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi رحمة الله عليه. One day my father saw that he was straightening the shoes of the visitors of his own sweet will. He had made this his regular routine to straighten the shoes of the visitors and then sit in the meetings. When my father saw him doing this he stopped him from this. This man thought that he was suffering from the disease of pride and to cure the disease he himself began to straighten the shoes of the visitors as a remedy for the disease of Pride. My father told us that instead of gaining he would be losing something by following that practice.

Then he told us that there was some difference between pride and conceit. By straightening the shoes of men he would feel that he reached the peak of modesty and this would create in his mind self complacency. Thus my father stopped him from that practice and prescribed for him some other remedy.

Look here! A man is straightening the shoes of others and thinks that he has become modest, but the specialist in the field of inner diseases knew that the man was really a victim of pride and conceit by his act. The inner diseases of the self are so intricate that the patient himself cannot realize them, unless he consults a specialist. It is the specialist who can say whether a man's behaviour lies within the permissible limits or has exceeded them to become harmful.

What is "Tasaw-wuf (Mysticism)?

The usual practice today is that a man visits a Peer (spiritual guide), puts his hand under the Peer's hand,swears fidelity and becomes a mureed (disciple) of the Peer. The Peer teaches the disciples some sacred words and asks the latter to rehearse them every morning and evening. This practice has been given the name of Tasaw-wuf. There is no place in so-called Tasaw-wuf for the thought of improving the character, acquiring the superior degrees of character and giving up the undesirable and bad habits and conduct. What is more, sometimes these rehearsals aggravate the inner diseases instead of curing them!

The Reality of Wazaa-if (Rehearsal of sacred names) and Ma'moolat (Routine rituals)

The Wazaa-if, rehearsals and daily routines may be compared to tonics. If a patient takes some tonic during his sickness, sometimes it so, happens that the tonic, instead of strengthening the patient, strengthens the disease. A disciple suffering from the inner disease of pride malice, anger etc., is busy day and night with rehearsals (Wazaa-if). Instead of bringing cure this may aggravate the diseases. In the syllabus of true Tasaw-wuf it has been prescribed that these wazaa-if should be rehearsed under the guidance of some experienced Sheikh (Peer or Guide), because the Sheikh understands the capacity of his Mureed and the quantity of the exercise which the Mureed can tolerate and from which he can receive benefit. From time to time the Sheikh changes the doses and the prescription.

It is said that Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanwi Sahib رحمة الله عليه stopped some of his disciples from these rehearsals, realising that they were harming the disciples.

The Real Objective of Mujahadat (spiritual exertions)

As already mentioned, today the entire emphasis is being laid in Tasaw-wuf on teaching the disciples some daily routines of Zikr (rehearsals) and prescribing for them a programme of such rehearsals for day and night, without any attention to the inner diseases of the disciples. It was the practice followed in Tasaw-wuf in the olden days that first of all attention was paid to the reform of character and conduct. For this the disciples were subjected to severe Mujahadat (exertions) and drills. Amelioration of character was then achieved and only then did man attain some worth and ability.

An account of the Grandson of Sheikh Abdul Quddoos Gangohi رحمة الله عليه

Hazrat Sheikh Abdul Quddoos Gangohi رحمة الله عليه was a very eminent Wali (Saint) among the saints of Gangoh (India). His spiritual linkage is very high among the links of our pious saints. He had a grandson who did not care to receive any spiritual training and status from his saintly grandfather, although a large number of people received spiritual uplift and rank from the saint while he was alive. The grandson seriously and regretfully realised his loss and began to think how to make it good. He decided to visit for this purpose some of those who had received spiritual training at the hands of his grandfather. He came to know that one such grand saint was living at Balkh. What an irony of fate! He had to go to such a distant place to receive something which was easily available in his own house during his grandfather's lifetime. As the desire was genuine he decided to undertake the dangerous and arduous journey to Balkh.

Reception given to the Sheikh's grandson

When the Sheikh of Bulkh came to know that the grandson of his own Sheikh of Gangoh was coming, he gave a very rousing reception to his guest at the entrance of the city. He lodged him at his house with great honour and entertained him with best kinds of food and comfortable bedding and what not.

Kindle the Fire of the Hammam (Hot-bath)

After enjoying that kingly entertainment for a few days the grandson informed the Sheikh of the object of his visit. After praising the Sheikh's kindness and entertainment he told him that he desired to get some portion of the spiritual wealth which the Sheikh had acquired from his grandfather. The Sheikh told the grandson that in that case all the honour, the comforts and luxuries of lodging and fooding would be withdrawn and he would have to undergo a very hard and rough life. When the grandson accepted this condition, he was ordered to sit near the Hot bath attached to the mosque and feed fuel to the fire burning under it to keep the ablution water warm for the Namazis. That was all the grandson was ordered to do. There was no Baiyat (Pledge-taking), no routines of rehearsals and remembrance, nothing of the sort. As regards the place of sleeping, he was advised to sleep by the side of the Hot-bath. Look at the wide difference. On his arrival the grandson was received and entertained like a prince. Later on he was ordered to look after the fire of the Hot-bath and pass the night sitting and sleeping on the bare ground by the side of the bath.

The Training is not yet complete

The grandson passed some days feeding the fire of the bath with fire-wood. One day the Sheikh asked the sweeper-woman to pass by the grandson with the basket of garbage, so that he could smell the foul odour of the garbage. The woman obeyed the Sheikh's order. When she passed by the grandson with the basket of filth and he smelt the nauseating odour he felt highly offended. After all he hailed from a rich family. He, therefore, scolded the women thus: Are you so audacious that you are passing by me with this basket of filth. Alas, if it had been the town of Gangoh. I would have taught you a lesson.

When the Sheikh asked the woman about the matter she related to him how the man felt offended and said that if it had been Gangoh he would have punished her severely for her action. The Sheikh said: Oh he is not yet ripe!

After a few days the Sheikh asked the sweeper woman not only to pass closely by the grandson with her basket but also let the basket touch his body, and see how he reacted. The woman followed the Sheikhs instruction. When the Sheikh inquired from her of his reaction, she told him that the grandson looked at her with an angry look but did not say anything with his tongue. The Sheikh said: Praise to Allah, he is improving.

The Idol of the Heart has now been smashed

After a few days the Sheikh again ordered the sweeper-woman to pass by the grandson with her basket of garbage in such a way that some portion of the filth should fall on the body of the man. She did as desired by the Sheikh. In so doing not only did some filth fall on his body but she also fell down there. When the Sheikh asked her about his reaction, the woman told him that forgetting the condition of his own clothes he asked her if she was hurt. On this the Sheikh exclaimed: Praise to Allah, the idol of the heart has now been smashed.

Do not let the chain slip off your hands

After this the duty was changed. The grandson was relieved from his duty at the Hot-bath and was ordered to accompany the Sheikh on his hunting expeditions holding the chain of his hunting dogs. This meant a promotion that now he had to remain with the Sheikh from time to time. Whenever the dogs chased some animal this man was dragged after them as he held the chain in his hand. Sometimes he was badly bruised.

The spiritual wealth was entrusted to him

One night this Sheikh of Bulkh saw in a dream his own Sheikh Hazrat Abdul Quddus Gangohi رحمة الله عليه who said to this Sheikh: O Man! I did not impose on you such hardship which you have imposed on this boy. After this admonition the Sheikh called for the grandson, embraced him and told him that he had entrusted to him the spiritual wealth which he had received at the hands of his grandfather in Gangoh.

The Real object of Reform

What I mean to say is that the real duty of the pious Sufis (Guides) is to diagnose and cure the inner diseases. The teaching of Wazaaif, remembrance and routine rehearsals are only helping devices and not the main object. Resort is taken to these practices to help cure the inner diseases of pride, jealousy, malice, arrogance, etc. and to eradicate them totally from the heart. The object is to wipe these vices off the heart and implant in their place, Allah's fear, hope of mercy, reliance on Allah, perseverance in Deen, modesty and sincerity, etc.

Why is the reform of the soul necessary

People think that Tasaw-wuf is something different from the Shari'ah (the Islamic code of Law). This is not so Tasaw-wuf is a part of this Shari'ah. Shari'ah may be defined as a collection of all the injunctions concerning the external acts and deeds of man. As regards Tasaw-wuf it is a collection of injunctions relating to the inner and spiritual acts and deeds of man. The importance of the reform of man's inner soul lies in the fact that if this is not in order the external acts and deeds of man are also adversely affected. Take Ikhlas (sincerity) as an example. This is an inner attribute of man. If this is not inculcated in a man's heart in its proper degree and level, his external acts like prayer and fasting will be of no value as the man doing them without sincerity is doing them only for show. These acts and deeds are quite sound to see but they are devoid of the spirit of sincerity and are, therefore, worthless, rather they are sin. There is a Hadith to this effect:

من صلى يرائى فقد اشرك بالله (مشكوة شريف)

This means:

He who prays only to show his prayer to the people, then he is committing the sin of Shirk.

(Mishkat..... Hadith no: 5331)

It is as if, he has appointed a partner to Allah in his prayer and this is a major sin which Allah will not forgive without sincere repentance. Thus, the purity of the inner acts of man and the purity of his external acts go together.

Seek for you a spiritual physician

As man cannot cure his inner diseases himself he must search for a spiritual physician whom you may call a Peer, a Sheikh or a Teacher as you like. He is qualified to treat the inner diseases of man. A man can never prosper externally, nor internally without the care and treatment of such a physician. Man must, therefore, be on the look out for such a Sheikh or Guide.

What I have said in the foregoing pages is only an introduction to what I am going to discuss, item by item concerning the efforts one must put in to ameliorate one's moral character and to save oneself from bad character.

May Almighty Allah help us in understanding and acting upon the relevant injunctions and advice on this important subject. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العلمين

Venue : Jame'Masjid Baitul Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi.

Date : Friday 19th October, 1992
After 'Asr Prayers.

You need not be afraid of anything as long as the wealth and riches of the world are lying scattered around you, because these resources will keep the boat of your life floating. However the day when these resources gather together and get into the boat of your heart, they will drown you.

DO NOT LOVE THE WORLD

الحمد لله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرو انفسنا ومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهد ان سيدنا وسند نا وشفيعنا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله، صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

فاوعوذ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم، بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

يٰٓاَيُّهَا النَّاسُ اِنَّ وَعْدَ اللهِ حَقٌّ فَلَا تَغُرَّنَّكُمُ الْحَيٰوةُ الدُّنْيَا ۪ وَلَا يَغُرَّنَّكُمْ بِاللهِ الْغَرُوْرُ (سورة الفاطر: ٥)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness.We believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our selves and from the vices of our deeds. There is no one to misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. We bear witness that there is no God but Allah alone and that He has no partner. We also bear witness that our sire, our authority, our Prophet and our master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah have mercy on him, on his household and on his Companions and bless them and salute them all in great abundance.

O people! The Promise of Allah is true. So let not the life of the world beguile you, nor let the Chief Deceiver deceive you with regard to Allah. (35:5)

The comforts of the world depend on Deen (Faith)

It is binding on every Muslim that he should acquire an excellent inner moral character. Without this neither can he ameliorate his Deen (Faith), nor his worldly life. This is because in reality the betterment of the worldly life, too, depends on the betterment of Deen. It is the Devil's deception to think that one can lead a fully contented and comfortable life without Deen. It must be noted that it is one thing to possess the resources and comforts of the world and quite another thing to have a care free, contented and peaceful life in this world. You may amass great wealth in the form of gold, silver and precious stones, cars and factories even without Deen, but you can never acquire without Deen what is called peace of the heart. That is why the pious men, who have totally devoted themselves to the cause of Deen, are those fortunate men who enjoy this blessing of the peace of the heart. It is possible neither to ameliorate Deen, nor the worldly life, without the amelioration of the moral character. Two of these aspects of the moral character, viz. (i) Fear and (ii) Hope were discussed earlier. May Allah grant us understanding of these, by His mercy.

The Reality of Zuhd (Asceticism)

Today I am going to speak on the subject of a basic aspect of character which is called "Zuhd" (Devotion). You might have heard people saying: That man is a great "Zahid and Ábid (devotee and worshipper). Zahid is one who possesses the quality of "Zuhd" and "Zuhd" is a sort of inner character with which every Muslim must be equipped. 'Zuhd' is the quality of being disinterested in, and having no love for the world. This is the attribute of one whose heart is not entangled in the temptations of the world, so that one is not always thinking of the world and its affairs and hankering after its gains.

The Love of the world is the root of all sins

It is necessary for every Muslim to acquire the quality of "Zuhd", because if the heart is occupied with the love of the world, the love of Allah cannot find access to the heart. If the heart is devoid of Allah's love it goes astray in other undesirable directions. The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said in a Hadith:

حب الدنيا رأس كل خطيئة (كنز العمال : حديث نمبر ٦١١٤)

The love of the world is the root-cause of every sin and evil. (Kunzul Amaal Hadith No: 6114)

If man analyses carefully the cause of the crimes that are being committed in the world everyday, he will find that the love of the world is at their bottom. A thief commits theft, because he loves the world. A man commits adultery, because he loves worldly pleasures. A drunkard drinks wine, because he is fond of the worldly enjoyments. Take any sin, you will find that the love of the world is involved in it in one way or another. When the heart is fully occupied, with the love of the world how can it receive and contain the love of Allah?

I would make Abu Bakr my beloved

Allah has so constituted the heart that it can contain the real love of only one. In this life a man has working relations with many, yet he can cherish the real love of only one being. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ said about Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ:

لو كنت متخذاً خليلاً لتخذت ابا بكر خليلاً (صحيح بخاری، كتاب الصلاة باب الخوخة والممر في المسجد، حديث نمبر ٤٦٦)

(Sahih Bukhari ..... Hadith no: 466)

If I were to make anyone my friend I would befriend Abu Bakr رضی اللہ عنہ. The Holy prophet ﷺ loved Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی اللہ عنہ most of all, In spite of this unique position which Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی اللہ عنہ enjoyed, the Holy Prophet ﷺ did not say that he had made Hazrat Abu Bakr his beloved; he ﷺ only said that if he were to make anyone his beloved, he would confer that honour on Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی اللہ عنہ as the Prophet's real beloved was Almighty Allah exclusively. There is no denying the fact that a man has cordial relations with many of his near and dear ones, e.g. wife, children, parents, brothers and sisters, etc., but these relations remain subordinate to the real love for Allah.

Only the love of one can occupy the heart

As a result the heart can contain either the love of Almighty Allah or the love of the world and not of both at the same time. The Love of two things cannot co-exist in one place. Maulana Rumi رحمۃاللہ علیہ has explained this point in a persian couplet:

ہم خدا خواہی وہم دنیائے دوں

ایں خیال است و محال است و جنوں

You desire Allah and also the worthless world; this is only a thought, this is only an imagination, this is impossible and this is madness)

In other words it is not possible for anyone to lodge in his heart the love of the world as well as that of Allah. If a man's heart is devoid of the love of Allah, all his actions for Deen will be only in letter and not in spirit. In fact a man, having in his heart the love of the world instead of the love of Allah will fail in practising his religion properly and will ever remain worried and disturbed mentally and find himself stumbling and staggering at every step. Man should not harbour in his heart the love of the world. This is called Zuhd (asceticism). It is imperative to attain this virtue.

I am in the world but I do not cherish it

The world and man's relations with it are a very delicate issues. We have to live in the world and make use of its resources to maintain life. We require food to satisfy hunger, water to quench thirst, a house to take shelter against cold heat and rains. We have to work to earn livelihood. When we are so intricately entangled in the affairs of the world how can we banish the love of the world from our hearts? It seems quite impossible to exclude totally the love of the world in trying to lodge the love of Allah in our hearts. Apparently the problem appears to be incapable of a solution, but the Prohpets of Allah and their vicegerents have taught how Allah's love can be established, while living in this world and protecting ourselves from its temptations. Hazrat Majzoob رحمةالله عليه, a disciple of Hazrat Thanawi رحمةالله عليه has experessed a solution to this ticklish problem in a couplet:

دنیا میں ہوں، دنیا کا طلب گار نہیں ہوں
بازار سے گزرا ہوں، خریدار نہیں ہوں

That is, although I am living in this world yet I do not cherish it just like a person who passess through a market without buying anything offered for sale.

The question, however arises how to live in the world, benefit by its resources, yet keep the heart unaffected by its charms and keep it reserved exclusively for Divine Love!

An Example of the world

The renowned sufi poet Maulana Rumi رحمةالله عليه has explained this point by a very beautiful example. He has said: It is not possible for men to live without availing themselves of the resources of the world. Man is like a boat and the world is like water. Just as a boat cannot sail without water in the same way man cannot live without availing himself of the resources of the world, like food, water, clothes, a house, etc. The water is useful and helpful for the boat as long as it remains under and around the boat, but if the water gets into the boat it will drown it and destroy everything in it.

In the same way the resources of the world are helpful for the safe sailing of the boat of man's life, but as soon as the water of the worldly resources get access to the boat of your heart. It will drown you. Maulana Rumi رحمةالله عليه has expressed this beautiful example in a persian couplet:

آب اندر زیر کشتی پشتی است
آب در کشتی ہلاک کشتی است

This means: The water is helpful and useful for the boat as long as it remains under and around it, but it drowns the boat when the water gets into it.

The love of two things cannot get together

"Zuhd" (Asceticism) is the name of that condition of life in which the world with its resources should remain around a man, but its love should not find access to his heart. If the love of the world gets into the heart of man, the love of Allah cannot get together with the love of the world, because the heart cannot contain the love of two things. My dear father, Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمةالله عليه used to recite a couplet stated to be composed by Shaikh Hazrat Mian jee Noor Muhammad رحمةالله عليه. The couplet runs:

بھر رہا ہے دل میں حُبِّ جاہ و مال
کب سماوے اس میں حُبِّ ذوالجلال

That is: when the heart becomes filled with the love of honour, rank and wealth then how can that heart receive and contain the love of Allah? That is why, if has been commanded that man should banish from his heart the love of the world and that is all. It is not necessary to renounce the world like a christian monk. The world and its resources are not harmful, if their love is not allowed to enter the heart.

The World may be compared to a latrine

It seems to be a curious paradox that on one hand the world is important and indispensable for man, and on the other hand its love should not be harboured in the heart.

This may be explained by an example. When you construct a house you provide in it one' or two bed rooms, a drawing room, or dining room and a laterine. If there is no laterine the house will not be complete, even though it may have very beautiful and nicely furnished bedrooms dining and drawing rooms. Now think! Will there be any man, so fond of the laterine that he is always thinking about it and waiting for the hour when he will go to it to ease himself? Obviously there will be none whose mind remains so much occupied by thoughts about the laterine. Although the man knows full well that a laterine is very essential for a house, yet he will never give it so much thought and attention. He uses the laterine when it becomes urgently pressing to use it.

Worldly life should not deceive you

Our Deen, Islam, also teaches us that all this worldly wealth and resources are necessary for our worldly life, just as the laterine, but they should not be the sole concern of our minds. They should be used to the minimum extent to keep body and soul together and as an aid to ameliorate the Hereafter. In the verse which I have recited in the beginning Allah has said

يٰٓاَيُّهَا النَّاسُ اِنَّ وَعْدَ اللّٰهِ حَقٌّ فَلَا تَغُرَّنَّكُمُ الْحَيٰوةُ الدُّنْيَا ۪ وَلَا يَغُرَّنَّكُمْ بِاللّٰهِ الْغَرُوْرُ (سورة الفاطر: ٥)

O people! The promise of Allah is true, so let not the life of the world beguile you, nor let the chief Deceiver deceive you with regard to Allah. (35:5)

Soon you shall be produced before Allah for reckoning, so you must be cautious about the seduction of Satan. Shari'ah has advised us to live in this world but beware of its temptations which are meant for your trial. If you have collected the comforts and necessaries of life, there is no harm in this provided that they have not become the main concern of your mind.

The Story of Shaikh Fareeduddin 'Attar رحمة الله عليه

There are some fortunate servants of Allah that He, by His mercy, makes plans to guide them towards Him, by purging their hearts of the love of the world. Hazrat Shaikh Freeduddin Attar رحمة الله عليه was one of them. My late Father Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه related to me an interesting story about him. Hazrat 'Attar رحمة الله عليه was a great merchant of perfumes and indigenous drugs, and that is why he was called 'Attar' (chemist). He had a flourishing and extensive business of perfumes and drugs and he was at that time a world wide trader of indigenous medicines. His big shop was full of small and large bottles of various medicines. One day a Majzoob (a saint lost in rapture) suddenly visited the shop and began to make a survey of its contents. When he continued this survey for a long time Hazrat Fareeduddin 'Attar asked the Majzoob what he wanted to purchase. He said that he wanted to purchase nothing but he wondered about the owner of such a big shop. Being deeply engrossed in his business how would he breathe his last? At the time of death the shopkeepers soul would be entangled in this endless collection of bottles and it would hardly find its way out. Hearing this reply Hazrat 'Attar felt irritated and offended and said to the majzoob angrily: Do not worry about my death but how would you die, O foolish man? The Majzoob replied, saying: I have neither a shop nor bottles of drugs nor any worldly resources. Look! I shall die in this way. Saying this, the Majzoob lay down on the ground in front of the shop and breathed his last reciting the article, of Faith

No sooner did Hazrat Áttar saw this strange scene than his heart received a shock which set him thinking that he was really devoting all his attention and energies to the affairs of this fleeting world, forgetting totally Allah, his creator, and that a servant of Allah (Majzoob) having no stake in this world passed away so easily and lightly! This was a hidden impetus from Allah which brought right guidance to Hazrat Áttar. That very day he left his flourishing business, to others, took the path of Allah to which Allah had guided him and ultimately became a great Shaikh and became a source of guidance to others.

The Story of Hazrat Ibrahim Bin Adham رحمةالله عليه

Hazrat Ibrahim Bin Adham رحمةالله عليه was the ruler of a state. One night he saw that a man was strolling on the roof of his palace. Hazrat Ibrahim رحمةالله عليه took him for a thief and challenged him. He caught hold of him and asked who he was, from where he had come and what he was doing on the roof. The stranger replied, saying: My camel is missing and I am searching for it. Hazrat Ibrahim bin Adham replied: Have you gone mad? It is very foolish to search for a missing camel on the roof of a palace. If you have lost your camel, go and search for it in the forest. The stranger replied, saying: If it is not possible to find a missing camel on the roof of a palace, it is also not possible to find Allah in a palace. If I am a fool, you are a greater fool than I, that you hope to find Allah in your palace. The moment Hazrat Ibrahim heard this admonition from the stranger, his heart got a shock. As a result he renounced his state and went out of his palace in search of Allah.

Take a lesson from this story

For people like us, it is not advisable to renounce the world and go out in search of Allah like Hazrat Ibrahim bin Adham رحمةالله عليه. It is not good for weaker people, as we are, to take such a daring step, yet we learn from this story that Allah's love cannot stay in a heart that is occupied day and night with love and thoughts of this world. Harbouring Allah's love in one's heart does not, however, prohibit the possession of lawfully acquired worldly resources, if their love does not find access to the heart that is filled with Allah's love.

My respected father vis-a-vis love of the world

We find in the life of my respected father Hazrat Maulana Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمةالله عليه many valuable models of the Shari'ah and the Tareeqat. If we had not seen our father رحمةالله عليه, we would not have known what a life based on the Sunnah means. While living in this world, he did a lot of work, viz., teachig, writing Fatawa (religious rulings), compiling books, preaching Deen, acting as a Peer to provide spiritual guidance to his disciples, earning a livelihood for his children and carrying on business to discharge his dues and so on so forth. Notwithstanding all this I saw that there was not in his heart the slightest trace of love for this world.

The thought of the Garden went out of my heart

My respected father رحمةالله عليه was very fond of gardening. Before the creation of Pakistan he planted with great enthusiasm a garden in Deoband (India). During his employment in Darul-Uloom, Deoband, his salary was scanty, though he had a large family to support. He made both ends meet with difficulty. However, out of his small savings from his monthly salaries he planted a garden of mangoes. The year in which the garden brought out its fruit for the first time, an announcement about the creation of Pakistan was made and he migrated to Pakistan. All his property, including the mango garden, was taken over by the Hindus. I often heard my father saying: Since the very day on which I left that house and that garden, their love disappeared from my heart and I never remembered them again. The reason was that he had done all that to create a property only for the cause of Deen and his heart was not entangled in it.

The world comes humiliated and disgraced to those who hate it

It was my father's practice that whenever anyone disputed about something which rightly and lawfully belonged to him he never entered into the dispute but he relinquished his right in favour of his opponent. He followed this practice the whole of his life. He used to tell us this Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ:

انا زعيم ببَيْت فى ربض الجنةلمن ترك المراء وان كان محقا(ابو داؤد، كتاب الادب، باب فى حسن الخلق، حديث نمبر ٤٨٠٠)

(Abu Daood..... Hadith no:4800)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said: I am responsible for the allotment of a house in the precincts of Paradise to a man who gives up his claim in the cause of peace, although he is right.

I saw my father رحمةالله عليه acting upon this Hadith during his entire lifetime. As a result of this sacrifice Almighty Allah granted him the world which came to him humiliated and disgraced as occurs in a Hadith:

اتته الدنيا وهى راغمة(ابن ماجه، كتاب الزهد، باب الهم بالدنى، حديث نمبر ٤١٥٧)

(Ibn-e- Majah ..... Hadith no: 4157)

This means that if a man turns his face once from the world Allah sends the world to him disgraced and humiliated. That world touches the feet of the man but its love does not find access to his heart.

The world is like a Shadow

Someone has very aptly compared the world to man's shadow. If a man tries to catch hold of his shadow which is before him, by running after it he cannot catch it, because the faster does he run after the shadow the faster will the shadow go on shifting before him. On the other hand, if the man moves on in the opposite direction, leaving the shadow behind him, the shadow will follow the man doggedly. Like this has Allah created the world. If you run after the world with its love in your heart, the world will, like the shadow, run before you and you can never catch it. However, when you turn your back upon the world, Allah will make it follow you disgraced and humiliated. You may find many examples that a man condemns the world and kicks it, but it follows that man tenatiousy. Just take a firm resolution in your heart to reject the world and experience the result yourself. This stage is reached by understanding the reality of the world. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned رضى الله عنه the real worth and value of the world in many Ahadith in compliance with which we should try our best to banish from our hearts the love of the world.

Arrival of Wealth from Bahrain

عن عمر بن عوف الا نصارى رضى الله عنه ان رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم بعث عبيدة بن الجراح رضى الله تعالى عنه الى البحرين..... الخ (صحيح بخارى، حديث نمبر ٦٤٢٥)

(Sahih Bukhari, Hadith no: 6425)

Hazrat Ummar bin Auf Ansari رضی اللہ عنہ has said that the Holy Prophet appointed Hazrat Ubaidah bin Jarrah رضی اللہ عنہ Governor of Bahrain and asked him to collect and remit the amount of Jizyah (capitation tax) from the Mushrikeen and other taxes due by them.

Accordingly, once he brought with him a large amount of Jizyah. It was in the form of cash, cloth, etc. It was the practice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ to distribute the amount of Jizyah among his companions رضی اللہ عنہم. When some Ansari Companions رضی اللہ عنہم came to know that Hazrat Ubaidah رضی اللہ عنہ had brought some wealth from Bahrain, they went to the Prophet's mosque at the time of the Fajr prayer when after the conclusion of the Fajr prayer the Holy Prohpet ﷺ was returning to his house, those Ansari Companions رضی اللہ عنہم appeared before him ﷺ, although they did not say anything to the Prophet ﷺ. They desired that the wealth brought from Bahrain might be distributed among them. It was a very difficult time for the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم when they were undergoing starvation for long periods and had no clothes to cover their bodies. When the Holy Prophet ﷺ saw them in this condition, he smiled and realized the purpose for which they had assembled there. He then asked them if they had come to know about the wealth brought from Bahrain by Hazrat Ubaidah bin Jarrah رضی اللہ عنہ. They replied in the affirmative. Then the Holy prophet ﷺ said to them: Here is a glad tidings for you that you are soon going to get what will please you and you shall get that wealth.

I have no fear that poverty and starvation will befall you

The Holy Prophet ﷺ felt, lest their coming to him for the sake of money and worldly resources should create in their hearts the love of the world, he broke to them this glad tidings:

فواللہ ما لِفَقْرٍ اخشی علیکم ولکنی اخشی ان تبسط الدنیا علیکم
کما لبسطت علی من کان قبلکم فتنافسوها کما تنافسوها فتهلکم
کما اهلکتهم (صحیح بخاری، کتاب الرقاق، باب ما یحذر من زهرة الدنیا والتنا فس فیها، رقم ٦٤٢٥)

By Allah I do not fear poverty and starvation in your case that may make your life miserable on account of want and destitution, because the time of ease, plenty of wealth is near at hand. It is a fact that the Holy Prophet ﷺ himself took his Ummah's share of hardship want and poverty. Hazrat Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا is reported to have said that the fire for cooking food was not kindled in her house sometimes continuously for three months. For their food they had to depend only on dates and water. The Holy Prophet ﷺ never ate bread his fill for two times a day. This is about bread of barley; wheat was never available to them. Imagine for yourself what a hard life the Prophet ﷺ of Allah lived! (Sahih Bukhari..... Hadith no: 6425)

Poverty during the times of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم

Hazrat Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا is reported to have said: Once some printed cloth came to her house as a gift. It was of cheap quality. Even so, on the occasions of marriages the people of Madinah used to borrow from me the garment made from that coarse and cheap cloth to decorate their brides. Later she said: Today many kinds of cloth are being sold in the markets. If I give the same garment to my maidservant she will reject it.

Lest this world should perish you

That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ said that the Muslims would not suffer from want and poverty in the times to come. This prophecy came true. Even if poverty and want ever fell upon the Muslims, it was not so harmful. At the most the people would have a hard life. What the Holy Prophet ﷺ feared was that when the Muslims were surrounded on all sides by wealth and luxuries, they would compete with one another to increase their lot. This plenty and abundance of worldly resources would destroy them as it destroyed the earlier genrations.

When you will have carpets spread under your feet

It occurs in another narrative that the Holy Prohpet ﷺ once said to the Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم: What will happen to you when there will be carpets spread under your feet? The companions were astonished to hear this Hadith, as they had at that time not even mats of palm-leaves, what to say of carpets. They had to sleep sometimes on their cots without bed sheet. They, therefore, said to the Holy Prophet ﷺ:

انا لنا الا نمار قال انها ستكون

That is: Where from will we have carpets? The Holy Prophet ﷺ told them that they had no carpets at that time, but a time would come when they would have carpets. (Sahih Bukhari ..... Hadith no: 3631)

That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ told the Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم that he had no fear about their poverty and want, but he feared about the time of ease and plenty, when the Ummah would have carpets and heaps of worldly wealth and resources. All this would make them forget Allah and the world might overpower them.

Handkerchiefs of Paradise are better

It occurs in a Hadith that once some quantity of silk cloth came from Syria the like of which the Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم had never seen before. Therefore, they began to feel the softness of the cloth with their fingers. Seeing this the Holy Prophet ﷺ at once said:

"لمنا ديل سعد بن معاذ فى الجنة افضل من هذا" (صحيح بخارى، كتاب بدء الخلق باب ماجاء فى صفة الجنة، حديث نمبر ٣٢٤٩)

(Sahih Bukhari ..... Hadith no: 3249)

Are you wondering at this cloth and do you like it very much? The handkerchiefs which Almighty Allah has granted Saad bin Ma'az in Paradise is far better than these.

Thus, the Holy Prophet ﷺ lost no time in diverting the attention of the Noble Companions from this world to the Hereafter. From time to time, the Holy Prophet ﷺ had been impressing upon his Companions رضی الله عنهم that this world is worthless and short lived. All its temptations are perishable. It is not an object to be courted and loved.

The Entire world is not worth a gnats wing

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said in a Hadith:

"لو كانت الدنيا تعدل عندالله جناح بعوضة ماسقى كافرا منها شربة"

(ترندى، كتاب الزهد، باب ماجاء فى هوان الدنيا على الله، حديث نمبر ٢٣٣٢١)

(Tirmidhi ..... Hadith no: 23321)

This Hadith means that if the value of this world had been worth the wing of a gnat in the sight of Allah, He would not have given a draught of water to a disbeliever to drink. You see that the disbelievers are in possession of the wealth and riches of the world in abundance. They are enjoying great comforts and luxuries and blessings of the world in spite of their disobedience to Allah and their rebellion against Him. The reason is that in the sight of Allah the world has no value; it is not even worth the wing of a gnat in the sight of Allah. If it had any value Allah would not have granted to the disbelievers the smallest particle of it:

Once the Holy Prophet ﷺ was going some where alongwith his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم . In the way he ﷺ saw a dead kid with its ears cut off from which foul smell was emanating. Pointing to the dead kid he ﷺ asked the Companions which of them could purchase that dead kid for one Dirham. The reply came: O Prophet ﷺ of Allah! None could purchase it for one Dirham, even if it was alive, far less a dead kid. It is worthless. Hearing this reply the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: The entire world with all its wealth, treasures and charms is as worthless in the sight of Amighty Allah, just as this dead kid is worthless in your eyes.

The Entire world became their slave

By so saying the Holy Prophet ﷺ firmly impressed upon the hearts of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم that they should not take a fancy to the world. They should make use of it sparingly at times of need without implanting its love in their hearts. When the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم banished the love of the world from their hearts, Allah made the entire world their slave. They subdued both Caesar and kisra (cyrus), but they did not throw even a glance at their vast possessions and treasures.

Hazrat Ubaidah bin Jarrah, رضی اللہ عنہ the Governor of Syria

During the Caliphate of Hazrat 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ Hazrat Ubaidah bin Jarrah رضی اللہ عنہ was appointed Governor of Syria, because it was he who had conquered most parts of Syria. Syria was at that time a very large country including in its territories present Syria, Jordan, Palestine and Lebanon. These four parts formed one province of which Hazrat Ubaidah bin Jarrah رضی اللہ عنہ was Governor. Syria was then a very fertile and rich land. It was therefore, a very favourite province of the Roman Empire. Sitting in Madinah, Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ was controlling and commanding the entire Islamic world. Once Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ made an inspection tour of Syria. During this tour Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ expressed his desire to Hazrat Ubaidah bin Jarrah that he wanted to see his brother's house (i.e. the Governor's house).

Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ expressed his desire to see how Hazrat Abu Ubaidah bin Jarrah رضی اللہ عنہ was living, as the Governor of such a fertile and rich province and if he had collected some wealth for himself.

The Residence of the Governor of Syria

Hazrat Abu Ubaidah رضی اللہ عنہ told Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ that the caliph would only feel disappointed to see his house which might draw his tears yet Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ insisted on seeing the Governor's house. Both set out for the house which was at the end of the township. After going through the richly decorated and furnished streets of Damascus, they came to a hut thatched with date-palm leaves and the Governor told the Caliph that it was his residence. When Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ entered the house and looked closely into it he could find in it nothing except a prayer carpet. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ asked Hazrat Abu Ubaidah رضی اللہ عنہ how he lived in such a lowly dwelling which had no pots, no beds and no furniture. Hazrat Abu Ubaidah رضی اللہ عنہ replied that all his household needs were supplied by the prayer-carpet on which he offered his prayers, slept at night. Then raising his hand towards the thatched ceiling he brought out a pot which was filled with water and there were a few crusts of dried bread in it. Hazrat Ubaidah رضی اللہ عنہ told Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ that as he was busy with his official duties all night and day, he had no time for other things. He said a woman baked bread for him for two-three days which he preserved with him and when it was dry he soaked it with water and ate it at night. (Sair 'Alaam v.1, p. 7)

I have only passed through the market; I am not a buyer:

When Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ saw this condition, his eyes were filled with tears. Then Hazrat Abu Ubaidah رضی اللہ عنہ said: O Commander of the Faithful! I had already told you that the condition of my dwelling will only draw tears from your eyes. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ replied, saying: The grandeur and charms of this world has affected everyone of us, but by Allah you have not changed from what you were during the time of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

In fact the following words apply to people like Hazrat Abu Ubaidah bin Jarrah رضی اللہ عنہ

بازار سے گزرا ہوں خریدار نہیں ہوں

I have only passed through the market; I am not a buyer.

The entire world with all its wealth, resources charms, pleasures, comforts and luxuries is before the eyes along with all those who are absorbed in enjoying with these luxuries, yet all this has no temptation for him whose heart is saturated with Allah's love. Hazrat Majzoob رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has said in a couplet:

جب مہر نمایاں ہوا سب چھپ گئے تارے
تو مجھ کو بھری بزم میں تنہا نظر آیا

(مجذوب)

This means: All the stars faded away when the sun rose and like the sun you alone were visible to me in the full assembly.

These were the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم whose feet the world licked humiliated and disgraced. Even so, they had no place in their hearts for the world. This was only due to the teaching and training of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Time and again He ﷺ has pointed out to them the reality of the world that it is transitory, while the Hereafter and its blessings as well as its torments are eternal. The Holy Qur'an as well as the Ahadith are full of such exhortations and admonitions.

Everyone has to die one day

Let man think how long his life in the world shall last! Does anyone know how many days, months or years he has to live in this world? Is there anyone who can say for sure if he shall be alive, the next hour or the next moment? Even the greatest philosopher, scientist, or the ruler cannot predict the number of days of his life in this world. Notwithstanding this uncertainty of life everybody is busy collecting the resources, wealth and comforts of life day and night. All day long he remains engrossed in this thought, totally oblivious of the final call to leave this world with all his possessions and riches.

The "World" is nothing but an illusion

The Holy Qur'an says:

"وَمَا الْحَيٰوةُ الدُّنْيَآ اِلاَّ مَتَاعُ الْغُرُوْرِ (سورۃ حدید: ۲۰)

The life of this world is nothing but a matter of illusion. (57:20)

The warning contained in this verse is telling us that the world in which we are living is a mere deception. We should be on our guard that it does not lead us astray from the eternal life that is the Hereafter. We are advised to take advantage from this world to the minimum without being totally carried away by its temptations. These bank balances, the grand edifices, the landed properties can do you no harm if their love is not rooted in your hearts. Subject to this condition you are on the path of Zuhd (asceticism).

According to Imam Ghazzali رحمة الله عليه, the greatest loser in the world is he who has earned no money in the world and is a pauper, yet he has harboured the love of the world in his heart. Such a man has no Zuhd (asceticism) and he will not be called a Zahid. He has lodged in his heart the love of the world and is a great loser.

How to attain Zuhd (Asceticism)

A question arises as to how to attain Zuhd. Zuhd may be attained by acting upon the injunctions of the Holy Qur'an and the Ahadith. He should also contemplate about death and his presence before Allah on the Day of Judgment, the blessings and the torments of the Hereafter and the transitory period of the world. For this contemplation he should set apart every day a time of five minutes. This practice; if followed regularly, will banish from his heart the love of the world.

May Allah help us to understand the reality of the world. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العلمين

Maulana Rumi رحمة الله عليه has said: The world is the best capital of life and a blessing and Allah's bounty for man, as long as it remains around him. With it he meets his needs, earns sustenance and livelihood to support his life in this world. The moment the world shrinks to get into the boat of his heart and makes him worldly-wise, and its love totally occupies his heart and over-powers it, then there is the deluge. At such a stage the world becomes for man an allurement of illusion, a trial and carrion and those who hanker after it are no better than dogs.

DOES THE WORLD MEAN WEALTH AND PROPERTY?

الحمد لله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرو انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهدان سيدنا وسند نا وشفيعنا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطٰن الرجيم بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

وَابْتَغِ فِيْمَآ اٰتٰكَ اللّٰهُ الدَّارَ الْاٰخِرَةَ وَلَا تَنْسَ نَصِيْبَكَ مِنَ الدُّنْيَا وَاَحْسِنْ كَمَا اَحْسَنَ اللّٰهُ اِلَيْكَ وَلَا تَبْغِ الْفَسَادَ فِى الْاَرْضِ ط اِنَّ اللّٰهَ لَا يُحِبُّ

الْمُفْسِدِيْنَ (سورة القصص: ٧٧)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness. We believe in Him and have trust in Him. We seek refuge with Allah from the evils of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God but Allah Alone Who has no partner. I also bear witness that our master, and our authority, our Prophet and our master Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah have mercy on him and on his household and on his Companions and bless them and salute them all in great abundance.

Respected Elders and Dear Brothers!

I want to give during this short time at my disposal a brief explanation of the meaning of the Qur'anic verse which I have just now recited before you.

May Allah help me to explain this verse as desired by Him.

A misunderstanding

The reason why I have selected this verse for my topic is to remove a misunderstaing prevailing in the minds of a large section of the people, even those who are well educated. This verse removes that misunderstanding. The misunderstanding lies in the general trend of thought of the people that in today's world, if one tries to live on Islamic life, following the rules of the Shari'ah, one will have to renounce the world with all that it contains, its comforts and joys and luxuries. It is not possible, they say, to lead an Islamic life without foregoing all these means of ease and comfort. This misunderstanding is in fact based on a totally wrong conception of Islam's attitude towards the world --- what Islam thinks about the world and its vast resources and to what extent resort should be taken to them. Again, what is the limit which should not be exceeded in taking advantages from the worldly resources, we are not quite clear about these vital points.

The Qur'an and the Ahadith condemn the world

The confusion in our minds on these points are also due to the fact tht we often hear that the Holy Qur'an and the sacred Ahadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ have, in general, condemned the world. There is a narrative in which the Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have said:

الدنيا جيفة و طالبوها كلاب (كشف الخفاء للعجلوني حديث نمبر ١٣١٣)

This means that the world is like carrion (dead flesh) and those who are fond of it are like dogs.

(Kashful-Khafa-il lajalooni Hadith no: 1313)

Some Ulama have declared this Hadith to be a forged one, yet there are others who accept it as genuine likewise, the Holy Qur'an has said:

وَمَا الْحَيٰوةُ الدُّنْيَآ اِلاَّ مَتَاعُ الْغُرُوْرِ (سورة آل عمران ١٨٥)

The life of this world is only an enjoyment of illusion. (3:185)

In another verse of the Holy Qur'an it has been said:

اِنَّمَآ اَمْوَالُكُمْ وَاَوْلَادُكُمْ فِتْنَةٌ (سورة التغابن: ١٥)

Your wealth and your children are only a trial (for you). (64:15)

We have before us the statements of the Holy Qur'an and the Ahadith, condemning the world and its charms. This is one side of the coin by looking at which a man may presume that if he wants to become a Muslim, he must renounce the world. This is, however, not quite correct.

The virtues and goodness of the world.

As regards the other side of the coin, you may also have heard that at some places in the Qur'an Allah has declared that wealth is a bounty of Allah. About trade Allah has asked us "اِبْتَغُوا مِنْ فَضْلِ اللهِ" to seek Allah's bounty through trade. Thus, in the chapter, 62 الجمعة, the command to offer the Friday Prayer is followed by a command to seek Allah's bounty as under:

فَإِذَا قُضِيَتِ الصَّلَاةُ فَانْتَشِرُوْا فِي الْأَرْضِ وَابْتَغُوْا مِنْ فَضْلِ اللهِ (سورة الجمعة ١٠)

This means: When the Friday prayer is over, disperse in the land and seek Allah's bounty (62:10)

In the same way at some other places in the Holy Qur'an wealth has been called "خير" (good) meaning prosperity. Moreover, we all recite many times every day this famous (supplication).

رَبَّنَآ اٰتِنَا فِي الدُّنْيَا حَسَنَةً وَّ فِي الْاٰخِرَةِ حَسَنَةً وَّ قِنَا عَذَابَ النَّارِ (سورة البقرة ٢٠١)

O our Lord, grant us good in the world and grant us good also in the Hereafter. (2:201)

Now it seems to be a queer paradox that at one time this world is compared to carrion and its lovers to dogs and at another time the same world is called Allah's bounty which we are advised to seek. This paradox creates a confusion in our minds and we find our selves at a loss to understand what is correct and what is not correct, which meaning to accept and which to reject.

It is not necessary to renounce the world for the sake of the Hereafter

On looking closely into the meanings of the words of the Qur'an and the Ahadith, it becomes quite clear that Allah and His Prophet ﷺ do not desire that we should renounce the world and become monks, as in Christianity, in which it was not possible for anyone to find access to Allah, unless he relinquished his wife, children and worldly affairs and dedicates himself exclusively to Allah. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has never advised us to cut ourself off from the world, do nothing, nor earn a living nor build a house nor have some happy time with your wife and children; no nothing of the sort He ﷺ however, did tell us that this world is not our ultimate destination, nor is it the final goal of our lives. It is, however, wrong to think that all our activities are confined to this world and we have nothing to do beyond that. What we have been advised is that, while living in this world and using its resources, we have to prepare ourselves for our next life in the Hereafter. We have been asked to take advantage from this world without forgetting the life in the Hereafter, so that while using the good things of this world in this life, we should also be doing something for the betterment of our next life of the Hereafter.

Nobody can deny Death

It is an open truth which even the most perverted persons cannot deny that everybody has to die one day. This is so glaring a truth that none has denied it and none shall ever deny it, even though there are people who have denied and are denying the existence of Allah. Nobody knows the time and hour of his death. It is not possible even for the greatest philosopher, Doctor, Capitalist or Scientist to predict the time of his death.

Real life is the life of the Hereafter

The third qeestion, what shall happen after death? No science, no philosopy and no knowledge has so far been able to find out what happens to man after his death. The western world is inclined to accept that faint indications are available to suggest that there may be a life after death. There is, however, no indication as to what kind of life it is and what shall happen to man after death. However what is firmly established is that death is certain and we have no direct knowledge about the life after death. We have, however, believed in the Kalimah:

لا اله الا الله محمد رسول الله

(There is no god but Allah and Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah). The words "محمد رسول الله" signify that every message which the Prophet ﷺ has given us is based on divine revelation and is perfectly true with no trace of falsehood in it. Muhammad ﷺ, the Prophet of Allah has informed us that man's real life will commence from the time of man's death and this new base of life will be eternal as compared with the life of this world which is only transitory.

The Message of Islam

The message of Islam to humanity in general and to the Muslims in particular is that, as they have to live in this world for an appointed period of time, they must acquire the worldly resources to the extent needed and benefit by them. They should, however, not regard this world to be the last resort and the final goal.

A very befitting example of the world

Maulana Rumi رحمة الله عليه has given a very nice example of the world by comparing it to water, and man to a boat. Water, as we all know, is indispensable for a boat, because a boat cannot sail without water. Just as a boat cannot do without water in the same way man cannot live without the worldly resources, e.g., food, drink, clothes, a house, etc. He must do some work to earn money to procure the means of life. The Maulana has further said that water is useful for the boat as long as it remains under and around the boat, but if this water gets into the boat, it will drown the boat and send it down to the bottom of the river, and will thus become harmful. Maulana Rumi رحمة الله عليه has, therefore, said that the world is very serviceable and useful for man as long as it remains around him and he uses its bounties to preserve his life and satisfy his needs. To this extent the world is really a "bounty of Allah" and a blessing. On the other hand when the world gets into the boat of man's heart and totally occupies his thoughts and its love obsesses his heart then this very world leads him to ruin and fall, because now the world has become "an enjoyment of illusion" and a "trial". Then it is no better than "carrion" and its lovers no better than dogs.

(Muftahul-Uloom. Masnawi Maulana Room vol. 2, p-37, chap. I, part 2)

The world is a ladder to the Hereafter

The Muslims have been allowed to pass their lives in this world, use its good things to maintain health and well-being, but with the belief that this world is only a step-ladder to the Hereafter and it is not an end in itself. If the world and its resources are used with this angle of vision fixed on the eternal life of the Hereafter, then this world is a blessing and a "bounty" of Allah and it is all goodness and bliss. On the other hand, if this world is regarded as the final goal, then it is delusion and destruction.

The World turns into Deen

These apparently self-contradictory aspects of the world can be explained in this way. If thoughts about the world and its temptations overpower the human mind, so that man devotes all his energies to its acquisition and enjoyment then the world is no better than carrion (dead meat). On the other hand, if the world is used only as a means to attain the blessings of the Hereafter, then the world becomes an affair of Deen and a cause of virtue and reward.

An advice to "Korah"

How can the world be turned into Deen? This has been mentioned in the Qur'anic verse which I have recited before you and that is the verse no:77 of Surah 28-Qasas. This verse relates the story of Korah who was a great capitalist during the time of Hazrat Moosa (Moses) عليه السلام. According to the Qur'an he had such a vast treasure and riches locked in strong rooms that the keys of the locks were too heavy to be lifted by one man. The advice given to Korah by Allah is mentioned in this verse. Korah was not asked to forgo all his treasure or to burn it in fire, but he was advised:

"وَابْتَغِ فِيْمَا اٰتَاكَ اللّٰهُ الدَّارَ الْاٰخِرَةَ"

He was asked to seek the good and salvation of the Hereafter with the wealth, treasure and the worldly resources he had been granted. The words (What Allah has granted you) indicate that what a man earns with his labour, knowledge and experience is in reality a bounty of Allah because the faculties by dint of which a man earns anything are a gift from Allah. In his arrogance Korah used to claim:

اِنَّمَآ اُوْتِيْتُهٗ عَلٰى عِلْمٍ عِنْدِيْ ط (سورة القصص:٧٨)

That is: I have earned all this treasure with my own knowledge wisdom and experience. He was told that there were men more hard-working wise and experienced than he, yet they had nothing of the sort. So it has to be admitted that whatever a man acquires of the resources of the world in wealth, materials, properties and other possessions is nothing but a gift from Allah.

Should the entire wealth be spent in alms?

A question arises if we should give in charity all the wealth we possess. Some people think that spending money in the cause of the Hereafter means that the entire money one possesses should be given in alms. The Qur'an has, however, refuted this idea in the next verse:

وَلَا تَنْسَ نَصِيْبَكَ مِنَ الدُّنْيَا

This means: Do not forget and give up your share from the world that has been ordained for you, but deal with this share of money in this way:

وَاَحْسِنْ كَمَا اَحْسَنَ اللّٰهُ اِلَيْكَ

That is, do good to others with this money, just as Allah has done good to you by granting you this money. Allah has further said:

وَلَا تَبْغِ الْفَسَادَ فِى الْاَرْضِ

Do not use this money in spreading trouble and corruption on the earth.

The cause of corruption on the Earth

Trouble and corruption spread on the surface of the earth when men do such acts as Allah has forbidden and, made unlawful. If any one collects money by unlawful means, i.e. by theft and robbery, fraud, bribe and embezzlement, there will be corruption on the earth. Trying to acquire money by deception, gambling and interest or such other unlawful practices will also lead to corruption on the earth. The Qur an does not prohibit us from earning money and acquiring wealth, but it does stop us strictly from using means and methods in our pursuits that have been declared illegal and unlawful. so, you have been commanded to accept that which is pure and lawful and reject what is impure and unlawful, however huge the amount may be.

Comfort cannot be purchased with money

It should be remembered that money, by its nature, is not a source of comfort and benefit. No one can quench his thirst and satisfy his hunger direct with the coins or currency notes in his possession. Money is only a means to procure ease and comfort which are gifts of Allah. If you have amassed great amounts of wealth by unlawful and illegal methods, it is not at all necessary that this money will bring you comfort, peace and contentment. It is a common experience that people possessing very large bank balances cannot sleep comfortably without taking sleeping pills. The millionaire has everything with him, a furnished bungalow, servants and attendants, all possible delicacies at his dining table, but he feels no appetite. Compare this rich man with the poor labourer who works hard for about eight hours a day, yet he eats his fill and sleeps soundly for about eight hours. Now consider which of the two is happier and more comfortable.

As already mentioned, ease comfort and contentment are gifts of Allah. Allah's ways of dealing with the Muslims is that, if they earn their livelihood by lawful and legal means, He grants them comfort, peace and prosperity. On the other hand, if they amass great wealth and treasure by dishonest and unlawful means, they can never enjoy what is called peace and comfort.

The way by whch the world can be turned into Deen

You are therefore commanded to earn money through lawful means and avoid unlawful ways. Then pay the obligatory charges that have been levied on this wealth, e.g., Zakah, Sadaqah and other charitable items and do good to others as Allah has done good to you. If man follows this advice in right earnest and tenders thanks to Allah for His bounties, then all his worldly possessions and wealth become Deen. As a result all his actions of eating drinking trading and providing comforts of life will become righteous deeds entitled to Allah's mercy in this world and recompense in the Hereafter. This is because man did not take this world and its resources as his sole aim of life, but took them only as a means to ameliorate his eternal life of the Hereafter, shunning all sinful acts and paying the dues imposed on him by the Shari'ah.

May Allah help us understand this point and follow it rightly. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi

Date : Friday 29th November, 1991
After 'Asr Prayers.

Today falsehood is circulating in our lives like blood in our veins. We are telling lies, while rising up, sitting down and moving about. Sometimes we tell lies only in jokes, to earn some profit and to show our importance. It has indeed become a common practice --- so common that people do not regard it unlawful or sinful. They, rather, think that this habit has no effect, whatsoever, on our righteousness and piety.

LYING AND ITS PREVAILING FORMS

الحمد لله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له واشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له واشهدان سيدنا وسند نا وشفيعنا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد!

عن ابى هريرة رضى الله عنه قال قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم اية المنافق ثلاث اذا حدث كذب واذا وعدا خلف واذا اوتمن خان فى رواية وان صام وصلى وزعم انه مسلم (صحيح بخارى، كتاب الايمان، باب علامات المنافق حدیث نمبر ۳۳)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and we seek His help and forgiveness. We believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Allah from the evils of our selves and from the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him Whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God but Allah, the One, Who has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, our authority, our Prophet and our master, Muhammad ﷺ, is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah have mercy on him, and his household and his Companions and bless them and salute them all a great deal.

Three signs of a hypocrite

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said. There are three habits, which distinguish a hypocrite. That is, these habits are not found in a Muslim. If there is anyone having any of these habits, be sure that he is not a Muslim. These habits are - (1) When he talks, he tells lies; (2) When he makes a promise, he breaks it; (3) when something is entrusted to him, he betrays it. There is a narrative with the addition of these words, "even if he may be a Namazi, fasting and claiming to be a Muslim. In reality such a man does not deserve to be called a Muslim, because he has relinquished the basic attributes which distinguish a Muslim from a non-Muslim.

Islam is a comprehensive Religion

We fail to understand why we have harboured in our minds the belief that Islam is confined to a few items of worship, like praying five times, fasting in the holy month of Ramazan and observing a few other like rituals. One who follows these routine items is regarded a Muslim and here end his responsibilities as a Muslim. The man thinks that he is now free to do whatever he wills. So misguided, he tells lies when he goes to the market and indulges in all unlawful and fraudulent business dealings. He has no regard for his word or for his trust, nor for the injunctions about what is lawful and what is unlawful. The conception that Islam is the name of a few routine forms of worship is highly misleading and dangerous, in the light of the Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ alluded to above. Such a man hardly deserves to be called a Muslim, even though he may be praying regularly and observing his Ramazan fasting. Although he is not declared an unbeliever formally, yet in the ordinary sense he is not a true Muslim, but is a hypocrite.

It is necessary to give some details about these three traits in a man, viz, telling lies, breaking promises and betraying trusts, because people are not quite clear about these traits and take them very lightly.

Lying and the Days of Ignorance

The first of these three signs is telling lies. It is such a grievous sin that there is not a nation past or present in which it was not declared a forbidden sin. Even during the pre-Islamic Days of Ignorance people hated telling lies.

When the Holy Prophet ﷺ sent his messenger with a letter to the king of Rome,inviting him to Islam he asked his courtiers to send to him such persons as were aware of the Holy Prophet ﷺ his personality and his message, so that he might question them about the claimant to prophethood. By chance Hazrat Abu Sufyan رضی اللہ عنہ was available who had gone there with a trading caravan. He had not yet embraced Islam. They took him to the King. The following dialogue took place between them.

King of Rome: To what clan does this Muhammad ﷺ belong and what is the reputation of the clan?

Abu Sufyan رضی اللہ عنہ: He ﷺ hails from a very noble clan and the whole of Arabia acknowledges the honour and dignity of that clan.

King of Rome: (Testifying to this), you are quite right. All Prophets of Allah hailed from noble and honourable clans.

Do his followers belong to the lower classes of the society or are they among the dignitaries and the Leaders?

Abu Sufyan رضی اللہ عنہ: The majority of his followers are the ordinary commoners.

King of Rome: (Testifying to this that in the beginning the followers are the poor classes), What happens when you are at war with each other, who is victorious?

Abu Sufyan رضی اللہ عنہ: Sometimes we are victorious and sometimes his party is victorious. (By that time battles of Badar and Uhud were fought. In the latter the Muslims had suffered loss).

I could not tell a lie

Later on when Hazrat Abu Sufyan رضی اللہ عنہ had embraced Islam he told that he thought of uttering a sentence which could convey a wrong impression about the Holy Prophet ﷺ, but in answering the questions put by the King he found no occasion to insinuate in his answer such a point, and he could not, of course, tell a lie about the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Therefore, whatever he said in reply to the King's questiosns went in favour of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The intention of relating this incident is to emphasize that even those who were not Muslims could not tell lies, how could it be possible for a Muslim to tell lies? (Sahih Bukhari .... Hadith no: 7)

False Medical certificates

It is very regretful that it has become a common practice to submit false medical certificates. Even those who try to distinguish between lawful and unlawful and follow the path of the Shari'ah have excluded many types of falsehood from the list of what is really false. They are indulging in falsehood with the belief that it is not falsehood. They are thus committing a double sin; one by actually committing a sin and the other by believing that it is not a sin. A religious - minded person, regular in his prayers and fasting and daily routines of rehearsals and remembrance of sacred names of Allah, was working in some foreign country. Being on leave, once he paid a visit to me. I asked him how long he would stay here. In reply he said that he would stay eight or ten days more. His leave period had expired but he had submitted a medical certificate for extension of leave.

Do prayer and Fasting constitute Deen?

He mentioned to me the act of submitting a medical certificate in such a way as if it was a very simple matter and there was nothing unusual in it. I asked him about the nature and purpose of the medical certificate. In reply he told me that it was to get an extension in leave, as without a medical certifiate extension could not be obtained. I again asked him to tell me what the certificate stated. He replied that it was written in the certificate that the person was so sick that he could not undertake the journey. I said to him:

Does Deen mean. prayer, fasting and rehearsals only? You have spiritual links with the saints, and still you are taking resort to such a certificate? He told me that he learnt from me for the first time that it was wrong to submit a false medical certificate. I told him that it was nothing but telling a lie. He asked me how could he then get additional leave? I told him first to exhaust the leave due to him then take leave without pay and that there was no justification to take leave on the basis of a false certificate.

People nowadays think that the submission of a false medical certificate does not come within the definition of telling lies, and that Deen consists only in rehearsals and remembrances. They think that there is no harm in taking resort to lies in the rest of our activities in life.

False Recommendations

Once when I was at Jeddah, I received from a fairly educated and reasonable person a request to furnish a recommendation to a certain person. I reproduce below the letter:

The bearer of this letter who is meeting you is an Indian national. Now he wants to go to Pakistan. I therefore, request you to recommend him to the Pakistan Embassy for issuing a Pakistani passport for him, on the basis that he is a Pakistani National and his passport has been lost in Saudi Arabia. He has himself applied for a passport to the Pakistani Embassy and I request you to make a recommendation for this purpose:

Now look! people are performing in that holy place the Umrah, the Hajj, the Tawaf and the Sa'ee, etc. and along with these sacred deeds, falsehood, forgery and fraud are also going on side by side, as if these sinful acts do not form part of Deen. People have come to believe that a lie is a lie only when one tells a lie with full consciousness that one is telling a lie. It is not a lie to get false certificates from Doctors, false recommendation from officers or to file false suits against someone. Allah has said in his Book:

مَا يَلْفِظُ مِنْ قَوْلٍ اِلاَّ لَدَيْهِ رَقِيْبٌ عَتِيْدٌ (سورة ق: ١٨)

He utters no word, but there is with him an observer ready (to record it). (50:18)

Every word which man speaks is being recorded in his record of deeds.

Do not tell lies to children

It so happened once in the presence of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that a lady wanted to attract a child to hold him in her lap, but the child was not inclined to go near that lady. The lady tried to tempt the child by promising to offer him something. The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked her if she really wanted to give the child something or was only cajoling him. The lady replied that if the child came to her she intended to give him dates. The Holy Prophet ﷺ told the lady that if she had attracted the child only to cajole him without giving him anything the sin of one lie would have been recorded in her record of deeds. (Abu Daood ... Hadith no: 4991)

This Hadith contains a lesson that even children should not be told lies, nor should be betrayed if promise made to them. If you do not follow this lesson, the child will become bold on these sins from the very beginning of his life.

Do not tell lies even in Jokes

We have become used to tell lies only by way of jokes and recreation, although the Holy Prophet ﷺ has forbidden us to tell lies even in jokes. He ﷺ has said in a Hadith to warn that a painful punishment awaits that person who tells lies only to make persons laugh. (Abu Daood .... Hadith no: 4990)

The Prophet's way of cutting Jokes

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has also sometimes indulged in jokes and recreations. He ﷺ however, never said anything that involved a lie or a mis-statement. It may be mentioned, by way of an example, that once an old woman called upon the Holy Prophet ﷺ and requested him to pray for her entry into Paradise. The Holy Prophet ﷺ told that woman that no old woman would find admission into Paradise. Hearing this, the woman started weeping. Then the Holy Prophet ﷺ explained to her that no woman would enter Paradise in the state of her senility, but before entering Paradise old women would be converted into youthful damsels. This fine joke has no trace of falsehood in it, yet it is enjoyable. (From Shamail-Tirmidhi)

A Unique Style of Joke

A villager called upon the Holy Prophet ﷺ and begged of him a she-camel. The Holy Prophet ﷺ promised to give him the young one of she-camel. The villager said: O Prophet of Allah ﷺ, what shall I do with the young one of a she-camel. I want a grown-up she-camel for riding. The Holy Prophet ﷺ told the villager that the she-camel given to him would after all be the young one of some she-camel. Thus, the Holy Prophet ﷺ indulged in a fine joke, which was neither a lie nor a mis-statement. This emphasizes the need of guarding your tongue against lies even in a joke. Notwithstanding all this, fabricated and exaggerated stories are current among us and we relate them to listeners by way of jokes and recreation. All this falls within the definition of lying. May Allah save us from this. (Shamail Tirmidhi)

False Character certificates

It has become a common practice nowadays to submit false character certificates. Quite religious and pious persons are involved in this sin. They either obtain false certificates or write certificates in favour of others. The person writing the certificate certifies that he has known the person concerned for about five years and he bears a good moral character. Nobody thinks that what he is doing is unlawful, but he flatters himself that he is doing a good term to a needy person. The fact, however, remains that it is a sin to issue a character certificate in favour of a person whom the writer does not know at all. This is a two-way traffic. The writer of the certificate and the beneficiary of the certificate both are sinners.

There are two ways of knowing someone's character

Mentioning someone to Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ a man praised a third person's conduct and character. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ said to him: Let me know if you ever had business dealings with him or have ever accompanied him on a journey. The man replied to the question in the negative. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ then said to him: How do you know that he is a man of good conduct and character when you have had neither business dealings nor have ever accompanied him on a journey. A man is honest, well-behaved and upright when he is honest in his business dealings and also when he behaves nicely and amicably with his companions رضی اللہ عنہم on a journey. A man's real worth, his feelings, his patience, broad mindedness and his fellow-feelings, etc, can rightly be judged only on these two occasions. When you have no experience of him, you should keep quiet, and should speak neither well nor ill of him. If anyone asks you about anyone, you should tell only as much as you know about him. For example, you may say that you have seen him praying in a mosque, but you do not know anything more about him.

Certificate is a witness

The Holy Qur'an says:

اِلاَّ مَنْ شَهِدَ بِالْحَقِّ وَهُمْ يَعْلَمُوْنَ (سورة الزخرف: ٨٦)

..... except those who bear witness, having knowledge (of the truth) (43:86)

It should be noted that the writing of a certificate is equivalent to bearing a legal witness, as if he is standing in a witness box in a Shari'at court. According to the injunctions implied in the verse a certificate writer should sign a character certificate only when he knows full well about the conduct and character of the man for whom he is writing the certificate. To give a character certificate about anyone without knowing anything about him is bearing a false witness and the Holy Prophet ﷺ has condemned this sin by comparing it to Shirk (polytheism).

False witness is equivalent to Shirk (شرك)

It occurs in a Hadith that once the Holy Prophet ﷺ was sitting, supporting his body against something. He ﷺ asked the Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم: Should I let you know the major sins? The Companions رضی الله عنهم replied in the affirmative. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said: To associate someone with Allah; to disobey parents. Then releasing his body from the support and sitting erect he said: And bearing false witness, (he ﷺ repeated this thrice). (Sahih Muslim ..... Hadith no: 143)

Now consider the grievousness of this sin of bearing false witness. On one hand the Holy Prophet ﷺ compared it to Shirk (polytheism) and on the other hand, he ﷺ repeated it thrice and that too after releasing his support and sitting erect. The Qur'an itself has mentioned it along with Shirk:

"فَاجْتَنِبُوا الرِّجْسَ مِنَ الْاَوْثَانِ وَاجْتَنِبُوْا قَوْلَ الزُّوْرِ" (سورة الحج: ٣٠)

That is, shun the filth of idolatry and also shun false speech. This clearly shows how dangerous and grievous sins telling lies and bearing false witness are! (22:30)

One who issues a false certificate is a sinner

To bear false witness is more grievous and dangerous in consequences than telling lies, because this combines in it many sins, e.g. the sin of lying, the sin of misguiding a person. If relying on the certificate, the officer approached has a dealing with the certificate holder, he may incur a loss because of the false certificate. Similarly if a man bears a false witness in a court and the court passes a judgement on the basis of that witness against the rightful party. the responsibility for the loss in either case will be on the shoulders of the writer of the certificate. Thus, bearing false witness is not a light sin; it is a very grievous sin.

Telling lies in a Court

Nowadays telling lies has become so rampant that it has become almost a necessity and a fashion to tell lies in courts, to such an extent that people are heard, saying:

You may tell the truth here you are not standing before a Court. All that it means is that the fit place for telling lies is a court. Outside a court there is, according to them, no harm in telling the truth. This is said, although the Holy Prohpet ﷺ has compared it to Shirk and it is a combination of many sins.

Certificate about a Madrasah (School)

All types of certificates which are issued without adequate knowledge of the subject come within the definition of bearing false witness. Examples are: medical certificates, certificates of qualifiction and character certificates, etc.

Many people come to me for certificates about Madrasahs (schools) in which it has to be certified that the Madrasah is running and it is teaching such and such courses of study. These certificates are needed by the managers of schools to collect donations. Whenever my late father Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه was approached for giving such certificates, he used to refuse the request on the ground that it was an act of bearing witness and he could not issue such a certificate without knowledge about the Madrasah because it would be giving false witness. He would, however, issue certificates about Madaris only stating the facts he knew about them.

It is an act of bearing witness to write a review about a book

Many people call on me with their books that I should write reviews in favour of those books. How can anyone say that a book is good without going through it and without evaluating it correctly. Writing review on a book without having read it is making a mis-statement and bearing a false witness. People have, however, excluded such sinful acts from the list of mis-statements and false witness. If the request for review is turned down on this ground they feel offended. They do not realize that a man will be asked to give an account before Allah of every word that he speaks or writes. Everything that is escaping from our tongues or pens will be questioned about and answerable in the presence of Allah.

Abstain from lying

The habit of telling lies has spread in our society like an epidemic. Even highly educated people regular in their prayers, daily routines of rehearsals and having spiritual links with saints are involved in this vice. They too do not feel that it is a sin to issue wrong certificates. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith اذاحدث كذب(when he talks, he tells lies). All these acts are included in the meaning of this Hadith. To consider them outside the limits of Deen is the worst type of straying. It is imperative to avoid these sins and mis-deeds.

Occasions on which telling lies is permitted

There are however, occasions on which Almighty Allah has allowed telling lies. The occasions are such on which a man's life is in serious danger or he is exposed to some unbearable torture or oppression from which he cannot save him without telling lies. Even in such critical situations the injunction is that as far as possible man should avoid telling clear-cut lies. He should save himself by using some ambiguous expressions conveying double meanings.

How did Hazrat Siddiq رضى الله عنه avoid lying?

When Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddiq رضى الله عنه was migrating from Makkah to Madinah alongwith the Holy Prophet ﷺ the polytheists of Makkah deputed their men from all sides to arrest them. They announced a reward of one hundred camels for the capture of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. As a result the people of Makkah became active in search of the couple. In the way they by chance came across a man who knew Hazrat Siddiq رضى الله عنه but did not know the Holy Prophet ﷺ. That fellow asked Hazrat Siddiq رضى الله عنه about his companion. Now Hazrat Siddiq رضى الله عنه was in a very difficult situation. If he told the truth that he was Muhammad, the Prophet ﷺ, the news might reach Makkah. He was in a fix what to do. If he told the truth the Holy Prophet ﷺ might be caught and if he concealed the fact he might be guilty of lying. Allah alone guides his servants in such critical situation. Hazrat Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ replied, saying:

هذا الرجل يهدينى السبيل

This man is my guide who guides me the way.

Now look, how Hazrat Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ avoided telling a lie by uttering a sentence meaning that being a Prophet ﷺ he was one who showed the straight path of Allah. See how wisely Hazrat Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ steered clear of the awkward situation without having to tell a lie. (Sahih Bukhari, Hadith no: 3911)

Almighty Allah always helps out of such difficulties those who themselves try their best to avoid telling lies.

Hazrat Gangohi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ and his abstension from lying Hazrat Maulana Rashid Ahmad, Hazrat Maulana Qasim Nanutawi and Hazrat Haji Imdadullah Muhajir Makki رحمہ اللہ علیہ took prominent part in the freedom-fighting of 1857 against the British Government. The Jihad was not successful and in the last resort the English Army began to arrest and hang the freedom-fighters on the cross-roads of the cities.

جسے دیکھا حاکم وقت نے
کہا یہ بھی صاحب دار ہے

Whomsoever the ruler saw, he said, that he too was to be hanged.

Magistrates' courts had been opened in every sector. Every suspect was tried by these courts and sentenced to death and hanged. During this period a suit was filed against Hazrat Gangohi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ also, and he was produced before the Magistrate. The Magistrate asked him if he had any weapons. The Maulana had in his possession guns but he answered the Magistrate's question by raising his hand with his Tasbih (rosary) and saying to the Magistrate: Yes this is my weapon. He did not say to the Magistrate that he had no weapons, because that would be telling a lie. His appearance, too, was like that of a saint which misguided the Magistrate.

Almighty Allah also comes to the rescue of His beloved servants. While this interrogation was in progress, a villager came there and uttered: Sahib! where did you get this man? He is the Muazzin (Announcer of prayer calls) of my area!

Hazrat Nanotawi's abstention from lying

Warrant of arrest had been issued against Maulana Muhammad Qasim Nanotawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ and the Police was searching for him in all places. He was sitting in the mosque of chhattah. The police raided that mosque where the saint was sitting all alone. On hearing the name of Hazrat Nanotawi it occurs to the mind that he must be putting on imposing and costly garments, but there was nothing of this sort. He always wore a loin-cloth and an ordinary Kurta (shirt). When the Police entered the mosque it took him for a servant of the mosque and asked him about Maulana Muhammad Qasim: The Maulana stood up from his place moved back one step and said: Just now he was here. By so saying He gave the police an impression that at that moment he was not there, without telling that he was not there. This would have been telling a lie. The police, therefore, went away without doing any harm to him.

This is an illustration of the fact that devoted servants of Allah avoid telling lies even in such critical moments of danger and save themselves by taking resort to clever, ambiguous phrases instead of telling clear-cut lies. It may be noted that the Shari'ah has permitted us to tell lies in such critical situations when word of ambiguous and vague import are not helpful. It is, however, unlawful and forbidden to take advantage of this permission so frequently in our daily dealings, as this involves the sin of bearing false witness. May Allah save us all from this sin Aameen!

Create in the hearts of the children aversion to telling lies

While trying to shun lies from the very beginning try your best to create in the hearts of your children hatred for telling lies, and create love for truthfulness. So, do not tell lies before the children. When a child sees his parents telling lies he too imitates them and thinks that there is nothing bad in telling lies. Thus, it is necessary for everyone to adopt truthfulness always and in every matter at all costs. Just consider that next to Prophethood comes the status of "Siddiq" which means most truthful totally averse to falsehood and lying.

One may be a liar by one's actions also

Sometimes a man may indulge in lying by his actions just as he lies in his speech. This is done by doing something outwardly only to show his actions to others. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith:

المتشبع بمالم يعط كلا بس ثوبى زور (ابو داؤد، كتاب الادب، باب فى المتشبع بمالم يعط. حديث نمبر ٤٩٩٧

(Abu Dawud .... Hadith no: 4997)

There is a man who tries to show by his action that he possesses something which is not with him. He is, as it were, wearing a garment of falsehood.

In other words, it is a sin that by his action the man shows to be what he is not in reality. For example it is a kind of falsehood that a man is trying by his movements and habits to show that he is a rich man, although he is not so. The vice versa is also true. It is, therefore, a sin for a man to give a wrong impression about him to others by his action and behaviour.

To prefix the title sayyid (سيد) to one's name

There are many people who prefix to their names such titles and appellations as do not in reality belong to them. This has become a common fashion For example, some people add to their names the title Sayyid, although they do not belong to this family. A Sayyid is that person who is related to the family of the Holy Prophet ﷺ from the paternal, and not the maternal, side. It is a lie to use the title Sayyid; if this is not proved by the history of the family.

To use the titles "Professor" and "Maulana"

Some men write the title "Professor" with their names, although they are not qualified as professors which is a specialised rank. Likewise the titles "Aalim" (عالم) or "Maulana" (مولانا) is to be used for those only who have qualified themselve by passing the "Dars-e-Nizami" course and have studied under the supervision of some Learned "Aalim". Some men use these titles without any authority and this too is a form of lying. It is a pity that we take this practice lightly and do not realize that it entails the sin of lying.

May Allah help us to shun all these sins Aameen:

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi

Date : Friday 2nd December, 1991
After 'Asr Prayers.

There are many forms of Breach of Promise which we have excluded from the list. If a question is put to anyone about Breach of Promise, his answer will be: "It is something very bad and it is a sin." However, when an occasion arises in his practical life the same person will commit a Breach of Promise, even without realising that he is breaking a Promise.

BREACH OF PROMISE

الحمد لله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرو انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهدان سيدنا وسند نا وشفيعنا ومولانا محمداً عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد!

عن ابى هريرة رضى الله تعالى عنه قال قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم اية المنافق ثلاث اذا حدث كذب واذا وعدا خلف واذ اؤتمن خان وفى رواية وان صام وصلى وزعم انه مسلم (صحيح بخارى كتاب الايمان باب علامات المنافق حديث نمبر ٣٣)

Praise be to Allah. We praise Him and seek

His help and believe in Him. We rely on Him. We seek refuge with Allah from the evils of our souls and from the vices of our deeds. None can misguide him whom Allah guides and none can guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God but Allah, the one and that He has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, our authority, and Prophet and our master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah have mercy on him, his household and his Companions and bless them and salute them all in great abundance.

A "Promise" should be fulfilled as far as possible

In the recent past, one of the three signs of a hypocrite, mentioned in the Hadith, viz., "telling lies," was discussed in detail. The second sign of a hypocrite which the Holy Prophet ﷺ mentioned in the Hadith is: واذا وعد خلف It means: When he (hypocrite) makes a promise he breaks it; but when a believer makes a promise he fulfils it. If a man makes a promise to anyone but is not able to fulfil his promise on account of some un-avoidable circumstances, the rules of the Shari'ah prescribe that in such a situation the man who made the promise should explain to the other party his inability and seek redemption from his promise. For example, a man promises a man to advance him a sum of Rs 1000/- on a certain date, but something prevents him from fulfilling his promise. In such a situation he must tell the person concerned that he is not able to keep his promise to advance the promised amount for such and such reasons. The man, however, remains under obligation to make good his promise, as long as he has the ability to fulfil it, and is not prevented by some Shari'ah handicap.

Betrothal is a Promise

A man engages himself for marriage with a woman, then this engagement or betrothal is a promise which should be fulfilled to the best of his ability. However, if some reasonable excuse comes to light later on which prevents the fulfilment of this engagement, e.g., disparity of age, or disgreement of habit and temperament or some other factors, not known before, then the intention of going out of the engagement must be made known to the other party along with the reason for this breach. In normal circumstances, it is a binding to honour the promise according to the Shari'ah, failing which the party breaking the engagement will become liable to the blame of hypocrisy mentioned in this Hadith:

A Promise made by Hazrat Huzaifah رضی اللہ عنہ to Abu Jahl

You cannot find today examples of promises fulfilled by the Holy Prophet ﷺ in most trying and difficult situations. Hazrat Huzaifah bin Yaman رضی اللہ عنہ is a renowned Companion and a confidant of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. After having embraced Islam, he and his father Yaman رضی اللہ عنہ were going to the Holy Prophet ﷺ in Madinah. On their way to Madinah they met Abu Jahl and his army who were going to fight against the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He caught hold of Hazrat Huzaifah رضی اللہ عنہ and asked him where they were going. Hazrat Huzaifah رضی اللہ عنہ replied that they were going to Madinah to meet the Holy Prophet. ﷺ. Abu Jahl then said: I will not let you go there because after reaching Madinah you will take part in the battle against us. Hazrat Huzaifah رضی اللہ عنہ told him that he was going only to meet the Holy Prophet ﷺ and would not take part in the fight. Abu Jahl then asked them to make a solemn promise that they would not take part in the fight but would only meet Muhammad ﷺ. They made a promise to this effect and Abu Jahl let them off. When they met the Holy Prophet ﷺ he, was setting off from Madinah for the battle of Badr, along with his ﷺ Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم.

The Battle of Badr - the first encounter of truth with falsehood

Just consider! The first encounter of Islam between right and wrong (the Battle of Badr) is in progress. This is the battle which the Qur'an has named "the Day of Criterion", i.e, the Day that decided between right or wrong (belief and disbelief). The man who took part in this battle was honoured with the name of "Badri". To be a "Badri" is a great distinction among the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and the names of the fighters in the Battle of Badr are rehearsed by way of remembrance. So sacred and efficatious these names are that Allah accepts supplications in token of their sacredness and piety. These were the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم about whom the Holy Prophet ﷺ had predicted: "A battle is going to take place and Allah has granted salvation to all those who will take part in the battle."

A promise that was elicited by putting the sword on the neck

On meeting the Holy Prohpet ﷺ, Hazrat Abu Huzaifah رضی اللہ عنہ related to him ﷺ the whole story and explained how he was able to escape from Abu Jahl by promising to him that he would not take part in the battle. Notwithstanding this, he expressed his ardent desire to join the Battle of Badr. As regards the promise, he was compelled to make it at the point of the sword, so he requested the Holy Prophet ﷺ to allow him to break the promise.

You have escaped by giving a word of Honour

The Holy Prohpet ﷺ said in reply to Hazrat Huzaifa's رضی اللہ عنہ request: You have made good your escape by making a promise that you have come here only to see me and you will not join the battle. I cannot, therefore, allow you to take part in the battle.

These are occasions when a man's integrity and trustworthiness are put to the test. It was possible for an ordinary man to find an excuse to break the promise by saying that it was made only outwardly and under duress and there was no harm in breaking it by taking part in the battle which was going to be fought under the command of the Holy Prophet ﷺ for the sake, and in the cause, of Islàm.

Moreover, it was a battle between Islam and kufr (infidelity), raging at a time when the muslim army was weak and ill-equipped. They were only 313 in number unarmed, with only 70 camels 2 horses and 8 swords. Some had taken in their hands sticks and pieces of stones etc. This force was going to encounter a host of 1000 armed men adequately equipped. Thus, in such a critical situation each single soul was highly valuable. Despite all this, the Holy Prophet ﷺ told him that "a promise is a promise"; it must be fulfilled at all costs.

The objective of Jihad (Holy War) is the upholding of the Truth

This Jihad was not going to be waged to conquer a country; it was, on the other hand, a Jihad for upholding the Truth. Would it be right to launch a Jihad for the sake of the Truth and betraying the same Truth by breaking a word of honour? This is indeed impossible.

Today our efforts in preaching Islam are going waste, because we are committing falsehood and following ways and means which are un-Islamic and form sinful strategies. We have become fond of finding excuses and plausible pleas. We do things against the laws of the Shari'ah by satisfying ourselves that we are taking such and such steps only because the emergency of the situation demands it.

This is how a promise is fulfilled

The incident mentioned in the preceding paragraphs brings out clearly that the main objective was nothing but the attainment of Allah's pleasure, which lay in the performance of a promise and not in acquiring money, victory or fame of any kind. Hazrat Huzaifah and his father رضی اللہ عنہ were deprived of the unprecedented honour and glory of participating in the battle of Badr. This is what the fulfilment of a promise means!

Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ

We cannot find today examples of such integrity in keeping promises except among the slaves of the Holy Prohpet ﷺ who provided such unique examples. Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ is among those Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم about whom ill-wishers have fabricated false reports. There are people who show insolence and disrespect towards him yet listen to this story.

Military Strategy to gain victory

Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ being the Governor of Syria, frequently remained at war with the Romans. Rome at that time was considered to be a super power, endowed with a tremendous international fighting force. Once Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ concluded with Rome a peace treaty valid up to an appointed date. Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ decided to attack the Romans immediately after the expiry of the appointed date of the peace treaty. It occurred to him that he should assemble his army at the border of the Roman empire and lose no time in launching his attack on the enemy as soon as the peace treaty expired. Thus, the Muslim Army would gain an easy victory.

This is a breach of Treaty

Following this plan, Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ stationed his forces at the border and a part thereof within the enemy's land and were ready for the attack. No sooner did the sun of the appointed day set than Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ ordered his army to advance. This strategy proved very successful and the muslim Army captured a large area of the enemy's land, as there was none to stop them. When the muslim army was thus advancing, they suddenly saw that a rider was heading fast towards them. Seeing him Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ halted his army under the impression that he might be bringing some new order from the commander of the Faithful. On coming nearer the rider began to utter these words loudly:

اللہ اکبر اللہ اکبر قفوا عباد اللہ قفوا عباد اللہ

"Allah is Great, Allah is Great. O servants of Allah halt; O servants of Allah halt!"

When the rider came nearer, Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ saw that it was Hazrat 'Amr bin 'Absah رضی اللہ عنہ. Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ asked him about his mission. Hazrat 'Amr bin 'Absah said:

وفاء لا غدر وفاء لاغدر

A believer is always loyal and faithful and not disloyal and dishonest in his dealings. He does not betray his pledge. Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ replied: I have not committed any breach of treaty. I launched the attack at a time when the appointed time of the treaty had expired. The messenger said: But you assembled your forces at the border before the expiry of the appointed time and also allowed a part of your forces to cross the border. All this was a clear breach of the peace-treaty. I have heard with my own ears the Holy Prophet ﷺ saying:

من كان بينه و بين قوم عهد فلا يحلنه ولا يشدنه الى ان يمضى اجل

له او ينبذ اليهم على سواء (ترمذی، کتاب الجهاد، باب فی الغدر، حدیث نمبر ۱۵۸۰)

(Tirmidhi..... Hadith no: 1580)

This means: When you have concluded an agreement, you should not betray that agreeent, unless the appointed time of the agreement has expired or you have announced openly before the other party that you have abrogated that agreement.

So in the light of this injunction of the Holy Prophet ﷺ it was not lawful for Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ to assemble his forces near the border of their territory before the expiry of the agreement or before a clear announcement of the abrogation of that agreement.

The entire conquered territory was returned

Just see how a victorious army is advancing and conquering a large enemy territory and is overjoyed with its victory, yet a sudden change takes place in its behaviour. No sooner did its commander Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ heard the injunction of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, than he ordered the entire conquered territory to be returned to the enemy. The territory was returned atonce and the Muslim army came back to their territory. No example of such incident can be found in the history of the world that a victorious army returned its entire conquered area only to avoid being guilty of the breach of a treaty. Here the question of acquiring land was not involved, nor that of acquiring authority, nor a kingdom. It was the question of acquiring Allah's pleasure for which they aspired. Their action had some resemblance to breach of treaty, so they came back. This is the importance of keeping a promise. When a word of honour is uttered it must be honoured at all costs.

Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ and an Agreement

When Jerusalem was conquered during the Caliphate of Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ an agreement was concluded between the victorious Muslims and the Christians and the Jews concerning the Holy land. It stipulated that the muslims would protect their life, honour and property and in return they (the Jews and the Christians) would pay a tax called Jizyah. Which is levied on non-Muslim subjects of a Muslim state. The Christians and Jews began to pay this tax every year according to the agreement.

Once it so happened that, being engaged in fighting with enemies on other fronts, more forces were needed to deal successfully with them. In order to meet the crisis someone suggested that the forces stationed at Jerusalem were more than necessary. Some Divisions of that force should be sent to the fronts where they were needed. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ accepted this suggestion subject to the condition that the christians and the Jews living in Jerusalem should be advised as under:

We Muslims had taken the responsibility of protecting your lives, honour and property and concluded an agreement with you to this effect. Now we are required to send our forces to other fronts. As such, we will not be able to make good our pledge to give protection to you. So we are returning the Jizya tax realized from you. Now the responsibility to protect your lives, honour and properties will rest with your own selves.

These are some of the examples how the Muslim rulers made good their promises and pledges the like of which cannot be found in the history of any other nation of the world.

The prevailing Forms of Breach of Promise

The second sign of a hypocrite which the Holy Prohpet ﷺ has mentioned in the Hadith is breach of promises and pledges. This is a grievous sin from which every Muslim should protect himself. I had explained in my address that there are many forms of lies which we have excluded from our list of falsehood and lies and do not regard them to be sins. Just in the same way there are certain forms of breach of promises and pledges which we have excluded from our list of breach and betrayal of promises and pledges. There are people who, when asked about a breach of promise, will readily say that it is a grievous sin, yet in their practical life, they commit this sin without feeling any hitch or hesitation.

It is a binding to obey the laws of the country

I want to point out something which the people do not heed, nor do they regard it a matter of religion. My father, Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say: A promise is not only verbal but it is also a practical issue. For example, a man is living in a country as its national. It means that he has actually given an undertaking that he will obey the laws of the country in which he is living, as long as the laws do not involve some sinful act. The national is not bound to obey a law which involves a sin and by acting upon it the national becomes a sinner. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has clearly said:

لاطاعة المخلوق فی معصية الخالق (مُصنف ابن ابی شیبة ج ۱۲ ص ۵۴۶)

(Musannif ibn Abi Shaibah. vol. 12. p.-546)

The obedience to such repulsive laws is not only a binding, and it is also unlawful to obey them. If there is a law and by obeying it you do not commit a sin, you are bound to act upon this law because you have actually made an implied promise that you will obey the country's laws.

Hazrat Moosa (Moses) عليه السلام and Pharaoh's laws

By way of an example, my father رحمة الله عليه used to relate to us the story of Hazrat Moosa عليه السلام. Hazrat Moosa عليه السلام lived in Pharaoh's country. Before becoming a Prophet he had killed a Qibti (coptic) by delivering him a fatal blow. This is a well known story which the Holy Qur'an has also related: Hazrat Moosa عليه السلام also used to seek forgiveness from this sin:

لَهُمْ عَلَيَّ ذَنْبٌ (سورة الشعراء: ١٤)

That is: "they have a charge of crime against me" and I have committed a sin against them." Hazrat Moosa عليه السلام considered it a sin and used to seek Allah's pardon. A question arises from this murder. The coptic whom Hazrat Moosa عليه السلام had killed was an unbeliever and belonged to a country which was belligerent. What crime or sin did the murder of this coptic involve? My father رحمة الله عليه explained. When Hazrat Moosa عليه السلام was living in pharaoh's land, he had given an implied undertaking that he would obey the laws of that land, and it was not lawful to kill anyone. Thus the murder committed by Hazrat Moosa عليه السلام was a violation of the law. Thus the national of every country, whether it is a Muslim or non-Muslim country makes a promise to obey the laws of the country, subject to the condition that this does not compel the national to commit some sin.

To obtain a Visa is an implied undertaking

Likewise when you obtain a visa to go to another country, whether it is a Muslim or a non-Muslim country, like India, America or Europe you give an implied undertaking that you will obey the laws of the country concerned as far as possible, unless this compels you to commit a sin. It is not lawful for you to obey that law which involves you in a sin. In short, all such laws are included in this implied undertaking, unless they compel the visitor to commit some sin.

It is a sin to violate Traffic Rules

Traffic Rules demand that traffic should to kept to the right or the left or should stop at red signal lights and resume movement at green lights. As a national, it is your implied undertaking that you will obey these rules. If anyone does not obey these rules he commits a breach of promise as well as a sin. People generally do not believe that it is a sin to violate the traffic rules, rather they think that it is a matter of cleverness that they disobey the traffic rules and escape from the grip of the law.

You will be responsible for the consequences of this violation here and in the Hereafter

Remember that violating the traffic rules is a sin in many respects. In one respect it is a breach of promise and in another respect by violating these rules you may cause harm to someone else. These rules are promulgated to maintain order and discipline, so that the action of one person may not jeopardize the safety of another person and thus endanger the well-being of the society as a whole. Thus, if you harm anyone by breaking these rules you render yourself liable to punishment here as well as of the Hereafter.

This is Allah's Deen (Faith)

I am explaining these matters because people think that they have nothing to do with religion, but they relate to this worldly life. Why is it necessary to abide by these man-made rules? Bear in mind well that this is Allah's Deen which is applicable to all walks of our lives and is not confined only to some particular branch of life. To sum up, it is under no circumstances binding on anyone to obey a rule which compels one to commit a sin subject to this condition, we are bound by the Shari'ah to obey all the rules of Government.

Summary

There are many acts which we consider to be acts of breach of promise and there are others which we think they do not involve any breach of promise, although they too involve the same sin. It is necessary to shun such sins and do our best to subject ourselves to the laws of the Shari'ah in its entirety.

We have discussed two signs of a hypocrite; the third sign is the betrayal of trust. We take this sin in the same light that we regard some acts of betrayal of trust as betrayal and exclude some other acts from the list of this sin, although they all fall within the definition of betrayal of trust.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله اب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi

Date : Friday 13th December, 1991
After 'Asr Prayers.

The most valuable trust which every man has with him without any exception is man's own life and existence, the parts of his body and limbs, and the time at his disposal. Does anyone think that he is the sole owner of these limbs, including the eyes, the ears, the nose, the tongue, the hands and feet, etc. and can use them as he likes? This is certainly not so! All these limbs belong to Allah Who has bestowed them upon us for using them. It is the demand of this Trust or bequest that we should use this existence of ours, these limbs, faculties and capacities only for the very purpose for which they have been bestowed upon us. If we use them for some other purpose, then we will be guilty of breach of trust.

BREACH OF TRUST AND ITS PREVAILING FORMS

الحمد لله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرو انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهد ان سيدنا وسند نا وشفيعنا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله ـ صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا ـ

اما بعد!

عن ابى هريرة رضى الله تعالى عنه قال قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم: اية المنافق ثلاث، اذا حدث كذب واذا وعد اخلف واذا اؤتمن خان ـ وفى رواية، وان صلى وصام وزعم انه مسلم (صحيح بخارى، كتاب الايمان، باب علامات المنافق، حديث نمبر ٣٣)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His forgiveness. We believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the mischief of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is none to lead him astray whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God but Allah alone and that He has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, our authority, and our Prophet and our master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah have mercy on his household and his Companions. And bless them and salute them all in great abundance.

In this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned three signs of a hypocrite and has indicated therein that a man who possesses these three signs does not deserve to be called a believer in the true sense. The two of these, viz. telling lies and betraying promises were discussed in some detail in our earlier assemblies. May Almighty Allah help us in shunning these two vices.

Emphasis on the virtue of trustfulness

The third sign of a hypocrite mentioned by the Holy Prophet ﷺ is the betrayal of a trust. A Muslim is not expected to commit this sin. Only a hypocrite can do this. There are many verses of the Holy Qur'an and Ahadith in which emphasis has been laid on trustfulness that trust must be discharged. Allah has said in the Holy Qur'an :

إِنَّ اللَّهَ يَأْمُرُكُمْ أَنْ تُؤَدُّوا الْأَمَانَاتِ إِلَى أَهْلِهَا (٥٨: سورة النساء)

Allah commands you to return Trusts (deposits) to their owners. (4:58)

The meaning is quite clear. There is a Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ which emphasizes the same point:

لا ايمان لمن لا امانة له

(Musnad Ahmad-v.3, p. 135).

That is, a man devoid of the virtue of trustfulness is devoid of Eeman (belief). The quality of trustfulness is an essential demand and need of Eeman. A man should never betray a trust.

The conception of Trustfulness

What I want you to note in this meeting is that we have become used to restricting the sense and meaning of these items. What we understand by the attribute of trustfulness is that if a man deposits with us some money for safe custody for sometime we have to return it to the depositors as and when he wants his deposit back. If we return the deposit on demand, we discharge the trust and are trustworthy; but if we fail to do so, we betray the trust. This is all that we understand by discharging or betraying a trust and nothing beyond that. This too, no doubt, falls within the subject trust. In Qur'an and Hadith, the attribute of trustfulness is very vast in its import, and include many acts which come under trustfulness and are a part of trust and trustfulness.

The meaning of Trustfulness

"Amaanat" is an Arabic word which means "to have trust on anyone in any matter". Thus it is the reality of trustfulness that you entrust anything to anyone, of money, a secret or the like, with the hope that the trustee shall maintain the trust with him honestly and discharge it honestly and fully when called upon to do so. Keeping this import of trust you will realise that the attribute includes a great deal more than which we understand by it.

The undertaking given on the Day of "A-last" (Am I not your Lord?)

Almighty Allah had taken on the "Day of A-last' an undertaking from all men saying:

اِنَّا عَرَضْنَا الْاَ مَانَةَ عَلَى السَّمٰوٰتِ وَالْاَرْضِ وَالْجِبَالِ فَاَبَيْنَ اَنْ يَّحْمِلْنَهَا وَاَشْفَقْنَ مِنْهَا وَ حَمَلَهَا الْاِنْسَانُ ط اِنَّهٗ كَانَ ظَلُوْمًا جَهُوْلاً (۷۲ الاحزاب)

Indeed, we offered the trust to the heavens and the earth and the mountains, but they refused to bear it and were afraid of it, but man bore it. Indeed, he is a tyrant and a fool. (33:72)

Allah says that man was really a tyrant and a fool that he accepted to bear the responsibility of this tremendous Divine Trust when powers far stronger than he shrank from this responsibility. He did not take into consideration the weight of the burden which might crush him.

This life is a Trust

Almighty Allah has called this burden a trust. What was that burden which was imposed on man? The commentators of the Holy Qur'an have said that the Trust was this life which was granted to man with option to do good or bad. For doing good, man's reward would be eternal blessing of Paradise and for doing bad the reward would be Allah's wrath and the eternal torment of Hell. Hafiz Shirazi رحمة الله عليه the great mystic poet has expressed the same idea in this persian couplet:

آسمان بارِ امانت نتواند کشید
قرعۂ فال بنام منِ دیوانہ زد

That is: The heavens could not bear this burden of the Trust, but this heavy burden fell to the lot of this weak and feeble creature that is man. Any way, the Holy Qur'an has called the burden of this life a "Trust".

This body is a Trust

This entire life has been entrusted to us as a trust. We are required to make use of this life strictly according to the will of Allah and the injunctions of His Prophet ﷺ. Thus, the most valuable trust with which every man has been entrusted without any exception is his own life with all its parts, limbs periods of time and energies. Is there anyone who can claim that he is the owner of his hands, eyes, ears, etc.? None can claim this. This body with all its limbs is a trust with us from its Creator, Allah. All these limbs with the power and advantages inherent in them are blessings granted to us by Allah. We are, therefore, called upon to use them as well as our energies for the purpose for which they have been granted to us and in the way in which we have been commanded to use them. If we do otherwise, it will be a betrayal of trust on our part.

The Eyes are a Blessing

The eyes are a great blessing of Allah which He has bestowed upon us. A blessing like these cannot be purchased at any price. Despite this we hardly value them, because they came to us as in-built lenses in our bodies at the time of birth and have been functioning automatically like the other limbs. In acquiring this blessing of sight man had to spend neither money nor any effort. Man realizes the value of his eyes the day when some defect afflicts them and the blessing of sight is threatened. In such a critical situation man is prepared to spend his entire wealth for the restoration of his eyesight. The eyes may be compared to a delicate piece of machinery which needs neither servicing, nor over-hanling, nor any monthly expenses, nor rent nor tax.

The Eyes are a Trust

Allah has, however, conferred this machine of the eyes on us as a trust. With them we may see the world and enjoy its wonderful scenes and beauties with the exception of a few objects. Allah has forbidden us to cast our glances on forbidden faces of women because by so doing we would be betraying our trust. According to the Holy Qur'an the misuse of the eyes is a betrayal of trust.

يَعْلَمُ خَائِنَةَ الْأَعْيُنِ (١٩ غافر)

He (Allah) knows the traitor eyes.... (40:19)

This means that Allah is aware when men use their eyes to see forbidden faces or scenes. This is, as if a trustee is misappropriating stealthly someone's money or property that had been entrusted to him to be kept as a trust. This fool does not know that Allah is watching everything and no secret is a secret for Him. That is why Allah has declared the betrayal or misuse of the eyes to be a very grievous sin and crime. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has also given serious warnings against this.

On the other hand, if this blessing and trust of the eyes are used rightly, then you attract Allah's mercy. It occurs in a Hadith that if a person enters his house and casts a loving glance at his wife and his wife also looks at her husband with love, then Allah also looks at both with love and mercy. It is because they put their eyes to the right and lawful use, even for personal gratification. They deserve Allah's mercy for having obeyed Allah's injunction in using their eyes.

The ears are a Trust

Almighty Allah has granted men ears for hearing and allowed them to hear everything. He has imposed only a few restrictions, on hearing like all sorts of music, backbiting, lies and Slanders, etc. If the ears are used to hear such forbidden things, then this is the betrayal of a trust.

The Tongue is a Trust

The tongue is such a blessing bestowed by Allah upon man that it has been discharging its duty of speech since birth and shall continue to do so till his death. It is difficult to encompass how many duties a slight stir of the tongue has been performing for man. Such a great blessing of Allah is this tongue that if by moving it only once you utter these sacred words:

سبحان الله الحمد لله

then according to a Hadith the weight of these sacred words fill half the space of the scale of "Deeds". We should, therefore, use this tongue to ameliorate our Hereafter. If this tongue is used in telling lies, backbiting, in teasing a Muslim or in causing distress to others, then this is a betrayal of trust.

Suicide is forbidden (Haram)

So far we have talked only about the limbs of the body. Our entire existence and body as a whole are a trust for us from Allah. Some think that this body is our own and we can use it as we like but this is not correct. It is a trust from Allah. That is why the Shari'ah has forbidden suicide. Suicide has been forbidden and made a very grievous sin, because this body, this life and these limbs are not our property; they belong to Allah and we have been forbidden to misuse them.

For example, this book belongs to me and I have every right and it is lawful for me, to give it to any other person. If there is a man who permits another man to kill him and executes an authority for the killer on a stamped paper to this effect, yet it will never be lawful for the executor to commit this murder on the basis of this permission. The body or the life does not belong to the person who has permitted the murderer to kill him. As already explained, the body or the life belongs to Allah who has entrusted it to one of his trustees as a sacred trust. When a persons body is not his own property how can he be allowed to commit suicide by killing himself or by permitting someone else to kill him.

It is a breach of Trust to commit sins

Allah has granted us this entire existence, life, its energies and faculties, as a sacred trust. So, if anything is done or said in life with the help of these limbs against the will of Allah, it will be committing a breach of trust. The conception of trust in our minds, as hinted earlier, is that if anyone entrusts to us some money as a deposit we should keep it with us, guard it carefully without misappropriating it and return it to its owner without any hesitation as and when he wants it back. If we do not do this but spend that money, then we commit a breach of trust. This conception of Trust is too narrow and limited. The entire life is a trust and every word and act of life are a trust.

It has been said that it is a sign of hypocrisy to commit a breach of Trust. It means that all the sins that are committed either by the eyes, or the ears or the tongues or any other limb of the body are included in the definition of breach of trust; they are not the deeds of a believer but those of a hypocrite.

Borrowed things are a trust

What has been discussed in the preceding pages are general aspects of Trust. There are also some particular aspects of Trust. Sometimes we do not count these latter aspects as Trust. An example is that of things borrowed from others. A man does not himself possess a thing but needs it and borrows it from his neighbour or some friend only for temporary use. I want to read a book and borrow it from a friend of mine for reading and return. Now it is my duty to use this book, or, for that matter, any other borrowed thing with due care and in a proper way without doing any harm to it and return it within the agreed period after using it according to the desire and pleasure of the owner.

These pots and plates are a Trust

Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanvi Sahib رحمة الله عليه has explained this important point in many of his sermons, by means of suitable examples. A friend of yours sends you a gift of some food. It is your duty to receive the food in your own plate or pot and return at once the plate or pot of the person who brought the food. What actually happens is that the plate or the pot is retained for many days or are not returned at all. This is clearly a breach of Trust, because the plate or pot was brought to you as a trust and not as a permanent gift along with the food.

This book is a Trust

Another example is that of a book which you borrow from someone for reading and return to the owner. But instead of returning the book in time you keep it with you. This is a breach of trust. This undesirable practice has become so common that people have now begun to say that "it is lawful to steal a book". As such, it does not involve any breach of trust, therefore the question of returning the book to its owner does not arise. All this comes within the meaning of breach of trust. It must be noted that all borrowed goods are trusts and it is an obligatory duty (Farz) to use them according to the wish of the owner. It is unlawful to do otherwise.

Working hours are a Trust

Take another example. A man enters some service and takes up a job. He gives an undertaking to work for eight hours. In other words he has sold these eight hours to the employer . Now these eight hours of his are a Trust of his employer, kept with him. Now if he spends even one minute out of these eight hours in something other than his official duties without the permission of the employer he commits a breach of Trust. For example if some friends visit him during the working hours and he entertains them with tea in a hotel and in gossiping with them. This action of his is a grievous breach of Trust.

Now consider, how negligent we are that we are misusing those hours which we have sold to our employers. Thus, the remunerations that we receive at the end of every month is not lawful for us fully, because we have not given full time to the work for which we have been employed.

The practice of the Teachers of Darul-Uloom, Deoband (India)

Consider the practice of the learned teachers of the Darul-Uloom, Deoband (India) who remind us of the sacred atmosphere which prevaild during the days of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم. Their monthly salaries did not exceed Rs 10/- or Rs 15/- As they had sold some agreed hours of their time to the Darul-Uloom, they were careful not to use them in something other than their teaching work. If they ever happend to receive some visitors and spent sometime with them they noted the time so spent. They kept a record for the whole month. At the end of the month they reported the total time thus noted in their note books to the Administrator, requesting him to deduct from their salaries the amounts due to the hours spent on activities other than their regular teaching duties. They followed this practice, because they believed, and rightly so, that the remuneration received from the institution for personal work would not be lawful for them. What is the practice now! Employees apply for increase in salaries but never for deduction of salaries in respect of time spent on personal work and work other than their allotted duties.

The monthly salary of Hazrat Shaikh-ul-Hind رحمۃ اللہ علیہ

Shaikh-ul-Hind Hazrat Maulana Mahmood-ul-Hasan رحمۃ اللہ علیہ was the first student of Darul-Uloom, Deoband (India) through whom the Darul-Uloom commenced its mission. He enjoyed a high position in learning, knowledge and righteousness. At the time when he was a professor of Hadith, his monthly salary was only Rs 10/-. When he grew older, acquired more experience in teaching and his needs of life too increased along with his duties, the advisory council of the Darul-Uloom, decided to grant him an increment of Rs 5/-, raising his salary to Rs 15/- per month. When he received Rs 15/ instead of Rs 10/- he felt surprised. On inquiry he was told that his salary had been increased by Rs 5/- raising it to Rs 15/-. The Shaikh did not accept this increment and told the Administrator of the institution that having grown older and less active he was giving less service, so he did not deserve any increment. He suggested the usual salary of Rs 10/- should be restored.

The teachers of the Darul-Uloom approached and requested him to accept the increment, otherwise his precedent would create hardship for others. The Shaikh, however, did not change his mind for the fear of the Hereafter where he would have to render an account for every penny earned and spent in this transitory world.

The Darul-Uloom, was not on the pattern of a Univerity of our days in which the professor delivers a lecture to the class and the students take notes from that lectures and the class is over. The Darul-Uloom was founded and is running on the basis of piety and righteousness where all concerned fear accountability in the Hereafter before Allah.

Today is the age of demanding rights

Today all efforts are concentrated on receiving rights. Agitations are being staged, processions taken out and slogans raised for preferring claims and demanding rights. But these agitators never care to think if they are discharging their liabilities and paying what is due by them to others. Today everyone is clamouring for increase in salary, prompt promotion, and more days of leave and allowances, without ever thinking if he is discharging his duties and dues honestly and according to the service rules and agreement.

Everyone should be watchful of his duties:

We must acknowlege the truth that nobody's rights can be discharged in the world as long as we remain demanding our rights and neglecting the rights of others that lie against us. The effective way of meeting claims and discharging rights honestly and justly is that which Allah and His Prophet ﷺ have taught us. For this everyone should be mindful of his own responsibilities, liabilities and duties, with a view to discharging them honestly and conscientiously. Such a trend of thought and feeling will lead automatically to justice being done to everybody. If husband and wife both realize sincerly the rights and liabilities of each other will find their right settlement between them. In the same way if the employers and the employees are conscious of their rights and liabilities of each party there will be no difficulty in their settlement between them. If such feelings of mutual sympathy and responsibility do not arise in the hearts, no peaceful settlement can come out, despite these everyday, agitation, processions, slogans and creation of associations for the protection of rights and payment of claims. These rights will remain neglected, undischarged and betrayed, unless we fear Allah and we remember the Day of Judgement. Fear of Allah is the only panacea for establishing peace and tranquility in this world.

This is also fraud in weights and measures

The time at our disposal is a trust from Allah. The Holy Qur'an says:

وَيْلٌ لِّلْمُطَفِّفِيْنَ ۝ اَلَّذِيْنَ اِذَا اكْتَالُوْا عَلَى النَّاسِ يَسْتَوْفُوْنَ وَاِذَا كَالُوْهُمْ اَوْ وَّزَنُوْهُمْ يُخْسِرُوْنَ (المطففين: ٣)

This means:

Woe to the defrauders who demand full measure when they take it from mankind; but if they measure to them or weigh for them they give less than due. (83:1-3)

The meaning of the verse as given above is self-explanatory. There is painful torment for those who take full measure when taking something from others, but give short measure when weighing something for others. People are under the impression that this ordinance applies only to transactions concerning sale and purchase of some commodity. The Ulama have said that this التطفيف فی کل شئی applies to all sorts of dealings. For example, if a worker has been employed to work eight hours, but he works less than eight hours, he renders himself liable to this painful punishment.

"Post" and "Position" impose responsibilities

Nowadays we are required to undergo a great fatigue and torture, in case we have to contact an office for some official business, because you have to call at that office many times to get your work done. Sometime the officer concerned is not found in his seat or you are asked to visit the next day or some other plea is taken to postpone disposal. Thus, you have to make endless rounds of that office. This is due to absence of the sense of responsibility towards one's duty and Trust. It is not an easy job and a bed of roses, if one is occupying some high position, it carries with it a heavy burden of responsibilities. Great integrity and moral rectitude are needed to discharge these responsibilities. The heaviness of these responsibilities can be easily guessed from an assertion of Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ who said: If even a dog dies of hunger on the bank of the River Euphrates, I feel afraid lest I should be questioned on the Day of Judgement about the death of that dog during my caliphate.

Should I appoint such a person as a Caliph?

It is narrated that when Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ was fatally wounded by a murderer, some of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم called on him, they advised him to appoint someone to succeed him as a Caliph to take over charge of the affairs of the Caliphate. They proposed to him رضی اللہ عنہ for this appointment the name of his son Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضی اللہ عنہ. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ rejected this advice, saying: You want me to appoint a person as Caliph who does not know how to divorce his wife. (Suyutis History of the Caliphs. p.113)

It so happened that during the time of the Holy Prophet ﷺ Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضی اللہ عنہ divorced his wife, while she was in her menses. He violated the order of the Shari'ah that one must not divorce one's wife during menstruation. In fact Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضی اللہ عنہ was not aware of this order. When this came to the knowledge of the Holy Prophet ﷺ he asked Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar to revoke the divorce and if he wanted to divorce his wife, he should divorce her again during the period of her purification from the menses. Referring to this incident Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ had said that he did not know how to divorce his wife.

Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ and his sense of responsibility

In addition to reference to this incident Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ gave them a second reply by mentioning that it was enough that the noose of the Caliphate had been round the neck of a man hailing from Khattab family (i.e. himself) for twelve years. He did not like to throw that noose round the neck of any other person of his family. He رضی اللہ عنہ further said that he did know what would be his condition when he was called to account before Allah for this tremendous responsibility of his caliphate. This Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ is the same person who had heard from the Holy Prophet ﷺ the glad tidings of "عمر فی الجنة" (Umar is in paradise). After this glad tidings no doubt remained about his entering paradise. Notwithstanding this, he was so much afraid of his accountability before Almighty Allah on the Day of Judgement. (Tabari's History, vol. III, p-292)

Once Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ said that he would deem it quite satisfactory for him if he was let go on the Day of Judgment on "no loss no gain basis and was sent to "اعراف" (the purgatory). This is a place in between Paradise and Hell which will be allotted to those whose balances of good and bad deeds are just equal. In short, even if a very small fraction of the sense of responsibility and trust is born in our hearts, by Allah's grace, all our problems will be solved.

Problem Number one of Pakistan is Breach of Trust

A question once arose in Pakistan as to what is Pakistan's problem number one. In other words, what is the greatest difficulty of Pakistan requiring the first priority for its solution. It was felt that the problem Number one needing first priority was "Breach of Trust". The conception of honesty or trust is totally absent in our minds. We have lost all sense about the importance of discharging our duties, liabilities and responsibilities. We are running after money and are racing to grab high positions politically and monetarily. We never feel that we will one day have to render accounts before Allah about our deeds done in this world.

Office materials are a Trust

All the materials, articles and equipments of the office where you are working are Trust placed under you. They have been entrusted to you for use for official work and not for personal work. Using them for personal benefits is a breach of trust. Most people think that there is no harm in using small things of the office, e.g., paper pins, small pieces of paper. Remember well that breach of trust is forbidden and it is unlawful whether it relates to small and cheap or valuable articles. Breach of trust is a major sin and disobedience to Almighty Allah. We must refrain from this sin in all circumstances,

Government and public properties are a Trust

As it has already been said the correct meaning of "Trust" is brought out in this example. Someone having reliance on you, entrusts to you some duty, but you do not discharge that duty according to his trust on you. This is a breach of trust on your part. These roads on which you walk or drive, these buses and Railway trains on which you travel are all a trust to be used honestly and lawfully. If they are used unlawfully and unauthorisedly, then this is a breach of trust. For example, while they are in your use, you make them dirty and unserviceable in one way or the other, then you are guilty of committing a breach of trust. It is a matter of known practice that people dig out drainage lines across roads, enclose parts thereof for holding functions and erect canopies with thick iron nails driven into the roads. Thus, they are damaging them, obstructing their free use and service. These are all unlawful encroachments and are therefore, breach of trust. If a man fixes the drain-pipe of his house so as to let the waste-water on the road, he misuses land which is not his property. According to the laws of the Shari'ah this act is unlawful. The Ulama have discussed these issues in detail which may be seen for guidance.

The Drain-pipe (Aquaduct) of Hazrat Abbas رضی اللہ عنہ

Hazrat Abbas رضی اللہ عنہ was an uncle of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The story of his drain-pipe is well known. His house was adjacent to the Prophet's mosque. One drain-pipe of his house projected in the direction of the mosque and its water fell into the courtyard of the mosque. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ happened to see that pipe and inquired whose pipe it was that pointed towards the courtyard of the mosque. He was told that it belonged to Hazrat Abbas رضی اللہ عنہ who was an uncle of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ said that it was unlawful and ordered to break it. When Hazrat Abbas رضی اللہ عنہ came to know this incident he called on Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ and complained to him about this action. Hazrat Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ explained to Hazrat Abbas رضی اللہ عنہ the reason for his action. Hazrat Abbas رضی اللہ عنہ told Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ that he had fixed that drain-pipe with the permission of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Hazrat Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ took Hazrat Abbas رضی اللہ عنہ to the Prophets mosque. He kneeled down under the drain-pipe and asked Hazrat Abbas رضی اللہ عنہ to refix the pipe by standing on his back. Hazrat Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ also said that Khattab's son had no business to break a drain-pipe which had been fixed with the permission of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Hazrat Abbas رضی اللہ عنہ replied that he would have the needful done. To this Hazrat Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ reacted by saying that as he had ordered the drain-pipe to be broken he should bear the punishment. Anyway, as Hazrat Abbas رضی اللہ عنہ had fixed the drain-pipe with the permission of the Holy Prophet ﷺ his action was lawful. In normal conditions it is unlawful to fix such drain-pipes without the permission of the Government. (Tabaqat Ibn-ul-Ma'arij. vol. iv, p-20)

Today the situation has become so hopeless that a man grabs as much land as he desires, without thinking at all that he is committing a sin. People are offering their prayers and at the same time are committing many sins and breach of trust. People must do their best to save themselves from such sins.

Topics discussed in a meeting are a Trust

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith: "المجالس بالامنة" (Jami-ul-usool, 6:545). This means that what is said and talked in a meeting is also a trust with those who hear that talk. For example, two or three men are talking together in a formal style and their talk may include some secrets also. It is a breach of trust to divulge these secrets to other circles and outsiders. Some people are fond of spreading rumours and conveying the secrets of one person or group to another. This is nothing but creating disorder and corruption. There is, however, an exception to this principle. If in a meeting plans are being hatched to commit robbery murder or breach of peace and order, it is necessary to bring such conspiracies to the notice of the authorities concerned to suppress the mischief. The general rule however, is that secrets of one person should not be divulged to others.

Secrets are a Trust

Sometimes it so happens that a man hears someone's secret and, unable to keep it to himself, he divulges it to another person forbidding him to divulge the secret to any one else. This latter person divulges that secret to a third person forbidding him with emphasis to tell the secret to a fourth person. This vicious circle goes on widening till the secret becomes a common talk of the public. Just think for yourself of the harm and sin involved in breach of trusts.

This is a vice which has created terrible chaos and corruption in our society. This is a gengeral trend of behaviour prevailing in the society that incorrect and exaggerated reports are being circulated among persons leading ultimately to large-scale disturbances.

To overhear other's telephone conversation

It is a breach of trust to over-hear conversation going on between two persons on the telephone which may be some secrets about their private affairs of which they may not like others to know. Over and above this, everyone is aware of the scourge of telephone-tapping which may be intentional or unintentional through some fault in the telephone lines. All these activities fall within the definition of spying, are unlawful and a grievous sin as well as a breach of trust. What is more, some people feel proud by becoming aware of the secrets of others and consider these activities as an art and a fine performance on their part, yet according to the Holy Prophet ﷺ this is included in the sin of breach of trust.

Summary

To sum up, there is not a single aspect of our life in which command has not been given to discharge and honour trust. Equally numerous are, also the occasions on which the sin of breach of Trust is being commited by the people. The vices mentioned to you fall within the definition of breach of Trust and may be regarded as hypocrisy. It is, therefore, necessary that all of us should always preserve in their memory the sacred words of the Hadith, saying that there are three signs of a hypocrite, viz.,

(1) When he talks, he lies;

(2) When he makes a promise he breaks it, and

(3) When he is entrusted with a trust he betrays it.

It is a part of Deen to follow the injunctions implied in the Hadith. We have confined Deen only to a few aspects of our lives, although it encompasses the entire course of our existence.

May Almighty Allah help us to understand the true meaning and spirit of Deen and follow it as desired by Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. Aameen

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi

Date : Friday 29th November, 1991
After 'Asr Prayers.

What does society mean? Society includes in its meaning you, I and all individuals, living together in a given sector, area, city or a country. If every individual takes care to reform himself, the society as a whole will become reformed in due course. Ignoring this principle, if we find fault with and speak ill of one another; the society can never be reformed.

HOW TO REFORM THE SOCIETY?

الحمد لله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرو انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهد ان سيدنا وسند نا وشفيعنا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد!

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْا عَلَيْكُمْ اَنْفُسَكُمْ لَا يَضُرُّكُمْ مَنْ ضَلَّ اِذَا اهْتَدَيْتُمْ ط اِلَى اللّٰهِ مَرْجِعُكُمْ جَمِيْعًا فَيُنَبِّئُكُمْ بِمَا كُنْتُمْ تَعْمَلُوْنَ (المائدة: ١٠٥)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and believe in Him and rely on Him.

We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our souls and from the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom Allah guides and none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God but Allah, the one the one Who has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, our authority, our Prophet and our master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah send mercy on him, his household and his Companions, and bless them all and send salutations on them in great abundance.

O you who believe! Take care of your own souls. He who is strayed cannot harm you, if you are rightly guided. To Allah will you all return; and then He will inform you of what you used to do. (5:105)

A unique and wonderful verse

This is a unique and wonderful verse of the Holy Qur'an which diagnoses a very serious disease of ours. In fact it discloses a very hidden and imperceptible malady in our souls. Who knows the psychology and temperament of man more than his Creator, Allah? This verse also contains an answer to a very important question which is arising in our minds.

Why do the efforts made to reform the society are ineffective

We see today that in this world strenuous efforts are being made every where to effect reform and improvement in the human society, through associations and groups formed for this purpose. Innumerable sessions, meetings and assemblies are held. Agitations are staged and processions taken out for the sole purpose of arresting the degeneration of the society and uplifting its standard of morality and discipline. All the associations, committees and social Institutions are striving hard day and night to achieve the same aim to reform the society. In addition to these Associations and Bodies a large number of philanthropists have devoted their valuable lives to this righteous cause yet without any encouraging results.

If you take the trouble of visiting offices, market places, parks, hotels, etc. and see for yourselves, the activities and conduct of the people in these places,you are sure to realize that the fast deteriorating conditions of our society are counter acting and nullifying the effects, if any, of the efforts made to bring reform in the standard of the society and to raise the level of its morality. It seems as if the wheel is revolving in the reverse gear. If there is any progress, it is in vice not in goodness. In such a deplorable state of affairs a question naturally arises why the efforts made to ameliorate the society are going waste. Leaving aside a few exceptions, this degeneration is visible in every nook and corner.

Diagnosis of the Disease

Almighty Allah has, by His mercy, furnished in this verse, along with diagnosis, a remedy for the disease. This is a verse the words and meaning of which generally remains absent from our minds.

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْا عَلَيْكُمْ اَنْفُسَكُمْ لَا يَضُرُّكُمْ مَنْ ضَلَّ اِذَا اهْتَدَيْتُمْ ؕ
اِلَى اللّٰهِ مَرْجِعُكُمْ جَمِيْعًا فَيُنَبِّئُكُمْ بِمَا كُنْتُمْ تَعْمَلُوْنَ (المائدة ١٠٥)

O you who believe! Take care of your own souls. He who is strayed cannot harm you; if you are rightly guided. To Allah will you all return; then He will inform you of what you used to do. (5:105)

Mindful of others' interests and neglectful of one's own

This verse has pointed out to us a very basic disease of our own. An effective cause of the failure of our reformative efforts lies in the fact that when people launch their campaign to ameliorate and reform the society, they concentrate all their attention on others but fail to look into their own selves to find out their own short comings and faults requiring to be remedied and reformed first. It has now become a common practice of our public leaders, reformers, and preachers to find fault with, and pry into, the behaviour and conduct of, others and conniving at their own personal faults and lapses which deserve their attentions first. They exhaust all the art of oratory in commenting on others without bestowing the least attention upon their own weaknesses and defects. In most cases these preachers and speakers deliver their addresses and sermons only to get public applause and to satisfy their own ego. The obvious result of such campaigns is failure and frustration.

The most ruined person

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith:

من قال هلك الناس فهو اهلكهم (صحيح مسلم كتاب البر و الصلة باب النهى عن قول هلك الناس حديث نمبر ٢٦٢٣)

(Sahih Muslim ..... Hadith no: 2623)

That is: "The man who says that the people are ruined is himself ruined most of all".

In other words; if a man is commenting on others by his remarks that they have gone astray, then he himself has gone astray farther than they. This man is finding fault with others instead of minding his own business. He, therefore, requires reform more than others!

A sick man cannot afford to worry for others sickness

A man who is suffering from gripes and is restless on this account can hardly worry for those who are sneezing and are thereatened by an attack of influenza. If a man has the attack of some serious disease, it will be very natural for him to get rid of his own disease, instead of worrying for others, suffering from minor diseases. It is therefore, very unnatural, rather foolish, to feel for others when the situation demands that he should feel for himself and first mind his own health safety and welfare.

"But she is not suffering from colic"

It so happened that once I took a female relative to a Hospital, because she had some mild pain in her stomach. At the time of getting into the lift I saw a female patient approaching the lift door on a wheel - chair. Her hands and feet were broken and covered with plaster. Her chest was burnt. She was indeed in a very pitiable condition. To console my relative patient I said to her: Look here! How much distress and pain this woman is undergoing! A man feels a sort of relief in his own pain which induces him to thank Allah. In reply my relative patient said: She has indeed broken hands and feet, but at least she has no pain in her stomach.

In her opinion, the pain in her stomach was greater than the suffering of the other seriously wounded woman whose hands and feet were broken and the chest burnt. This is because one feels ones own pain and agony more acutely. This is an example of how we are trying to search for the defects and weaknesses of others but do not look into our own faults and shortcomings to eradicate them.

Treatment of the Disease

In this verse Allah is warning us by commanding that first we should take care of our own souls instead of finding faults with others. If we follow the path of right guidance, the deviation and erroneous conduct of others will not harm us. Everyone will be responsible for his own deeds. So he should mind his own affairs. because he shall have to render an account for his doings before Allah in the Hereafter. Who knows that the deeds done by the man who is being criticised may be more valuable in the sight of Allah than the deeds of the person who is indulging in criticism and fault finding.

Any way, we generally make speeches and deliever sermons as a hobby and enjoyment. This is not the way of reforming the society.

Meetings of self-searching and self-accountability

It is all right to hold meetings to discuss the vices that have crept into our society and to attend such meetings to listen to, understand and act upon the reformative instructions and other religious matters discussed in such meetings. In fact such meetings are welcome.

Man's First task

It is the primary duty of man to review his day's activities to ascertain what work he is doing according to the pleasure of, and in the way taught by, Allah. He should also see how many deeds he is doing against the pleasure of Allah. If he is disobeying any of Allah's commands, he must think how to make himself obedient and how to reform himself. If Almighty Allah creates this thought in our hearts, this will, God willing, lead to the reform of our society.

What is Society?

Society may be defined as a group of individuals living in a particular area. If every individual living in a society reforms himself and improves his conduct, this will automatically lead to the reform and improvement of the society as a whole. On the other, hand, if everyone tries to reform others, ignoring his own need of reform, there will be no improvement in the society at all.

The practice of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم

If we look closely into the lives of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم we shall find that the first and main concern of everyone of them was to reform himself and to get rid of his defects and weaknesses and become an obedient servant and a good Muslim. Hazrat Hanzallah رضی اللہ عنہ is a renowned companion of the Holy Prophet ﷺ who used to attend the Prophet's meetings to receive benefits from him ﷺ and purify his soul. One day he came to the Holy Prophet ﷺ running and shouting these words: Hazrat Hanzallah رضی اللہ عنہ has become a hypocrite! The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked him what had happened to him. In reply he said: O Prophet ﷺ of Allah! As long as I remain in your company and listen to your sermons, my heart is highly inspired and I feel inclined to improve my soul. However when I leave your company and go out to attend worldly affairs, all this blessed effect vanishes. I feel afraid that this is a hypocrite's character that what is within does not correspond to what is outside.

On hearing this the Holy Prohpet ﷺ pacified him by saying: O Hanzallah رضی اللہ عنہ, you have not become a hypocrite. These are momentary changes. The condition of the heart does not remain constant at all times. The emotions and feelings are subject to change from time to time. It is not, therefore right to feel that one has become a hypocrite on account of such temporary changes. (Sahih Muslim .... Hadith no: 2750)

Now consider that Hazrat Hanzallah رضی اللہ عنہ felt that he had become a hypocrite, but he did not charge with hypocrisy any other person. By the process of self searching and self accountability he felt very much worried by the thought that he had become a hypocrite. This behaviour demonstrates that he was sincerely concerned with his own reform and improvement.

A distinction of Hazrat Huzaifah bin Yaman رضی اللہ عنہ

The Holy Prophet ﷺ had taken Hazrat Huzaifah bin Yaman رضی اللہ عنہ in his confidence and informed him of many of his ﷺ secrets, including the names of all the hypocrites residing in Madinah Hazrat Huzaifah رضی اللہ عنہ was aware of the hypocrites of Madinah with such certainty that if he did not join the furneral prayer of any person in Madinah, the companions concluded that the deceased was a hypocrite for sure. Conversely, if Hazrat Huzaifah رضی اللہ عنہ joined the funeral prayer of anyone, it was taken as a sign that the deceased was a believer. It was, therefore, from Hazrat Huzaifah's absence or presence in a funeral prayer that the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم knew about the belief or unbelief of the departing man.

The second Caliph's suspicion about his own hypocrisy

Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ had been appointed Caliph of the Islamic Empire extending over about half the world. He was known to be a very strict disciplinarian and a stern administrator. He was always vigilant on the lawless and the miscreants, with his whip in his hand. His awe spread far and wide. Despite all this power and pelf, he, according to a Hadith, used to request Hazrat Huzaifah to tell him if his name was also included in the list of names of the hypocrites which he had received from the Holy Prophet ﷺ Hazrat Farooq's anxiety to know if he was or was not a hypocrite shows his sincerity in Deen and fear of Allah. (Albidayah Wannihayah. vol. 5. p. 19).

What emanates from the core of the heart is effective, indeed

The Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم were so sincere and true in their Deen that they always scrupulously guarded themselves against doing anything anti to the Commands of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. When they remained obsessed with such thoughts their advice to others for reforming themselves did have its effect on the hearts. It is such sincerity that transforms the pattern of lives and brings revolutions in the society. Allamah ibn Jauzi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ was a renowned religious preacher. It is said that his sermons were so touching, attractive and effective that after listening to one sermon about a thousand persons made pledges at his hands to give up all their sins and became righteous Muslims. It was not the eloquent and inspiring oration that worked the miracle. The secret of the effectiveness of his sermons was that the words came from the depth of his heart and touched the strings of the hearts of the listeners.

Our plight

On the other hand, our plight is deplorable. I am giving you advice, and I myself do not act up what I am advising my auddience to follow. Such empty sermons have hardly any effect on the listeners and if they ever have some effect the effect vanishes when the man finds that the preacher himself does not follow what he is recommending to others. In this way the teachings or the sermons evaporate in the air without having any effect, whatsoever, on the audience.

The prayer (salah) of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

What is the secret of this miraculous success of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that only in a short period of twenty three years he revolutionised the entire Arabian peninsula, rather the entire world. The secret of this success lies in the fact that he acted more sincerely and vigorously upon what he preached to others for action. He ﷺ commanded us to pray only five times a day, while he ﷺ himself prayed at least eight prayers daily, these three were the prayers of Ishraq, Chasht and Tahajjud. His ﷺ condition was that:

اذا حزبه امر صلى

(Mishkat. Book of Salah.... Hadith no: 1325)

Whenever some distress befell him ﷺ, he at once stood up for prayer and turned his attention to Allah in supplication. He ﷺ used to say:

جعلت قرة عينى فى الصلاة (نسائى كتاب عشرة النساء باب تمير ايك)

The coolness of my eyes lies in prayer (Nisa'i. Book-ten women chapter 1)

The Prophet's Fasting

According to the Holy Qur'an the Muslims have been commanded to observe fasting only for one month during Ramadhan. The Holy Prophet ﷺ imposed upon himself additional fasting. There was not any month of the year in which he ﷺ did not fast at least three days. In some months he observed fasting for more than three days.

Continuous Fasting is prohibited

The Holy Prophet ﷺ saw that some Companions رضی الله عنهم were fasting continuously for two days. The Holy Prophet ﷺ stopped them from fasting in that way and declared such fasting unlawful for them. As for himself ﷺ, he did observe continuous fasting and asked the Companions not to follow his analogy, because his Lord, Allah, satisfied his hunger and quenched his thirst. In other words, the Companions رضی الله عنهم did not have that strength which the Holy Prophet ﷺ had to observe continuous fasting. See how the Holy Prophet ﷺ paved for others the path of ease and convenience that they ate their fill at the end of the fasting till the beginning of the next fasting day.

(Tirmidhi chapter 62. Hadith no: 778)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ and Zakah (the obligatory alms)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has commanded us to pay the fortieth (2.50%) part of our wealth every year as Zakah (obligatory alms). As for himself, he gave out in charity all the wealth that came to him from time to time from various sources. Once the Holy Prophet ﷺ stepped on the prayer-mat to conduct the prayer in his mosque and the prayer was about to commence when he ﷺ suddenly stepped back, went to his house and came back after a little while and conducted the prayer. The Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم were surprised at this unusual behaviour of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and asked him about this. The Holy Prophet ﷺ told them: When I stepped on the prayer - mat I remembered that I had left in the house seven Dinars (a gold coin). I felt ashamed to think that I am standing before Allah in a condition that I have in my house seven Dinars which are more than enough to my needs. I therefore, quickly disposed of them and came back to conduct the prayer.

The Beloved of Allah (i.e. the Prophet ﷺ) dug ditches also Dictches were being dug on the occasion of the battle of Ahzab. He ﷺ did not prefer that being the leader he should be taking rest, while others were doing the hard work of digging ditches. He ﷺ therefore, allotted to himself an equal portion of the work. A Companion رضی الله عنهم has related that it was a hard time for the Muslims and they had hardly any food to satisfy their hunger. At the time of digging the ditch this Companion had tied on his belly a piece of stone to appease his hunger.

To tie pieces of stone on the belly

We have often heard the proverb of tying a piece of stone on the belly on being unable to satisfy hunger for want of anything to eat. We feel surprised how this device can appease hunger. This is explained by saying that the weight of the stone tied on the belly helps the man to straighten his back and this enables him to stand erect.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ had tied two pieces of stone on his belly

In that time of scarcity a Companion called on the Prophet ﷺ and complained to him ﷺ that he had tied on his belly a piece of stone to appease his hunger. In reply the Holy Prophet ﷺ showed the Companion رضی الله عنهم his own belly on which he had two pieces of stone.

This is just the principle that is being taught to others - the principle that one should first follow oneself what one is going to advise others to follow.

The task and toil borne by Hazrat Fatimah رضی الله عنها

Once Hazrat Fatimah رضی الله عنها, the leader of Paradise among women, called on the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Showing her hands to the Holy Prophet ﷺ on which skin-corns had formed on account of moving the grinding hand-mill for flour and blue marks had formed on her chest by carrying the water-bags. He begged her reverend father, the Holy Prophet ﷺ to grant her one maid-servant out of the captives captured on the occasion of the victory of Khyber who had been distributed among the Muslims. It would not have been an extraordinary favour to Hazrat Fatimah رضی الله عنها the Prophet's own beloved daughter, if a slave girl had been allotted to her. The Holy Prophet ﷺ replied to this demand, as follows:

O Fatimah رضی الله عنها! No slave or maidservant would be allotted to the household of Muhammad the Prophet ﷺ of Allah until the Muslims, as a whole, are settled well. To relieve you of this toil and distress I am prescribing for you a formula better than a slave or a maidservant,. It is: Recite after every prayer (Subhan-allah) "سبحان الله" 33 times; "الحمد لله" 33 times (Alhamdu-lillah) ; and "الله اكبر" 34 times; (Al- lahu Akbar). (Sahih Muslim, vol II p. 351)

That is why this is called "تسبیح فاطمہ" (Tasbih-e-Fatimah). Now see the difference. Slaves maidservants and money are being distributed among the general public, but the household of the Holy Prophet ﷺ has been totally deprived of these bounties.

The intention in relating this incident is to emphasize that the advice of a preacher affects the hearts and touches the soul of the listeners only when the preacher himself acts upon his advice. It is the hearty, sincere and purely disinterested teachings that bring revolutions in the lives of the people and affect their conduct and character, widening their outlook. The unprecedent revolution that came over the lives of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم is indebted to the sincere and selfless teachings and training of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

To observe optional fast on the 30th of Sha'ban

Some people observe fast on the 30th of the month of Sha'ban. They do this to ensure that they may not miss a fast on account of a possible failure in sighting the Ramazan moon. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has however, forbidden to observe fasting on the 30th of Sha'ban. This prohibition relates only to those who fast on the 30th of Sha'ban by way of precaution against losing a Ramazan fast. The prohibition does not apply to a person who is regular in observing optional fast and fasts on this day also. This optional fast is lawful for him. (Tirmidhi, book of Ramazan, chapter no:3)

Imam Abu Yusuf رحمۃ اللہ علیہ himself used to fast on the 30th of Sha'ban, yet at the same time he used to go about the city asking everyone not to fast on that day (i.e. the 30th of Sha'ban). The secret of this strange prohibition lay in the Imam's anxiety to ensure that the people should not fast on the 30th of Sha'ban by way of precaution against missing a Ramazan fast, for that would be a sin.

The precaution of Hazrat Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ

Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ was a Shaikh who always tried, through his Fatawa (Religious Rulings), to provide ease and facilities for the people in following the path of Deen.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith that it is unlawful to sell or purchase fruit trees before they bring forth their fruit which can be seen and evaluated correctly. With reference to this Hadith some Shaikhs issued their Fatawa (Rulings) that it is unlawful to purchase and eat the fruits sold in the markets, because the trees on which they grow are sold and purchased before they bring forth their fruits. Hazrat Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ issued a ruling that it was quite lawful to purchase and eat the fruits which are sold in the market, yet he himself never ate fruits purchased from the market. The teachings of such selfless Shaikhs have their effects on the hearts of the listeners, because they first themselves act assiduously upon what they preach to others.

How to reform the society

Those men, groups, associations that stand up with a mission to reform the society have in their minds that those whom they want to reform are all bad people. This is a serious weakness and misunderstanding of the so-called reformers. These reformers do not care to look into their own weaknesses and defects. Almighty Allah has said in His Book, the Holy Qur'an:

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْا عَلَيْكُمْ اَنْفُسَكُمْ لَا يَضُرُّكُمْ مَنْ ضَلَّ اِذَا اهْتَدَيْتُمْ ط

(المائدۃ:۱۰۵)

O you who believe! Take care of your own. He who is strayed cannot harm you, if you are rightly guided... (5:105)

The verse warns all men to take a stock of their own acts and doings rather than feeling anxious about the affairs of others. It is no wisdom to try to reform others and ignore their own defects and errors. Men should concentrate all their attention on reforming their own lives and ways to the best of their ability. This is the way of reforming the entire society. What is society? It is a group of individuals, families and tribes. On the reform of these depends the betterment of the society. Instead of searching for the faults and sins of others look for your own faults and shortcomings. If you see that people are telling lies, taking bribes, accepting and paying interest, cheating others and devouring ill-gotten income, then do not indulge yourself in these sins. Think of reforming others when you have reformed yourself.

Discharge your Duty

It is also necessary to understand, that while trying to reform yourself, it is also your duty to convey words of piety and righteousness where they are needed. Without this you cannot be regarded as rightly guided, nor can you reform yourself. This is what Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی اللہ عنہ has explained in a narrative:

عن ابی بکر الصدیق رضی اللہ تعالی عنہ قال: یا ایھا الناس انکم تقرؤن ھذہ الایۃ :

" یٰٓاَیُّھَا الَّذِیْنَ اٰمَنُوْا عَلَیْکُمْ اَنْفُسَکُمْ لَا یَضُرُّکُمْ مَنْ ضَلَّ اِذَا اھْتَدَیْتُمْ ط " وانی سمعت رسول اللہ صلی اللہ علیہ وسلم یقول ان الناس اذا راوا الظالم فلم یاخذوا علی یدیہ اوشک ان یعمھم اللہ بعقاب منہ

A misunderstanding about the meaning of the verse

In this narrative Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ has admonished the people in misunderstanding the meaning of this verse. In the exposition of its meaning he quoted a Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ which throws light on the correct meaning of the verse.

Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی اللہ عنہ said: The people think that this verse demands from them that they should take care of their own lives and they are not concerned with the good or bad deeds of others. It is wrong to interpret this verse in this way. If the people see that a wrongdoer is doing wrong to another person, they should stop the wrongdoer from his wrong. If they do not stop this oppression, then Allah may inflict on them His punishment.

Hazrat Siddiq Akbar رضی اللہ عنہ is saying that a tyrant is committing tyranny against some person and you have power to stop the tyrant from his tyranny, yet you sit idle; you think, in the light of this verse, that it is not your responsibility to interfere in the matter as long as you are safe from committing such tyranny. You think that, as the verse says, no harm will fall upon you on account of this passive attitude of yours. Such thinking is not right.

Hazrat Siddiq Akbar رضی اللہ عنہ says that it is quite wrong to interpret this verse in this way. Allah has also commanded that you must stop tyranny when you have the power to do so.

Correct Interpretation of the verse

Then what is the correct meaning of this verse? It has been stated in the verse: If you take care to reform yourself the straying and error of others will not harm you. There is a man who has discharged his duty to enforce the right and forbid the wrong to the best of his ability, yet another person is not heeding the former's advice and teachings. In such a situation the error and straying of the latter will not harm the former who should take care of himself and his own affairs, leaving the other person in his error and straying. The latter's straying will not harm the former in any way nor will any blame lie on him before Almighty Allah.

How long is it necessary to pursue the duty of reforming the children

Men have been commanded to look after their children and put them on the right path, if they are found to be going on the wrong path. This is exactly in compliance with an injunction of the Holy Qur'an:

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْا قُوْٓا اَنْفُسَكُمْ وَاَهْلِيْكُمْ نَارًا

O you who have believed! Save yourselves and your families from (Hell) Fire. (66:6)

Thus it is an obligatory duty of parents to look after and save their children from the punishment of the Hereafter. Now take the example of a man who devotes all his energies to the guidance of his children, but the children do not heed the advice of their father. In such a situation no blame lies on the father. The son of Hazrat Nooh (Noah) عليه السلام also did not embrace Islam till the last moment. Hazrat Nooh (Noah) عليه السلام exhausted all his energies and methods to preach him and persuaded him to take the right path. The erroneous son, however, did not see his way, to accept Islam to the last moment. Now no blame will lie on the shoulders of Hazrat Nooh (Noah) عليه السلام for the misguidance and error of his son.

A man notices that a very fast friend of his is following the wrong path of error and aversion. This man, therefore, tries to correct and reform his friend with love and sympathy as far as possible. However, his efforts failed to reform the errant friend. Now no responsibility lies on the shoulders of this man in respect of his disobedient friend.

Do not forget yourself

Allamah Nuwawi رحمة الله عليه has cited this verse:

اَتَاْمُرُوْنَ النَّاسَ بِالْبِرِّ وَ تَنْسَوْنَ اَنْفُسَكُمْ وَاَنْتُمْ تَتْلُوْنَ الْكِتٰبَ ؕ اَفَلَا تَعْقِلُوْنَ (سورة البقرة : ٤٤)

Addressing the Jews in this verse Allah said to them: Do you enjoin righteousness upon others, and forget your own selves, while you read the Book? Do you then not understand? (2:44)

That is, the Jews were highly learned in the scriptures and the common people revered them on this account, yet these learned men did not themselves practise the religion. Although addressed to the jews, the verse applies more appropriately to the Muslims that one who is preaching religion to others should first follow his preachings himself.

I have already mentioned to you the precept that a man who is committing some sins and wrongs himself is not forbidden from teaching and preaching to others. He should preach religion to others but, while preaching, he should also consider his own self and apply his preaching to himself also. He should bear in mind that what he is preaching to others equally applies to him also.

A dangerous situation for speakers and preachers

After this verse Allamah Nuwawi رحمة الله عليه has cited a Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ which contains something very alarming for us:

عن اسامة بن زيد بن حارثه رضى الله عنهما قال سمعت رسول الله

صلى الله عليه وسلم يقول يؤتى بالرجل يوم القيامه فيلقى فى النار فتندلق اقتاب بطنه فيدور كمايدور الحمار فى الرحا فيجتمع اليه اهل النار فيقولون يا فلان مَالكَ؟ الم تكن تأمر بالمعروف وتنهى عن المنكر؟ فيقول: بلى كنت آمر بالمعروف ولا آتيه وانهى عن المنكر وآتيه (البداية جلد ١: ص :١٨٧)

It is narrated from Hazrat Usamah bin zaid bin Harisah رضى الله عنه that he heard the Holy Prophet ﷺ saying: On the Day of Judgement a man will be brought and thrown into the Fire. Then owing to heat his intestines will come out of his stomach and the man will go round his intestines like an ass going round a grinder. Seeing him in this condition the inmates of Hell will gather round him and ask him about his plight, saying" Why are you being punished? Are you not the same fellow who used to enjoin upon right and forbid wrong? You were a well educated person, a Preacher and a Reformer. How are you today in such a pitiable condition? At that time the man will reply, saying" I did really enjoin upon the people right, but did not myself follow the right course. I used to stop people from bad pursuits, yet I myself followed those bad pursuits. This has driven me today into this condition. May Allah save us all from this horrible situation. Aameen!

I shudder with fear on reading this Hadith. This is a very critical situation for those who have to teach good things and address people on the topic of religion. It is feared lest these holy persons should become liable to this humiliating punishment.

May Allah protect us all from becoming a target for punishment.

A candle is lighted from another candle

If a man overlooks his own condition, but finds faults with others and tries to reform them, then such attitude will effect no reform in the society; instead, it may create corruption and disorder. This is just what we are witnessing today. If Allah is kind enough to create in our hearts the desire to see that everyone of us looks into his own self to find out his defects and shortcomings and renounce them this will lead to betterment. There is no doubt that at the end of this life, whatever its duration, everyone has to enter his grave and render before Allah an account of his deeds he did in his life. Everyone should therefore, review his deeds and activities and try to reform those aspects of his life where reform is called for. If every individual succeeds in reforming himself one after another, the light of betterment and amelioration will go on spreading farther and farther, just as one candle lights a second candle and the second a third candle and so on so forth. In this way the light of Deen will go on expanding more and more, until the society, as a whole, will become fully reformed.

May Almighty Allah beget this desire and enthusiasm in our hearts. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi

Date : Friday 7th January, 1992
After 'Asr Prayers.

It is the demand of discipline and respectfulness that when a senior and elder orders juniors and the youngers, the latter should obey that order, even though it may seem to be against the rules of etiquette and discipline. This is because obedience to the order of an elder has a priority over, and preference to the rules of etiquette.

OBEDIENCE TO ELDERS AND DEMANDS OF ETIQUETTE

الحمد لله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرو انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له واشهد ان سيدنا وسند نا وشفيعنا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد!

عن ابى العباس سهل بن سعد الساعدى رضى الله ان رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم بلغه ان بنى عمرو بن عوف كان بينهم شر فخرج رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم يصلح بينهم فى اناس معه فجلس رسول الله

صلى الله عليه وسلم وحانت الصلاة..... (صحيح بخاری، کتاب الاذان، باب من دخل ليوم الناس، حديث نمبر ٦٨٤)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and forgiveness. We believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our souls and the vices of our deeds. None can misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah, the One. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, and our authority and our Prophet and our master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and Messenger. May Almighty Allah have mercy on him and on his household and his Companions and send on them blessings and salutations in great abundance.

The chapter on "Reconciliation among the people" is in progress and three Ahadith on this chapter have been cited earlier. This is the last Hadith of this chapter. As it is a bit lengthier, it is being translated and explained below.

To effect reconciliation among people

Hazrat Sahl bin Sa'd-as-Saa'idi رضی الله عنه has narrated that once the Holy Prophet ﷺ came to know that the people of the tribe of Bani 'Amir bin 'Auf were quarreling among themselves. The Holy Prophet ﷺ called on them in order to effect a reconciliation among them. He ﷺ also took with him some of his Companions رضی الله عنهم to help him ﷺ in this attempt at reconciliation. The discussions drew lengthy and in the meantime the prayer - time arrived. the result was that he ﷺ could not go to his mosque to conduct the prayer.

The intention of mentioning this Hadith here is to point out the importance the Holy Prophet ﷺ attached to the working of effecting reconciliation and bringing peace among people. To him ﷺ this matter was so important that he ﷺ missed the opportunity of joining the prayer in his mosque.

The narrator of the hadith says that when the Muazzin of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, Hazrat Bilal رضی الله عنه saw that the prayer-time had approached, and the Holy Prophet ﷺ had not returned to the mosque he called on Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddique رضی الله عنه and requested him to conduct the prayer. Hazrat Siddique رضی الله عنه agreed to the request to conduct the prayer. Thereafter, Hazrat Bilal رضی الله عنه called out the Azan (prayer-call) and Hazrat Siddique رضی الله عنه advanced to the prayer-carpet to conduct the prayer. When the prayer had commenced and was in progress, the Holy Prophet ﷺ returned and joined the prayer as a follower. Being not aware of the Prophet's presence in the prayer row Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddique رضی الله عنه continued the prayer. Now the Companions رضی الله عنهم who had become aware of the Prophet's ﷺ presence in the congregation, wanted to inform Hazrat Siddique رضی الله عنه, so that he might get back, making room for the Holy Prophet ﷺ to get forward and conduct the remaining part of the prayer. For this purpose they began to clap their hands. Hazrat Siddique رضی الله عنه was so deeply absorbed in praying that these clapping first failed to draw his attention, yet soon he became alive to the Prophet's presence in the prayer rows. He was about to get back from the prayer carpet, the Holy Prophet ﷺ beckoned with his hands to Hazrat Siddique رضی الله عنه to complete the prayer. Hazrat Siddique رضی الله عنه could not stand on the prayer carpet. He, therefore, stepped back and the Holy Prophet ﷺ stepped forward and completed the remaining prayer.

The way to draw the attention of an Imam (Leader of a Prayer)

At the end of the prayer the Holy Prophet ﷺ called the attention of the Nemasis and admonished them that it was not appropriate to the dignity to clap hands during prayers to express an alarm or the like, as this was allowed only for women praying behind a male Imam. This is because women cannot utter the cautionary words (Sub-haanal-llah) "سبحان الله" or (Alhamdu lillah), "الحمد لله" to attract the Imam's attention. It may be noted that it is prohibited for women to let men hear their voice; they are allowed to clap their hands for this purpose. Men are, however, allowed to utter these cautionary words "سبحان الله" or to invite the Imam's attention during prayer if he is committing some mistake through forgetfulness or inattention. The hands should, therefore, not be clapped during prayer to caution the Imam.

The son of Abu Qahafah رضی الله عنه could not dare to do so

Thereafter, the Holy Prophet ﷺ turned to Hazrat Siddique رضی الله عنه and said to him: O Abu Bakr! I beckoned to you to continue the prayer and not to step back. What was there to make you step back and refrain from Imamat. How apt was Hazrat Siddique's reply to the Holy Prophet:

ماكان لابن ابى قحافة ان يصلى بالناس بين يدى رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم

O Prophet of Allah! The son of Abu Qahafah are not to conduct the prayer in the presence of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. This reply is self explanatory.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ raised no objection to this reply and remained silent.

The status of Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی الله عنه

This incident shows the status of Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddique رضی الله عنه that he dared not conduct the prayer in the presence of the Holy Prophet ﷺ nor could he tolerate a situation in which the Prophet ﷺ of Allah was compelled to stand behind him.

Order has preference over etiquette

Sometimes a man is ordered by a respectable elder to do a job which is, in the opinion of that man, not worthy of the dignity of the elder and is also against the rules of etiquette. In such a perplexing situation the man concerned should accord preference to the order and ignore the rules of etiquette. At times it becomes very difficult to follow this principle, yet this has been the practice of our elders and saints to prefer obedience to orders rather than observance of the rules of etiquette.

It is necessary to obey the orders of the elders

Suppose a very reverend saint is sitting on a wooden broad table and a young man comes to the saint. This saint asks the young man to sit on the table by his side. In this situation the saint's order should be obeyed, although in an ordinary situation it would be against the rules of etiquette for a young boy to sit close to and by the side of a reverend elderly saint. In such a situation obedience to the order of a respectable elder has preference over the rules of etiquette.

Obedience is the essence of Deen (Faith)

It has been mentioned repeatedly that as a whole, obedience is the essence of Deen, obedience to elders, obedience to Allah and His Prophet ﷺ and obedience to his successors. You have to act upon their commands, even though this action may appear to you to be against the rules of etiquette and below their dignity.

My attendance in the meetings of my respected father رحمة الله عليه

My respected father used to hold a meeting on every Sunday which was a public holiday in those days. The incident I am going to relate took place on the last of my father's meetings. My respected father passed away before the arrival of the day of the next meeting. As my father was seriously ill and bedridden people used to assemble in his room. My father lay on a bed and the people sat on sofas and on the ground in front of him رحمة الله عليه. On that day of his last meeting a large number of people turned up and the room was fully packed and few men remained standing. I arrived there a bit late. When my father saw me he asked me to go and sit near him. Although I knew fully well that obedience is imperative; yet I hesitated to go to my father by passing over so many guests. Noticing this hesitation on my part my father again ordered me to go near him and promised to tell me a story. In obedience to him I got near my father some how.

My father's attendance in a meeting of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه

My father related to me an incident saying: Once a meeting of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه was in session and a similar situation arose there. The available space was packed to capacity and I was a bit late in attending the meeting. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه asked me to go near him and I hesitated in carrying out his order. The Shaikh asked me again to go near him and promised to tell me a story. In compliance with this second order I somehow drew near the Shaikh and he related a story.

Decision on the dispute between Alamgir and Dara Shikoh to accede to the Throne

The story which Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه related runs thus:

On the death of Shah Jahan, the King of India. A dispute arose as to which of his sons, Alamgir or Dara Shikoh, should accede to the Throne. Both the candidates were trying their best to win the throne. There was a great saint living in those days. Both the princes thought of visiting this saint for getting his blessings for success in their campaign. First, when Dara Shikoh called on the saint he was sitting on a wooden throne. the saint asked Dara Shikoh to sit on the throne by his side. Dara Shikoh avoided sitting by the side of the great saint out of his awe and elevated personality and in obedience to the rules of etiquette. The saint again asked the prince to sit on the throne by his side, but the prince again preferred to sit below the throne at a respectful distance from the saint. The saint did not insist on his order and let the prince off with a few words of advice.

Shortly after the departure of Dara Shikoh, Alamgir also called on the Saint. When he was going to sit below the saint's throne, the saint asked Alamgir to get up and sit on the throne by his side. Alamgir obeyed the saint's order and sat on the throne by his side. The saint spoke some words of advice to the prince and the latter took leave of the saint and departed. After Alamgir's departure, the saint told the people present there that the two brothers have themselves taken their decisions. The throne was offered to Dara Shikoh but he rejected it. When it was offered to Alamgir he accepted it. As such Alamgir would accede to the throne and he actually acceded to the throne.

This was the story which Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه related to my father رحمة الله عليه (Sermons of Hazrat Thanawi).

One should not resort to false excuses

Now we come to the conclusion that it is an act of etiquette to carry out, without any excuse or hesitation, the order which we receive from some respectable elder. This is in consonance with the principle discussed above that obedience has a preference and priority over the rules of etiquette.

To take up the shoes of the respectable elders

It is seen sometimes that people desire to take up the shoes of Shaikhs and elders. If the elders concerned disapprove this practice, it should be given up. This is also a way of respect and etiquette towards elders to carry out their orders inspite of your own preference. That is why this proverb is well known and popular among the people.

الا مر فوق الادب

If an elder orders you to do something and it seems to you to be against the rules of etiquette, obey the order ignoring the demand of etiquette. However, there is no harm if you humbly request the elder to let you do for him some service, but if he stops you from that, obey him without any hesitation: In obedience lies his pleasure. The Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم followed this principle.

Two events relating to the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم

The first event relates to Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddique رضی اللہ عنہ. The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked him to remain on the prayer-mat conducting the congregational prayer, but he stepped back and acted upon the dictates of etiquette. The second event relates to Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ which is related below:

By Allah I shall not erase it

An agreement was being drafted for being signed by the Holy Prophet ﷺ and the unbelievers of Makkah. The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ to write the agreement. When Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ commenced writing the agreement with "بسم اللہ الرحمن الرحیم" (Bismilla-hir-rahmaa-nirraheem), the representative of the unbelievers objected to these words and proposed to substitute them by باسمك اللهم (bi-ismik al-laa-humma) which were commonly used by the people during the days of Ignorance. The Holy Prophet ﷺ saw no harm in this proposal because both he expressions were similar in meaning. So He ﷺ asked Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ to make the necessary change and he did the needful After this Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ commenced writing: This is an agreement concluded between Muhammad, the Prophet ﷺ of Allah and the leaders of Makkah. The representative of the unbelievers again took exception to this phrase. He said that the unbelievers did not believe in Muhammad as a Prophet of Allah and that is the bond of contention between the two parties. They insisted that the words "Muhammad son of Abdullah" should be written, instead. The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ to substitute the words "Prophet of Allah" by son of Abdullah. Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ had submissively carried out the order. For substituting the words واللہ لا امحوہ by the words رسول اللہ but this time he refused to do so. He bluntly uttered these words

(by Allah, I shall not erase that). The Holy Prophet ﷺ realized Hazrat Ali's رضی اللہ عنہ feelings and taking the paper from him. He ﷺ himself erased the words رسول اللہ (Prophet of Allah) with his own hands. (Sahih Muslim..... Hadith no: 6133)

When obedience to an order becomes impossible

As happened in the event about Hazrat Siddique رضی اللہ عنہ here too Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ refused to obey the command which the Holy Prophet ﷺ had given him رضی اللہ عنہ. Apparently Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ accorded preference to etiquette over obedience to an order, although the order has a preference over etiquette. The secret of this behaviour of Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ lies in the fact that sometimes man is so severely overpowered by some emotion that it becomes impossible for him to give due consideration to an accepted principle and to distinguish between what is proper and what is improper. In a situation like the one under consideration the act of ignoring the order cannot be treated as disobedience. In fact such a behaviour falls within the meaning of the verse which means that:

لَايُكَلِّفُ اللّٰهُ نَفْسًا اِلَّا وُسْعَهَا

Allah does not burden a soul beyond its capacity (2:286).

The obedience of the Holy Prophet's command by Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddique and Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ needs to be considered in the light of the meaning of this verse.

That state is better in which the beloved wants to keep the lover

The real fact, however remains that a lover should surrender himself totally to the beloved's will and give up his own preferences and choices.

نہ ہی ہجر اچھا نہ ہی وصال اچھا ہے
یار جس حال میں رکھے وہی حال اچھا ہے

عشق تسلیم و رضا کے ماسوا کچھ بھی نہیں
وہ وفا سے خوش نہ ہوں تو پھر وفا کچھ بھی نہیں

The essence of the ideas expressed in these Urdu Couplets is that if the beloved wants the lover to do something which violates the rules of etiquettes, the lovers must follow and satisfy the desire of the beloved. The work that wins the pleasure of the beloved is much better and acceptable.

Summary

The real intention of Imam Nuwawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ in citing this Hadith is to bring out the importance of effecting reconciliation between quarrels among two parties or betweem the members of the same tribe. We see how the Holy Prophet ﷺ could not reach his mosque in time owing to his engagement in establishing peace and harmony between two groups.

May Almighty Allah protect us, by His mercy, from quarreling with one another Aameen.!

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد للہ رب العالمین

Venue : Residence of Mr. Yusuf Ghani, Clifton, Karachi.

We may, if we so desire, make the Trade we are carrying on a path leading to Paradise and a means for being raised along with the Prophets ﷺ. We may also make it a means to end in Hell and being raised along with the sinners and the wrong doers. It is now to be seen which of the two paths we choose.

TRADE - IT IS DEEN AS WELL AS A WORLDLY AFFAIR

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه و نستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهد ان سيدنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطٰن الرجيم بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم.

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ آمَنُوْا اتَّقُوْاللّٰهَ وَكُوْنُوْامَعَ الصّٰدِقِيْنَ (سورة التوبة: ١١٩)

وقال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم:

التاجر الصدوق الامين مع النبيين والصديقين والشهداء(ترمذى، كتاب البيوع، باب ماجاء فى التجارة، حديث نمبر ١٢٠٩)

وقال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم :

التجار يحشرون يوم القيامة فجارًا الا من ماتقى وبروصدق

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم وصدق رسوله النبى الكريم ونحن

على ذالك من الشاهدين والشاكرين والحمد لله رب العالمين

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and forgiveness. We believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our souls and the vices of our deeds. None can misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah, the One. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, and our authority and our Prophet and our master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and Messenger.
O believers, take to the virtue of taqwa and adopt the society of the truthfuful (9:119)

The Foundation stone of a Muslim's life

A meeting of this kind was arranged in the past also which I had the honour to attend. I have been asked in the meeting first to say something about Deen (Faith). I must accept this proposal, because Deen is the foundation stone of the life of every Muslim. May Allah help us in holding fast to this Foundation.

Traders will be raised up along with the Prophets عليهم السلام

The majority of the audience in this meeting belong to the business community. In this behalf I have cited two Ahadith and recited a verse of the Holy Qur'an which explains the subject of the Ahadith. The two Ahadith seem to contradict each other but in reality this is not so. In one of the Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said:

التاجر الصدوق الامين مع النبيين والصديقين والشهداء

The trader who observes truthfulness and trust in his business dealings will be raised up on the Day of Resurrection along with the Prophets عليهم السلام the Siddiqeen (the truthful) and the Martyr. We are carrying on this trade as a worldly business to support our living and are under the impression that it has nothing to do with Deen. This is not correct. The Hadith tells us quite clearly that a trader who is truthful and trustworthy in his business dealings will be raised up on the Day of Judgement along with the Prophets عليهم السلام, the Siddiqeen and the martyrs.

Traders will be raised up alongwith the wrongdoers

The second Hadith which appears to contradict the first one is:

التجار يحشرون يوم القيامة فجارا الامن اتقى وبروصدق

Traders will be raised up as wrongdoers and sinners, excepting him who is pious and righteous and is truthful in his dealings.

There are two categories of Traders

In reality there is no contradiction between the two Ahadith with regard to the meaning. In fact, traders fall in two categories. One category of the traders consists of those who will be in the company of the Prophets عليهم السلام, the truthful and the martyrs. The other category consists of those who will be with the sinners and the wrongdoers.

Honesty, truthfulness and trustworthiness are the Hallmark of the first category. On the other hand dishonesty, adulteration, profiteering and fraud are the hallmark of the second category.

Trade may lead to Paradise or Hell

If we combine the two Ahadith and consider their joint meaning, it will become clear to us that, if we so desire, we can make trading activities a road leading to Paradise and the Company of the Prophets عليهم السلام and the truthful. Again, if we so desire, we can make the same trading activities a road leading to Hell and the company of the sinners and the wrongdoers. May Almighty Allah protect us from the torment and disgrace of the second category.

Every activity has two angles

It is peculiar not only to trade but to every activity, be it service, trade, agriculture or any other profession, that if man looks at an activity from one angle, it may be mundane, but if he looks at it from another angle it is Deen (Faith).

Change your angle of vision

Deen (Faith) is in fact the name of bringing a change in the angle of vision. An act which appears essentially to be worldly in its form becomes Deen (Faith), if done from a different angle of vision and intention.

It is an act of worship to take meals

If a man is taking meal as a routine habit to satisfy hunger, it is a worldly affair. The same act of eating becomes Deen when he eats his food with the intention that his life, body and health are gifts from Allah and it is the right of these divine gifts that he should maintain them in good order by taking food so as to be able to perform efficiently the duties imposed on him by Allah. Now see how one and the same act change into Deen, simply by a change in man's intention and outlook.

Hazrat Ayyub (Job) عليه السلام and the golden butterflies

People generally think that it is Deen to renounce the world, sit in a secluded corner and devote oneself exclusively to the remembrance of Allah. This is, however not correct. Just think of Hazrat Ayyub (Job) عليه السلام. Whose name is well known to every Muslim. He has been a great Prophet who had to go through terrible trials and tribulations in his life of this world. It occurs in a Hadith in Sahih Bukhari that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Once Hazrat Ayyub عليه السلام was taking bath when suddenly golden butterflies began to rain down on him from the sky. Hazrat Ayyub عليه السلام abandoned the bath began to catch and collect the butterflies. Almighty Allah did not approve of this conduct of Hazrat Ayyub عليه السلام and questioned him if He had not already bestowed upon him great blessings and supplied all the needs of his life, yet he was so greedy that he began to run after the butterflies. Hazrat Ayyub عليه السلام replied:

لاغنى بى عن بركتك

What Hazrat Ayyub عليه السلام meant to express by these words is that he could not be indifferent to Allah's gifts and blessings when Allah Himself had by His grace, showered them on him. He said that it would be an act of insolence on his part, if he did not acknowledge and collect Allah's bounties. That is why he was collecting the golden butterflies.

Had there been a thoughtless ascetic he would have ignored and ignored these blessings. Hazrat Ayyub عليه السلام being a Prophet عليه السلام could not behave in this way. He knew very well that it was pure Deen to welcome and honour these bounties of Allah and express gratitude for them.

(Sahih Bukhari... Hadith no: 279)

The eyes should be fixed on the giver of the blessings

We were five brothers and everyone of us was an earning member. Sometimes we all assembled in the house on the occasions of the Eid Festival our respected father رحمة الله عليه used to give us each, as Eid gift Rs 20/- to Rs 30/-. Although we were all well-to-do, yet we tried our best to get some increase in these amounts, say, of Rs 5/- every year. It was not the amount, but the paternal favour and blessings concealed in these small amounts that we clamoured for. In other words, our eyes were fixed not on these amounts but on the benevolent and blessed hand that distributed the gift. These small amounts were, in fact, expression of love and affection which deserved to be accepted with earnestness and sincere gratitude. So we did not spend these amounts but preserved them carefully as very valuable gifts.

This is Taqwa (Righteousness)

As already stated, Deen consists in a change in the angle of vision. When this angle of vision is changed in the right direction, in the terminology of the Holy Qur'an it is called Taqwa (Righteousness). Everyone of us is engaged in the struggle of life in diverse activities like, working, eating, sleeping, earning a living, etc. If we do these acts with the belief that we are doing them for the sake and in compliance with the injunctions, of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ then we have indeed achieved what is called Taqwa. Thus, if we carry on our business with this belief and from this angle of vision, then the activity turns into pure Deen and ceases to be a worldly affair. It becomes a righteous deed opening before us the road leading to Paradise and the blessed company of Prophets عليهم السلام Siddiqeen (the truthful) and martyrs.

It is the company of the pious that breeds Taqwa

A question generally arises in the hearts how this Taqwa, or the change in the angle of vision can be attained. In reply to this question I had recited at the very outset:

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ آمَنُوْا اتَّقُوْا اللّٰهَ وَكُوْنُوْا مَعَ الصّٰدِقِيْنَ

This means:

O believers, take to the virture of taqwa and adopt the society of the truthful.

It is a principle of the Holy Qur'an that when it enjoins any duty, it also suggests the easiest way to discharge that duty. This is a great mercy of Allah upon us that he does not leave us groping in the dark, but He puts us on the right path. He has thus shown us the way to attain Taqwa by saying "كُوْنُوْا مَعَ الصّٰدِقِيْنَ". Adopt the society of the truthful. The society of these sacred men will generate in your lives the virtue of Taqwa. If a man tries to create in him Taqwa by following the various methods and practices enumerated in books for attaining Taqwa, it will be a very difficult and time - consuming task. The easiest and shortest cut to attain this virtue is to search for and adopt the company of the Muttaqeen (the righteous and the truthful). It is a law of nature that a man takes the colour and ways of those in whose company he lives and moves, even though the process of transformation may be very slow.

Only books are not enough for guidance

What has been said in the foregoing pages equally applies to the bearing of Deen. It is for this purpose that the Holy Prophet ﷺ was sent to this world to give a practical demonstration of Deen, otherwise it would have been sufficient only to reveal the Holy Qur'an. The polytheists of Makkah were demanding that the Qur'an should have been sent down upon them. It was not at all difficult for Omnipotent Allah to send down direct a well bound beautiful Book to everyone. But the All-knowing Creator knew that this was not enough. He therefore, in His infinite wisdom and mercy, sent a Messenger along with every Book. Why so? This was because a practical demonstration is indispensable for the proper understanding of an art.

The result of becoming a Doctor only through reading books

If a man learns something of the medical science and practices by reading books and starts his practice by treating patients, then instead of curing he will only be sending them to the graveyard. After going through the full medical courses one has to take for a given period a practical training under the care and supervision of some experienced Doctors and Surgeons, before he is allowed to practice the medical profession.

Take another example. Untold number of cookery books are available in the market, these books contain recipe and methods to prepare various dishes, yet none can prepare a dish worthy of eating with the help of these books. He will only spoil the cooking materials and the spices. As in the case of all other arts, in cooking practice is needed under the guidance and supervision of expert cooks, before one can become a successful cook.

Adopt the company of the Muttaqeen (the righteous)

The same principle applies to Deen. Only reading of the books on religion cannot mould a man into a religious personality. A teacher as well as a training instructor is necessary. The Prophets عليهم السلام and after them the Companions رضى الله عنهم performed the duties of teaching and training their followers. Who are these Companions رضى الله عنهم? They are those noble persons who were fortunate to enjoy the blessed company of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. They learned religion from him ﷺ Next came the Tabieen followers of the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم, and this system continued ahead. Thus people learnt Deen through the company of their pious and righteous elders. Even Almighty Allah has, in His Book enjoined upon the believers to fear Him and adopt the company of the truthful.

The whole discussion now boils to this - We should do our best to be on the look out for and adopt the company of the righteous, if we want to become religious, pious and righteous.

May Allah help us to follow the right path and adopt companies of God-fearing and righteous men. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Faran Club
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi
Date : Thrusday 26th December, 1991
After 'Asr Prayers.

Experience bears out that a man cannot discharge, in the true sense, the liabilities he owes towards another man, unless he has fear of Allah in his heart, feels his liability to accountability, his being presented one day before Allah to render explanation for his deeds and words on the Day of Judgement. Without this sense of responsibility and fear neither the wife nor the husband can discharge her / his mutual rights to the other.

THE IMPORTANCE OF MATRIMONIAL SERMON

الحمد لله وكفى وسلام على عباده الذين اصطفى

اما بعد:

The blissful ceremony is about to commence--God willing--just now in which the bridegroom and the bride will be joined with each other by the conjugal tie (Nikah) according to the prescribed procedure of the Sunnah. May Almighty Allah make this happy relationship auspicious and blessed.

Marriage Ceremonies

I have been asked that I should say something to you on this happy occasion before the performance of the Nikah ceremony. Ceremonies and celebrations on the occasions of marriages are not suitable today for delivering reformative sermons and addresses. The organisers of the celebrations and some of the audience have, however, desired to listen a few words on the subject of religion, so I am saying something on the subject in compliance to the desire of the organisers and their guests.

Three Qur'anic verses about Nikah sermon

The Nikah (Conjujal relationship) sermon is about to commence just now. The Nikah as well as the connected sermon is based on a sunnat of the Holy Prophet ﷺ who has said in a Hadith:

اَلنِّكَاحُ مِنْ سُنَّتِيْ

"Nikah is my sunnah i.e. my way and practice". (Ibn Majah .... Hadith no: 851)

From the Shari'ah (legal) point of view Nikah (conjugal relationship) is solemnized by Eejaab (responding), i.e., saying: I respond to the proposal of marriage and by Qabool (acceptance) i.e., saying: I accept the proposal. This is done in the presence of two witnesses. However, the way which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has prescribed is that before 'Eejaab' and 'Qabool' a sermon is delivered. In the beginning of this sermon (Praise) of Allah is said and Darood (blessing) is sent on the Holy Prophet ﷺ and then three verses are generally recited from the Holy Qur'an. Thus the Holy Prophet ﷺ has enjoined for Nikah.

The First Verse: This is the very first verse of chapter "An-Nisaa":

يٰٓاَيُّهَا النَّاسُ اتَّقُوْا رَبَّكُمُ الَّذِيْ خَلَقَكُمْ مِّنْ نَّفْسٍ وَّاحِدَةٍ وَّخَلَقَ مِنْهَا زَوْجَهَا وَبَثَّ مِنْهُمَا رِجَالاً كَثِيْراً وَّنِسَآءً ج وَاتَّقُوْا اللّٰهَ الَّذِيْ تَسَآءَلُوْنَ بِهٖ وَالْاَرْحَامَ ط اِنَّ اللّٰهَ كَانَ عَلَيْكُمْ رَقِيْباً (سورة نساء: ١)

"O Mankind! Fear that Lord (Allah) of yours. Who created you from one soul (i.e. Hazrat Adam عليه السلام from that one soul and take to righteousness. He created your mate i.e., Hazrat Hawwa Eve and He spread in the world many men and women from this couple (Adam and Eve, the entire world being their offspring). Fear Him by the auspices of Whose name you demand from each other the fulfilment of your rights. Fear also the rights due to the close blood-relations. Allah is, indeed vigilant (over all your deeds and words). (4:1)

This is the first verse which is recited in the matrimonial sermon.

The Second Verse: is a verse of chapter 3 'Al-'Imran:

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ آمَنُوا اتَّقُوا اللّٰهَ حَقَّ تُقَاتِهٖ وَلاَ تَمُوْتُنَّ اِلاَّ وَاَنْتُمْ مُّسْلِمُوْنَ

(سورة آل عمران: ١٠٢)

"O Believers! Fear Allah as He deserves to be feared, i.e in right earnest and do not die but in a state in which you are Muslims, i.e. obedient servents. (3:102)

The Third Verse: This is from Chapter 33 Al-Ahzab:

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوا اتَّقُوا اللّٰهَ وَقُوْلُوْا قَوْلاً سَدِيْداً ۝ يُصْلِحْ لَكُمْ اَعْمَالَكُمْ وَيَغْفِرْ لَكُمْ ذُنُوْبَكُمْ ط وَمَنْ يُّطِعِ اللّٰهَ وَرَسُوْلَهٗ فَقَدْ فَازَ فَوْزاً عَظِيْماً (سورة الاحزاب: ٧٠-٧١)

> O Believers! Fear Allah and speak words straight and to the point. He will then set right your acts and deeds and accept them and forgive your sins. He who obeys Allah and His Messenger shall achieve a great victory. (33: 70-71)

The Point common to all the three verses

These are the three verses which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has enjoined to be recited on the occasions of Nikah (matrimonial ceremony). The command common to, and emphasized in, these three verses is that of taking to Taqwa (righteousness). What is the secret in the repetition of this one and the same command on the occasion of a matrimonial rite, being performed? Taqwa (righteousness) is a quality without which man cannot discharge any of his responsibilities in life, but why so much emphasis on this injunction on this particular occasion?

It is not possible for man to discharge his rights without Taqwa

The relationship created by the ritual of the Nikah is so unique and delicately sensitive in its nature that its rights cannot be discharged nor its blessings attained, unless the couple have Allah's fear. We learn from experience that it is not possible for people, husband and wife in particular, to discharge their mutual rights and fulfil their commitments, unless they have in their hearts Allah's fear, fear of being called to account by Allah for each and every act and movement of theirs in the most august presence of Allah. It is not possible to have mutual rights and liabilites settled among persons, through the legal process by which one may manage to escape from his responsibilities but this will not be possible before the presence of All-Knowing All-Powerful Allah on the Day of Resurrection when all good and bad deeds will be laid open to be evaluated and rewarded or punished, as the case may be. These important injunctions are, therefore, brought to the newly wedded couple that they may each become aware of the great responsibilities and liabilities that have been placed on their shoulders by this new union.

It is an act of Sunnah to recite these three verses

Taqwa (righteousness) has been prescribed to be inculcated and observed by every Muslim in every walk of life but its importance with regard to a husband and wife is too great to be ignored. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has prescribed the recitation of these three verses on the occasion of Nikah.

The start of a New life

This occasion of marriage with effect from which a new tenure of life is to start is like a cross-road for the couple, revolution is coming over their lives. They must refresh in their minds on this auspicious occasion the importance of Taqwa. They should re-dedicate their lives to this basic virtue. Not only is this point important for the newly-wedded couple but for all of us. None can save from ruin his life of this world or his Hereafter without learning and acting upon this virtue of Taqwa.

Let is all note this and mould our lives accordingly: Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان لله رب العالمين

REFROM AND TRAINING OF CHILDREN

الحمدلله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهدان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له، ونشهد ان سيدنا و سندنا ونبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا

اما بعد!

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطن الرجيم بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْا قُوْٓا اَنْفُسَكُمْ وَاَهْلِيْكُمْ نَارًا وَّقُوْدُهَا النَّاسُ وَالْحِجَارَةُ عَلَيْهَا مَلٰٓئِكَةٌ غِلَاظٌ شِدَادٌ لَّا يَعْصُوْنَ اللّٰهَ مَآ اَمَرَهُمْ وَيَفْعَلُوْنَ مَايُؤْمَرُوْنَ (سورة التحريم:٦)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم، وصدق رسوله النبى الكريم ونحن على ذلك من الشا هدين والشاكرين، والحمد لله رب العالمين.

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and seek His forgiveness and believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our souls and from the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom He guides and there is none to guide him whom He lets go astray. We bear witness that there is no god but Allah the One Who has no partner. We also bear witness that our sire, and our authority and our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah have mercy on him, his household and bless and salute them all in great abundance.

O Believers! Save yourselves and your families from a Fire whose fuel is men and stone, over which are appointed angels strong, severe who do not disobey Allah in that which He commands them (to do); they do that which they are commanded (to do) (66:6)

Allama Nuwa-wee رحمةالله عليه has next introduced a new chapter in the book, Riazus-Saliheen. He رحمةالله عليه intends by this chapter to state that not only is it binding upon a man to reform himself, but he is also obliged to reform the lives of his family, his wife and children and all those who are subordinate to him, by inviting them to learn and follow the rules of the Faith, discharge their religious duties and shun all sins. The Allaham has introduced this chapter for this specific purpose in which he has cited some Qur'anic verses and Ahadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

The Beautiful topic of the Address

The verse which I have just recited before you is really the basic theme of this chapter. Addressing the entire Muslim community, Almighty Allah has said:

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْا

i.e. O, people who have believed.

You might have observed that while addressing the Muslims in the Qur'an, Almighty Allah has used these very words, يا ايها الذين امنو Our late Dr. Abdul Hai رحمةالله عليه used to say that this style of Allah's addressing the Muslims is very beautiful. One way of addressing someone is to address him by his name. The other and more affectionate way of addressing is to address a person by mentioning the intimate relation which exists between the addresser and the addressee. For example, a father may address his son by his name or by the word "son". It is quite obvious that the love and affection concealed in the word 'son' are not present in the mere name of the son.

The word "Son" is a way of address full of love and affection.

Shaikh-ul-Islam, Maulana Shabbir Ahmad Usmani رحمةالله عليه was a great religious scholar and Jurist, I happened to see him at a time when there was none equal to him in learning and accomplishment, not only in Pakistan but in the entire world. In recognition of his deep knowledge and piety some called him "Shaikh-ul-Islam' and some others called him "Allamah". The Allamah sometimes called at our house, My grandmother who was then alive was the Allamah's maternal aunt. She used to address the 'Allamah' as 'son' and pray for his long life. We were much surprised at hearing these words of prayer. Allamah Usmani told us that he visited the house of my father Mufti Muhammad Shafi رحمةالله عليه for two objectives.

The first objective was to meet Mufti Shafi رحمةالله عليه and the other objective was that at that time there was none on the surface of the earth, other than that lady who addressed him as "son". The 'Allamah' said that he dearly loved the word 'son' addressed to him by that pious and venerable lady.

Apparently this is an insignificant incident, but the value of the affectionate word 'son' can be appreciated only by him who knows the emotion of the person who utters the word 'son'. A time comes in man's life when he finds none to address him with such loving words.

Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمةالله عليه explained that by using the words يا ايها الذين امنو Almighty Allah has referred to the relation which exists between every believer and Allah. This is just as a father addresses his son by uttering the word 'son' with the intention of telling him something full of love, sympathy and valuable advices. This is exactly how Almighty Allah addresses His obedient servants. For example He says at one place in the Holy Qur'an:

The Translation of the verses

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْا قُوْٓا اَنْفُسَكُمْ وَاَهْلِيْكُمْ نَارًا وَّقُوْدُهَا النَّاسُ وَالْحِجَارَةُ عَلَيْهَا مَلٰٓئِكَةٌ غِلَاظٌ شِدَادٌ لَّا يَعْصُوْنَ اللّٰهَ مَآ اَمَرَهُمْ وَيَفْعَلُوْنَ مَا يُؤْمَرُوْنَ (سورة التحريم:٦)

This means :

O you who believe, protect yourselves and your families from a Fire, the fuel of which is men and stones, over which are (appointed) angels, strong, severe who do not disobey Allah in that which He commands them, and they do what they are commanded (to do). (66:6)

Individual Deeds are not sufficient for salvation

Almighty Allah has warned in this verse that one should not consider it sufficient for one's salvation that one has saved oneself from the Fire of Hell by doing good deeds. One must also do one's best to save ones children and family also from that Fire. It is a common sight to day that we see a man who is very regular in his prayers, fasting, payment of Zakat and spending money on charity. He is doing his best to enforce what is right and shun what is wrong., yet he is totally negligent of the acts of the members of his family, who are drifting in the other direction. They are flagrantly violating the commands of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ and their guardian feels no worry about their misconduct and misdeeds. Beware that you cannot attain salvation by ameliorating your own life and ways, unless you take care to put your children and family also on the right path of Islam. This is because it is your responsibility to guide and protect from sins those also who have been entrusted to your charge.

What, if the children do not obey you?

In the Qur'anic verse quoted above we have been commanded to protect ourselves and our family from Fire. The verse points out the answer to a doubt that generally arises in our minds when questioned about the misconduct and deviation of their sons, the parents or guardians try to shake off their responsibility by saying that they did their best to guide and reform their children and members of their family, but in vain. Affected by the trends of the times, they are not prepared to accept right guidance. Now they are responsible for their deeds and we are responsible for our deeds. After all, the son of Hazrat Nooh عليهم السلام also did not listen to his father's admonition and died an unbeliever.

How do you protect them from the worldly fire?

By using the word Fire in this verse, the Holy Qur'an has calrified this doubt and misunderstanding. It is all right, in principle, that if parents do their best to save their children from deviation from righteousness and religion, but the children do not obey their parents, the latter will be absolved of their responsibility and the children shall have to take the consequences of deviation. It must, however be assessed as to what extent the parents tried to save their children from falling into error and disobedience. By using the word "Fire", the Holy Qur'an has provided a hint that the parents should try to save their children from sins and Hell Fire as they would save them from the conflagration of worldly fire.

Suppose that a very dangerous fire has broken out at a place. It is so severe that anyone caught by it is sure to be burnt to death. If your ignorant and innocent child advances towards the flames of this fire, what will you do? Will you consider it sufficient to warn the child from a distance that he should not approach the fire lest he should be burnt to death. If the child approaches the fire and burns himself, will the parents be absolved of their responsibility by arguing that they had warned the child of the danger in time but the child did not mind their warning. What else could they do? No such parents will be found in this world with this attitude. Genuine parents will find no rest and peace, unless they rush to the child and get him away from the fire.

What Almighty Allah says may be summed up as under:

When you do not consider it sufficient to utter only a few words as lip service to save your child from worldly fire, why do you consider it sufficient in the case of Hell Fire which is unlimited and the fury of which cannot be imagined in this world.

It is, therefore, wrong and unacceptable to say that you had warned the child and the members of your family about their deviation from the path of religion and you are not responsible for them, if they did not care your warning.

Today care is taken of everything except Deen

It is not right to give in this context the example of the son of Hazrat Nooh عليه السلام who died an unbeliever and his Prophet father could not save him from the punishment of Fire. Just see how Hazrat Nooh عليه السلام spent continuously about nine hundred years to guide and reform his son. Even after this continuous effort for such a long time, if the son did not take the right path, no blame and charge lies on Hazrat Nooh عليه السلام for the misguidance of his son. As for ourselves, only after giving a few light warnings to our children we feel satisfied that we have discharged our responsibility. What is really needed is that we should do our best to save them from the punishment of Hell Fire with the same care and anxiety with which we try to save them from the conflagration of worldly fire. The fact is that we take all possible care to feed and clothe them nicely, and provide for them good worldly education, but pay no attention to their education and training in matters relating to Deen and the Hereafter.

He has deviated only a little from the path of Deen

It so happened that the son of an acquaintance of mine who had received good modern English education got a good job. His father, who was himself a religious man, regular in his Tahajjud and other prayers, praised his son's accomplishments and his lucrative job by dint of which he had secured a high position in the society. He also added that his son had deviated only a little from the path of Deen.

Now look at the trend of thinking of this religious-minded father. He spoke highly of his son's worldly attainments and made only a passing remark about his deviation from the path of Deen, as if it was a trifling matter.

Only the "soul" has departed from the body

My respected father Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi رحمة الله عليه used to relate an event saying:

A man died, although the people thought that he was alive. In order to ascertain the truth they sent for a Doctor. After examining the body the Doctor told them that the man was quite sound in his body with all its constituent limbs, except that the 'soul' had departed from the body.

Just like this my friend said about his son that by the grace of Allah the son's career was very brilliant, except that he had slightly deviated from the right path of Deen. It was as though a little deviation from the path of Deen was not a serious matter.

The Plight of the new Generation

Today we have reached a stage in which we care for everything other than our Deen. If this Deen is such an insignificant and unimportant item, why did you practice Deen by observing the five time prayers along with the Tahajjud prayer? You too should have carved for yourself a career like that of your son. Deen has no place in the educational plan of our children. From the very beginning the child is sent to a nursery school where he is taught dogs and cats but he is not taught Allah's names, nor anything concerning Deen. That generation has now risen and taken up in its hands the reins of power - a generation that does not know how to recite the Holy Qur'an and offer prayers. If a survey is made of the society, it will be revealed that the majority cannot recite the Qur'an nor can they offer correctly the prayers. This is because the moment the child is born, the parents begin to think about the best school for the child's worldly education, without giving any thought to the teaching of Deen and its pratice.

Today the children have the upper hand over their parents

Remember that according to a Hadith Almighty Allah has decided upon a way of dealing with His servants. It is that if anyone displeases Allah in order to please some created being, Allah places that person under the control authority of the created being. For example, a man commits a sin to please someone and by committing the sin he displeases Allah. Then Almighty Allah places the sinner under the power and authority of the person whom he wants to please by displeasing Allah. You may experiment this for yourself.

Today we are trying to please our children by providing for them the best worldly education that they may have a brilliant career and attain an elivated position in the society. In preference to these worldly gains they do not teach them Deen and thereby they displease Allah. The natural result of this is that the children, whom the parents please by displeasing Allah, impose their authority and control over their parents. See for yourselves how today the children are disobeying and misbehaving with their parents and have become a torment for them. The parents admit their children into a totally irreligious society, so that they may have a comfortable worldly life through a lucrative job and high position. They leave their children free in an environment which has no place for the honour and regard for parents. If on growing up the son takes a decision according to his own free will in total disregard of their parents wishes, the parents themselves are to be blamed. They taught and trained their children for a civilisation in which old parents are considered unfit for society and are thrown into Nursing Homes where they pine away till death.

The old Father is in Nursing Home

Incidents are often heard about Western Countries that when an old father pining away dies in a Nursing Home the manager of the Home informs his son on the phone of his father's death. The son feels a little sad on hearing this news, asks the Manager to arrange for the funeral ceremonies of his father and send the bills to him for payment. What is surprising is that somebody told me that such a Nursing Home has been opened in Karachi also where old men are lodged and looked after. When a person died in this Home, his son was informed of this. First he made a promise to attend the funeral arrangements but later on expressed his inability to attend the funeral for some reason and requested the Manager to do the needful. This is the son whom you pleased and displeased Allah and that very son has now been given authority and control over you according to the words of the Hadith referred to above.

You must reap what you have sown

When such a misguided son has got the upper hand over his parents and is taking the wrong path, the parents are pained to see this, but they can do nothing when the parents themselves put their son on the wrong path, they must now take the consequences. Now there is no escape from this.

درمیانِ قعرِ دریا تختہ بندم کردہ ای
باز مے گوئی کہ دامن تر مکن ہوشیار باش

This Persian couplet means:

Having tied me on to a wooden plank, you have thrown me into the bottom of the river and yet you ask me to be alert and save my skirt from getting wet. (How is it possible).

My brother! If you had taught your son the Holy Qur'an and some Ahadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, he would have been a better man today. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith:

When a man leaves this world three things prove profitable for him: Firstly, it is the knowledge which he has left behind from which people are benefiting; For example, he has compiled some useful book, or has left behind his pupils who are teaching Deen to the people, Secondly, he has left behind some permanent charitable act like a mosque, school or hospital, a well for water. The reward for such acts/institutions accrues to the man even after his death. Thirdly, pious and obedient children will be praying for their parents. Whatever good deeds the sons/daughters do as a result of the good teaching/training provided by their parents are added to the character-role of the parents also. If the parents had taught their children this Hadith, they would not have today met this fate. It is very sad that they did not guide their children on to the right path. The result of their negligence is now before their eyes.

The Prophets عليهم السلام and their concern about their children

The care to guide children to the right path of Deen is as neessary and important as the care to guide one's own self to that path. It is not enough to provide guidance to the children only verbally and half heartedly. The care and concern to guide them to the path of Deen must be as keen, genuine and urgent as is the care to save one's child from this worldly fire when the child is seen advancing towards it in his ignorance and innocence. The entire Qur'an is full of such exhortations. Thus mentioning the accounts of the Prophets عليهم السلام Almighty Allah says in his Book:-

وَكَانَ يَأْمُرُ اَهْلَهٗ بِالصَّلٰوةِ وَالزَّكٰوةِ (سورہ مریم:۵۵)

This means that Hazrat Ismael عليه السلام used to enjoin upon his family prayer and Zakat. (19:55)

When death approached Hazrat Yaqoob عليه السلام he called together all his sons. At such critical moments the worldly people gather around them their children and advise them about how after their death they should earn their living. When Hazrat Yaqoob عليه السلام gathered his children around him at the time of his death, he asked them whom they would worship after his death. He had no worry except the worry about whom and how they should worship. This is the right thinking one should inculcate in oneself about the Deen of one's children and family. (See verse No 133, Surah 2 - Al-Baqarah).

The Masters will be questioned about their subordinates on the Day of Judgment

This responsibility is not confined only to the members of the family, but it extends to all those who are under, and subordinate to, some master or officer. For example, some subordinate employees are working under an officer. On the Day of Judgment the officer will be questioned if he had tried to persuade his subordinates to take to the path of Deen. Similarly a teacher will be questioned on the Day of Judgment what he did during his worldly life to guide his pupils on the path of Deen. Likewise an employer shall be questioned on the Day of Judgment about what efforts he made to guide his employees to the right path of Deen.

كلكم راع وكلكم مسئول عن رعيته

This sacred Hadith means:
Everyone of you is a shepherd (guardian) and he will be questioned on the Day of Judgment about those placed under his charge. (Jami'ul-usul: 5/663, Hadith No: 3946)

These sins are in reality Fire

My father, Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi رحمة الله عليه used to explain the Qur'anic verse quoted above as follows:

Allah has commanded the believers to save themselves and their families from fire, as if there is fire, although no fire is visible. The sins which are being committed are in reality fire, even though they may appear to be tasteful and pleasant. The world has become Hell on account of these sins. Having gone too deep in the abyss of sins and having become used to them we have become unable to feel the heat of this blazing fire. Those gifted with true sense and the light of belief see these sins in the form of fire or darkness.

The result of one morsel eaten out of ill-gotten money

Hazrat Maulana Muhammad Yaqoob Nanotvi, the Principal of Darul Uloom Deoband and teacher of Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi has related that once he visited the house of a person to partake of food in a feast. He had hardly taken a morsel from the food when he felt that the food served was not prepared from lawful money. This was later on confirmed by an inquiry made in this behalf. Hazrat Maulana said that he repented for this and besought Allah's forgiveness, but he felt the darkeness of that unlawful morsel for about two months during which he was urged by some unseen power to commit sins. The curse and darkness of these sins are felt by those whose hearts Allah has cleaned and purified. We, however, do not feel this curse and darkness because we have become accustomed to them.

We have become accustomed to Darkness

We have become accustomed to electric light. The city is shining with electric bulbs all day and night. It becomes unbearable for us if the electricity fails even for a few minutes. This is because we have become too much used to the shining light and comforts of electricity. There are, however, many rural areas where the people have not even seen electric light. These villagers, deprived of electricity, live in darkness and feel no inconvenience, because they have not yet seen, tasted and enjoyed the comforts of electricity. Those who are used to electric light and fans, etc., become depressed and dejected when electricity fails even for a few minutes.

Even so is our exampe, we have become used to the darkness of these sins, so we cannot realize it. We can realize this darkness only when Almighty Allah grants us the light of belief (Eeman) and righteousness (Taqwa). As said by my respected father رحمة الله عليه, these sins are in reality fire. That is why it occurs in the Holy Qur'an:

اِنَّ الَّذِيْنَ يَاْ كُلُوْنَ اَمْوَالَ الْيَتٰمٰى ظُلْمًا اِنَّمَا يَاْ كُلُوْنَ فِىْ بُطُوْنِهِمْ نَارًا

(النساء: ١٠)

Those, who devour the wealth of orphans wrongfully, do not but swallow fire into their bellies. (4:10)

While commenting on this verse some commentators have said that the word fire has been used in the verse only as a metophor which indicates unlawful and ill-gotten money the eating of which will lead to Hell. Against this, other commentators have said that it is not a metaphor, but a reality that the morsel out of unlawful money is fire, although it is not seen and felt by the people. According to this latter class of commentators, all the sins that we see around us are nothing but Fire of Hell which we do not feel owing to the loss of our spiritual sensitiveness.

It is the divine saints of Allah who can observe sins

Only those people can see the reality of things whom Allah has granted spiritual insight. It is related on reliable narratives about Hazrat Imam Abu Hanifah رحمة الله عليه that he could observe the traces of sins committed by a man from the water falling from his body after ablution or bath.

It is said about a saint that when he went out of his house, he covered his face with a cloth. Someone asked him the reason for this practice. The saint replied that he was not able to go out with his face uncovered. This was because when his face was uncovered he did not see any man. Instead he saw dogs, swines, wolves, asses. The reason was that sins committed by men took such shapes. As the reality of these sins is not visible to our sinful eyes, we take pleasure in them. In reality these sins are nothing but filth, pollution and, indeed, darkeness and Fire.

The world is filled with the Fire of sins

My respected father رحمة الله عليه explained this point by saying that this world full of sins is like a room filled with gas. This gas is in reality fire. Only a spark is needed to make the room ablaze. In the same way these sins, misdeeds and wrongs spread in the world are fire. Only the blowing of the Trumpet is wanting to convert everything into fire. Thus our misdeeds are Hell. Save from its fire yourself and your family.

First be regular in Prayers yourself

Hazrat Allama' Nuwawie has quotd another verse:

وَأْمُرْ اَهْلَكَ بِالصَّلٰوةِ وَاصْطَبِرْ عَلَيْهَا (طه:١٣٢)

And enjoin upon your family Prayer and be constant on it. (Yourself) (20:132)

In this verse Almighty Allah has changed the order of advice. Apparently the order should have been: first establish the prayer yourself and then enjoin your family on that. Here the order has been changed that first enjoin upon your family prayer and then be constant on it yourself. There is a hint in this changed order that your enjoining prayer upon your family and children will not be effective unless you make yourself constant and regular in your prayers. Thus, an effective way of enjoining prayer upon your household is that you should yourself be more sincere and enthusiastic in practising what you advise others to practise.

Do not tell lies to children

It occurs in a Hadith:

Once in the presence of the Holy Prophet ﷺ a woman called her child to her , but the child was not inclined to go to her mother. The woman then promised the child to give something if he came to her. The child then came to his mother. The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked that woman if she really intended to give the child something. She replied that she had with her a date which she intended to give to the child. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said: If you had not the intention to give the child anything, it would have been a great lie and a sin, because in that case you would be making a false promise to the child and impressing upon him that the breach of a promise and telling lies were not so serious sins.

This verse, therefore, contains a hint that you must be firm and regular in what you enjoin upon your children and family to practise.

The style of imparting training to children

Allamah Nuwawie رحمة الله عليه goes on to say:

عن ابى هريرة رضى الله تعالى عنه قال: اخذ الحبسن بن على رضى الله عنهما تمرة من تمر الصدقة فجعلها فيه فقال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم: كخ كخ، ارم بها، اما علمت انا لا نا كل الصدقة ! (جامع الاصول: ٤:٦٥٧)/رقم الحديث ٢٧٤٨)

Hazrat Abu Hurarirah رضى الله عنه has narrated that Hazrat Hasan, son of Hazrat Ali رضى الله عنه, took a date out of the dates of charity while yet he was an innocent little child, and put it into his mouth. Seeing this the Holy Prophet ﷺ at once uttered the word كخ كخ meaning spit it out, saying: Do you not know that the sons of Hashim do not eat charity money?

Hazrat Hasan رضى الله عنه is the maternal grandson of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and beloved to the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Once he ﷺ was delivering an address to the congregation in his mosque when Hazrat Hasan رضى الله عنه entered the mosque. He ﷺ at once advanced and took up Hazrat

Hasan رضی اللہ عنہ in his lap. Sometimes it also happened that Hazrat Hasan رضی اللہ عنہ got on the Prophet's shoulders while he ﷺ was praying. While going down for prostration he ﷺ would take Hasan رضی اللہ عنہ down holding him by one hand. Sometimes the Holy Prophet ﷺ would take him in his lap and say:

"مبخلة و محبنة"

These sons are such that they make man miserly as well as coward. Occasions come when man practises miserliness as well as cowardice on account of his children.

Now look! How dearly the Holy Prophet ﷺ loved Hazrat Hasan رضی اللہ عنہ yet when in his ignorance and innocence he put a date of charity in his mouth, he ﷺ did not tolerate that his grandson should eat that date. As he ﷺ devised to train his grandson even on such small matters he got the date out of Hazrat Hasan's mouth saying that "we do not eat charity money."

The limit of showing affection to children

There is a hint in this Hadith that the training of children in religion and morality begins from small things. This frames his mental trend and shapes his life. This is, as we have seen a Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It is seen that a strange trend has sprung up among parents of not stopping children from doing something wrong. In the past parents did love their children, but in so loving they used their wisdom and discretion. To day it has become a fashion not to interfere with the children, however foolishly or arrogantly they may be behaving. Parents think that being innocent and of tender age children should be allowed a free hand in all they do. This is not right. It is the responsibility of the parents to admonish their children when they are found violating some rules of etiquette, morality or some injunctions of Deen. If this is not done they will grow up ill-bred, ill-tutored and disobedient and will become a curse for the parents when nothing can be done. The Hadith enjoins that we should keep a vigilant eye on small lapses and faults committed by our children and try to correct them.

An Incident that happened to the Shaikh-ul-Hadith Hazrat Maulana Zakaria رحمۃاللہ علیہ

Shaikh-ul-Hadith Hazrat Maulana Zakaria رحمۃاللہ علیہ has related an incident in his autobiography. He says:-

When I was a small child, my parents had made for me a small pillow. I had a great liking for that pillow, which I always kept with me. One day my father wanted to lie down for which he was looking for a pillow. I offered to my father that small pillow, saying: My dear father! Take my pillow. My father at once slapped me, saying: Even at this stage of your age you call this pillow to be your property. My father wanted to tell me that it was his property and not mine. I was greatly grieved at this treatment of my father. Later on I came to know the secret of my fahter's action. This incident entirely changed the direction of my mind. It is necessary for right education and useful training of children to keep a keen eye even on their small activities and movements.

An etiquette of taking food

عن ابی حفص عمر بن ابی سلمة عبد الله بن عبد الا سد ربیب رسول الله صلی الله علیه وسلم قال: کنت غلاما فی حجر رسول الله صلی الله علیه وسلم، وکانت یدی تطیش فی الصحفة، فقال لی رسول الله صلی

الله عليه وسلم: يا غلام سم الله، وكل بيمينك، وكل مما يليك، فما زالت تلك طعمتي بعد (جامع الا صول: ٧/ ٣٨٨ رقم الحديث ٥٤٤٥)

Hazrat Abu Salmah رضی اللہ عنہ was a step son of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, He was born from Hazrat Umme Salmah رضی اللہ عنہما, a mother of the believers, by her late husband. When the Holy Prophet ﷺ married Umme Salmah, Hazrat Abu Salmah رضی اللہ عنہا also came with her to the house of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. That is why he is a step son of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The Holy Prophet ﷺ loved him dearly and often talked to him very freely and informally. Hazrat Abu Salmah رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated: As a small child I was under the care and upbringing of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. One day while taking food my hand moved in the plate from side to side. Seeing this the Holy Prophet ﷺ said to me: Recite بسم اللہ (In the name of Allah), eat with the right hand and eat from the side of the plate which is before you. It is not right to move the hand on all sides of the plate, while eating. This demonstrates how the Holy Prophet ﷺ used to teach etiquette and good manners from small lapses and faults.

These are Islamic Rules of Etiquette

Another companion Hazrat ʿAkrash bin Zoaib رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that once he called on the Holy Prophet ﷺ When the food was served, he began to eat it from different sides of the plate. Catching hold of his hand the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Eat the food from one side, because the food in the plate is the same. Eating it from here and there is bad etiquette and ill manner. Hazrat ʿAkrash رضی اللہ عنہ then began to eat if from one side. When the meal was over a very large plate was brought full of dates of different kinds. On the basis of the past experience Hazrat ʿAkrash رضی اللہ عنہ began to eat the dates from one side, while the Holy Prophet ﷺ was eating them from different sides. Seeing him eating the dates from one side, He ﷺ again said: O ʿAkrash pick up the dates from any side you like because they are of different types and you may choose them according to your taste and choice.

In other words, the Holy prophet ﷺ has taught this rule of etiquette that if the food is of one type then the man eating should eat it from the side in front of him. If the food or the fruit is of different types, then it may be picked up from different sides according to the choice of the person partaking of the meal. See how the Holy Prophet ﷺ had his eyes on small items in teaching rules of etiquette to his companions رضی اللہ عنہم. All these are Islamic rules of etiquette which should be learnt and practised by all Muslims and should also be taught to their children and families.

"عن عمر وبن شعيب عن ابيه عن جده رضى الله عنه قال:قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم: مروا اولاد كم بالصلاة وهم ابناء سبع واضربو هم عليها وهم ابناء عشر وفرقوا بينهم فى المضاجع" (جامع الا صول: ٥/٨٧/رقم الحديث ٣٢٤٣)

Hazrat Abdullah bin ʿUmar رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Order your children to offer prayer when they reach the age of seven years, (even though prayer is not binding on them at this age). When they reach the age of ten years and do not offer prayer, you may beat them for that. Also separate their beds at the age of ten years.

Teaching and Training children before the age of seven years

The first order given in this Hadith is that efforts be made to introduce prayer to children, to teach and habituate them at the age of seven years. This confirms that it is not proper to impose on children any responsibility or duty of this kind before they attain the age of seven years, as some people induce their children to fast during Ramazan before attaining this age. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه vehemently opposed this practice, because this could not be right when Almighty Allah Himself does not advise us to impose prayer on children before the age of seven years. That is why it has been suggested not to bring to the mosque children below the age of seven years. This is however, allowed only occasionally to make children acquainted with the mosque gradually, on the condition that they do not pollute the mosque with urine or filth. It is not right to burden the child in any way before attaining the age of seven years.

Let them learn at home

Our elders have advised that it is also not proper to burden the child even with school education before the age of seven years. You may, however, introduce light teaching to him before this age through play things and toys, instead of making him a regular school-going boy. Nowadays it has become a custom that no sooner does the child attain the age of three years than the parents begin to arrange for admission into some school. This is not at all right. After the child has attained the age of three year, teach him only basic things at home. Let him learn the names of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ the Kalimah and some other basic lessons in Deen. Give the child these easy lessons at home without making him a regular school-going child.

Qari Fath Muhammad Sahib رحمة الله عليه

May Allah elevate the rank of our saintly Maulana Qari Fath Muhammad Sahib رحمة الله عليه. He was a living miracle of the Holy Qur'an. He devoted all his life to the study and teaching of Qur'an. As occurs in a supplication in a Hadith, Qur'an had become his life-blood and his soul was saturated with the light of its verses.

Qari Sahib was a very stritct teacher of the Qur'an, yet he asserted with force that it was not right to throw on the weak shoulders of the child the burden of learning before he attained the age of seven years. Such a burden he said, would retard the child's natural growth and development. He supported this opinion with the Holy Prophet's ﷺ Hadith in which the age of seven years has been recommended for children to learn and offer prayers.

The burden of learning should be thrown on the child's shoulders gradually when he attains the age of seven years. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has allowed that if the child does not pray he may be beaten, only after he has attained the age of ten years.

The limit to which bodily punishment may be inflicted on children

It should also be borne in mind that it is lawful for teachers or parents to beat children only when the beating does not leave any mark on the body nor causes injury. The way in vogue today of beating children recklessly is unlawful. It is a grievous sin to beat children so severely as to cause bleeding and injuries. In the opinion of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه, this is an unpardonable sin, as the victim, being a minor cannot himself pardon it. It is, therefore, not understood how to be saved from the punishment of this sin. So dangerous is this sin! Beating is allowed only in unavoidable situations but that is also mild beating which should not leave any mark on the body nor cause injury.

The way how children should be beaten

Hakimul-Ummat Hazrat Maulana Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has suggested a unique prescription for this, which is worth remembering. He has suggested that if it ever becomes unavoidable to beat the child, do not resort to beating while you are in a state of anger. When the anger has disappeared, then beat the child under pretended anger. In beating the child in a state of genuine anger one may exceed the limit and cause irreparable loss to the child. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has stated that he acted upon this method the whole of his life. Remember that anger is a passion in which there is always the danger of exceeding limits.

How to train children

For this purpose Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه used to mention a principle, which is not of general application, yet it is workable in the majority of cases. He has suggested that it is not right to punish a person while he is doing some wrong. The wrongdoer may be advised, scolded or punished later on. It is also not right to raise objections to a person's conduct frequently. It is better to call him only once and point out to him his failings in detail. Then if it is necessary to punish him, punish him only once.

Anger is a passion which overpowers man and under the spell of anger man is most likely to exceed the limit. In short, when necessary one may resort to beating within the allowed and reasonable limits. Today people follow the extremes. Either they exceed the limits in beating or leave the child un-checked and free to do what he likes. We should follow the golden mean which is the way of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

Everyone of you is a Guardian

In the end the same Hadith has been cited as was cited earleir.

وعن ابن عمر رضى الله عنهما قال: سمعت رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم يقول: كلكم راع وكلكم مسئول عن رعيته الامام راع ومسئول عن رعيته والرجل راع فى اهله ومسئول عن رعيته والمراة راعية فى بيت زوجها ومسئولة عن رعيتها، والخادم راع فى مال سيده ومسئول عن رعيته فكلكم راع ومسئول عن رعيته (جامع الا صول: ٥٠/٤ رقم الحديث٢٠٢٨)

It is narrated from Hazrat Abdullah bin 'Umar رضى الله عنه that he heard the Holy Prophet ﷺ saying: Everyone of you is a Shephard (Guardian) and he will be questioned on the Day of Judgment about his charge and responsibility. The Ruler is responsible for his subjects and he will be questioned about them on the Day of Judgment as to how he dealt with them, trained them, and discharged their rights. Man is a guardian over his children and family. He will be questioned about how he discharged his responsibility towards them with regard to their upkeep and rights. The wife is in charge of her husband's house. On the Day of Judgment she will be questioned as to how she discharged her responsibility about the things entrusted to her charge. The servant is a guardian of his master's properties which are a trust and he will be questioned on the Day of Judgment how he dishcarged this trust.

In short, everyone of you is a guardian in one way or another. He will be questioned about his charge and responsibility on the Day of Judgment.

Take care of your subordinates

The intention to cite this Hadith is to tell that the responsibility is not confined only to parents and their sons. In fact in all walks of life there is a master or incharge with his servants or subordinates. For example, within the boundary of the house a man's subordinates are his children and wife. In an office the officer has his subordinates. A shopkeeper has a few helpers under him. A factory-owner has a number of workers working under him. All these masters, owners or officers are responsible to guide their subordinates or employees on to the right path of Deen. None of them should think that he is responsible to reform only himself and has nothing to do with his subordinates. They should all bear in mind that they are in a better position to teach Deen to their subordinates and make them follow its principles and injunctions. If these subordinates and employees are indifferent to Deen the blame lies on their masters and employers. These responsible persons should, feel and discharge their responsibility which they owe to their subordinates in the matter of Deen.

Spare only Ten minutes

There is no doubt that life has become very busy nowadays and everyone is hard pressed for spare time. Notwithstanding it is possible for everyone to spare five to ten minutes every day to teach Deen to his subordinates. For example, he may read to his subordinates from a book some injunctions relating to Deen for a few minutes at an appointed time. He may read the translation of a verse or a Hadith. By so doing he will be acting upon the Hadith cited above. May Almighty Allah help us all to follow the injunctions contained in the Hadith. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
after 'Asr Prayers
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi.

SERVICE TO PARENTS A MEANS TO PARADISE

الحمدلله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه، ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له واشهدان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له واشهد ان سيدنا وسندنا ونبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلىٰ له واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا

اما بعد !

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطٰن الرجيم بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

وَاعْبُدُوْا اللّٰهَ وَلَا تُشْرِكُوْا بِهٖ شَيْئًا وَّبِالْوَالِدَيْنِ اِحْسَانًاوَّبِذِى الْقُرْبٰى وَالْيَتٰمٰى وَالْمَسٰكِيْنِ وَالْجَارِذِى الْقُرْبٰى وَالْجَارِالْجُنُبِ وَالصَّاحِبِ بِالْجَنْبِ وَابْنِ السَّبِيْلِ لا وَمَا مَلَكَتْ اَيْمَانُكُمْ ؕ (النساء:٣٦)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم وصدق رسوله البنى الكريم ونحن على ذٰلك من الشاهدين والشاكرين والحمد لله رب العالمين

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and forgiveness. We beleive in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our selves and the vices of our deeds. None can misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom He lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God except Allah, the One. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our Master, our authority, our Prophet and our Sire, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah shower mercy on him, on his household on his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and may He bless them and salute them a great deal.

And worship Allah, Ascribe nothing as partner to Him. (Show) Kindness to Parents and to near Kindred and orphans, and the needy and the neighbour who is of in to you) and the neighbour who is not of kin and the fellow-traveller and the wayfarer and (the slaves) whom your right hands possess. (4:36)

A description of the rights of the servants of Allah

Allamah Nuwa-wee رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has opened a new chapter on the topic of kindness to and good behaviour with paretns and maintenance of close ties with blood relations. As I have already mentioned, these chapters in the book Riazus-Saliheen deal with the rights of the servants of Allah. Some rights of the servants have already been discussed about which you have heard the injunctions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The Allamah has quoted in this new chapter verses and Ahadith about nice behaviour with parents and the rights of the close relatives. The first Hadith is as follows:

Which deed is the best

عن ابی عبدالرحمٰن عبد اللہ بن مسعود رضی اللہ عنہ قال سئلت النبی صلی اللہ علیہ وسلم ای العمل احب الی اللہ؟ قال اَلصَّلاۃ علی وقتھا قلت ثم اَیٌّ ؟ قـــال بـرالوالدین قلت ثم ای؟ قال الجھاد فی سبیل اللہ(صحیح بخاری، باب مواقیت الصـــلاۃ حدیث نمبر ٥٠٤)

It is narrated from Abdullah bin Mas'ud رضی اللہ عنہ that he asked the Holy Prophet ﷺ which act is the best of all in the sight of Allah. He ﷺ said: It is prayer at its appointed time. He رضی اللہ عنہ asked which was the next best act after prayer. He ﷺ said: Nice behaviour with the parents. He رضی اللہ عنہ asked which was the next best act after that. He ﷺ said: It is Jihad (Holy war) in the path of Allah.

As is quite clear, in the Hadith the best act has been declared to be prayer at its appointed time; then nice behaviour with parents and the third place has been given to Jihad in the path of Allah.

Desire to do good deeds

Two points need to be understood here. Firstly, many companions رضی اللہ عنہم asked the Holy Prophet ﷺ at different times the best act in the sight of Allah so that they could act upon it. They were always obsessed with the idea of the Hereafter and the way of attaining nearness to Almighty Allah and His pleasure.

Today we read in the books about "Good Deeds" and the virtues of various acts and deeds, but no sincere desire is born in our hearts to do them. On the other hand the noble companions رضی اللہ عنہم eagerly picked up even the smallest act bearing reward of the Hereafter.

Alas! I have lost many Qeerats!

Once Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ mentioned before Hazrat Abdullah bin 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ a Hadith in which the Holy Prophet ﷺ was quoted as saying:

A man who joins the funeral prayer of his Muslim brother will get reward of one Qeerat. In those days Qeerat was a measure with which silver and gold were weighed. And he who accompanied the coffin will get two Qeerats. He who takes part in his burial will get three Qeerats. It occurs in another Hadith that the Qeerat of Paradise is bigger than mountain Uhud.

On hearing this Hadith from Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ Hazrat Abdullah bin 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ said regretfully that he had not heard that Hadith earlier, so he lost many Qeerats. It may be borne in mind that Hazrat Abdullah bin 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ was one whose only concern was to act up to the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and he had already a great stock of good deeds in his character-roll. Even so, he regretted having missed some reward for want of knowledge of the Hadith.

Different Answers to the same Question

So we have seen how the Noble companions رضی اللہ عنہم frequently used to ask the Holy Prophet aout the best deeds to do for reward in the Hereafter. We also see that the Holy Prophet ﷺ gave different answers to different companions رضی اللہ عنہم to the same question. For instance, the Holy Prophet ﷺ replied to one companion رضی اللہ عنہ that the best act is to offer prayer at its appointed time; to another that the best act is to remember Allah with the tongue at all times; still to a third companion رضی اللہ عنہ that the best act is to obey parents and behave nicely with them; to a fourth one, that the best act is to take part in Jihad. These answers appear to contradict one another, but in fact there is no contradiction.

The Best Act for every man is different

The fact is that the best deed changes from person to person according to circumstrances. For some it is prayer, for another it is nice behaviour with parents, still for others it is Jihad, remembrance of Allah and the like. The Holy Prophet ﷺ knew very well about one of his ﷺ companions that he was regular in his prayers but he was negligent in the service of his parents. So He ﷺ prescribed for him as the best act the service of his parents. He ﷺ found a companion رضی اللہ عنہ slack in Jihad and another in remembrance of Allah, so he ﷺ prescribed for them respectively Jihad and remembrance of Allah as the best acts to do. All these are acts that carry great virtues and rewards, but the Holy Prohet ﷺ prescribed them as the best act differently for different persons according to the circumstances of each.

The Excellence of Prayer

While mentioning actions in order of their excellence, the Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned in this Hadith prayer as the best act in its appointed time. Some time a man postpones prayer through laziness until the appointed time expries and he misses the prayer. This is not proper. One must offer prayers within the prescribed time. There is a verse of the Qur'an to this effect:

فَوَيْلٌ لِّلْمُصَلِّيْنَ O الَّذِيْنَ هُمْ عَنْ صَلَاتِهِمْ سَاهُوْنَ (الماعون: ٤،٥)

Woe to those worshippers who are heedless of their prayer. (107: 4-5)

There is also a Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ:

الذی تفوته صلاة العصر کانما وتر اهله وماله

This means that:

one who misses his Asr (late after-noon) prayer is like one the whole of whose family and all his wealth has been plundered.

To delay praying till the prayer is missed is a very serious matter.One should therefore, be cautious of prayer as well as of its appointed time.

The Excellence of Jihad

In this Hadith service to parents has been declared as the best action, and Jihad in the path of Allah has been declared as the third best act. This means that service to parents and nice behaviour with them have been given preference over Jihad. You know that Jihad is a very high form of service and it occurs in a Hadith that if a man takes part in Jihad in the path of Allah and is martyred, Almighty Allah will take him from this world to the other world purified from all sins as if he was bron from his mother's womb the moment he was martyred.(Sahih Bukhari Hadith No: 2662)

It occurs in a Hadith that after death when a man observers his nearness to Allah and the pleasures of Paradise, he will never desire to return to the world, because the reality of the world will be disclosed before his eyes at that time, He will realize how mean worthless, filthy and hateful the world is in comparison with Paradise which he has been awarded. The martyr will however, desire to be sent to world again to take part in Jihad and be martyred again and again. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ had himself desired to take part in Jihad in the path of Allah, be martyred then again be sent to the world to take part in Jihad and be martyred again and again. After having entered Paradise none, but a martyr, will desire to be sent back to the world. So excellent is the rank of Jihad among acts of devotion!(Sahih Bukhari ..... Hadith No: 2644)

The Rights of Parents

Notwithstanding all this, obedience to parents with nice behaviour with them has been accorded preference to Jihad. The jurists have said that rights of parents are foremost of all the rights of the servants of Allah. No right is more esteemable in this world than the rights of the parents. As Allah has made parents a cause of man's coming into existence. He has granted them more rights than any other class of relatives. According to a Hadith:

If a man casts a loving glance at his parents, Allah will grant him reward equal to that for a Hajj and Umrah. So high in the sight of Allah is the reward for nice behaviour with the parents!

Selfless Love

You must remember that all relations acquaintances, love and affection that exist in this world among men are based on some motives. It is difficult to find in this world selfless love. An exception to this is parents' love for their children. The parents have no interest of thier own involved in thier love for their children. The love between husband and wife, friends and brothers, etc., has some interest involved in it. As mentioned above, the love of parents for their children is selfless and free from the traces of any interest. They are prepared even to sacrifice their lives for the prosperity and welfare of their children. That is why Almighty Allah has placed the rights of parents above all other rights of servants.

Kindness and service to Parents

It occurs in a Hadith that a Noble companion رضی اللہ عنہ called on the Holy Prophet ﷺ and expressed his keen desire to take part in Jihad in the path of Allah, in order to please Allah and attract His favour and reward. The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked him: Do you want to take part in Jihad only for this purpose? The companion رضی اللہ عنہ replied in the affirmative. The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked the companion رضی اللہ عنہ if his parents were alive. To this question also he replied in the affirmative. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said to him رضی اللہ عنہ. Go and serve them. The reward which will accrue to you by serving your parents will not accrue to you even from your participation in Jihad. The following words occur in a narrative which places service to parents above Jihad.

فَفِيْهِمَا فَجَاهِدْ

So go and serve them (the parents). This is Jihad (Sahih Bukhari, Ch. 136, Hadith No: 2842)

It is not Deen (faith) to satisfy one's fancy

Our Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ often said that it is not Deen to satisfy one's fancy - a point which is worth remembering for ever. Deen is the name of obeying Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. Look for their commands and carry them out. For example some likes always to stand for prayer in the first row, some desires to take part in Jihad and still there is one who desires to go for the Tabligh (preaching) of Deen. All these are practices of Deen and carry reward, yet one must try to find out the demand of the time. For example, your parents are seriously ill and hardly able to move and you are anxious to join the prayer in the mosque in the first row. At such a time Allah and

His Prophet ﷺ demand that you should forget joining prayer in the first row but serve your ailing parents and behave nicely with them and offer your prayer in the house alone. If in such a critical time you insist upon going to the mosque to join the first row, this is not Deen; this is an act of satisfying your fancy.

This injunction applies when the mosque is far away, but if it is quite near the house and the parents are in a state that they will not feel the absence of their son for a short time or there is in the house another man to look after the parents, it is better to go to the mosque to join the congregation.

This is not Deen (Faith)

Hazrat Maulana Masihullah Khan Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ, an elderly divine of ours has illustrated this by an example. Suppose a man is all alone with his wife in a deserted place and there is none other than this couple and the mosque is at a considerable distance from the place. If the man insists on going to the mosque to join the congregation in the first row leaving behind his wife in the deserted place all alone, then this is not Deen. It is the demand of Deen to ignore the fancy of repairing to the mosque for joining the first row and instead pray alone at the place where he and his wife are staying. If one does otherwise, one is satisfying one's own fancy in preference to the commands of Allah and his Prophet ﷺ, and this indeed is not Deen.

Take another example. Your parents are sick at home and are badly in need of your service and you want to go out for Tabligh (preaching), leaving your parents in this condition. Although Tabligh is a very important part of Deen, yet in such a situation service to your ailing parents has a preference over Tabligh. To ignore this preference and go out for Tabligh is no Deen; it is only an act of satisfying your fancy.

You have just read this Hadith that a Noble companion رضی اللہ عنہ called upon the Holy Prophet ﷺ and expressed his desire to take part in Jihad, but the Holy Prophet ﷺ commanded him to remain at home to serve and look after his parents.

Hazrat Owais Qarni رضی اللہ عنہ

Hazrat Owais Qarni رضی اللہ عنہ lived during the time of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He was a believer and had a burning desire to call on the Holy Prophet ﷺ and earn an honour equal to which there could be no honour on the surface of the earth. He asked the Prophet ﷺ for permission to visit him ﷺ inspite of his weak and ailing mother, who required her son's help and service. The Holy Prophet ﷺ forbade Hazrat Owais Qarni رضی اللہ عنہ to visit him ﷺ and advised him to serve and look after his ailing mother.(Sahih Muslim ..... Hadith No: 2542)

Just imagine, how anxious a believer was to pay a visit to the Holy Prophet ﷺ while he ﷺ was yet living! Also imagine the burning desire of Muslims in our times to visit Holy Prophet's Mausoleum and Madinah Munaw-warah and to visit it again and again at all costs. Also imagine the emotions of Hazrat Owais Qarni that he suppressed his desire to see the Holy Prophet ﷺ during his ﷺ life in compliance with the latter's command to serve and look after his ailing mother. Thereby he also abandoned the great honour of being a "companion" - an honour far above that of the greatest of the saints and divines.

The status of being a companion (Sahabi)

Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمۃ اللہ علیہ, a renowned jurist and Muhaddis was a follower Taabi'ee. Once a man put to him a queer question. The question was: Who is the better of the two, Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ or Hazrat 'Umar bin Abdul Aziz رضی اللہ عنہ? For putting this question, on one side, the questioner selected Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ about whose status as a companion, the people have woven many stories on account of the battle between him and Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ. On the other hand he selected for his question Hazrat 'Umar bin Abdul Aziz رضی اللہ عنہ who is called the second 'Umar in the matter of justice, fairplay and piety, etc. He is regarded as a Mujaddid of the second century, Hijri. Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمۃ اللہ علیہ replied this queer question saying:

The dust which entred the nostrils of the horse of Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ, while he was taking part in Jihad with the Holy Prophet ﷺ is better than one thousand 'Umars bin Abdul Aziz. The status which Allah had granted Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ on account of being a companion of the Holy Prophet ﷺ cannot be attained even by the greates of saints, despite their best devotion, piety and righteousness practised during their whole lifetime. (Al-Bidayah wan-nihayah, Vol-I, P-139)

Continue serving and looking after your mother

The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked Hazrat Owais Qarni رضی اللہ عنہ to serve and look after his mother, and it was not at all necessary for him to visit him ﷺ or attain the status of companionship. If there had been a person unable to assess the need of the time he would have advised attainment of "companionship", as it could not be attained after the demise of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. No matter if the mother was ailing; after all a man has to leave his house for one or another business. The matter with Hazrat Owais Qarni رضی اللہ عنہ was quite different. His desire was to obey the injunctions of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ and not to the satisfaction of his own fancy. Hazrat Owais Qarni رضی اللہ عنہ therefore, could not become a companion (Sahabi) by paying a personal visit to the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

The reward for mother's service

Now see how Allah compensated Hazrat Owais Qarni رضی اللہ عنہ on his devoted service to his mother! The Holy Prophet ﷺ once said to Hazrat 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ: O 'Umar! At sometime a man will come to Madinah from Qarn in Yemen, who will have such and such distinctive features. When you find this man, get him to pray for you, because Almighty Allah will accept his prayer.

It occurs in narratives that whenever a caravan came to Madinah from Yemen, Hazrat 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ would ask them about Hazrat Owais Qarni. At last a caravan came and Hazrat 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ was told that Hazrat Owais Qarni was among the Carvan. Hazrat 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ recognised him by the features which the Holy Prophet ﷺ had described to him رضی اللہ عنہ. Hazrat 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ met him, saluted him and requested him to pray for him رضی اللہ عنہ. Hazrat Owais Qarni رضی اللہ عنہ asked Hazrat 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ why the latter had visited him and asked him for praying. Hazrat 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ told Hazrat Owais Qarni رضی اللہ عنہ the entire background. Hearing that Hazrat Owais Qarni رضی اللہ عنہ was moved to tears on the Prophet's remarks about him رضی اللہ عنہ.

Look! A high-ranking companion like Hazrat 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ is being asked to seek prayers from Hazrat Owais Qarni رضی اللہ عنہ. Hazrat Qarni رضی اللہ عنہ attained this unique position by obeying the Holy Prophet ﷺ and serving his old ailing mother, as he رضی اللہ عنہ was advised by the Holy Prophet ﷺ. (Sahih Muslim ..... Hadith No: 2542)

Devotion of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم

There is not a single companion who was not devoted whole-heartedly to the Holy Prophet ﷺ. If a companion could be able to prolong the life of someone by a few minutes by sacrificing his own life, then the entire population of the noble companions would not have hesitated to sacrifice their lives to add a few breaths to the sacred life of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. They were so sincerely loyal to the Holy Prophet ﷺ that they did not like that the shining face of him ﷺ went out of their sights at any time even during a raging battle. During the battle of Uhud, the Holy Prophet ﷺ had presented a sword to Hazrat Dujanah with his own blessed hands. So armed, when he advanced to fight the enemies, he saw that volleys of arrows were being shot at the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Turning his back at the showering arrows, Hazrat Dujanah رضی اللہ عنہ kept his face towards the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Thus to save the Holy Prophet ﷺ he received all the arrows at his back. He adopted this strategy so that he may not commit the disrespect of turning his back towards the Holy Prophet ﷺ and lose his ﷺ enlighting sight. Now see how the Noble Companions maintained the honour and dignity of the Holy Prophet ﷺ even during the heat of battles.

These companions who did not like to be away from the Holy Prophet ﷺ even for a short time complied with his command to leave his august companionship in Madinah to go to Syria, Yemen, Egypt, etc., to preach his Deen.

Our Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ used to tell a very important point that Deen is the name of understanding and acting according to the demands of the times. One should be wide awake to grasp the need of the times and act accordingly.

Thus if the demand of the time is to serve and look after the parents, both Jihad and Tabligh lose for the time being their importance and preference. Even prayer in congregation loses its urgency in such a situation, although each of these items of devotion has its importance and excellence in its normal time and situation. The demands of the times should, therefore, be kept in view and fulfilled in all situations.

The importance of service to parents

Almighty Allah and His Prophet ﷺ have enjoined upon service to parents, saying that it has preference over all forms of worship. The Qur'an contains many verses about the excellence and importance of kindness and service to parents. It has been mentioned in one of these verses:

وَوَصَّيْنَا الْاِنْسَانَ بِوَالِدَيْهِ حُسْنًا (العنکبوت:٨)

It means: We have enjoined upon man kindness to parents. (29:8)

In another verse it has been said:

وَقَضٰى رَبُّكَ اَلَّا تَعْبُدُوْٓا اِلَّآ اِيَّاهُ وَبِالْوَالِدَيْنِ اِحْسَانًا (الاسراء: ٢٣)

That is: Your Lord has decreed that you should worship none but Him and (you should show) kindness to parents. (17 : 23)

Note how in this verse Allah has combined kindness to parents with Tauheed. (The "Oneness" of Allah). It is as if the most pressing obligation after Tauheed is kindness to and nice behaviour with parents.

When the parents have grown old

Thereafter how beautifully Almighty Allah has enjoined:

اِمَّا يَبْلُغَنَّ عِنْدَكَ الْكِبَرَ اَحَدُهُمَآ اَوْ كِلٰهُمَا فَلَا تَقُلْ لَّهُمَآ اُفٍّ .....

(الاسراء: ٢٣)

This means:

If one of them or btoh of them attain old age with you, do not say "Fie" to them, nor repulse them, but speak to them a gracious word. (17: 23)

When the parents attain old age they sometime become irritated and utter irrelevant and improper words. Even in such sitautions their sons/daughters have been advised to put up with the words of their parents with patience and never to scold them in any circumstances, but show to them due regard and respect. Next it has been said:

وَاخْفِضْ لَهُمَا جَنَاحَ الذُّلِّ مِنَ الرَّحْمَةِ وَقُلْ رَّبِّ ارْحَمْهُمَا كَمَا رَبَّيٰنِي صَغِيْرًا (الاسراء: ٢٤)

This means:

And lower to them the wing of submission and humbleness out of mercy to both of them and say: My Lord! Have mercy on them both, as they cared for me and brought me up when I was a little child. (17: 24)

It has been specially emphasized that if on account of old age they show irritation in their speech and behaviour with you, do not take it ill and be patient with them.

An instructive Event

I once read a story that has a moral in it, though it is not quite sure whether it is true or false. The story runs thus:

An old man was sitting in the courtyard of his house along with his son who had received high education. Suddenly a crow perched on a wall of the house. The father asked the son: What is this? The son replied: It is a crow. After a little while the father again asked the son: What is this: The son said: It is a crow. After a few minutes the father asked his son the third time: What is this? The son said: Father, I have just now told you that this is a crow. After a little while the old father again asked his son the fourth time; what is this? At this time some expression of irritation was felt in the son's tone when he said to his father with a rebuff. Father! It is a crow, a crow. A little after the father again asked his son; what is this? This time the son replied to his father with a vein of temper. Father: You are always repeating the same question, although I have told you so many times that it is a crow. Are you not able to understand this? A little later the father went to his room and came back with an old diary. Opening a page of the diary he asked his son to read that. When the son read it the following words were written in the diary:

Today my little son was sitting with me in the courtyard, when a crow came there. My son asked me twenty-five times what it was and I told him twenty-five times that it was a crow and I did not at all feel irritated. I rather felt affection for the innocent child.

The father then told the son the difference saying: between a father and a son's attitude, while a little child he asked me this question twenty-five times and and I felt no irritation in replying to the question twenty-five times and when today I asked him the same question only five times, he felt irritated and annoyed.

Kindness to, and nice behaviour with parents

Any way, Almighty Allah wants you to note that in old age parents become somewhat irritable. At this stage they may utter words which may be unpleasant. You must endure these words from your parents patiently as they endured more undesirable and annyoing words from you when you were little children. This is so important that even about infidel parents Allah has said in His Book.

وَاِنْ جٰهَدٰكَ عَلٰٓى اَنْ تُشْرِكَ بِىْ مَالَيْسَ لَكَ بِهٖ عِلْمٌ فَلَا تُطِعْهُمَا وَ صَاحِبْهُمَا فِى الدُّنْيَا مَعْرُوْفًا ز (لقمان:١٥)

This means:

If they (your parents) compel you to commit shirk (polytheism) with Me, then do not obey them. Associate with them in the world with kindness. (31:15)

According to this verse Allah forbids you to obey your parents if they press you to become Mushriks (polytheists), yet He commands you to behave with them nicely in the life of this world, because they are your parents.

Order of things have changed now. The young boys are being so taught and trained as to disown their loyalty to parents. They are being advised that being human beings all are equal in rights and liabilities.

Such misleading ideas spring up in man's mind when he goes astray from Deen and the fervour of obeying. Allah and His Prophet ﷺ cools down and the thought of the Hereafter vanishes from his mind. May Almighty Allah save us from this. Aameen.

The curse of disobeying parents

Obeying parents is an obligatory duty. If the parents order their children to do anything, that order becomes binding on them, just as praying is binding on a believer, provided the act ordered by parents is lawful in the Shari'ah. This is called حقوق الوالدين which means disobedience to parents. The learned divines have said that a man disobedient to his parents is prevented from reciting the Kalimah at the time of death.

An event full of moral lessons

It is written about a person that at the time of his death he was going through the throes of death. People around him were trying to make him recite the Kalimah, but he was unable to recite it. The people, therefore, brought a saint and asked him what to do. The saint advised that if the man's mother or father was alive they should seek her/his pardon for him. One of the parents, it seems is displeased with the man because of his disobedience. This has brought this curse on him. The Kalimah would not run on his tongue, unless his parents pardon him. Look, how serious and dangerous it is to disobey and displease parents! At every step the Holy Prophet ﷺ has laid stress on according nice behaviour with parents and has advised his noble companions رضی اللہ عنہم accordingly.

Parents' permission for receiving education

Among the students who come to seek admission to our Darul-Uloom for receiving religious education are some who do this witout the permission of their parents. When questioned on this point they say that their parents do not give them permission to receive this education. I tell such students that to become a Molvi is not compulsory but to obey parents is an obligatory duty (Farz). As explained earlier, it is not necessary to obey parents if they stop their children from some obligatory duties, like Prayer, Fasting, etc. As regards education to become a Movli or the like, parents' permission is necessary, because it is neither compulsory nor obligatory to become a Molvi. If one insists on following one's own choice by disobeying the parents,it is not Deen; it is the satisfaction of one's fancy. May Allah help us understand this truth. Aameen.

An easy way to win Paradise

Bear in mind well that the parents are a great blessing as long as they are alive. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith that to cast a loving glance on parents is equal in reward to a Hajj and 'Umrah. In another Hadith he ﷺ has said: Condemned be he who gets his paretns in their old age but fails to have his sins pardoned by them. If parents are old and living with you it is very easy for you to win Paradise. Just serve them with obedience and kindness. If they are pleased with, and pray for you, your Hereafter will be ameliorated. So, as long as parents are alive win their hearts with service and obedience and value them, so that you may not have to regret your negligence towards them when they are no more in this world.

How to compensate for negligence towards parents after their death

It is not uncommon that after the death of their parents their sons/daughters feel remorse for their disobedience to, and misbehaviour with their paents. They realize from the cores of their hearts the blessings and rewards they lost on account of their indeference to their parents while they were living with them. Allah has however, kept open two ways out for such unfortunate sons/daughters. Firstly, they should transmit to the souls of their parents reward earned through charity, optional prayers, and recitation of the Holy Qur'an etc. Secondly, they should behave with kindness and sympathy with the friends, relatives and acquaintances of their paretns. Almighty Allah is so merciful that by such posthumous remorse and good deeds He makes good the negligence committed by the sons/daughters towards their parents while they were living.

The mother has three rights as against the father who has only one right

عن ابی هریرة رضی الله عنه قال جاء رجل الی رسول الله صلی الله علیه وسلم فقال یا رسول الله من احق الناس بحسن صحبتی؟ قال امك قال ثم من؟ قال امك قال ثم من؟ قال امك قال ثم من؟ قال ابوك (جامع الاصول، جلد ۱، ص۳۹۷)

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی الله عنه has narrated that a man called on the Holy Prophet ﷺ and asked: O Prophet of Allah who in the entire world is more deserving of my kindness and nice behaviour? The Holy Prophet ﷺ said:Your mother. He again put the same questin and the Prophet ﷺ gave the same reply. He put the same question the third time and the Holy Prophet ﷺ gave the same reply, saying: Your mother. When the man put the same question the fourth time, the Holy Prophet ﷺ replied saying: your father.

Thus, we see that in this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ referred to the mother three times and to the father only once. The learned divines have concluded that the mother's rights are three-fold of the rights of the father.

This is because the father does not endure even one-fourth of the distress and torture which the mother endures in giving birth to, and bringing up, the child.

Due respect to father and devoted service to mother

The learned divines have advised that if one has to give a gift or present to one's parents, the mother deserves a greater share of it. They have also differentiated between respect and devoted service. In the matter of respect the father has preference over the mohter, but in the matter of kindness and devoted service, the mother has preference over the father which is estimated at the ratio of three to one for mother and father.

Almighty Allah has, in His wisdom, made it a natural tendency that the children are more informal and free with the mother. There are many things which a son can tell his mother freely without any hesitation but he cannot tell the same to his father. The Islamic Shari'ah has kept this natural tendency in view. Hafiz Ibn Hajar رحمة الله علیه has mentioned in the Fathul-Bari, the principle stated by the divines that sons/daughters should accord more respect to their fathers, but more kindness and service to their mothers. This principle reconciles the varying versions of the Ahadith to one another.

The result and reward of service to mothers

Kindness shown and service rendered to a mother are virutes which elevate a man to unknown heights of excellence and honour as we have seen in the case of Hazrat Owais Qarni رضی الله عنه. The same achievements have been stated in books by the learned divines. It is stated about Imam Ghazali رحمة الله علیه that he could not devote himself to learning and education for a long time on account of his devotion and service to his mother. When he was relieved of his service to his mother, Allah granted him a very high position in the field of learning, piety and knowledge. One should, therefore, avail oneself of this great virtue.

So go and do good to them

وعن عبد الله بن عمرو بن العاص رضى الله عنهما قال اقبل رجل الى نبى الله صلى الله عليه وسلم فقال ابايعك على الهجرة والجهاد ابتغى الاجر من الله تعالى فقال هل من والد يك احد حى قال بل كلا هما قال فتبتغى الا جرمن الله تعالى؟ قال نعم قال فارجع الى والديك فاحسن صحبتهما (مسند احمد: ج ٥ ص ٣٦٨)

This is narrated by Hazrat Abdullah bin Amr bin Al-'as رضى الله عنهما who said: One day a man called on the Holy Prophet ﷺ and siad: O Prophet of Allah! I have come to you to swear allegiance on two points. The first is Hijrat (migration) and the second is Jihad for the sake of reward. (That is I want to leave my home and migrate to Madinah and take part with you in Jihad). The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked him if any of his parents was alive: He replied: Yes, both of them are alive. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said to him: Do you really desire return and reward? He replied in the affirmative. The Holy Prophet ﷺ then said: Instead of taking part with me in Jihad, go back to your parents and do good to them.

Go and make your parents laugh

Just see how in this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has advised to sacrifice the excellence and virtue of Jihad with him ﷺ for doing good and being kind to parents, and sent the man back. It occurs in a narrative that once the Muslims were preparing for Jihad. A man called on the Holy Prophet ﷺ and offered to take part in the Jihad, adding that he was so fond of Jihad that he left his parents weeping, because of his separation. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said to him.

ارجع فاضحكهما كما ابكيتهما (مسند احمد: ج ٢ ص ٢٠٤)

That is:

go back to them to pelase them and make them laugh as you left them sad and weeping.

You are not allowed to take part with me in Jihad.

Deen (Faith) is the name of abiding by limits

Our Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say that Deen is the name of abiding by and maintaining the prescribed limits. It is no Deen to rush to Jihad on hearing its reward and virtue, leaving behind all other demands of Deen. In the matter of Deen actions have to be taken with due regard to the injunctions of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. My father, Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say that nowadays the people have become one sided. They doggedly pursue only one aspect of a matter, ignoring all other aspects, like a single-bridled horse that can go only in one direction. When they come to knew the virtue of some act they run after it, leaving behind all other acts that are more pressing and compulsory. This is transgressing the prescribed limits.

Company of Godly men

This virute of abiding by and protecting the limits is not generally attainable, unless one finds the company of some Godly man. I have said and you have heard something about this virtue and you may read lessons about it in books. However, it is not possible without the company of an accomplished Shaikh to know what one should prefer and what one should ignore and on what occasions. Without the company of a Shaikh man remains entangled in excesses and shortages. It is he who can diagnose and prescribe for you the right path to follow.

When men came to Hazrat Maulana Ashraft Ali Thanwi Sahib رحمة الله عليه for spiritual reform, he would ask most of them to give up their wazaif (daily round of incantations) and engage them in other actions. He knew very well that if they followed their usual incantations (Wazaif) they would not maintain the limits.

Shari'at*, Sunnah and *Tariqat

Dr. Abdul Hai Sahibr رحمة الله عليه used to say that "rights" fall largely within the definition of Shari'ah. In other words, Shari'ah is the name of "rights" - the rights of Allah and of His servants. The "limits" are all Sunnah, i.e, it is the Sunnah from which we know the prescribed limits of each "rights". The protection and maintenance of the limits are in them entirely. "Tariqat" which is also called "Tasawwuf" and "Sulook". The limits which are proved by the Sunnah ae maintained by "Tasawwuf" and "sulook." In short, the "rights" come within the "Shari'ah", the limits, within the Sunnah and the maintenance and protection of the rights within the Tariqat. If these three degrees are attained nothing more is needed. However, generally these degrees are not attained unless man strives hard under the guidance and supervision of a divine Sheikh:

There is a Persian Couplet which means: give up speech and argumentation and become a man of spiritual ecstasy. Let yourself be humbled before an accomplished Shaikh for spiritual uplift.

This aim cannot be achieved, unless a man submits himself with due humiliation to the attention and training of a genuine Shaikh. Without this he will be drifting this direction and that direction and will be caught between extremes instead of following the golden mean. It is the Shaikh who will teach his disciples the demands of the times. May Allah help us all to follow the right course. Aameen!

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العلمين

BACKBITING
A GRIEVOUS SIN OF THE TONGUE

الحمدلله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهد ان لااله الاالله وحده لا شريك له ونشهد ان سيدنا وسندنا ونبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطٰن الرجيم بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

وَّلَا تَجَسَّسُوْا وَلَا يَغْتَبْ بَّعْضُكُمْ بَعْضًا ؕ اَيُحِبُّ اَحَدُكُمْ اَنْ يَّاْكُلَ لَحْمَ اَخِيْهِ مَيْتًا فَكَرِهْتُمُوْهُ ؕ وَاتَّقُوا اللّٰهَ ؕ اِنَّ اللّٰهَ تَوَّابٌ رَّحِيْمٌ (سورة الحجرات ١٢)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم وصدق رسوله النبى الكريم ونحن على ذلك من الشاهدين والشاكرين والحمد لله رب العالمين

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and forgiveness. We beleive in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our selves and the vices of our deeds. None can misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom He lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God except Allah, the One. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our Master, our Authority, our Prophet and our Sire, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah shower mercy on him, on his household on his Companions and may He bless them and salute them a great deal.

And do not spy, nor backbite one another. Would one of you love to eat the flesh of his dead brother which you would abhor (to eat)? And fear Allah. Allah is surely Relenting, Merciful. (49: 12)

Backbiting is a heinous sin

Imam Nuwa-wee رحمة الله عليه is beginning to deal with those sins which are committed by the tongue. First of all he has taken up that sin which has become very common among the people. That is the sin of "Backbiting". This is a calamity which has pervaded our assemblies and our society. No gathering, nor any dialogue is free from it. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has warned us of very severe punishment for it and Allah has used very threatening words which He has not used against any other sin. Thus, He has said:

وَلَا يَغْتَبْ بَّعْضُكُمْ بَعْضًا ۚ اَيُحِبُّ اَحَدُ كُمْ اَنْ يَّاْكُلَ لَحْمَ اَخِيْهِ مَيْتًا فَكَرِهْتُمُوْهُ ۚ (سورة الحجرات ١٢)

That is:

Do not backbite one another. Would one of you love to eat the flesh of his dead brother which you would abhor (to eat)? When you will not like to eat the flesh of your dead brother, then do not backbite your brother; this is a sin equally abhorrent. (49 : 12)

Just think how many calamities of backbiting have been mentioned in this verse, viz, (1) to become a man-eater (2) the man eaten is your own brother (3) and he is not alive, but he is dead. So heinous, abhorrent and dangerous is the sin of backbiting.

Definition of "Backbiting"

"Backbiting means speaking ill of a man in his absence, irrespective of that the ill spoken of is found or not found in the man concerned. It is backbiting to speak of an ill in the absence of the person even though he may be actually involved in that ill. It occurs in a Hadith that a companion رضى الله عنه begged the Holy Prophet ﷺ to define 'Backbiting'. He ﷺ replied saying:

ذكرك اخاك بما يكره

To tell something about your brother in his absence which he would dislike to hear.

That companion again asked:

ان كان فى اخى ماقول

Even if what I say about my brother is found in him? The Holy Prophet ﷺ explained to the companion رضى الله عنه that if the evil or defect is presnent in the person concerned, it is "Backbiting". If the evil or defect is not found in him and it is being falsely attributed to him, it is not "Backbiting", but it is slander which is a double sin.

(Abu Dawood Book of Adab, Ch. on Backbiting, Hadith No: 4874)

Now turn a glance at our assemblies, gatherings and parties; how common this heinous sin has become and is being committed day and night! May Allah protect us all from this. Aameen.

In order to justify this sin some people say: I am not backbiting him; I can say this on his face. According to them if they can speak ill on the face of a person then it is not "Backbiting" if they are speaking the same ill in the absence of the person conerned. Bear in mind that it is "Backbiting", if you speak ill of a person in his absence which the man would dislike to hear then you can speak that ill even on his face has no relevance to the issue and cannot change the definition of Backbiting given by the Holy Prophet ﷺ. "Backbiting" is also major sin.

Backbiting is a Major Sin

Backbiting is a major sin like drinking wine, committing dacoity, adultery etc. There is no difference between these sins, Backbiting and these sins are major sins and are forbidden totally. Backbiting being a violation of the rights of the servants of Allah, is more heinous than the other major sins. The sin of Backbiting cannot be pardoned, unless the person against whom this sin is committed pardons it. Other major sins are pardoned through sincere repentance, but not backbiting. All are, threfore, advised neither to commit the sin of Backbiting nor listen to it. Also try to change the topic of the talk, if Backbiting is going on in an assembly of men. If you do not succeed in changing the topic of the talk, leave the assembly at once. As already mentioned, committing the sin of "Backbiting" and listening to "Backbiting" are both unlawful and forbidden (Haram).

Let them tear their faces

عن انس بن مالك رضى الله تعالى عنه قال قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم لما عرج بى مررت بقوم لهم اظفار من نحاس يخمشون بها وجوههم وصدورهم فقلت! من هؤلاء ياجبريل؟ قال هؤلاء الذين يأكلون لحوم الناس ويقعون فى اعراضهم (ابو داؤد، كتاب الادب، باب فى الغيبة، حديث نمبر ٤٨٧٨)

Hazrat Anas bin Malik رضی اللہ عنہ was a favourite servant of the Holy Prophet ﷺ who swerved him ﷺ for ten years. He رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: In the night during Ascension in which I was taken up I passed by people who were tearing their faces with their nails. I asked Hazrat Jibrael علیہ السلام to tell me who they were. He replied saying: They are people who used to eat other people's flesh and cast slur on the honour of others.

Backbiting is worse than adultery

The Holy Prophet ﷺ explained the heinousness of the sin to the companions رضی اللہ عنہم in various ways. We should also keep in view all those aspects, so as to implant on our hearts their vices. May Almighty Allah save us from this grievous sin. You see in this Hadith how the sinners will be tearing their faces with their own nails. There is another Hadith which is not so authentic in point of its authority but is quite plausible in point of its meaning. In this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ is narrated to have said: The sin of Backbiting is more henious than the sin of adultery. The sin of adultery is pardonable when the sinner repents and expresses regret and remorse. As for the sin of "Backbiting" and slander, it cannot be pardoned unless the person who was subjected to Backbiting and slander is prepared to pardon it and that is a very difficult matter, indeed.

The Backbiter will be prevented from entering Paradise

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith that those addicted to Backbiting will be people having to their credit apparently very nice deeds in the form of prayers, fasting and other forms of worship. While passing through the "Pul-sirat" (a bridge over Hell), those entitled to Paradise will pass through it safely and enter Paradise. Those who are condemned to Hell will be pulled down to Hell. As for the Backbiter, he will be stopped from passing through the bridge. He will be told that he cannot go ahead unless he gets his sin of Backbiting pardoned by those against whom he had committed the sin.

Backbiting is the worst form of Usury

In a Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has gone to the extent of saying that Usury is a very heinous sin. In fact it is a combination of many sins. The least of these is like committing adultery with one's own mother - God-forbid! No threat of punishment is as severe as the punishment for Usury. Thereafter the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: The worst form of Usury is to slander the honour of a Muslim brother. How severe and dangerous is this threat! (Abu Dawood ..... Hadith No: 4876)

Backbiting is like eating the flesh of a dead brother

It occurs in a narrative that there were two women during the Prophet's time. They observed fast and during fasting they became busy with conversation which involved them, as is usual in the sin of Backbiting. In the meantime a companion رضی اللہ عنہ called on the Holy Prophet ﷺ and informed him, saying: Two women are fasting, but their condition has become so hopeless that they are almost dying. Perhpas the Holy Prophet ﷺ had come to know about them through Wahi (revelation). He ﷺ ordered these women to be brought to him. When the women were brought to the Holy Prophet ﷺ, he saw them in a very hopeless condition. He sent for a big cup and asked one of the women to vomit into it. During vomitting it was seen that pus, blood and pieces of flesh came out from her stomach. The other woman was also asked to vomit into the cup. She also vomitted pus, blood and pieces of flesh with which the cup became full. The Holy Prophet ﷺ then said: This is the pus, blood and flesh of those your brothers and sisters which you had eaten during your fasting.

During fasting you refrained from lawful food and drink but you did not refrain from unlawful food, i.e. the blood and flesh of your Muslim brothers and sisters. As a result, these nauseating things filled your stomachs and you both reached this hopeless state. Never backbite anyone again. Here Almighty Allah showed the curse of this heinous sin in its visible and real form.

The truth is that we have lost good sense and have bcome insensitive, so we are unable to realize the heinousness of such sins. Those who possess the right sense and the fine feelings can observe the hidden curses of these sins.

A dream full of admonition

A man named Rub'ee relates that once he went to an assembly of men and sat with them. They were having conversation with one another. During this they began to backbite someone. To avoid becoming a party to the backbiting the man, following the injunction of the Shari'ah, left the assembly. Thinking that backbiting would have stopped he again went to the assembly. After a few minutes backbiting again started. This time not only did the man not leave the assembly, but he also said a few words by way of backbiting.

When the man left the assembly went home and slept during that night he saw in a dream a very black man who had brought with him some meat in a very large tray. He found that the flesh was pork. The black man asked the man to eat it. The man, being a Muslim, refused to eat pork. The black man insisted on the other man to eat that pork and began to thrust it into the man's mouth by force. In this very horrifying condition the man awoke from sleep. Shortly after this when the man was taking his meal at meal time he felt in the food the foul-smelling and a nauseating taste of pork. He felt this foul smell and disgusting taste for thirty days. By this event Allah warned the man against the curse of taking part in Backbiting. May Allah save us all from this curse.

The Darkness of eating forbidden (Haram) things

The fact is that on account of the worsening of the environment altogether, we have become insensitive and we do not feel that a sin is sin. Hazrat Maulana Muhammad Yaqoob Sahib Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه often related an incident with him. He said that once he ate in a feast one or two morsels from food the lawfulness and purity of which was doubtful. He felt the darkness of these morsels in his heart for many months. This had the effect of creating in him desires to commit sins.

Sins also have the effect of creating in the heart darkness which in turn, urges the sinner to commit sins after sins. This is very harmful indeed. May Allah save us from this.

The crux of the problem is that the sin of Backbiting is a very heinous and dangerous sin. This can be felt only by those whom Allah has granted the right sense to understand the reality of things.

Occasion on which Backbiting is allowed

It is necessary to understand clearly the definition of Backbiting which has already been given. It is to speak ill of a person in his absence in such a way that the man if he heard that, would dislike that, even if the ill attributed to the man is a truth. The Islamic Shari'ah has, however, granted an allowance to every matter, in consideration of the temparament and nature of man and his lawful needs. The Shari'ah has, therefore, excluded from "Backbiting" certain sins which apparently fall within the definition of "Backbiting".

To commit Backbiting to save someone from another's wickedness

Take an example. A man is doing something which is likely to harm another man. If in such a situation you inform the latter of the former's plan to save an Allah's servant from possible loss and harm, this is not "Backbiting". The Holy Prophet ﷺ has himself taught this rule. Hazrat Ayeshah رضى الله عنها has narrated that once she was sitting with the Holy Prophet ﷺ and a man was seen coming to them. While the man was yet in the way, the Holy Prophet ﷺ pointed out to him and told Hazrat Ayeshah رضى الله عنها:

بئس اخو العشيرة

That is:This man is the worst of his tribe.

Hearing this Hazrat Ayeshah رضى الله عنها became alert, lest that bad man should do some harm. When the man came near and sat in the assembly, the Holy Prophet ﷺ spoke to the man according to his habit polite words. When the man went away, Hazrat Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا said to the Holy Prophet ﷺ: O Prophet of Allah! you said that this is a bad man, but when came and sat near you, you talked to him very mildly and politely. What is the matter? The Holy Prophet ﷺ replied, saying: Look, he is the worst man of his tribe. He is wicked by his very nature. If he is not treated politely he may create confusion and corruption. That is why I talked to him politely according to my habit(Tirmizi ..... Hadith No: 1996)

The learned Ulama have explained the meaning of this Hadith in this way. The Holy Prophet ﷺ fore-warned Hazrat Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا that the man was wicked. This fore-warning is apparently a case of "Backbiting", because this ill comment was made in the man's absence. This apparent Backbiting is, however, lawful, because His ﷺ intention was to warn Hazrat Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا to beware of the wickedness of that person. It is, therefore, not Backbiting to warn someone against the wickedness of a wicked person in the latters absence.

If the life of a person is in danger

In certain situations it is compulsory to mention the wickedness of a wicked person. For example, you have come to know that a man is planning to attack and kill another person. In such a situation it becomes obligatory for you to tell the other person that an enemy is planning to kill him and his life is in grave danger, so the person in danger may take necessary measures to save himself from the murderer. So, on such occasions Backbiting is not a sin; it is lawful.

To backbite a person who commits a sin openly and above board

There is a Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ which the people generally do not interpret correctly. The words of the Hadith are:

لاغيبةَ لِفاسقٍ ولا مُجاهرٍ

People interpret this Hadith to mean that if a person is committing a major sin, it is allowed to backbite him. Likewise it is allowed to backbite one who is committing "Bid'aat" (Innovations in Deen). This interpretation is not correct. The correct meaning of the Hadith is that if a man is committing sins openly and himself feels no shame in his sins, it is no sin of backbiting in talking about his sins. For example, a man drinks wine openly and he will feel no shame pinching at all if you say to anyone in his absence that he is a drunkard. So, it is not backbiting to talk to others in his absence about his drinking.

This too is included in the sin of Backbiting

If a man is drinking wine and earning money by usury openly it is not backbiting to talk about these sins in his absence. On the other hand if there is a sin which the same person commits secretly and the sin is such as does not harm others, it will be backbiting to talk about this sin to others in the absence of the sinner. This is the correct interpretation of this Hadith.

The Backbiting of a sinner and wrongdoer is not lawful

Hazrat Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has said that Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضی اللہ عنہ, was pesent in an assembly. In this asembly someone began to speak ill of Hajjaj bin Yusuf. Hazrat Abdullah bin 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ objected to this and said that it was backbiting and warned that backbiting Hajjaj bin Yusuf had not become lawful, because he was responsible for murdering many persons. When Almighty Allah shall call to account Hajjaj bin Yusuf for the murders committed by him, He shall also call to account to man who is backbiting him. May Allah save us from this.

Thus, we should not think that as such a person is a sinner, wrongdoer or a Bid'ati (Innovator), so we are free to backbite him. No, we are under obligation not to backbite him.

It is not Backbiting to speak ill of a tyrant

The Islamic Shari'ah has allowed backbiting on another occasion. For example, a tyrant commits tyranny on you. If you mention the case of this tyranny on you to others, this is no sin and no backbiting, whether or not those to whom you are complaining against the tyrant are able to redress the wrong done to you. For example someone has stolen something from your house and you lodge a report against him with the nearest Police Station and nominate the thief in your report. This is not backbiting, even when you report against the thief to the Police in his absence, because you have been wronged and you have protested against that wrong.

If you mention this case of theft to such people as have called upon you to express sympathy with you but have no authority to help you against the thief, even then it is not backbiting.

Now see how the Islamic Shari'ah has taken into consideration the trends of human nature. If some wrong is done to a man and he suffers some loss, he tries to lighten his grief by telling the details of his loss to others and consoles himself in this way. This involves no backbiting whether those who are informed of this loss have or have not any authority and say in the matter

لَا يُحِبُّ اللّٰهُ الْجَهْرَ بِالسُّوْٓءِ مِنَ الْقَوْلِ اِلَّا مَنْ ظُلِمَ ۭ (سورۃ نساء: ۱۴۸)

Almighty Allah does not like that men should talk about a vice (sin) freely and openly, except that a man who has been wronged has permission to tell others the wrong and excesses done to him by a wrongdoer. This is lawful and is not included in backbiting. These are, however, exceptional cases which Almigty Allah has excluded from the sin of backbiting. We are addicted in our meetings and assemblies to indulge in talks about others' faults and shortcomings as a pastime and source of recreation. This is all backbiting. We should all try to feel pity on ourselves and stop this practice by excercising check on our tongues. May Allah save us all from this curse.

Resolution and courage are needed to give up the sin of Backbiting

I have said and you have heard my discourse about Backbiting, but this is not enough to eradicate the sin. Resolution, firm decision and courage are needed to resist the temptation of backbiting. Just resolve that from today onwards no word of backbiting will God willing, escape from this tongue. If you relapse into the evil by mistake, repent for it at once. A better and more effective remedy is to crave pardon of the person whom you have backbitten. It looks difficult to do so but there are men who follow this course for fear of Allah.

The Remedy for getting rid of Backbiting

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has said that some men called on him confessing that they had backbitten him and for this they begged his pardon. Maulana's reply to such men was: I shall pardon you on the condition that you tell me the point on which you had backbitten me, so that I may know what the people say behind my back.

کہتی ہے تجھے خلق خدا غائبانہ کیا

What do the people say about you in your absence?

The Maulana's motive in imposing this condition was to know the ills of which the people spoke of him,so that he would try to purify himself from those ills or defects, if they were really found in him.

If you unfortunately ever commit the sin of backbiting, the remedy is to confess the sin before the person backbitten and beg him to pardon you. The pill is indeed very bitter and hard to swallow but if swallowed three or four times it will bring cure from the evil of backbiting. Haazrat Hasan Basri رحمة الله عليه has suggested another remedy for this evil. When tempted to speak ill of a person, the man should at once think of his own faults and shortcomings and that no man is free from defects and weaknesses in this world. The man should search for his own vices instead of prying into others. He should also remember the severe punishment for backbiting mentioned above. He should also pray to Allah from the core of his heart to protect him from this major sin. When a man happens to be in an assembly and the talk seems to turn to backbiting he should at once seek refuge with Allah from this evil.

Expiation for Backbiting

There are some narratives on this subject which are weak in authority but quite right in their meaning. They suggest that if unfortunately anyone commits this sin of backbiting and it is not possible to seek the victim's pardon personally on account of death or some other cause, the backbiter should pray for the victims of his backbiting that Allah may have mercy on them and forgive him for his sin of backbiting.

How to compensate the outstanding rights and dues of others

The measures taken in this behalf by Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه and my respected father, Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi رحمة الله عليه was that each of them sent a circular letter to all, seeking, for the sake of Allah, their pardon of what excesses and wrongs he might have committed against them during his life Each expected that the people would be generous in accepting his request for pardon.

As regards such victims of backbiting as are no more alive or are not easily accessible for some reason, the measure suggested by Hazrat Hassan Basri رحمة الله عليه, mentioned above should be taken. It consists in praying heartily to Allah for the salvation and elevation of the rank of those who have been backbitten. This too is a way of compensation.

If we too follow this meausre of addressing circular letters to our friends, relatives and acquaintances seeking their pardon, this does not involve any insult or disgrace for us. It is not unlikely that in this way Merciful Allah may procure pardon for us from the curse of this heinous sin that is Backbiting.

The Excellence of seeking and offering pardon for sins

It occurs in a Hadith that if a servant of Allah sincerely begs someone's pardon and the latter, feeling the former's sincerity and entreaty grants him pardon, Allah is very much pleased with the person who grants pardon. Almighty Allah will grant His pardon to this man on a day when he will be in a most pressing need of pardon. On the other hand there is a callous fellow who refuses to grant pardon to a person who is begging pardon with persistent entreaty. About such a callous person Almighty Allah has said that He shall not grant him pardon on a day when he will be in a most pressing need of pardon.

This is indeed a very serious issue. If a man has begged another man with submission and humbleness to grant him pardon, he has done his duty, whether the other man grants or does not grant him pardon. It is necessary that we should always be prepared to seek pardon of persons whose rights and dues we have failed to discharge.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has himself sought pardon

It is narrated that one day the Holy Prophet ﷺ stood up in the Prophet's Mosque and addressed all the companions رضی اللہ عنہم present there, saying:

Today I am surrendering myself to you. If anyone has received some hurt from me or if I have usurped any body's right in his money or life. I am present here before you. If you like you may take revenge on me or if you like you may pardon me, so that tomorrow on the Day of Judgment none of you may have his right or claim outstanding against me. When this is the attitude of the Holy Prophet ﷺ with regard to others' rights where do we stand?

Think a bit! The greatest benefactor and leader of the world is a personality for the addition of only one breath to whose sacred life the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم were ready to sacrifice their lives. Even He ﷺ is saying: If I have beaten or caused distress to anyone he may take revenge from me. At this offer a Companion stood up, saying: O Prophet of Allah! Once you had beaten me on my waist and I want its revenge. Without expressing any displeasure the Holy Prophet ﷺ allowed the companion رضی اللہ عنہ to take revenge by beating him on the waist. When the companion رضی اللہ عنہ came behind the Propeht's waist he said: O Prophet of Allah, when you had beaten me my waist was bare, while your waist is covered with cloth. If I take revenge in this condition the revenge will not be complete. The Holy Prophet ﷺ had at the time a cloth sheet on his body. He offered to remove the sheet from his waist. No sooner did the Holy Prophet ﷺ bare his waist than the companion رضی اللہ عنہ advanced and kissed the seal of Prophethood on the Prophet's back. At this scene the companion said: O Prophet of Allah, I committed this audacity only to get an opportunity to kiss the seal, Kindly pardon my audacity.(Majm'uz-zawaid, vol. 9, P-27)

Thus, did the Holy Prophet ﷺ offer himself for revenge. Where do we stand? If we too follow the plan of issuing circular letters to friends, relatives and acquaintances, asking them for pardon, we lose nothing,but may possible gain pardon and Allah may grant us success by virtue of the Prophet's Sunnah. May Allah help us all to act upon this strategy.

A Golden Principle of Islam

There is a golden principle of Islam which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us. It is that you should desire the same for others which you desire for yourself and conversely, you should dislike the same for others which you dislike for yourself. Now consider how you would feel if anyone spoke ill of you in your absence. If you would not appreciate this situation for yourself how would you appreciate it for your brother? To follow double standard of dealings is nothing but hypocrisy, as if backbiting contains a shade of hypocrisy as well. If you think over these aspects and the severe punishment ordained for backbiting, you will, God willing, be relieved of this sin gradually.

An easy way of getting rid of Backbiting

Hakimul-Ummat Maulana Ashraft Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه used to say that an easy way of refraining from backbiting is that one should avoid speaking anything good or bad about others. When you are praising anyone and are thinking that you are not speaking ill of anyone, this cunning Satan will cleverly insinuate during your praise something that will become backbiting by introducing the word "But -". This will convert praise into backbiting. So the Maulana has advised that we should shun talking about others- neither good nor bad. If you are ever forced by circumstances to praise anyone, then beware of Satan's insinuation.

Have an eye on Your own vices

Why do you worry about others' short-comings? Look into your own defects and faults, because you will not be called to account for others' faults. You have to account for your own deeds and take the consequences in the form of reward or punishment.

You have nothing to do with the sins and vices of others. Look at your ownself. When a man is aware of one's own defects and shortcomings he does not worry about the defects and faults of others. The late famous royal poet, late Bahadur Shah Zafar رحمة الله عليه has composed very nice couplets on this topic in Urdu :

تھے جب اپنی برائیوں سے بے خبر
رہے ڈھونڈتے اوروں کے عیب و ہنر

پڑی اپنی برائی پر جو نظر
تو نگاہ میں کوئی برا نہ رہا

(When I was unaware of my own vices, I used to search for the bad and good aspects of others. The moment I looked at my own vices, I found that there was none worse than I).

May Allah help us to look into our hearts to find our own defects Amen. The main cause of this corruption is that we do not look into our own selves. We are busy speaking ill of others totally forgetting that we have at last to go into our graves and account for our deeds, good or bad, before Almighty Allah. Let us, for God's sake, try to get rid of this vice.

Change the trend of the talk

This is a difficult work indeed, in the condition and the society we are passing by. Still if it had been impossible for man to shun this vice, i.e., Backbiting, Allah would not have made it unlawful so, it is within the power of man to save himself from this sin. When you are in an assembly and feel that the topic of the talk is drifting towards backbiting, try to bring it back. If you are ever involved in this sin, seek Allah's pardon and renew your resolve to refrain from it in future.

"Backbiting" is the root of all vices

Bear in mind that this "Backbiting" is the root cause of many evils like quarrels, mutual differences and mistrust, etc. The sin of Backbiting is to a large extent responsible for the deterioration and corruption so rampant in our society. A drunkard is generally looked down-upon in the society. The addict will himself feel the vice of the sin in his heart. As regards "Backbiting" neither the addict nor the people around him feel the vices inherent in it. They hardly feel that it is a grievous sin; even though both the sins are equal in severity and punishment. If you hate one you should also hate the other. So let your hearts feel the gravity of Backbiting.

To commit Backbiting through hints and signs

Once the mother of the believers, Hazrat Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا was present before the Holy Prophet ﷺ. By chance a mention of the mother of the believers, Hazrat Safiah رضی اللہ عنہا was made. She was of short stature. As a natural trend of human nature there is some feeling of jelousy among co-wives. While mentioning her name, Hazrat Ayesha رضی اللہ عنہا hinted at her short stature with the help of her hand, although she said nothing with her tongue. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said to Hazrat Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا: Today you have done a deed so vicious that if the foul smell and poison of this deed are thrown into the sea, it will turn the entire sea foul-smelling and poisonous. See how the Holy Prophet ﷺ condemned the sin of Backbiting even when it was committed not with the tongue but only by a sign made by the hand. He ﷺ is also reported to have said that even if he was granted the entire wealth of the world, he would not mimic anyone in order to make fun of him and disparage him. (Tirmizi.....Hadith No: 2624)

Take care to refrain from Backbiting

To mimic anyone has now become a branch of the fine arts. The man who can mimic others nicely deserves admiration. However, see how the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that he would not mimic anyone even if he ﷺ was given the wealth of the entire world. You can now easily realize how seriously he has warned his Ummah against such frivolities. We fail to understand why the people hate drinking of wine and adultery but do not hate 'Backbiting', although no assembly is free from this vice. This needs to be shuned.

How to refrain from Backbiting

The method to keep yourself away from this sin is to bear in mind well the vice of this sin, then pray to Allah to protect you from this and then make a firm resolution to Allah that you would never, never commit this sin. Remember that you cannot abide by your resolution without Allah's assistance. Do not delay, but make this resolution and seek Allah's help just now.

Make a Resolution to refrain from Backbiting

Firm resolution is needed for every work. Nothing can be done in this world without this resolution. On the other hand, there is Satan to cause delay in the execution of every good deed by suggesting various plausible excuses for delay. So if the idea of doing a good deed occurs to your mind do it at once, rejecting Satan's insinuations.

It is a natural urge in man to feel anxious and worried to acquire a job when he is unemployed, to pay off his creditors if he is in debts and to seek recovery if he is sick. Why then do we not feel worried when we are not able to free ourselves from this dangerous sin of Backbiting? Let an anxiety be aroused in your heart in this behalf. Offer two rakats of Salat-e-Hajat (prayer for the grant of a boon), and request Allah most submissively to save you from this evil. After this prayer take a resolution to give up this sin and impose on yourself a ban never to speak ill of anyone in future.

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has advised that if this does not help you, then impose a fine on yourself in money or in kind. For example, resolve that if you backbite anyone you will offer two Rakats of opitonal prayer or give as Sadaqah (charity) a given amount. It is hoped that by means of this self-imposed fine, the vice will be eradicated gradually. To get rid of this heinous sin one has to feel as anxious and concerned as one feels to recover from some serious illness. The disease of Backbiting is more deadly than any bodily illness, because it leads to Hell. It is necessary not only to save yourself but also to save your family, particularly the women who are more addicted to this sin. If the woman folk follow this advice and get rid of this sin, this will save the entire family from this curse. May Almighty Allah help us all to follow the right path. Aameen.

"Calumny" -a grievous sin

There is another equally grievous sin which resembles "Backbiting", it is rather more grievous. It is "Calumny". In the Arabic language it is called (Nameemah). In the Urdu language it has been translated as chugli, but it is not its correct translation. (Nameemah) is a sin in which the vice found (or not found) in a person is disclosed to another person with the desire that the listner may do some harm to the person to whom the vice is ascribed and the man committing the sin of "Nameemah" may derive pleasure from this nasty scheme. This is a kind of Backbiting in which the intention is to cause some harm to the victim.

"Calumny" is worse than Backbiting

The Qur'an and the Ahadith have very much condemned this sin and have declared that it is more heinous than Backbiting. This is becausae in Backbiting it is not necessary that the backbiter should also desire that some harm or calamity should befall the victim. Such ill-will is however, necessarily present in "Calumny." The sin of "Calumny" is therefore, a combination of two sins; the one being Backbiting itself and the other being the desire to cause some harm or injury to a Muslim. That is why the Qur'an and the Ahadith contain warnings of severe punishment for this sin. It has been said in the Holy Qur'an:

هَمَّازٍ مَّشَّآءٍۭ بِنَمِيمٍ (سورة القلم: ١١)

That is: A slanderer, going about with calumnies (68:11)

While giving the attributes of the infidels, Allah has said that they walk like one who slanders and indulges in calumny towards others. In a Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said:

لا يدخل الجنة قتات

The calumniator will not enter Paradise.

Two reasons for the torment of the grave

There is a well-known Hadith in which it is narrated that once the Holy Prophet ﷺ was going somewhere with the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم. On the way he ﷺ passed by two graves. Pointing out to them, He ﷺ said to the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم:

انهما ليعذبان

meaning that the inmates of the two graves are being subjected to punishment. Almighty Allah had disclosed to him ﷺ the punishment of the graves. In another Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that Allah has, by His infinite mercy, concealed from us the cries of the punishment of the graves. If men heard these cries none would remain alive out of terror, nor do any work in life. It is Allah's great mercy that He has concealed the cries of the inmates of the graves. Notwithstanding this sometime Allah discloses the cries of the graves to some of His servants by way of an exception. As for these two graves, the Holy Prophet ﷺ asked the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم if they knew why the two were being punished. Then He ﷺ said: They are being punished for two sins from which it was not difficult for them to save themselves. If they wished, they could easily save themselves from the punishment.

The two reasons for punishment are that one did not save himself from the sprinkles of urine. He used to pass urine at a place from where fine drops of urine flew and polluted body or clothes. In those days people tended their goats and camels and lived among them and could not save themselves from tiny urine drops.(Musnad Ahmad, Vol-V, P-49)

Beware of sprinkles of Urine

Praise to Allah that Islam has taught the etiquette of cleanliness to the Muslims in full details. However, today under the influence of western civilisation great care is taken of external cleanliness but no attention is paid to the rules of the Shara'ih cleanliness.. Latrines are so constructed that there is no protection from splashes of urine.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith:

استنزهوا عن البول فان عامة عذاب القبر فيه (سنن دار قطنی ج ۱ ص ۱۲۸)

Beware of pollution from urine, because punishment of the graves is genrally due to pollution of urine. Its splashes pollute the body and the clothes. Great care is needed to protect yourself from this.

Beware of "Calumny"

The other fellow of the grave was being punished because he used to culminiate others. The Holy Prophet ﷺ attributed the punishment of the grave to indulging in calumny, because the sin of calumny is more heinous than that of backbiting. In calumny the calumniator speaks ill of a person with the intention that the listener may be incited to harm the victim of the calumny.

It is Calumny to divulge a secret

Imam Ghazali رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has said that to divulge anothers' secret also comes within the definition of calumny. A man does not want that his secret should be divulged to others. For example, there is a rich man who wants to keep the amount of his wealth a secret, but another man some how finds out his secret and spreads it among others. This is calumny which is forbidden (Haram).

Take another example. A man chalks out a plan about his household, which you have come to know some how and are now spreading it among others. This also is "calumny". Likewise it is calumny to divulge someone's secret to others without his permission. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in another Hadith:

المجالس بالامانة

Whatever is said and heard in the assemblies is a trust. (Abu Dawood..... Hadith No: 4869)

Whatever is said and heard in the assemblies is a trust. For example, taking you to be a reliable person someone confides to you his secret, but you are disclosing that secret to others. This is also the betrayal of a trust and comes within the definition of backbiting.

Two serious sins of the Tongue

Today I want to mention two serious sins of the tongue. Both these sins are very grievous and dangerous. You have heard about their severity and grievousness in the Ahadith. It is regretful that the people are as unmindful and careless of these sins as the sins are dangerous and severe in punishment. These are being committed freely and with pleasure in every assembly, home and meeting without the slightest hitch. For Gods' sake control your tongue and use it according to the injunctions of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. The sins are so devastating that homes and families are being disintegrated and broken, mutual enmity is being spread unchecked and Allah knows how many other vices are being nurtured by the curse of these sins in this world. The curse of these sins in the Hereafter are beyond man's imagination. May Allah, by His mercy, make us feel and understand the enormity and viciousness of these sins and ever keep us away from them. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العلمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi.

Date : Friday 21st February, 1992
After 'Asr Prayers.

ETIQUETTES OF SLEEPING

الحمدلله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهدان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له واشهدان سيدنا وسندنا ونبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطٰن الرجيم بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

عن البراء بن عازب رضى الله عنهما قال كان رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم اذا اوىٰ الى فراشه نام على شقه الايمن ثم قال اللهم اسلمت نفسى اليك ووجهت وجهى اليك و فوضت امرى اليك والجات ظهرى اليك رغبة ورهبة اليك لا ملجأ ولا منجأ منك الا اليك امنت بكتا بك

الذی انزلت وبنیك الذی ارسلت (صحیح بخاری، کتاب الدعوات، باب مایقول اذا نام)
قال قال لی رسول الله صلی الله علیه وسلم اذااتیت مضجعك فتوضا
وضوء ك للصلاة ثم اضطجع علی شقك الایمن وقل"وذکر نحوه"
(حوالہ سابقہ)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and forgiveness. We beleive in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our selves and the vices of our deeds. None can misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom He lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God except Allah, the One. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our Master, our Authority, our Prophet and our Sire, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah shower mercy on him, on his household on his Companions رضی الله عنهم and may He bless them and salute them a great deal.

A long Du'a (supplication) for reciting at bed-time

In this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us a Du'a (supplication) and the style of sleeping. See the kindness and sympathy of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that he has taught every thing concerning our life, just as a kind father teaches every thing to his innocent son. There is another Hadith narrated by the same Companion رضی الله عنه:-

Perform Ablution before going to bed

Hazrat Bara'a bin 'Azib رضی الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said to him: while going to bed for sleeping, perform ablution in the same way as you do for prayers. This is also a sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that man should go to bed after having performed ablution. Ablution is not compulsory for going to bed, yet the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us the etiquette of going to bed for sleeping that one should be in ablution.

The rules of Etiquette are dictated by love

The rules of etiquette which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has very kindly taught us are neither compulsory nor obligatory, yet they possess in them great spiritual lights. Our respected Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله علیه used to say that these compulsory and obligatory duties have been prescribed because they represent a right of Almighty Allah by virtue of His Greatness. As for such rules of etiquette as are only optional and desirable, they too represent a right of Almighty Allah by virtue of our love for Him and for the Holy Prophet ﷺ. All men should, therefore, adopt and act upon these rules. It is indeed a great mercy of Allah that He has not imposed them upon us as obligatory duties, but has left them to our option and choice. Even so, it is the duty of a good believer to observe as far as possible all these rules of etiquette which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us in his sunnah.

When going to sleep lie down on the right side

It is a rule of etiquette to perform ablution before going to bed. None knows the wisdom and benefit concealed in the injunctions of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. Who can imagine the extent of spiritual lights and blessings with which these acts stand charged? It is also a rule of etiquette that a man should first lie on his right side and may, if necessary, change sides later on. While falling into sleep, establish contact with Allah and turn to Him by reciting the following beautiful words:

اللهم اسلمت نفسی الیك ووجهت وجهی الیك و فوضت امری الیك

والجات ظهری الیك رغبة ورهبة الیك لا ملجأ ولا منجأ منك الا الیك

امنت بكتا بك الذی انزلت وبنبیك الذی ارسلت

Entrust to Allah all the affairs of the day

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has used in this Du'a (supplication) so beautiful words that man may sacrifice himself for thier beauty and efficacy. He ﷺ has thus said: O Allah: I have surrendered myself to You; and have entrusted all my affairs to You; and have found support for my back with You out of longing for, and fear of You. There is no shelter and no place of safety from You but in You. I believe in the Book which You have sent down and the Prophet You have commissioned.

It is to say that man remains bsuy all day long, searching for livelihood, employment, trade or industry or similar other affairs until the day ends and he returns home to pass the night in his bed. It is man's natural tendency to review in his mind at the time of sleeping all his hopes and fears and anxieties about his property and business and other problems about the next day. How nice and befitting it is to turn to Almighty, All-Powerful, Allah and entrust to Him all your affairs, seeking His help and assistance and thus banishing from your mind all fears and worries!

"Tafweez" (Entrusting) brings peace and comforts

This "Tafweez" (Entrusting) implies reliance on Allah. After having done his best to achieve some thing man entrusts the matter to Allah for final disposal. In the Du'a mentioned above the Holy Prophet ﷺ has advised us to banish from our minds all anxieties and surrender everything to All-Powerful Allah.

سپردم با تو مایۂ خویش را

تو دانی حساب کم و بیش را

This is a Persian couplet which bring out the same meaning. It says: I entrust to Your care all my resources. You alone know what is less and what is more. Man cannot appreciate the state of this surrender and entrusting, unless he passes this state to experience it personally. Remember well that none in this world can attain safety, satisfaction, peace and tranquillity without surrender to and dependence on Allah.

There is a limit to human exertion and effort in every field. After having done his best man should leave his case to Allah for disposal. This is the difference between a Muslim and an unbeliever. The unbeliever exerts himself day and night to attain something and depends for success on his efforts and enedeavours. As a result he always remains worried and dejected. As regards a Muslim who has been granted the qualities of "Entrusting" and reliance on Allah, leaves the matter to his Allah for final disposal after having done his best to attain his goal. This leaves him free from anxiety and fear. That is why you are being advised to recite this Du'a whereby you surrender yourself and entrust your affairs to Allah.

There is only one place of refuge

Next it has been said:

والجات ظهرى اليك رغبة ورهبة اليك لا ملجأ ولا منجأ منك الا اليك

That is, I have totally taken refuge with Allah and cut myself off from all the worldly means and resources. No source of assistance except that of Allah is available for me. I have hope in Allah for mercy and fear Him for His wrath and revenge. On account of my sins. Next occurs in the Du'a a very wonderful sentence, viz.

لا ملجا ولامنجا منك الا اليك

This means:

There is no place of refuge from you except your place. I cannot look for protection to anyone other than you.

To protect yourself from the arrow take your seat by the side of the archer

Suppose that there is a great power with a bow in its hand. This bow is made of the entire sky and the entire earth is its string. The accidents and the calamities are, as it were, the arrows shot from this bow. Now the only shelter from the flying volley of arrows is that the man seeking protection should stand or sit by the side of the Archer, that is Allah Himself in this example. This is the interpretation of the words.

لا ملجأ ولامنجأ منك الا اليك

Learn a lesson from an innocent child

My elder brother has a grandson. One day he saw that the child's mother was beating him for some reason. He saw a strange scene. The more the mother beat the child, the more tenaciously the child lept into and clung to the mother's lap, instead of running away from her. Why did the child do so? He did so, because he knew that the protection from the mother's beating was also available with the mother and with none else. Look! An innocent little child knows this reality.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ desires to create in us the same sense and understanding, viz., if some distress or calamity comes from Almighty Allah, the way of protection from it also lies with Allah. Seek that refuge and protection from Allah alone, as it can be found with none else.

You shall enter Paradise direct

He ﷺ said furhter:

امنت بكتا بك الذى انزلت وبنبيك الذى ارسلت

That is: I believe in the Book which You have sent down and in the Prophet Muhammad ﷺ whom You have commissioned. (He ﷺ has emphasized that these should be the last words on your tongue, when falling into sleep.

Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه advised some acts to be done at the time of going to sleep:-

Repent for all the sins committed durig the day, rather committed during the past life. Perform ablution. Recite the Du'a mentioned above in which there is refreshment of Eeman (belief). Lie on the right side.

By doing these acts the entire sleep becomes worship. If anyone dies in this conditin, he will, God willing, enter Paradise without any let or hinderance.

A brief Du'a before going to bed

وعن حذيفة رضى الله تعالى عنه قال كان النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم اذا اخذ مضجعه من الليل وضع يده تحت خده ثم يقول:" اللهم باسمك

اموت واحيا"واذا استيقظ قال:" الحمد لله الذى احيا نابعد ما اما تنا واليه النشور" (صحيح بخارى، كتاب الدعوات، باب مايقول اذا نام)

Hazrat Huzaifah رضى الله عنه has narrated that at the time of going to bed at night the Holy Prophet ﷺ placed his hand under his cheek and thereafter recited this Du'a: "اللهم باسمك اموت واحيا" O Allah I live and die with your name. (Sahih Bukhari. Book of Da'wat, for sleeping)

Sleep is minor Death

The Du'a which occured in the earlier Hadith is long. In this Hadith it is brief. However it is proved that both the Du'as are recited at bed-time. It is, therefore, suggested that these Du'as may be recited alternately, but it would be better if both are combined for recitation.

The second Du'a is very brief and easier to memorise. In this bed-time Du'a the Holy Prophet ﷺ has pointed out that sleep, too, is minor death, because during sleep man becomes totally unconcious, like a dead person. It is, therefore, necessary to think of the major death at the time of the minor death (sleep). This minor death comes upon man daily but after the major death man will rise on the Day of Resurrection, and not earlier. This should be kept in mind at all times and it should be confessed to Allah: O Allah I live and die with your name.

Du'a to recite on awaking from sleep

The Holy Prophet ﷺ recited this Du'a on awaking from sleep:

"الحمد لله الذى احيا نابعد ما اما تنا واليه النشور"

That is: Praise and thanks to Allah Who brought us to life after causing us to die and to Him is the resurrection.

After the minor death man rises every day but he has ultimately to face the major death after which there will be no return to this world.

Remember Death most frequently

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has been kind enough to teach us at every step two important lessons. One of them is to establish contact with, and to turn to, Allah, i.e., to remember Allah at every step. The other lesson is that He ﷺ has drawn our attention to the Hereafter. The power to give life and cause death vests in the hands of Allah. When man recites these Ad'yiah (supplications) every day while going to sleep and rising from it, he is sure to remember some day death and the events that come in the wake of death. After all, how long will he remain unmindful of his end and the Hereafter? These Ad'iyah (supplications) are very effective in arousing man's thoughts about the life after death. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has thus said:

اكثر واذكر هاذم اللذّات الموت (ترمذى، صفة القيامة، حديث نمبر ٢٤٦٠)

This means:

Remember most frequently Death which destroys all pleasures and enjoyments.

(Tirmizi.....Qiyamah, Hadith No: 2460)

By remembering death the thought is spontaneously born in man's mind that one day he will have to appear in the presence of Allah for reckoning. We are leading a life of carelessness - carelessness from the thought of death, from rendering accounts before Allah. If man begins to believe sincerely that after death he will be called to account for his deeds before his creator, he will become careful in his doings and deeds and will not disobey Allah. It is, therefore, advised that all should recite these Adyi'ah and teach also their children and family to learn and recite them.

It is not good to lie down on one's belly

عن يعيش بن طحفة الغفارى رضى الله تعالى عنهما قال قال ابى بينما انا مضطبح فى المسجد على بطنى اذا رجل يحركنى برجله فقال ان هذه ضجعة يبغضهاالله" قال فنظرت فاذا رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم"(ابو داؤد، كتاب الادب، باب فى الرجل ينبطح على بطنه، حديث نمبر ٥٠٤٠)

Hazrat Ya'eesh bin Ghifari رضى الله عنه has narrated that his father related to him this incident saying that one day he was lying down in the mosque, his belly downwards. Suddenly he felt that someone was goading him with his foot and was saying: Allah does not like this way of lying. When he turned to see what the matter was, he found that it was the Holy Prophet ﷺ. This is to say that the Holy Prophet ﷺ also did not like that way of lying down and warned Hazrat Ya'eesh Ghifari رضى الله عنه against that mode of lying, by goading him with his foot. This shows that it is disgusting to lie down on one's belly without justification.

That assembly will be regrettable

وعن ابى هريرة رضى الله عنه عن رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم قال من قعد مقعدا لم يذكر الله تعالى فيه كانت عليه من الله ترة ومن اضطجع مضجعا لا يذكر الله فيه كانت عليه من الله ترة(ابو داؤد، كتاب الادب باب كراهية ان يقوم الرجل..... الخ، حديث نمبر ٤٨٥٦)

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضى الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: If a man sits in an assembly in which Allah has not been remembered, nor has His name been mentioned in it, that assembly will become a cause of regret for him in the Hereafter, i.e he will wish with regret that he had not been in that assembly in which Allah's name was not mentioned.

That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that no assembly of the Muslims should be devoid of the mention of Allah's name.

The plight of our assemblies

Let us now review the conditions of our assemblies to see how many of them fall victim to our negligence and carelessness and the sacred and blessed name of Allah is not remembered in them. The Holy Prohet ﷺ has said about such assemblies that on the Day of Judgment they will become a cause of regret and remorse. It has become a regular feature of our society to hold assemblies and devote them to idle and loose talk and thus waste the valuable time. When these meetings are held without any aim or undesirable aims and objections, they are sure to be indifferent to, and neglectful of, Allah's name. On the other hand there will be lies, backbiting and slanders in them, along with jokes and ridicules. An assembly oblivious of Allah's name is to become a place of sins and, according to the Holy Prophet ﷺ, a cause of regret and sorrow for the valuable time lost in meaningless gossips. The value of these moments will be realized at the time of reckoning on the Day of Judgment, before Almighty Allah. He will wish in vain, for the addition of one good deed to his Roll of Deeds. The Holy Prophet ﷺ who is kinder to us than our parents is calling our attention to reform ourselves and our assemblies before the arrival of the time of regret and remorse.

It is lawful to indulge in Recreation

It must however, be mentioned here that it is not the intention that man should grow morose and peevish, totally devoid of jolliness and become averse to recreation.

This is never the intention. It is narrated that when the Holy Prohpet ﷺ sat among his companions ﷺ he sometimes indulged in recreative remarks. He ﷺ has himself said:

روحوا القلوب ساعة فساعة (کنز العمال، حدیث نمبر ٥٣٥٤)

Recreate and relieve your hearts from time to time."(Kanzul-Ummal, Hadith No: 5354)

There is, therefore, no harm in light talk and recreation. It is narrated that in their assemblies with the Holy Prophet ﷺ sometimes they talked about life in the pre-Islamic days of ignorance. The Holy Prophet ﷺ listened to their accounts and sometimes smiled at them. It was, however, strictly forbidden in those assemblies to talk or do anything sinful, like slander, backbiting and calumny, etc. Further those assemblies were not devoid of Allah's remembrance. For example after saying something about the pre-Islamic days, they thanked Allah for saving them from the ignorance, darkeness and errors of those days. This was how the Holy Prophet ﷺ and his Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم recreated themselves from time to time on the principle contained in these words:

دست بکار .... دل بیار

The hands are busy with their work, but the heart is concentrated on the remembrance of Allah

The unique versatility of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

The state of the mind and the heart indicated above seems to be easy but can be attained only by steady practice. My Shaikh Dr. Abdul Hai رحمۃ اللہ علیہ used to quote frequently Hazrat Maulana Thanawi's "It is difficult to understand how the Holy Prophet ﷺ was able to talk with his sacred wives about worldly affairs when he was all the time in communion with Allah, receiving Wahi (revelation), meeting angel and having conversation with Allah, and thus stationed at such an elevated seat of honour. Despite all this, the Holy Prophet ﷺ could find time to relate to Hazrat Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا at night the story of eleven women. These women had agreed among themselves that each would state in detail the conditon of her husband.(Shamail Tirmizi, chapter on the Propeht's night talks)

Hazrat Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ stated that in the beginning he could not understand how a personality so intimately attached to, and absorbed in Allah could take part in the recreation with Hazrat Ayeshah رضی اللہ عنہا and the other sacred wives. He says that later on he understood that these two apparently contradictory status could combine with each other. The secret beind this is that the recreation was being enjoyed for the sake of Allah and to obey Him in the matter of discharging the rights of these wives which Allah had imposed on him ﷺ. Thus, the communion or contact established with Allah continues unbroken and is also not weakened on account of this recreation. In fact this deepens the contact with Allah.

Compensation and Reward for expression of love

Once a man said to Hazrat Imam Abu Hanifah رحمۃ اللہ علیہ that when anyone has conversation with his wife and is expressing love to her neither of them feel that what each is doing is in compliance with Allah's command. Will they even then receive reward from Allah? Hazrat Abu Hanifah رحمة الله عليه replied to this question in the affirmative. When once man has intended that he is doing all that in obedience to Allah and as ordained by Him, that is enough. It is not necessary to repeat the intention. He will be getting the reward on the basis of his initial intention. So Merciful is Almighty Allah!

Do every act only for the pleasure of Allah

Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to advise that after getting up from sleep in the morning one should offer the Fajr (morning) prayer, recite the Holy Qu'ran, complete all one's routine incantations (Tasbeehat and Wazaif). Thereafter everyone should make a covenant with Almighty Allah:

إِنَّ صَلَاتِيْ وَنُسُكِيْ وَمَحْيَايَ وَمَمَاتِيْ لِلّٰهِ رَبِّ الْعٰلَمِيْنَ (سورة الانعام: ١٦٢)

That is: certainly my worship and my sacrifice of animals and my living and my dying are for Allah (6:162)

This implies saying that a servant's all activities and movements including earning livelihood, entering the house, talking to children will be only for Allah, in obedience to His injunctions and to please Him. When man has once made this pledge to Allah then whatever one does under this pledge will be pure Deen done for Allah's pleasure. Not only will this not terminate but will strengthen the relations with Allah.

Hazrat Majzoob and Allah's remembrance

Almighty Allah had granted these qualities to all the successors of Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه. I heard this story repeatedly from my respected father Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه that Hazrat Khwaja Azizul Hasan Sahib Majzoob رحمة الله عليه a renowned successor of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه, himself and some other saintly men assembled in the Madrasah (School) of Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Hasan Sahib. It was mango season. After having taken our supper we were eating mangoes and talking to one another freely and informally. Being a poet, Hazrat Majzoob Sahib رحمة الله عليه recited to us some poems also. About an hour passed in this way. Hazrat Majzoob رحمة الله عليه said: We have all been busy in gossip for about an hour. Tell me who has been neglectful of Allah's remembrance. Their reply was: We have all been busy with this gossip for an hour and have been unmindful of Allah and His remembrance. Hazrat Majzoob رحمة الله عليه said: It is Allah's kindness and mercy that I have not been oblivious of Allah's remembrance during this period. Now look, jokes and merry-making, recitation of poems in the usual poetical style and tone were going on during all this period, yet Hazrat Majzoob's heart and attention were not diverted from Allah's remembrance. He said that his heart remained concentrated on Allah.

This state of conversation is attained only by regular exercise and practice. May Allah grant us some part of this spiritual concentration which is a great blessing.

The "Needle" of the heart in the direction of Allah

I have seen a letter of my father addressed to Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه. The letter reads as follows:

"Hazrat! Just like the needle of the compass which always point to the North, the needle of my heart points to Thana Bhawan (U.P-India) in all circumstances, whether I am working in the Madrasah or at home or am at a shop in the bazar.

We cannot understand this state unless Allah grants us all this state by His Mercy. It can, however be attained by effort and exercise. Man should try to form the habit of remembering Allah while walking, sitting or standing and feeling that he is with Allah. By means of this practice he can gradually attain this state, that in whatever action, talk or recreation he may be engaged the needle of his heart will always be pointing to Allah. We should all try to attain this state. Aameen.

Allah has created the heart for Himself

All the Ad'yiah (supplications) which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us are intended to fix your heart on the remembrance of Allah, irrespective of the worldly work you may be doing. Allah has created the heart for Himslef. The rest of the limbs, e.g., the eyes, the nose, the ears the tongue etc., are meant for worldly affairs to attain thereby worldly objectives. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has explained this point in a Hadith in these words:

> "The best deed is that man's tongue should remain saturated with Allah's remembrance." Almighty Allah has created the tongue as a step leading to the heart. If you remain remembering Allah with the tongue, He will conduct this remembrance to the depth of the heart. This is the real objective of "Tariqat" "Tasaw-wuf" and "Sulook", that this heart may become saturated with Allah's remembrance and love and may ultimately turn into an exhibition screen to reflect and radiate His light at all times".

The Du'a (supplication) are Kaffarah (expiation) of an Assembly

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned in this Hadith that the assembly in which Allah's name is not mentioned will become on the Day of Judgment a cause for regret and remorse. That is why, for weak and careless persons the Holy Prophet ﷺ has prescribed easy remedies to save them from this regret. Thus, He ﷺ has taught us to recite these words when leaving an assembly:

سبحان ربك رب العزة عما يصفون وسلام على المرسلين والحمد لله رب العالمين

> Glorified is your Lord, the Lord of honour, above what they allege And peace be on the Messengers; and All praise be to Allah, the Lord of the Worlds.

If the assembly has so far been devoid of Allah's remembrance, it will now become blessed with His remembrance by the recitation of these words. Apart from this the recitation of these words will work as an expiation and compensation for any omission or shortcomings that marked that assembly. The other set of words are:

سبحنك اللهم وبحمد ك اشهدان لا اله الا انت استغفر ك واتوب اليك

(ابو داؤد، كتاب الادب، باب فى كفارة المجلس، حديث نمبر ٤٨٥٩)

(Abu Dawood.... Hadith No: 4859)

If both sets of these words are recited before leaving the assembly, that assembly will not be a cause for regret and remorse on the Day of Judgment - God willing. The fautls, shortcomings and minor sins, if any committed in that assembly will be pardoned. As for the major sins, they cannot be pardoned in this way, unless the sinner repents for them. It is, therefore, necessary to avoid in such assemblies telling lies, backbiting, and causing distress to anyone. Major sins must be avoided.

Convert sleep into worship

The next sentence of this Hadith is:

ومن اضطجع مضجعًا لا يذكر الله تعالى فيه كانت عليه من الله ترة

If a man sleeps on a bedding and he does not pronounce the name of Allah duirng his sleep neither in the beginning nor in the end, even once, his sleeping will be a cause of regret and remorse for him on the Day of Judgment.

That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has advised us to recite these words in the beginning as well as in the end. A believer and an unbeliever both sleep with the difference that the believer goes to bed, remembering the name of Allah, but the unbeliever sleeps in total oblivious of Allah's name. As a blessing of the remembrance of Allah's name the sleeping of the believer turns into worship.

If you are the best of the creation

These are the rules of Islamic etiquette which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us and the observance of which distinguishes us both from animals and unbelievers. After all, asses and horses also sleep. There is no animal that does not sleep. If you claim to be the best of the creation do not forget to remember your Creator at the time of going to bed and at rising from sleep. Ad'yiah (supplications) have been prescribed for this. May Allah make us persistent in reciting these supplications and grant us their lights and blessings. Aameen.

An Assembly like this is a dead ass

عن ابى هريرة رضى الله عنه قال قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم ما من قوم يقومون من مجلس ولا يذكرون الله تعالى فيه الا قاموا عن مثل جيفة حمار وكان لهم حسرة (ابو داؤد، كتاب الادب، باب كراهية ان يقوم الرجل من مجلس، حديث نمبر ٤٨٥٥)

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضى الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: If the members of an assembly disperse from the assembly in which Allah's name was not mentioned, then the assembly is like a dead ass and that assembly will become a cause of regret and remorse for them.(Abu Dawood ..... Hadith No: 4855)

Sleep is a gift of Allah

We are presently discussing sleep, the etiquettes of sleeping and other matters concerning sleep. As I have already stated, there is not a single aspect of life about which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has not provided us right guidance. He ﷺ has also taught us what work we should do at a given time. Sleep is a great blessing of Allah. Only when we are deprived of it, can we realize what a calamity it is to be deprived of sleep. Allah has granted us this blessing without our asking for it and He has devised such a unique system that we fall into sleep at the appointed time without any effort on our part. There is no switch in man's body by pressing which he can impose sleep on him. It is exclusively a gift of Allah.

The night is a great blessing of Allah

My respected father used to say that it is worth reflecting that Allah has devised such a system of sleep that all wish to sleep at one and the same time. If everyone was free to select the time of his sleep, then different persons would be found sleeping at different times and this would turn topsy-turvy the entire social system. For exampe, a man is feeling sleepy and his neighbour is beating iron bars with a hammer near the man desiring to sleep. To forestall such confusion, Allah has so planned matters that men, animals, birds, etc. feel sleepy at the same time. Had any International Conference been held to decide upon a suitable sleeping time for all? If this was left to men it was not possible for them to evolve a universal programme for all to sleep at the same time. Allah has Himself appointed for all His creation to sleep at the night time. He has said in the Holy Qur'an:

وَجَعَلَ الَّيْلَ سَكَنًا (سورة الانعام: ٩٦)

That is: He appointed the night for peace (sleep) and the day for work.

You should benefit by Allah's grant and remember Allah and thank Him for this benevolent grant. You should always remember that one day you have to appear before Him. This is the gist of all these teachings.

May Allah help us act upon them. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العلمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi.

Date : Friday 17th September, 1993
After 'Asr Prayers.

An Easy way of Establishing Relatonship with Allah

الحمدلله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهد ان سيدنا وسندنا ونبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

عن ابى سعيد الخدرى رضى الله عنه قال كان رسول الله سلى الله عليه وسلم اذا استجد ثوبا سماه باسمه عمامة اوقميصا او رداء يقول اللهم لك الحمد انت كسوتنيه اسألك خيره وخير ماصنع لهٗ واعوذمن شره و شرما صنع له (ترمذى كتاب اللباس، باب مايقول اذا لبس ثوبا جديدا، حديث نمبر ١٧٦٧)

Praise for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and parodn and we believe in Him and rely on Him and seek refuge with Him from the evils of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is none to mislead him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom He lets go astray. We bear witness that there is no god but Allah, the only One. He has no partner. We bear witness that our master, our authority, or Prophet and our Sire Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and Messenger. May Allah have mercy on him, on his household, his Companions رضی اللہ عنہ and bless them all and send salutation on them in great abundance. (Tirmizi, Book of garment... Hadith No: 1767)

Du'a (supplication) to recite when putting on a new garment

Hazrat Saeed Khudri رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that it was the habit of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that when he put on a new garment, he would utter the name of the garment whether it was a turban, a shirt or a sheet and would pray to Allah, saying: O Allah, I thank you that you have given me this garment to wear. I beseech you to grant me the good of this garment and the good of that for which it was made and I seek refuge from its evil and the evil of that for which it was made.

There is a separate Du'a (supplication) for every time

It was the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ to recite this Du'a at the time of putting on a new garment. If anyone does not remember these Arabic words, he may recite them in his own mother tongue. It is a great favour of the Holy Prophet ﷺ to this Ummah that he has taught us to pray to Almighty Allah at every step. On the other hand, we are persons who, despite our pressing needs, have not learnt how to beg of Allah our needs. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us a Du'a for each of our needs and acts with which we are confronted all day and night. For example there are Ad'yiah (supplications) to recite on getting up in the morning, on going to the laterine and coming out of it, on beginning and finishing the ablution and during its performance, on entering and going out of the Mosque and on entering your house and on going to the market. In fact, the kind Prophet ﷺ of Allah has not forgotten to teach us a Du'a for every movement of our life and the way how it should be recited.

The way of establishing relationship with Allah

Why has the Holy Prophet ﷺ taught us a separate Du'a for every act and movement? He ﷺ has done this to teach us an easy way of establishing our relationship with Almighty Allah, so that man should be begging Allah's pardon and favour always and without fail. The Holy Qur'an has given us this command:

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوا اذْكُرُوا اللّٰهَ ذِكْرًا كَثِيْرًا (سورۃ الاحزاب ٤١)

That is: O believers, rememebr Allah in great abundance. (33:41)

Someone requested the Holy Prophet ﷺ to tell him the best deed. He ﷺ replied saying:

ان یکون لسانك رطبا بذ کر اللہ (ترمذی کتاب الدعوات، باب فضل الذکر، حدیث نمبر ٣٣٧٢)

That is: your tongue should remain always saturated with the remembrance of Allah.

(Tirmizi,Hadith No: 3372)

The act of remembering Allah without break is so important an act that Allah and His Messenger ﷺ have both commanded us to adopt it. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has particularly mentioned its excellence in this Hadith.

Allah does not stand in need of anyone's remembrance

A question arises why has Allah commanded us to remember Him a great deal? Does He receive any benefit, enjoyment or pleasure when His servants remember Him? It is quite obvious that none having belief in Allah and any knowledge about Him can answer this question in the affirmative. The reason for this is quite clear. If the entire universe remains busy in remembering Allah continuously without losing a single moment, there will be no increase, not worth an atom, in His greatness, power, honour and beauty. On the other hand, if the entire universe decides - Godforbid - to refrain from Allah's remembrance, disobey and rebel against Him, there will absolutely be no decrease and deficit in His greatness, power, honour and beauty. That is a Personality that is free from all sorts of wants, needing neither our remembrance, our prostrations, prayers nor our incantation. He is free from all wants.

Indifference towrds Allah is the root of all evils

It is really for our own benefit that we have been advised to remember Allah in great abundance. Indifference to Allah is the root cause of all the evils, crimes, corruption and misconduct. When man forgets Allah he commits sins. If he remembers Allah in his heart and realizes sincerely that one day he has to appear before Allah to account for his deeds in this life, he will not commit sins.

A thief is indifferent to Allah's remembrance when he is in the act of committing theft. He would not commit theft, if he was not indifferent to Allah's remembrance. The same principle applies to all sorts of sinners. They would never commit sins, if they were not indifferent to Allah's remembrance. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has brought out the same principle in the following Hadith:

لا يزنى الزانى حين يزنى وهو مؤمن لا يسرق السارق حين يسرق وهو مؤمن لا يشرب الشارب حين يشرب وهو مؤمن (صحيح مسلم، كتاب الايمان، باب بيان نقصان الايمان، حديث نمبر ١٠٠)

This means: An adulterer ceases to be a believer at the time of committing adultery. Similarly a thief and a drunker cease to be believers when they are in the act of committing theft and drinking wine respectively.(Sahih Muslim ..... Hadith No: 100

That is, belief becomes dimmed and suppressed in the hearts of these sinners when they are in the act of committing these sins. In other words, if the remembrance of Allah had a place in their hearts, they would never commit these sins. This proves that indifference to Allah is the basic cause of all the wrongs, immoralities and sins prevailing in the world.

Where has Allah gone?

It is related about Hazrat Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ the great that once he was going on a journey through forests. In those days there were no hotels from which one could purchase food. When he رضی اللہ عنہ felt hungry and his provision ran short he thought of going to some nearby village in search of food. During his search he saw a herd of goats grazing in the land. He رضی اللہ عنہ searched for the herdsman. On meeting him he said to him that he was a traveller and was hungry. He, therefore, asked the herdsman to give him some milk of the goats on payment to enable him to satisfy his hunger. This story relates to a period of history when Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ had become the Ruler of about half the world. The herdsman replied, saying: Sir, I would surely have given you some milk, had these goats been my property. They belong to my master who has entrusted them to my care as a trust. Their milk is also a trust with me. I am sorry to tell you that I have no right to help you with some milk without the permission of the owner. It occurred to Hazrat Umar Rafooq رضی اللہ عنہ to put the herdsman's integrity to test. He رضی اللہ عنہ, therefore, said to the herdsman: Look here, I am telling you a plan. If you accept and act upon it both will be benefited. "What is that? asked the herdsman. Hazrat 'Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ replied, saying: Sell one of the goats to me and take the sale-price. I shall keep the goat with me and take its milk to satisfy my hunger. You shall get the sale price of the goat. If the owner asks you about the goat, you may tell him that the wolf ate it, because such events are common in forests. In this way both parties will stand to gain. No sooner did the herdsman hear this plan than these words spontaneously escaped from his mouth: O man, where has Allah gone? The herdsman meant to say that Allah is seeing everything and how could he justify before Allah that fraud.

Indifference to remembrance of Allah leads to increase in sins and crimes

This is an example of Allah's remembrance which had settled in the herdsman's heart strongly which left the heart neither in the loneliness of the jungles nor in the darkness of the night.

Hearing the reply of this herdsman, Hazrat Umar. Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ said: As long as people like you are living on the surface of the earth and the feeling of appearing before Allah for accountability is present in the hearts the earth will be free from tyranny and corruption. The fear of accountability proves an effective check on the heart. In the absence of this fear all sorts of crimes like dacoity, murder, rape, etc., are constantly on the increase, notwithstanding increase in the Police, in the courts, posting of military and security guards on every road, street and lane. Why is it so? It is because crimes cannot be uprooted, unless the remembrance of Allah is settled in the hearts and the thought of being called to account before Allah remains pinching man's conscience from time to time. Without the candle of responsibiity and fear of accountability enlightening the hearts, the crimes will not end, despite all the security measures taken by posting Police and Military guards. What is more, the very agencies entrusted with the duty of eradicating crimes and protecting people, wealth and lives are themselves involved in dacoities, thefts and murders. In short, crimes cannot be uprooted unless the hearts become saturated with Allah's remembrance and His awe.

It is the Holy Prophet ﷺ who put an end to crimes

In fact it is the Holy Prophet ﷺ who put an end to crimes, although there were no formal departments of Police, Criminal Courts nor army. If anyone ever committed a crime he himself approached the Holy Prophet ﷺ confessing his crime and insisting upon him ﷺ to inflict on him the punishment of the Shari'ah, even it may be by stoning him to death, so as to be safe from the punishment of the Hereafter. The secret lies in the fact that the hearts were then fraught with the remembrance of Allah and with the fear of His relentless grip. This state of hope and fear is generated by remembering Allah. It is we and not Allah who are the beneficiaries of the fruit of Allah's remembrance. The more we remember Allah, the stronger will grow in our hearts the sense of responsibility which will result in eradicating crimes, wrongs, corruption & disobedience. That is why it is stressed: Rememebr Allah to the best of your capacity.

Even verbal remembrance of Allah is beneficial and desirable

People generally say that it is no good repeating with thetongue the sacred words اللہ اللہ (Allah, Allah), سبحان اللہ (Subhan Allah) or الحمدللہ (Alhamdu lillah), when their hearts and minds are wandering elsewhere. Bear in mind that remembering Allah only with the tongue is the first step to the objective without which you cannot take the higher steps leading to the destination. If you take the first step by remembering Allah only with the tongue then by its blessing Almighty Allah will help you in taking the next higher steps. So, do not under-rate this first step, as it is also a blessing. If you persist in this, you are sure to cross the other hurdles to reach the final goal.

The Reality of "Relationship with Allah"

At any rate, when Allah's name is firmly settled in the heart by virtue of its continuous remembrance, then a state is reached which is called "Relationship with Allah". In other words, some "contact" or "connection" remains established with Allah for all times. The various forms of spiritual exercises, practices, incantations and disciplines practised and taught by the Sufis and Sheikhs aim at establishing and strengthening this "Relationship with Allah", when this aim is attained man refrains from sins and improves the tone, depth and standard of his worship and devotion. He then acquires higher moral character by banishing from his heart meaner habtis and tendencies. These qualities are born in man as a gift of his "Relationship with Allah"

Continue begging Allah your needs at all times

Our respected Sufis and Shaikhs used to prescribe tedious spiritual exercises and arduous practices and disciplines to attain this "Relationship with Allah". Our Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has taught us a very easy and short way to attain this divine "Relationship". It is that you should form the habit of begging of Allah your needs every time and every moment. Seek His help and blessings in every difficulty, sorrow and illness. If it is very hot beg Him to make it cool If the electricity fails beg Allah to restore it. If you are hungry beg of Him to provide for you good food. At the time of entering your house beg Allah to show you a pleasant scene and break to you some news of peace and safety with no cause of worry and difficulty. While entering the gate of your office make a similar appeal to Allah that you may not have to face any unpleasant situation. If you are going to the market, beg Allah to help you in easy and cheap shopping. Form the habit of turning to Allah every minute and every moment with your needs and prayers.

It is a very cheap but effective formula

The formula mentioned under the Preceding heading is so simple that no importance is attached to it. You are advised to try it by approaching Allah with all your problems for solution. If you form this habit no moment will pass without your submitting to Allah one problem or another. For example, you see that a man is coming to see you. Now just approach Allah requesting Him to make his visit propitious for you. If you are going to consult a Doctor, turn within your heart to Allah begging that He may make your consultation with the Doctor fruitful by bringing about prompt cure. This is an inexpensive, very easy and simple formula. Just try it and see for yourself what miracles it works.

There are no pre-conditions for Remembrance of Allah

The Ad'iyah (supplications) taught by the Holy Prophet ﷺ are easy to recite as no conditions have been prescribed for their recitation:

Our Lord! And raise up in their midst a Messenger from among them who shall recite to them your verses and shall instruct them in the Book and in wisdom and shall purify them. Surely, You are the Mighty, the wise. (2:129)

Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام recited this Du'a at the time of building the House of Allah, the Ka'bah. In this there is a hint that this and other Mosques cannot fulfil the objective for which they are built, unless the teachings of the Prophet of Allah, Muhammad ﷺ are followed there. Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام has desired in his Du'a that the last Prophet should recite Allah's verses. In this there is an indication that the recitation of the verses is in itself an objective and it is a brilliant success of man to achieve this objective. Not only will that Prophet ﷺ recite the verses but he will also explain and teach the meaning of Allah's Book.

The Light of the Ahadith is indispensable for understanding the Qur'an

There is an indication in this Du'a that it is not possible to understand the meaning of the Qur'an only by study which has nowadays found favour with the people. The light of the Ahadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and his teachings are indispensable to find the true meaning of the verses of the Holy Qur'an. Almighty Allah has said in another place:

"Now has come to you a light from Allah - a clear Book". (5 :15)

You have a book, but there is no light, so that you cannot read the book and benefit by its contents. Almighty Allah has said in this verse that not only has He sent down a Book, but with it He has also sent a light (Prophet Muhammad ﷺ) to help you read and understand the Book. If you ignore this light you will not be able to understand the correct meaning of the Book. Apart from this, the Prophet ﷺ will purify you from immorality, sins and vices. In this there is a hint that mere verbal teaching is not enough. training and company of righteous men are necessary to reform man's conduct and guide him on to the right path. This Du'a of Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام is really the essence of Islam. Muslims should recite this Du'a, while traversing on the path of Deen, putting on garments and so on so forth. Children can easily learn this and other Ad'iyah and it is hardly necessary to hold classes for this. It is not easy to learn them by heart in the advanced age. It is, however, necessary to tackle this problem carefully. The Ad'iyah taught by the Holy Prophet ﷺ are brief one. By learning one Du'a every day one can learn the whole lot in a few days. Then resolve to recite each Du'a on its proper occasion. If you follow this programme sincerely, you will soon realize the light and blessing of these Ad'iyah.

May Almighty Allah help us to remember Allah regularly and submissively. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العلمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal
Karachi.

Date : 3rd December 1993
After 'Asr Prayers.

PROTECT YOUR TONGUE

الحمدلله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهد ان سيدنا وسندنا ونبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

عن ابى هريرةرضى الله تعالى عنه ان رسولﷺ صلى الله عليه وسلم قال من كان يؤمن بالله واليوم الأخر فليقل خيراوليصمت(بخارى)

عن ابى هريرة رضى الله عنه انه سمع النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم يقول ان العبد يتكلم بالكلمة ما يتبين فيها يزل بها فى النار ابعد ما بين المشرق والمغرب(صحيح بخارى)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him, seek His help and pardon. We believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evil of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah, the One. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our master, our authority, our Prophet and our Sire, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah have mercy on him, his household, his Companions and bless them and salute them all in great abundance.

Three blessed Ahadith

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: He who believes in Allah and the Last Day should talk only on good and righteous topics or keep quiet. (Sahih Bukhari)

The second narrative is also attributed to Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ:

It is narrated by Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ that he heard the Holy Prophet ﷺ saying: when a man speaks out a word without thinking and understanding (its repercussions), that word throws him down into Hell to a depth deeper than the distance between East and West. (Sahih Bukhari)

There is a third Hadith narrated by Hazrat Abu Hurairah which brings out the same meaning:

عن ابی هريرة رضی الله عنه عن النبی صلی الله عليه وسلم قال ان العبد يتكلم بالكلمة من رضوان الله تعالی لايلقی بها بالا يرفعه الله بها فی الجنة و ان العبد ليتكلم بالكلمة من سخط الله تعالی لايلقی بها

بالا يهوی بها فی جهنم

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Sometime a man says something to please Allah, even though he does not feel the importance of the word and utters it unwittingly; yet Almighty Allah elevates his rank in Paradise because of that word. On the contrary there is a man who sometimes utters a word that displeases Allah. Although he utters that word unintentionally and carelessly, yet the curse of that word throws him down into Hell. (Sahih Bukhari)

Take care of your tongue

The three Ahadith invite attention to the importance of refraining from the sins of the tongue and use it only in uttering words which pleases Allah and save it from incurring Allah's displeasure. It has already been stated that the most important point for us is that we should always try to shun sins. Out of these sins here we are dealing only with such sins as are committed with this tongue. Sometimes a man utters with his tongue words without caring their effect and they become a cause of punishment for him. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has advised that we should all use our tongues with due precaution and thought. If you have in your mind something good and beneficial, speak it out or keep quiet.

The Tongue is a great blessing

Just thinkg a bit what a great blessing is this gift of Allah - the tongue! Allah has been so Merciful that He has bestowed upon us a talking machine which accompanies man during his whole lifetime from birth till death. It is so efficient that it starts speaking at the slightest hint from its master-man. We do not value this unique, wonderful machine, because we have got it as a free gift from Allah without paying any price or taking any pains to acquire it. It is man's natural tendency that he does not value things which he gets without any sacrifice and effort on his part. This applies also to this God-given gift - the tongue. Go and inquire about the value of this gift from those who are deprived of it. The small piece of flesh, that is the tongue, is there with them but they are unable to speak. Their hearts ae full of ideas and emotions, but they cannot speak them out. What a great gift of Allah is this tongue, indeed!

What, if the tongue suddenly stops speaking?

Just imagine what will happen if all of a sudden your tongue stops - God forbid - from speaking! You want to say something but the tongue fails you. What an incapacity. A relative of mine who has recently undergone a surgical operation told me that after the operation for sometime his body remained in state of total benumbness and paralysed. He was feeling thirsty: There was water as well as attendants, but only he could not express to them his need. He remained in this state of incapacity for about half an hour. He said that those thirty minutes were the most arduous and painful minutes of his life.

The Tongue is a Trust from Allah

Almighty Allah has so intimately connected the tongue with the brain that no sooner does the brain desire to speak something than the desire is transmitted to the tongue and it speaks out the desired words. If the process of finding out the relevant letter and constructing the meaningful words had been left to man himself, he would have been in great difficulty. Merciful Allah has endowed man with a natural power that as soon as he wants to speak out something, the word or phrase spontaneously escapes from his tongue. Now think a bit. Did you yourself invent this wonderful machine or purchased it from a shop? No, this is a gift from Allah. It is not your property. It has been placed under your custody only as a sacred trust from Allah. Being a trust, it is binding upon you to use it according to the will of the testator, Allah. It is, therefore, necessary that you should use this machine according to the will of the testator and not according to your own will and desire. Mind that this is Allah's property to be used as He desires.

The correct use of the Tongue

Almighty Allah has so created the tongue that if according to the foregoing Ahadith, a good word is uttered even unwittingly and carelessly Allah, in His infinite mercy, raises the rank of the speaker by untold degrees and grants him countless reward for that word. It is by virtue of this very tongue that by uttering the sacred Kalimah (Article of Shahdat) a Kafir (Infidel) turns a believer:

اشهدان لا الٰه الااللہ واشهدان محمدًاعبده و رسوله

Before uttering this Kalimah he was an unbeliever and a prospective inmate of Hell. Now by uttering the Kalimah, he has become a believer or a Muslim and an inmate of Paradise. Previously he was under the wrath of Allah, but now he has become a beloved servant of Allah, and has also become a member of the Ummah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. This tremendous revolution took place only by virtue of uttering a few words.

Keep the Tongue wet with the remembrance of Allah

It occurs in a Hadith that if, after becoming a believer, the man utters with his tongue only once the words this utterance fills half the scale of the Balance (سبحان الله). The words are small and light but the reward for them is big and heavy. It occurs in a Hadith that the words: سبحان الله وبحمده سبحان الله العظيم are light on the togue and hardly take any time in speaking out, but they are very heavy on the scale of Deeds and highly valued and beloved in the sight of Allah.

Anyway, Allah has so created this tiny machine that by changing a little its basic working order and operating it with a little care, it shall greatly add to the reward in our Roll of Deeds and build for us a palace in Paradise. It will make us the target of Allah's pleasure. Use this invaluable gift in remembering Allah and keep it wet with it and then see how effective it proves in elevating your rank. Once a Companion رضی الله عنه asked the Holy Prophet ﷺ: O Prophet of Allah, which deed is the best ? The Holy Prophet ﷺ replied, saying: Your tongue should remain wet with Allah's remembrance. Keep yourself busy with the remembrance of Allah sitting, standing, walking, in fact in whatever condition you may be.(Tirmizi..... Hadith No: 3372)

Utilize the Tongue to teach Deen

It is a virtue and righteousness to utilize the tongue in teaching Deen. For example, you find a man praying inccorectly, you may teach him the correct way of praying, in privacy, politely and affectionately. Now a little movement of your tongue makes a man correct his praying and you become entitled to reward for the Prayers he should offer during his entire life time, which will be credited to your Roll of Deeds.

To utter a word of solace

A man is suffering from some torture and is facing difficulties which have made him distracted. Seeing him in this condition, you say to him with your tongue a few words of solace, sympthy and encouragement, which soften his heart and bring some relief to his distressed mind. By saying words of solace and consolation you stand to gain a great reward. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith:

من عزّى ثكلى كسى بُرداً فى الجنة

If a man utters a few words of solace to a woman whose son is missing or has died, Allah shall grant this man a precious suit of garment to wear in Paradise. (Tirmizi..... Hadith No: 1076)

In short, use this tongue in the right acts and paths which Allah has ordained. You will see that untold rewards and good deeds are added to your Roll of Deeds. For example a man asked you to show him the right path and you guide him on to that path. This is a very insignificant good turn to which you paid no attention, but Allah will grant you great reward even for such small acts of righteousness. If a man uses his tongue in the right way, the doors of Paradise will flung open for him and it will become a means to the pardon of countless sins committed by him. Conversely, this very tongue, if used wrongly, shall drive the man into Hell Fire. May Allah save us from this.

Tongue may lead to Hell

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith that of the men who enter Hell, the majority will be of those who commit sins by their tongues. That is, those who tell lies, backbite others, injure anyone's heart, join others in the sin of backbiting, exult over the distress of others. They will enter Hell on account of these sins. There is a Hadith to this effect:

هل يكب الناس فى النار على وجوههم الا حصائد السنتهم(ترمذى. حديث ٦٢١٦)

This means that many people shall enter Hell on account of the sins of their tongue.

(Tirmizie.....Hadith No: 2616)

We should, therefore, use this gift of Allah with due care and precaution and keep it under control, instead of leaving it unbridled. We should use it for lawful speech. That is why we have been advised that, if we have to say anything, we should say what is true and lawful or keep quiet.

Think before you open your mouth to speak

It is prohibited to be talkative. If man talks much the tongue will go out of control and utter something undesirable, involving him in sins. It is, therefore, necessary that one should speak only when it is unavoidable and strictly to the extent needed. A wise saint has advised that before opening the mouth to speak one should think well what to speak and why,. This will keep the tongue under control.

Hazrat Mian Sahib رحمة الله عليه

Hazrat Mian Sayyid Asghar Husain Sahib رحمة الله عليه was one of the teachers of my respected father Hazrat Maulana Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه. He was a saint of a very high status. He was known as Hazrat "Mian Sahib". He was so righteous a saint that after seeing him one was reminded of the days of the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم. My respected father had special relations with him and frequently used to call on him. Hazrat Mian Sahib also was very kind to my father. My respected father told me that one day when he called on Hazrat Mian Sahib رحمة الله عليه and sat near him the latter said: Look here, Maulawi Shafi: Today we shall talk in Arabic, instead of Urdu. My father was very much surprised at this, as this had not happened earlier. How did the idea of speaking in Arabic occur to him so suddenly. When my father asked Mian Sahib رحمة الله عليه to tell the reason; first he avoided telling anything about it, but when my father insisted Hazrat Mian Sahib رحمة الله عليه said: When we talk in Urdu, sometimes we go off the rails and drift to undesirable topics. This will not happen when we talk in Arabic, because neither you nor I can speak this language fluently and freely. This scheme will exercise control on our tongues and we shall not indulge in unncecessary talk.

Our Example

Thereafter Hazrat Mian Sahib رحمة الله عليه went on saying: Our example is like a person who sets off on a journey from his house with large amounts of gold coins and money. He squandered this money during the journey before reaching his destination. Only a few coins were left with him. He spent these coins only sparingly and when it was unavoidable to spend something. Out of the coins left with him he spent as little as possible so that he could some how reach his destination.

Hazrat Mian Sahib رحمة الله عليه further said: We have passed the major parts of our ages. The precious moments of life which Allah had bestowed upon us were like the gold coins and money to take us to the destination. If we had spent these moments wisely and carefully it would have been very easy to reach the desired destination. We spent these precious moments in gossip and loose talks in assemblies and we do not know how many days of our lives are left. It is my heart's desire that I should spend these few remaining moments of our lives sparingly and very carefully. This is the trend of thought of those whom Allah grants this insight. They value the precious divine gift of the tongue and take care to avoid its misuse.

The remedy to keep the tongue under control

Hazrat Siddiq Akbar رضی اللہ عنہ is the best man after the Prophets of Allah علیہم السلام. Once he was seen holding his tongue in his hand and twisting it. When the people asked him about his strange behaviour, he رضی اللہ عنہ said:

ان هذا اوردنی الموارد (موطا امام مالك، كتاب الكلام، باب ما جاء فی ما يخاف من اللسان)

This tongue has involved me in great dangers and calamities. I want to keep it under control.

(Muwatta. Imam Malik. Book of Talks... Tongue)

It occurs in other narratives that he put into his mouth some pebbles so that unnecessary words may not escape from his mouth. At any rate, the tongue is a piece of flesh with which a man can attain Paradise as well as Hell. It is imperative to keep it under strict control, so as to save it from being misused. This is possible only when man avoids loose talks. The more man talks, the more readily he will fall into sins and errors. When people desiring spiritual reform visit some Shâikh, he prescribes different remedies for different "patients" according to the nature of the malady of each. In most cases they prescribe control over the tongue.

Put a lock on the tongue

A gentleman used to visit my father Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ. He had not so far submitted himself to my father as a disciple for reform. His visits were only usual courtesy visits. He was so talkative that when he started talking he would not stop and related stories after stories in one chain. My respected father tolerated all this. One day the gentleman requested my father that he wanted to become a disciple for spiritual reform and training. My father accepted his request. He requested my father to prescribe for him some (incantation). My father told him that the only Wazifah (incantation) for him was to put a lock on his tongue and keep it under strict control. No other wazifah was necessary for him. His reform and training were completed satisfactorily by controlling his tongue.

Refrain from using the tongue in gossip

It is very alarming that the misuse of the tongue has spread in our society like an epidemic. People assemble their friends in the drawing room only for gossiping. In this gossip sins like, speaking ill of some and backbiting and mimicking others are freely committed as a recreation. Thus, one such assembly is a combination of countless sins. Pull up courage to exercise control over your tongue. May Almighty Allah make us realize the importance of this point.

Our women and the use of the tongue

There is no exaggeration that the entire society is addicted to the sins of the tongue. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has pointed out in women folk many spiritual diseases. One of these is the disease that they have no control over their tongues. It is narrated in a Hadith that addressing the womenfolk once the Holy Prophet ﷺ said:

O women! Of all the inmates of Hell I found you in the largest number. That is, as compared with men the number of women is larger. The women asked the Holy Prophet ﷺ: O Prophet of Allah ﷺ! What is the reason for this? The Holy Prophet ﷺ replied:

تكثرن اللعن وتكفرن العشير (صحيح بخارى، كتاب الحيض، باب ترك الحائض الصوم، حديث ٣٠٤)

This means: You indulge too much in cursing and defaming others and showing ingratitude to your husbands. That is why your number in Hell is larger. (Sahih Bukhari ..... Hadith No: 304)

Just see! The two sins which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned in this Hadith belong to the tongue - excessive cursing and ingratitude to husbands. Misuse of the tongue is one of the diseases which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has diagnosed among women. The sins of taunting, cursing, backbiting, slandering and calumny are all included in this.

I guarantee Paradise for you

عن سهل بن سعد رضى الله عنه قال قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم من يضمن لى ما بين لِحييه وما بين رجليه اضمن له الجنة (صحيح بخارى)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is narrated to have said: I guarantee Paradise for him who can guarantee two things:- One of them is that which lies between two Jaws, i.e. his tongue, that it will not be misused by telling lies, backbiting, injuring the heart of anyone etc. The other guarantee is about what lies between the two legs, i.e., the private parts, that this will not be misused.(Sahih Bukhari)

It means that protection of the tongue from misuse is tantamount to the protection of the half of Deen, because half of the sins are committed through the tongue. The need to protect and control the tongue cannot be under-rated.

Three acts for salvation

عن عقبة ابن عامر رضى الله عنه قال قلت يا رسول الله ماالنجاة ؟ قال امسك عليك لسانك وليسعك بيتك وابك على خطيئتك (ترمذى حديث ٢٤٠٨)

It is narrated from Hazrat 'Aqabah bin 'Aamir رضى الله عنه that he asked the Holy Prophet ﷺ to tell him how to attain salvation in the Hereafter, freedom from Hell and entry into Paradise. In reply to this question the Holy Prophet ﷺ uttered three sentences;

1. Keep your tongue under your control.
2. Let your house be enough for you. Do not remain out of it unnecessarily, so as to keep yourself away from the vices and evils prevailing outside the house.

The third sentence which the Holy Prophet ﷺ uttered is: If you ever commit some sin, wrong or fault, then weep for that, viz., feel regret and repent for it and ask for Allah's pardon. (Tirmizi....Kitab -uz-zuhd..... Hadith No: 2408)

Recently a man told me that he could not weep for which he felt worried. There is no harm if a man is not able to weep spontaneously. What is needed is that if a sin is committed the sinner should feel ashamed for it from the core of his heart and seek Allah's pardon with due submission and humbleness.

O Tongue, fear Allah!

وعن ابی سعید الخدری رضی الله عنه عن النبی صلی الله علیه وسلم
قال اذا اصبح ابن ادم فان الاعضاء کلها تکفر اللسان تقول اتق الله فینا
فانما نحن بك فان استقمت استقمنا وانی اعوججت اعوججنا

(Tirmizi .... Hifzul-lisaan...Hadith No: 2407)

Hazrat Abu Sa'eed Khudri رضی الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: when the morning dawns, all the limbs of the human body address the tongue and say: O tongue! Fear Allah. We are subordinate to you. If you are straight, we shall also be straight. If you become crooked, we shall also become crooked. That is to say that all the parts of the human body are subordinate to the tongue. If the tongue goes wrong, the entire human body gets involved in sinful acts. That is why they ask the tongue to be straight, otherwise they too will have to face calamities.

How do these limbs address the tongue? It is quite possible that they may be actually speaking to the tongue, because it is not unlikely that Almighty Allah may grant them power of speech to speak to the tongue. The power of speech in the tongue has also been granted by Allah. Allah will confer on the human limbs the power of speech on the Day of Judgment.

The limbs shall speak on the Day of Judgment

The philosophy of "Naturalism" was widely in vogue in the past. The advocates of this philosophy did not believe in miracles and argued that this was against nature and quite impossible. A man asked Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله علیه how it would be possible for limbs like the hands and the feet to speak and bear witness on the Day of Judgment as has been claimed in the Qur'an. The limbs have no tongue. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله علیه asked that man to explain how the tongue was able to speak although it had itself no tongue. It is only a piece of felsh but it is speaking without a tongue. Almighty Allah has bestowed upon this piece of flesh the faculty of speech, so it is speaking. It will stop speaking when Allah withdraws from it this faculty. When Allah bestows this faculty upon the hands and the feet they too will speak.

It may be a fact that, the limbs may be addressing the tongue each morning, as mentioned above or the statement may be only a metophorical expression. Both alternatives are possible. However, what has been written on this point in the Qur'anic verses cannot be challenged.

Anyway, it is absolutely necessary to guard this tongue, to keep it under strict control and protect it from sins. Without this, success is not possible. May Allah help us all to protect the tongue and use it in the right way. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمین

Venue : Masjid Fatima, near Hafiz Rabri House
Hyderabad.

Date : 26th January, 1992
After 'Isha Prayers

HAZRAT IBRAHIM عليه السلام AND BUILDING OF THE HOUSE OF ALLAH (AL-KA 'BAH)

الحمدلله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له واشهد ان سيدنا وسندنا ونبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطٰن الرجيم بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

وَاِذْ يَرْفَعُ اِبْرٰهِيْمُ الْقَوَاعِدَ مِنَ الْبَيْتِ وَاِسْمٰعِيْلُ ط رَبَّنَا تَقَبَّلْ مِنَّآ ط اِنَّكَ اَنْتَ السَّمِيْعُ الْعَلِيْمُ o رَبَّنَا وَاجْعَلْنَا مُسْلِمَيْنِ لَكَ وَمِنْ ذُرِّيَّتِنَآ اُمَّةً مُّسْلِمَةً لَّكَ وَاَرِنَا مَنَاسِكَنَا وَتُبْ عَلَيْنَا ج اِنَّكَ اَنْتَ التَّوَّابُ الرَّحِيْمُ o رَبَّنَاوَابْعَثْ فِيْهِمْ رَسُوْلاً مِّنْهُمْ يَتْلُوْا عَلَيْهِمْ اٰيٰتِكَ وَيُعَلِّمُهُمُ الْكِتٰبَ وَالْحِكْمَةَ وَيُزَكِّيْهِمْ ط اِنَّكَ

اَنْتَ الْعَزِيْزُ الْحَكِيْمُ ○ (سورة البقرة ۱۲۸:۱۲۹)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم، وصدق رسوله النبى الكريم ونحن على ذلك من الشاهدين والشاكرين، والحمد لله رب العالمين.

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him, seek His help and pardon. We believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evil of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah, the One. Who has no partner. I also bear witness that our master, our authority, our Prophet and our Sire, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah have mercy on him, his household, his Companions رضى الله عنه and salute them and bless them all most abundantly.

And when Ibrahim عليه السلام was raising the foundations of the House of Allah and Isma'el عليه السلام (Ibrahim prayed:) Our Lord! Accept from us (this duty). Surely, it is you Who are the Hearer, the Knower. Our Lord! And make us Submissive to you and (make) of our progeny a nation submissive to you and show us our ways of worship, and relent towards us. Surely it is you Who are the Relenting, the Merciful. Our Lord! And raise up in their midst a Messenger from amongst them who shall recite to them your verses and teach them the Book and wisdom and shall purify them. It is you Who are the Mighty, the Wise. (2: 127-129)

My Honourable Elders and Dear Brothers!

It is a matter of great happiness and good luck for all of us that Almighty Allah has favoured us with an opportunity to participate in the auspicious ceremony of laying the foundation-stone of a mosque. I was asked to say something to you on this happy occasion. Praise to Allah that in this blessed assembly many elderly saints and learned savants are present on the stage who are far senior and superior to me in knowledge, competence and righteousness. It would seem to be an act of audacity on my part to speak anything in their presence. Keeping in view the time-honoured principle when the senior ones command their junior ones to do anything the latter have no choice but to obey the commands, I have hesitatingly taken the liberty to discharge this difficult assignment before all of you and in the presence of these learned savants. May Almighty Allah help me, by His mercy, to say something which may suit His pleasure and be useful for me and for the respected audience.

The Comprehensiveness of Deen

I find myself in a fix as to which aspect of our Deen should I touch upon in this assembly. Allah has made the Deen which you and I follow so comprehensive that every aspect of it deserves to be treated as a permanent topic for which a pre-determined programme is needed

زفرق تابہ قدم ہر کجا کہ می نگرم
کرشمہ دامن دل می کشد کہ جا ایں جا است

This is a Persian couplet which means: When I look at the beautiful body of my beloved from the forehead right up to the feet, I find that every spot of the body is equally charming to attract the lover's heart.

So is the position of our Deen. Every aspect is equally important and attractive to serve as a topic for discourse have solved the difficulty of selection of a topic for this occasion and decided to say something on the verses of the Qur'an which I have just now recited before you. They have an affinity to the foundation ceremony of a mosque and in which Almighty Allah has described a very magnificent event.

The Event of Building the House of Allah (The K'abah)

Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام built the House of Allah along with his highly able son, Hazrat Isma'el, عليه السلام (Zabihullah). The Holy Qur'an has described this event in a wonderfully unique and affectionate style and by including it in His favourite Book has preserved it for the entire Muslim Ummah, so as to continue it undistorted till the Day of Judgment. He has also called upon the Muslims to refresh the memory of this great event by recalling it to their minds again and again. This has pursuaded me to present to you a brief commentary on these verses and some details of the Du'a which Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام addressed to Allah when he was building His House and which Almighty Allah has also mentioned with some details in Surah Al-Baqarah.

First of all Almighty Allah said:

وَاِذْ يَرْفَعُ اِبْرٰهِيْمُ الْقَوَاعِدَ مِنَ الْبَيْتِ وَاِسْمٰعِيْلُ

Remember the true when Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام was raising the foundations of the House of Allah and Hazrat Isma'el عليه السلام (was also with him). (2:127)

"واذ" is an Arabic word which is used to suggest that the topic which is going to be stated shortly deserves to be visualised every moment.

This verse contains a hint that this House of Allah had been in existence with its foundations since the time of Hazrat Adam عليه السلام. However, with the passage of time the building had disappeared and was not in existence at the time of Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام, but its foundations were intact and in existence. Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام re-built the House of Allah on the existing foundations. Hazrat Isma'el عليه السلام also took part in this work along with his father.

It is a rule of etiquette that joint Prophets are ascribed to the elderly member of the team

It was a regular practice of my respected father, Hazrat Maulana Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه that every day when he recited the Holy Qur'an, he also pondered over its verses during the recitation. If any new point occurred to him during the recitation, he would express it to anyone of us who was available there. One day he was reciting the Qur'an and I was sitting near him. When he came to this verse:

وَاِذْ يَرْفَعُ اِبْرٰهِيْمُ الْقَوَاعِدَ مِنَ الْبَيْتِ وَاِسْمٰعِيْلُ

he stopped recitation and said to me: Look! Allah has adopted in this verse a unique style. He could alter the verse in this way:

وَاِذْيَرْفَعُ اِبْرَاهِيْمُ وَاِسْمَاعِيْلِ الْقَوَاعِدَ مِنَ الْبَيْتِ

(Remember the time when Ibrahim عليه السلام and Isma'el عليه السلام both were raising the foundations of the House of Allah. Allah, however, did not say so. Instead, He said: "Remember when Ibrahim عليه السلام was raising the foundation of the House of Allah and Isma'el عليه السلام: Allah mentioned the name of Hazrat Isma'el at the end although, both were doing the work jointly. Hazrat Isma'el عليه السلام was bringing the stone blocks and Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام was laying the blocks to construct the walls.

Thereafter my father رحمة الله عليه explained a very fine point involved in the matter by saying that when a senior and a junior both are doing some work together, etiquette demands that the work should be ascribed to the senior person and the name of the junior should be mentioned at the end. The senior and the junior both should not be placed at an equal footing.

Hazrat 'Umar رضى الله عنه and observance of Etiquette

My respected father explained the same point by giving another example. It occurs, he said, in a Hadith on the authority of Hazrat 'Umar رضى الله عنه that it was a regular routine of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that he did not engage himself in any work after the Ísha prayer, so that the Fajr Prayer might not be affected. At the same time it is also narrated from Hazrat 'Umar Farooq رضى الله عنه that sometimes the Holy Prophet ﷺ held consultation with Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddique رضى الله عنه after the Ísha prayer about the affairs of the Muslims and Hazrat 'Umar رضى الله عنه also attended the discussions. While mentioning this event, Hazrat 'Umar Farooq رضى الله عنه did not say that the Holy Prophet ﷺ used to have consultations with him and Hazrat Abu Bakr رضى الله عنه, but first he mentioned the name of Hazrat Siddique Akbar رضى الله عنه and that he too used to be with them. This indicates the rule of conduct for a junior person that when a junior person is working with his senior, it is not proper for the junior to ascribe the work to himself. He should ascribe it to the senior and place his name in a secondary position, by saying: so and so performed the job and I was also with him.

The Holy Qur'an has also adopted the same style, viz., Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام was raising the foundations of the House of Allah and Hazrat Isma'el عليه السلام was also working with him. In the verse the main work was attributed to Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام and the name of Hazrat Isma'el عليه السلام was mentioned at the end, as if he was a secondary role in the work. This is a fine point which I remembered with reference to my father's name.

An outstanding Event

That Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام built the House of Allah is one of the most outstanding events of human history and the history of religions and of the place of worship. In fact there can be no event more tremendous than this, because this is connected with the building of the House of Allah, involving the collection of so many details: where did the stone blocks and the mortar come from, who was bringing the blocks and who was laying them, at what height the House was being built; what was the height, length and breadth of the four sides, how much money and time was spent on its construction? The Holy Qur'an has not furnished any of these details. It has only pointed out that Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام was building the House of Allah.

Thereafter, those Ad'yiah (supplications) have been mentioned which Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام was rehearsing while he was building the House of Allah. This shows that these Ad'yiha which Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام was rehearsing to establish a "Relationship with Allah" carried more weight than his action of building the House of Allah. Almighty Allah was so much pleased with these Ad'yiah that he made them a part of the Holy Qur'an for all times till the Day of Judgment. When he was busy with the construction of the House of Allah the following Du'a was on his tongue:

رَبَّنَا تَقَبَّلْ مِنَّا ط اِنَّكَ اَنْتَ السَّمِيْعُ الْعَلِيْمُ (سورة البقرة ۱۲۸:۱۲۹)

"O our Lord! Accept from us (this duty). Surely, it is you Who are the Hearer, the Knower. (2:127)

Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام was doing something highly splendid and magnificent like building on the surface of the earth Allah's first and the last House - a House that was going to prove a negative force till the Day of Judgment to which Pilgrims will be drawn to perform Hajj and worship Allah. Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام was rebuilding the House of Allah whose foundations had become nearly effaced and its building had fallen into ruins. Great and highly dignified though this work was,yet the action most lovely and acceptable in the sight of Almighty Allah was Hazrat Ibrahim's humble submission and sincere praying to Him. He عليه السلام had no trace of pride in his heart for what he was doing. He عليه السلام in all humility realized, the insignificance of his own effort. He عليه السلام most humbly prayed to Allah for its acceptance, by His mercy.

There should be no feeling of superiority in the heart

This Du'a contains a hint that after all man is a servant of Allah. He should never think that he is doing some magnificent deed or rendering some remarkable service to Deen, even if he may actually be performing some praiseworthy task. Man should always keep himself away from pride, and think that neither he nor his work as acceptable and worthy of any reward, unless Allah accepts it by His mercy. The prayer to Allah should be that may He, by His mercy, accept the trifling and worthless deed done by His sinful servant. Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام has taught us through his Du'a that when a man accomplishes some important job, his inner soul instigates him to take pride and make a parade of his worth and ability before others. The Prophets of Allah have taught by their Sunnah that if you have done some good deed but some pride or self-complacency is born in your heart on this account, then the good turn done by you will go waste. On such occasions you should sincerely feel and admit your worthlessness and pray to Allah to accept your deed by His mercy alone.

The victory of Makkah and the Prophet's modesty

When, after the victory of Makkah, the Holy Prophet ﷺ was entering the city as a victor, he demonstrated by his behaviour unprecedented modesty and humbleness. This was the same Makkah the inmates of which had left no stone unturned in torturing the Holy Prophet ﷺ and his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم for about twenty-one years - a city where conspiracies were hatched to kill the Holy Prophet ﷺ, where the believers were made to lie down with their bare backs on scorching sand. Had there been on this occasion some other victor, his chest would have been puffed with pride and arrogance, his neck turned askance and the lanes of Makkah reddened with the blood of the vanqished population. However, nothing of the kind happened. Read in the words of Hazrat Anas رضی اللہ عنہ the account of the Prophet's ﷺ entry into the Holy City after gaining this epoch-making victory. Thus Hazrat Anas رضی اللہ عنہ narrates:

I remember vividly that scene as though I am observing the original one just now. The Holy Prophet ﷺ is entering Makkah Mukarramah from the direction of "Mu'alla" riding his dromedary Quswa, his sacred neck bent down so much so that his chin was touching his chest, drops of tears rolling down his eyes and he reciting the following verse with his tongue:

إِنَّا فَتَحْنَا لَكَ فَتْحًا مُّبِيْنًا (سورة الفتح:١)

"Surely, We have given you a singular victory." (48:1)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ in all modesty and humbleness was acknowledging that the singular victory was due to Allah's mercy and help and not to the efforts of the Prophet ﷺ and his companions رضی اللہ عنہم. It was Allah Who opened the city of Makkah Mukarramah for entry of the Holy Prophet ﷺ as a victor. Show of modesty, humbleness and submissiveness are the distinctive qualities of the Prophets of Allah including Prophet Ibrhaim Khalilullah علیہ السلام and Prophet Muhammad ﷺ.

Help comes from Almighty Allah alone

If you are ever able to do some good deed, remember always that this is due to Allah's help. It is Allah's great mercy that you were enabled to do a good turn.

منت منہ کہ خدمت سلطان ہمیں کنی
منت شناس کہ او را مخدمت گزاشتن

A persian couplet meaning: Do not lay obligation on anyone that you are serving the King. You are under the King's obligation that he has admitted you under his service.

It does not go to your credit, if you have done countless good deeds in the form of worship, service to Deen compilation of books, delivering speeches, writing Fatawa (Religious Rulings). You should be grateful to Allah that He enabled you to do these good turns so, you should always be thankful to Allah and be seeking His help so that you may do more and more good deeds. You should pray to Alalh to accept the good deeds you do. There is absolutely no occasion to be proud and boastful for these deeds. There is a proverb in the Arabic language:

صلّى الحائكُ ركعتين وانتظرَ الوحيَ that is to say, that once a weaver offered two Rak'ats of prayer and remained waiting for Wahi (revelation) to descend upon him, as if he had performed a great religious feat. This is the behaviour of an ignorant and mean minded fellow. A really devoted servant of Allah works in the path of Allah to the best of his ability and at the same time remains afraid that his service may or may not be worthy of Allah's acceptance. He should always be praying to Allah to accept his humble services.

The first thing which attracted Allah's pleasure and appreciation in the building of His House was this modesty of Hazrat Ibrahim علیہ السلام that in spite of the fact that he was doing such a job of outstanding dignity, he felt no pride no arrogance and no conceit for that.

Who is a genuine Muslim?

The next part of the Du'a is unique in its import. The second Du'a which Hazrat Ibrahim علیہ السلام was reciting while building the Ka'bah is as follows:

رَبَّنَا وَاجْعَلْنَا مُسْلِمَيْنِ لَكَ

O our Lord! Make us both (i.e. myself and my son Isma'el) Muslims.

It is really a strange Du'a. Were they not Muslims? If not, who else could be Muslim

In the Arabic language the word Muslim means subordinate, obedient, submissive, etc. By these words

Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام was praying to Allah to make him and his son throughout their lifetimes obedient and submissive to Him. Ordinarily a man becomes a Muslim as soon as he utters this Kalimah, irrespective of his age:

اشهد ان لا اله الا الله واشهد ان محمد رسول الله

Yet it is not the distinction of a Mu'min (believer) only to utter the Kalimah. It should be noted very carefully that a believer cannot be regarded as a genuine Muslim, unless after having uttered the Kalimah, he makes his entire life obedient and sub-ordinate to Almighty Allah. That is why the Qur'an says at another place:

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوا ادْخُلُوْا فِى السِّلْمِ كَآفَّةً

That is: O believers enter into the fold of Islam in totality (2: 208)

This verse is addressed to those who have already believed in Allah. Now into which Islam should they enter? It is intended to point out that it is one thing to become a believer by uttering the Kalimah, but quite another thing to enter the fold of Islam with total submission. The very meaning of Islam implies that a Muslim should subject his entire life with all its movements, acts and interests to the will and pleasure of Allah. Unless this is done, none can claim to have accepted, and entered into Islam in true sense of the word, "Islam". That is why Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام prayed to Almighty Allah to make him and His son عليه السلام Muslims in the true sense.

The Objective of building a Mosque

Here I want to invite attention to one important point. Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام was indeed doing something very sublime by building the House of Allah. Yet it seems that the raising of the House was not in itself the main objective, although its importance cannot be denied. It appears from the context of these Ad'yiah that after the completion of the construction of the Mosque the Muslims should submit themselves and all their affairs and interests to the pleasure and will of Allah. The truth of this is quite apparent from the Du'a of Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام. If this objective which is implied in the meaning Muslimeen is not achieved, then the idea expressed in the following couplet will apply to the mosques we are building:

مسجد تو بنا دی شب بھر میں ایمان کی حرارت والوں نے
من اپنا پرانا پاپی ہے برسوں میں نمازی بن نہ سکا

That is those who have the fire of Eeman in their hearts lost no time in building the mosque but my heart is an old sinner. I could not become a Namazi (one who prays) even during the period of so many years.

Deen is not confined to praying and Fasting alone

Sometimes people think that it is enough for a Muslim to repair to the mosque five times to offer prayers, fast during the fasting month of Ramazan, pay the Zakat (compulsory alms) and observe certain other forms of worship, and here ends the matter:

In this Du'a of Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام there is an indication that, although it is Deen to build mosque use them for the worhsip of Allah and His remembranc ., yet this is not all. Islam, being a comprehensive faith, extenus beyond the boundary of the mosque. We have to be Muslims in all walks of life. Deen really consists of five brances, viz.,

1- Adherence to the correct tenets and demands of belief.

2- Worship, i.e. prayers, fasting, etc.
3- Dealings and Transactions, i.e. Public dealings, financial transactions and trade, etc..
4- Co-living in society.
5- Moral conduct and character.

These are the branches that make up what is called Islam. Islam is not confined within the four walls of the mosque. It is not that as long as a man remains in the mosque he is a Muslim, but outside the mosque he is free to do whatever he likes. He has to be a Muslim in all walks of life and at every step. That is why the Holy Qur'an says:

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوا ادْخُلُوْا فِى السِّلْمِ كَآفَّةً

O Believers! Enter into the fold of Islam in totality.

Only repairing to the mosque for the five-time prayers and other forms of worship is not enough when public dealings, co-living in the socity, conduct and character all stand spoilt.

It also comes within the rights of the Mosque that in other places, say a markets the Namazi has to carry out the commands of the same Authority before when he is prostrating himself in the mosque. It is not Islam that one offer prayers in the mosuqe but out of the mosque one receives and pays bribe, indulges in usurious dealings. One must also reform his conduct and character and morals so as to confirm to the norms of the Shari'ah. The printed collections of the talks of Hazrat Maulana Ashraft Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه are full of admonitions that the amelioration of the social living, morals and public dealings are as important as the reform and improvement of the prayers. Today people have forgotten this important truth and think that Deen is the name only of Prayers, fasting, etc.

It is a compulsory duty to reform children

Next, Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام spoke the following words as mentioned in the Holy Qur'an:

وَمِنْ ذُرِّيَّتِنَآ اُمَّةً مُّسْلِمَةً لَّكَ

....and of our progeny a nation submissive to You.

That is: O our Lord! Make our future generations also Muslims. These words contain a hint that the duty of a Muslim does not end with his beocming a Muslim. It is his obligatory duty to feel concerned about the Islam of his children also. Today there are men among us who are themselves regular Namazis of the first saff (row) of the congregation and they also recite the Qur'an regularly, but they have no concern about their children who are heading fast in the direction of disbelief, atheism, Allah's displeasure and Hell. Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام has in this Du'a clearly pointed out that it is not enough for a Muslim to reform himself alone, letting his children and other relations take whatever course they choose. The Holy Qur'an syas:

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْا قُوْٓا اَنْفُسَكُمْ وَاَهْلِيْكُمْ نَارًا

O you who hae believed, protect yourselves and your families from (Hell) Fire. (66:6)

Just as it is an obligatory duty of an individual to become a Muslim, it is also his obligatory duty to reform lookafter, and protect the Islam of his future generations. The Qur'an further says:

وَتُبْ عَلَيْنَآ اِنَّكَ اَنْتَ التَّوَّابُ الرَّحِيْمُ

....and relent towards us. It is you who are the Relenting, the Merciful (2:128)

Hazrat Ibrahim عليه السلام did not pray to Alalh to reward him for his work for fear of its worthlessness and possible faults that might have marred it. His prayer was for Allah's acceptance of his repentance.

It is a believer's duty to pray to Alalh to accept his deeds and then to beg Allah's pardon for the fautls and shortcomings, if any, that might have found access to the deeds done.

Why Istighfar (request for pardon) after Prayers?

It occurs in a Hadith that after concluding a prayer the Holy Prophet ﷺ asked for Allah's pardon by uttering the word استغفرالله (I ask for Allah's pardon) three times. This occasion for استغفرالله is hardly understood, as pardon is generally sought on committing some fault or sin. So why استغفرالله after a highly praise-worthy act like payer? The answer to this question is quite obvious. We have indeed offered the prayer, but owing to our weakness and inability we may not have done full justice to it and it may not have been worthy of Allah's dignity, honour and greatness.

مَا عَبَدْنَاكَ حَقَّ عِبَادَتِكَ

O Allah we could not do full justice to Your worship which You deserve.

The occasion for (استغفرالله) is, therefore, quite justified when we call upon Allah to pardon the mistakes and shortcomings traceable in our prayers. In praise of His righteous servants Almighty Allah has said in Surah Zariyat:

كَانُوْا قَلِيْلاً مِّنَ الَّيْلِ مَايَهْجَعُوْنَ o وَبِالْاَسْحَارِ هُمْ يَسْتَغْفِرُوْنَ

They used to sleep but little at night and used to seek forgiveness before dawning of each day. (51: 17-18)

Hazrat A'yeshah رضی الله عنها once asked the Holy Prophet ﷺ: What occasion is it for a person to seek pardon when he has spent the whole night in prayer without committing any sin? The Holy Prophet ﷺ replied to this question, saying: They seek pardon because they feel that the worship they offered in the night is not worthy of being presented to Allah. They are, therefore, seeking pardon for the faults and shortcoings that night have crept into their worship. It is, therefore, a servant's duty not to feel proud of his good deeds; he should rather think of its possible defects and deficits and seek Allah's pardon for them. He should render thanks to Allah and pray for their acceptance. May Allah, by His mercy, enable us to understand this reality and follow it accordingly.

A Comprehensive Du'a

After reciting all these Ad'yiah Hazrat Ibrahim علیه السلام recited the following comprehensive and effective Du'a:

رَبَّنَاوَابْعَثْ فِيْهِمْ رَسُوْلاً مِّنْهُمْ يَتْلُوْا عَلَيْهِمْ اٰيٰتِكَ وَيُعَلِّمُهُمُ الْكِتٰبَ وَالْحِكْمَةَ وَيُزَكِّيْهِمْ (سورة البقرة ۱۲۸:۱۲۹)

O our Lord! And raise up in their midst a Messenger from amongst them who shall recite to them Your verses and teach them the Book and wisdom and shall purify them. (2:129)

As already stated not only has Hazrat Ibrahim علیه السلام begged Allah to send down a Messenger with a revealed Book - the Qur'an, but he has also begged Allah to send down such a Messenger as would teach the people the Divine Book and points of wisdom and purify them from the filth of infidelity and shirk and all other sins. Thus, we see that this Du'a teaches, in a nut shell, principels by understanding and acting upon which a believer can attain success in this world as well as in the Hereafter.

By these Ad'yiah, the Holy Prophet ﷺ is teaching his Ummah that when some problem or difficulty arises, they should refer them for removal to Allah. He has also made the procedure and style of seeking Allah's help too simple and unconditional. For so doing neither you require ablution nor facing the Qiblah. Du'a (supplication) is not prohibited even during pollution by coition. However, it is not lawful to recite the Holy Qur'an in this condition. It is prohibited to offer Du'a or Zikr (rememberance) with the tongue while one is in the latrine. Supplication and remembance in the heart are lawful even in this place.Any way, Allah has made the process of remembrance no condition nor has He prescribed any special procedure for it. You are free to make your appeal to Allah without ablution, without raising your hands and without moving the tongue. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has said that when anyone visited him to put some question he رحمة الله عليه become a bit concerned about the nature of the question. In such a situation Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه always turned to Allah for help. He رحمة الله عليه never omitted to follow this practice throughout his life and help indeed always came to him from Allah.

The importance of the Ad'yiah (supplications) occuring in the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has been very kind to us in teaching us a Du'a suitable for every occasion. Not only has he ﷺ given us the Ad'yiah but he has also taught us how to recite them and when. It is our duty to learn those Ad'yiah and to recite them with rapt attention when the occasion arrives. This is so to say that the Holy Prophet ﷺ has spread the table decorated with delicious dishes but we are so lazy as not to extend our hands to partake of the food. The learned saints have collected these Ad'yiah in the form of books so that every Muslim may read and remember them with ease. In olden days it was the practice that as soon as a child was able to speak he was taught to say بسم الله before taking a morsel and the other prescribed Ad'yiah on finishing the food. The children were similarly taught other Ad'yiah for other occasions.

May Almighty Allah help us to follow the path of Deen and include us all in the blessing of founding and building this mosque. May He also help us in discharging the rights of this mosque that fall on our shoulders.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal
Karachi.

Date : After 'Asr Prayers

REALIZE THE VALUE OF TIME

الحمدلله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهدان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهد ان سيدنا ونبينا ومولانا محمداً عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد ! :

عن ابى عباس رضى الله تعالىٰ عنهما قال قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم نعمتان مغبون فيهما كثيرمن الناس الصحة والفراغ (بخارى، كتاب الرقائق، باب ماجاء فى الصحة والفراغ، حديث نمبر ٦٠٤٩)

All praise to Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His pardon. We believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Allah from the evils of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah, the One. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our master, our Prophet and our Sire, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant His Messenger. May Allah shower His mercy on him, his household and his Companions رضى الله عنه and bless them and salute them all in great abundance.

(Bukhari -- Kitabur-riqaq..... Hadith no: 6049)

Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه

As I had said earlier that after completing the study of "Riyazus-Saliheen" it is the intention to commence, God willing, the study of some other book of Hadith. So, today another book of Hadith is being commenced, in the name of Allah. May Allah grant us, by His mercy, lights and blessings and help us to act upon the injunction contained therein.

This book, "Az-zuhd war-Raqaiq" was compiled by Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه an Imam, Faqih, Muhaddis, Sufi, and Mujahid. He is one of those saints of our Ummah on hearing whose name a current of affection and deference runs through our hearts. Even earlier I have mentioned from time to time in these meetings some accounts of his life. He was probably born in the beginning of the second century - Hijri. That is, he belonged to the period when about one hundred years had passed since the sad demise of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He is senior to and more reverent than the compilers of the six renowned books of Hadith known as Sihah Sittah from sacred Imam Bukhari to Imam Ibn Majah. He is also a contemporary and a student of Imam Abu Hanifah رحمة الله عليه. He lived in a period when the Islamic world was glittering with prominent personalities of knowledge and science. In those days peerless personalities were present almost in every corner of the Islamic world. Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه was born in the city of Merv in Khurasan, but later on he migrated to Baghdad and settled there.

A Unique event that reformed his life

Queer are the conditions of his life. The biographies of such saints are full of light and blessings. Every detail of these biographies have the effect of revolutionizing the trend of hearts, by the grace of Allah He hailed from a well-to-do family. In his book "Bustanul-Muhaddiseen" Hazrat Shah Abdul Aziz, Muhaddis Dehlavi has written an incident about him. He owned a very large and flourishing grarden of apple trees. Like the sons of rich men of those days he had become a spoilt boy, away from school and learning, enjoying full freedom to lead a life of revelry and merry-making, with no interest in Deen and its practices.

In one apple season he and his family shifted to the garden to enjoy the delicious apples and create the scene of a picnic party. He also invited to the party his friends. At nightfall a full-fledged merry-making party commenced with drinking and singing. He himself was an expert violin-player and a meritorious singer. Affected by the musical melody and the intoxicating wine, he fell into sleep, with the musical instrument in his lap. When he awoke-from the nap and touched the instrument it was totally dead. He did his best to repair it, but in vain_no tune, no music. He once again tried to repair the instrument by re-setting its strings. When he played upon it, then instead of music, a voice was heard, but it was the voice of the Qur'anic verse:

اَلَمْ يَأْنِ لِلَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْٓا اَنْ تَخْشَعَ قُلُوْبُهُمْ لِذِكْرِ اللّٰهِ وَمَا نَزَلَ مِنَ الْحَقِّ

(سورة الحديد:١٦)

Is not the time ripe for those who have believed (in Allah) that their hearts should submit to the remembrance of Allah and t the truth which has been revealed? (57:16)

What an effective way of addressing a man drowned in sins inducing him to take to the path of righteousness!

According to a narrative this voice of recitation of the Qur'anic verse was coming out of the same violin. According to another narrative it was emanating from the beak of a bird. Any way, it was a miraculous incident from Almighty Allah which indicated His Mercy. This voice touched his heart to the core and he irresistibly fell to the thought that he had wasted his life in wrongs and sins only. At once he replied saying:

بلی یارب قدآن... بلی یارب قدآن

(Why not O my lord: The time is now ripe (for that).

"Now I give up all my sinful activities and turn to Almighty Allah." He was true to his pledge. After relinquishing all these foolish and harmful engagements he decided to devote himself whole-heartedly to Deen. Now compare his previous life of revelry and merry - making with this tremendous revolution that he became the compiler of this book to guide humanity and he died in this honoured capacity. Today the necks of the entire Muslim Ummah are bent before his favours and kindness shown to them. (Bustamul Hadith p-155)

His status in the science of Hadith

Almighty Allah had bestowed upon him a very high status in the science of Hadith. Very grand Ulama of Hadith have fallen victim to adverse comments. Even Imam Bukhari, Imam Abu Hanifa رحمة الله عليه and Imam Shafi'i رحمة الله عليه could not be spared from such comments. I have, however, not come across anyone who has made any comment on the narratives and Ahadith of Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه. So high-ranking a Muhaddith he is!

His lack of interest in, and retirement from the world

As mentioned earlier, he belonged to a noble dynasty and was himself a rich man. Even in the changed conditions of his life he used to have on his dining table from ten to fifteen delicious dishes which were shared by a large number of guests. While the guests were eating the food and he was playing host to them, he himself was fasting.

His occupation with the Ahadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

It is recorded about his ancestral house in the city of Merv in Khurasan that its courtyard was fifty yards square. The entire yard remained filled with the needy. Some called upon him to ask some questions in Deen, some to take lessons and some for their personal needs. Later on when he migrated to Bughdad, he purchased for himself a small house where he lived in seclusion and obscurity. Someone asked him how he lived in such a small house in Bughdad after having left his palatial building in Merv. In reply he said that he lived more comfortably and happily in the small house in Baghdad, because in Baghdad he had a more peaceful and seculded life which was not available in Merv. In Baghdad he went to the mosque for praying and came back to his house to busy himself with the study of the Ahadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ . He said that a life of seclusion like that was more pleasant to him.

Respect and love for him in the hearts of the people

In those days there was a city named Ruqqa which is now a sector of Baghdad. During his caliphate once Haroon Rashid was sitting in the royal tower with his mother or wife, when he heard a huge noise rising from the boundary walls of the city. Haroon Rashid thought that perhaps some enemy had attacked the city. He at once sent his men to inquire about the matter. He was informed that the noise was due to the people's clamour who had gone out of the city to receive. Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه who was coming to the city of Ruqqa.

I heard from my father, Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه that during the reception Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه happened to sneeze he said (الحمد لله). In reply to this the people uttered (يرحمك الله) (May Allah have mercy on you) . This was the cause of the noise. Seeing this scene the wife of Rashid said to her husband: You are a great king, ruling over about half the world, but it is these godly men who deserve to rule over land. A real king is he who rules over the hearts of the people. It was not Police but the love of the saint which had brought so many people at the place, this was the high station at which. Almighty Allah had placed him. (History of Baghdad 1/156).

A strange event of his generosity

Almighty Allah had granted him رحمة الله عليه huge wealth and luxuries of the world, but his heart was not at all occupied with the love of the world. His condition was a full demonstration of the common proverb "the world is in the hand not in the heart". while living in Khorasan, he intended to proceed on the Hajj pilgrimage, when the people of the town came to know this, they called upon him in a delegation and desired to go for Hajj with him, so that they may benefit by his company during the journey. Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه agreed with them on the condition that they should deposit their provisions and money with him, so that he may spend the amount joinitly for all of them. The people deposited their purses with him رحمة الله عليه and he kept them in box, and set off on the Hajj journey. He himself arranged for the conveyance and food , till on the completion of the Hajj he took them with him to Madinah Munaw-warah. Here he asked his companions what their families had desired them to bring home for them from Madinah Munaw-wareh. He took them to the market and purchased for them what they desired. On coming back to Makkah Mukar- ramah, he repeated the same question and purchased for them from Makkah Mukar-ramah their needs.On coming back to Khorasan he arranged for a sumptuous feast for all. He also presented to every one some costly present. In the end he opened the bax in which he had kept their purses and returned to every one his purse- Such was his unique generosity: (Siar- Ilaa un- nubala 8/385)

His generosity and help to the poor

There is another similar story about him. Once he was going an a Hajj journey with a Caravan. On the way a hen of a member of the caravan died. They threw away the dead hen on the dust heap. Hazrt Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه was comming behind the caravan. He saw that a girl from the neighbouring village came out, rushed to the dead hen, wrapped if with a cloth and took it home quietly and quickly. Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه was observing all this and was at a loss to understand what the girl would do with that dead hen. Hazrat Abdullah Bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه followed that girl to her house. He asked her who she was and what she was going to do with that dead hen. The girl said to Hazrat Abdullah Mubarak رحمة الله عليه with some reluctance: I am an orphan girl and my mother is a widow. Today there is nothing in the house to eat. For many days we have been passing a wretched state in which the Shari'ah has made it lawful for us to eat dead meat. Thus, we keep ourselves alive by picking up from this heap dead animals.

Hearing this Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak's heart was awfully shocked. He thought what a pity that these servants of Allah are living on the meat of dead animals and he was going on the Hajj Pilgrimage! he inquired from his assistant about the money with him. The assistant replied that it was perhaps two thousand Dinars. He asked him that after deducting twenty Dinars for their Journey back home he should hand over the entire money to that girl. He would not go on the Hajj Pilgrimage that year. He thought that the reward Allah would give him for helping the poor family of the girl would be much more than the reward for Hajj.

Not only had Allah favoured him with one opportunity but many for doing righteous and good turns the extent of which we can hardly comprehend.

Another example of his generosity

Whenever Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه visited the city of Ruqqa a young man called upon him to ask him some religious problems and other matters. On one of his visits the saint did not see the young man and inquired the people about him. They informed the saint that he was heavily in debt which he could not pay. His creditor had, therefore got him arrested and imprisoned. The saint was very much pained to know this. He found out the amount of the debt which was ten thousand Dinars. He also found out the name of the creditor. He went in search of the creditor and at last met him. He offered to pay off the debt on the condition that the creditor would make a solemn promise not to tell the debtor who paid the debt. The creditor made such a promise. The saint, therefore, at once paid the amount of ten thousand Dinars to the creditor and the latter got the debtor released from the prison.

When after being released from the prison the young man came to the city, he came to know that Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه had recently been in the city but had left it just then. The young man ran after him and overtook him. Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه said to him: I was told that you are in prison. The young man replied in the affirmative and said that he had been released, by the grace of Allah. The saint asked the young man how he was released. The man said: Allah sent from the unseen world an angel who paid off his debt and brought about his release. Hearing this, Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه said: Now thank Allah for this favour. I too was praying to Allah for your release.

The young man told his friends that while Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه was alive he could not know who had paid off his debt. The creditor had made a solemn promise to the saint not to disclose the secret. After the death of Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه the creditor told the debtor that it was really the saint himself who got him released from the prison by paying off the the debt. (History of Baghdad 10/159).

Kitabuz-zuhd war-raqa-iq

At any rate, he رحمة الله عليه is a saint of very lofty status. The book we are going to start today is his compilation. It bears the name "Kitabuz-zuhd war-raqa-iq". It is a collection of those Ahadith in which the Holy Prophet ﷺ had preached the importance of a life of austerity and abstinence. By reading this book man's interest in the world is effaced from his heart and interest in the Hereafter is created. "Raqaiq" or "Riqaq" means those Ahadith that generate softness leniency and pathos in the hearts and removes negligence and carelessness from them. almost all Muhadiseen (Traditionalists) open in their books permanent chapter on such Ahadith, but Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه has compiled a separate book on this topic. There are other Muhaddiseen like Imam Wakee' bin al-Jarrah رحمة الله عليه, Imam Ahmad bin Hambal رحمة الله عليه and Imam Baihaqi رحمة الله عليه who had compiled books under the name of "Kitabuz-zuhd". However, this book of Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه earned greater fame than others, because, firstly, he is among the earlier writers and secondly, because Almighty Allah had endowed every work of his with blessings. That is why I decided to commence the study of this book so that Allah may, by His mercy and by virtue of this book", create some softness in our hearts and an interest in the Hereafter instead of the love of the world that has overwhelmed our hearts.

Two great blessings are being neglected

This book contains some Ahadith as well as some accounts and statements of the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم The first is that famous Hadith which is narrated from Hazrat Abdullah bin Abbas رضى الله عنه who has quoted the Holy Prophet ﷺ as saying:

نعمتان مغبون فيهما كثير من الناس الصحة والفراغ (بخارى، كتاب الرقاق، باب ماجاء في الصحة والفراغ حديث نمبر ٦٠٤٩)

(Bukhari. Kitabur-Raqaiq.... Hadith no: 6049)

There are two blessings of Almighty Allah about which many people are in deception. One of these blessings is health and the other is freedom from engagement and work or leisure at one's disposal. As long as man is enjoying these two blessings he remains under the impression that these will linger on with him for ever. As long as he is in good health he never thinks that one day he may fall ill. Similarly when he has leisure he thinks that a time will never come when he will become too much occupied with work and duties.

So as long as he enjoys these two blessings, in deception and misconception he whiles away his energies and time in useless pursuits and goes on postponing good deeds. He thinks, and quite wrongly, that he has yet much time at his disposal. The result is that he fails to reform and ameliorate himself. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has advised us that we should acknowledge the values of these blessings, the very moment they come to us.

Realize the value of Health

We do not know when the blessing of health, which we are presently enjoying, may be taken away from us by one disease or another. It is, therefore, imperative that we should start without loss of time projects of good deeds and charitable work, our own reform and the work of turning to Allah with repentance. Start work to ameliorate your Hereafter while you are enjoying this blessing; who knows if it will be available tomorrow?

Illness attacks its victim all of a sudden without giving any prior notice. A hale and hearty man suddenly falls victim to a disease. Now he is bed-ridden, unable to move. So, do not while away the period of your health and ability in sitting idle. Allah has granted you this health and strength for doing good deeds for this life as well as for the life after death i.e. the Hereafter. If you lose this health and are attacked by some disease, you will have to weep for the rest of your life and feel regret for not having turned to good account the available period of your health, although at this last stage regret and sorrow will not benefit you.

Act only upon one Hadith

This Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ belongs to the group of the جوامع الكلم (comprehensive speech). Imam Abu Daood رحمة الله عليه has said: There are a few such Ahadith that if a man acts upon them, it will be sufficient for his salvation in the Hereafter. The Hadith under consideration is one of these "comprehensive" Ahadith. That is why Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه has begun his book of Ahadith with this Hadith. Imam Bukhari رحمة الله عليه has also begun his book "Kitabur Riqaq" in the Sahih Bukhari with this Hadith. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has admonished us in this Hadith, well in advance. Admonition is of no value after the propitious time has passed away. The Holy Prophet ﷺ who is kinder to us than our parents and is well aware of our tendencies and temparaments has worried us saying: The state of good Hadith and leisure available to you now may or may not be available later on. So turn to good account these blessings before the opportunity passes away and you face regret and sorrow.

It is Satan's deception to feel that I am in the bloom of youth

This "Self" is always deceiving man by beguiling him: We are yet in the bloom of our youth. We have not seen the world. This is the age to enjoy ourselves. We shall turn to Allah when the ripe time arrives for that. Then we shall think of reforming ourselves.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is warning us saying: do not mind the deceptions of the self and satan. The time which Almighty Allah has granted is very precious; it is huge wealth. Every available moment of man's lifetime is very valuable. Do not waste them. Use them for the good of the Hereafter.

Had We not granted you an age so long

It accurs in the Holy Qur'an that when man will be brought before Allah on the Day of Judgement, he will say to Allah:

"Our Lord! Release us; we will do right not (the wrong) that which we used to do. (35:37)

Allah will say:

أَوَلَمْ نُعَمِّرْكُمْ مَّا يَتَذَكَّرُ فِيهِ مَنْ تَذَكَّرَ وَجَاءَكُمُ النَّذِيرُ (سورة فاطر:٣٧)

"Did We not grant you a life long enough for him who reflected and who cared to reflect. And the warner came to you. (35:37)

That is : Not only did Allah grant you a sufficiently long life, but He also sent for you warners from time to time, about one lakh and twenty four thousands in number, the last being the Holy Prophet ﷺ, assisted by his caliphs and successors to prompt you to action and tell you to utilize rightly the time and resources at your disposal.

Who are these warners?

The commentators of the Qur'an have given different meanings of the term "Warners" Some have said that the word means the Prophet ﷺ and their successors who preach "Deen" to the people. Some have said that by "Warner" is meant the "white hair" on the head. When the hair turns white, it should be taken as a warner from Allah to warn us of approaching death, and exhort us to repent for our past sins, reform our ways of life and prepare for the Hereafter. Some others have interpreted it to mean "Grandsons" If a grandson is born to anyone and the man becomes a grand father, then this grandson is a warner, as if saying: O grandfather! Your hour is approaching Now make room for us.

A Dialogue with the Angel of death (عزرائیل)

I heard from my respected father, Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه that a man happened to meet the angel of Death (عزرائیل). The man complained to the angel, saying: You visit your victims without prior notice and take out their souls from their bodies and thus cause their deaths. This is not followed in the worldly courts. No criminal is caught unless a notice is issued to him, calling for his explanation. The angel of death replied, saying: Mr., you are mistaken in levying this charge against me. I issue more notices and more frequently than any court or department of this world. None takes seriously these notices. You have my notice on everyone of these occasions; when you have fever or you suffer from any other disease; become white haired: when a grandsn is born. I issue so many notices from time to time but none takes these notices.

That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: control yourself and utilize the periods of your good health and vacant hours and leisure to prepare yourself for the Hereafter. None knows what shall happen the next day.

If you have anything to do, do it

While admonishing us, our Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to tell us: Allah has granted you youth, good health and leisure. Make use of them and do whatever you want to do just now. Remember Allah and save yourself from sins, as you will be able to do nothing when you fall ill and become weak and short of time. He often used to recite this urdu complets:

ابھی تو ان کی آہٹ پر میں آنکھیں کھول دیتا ہوں
وہ کیسا وقت ہوگا جب نہ ہوگا یہ بھی امکان میں

It means : presently I am able to open my eyes on hearing the sound of the beloved's footsteps. What an awfully horrible time it will be when this too will become impossible!

At such a time of inability and helplessness it will not be possible to do anything for the Hereafter, even though there may be a burning desire to do something.

The regret for inability to offer two Raka'ats of prayer

It is narrated that once Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضی الله عنه was going on a journey. On the way he saw a grave. There he got off the animal and offered two Rak'ats of Nafl (optional) prayer. Then he got on the animal and resumed the journey. Thinking that it was perhaps the grave of some particular person, one of his companions asked the reason for his praying two Rak'ats Hazrat Abdullah bin 'Umar رضی اللہ عنہ replied, saying: When I passed by this place it occurred to me that the deeds of those who have gone to their graves have come to an end. These inmates of the graves may be keenly desiring if they could be able to offer two Rak'ats of Nafl prayer, but they cannot do so. I, therefore, thought that Allah has granted me this opportunity, so I should avail myself of it. That is why I got off my animal and offered two Rak'ats of Nafl.

Fill your Balance of Deeds with good deeds

These moments are very precious. That is why we have been commanded not to long for death, because we do not know what will happen to us after death.

You should note that all you can do and shall do will be done within the limits of the time and the opportunities which Allah has granted you in this world and not beyond that. So value the moments which Almighty Allah has granted you and utilize them in useful work without wasting a single moment. For example, in one moment you can rehearse once the sacred words سبحان اللہ According to a Hadith, only by uttering these two words, half the Balance of Deeds will be filled. After uttering once the words, الحمد للہ the Balance of Deeds will be filled. Now see how precious are these moments, but you are wasting and losing them. For God's sake use them in doing beneficial and sacred act. (Kanzul-'Ummal. Hadith no: 2018)

Hafiz Ibn Hajar رحمۃ اللہ علیہ and the realization of the value of time

Hafiz Ibn Hajar enjoys a very high status among the Muhaddiseen. He is a commentator of the sacred Bukhari and a mountain of learning. Man cannot imagine the height of his knowledge to which Allah had raised him. He is well known as an 'Alim, a compiler and a Muhaddis. It is recorded in his biography that during his writing when his pen of reed became blunt, it had to be reshaped by cutting off the blunt edge with a pen-knife. This took some time. The Hafiz رحمۃ اللہ علیہ did not like to waste even this little time. During this interval he رحمۃ اللہ علیہ uttered at least once the third Kalimah:

سبحان اللہ والحمد للہ ولا الہ الا اللہ واللہ اکبر

He رحمۃ اللہ علیہ did this to save time from being wasted. The time which he spent on writing books was like the time spent on worship. The time spent on uttering the third Kalimah, too, did not go waste. Anyway, the essence of the injunction of the Holy Prophet ﷺ is that we should all realize the value of time.

Hazrat Mufti Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ and the value of time

The most neglected thing today in our environment and society is time. It is passed in gossip, idle and useless talk or in occupations which are beneficial neither for Deen nor for the worldly life. My respected father Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ spent his time with great care, so that not a single moment went waste, but it was spent on some acts of Deen or of the world. Any worldly affair done with right intention also turns into an affair of Deen. By way of advising us, he once said to us that while a man is sitting in a latrine he can neither indulge in remembrance of Allah which is forbidden, nor in any other work. He felt his inactivity even in such a place very heavy on him. He, therefore, used to wash and clean the jug meant for use in the latrine. Thus, he took some advantage of the time he got in the latrine.

My father further said: I estimate in advance that I shall get five minutes after such work and I shall utilize those five minutes in doing such and such things. After taking meals one should avoid reading and writing at least for ten minutes. I, therefore, make a pre-plan for utilizing these ten minutes and do accordingly.

Those who have met my respected father رحمة الله عليه may have seen that even while driving in a car he used to scrible something. I have seen him writing in a rickshaw in which the traveller receives jerks after jerks. He used to utter one very useful sentence which is worth preserving in the memory by all of us.

The best formula for working

If you put off any work till the availability of time, it is postponed for ever and will never be done. If you have two items on your working programme and a third item suddenly arises insert this third one between the other two items. All the three items will get disposed of without difficulty. I am grateful to my respected father for this valuable advice which I follow and find quite plausible. If you postpone a work for some other time, it will never be done, because the vicissitudes of time will never spare you for this. If a man feels the imprtance of some work, he finds time to complete it somehow.

Will the "Self " be neglectful despite this?

Our Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه gave us very useful advice, saying: If you decide to recite the Qur'an or to offer nafl prayers, but when the appointed time arrives you feel lethargic and disinclined to get up from your bed, then on such occasions try to train your "self", and address it in this way: You are not inclined to get up for prayer this time, but what will you do, if you receive an invitation from the King or the President of the country to award you some valuable prize or a high-grade and high-paid post? Will you feel lethargic even in such a situation and reject the President's invitation on the ground that you are feeling sleepy and cannot leave your bed at this time? No sensible man can treat the royal invitation with this apathy. He will jump out of his bed atonce and begin to receive the valuable reward.

This shows that in reality there is no excuse for lying in the bed. Had there been an excuse the self would not have shown agilty in accepting the President's invitation. Now consider this. A worldly authority, who is indeed powerless and weak, is inviting you to offer a post and you are so anxiously and hurriedly preparing for the interview. Consider what should be your attitude towards an invitation from the King of Kings, the Creator and Nourisher of the entire Universe, the Omnipotent and Oniscient Lord and the Master of life and death? Such an imagination and argumentation will generate courage in you and you will be able to put to good use the time which you used to waste.

The remedy to cure lustful thoughts

Once Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه delivered before us the following sermon:

Desires arise in the heart from time to time to commit sins. How to resist them? Suppose you are being instigated from within to cast a glance on some forbidden and unlawful but attractive sight. Before succumbing to the sinful urge think if you would commit this sin when your father, your Sheikh or one of your sons daughters was looking at you in this situation. Certainly not. You would resist the temptation at all costs in such a situation.

Consider again that it would make no difference in your status in this world nor in the Hereafter if these relatives saw you committing this sin of the eye. Why should you not mind the fact that, after all, the King of all Kings, Allah, is seeing you in this condition? He is able to punish you for this sin: If you resist the temptation by such imagination and thinking, it is hoped that Allah will save you from such sins.

The Film of your life will be televised

I remember another advice of Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه which he offered, saying:

Just consider what would be your answer if Allah made to you on the Day of Judgement the following proposal:

"All right, if you are afraid of Hell, I shall save you from Hell on the condition that I shall prepare a film depicting your entire life beginning from your child-hood, including your youth and old age till the day of your death. I will show the film on a screen. Among its spectators will be your father, your mother your brothers and sisters, your children, your pupils, your teachers and your friends. The film shall display the picture of your entire life. If you accept this condition then I shall save you from Hell. Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه went on saying: In such a situation man shall probably tolerate the punishment of the Fire, but will not tolerate the secrets of his entire life to be disclosed to all these persons. When you cannot tolerate that all the good or bad aspects of your life are disclosed to your parents, relatives, friends and others, how would you like the disclosure of the details of your life to Almighty Allah. Just reflect on this.

Do not postpone it till tomorrow

Anyway, this Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ is very useful and deserves to be firmly impressed on the heart, that every moment of life is very precious. Do not waste the time presently available to you by putting off work. If you postpone it till tomorrow that tomorrow will never come. If you have to do anything do it today and just now; commence doing it without the slightest delay. Who knows if tomorrow shall dawn, the urge shall remain alive and the circumstances shall be favourable or the capacity to do it shall not be taken away from you? More than this, who knows if you will be alive tomorrow? That is why the Holy Qur'an has said:

وَسَارِعُوْا اِلٰى مَغْفِرَةٍ مِّنْ رَّبِّكُمْ وَجَنَّةٍ عَرْضُهَا السَّمٰوٰتُ وَالْاَرْضُ

(سورة ال عمران: ١٣٣)

"And rush to seek the forgiveness of your Lord and Paradise as wide as are the skies and the earth." (3: 133)

In this verse man has been urged to compete with one another in rushing to Allah's forgiveness and Paradise so wide and spacious as the skies and the earth.

It is desirable to make haste in doing good

Ordinarily, hurry and haste are not desirable habits, but they are quite desirable in doing good deeds when an urge arises in the heart for that مسارعت implies in its meaning competing with one another in doing good. Almighty Allah has granted us this time for this work. May Allah impress this point upon our hearts and help us to act upon it. Aameen. Today we have fallen victim to carelessness and thoughtlessness. The idea of the Hereafter hardly finds a place in our thoughts and reflections at any time during the twentyfour hours. We are proceeding headlong towards negligence. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has explained this point in a Hadith in the following style:

Realize the value of five items

عن عمر بن ميمون الا ودى رضى الله تعالى عنه قال قال رسول الله عليه وسلم لرجل وهو يعظه اغتنم خمسا قبل خمس شبابك قبل هرمك وصحتك قبل سقمك وغنا ك قبل فقرك وفراغك قبل شغلك وحياتك قبل موتك (مشكوة كتاب الرقاق رقم ٥٩٨٧)

(Mishkat Kitabur-riqaq Hadith no: 5987)

Hazrat Umar bin Maimoon Awdi رضى الله عنه has narrated that, while advising one of his companions, the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Realize the value of five items before the loss of five other items, viz., (1) the value of youth before old age; (2) the value of health before illness; (3) the value of affluence before poverty; (4) leisure and vacant time before occupation and engagement; and (5) your life before your death.

Realize the value of youth

All these five blessings are ordained to come to their natural ends. If presently it is youth it is to be followed by old age or death. It is not everlasting. There is no third alternative. So, while you have good health, strength, courage and resolution, do some good deeds. After becoming crippled and disabled by old age you can do nothing. Take lesson from Sheikh Sa'di's persion couplet:

وقت پیری گرگ ظالم میشود پرہیزگار
در جوانی توبہ کردن شیوہ پیغمبری

Even a cruel wolf becomes righteous during the old age, because he has no strength in him to hunt his prey. To turn to Allah in repentance during youth is the Practice of the Prophets. So realize the value of youth for doing good work before the arrival of the old age or before.

Realize the value of Health, wealth and leisure

At this time you are hale and hearty. Remember that there is none in the world who is immune from the attack of diseases. Everyone is sure to fall victim to some disease. Man is, however, quite in dark about the time of the disease. That is why it is advised that you should realize value of the health you are presently enjoying.

Presently you are well-to-do and have monetary resources with you, but none knows how long this affluence will continue with you. How many persons there are who have become paupers, though a little before they were rich men. None knows what will happen the next day. So, realize the value of your wealth before its possible change into poverty and spend your resources in ameliorating the affairs of your Hereafter.

Similarly if you have leisure now, value it before you become engaged in some work. The hours of leisure which Allah has granted you are not eternal. They may soon pass away and you may become engaged in some work. So utilize this leisure in useful and lawful work. Likewise, realize the value of life before death visits you.

Recite these Adʿyiah every morning

In order to turn to good account the time available to you in this world, draw up a time-table for your daily activities of life from morning till evening. Then make a careful survey of what you are actually doing and how far it is possible for you to add to charitable and benevolent work; what are the sins you are committing which you must give up. After the Fajr (morning) prayer make it a routine to approach Allah with this prayer: O Allah! I am going out for my regular work with the intention to convert the activities of today into a deposit for the Hereafter. O Allah! Help me in the realization of this intention. All should remember the Adʿyiah which the Holy Prophet used to recite every morning. He ﷺ used to open the day with this Duʿa:

اللهم انی اسئلك خیر مافی هذا الیوم وخیر ما بعده اللهم انی اعوذبك من شرما فی هذا الیوم وشرما بعده (ترمذی، ابواب الدعوات، باب ماجاء فی الدعاء اذا اصبح)

"O Allah I beg you to grant me the good of this day and the good of what comes after it. O Allah I seek refuge with You from the evil of this day and the evil of what comes after it.

(Tirmidhi .... Chapter on Adʿyiah morning)

اللهم انی اسئلك خیر هذا الیوم وفتحه ونصره ونوره وبرکته وهداه (ابو داؤد کتاب الادب، باب مایقول اذا اصبح، حدیث نمبر ٤٩٢٠)

O Allah I beg you to grant me the good of this day, its victory, its assistance, its light its blessing and its right of guidance. (Abu Daood..... Hadith No: 4920)

The Adʿyiah (supplications) which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us includes every thing concerning our Deen and the world. He who remembers these should recite them every morning; those who do not remember then should implore Allah in their own mother tongue in this way: O Allah! I am starting this day with the intention that I shall spend the twentyfour hours of the day in the right way and try to save them from wrong use and wasting them in vain. This is only my intention, but everything depends on You, on Your help, courage and resolve that You may grant me kindly put me on such a path and create for me such circumstances that I may spend the twentyfour hours of this day according to Your will and pleasure. Pray every morning in this way and Allah will not let these hours go waste.

After this Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمۃ اللہ علیہ is citing two sayings of Hazrat Hasan Basri رحمۃ اللہ علیہ

عن الحسن رحمة الله تعالى انه كان يقول ادركت اقواما كان احد هم اشح على عمره منه على دراهمه ودنانيره وعن الحسن انه كان يقول ابن آدم ايا ك والتسويف فانك بيومك ولست بغد وان يكن غدلك فكس فى غد كما كست فى اليوم والا يكن لك لم تندم على ما فرطت فى اليوم (كتاب الزهد والرقائق ص ٤)

(Kitabuz-zuhd war-ra-qaiq, P-4)

Hazrat Hasan Basri رحمۃ اللہ علیہ

Hazrat Hasan Basri رحمۃ اللہ علیہ is one of the most dignified "Tabi-ʿeen" (followers of the companions)). All orders of the Tariqat and the Mashaikah terminate in Hazrat Hasan Basri رحمۃ اللہ علیہ.

In other words, the order commencing from the Holy Prophet ﷺ passes through Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ and ends in Hazrat Hasan Basri رحمۃ اللہ علیہ. Those who recite the "mystical tree know very well that it contains the name of Hazrat Hasan Basri رحمۃ اللہ علیہ. We are all highly indebted to him for so many favours he has done to the Muslim Ummah. It is through the auspices of these dignified saints that we have been receiving so many blessings from Allah.

Time is more precious than gold and silver

Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه has cited here two sayings from him. In the first saying he has said that he saw and enjoyed the company of such saints as valued the moments of their lives a great deal more than the gold and silver coins of Dinar and Dirham. Just as men, in general, are careful in saving and spending their money, in the same way these godly men valued the moments of their lives and regarded them more precious than the metal coins, lest they should be wasted in useless pursuits, unlawful activities and acts not approved by the Shari'ah. They were men who realized the value of time and spent it most cautiously and sparingly. We should all learn a lesson from them about the correct use of time and its value.

The value of two Rak'ats of Nafl (optional) Prayer

Once the Holy Prophet ﷺ was passing by a graveyard along with some of his companions رضی الله عنهم. He ﷺ addressed his companions, syaing: You often offer two Rak'ats of the Nafl (Optional) Prayers hurriedly and without realizing their value. However, in the sight of the man lying buried in the grave, these two Rak'ats are more valuable than all the wealth of the world. The soul confined in the grave might be earnestly and regretfully wishing if he could find in his life two minutes more to offer two Rak'ats of Nafl Prayer and add its reward to his Record of Deeds.

A voice is coming out of the graveyard

My respected father Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه has composed a poem which is worth reading and which is based on a poem of Hazrat Ali رضی الله عنه. The theme of the poem is "Voice from the Graveyard". Thus begins the poem:-

مقبرے پر گزرنے والے سن
ٹھہر، ہم پر گزرنے والے سن

ہم بھی ایک دن زمین پر چلتے تھے
باتوں باتوں میں ہم مچلتے تھے

The poet imagines the dead saying:
O passer-by, halt and listen to me, One day I was also walking on the earth, and showing obstinacy on every trifle.
The poet explains the meaning of these two couplets thus: Even like you we ate and drank and enjoyed life. However, not even an atom of what I earned in the worldly life came with me. I brought with me from the world what good deeds I could do, by the grace of Allah. Except for this, nothing came with me to the grave. O passer-by, I am anxiously waiting day and night for someone to offer Fatiha and transmit to me its reward. On the other hand, O passer-by you are enjoying these precious moments of life for which I am longing anxiously and regretfully.

Only the "Deeds" will go with you

What wonderful and unique styles did the Holy Prophet ﷺ employ to warn his Ummah about the Hereafter! He ﷺ has said in a Hadith:

When the dead body is carried to the graveyard three things go with it: (1) its friends and relatives who go to the grave to see him off; (2) some of his belongings, e.g., his cot, coffin, etc.; (3) his deeds. The first two, i.e., his relatives and friends come back. The thing that accompanies the dead body is only the man's deeds.

(Bukhari, Kitabur-raqa-iq, ch. Throes of death)

Someone has so beautifully described this in a couplet:

شکریہ اے قبر تک پہنچانے والو شکریہ
اب اکیلے ہی چلے جائیں گے اس منزل سے ہم

Thanks to you, O who have come to see me off the grave. Now from this destination I shall go on alone.

In the poem "The voice coming out of the Graveyard," Hazrat Ali رضی اللہ عنہ has advised us that when we pass-by a grave we shall think a while that he too was a man like ourselves, living as we are living. He too had wealth, property, firends and relatives and lovers. He too had wishes and emotions. Today they have all gone to the dust. If he has anything, it is the deeds he did in the world. Now he is desiring regretfully, if he could get a few moments to add something to the collection of his good deeds.

Do not long for death

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has forbidden us to long for death, whatever the severity of the distress and tortures we may be undergoing in this life. Never pray: O Allah give me death. Although you are suffering from so many calamities surrounding you on all sides, yet you may do some good deeds in the moment available to you during your life time. These last instalments of good deeds may procure for you success and salvation in the Hereafter. Instead of praying for death, pray for safety and peace and that Allah may help you to spend the available moments of your life in good deeds calculated to please Almighty Allah.

Hazrat Mian Sahib's revelation

Hazrat Mian Sayyid Asghar Husain Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ was one of the teachers of my respected father رحمۃ اللہ علیہ. He was a very highly qualified saint with miraculous capacity. My respected teacher, Maulana Fazl Ahmad Sahib is in Swat. Once the latter himself told me this story He said that when Mian Sahib returned from Hajj, he was a student. One of the students proposed to call on Mian Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ to eat dates with him. We did not appreciate the reason for visiting Mian Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ only to eat dates instead of asking for Du'a from such a great saint. Even so, we proceeded to meet him in a group of six to seven students. When we met Mian Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ and saluted him, he said to his servant: This gentleman has come here for dates so give him some dates and let him go. As for the rest, call them in. So enlightened a saint he was!

How to be safe from too much talking

My respected father رحمۃ اللہ علیہ told me that once when he called upon Mian Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ, the latter proposed that in that meeting they both would talk together in the Arabic language. This was a very unusual plan the like of which had never happened before. My father then asked Mian Sahib to tell him the reason for that strange plan.

Mian Sahib رحمة الله عليه replied, saying: When we sit together talking to each other in Urdu sometimes we drift into useless topics and this tongue gets out of our control. As regards talking in Arabic, neither you nor I can speak it freely and fluently. The natural result will be that the talk will be confined to the most unavoidable topics.

Our Example

He further said: Our example is like that of a man who sets off on a journey with much wealth including gold and silver coins and he squandered nearly all the wealth and the coins during the journey. Only a few coins remained. Now that fellow was spending those remaining coins very sparingly and cautiously, lest he should squander those few remaining coins. He went on to say: We have passed a greater part of our lives in useless pursuits and only a few moments remain with us. We should be careful about these few precious moments, lest they too should be spent in useless pursuits. This is the same principle to which Hazrat Hasan Basri رحمة الله عليه has also referred in his sermon. The true fact remains that the team of learned men whom Almighty Allah raised from the institution of Deoband refreshed our memories of the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم of the Holy Prophet ﷺ by their conduct and character.

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه and the value of Time

My Shaikh, Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه has mentioned a unique behaviour of Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه. When Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه was lying on his death bed the Doctors had stopped all interviews and totally forbidden him to speak. One day suddenly he opened his eyes and sent for Maulawi Muhammad Shafi رحمة الله عليه. When the latter come Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه said to him: you are writing "Ahkamul Qur'an". It occurred to my mind just now that from such and such verse a religious injunction can be deduced an injunction which I did not see elsewhere earlier. After saying this he closed his eyes. Soon after he again opened his eyes and sent for another man. When that man came he entrusted to him some work. When Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه repeated this practice then the Manager of the Khanqah and his informal and intimate friend, Maulana Shabbir Ali Sahib, reminded Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه of the instruction of the Doctors and physicians which he was disobeying repeatedly. In reply to that freindly warning the ailing Maulana spoke a very wonderful sentence: You are quite right but I think that:

"those moments go waste which are not used in the service of anyone. It is a great blessing of Allah if one spends his lifetime in the service of humanity".

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه and his Timetable

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه had drawn up a complete Time Table for the period from morning till evening which he strictly followed. It was his routine to visit his two wives after the 'Asr (late afternoon). prayer to have some conversation with them and inquire after their welfare. It was to comply with the orders of the Shari'ah to accord fair-play and justice to wives. This was in fact to follow the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. There is a Hadith to the effect that He ﷺ used to visit his sacred wives one by one daily after the 'Asr prayer to inquire after their welfare and also to have some conversation with them. See how the Holy Prophet ﷺ did not fail to entertain and please his sacred wives رضى الله عنهن, notwithstanding all his multifarious engagements including Jihad, instruction and teaching and preaching of Deen.

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه had moulded his life on the pattern of the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. His visit to his two wives after the 'Asr pryaer was in compliance with the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The time for staying with each wife was fixed viz., fifteen minutes with each. He used a watch to ensure punctuality in time and justice to his wives. He would not reduce or increase the time even by a single minute. How meticulous was he in such matters!

So time is a great blessing of Allah which should not be wasted. Every moment of it is precious. It is slipping away from our hands slowly. It is melting away like ice, as someone has expresed it in these words:

ہو رہی ہے عمر مثل برف کم
چپکے چپکے رفتہ رفتہ دم بدم

Man's life is getting shorter and shorter minute by minute and second by second like the melting of ice.

The Reality of Birthdays

Birthday is celebrated when one year of anyone's age is completed. The people consider it a matter of joy that one year of the age has been completed. They celebrate this occasion like a joyous festival by lighting candles and cutting cakes, etc. The renowned Urdu poet Hazrat Akbar of Allahabad (India) has expressed the reality of this celebration very wisely in a couplet:

جب سالگرہ ہوئی تو عقدہ یہ کھلا
یہاں اور گرہ سے ایک برس جاتا ہے

Salgirah "عقدہ" means a year's knot; (گرہ) is an Arabic word meaning knot. The word (Girah) has also another meaning pocket. Thus, the couplet means: Allah has granted man some years, like putting some money in one's pocket. Now the completion of one year of life means that out of one's age ordained by Allah one year has passed or the age has been reduced by one year. Is it an occasion for enjoyment or for mourning that the boy or the person has lost one precious year of his life?

A Dirge (مرثیہ) on the past years of life

My respected father رحمة الله عليه on reaching the age of thirty years had made it a routine to compose a dirge after the passage of a certain number of years from his life. A dirge is composed to mourn the death of someone, but my father used to compose his own dirge under the title of "A Dirge on the past years of life."

Only with the help of Alalh can we understand the truth that past time does not, and cannot, come back. It is, therefore, no occasion of joy; it is rather an occasion to reflect seriously how to turn to good account the remaing years of our lives.

It is a matter of regret that time has become the cheapest thing today in our society. It is being wasted mercilessly in useless pursuits, gossips and other activities which are beneficial neither in our worldly affairs nor in the affairs of the Hereafter.

There are three categories of activites

Hazrat Imam Ghazzali رحمة الله عليه has said that the activities of this world may be divided into three categories: Firstly, those that have some benefit and use, whether pertaining to the world or to Deen (religion). Secondly, those that are harmful and useless, either in resepct of the world or Deen. Thirdly, those activities which are neither beneficial nor harmful; they are totally useless. Thereafter, Hazrat Ghazzali رحمة الله عليه has said that so far as harmful activities are concerned they have to be shunned at all costs. The third category of activities, which are neither beneficial nor harmful, may also be regarded as harmful. This is becausae instead of spending your time in something beneficial and useful you are wasting it in doing something in which there is no benefit for you. Thus, you have only wasted the time which you could have turned to good account.

In reality this too is a great loss

Take an example. Suppose a man goes to an island in which there is a rock of gold. The owner of the rock permits the man to take out gold from the rock as much as he desires till a certain date but not after the expirty of the appointed date when the permission shall be cancelled suddenly and the man shall have to get out of the island. Now consider will that man waste any moment in taking advantage of the permission to extract gold? Will he postpone the work of collecting gold and prefer to go about in the island to enjoy its beautiful scenes for sometime? That man shall never do so. It will be his anxiety and effort to extract gold as much as possible, because that gold will be his sole property. If, instead of extracting gold, he sits aside, he really shall incur a great loss because of his negligence.

The queer loss of a businessman

A businessman used to call on my respected father from time to time. He had a big business in the city. Once he came to my father and requested him to pray for him as he had sustained a great loss. My father felt very sorry to hear that and asked him about the extent of the loss. He said that the loss ran into millions of Rupees. On being asked to give the details of the loss he told my father that a business bargain worth millions of Rupees could not be settled. But for this, the normal busines activities were going on smoothly and satisfactorily. The businessman told my respected father رحمة الله عليه that the failure to strike the bargain entailed a great loss. Now see! This businessman considered it a huge loss when he could not earn a prospective profit. After relating this story, my respected father رحمة الله عليه observed:

It was better if the businessman had thought similarly about Deen. If he had spent the available time in useful activities and in the path of Allah and the Hereafther, he would have earned a huge profit which he could not earn. Thus, he sustained a great loss in the matter of Deen.

The Story of a Bania
(An Indian Hindu Shopkeeper)

There is an event of exciting laughter, yet it contains useful morals for one endowed with intelligence. An elderly saint of ours who is also a famous physician told us this story of a Bania who was a druggist and his son also used to help him in the business at the shop. One day the Bania was going somewhere. He asked his son to look after the business. He instructed the son as to the prices of the various drugs. The son agreed to look after the business in his father's absence. A little later a customer came to the shop and purchased two bottles of some syrup at the rate of one hundred Rupees per bottle. When the father returned after some time he asked his son about the sales. The son told his father about the sales including the two bottles of the syrup which he had sold for one hundred Rupees each. On hearing this the father was greatly shocked at the action of his son who had sold the two bottles of the syrup for one hundred instead of two thousand Rupees each. He scolded the son at his folly. The son too seriously felt the loss of his father and began to weep owing to the fault and besought his father to pardon him. When the father saw that his won was very much shocked at his folly, he consoled and comforted him thus: My son, it is not necessary to worry so much, because even the amount of Rs. 100/= for which you have sold the bottle of the syrup contians an element of profit. If you had worked wisely you could have sold the bottles for Rs two thousands, each. Anyway, we are not in loss at all.

Thus we see that if a businessman does not make a profit he thinks that he is in loss. If the absence of profit is regarded as loss in the worldly business, the same principle should apply to transactions concerning Deen. That is why Imam Ghazzali رحمة الله عليه has said that if we spend the available moments in activities which do not bring any profit, then this really means loss. If you had so desired, you could have earned a huge profit for the Hereafter. Mould your life on this pattern and see the result.

The Present Age and Time-saving devices

And think a bit how many comforts and blessings Allah has bestowed upon us in this scientific age, which our ancestors could not imagine. For example, in the olden days we had to collect wood sticks and dry them to make fire. Making tea used to take at least half an hour. Now, by the grace of Allah, we have electric and gas stoves on which we can prepare tea in two minutes. Thus, only in preparing tea we save twenty-eight minutes. In the same way the lengthy and tedious process of baking bread, cooking meat and other foods have given way to instant baking and cooking on scientific appliances. Similarly, there are so many labour and time-savings blenders, grinders, crushers, cutters and choppers that provide us with finished products in minutes. Now think how is the time so saved employed. If we ask our women to do something, they say they have no time for that. In the olden days women did all this household duties manually, yet they had time enough to offer prayers, recite the Holy Qur'an and indulge in remembrance of Allah. Inspite of all these facilities women say that they get no time for the recitation of the Qur'an and remembrance of Allah.

In the olden days journeys were performed on foot or on horses and camels and thereafter on horse-carts and bicycles, buses and trains and then aeroplanes. Journeys taking months are now performed in days and hours. Yesterday I was in Madinah Munaw-warah where, by the grace of Allah. I offered the Zuhr, 'Asr, Maghrib and 'Isha prayers and today I have offered the Juma prayer here. Could anyone imagine in the past that it was possible for anyone to come back from Madinah Munaw-warah the next day? The position of journeys in the past was that if anyone was going to the Haramayn Sharifayn he would set off on the long journey after having his fautls and shortcomings excused by his friends and relations, becuase the journeys were very long and hazardous. Now Allah has made travelling so easy that a month's journey is performed in one day. Where has the saving of twenty-nine days gone? The simple answer is that the saving in time has been wasted and people say that they have no time.

Almighty Allah has granted us these facilities, so that we may save time and utilize it in remembring Him and in preparing for the Hereafter. Now think where we are.

Satan has involved us in show-business

Lest the time saved should not be used in the remembrance of Allah and other useful activities, Satan has invented other engagements. He has involved us in show-business and instigated us to acquire the various luxuries of modern life and to earn more money for purchasing these luxuries, like the Radio, Television, V.C.R. We are all under the instigation of Satan and are sailing on the same boat. The time so saved is killed in gossip, useless recreation and other harmful pursuits.

Wastage of Time among womenfolk

The womenfolk are more commonly and widely afflicted with the show-business and wastage of time. They do a work in one hour which can be easily done in one minute. When they sit together they engage themselves in long and tall talks which necessarily include backbiting, lying, injuring the hearts of others and God knows what not. That is why Hazrat Hasan Basri رحمة الله عليه has said that he has seen people who regarded the moments of their lives more precious than gold and silver. They scrupulously guarded these moments, lest they should be lost in useless pursuits.

Why should I waste time in taking revenge?

Perhaps I have already related this story to you that a gentleman went out in search of a friend of Allah (اولياء). He came across a saint and informed him of his objective. The Wali advised him to go to a particular mosque where he would find three saints engaged in rememberance of Allah. He advised the man to strike each of them with a blow at the back. When the man went to the mosque he found there three saints engaged in remembrance of Allah as he had been advised. He struck a blow at the back of one saint. The saint did not even look back at what had happened and remained remembering Allah. Why did he do so? He thought that during the time spent on looking back and taking revenge from the culprit he would utter the words سبحان الله many times and the benefit which would accrue to him from this conduct would not accrue to him from taking revenge.

Hazrat Mianji Noor Muhammad and how he realised the value of time

When Hazrat Mianji Noor Muhammd Janjanavi رحمة الله عليه went to the market to purchase anything he would hold his purse in his hands. After making the purchases he would place the purse before the shopkeeper and ask him to count and take the price. He did this, because he would utter the sacred words سبحان الله many times during the time spent on taking out the money from the purse, counting it and paying it to the shopkeeper.

Once when he was going somewhere with his purse in his hand, a thief snatched the purse from his hands and ran away. Hazrat Mianji Noor Muhammad رحمة الله عليه did not even look back to see who had snatched his purse and came back home. Why did he do so? He thought it better to remember Allah than to run after the thief. These saints and friends of Allah took care not to waste their time in activities which were not conducive to, and beneficial for their life in the Hereafter.

The matter needs to be tackled more hurriedly

This was in fact in compliance with a Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. I feel afraid when I read this Hadith. The Hadith contains many morals and warnings. Hazrat Abdullah bin ʿUmar رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that he had a hut. The Arabic word for hut is خص. The hut had some wear and tear and one day he was repairing it. By chance the Holy Prophet ﷺ passed by him and asked what he was doing. In reply Hazrat Abdullah bin ʿUmar said:

خص لنا وهي فنحن نصلحه

O Prophet of Allah we have a broken hut which we are repairing. At this the Holy Prophet ﷺ said:

ما اری الامر الا اعجل من ذلك

"There is a matter which requires to be tackled more promptly". (Abu Dawood..... Hadith No: 5236)

That is, none knows when the lifetime will expire and death will overtake man and take him to the other world of the Hereafter. The moments which are presently available demand matters to be disposed of more promptly. In such a situation "you are busy with the useless work of repairing your hut".

Now look! That Companion رضی اللہ عنہ was not building a palatial building, nor was he busy with its painting and decoration. He was only repairing his hut on which the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: There is a matter which requires to be tackled more promptly."

While explaining the meaning of this Hadith the learned Ulama have said that the Holy Prophet ﷺ did not stop the Companion رضی اللہ عنہ from repairing the hut, because it was not a sin nor was it unlawful. The Holy Prophet ﷺ desired to make him رضی اللہ عنہ cautious and alert, lest he should devote all his efforts and energies to the affairs of this world.

Anyway, if we cannot follow in the footsteps of these saints cent percent we should take care at least not to waste our precious time in useless pursuits. We should spend in useful work. It is a reality that by virtue of the remembrance of Allah a man can spend every moment of his life in preparing for the Hereafter.

Let your tongue remain wet with the remembrance of Allah, walking, sitting, standing, do every deed with true and sincere intention. If you act upon this advice your precious time will not go waste.

The relation of the Holy Prophet ﷺ with this world

Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا has narrated that when at night the Holy Prophet ﷺ slept at his bedding, marks of the bedding would appear on his sacred body. One night Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا spread the bed-sheet in two folds, so that there might be no marks left on the Prophet's ﷺ sacred body and he ﷺ might sleep more comfortably. When the Holy Prophet ﷺ got up in the morning he asked Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا to let the sheet be in one fold instead of two.

Once Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا decorated the walls of her room with a curtain on which there were pictures. The Holy Prophet ﷺ expressed displeasure at this and said: I shall not enter the room unless the curtain is removed, because it has pictures on it.

At another time Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا hung a curtain which had no pictures on it, yet on seeing it the Holy Prophet ﷺ said:

مالی وللدنیا ما انا والدنیا الا کَرَاکبٍ استظل تحت شجرة ثم راح وترکها (ترمذی کتاب الزهد حدیث ۲۳۷۸)

This means: What have I to do with the world. I am like a rider who takes rest for a short time under a shade, then leaves it and goes ahead."

(Tirmizi, Kitabuz-zuhd, Hadisth No: 2378)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has not prohibited his Ummah from these things, but by his habit and practice he has taught his Ummah not to take fancy to the charms of the world, nor to devote much time to its affairs, but he ﷺ has urged them to prepare for the Hereafter.

A Working Principle in this World

In one Hadith the Holy Prophet has said:

اعمل لِدُنيَاكَ بقدر بقائك فيها واعمل لِآخِرَتكَ بقدر بقائك فيها

This means:

work for your world in proportion to your stay in the world and work for your Hereafter in proportion to your stay in the Hereafter.

Our life in this world is short and limited , so we should work less for the sake of this world. As for the Hereafter it is eternal and limitless, so we should work more for the sake of the Hereafter.

This is the teaching of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

We cannot aspire to reach the status of Hazrat Mianji Noor Muhammad رحمة الله عليه or other saints like him. We must not, however, become totally unmindful of the Hereafter by becoming deeply drowned in, and attracted by the charms of the world.

An easy way of turning time to good account

An easy way of making good use of the available time is to do two things. Firstly, make the intention (نیت) rightly and sincerely so that whatever you decide to do, you shall do it for the pleasure of Allah. For example, if you earn money, take food, associate with your family at home, it should all be to please Allah and in compliance with the injunctions of the Sunnah. Secondly, you must keep yourself engaged in the remembrance of Allah to the best of your ability. It costs man nothing to remain rehearsing the following words while walking, sitting or lying in bed:

"سبحان الله والحمد لله ولا اله الا الله والله اكبر"

Does the rehearsal of these words entail any inconvenience or labour? If man follows this programme, his moments of life will remain profitably utilized.

Draw up a Schedule for your time

Thirdly refrain from useless activities and spend your time sparingly and thoughtfully and draw up a timetable of the available time and live strictly up to this Timetable. My respected father told me that every businessman prepares a Profit and Loss Account, showing the income, expenditure and Profit. He advised us to draw up a Profit and Loss Account of our time, out of the twenty four hours granted to us by Allah. We should calculate how many hours were spent for the pleasure of Allah and how many in useless and undesirable activities. In this way we should find out the Profit and Loss of our avilable time. If this is not done it means that the business is running in loss. Allah has said:

يٰٓاَيُّهَا الَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْا هَلْ اَدُلُّكُمْ عَلٰى تِجَارَةٍ تُنْجِيْكُمْ مِّنْ عَذَابٍ اَلِيْمٍ ۝
تُؤْمِنُوْنَ بِاللّٰهِ وَرَسُوْلِهٖ وَتُجَاهِدُوْنَ فِيْ سَبِيْلِ اللّٰهِ بِاَمْوَالِكُمْ وَاَنْفُسِكُمْ

(سورة الصف: ١٠)

O you who believe! shall I show you a business that will save from a painful doom? You should believe in Allah and His Messenger and strive for the cause of Allah with your wealth and your lives. (61.10)

This too is Jihad

People think that Jihad is only fighting the enemies of Islam in the battlefield with swords and guns. This is indeed a superior branch of Jihad. Jihad is, however, not confined to this. It is also a branch of Jihad to fight against one's "self", ones desires and emotions. If some feelings and thoughts are arising in the heart against the will of Allah, these should be resisted. This too comes within the definition of Jihad and is a profitable business. Its profit will accrue in the Hereafter. I have heard from my respected father a principle of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه that one who does not draw up a timetable of his time, nor does he keep an account of how one is spending one's available hours and minutes can hardly be regarded as a man. May Allah help us all to act upon these Principles. Aameen.

Never Postpone a Good Deed

Hazrat Hasan Basri رحمة الله عليه has further said:

ابن ادم ایـاك والتسويف

O son of Adam, beware of postponing good deeds. It is a natural tendency of man to postone good deeds for some other time i.e. till tomorrow or the day after tomorrow or for some other time. This is not a good tendency because experience shows that once a work is postponed it is never done. The principle of doing good deeds is that the deed should be undertaken as soon as the idea of doing it occurs to the mind and it should not be left undone.

Man gets time for a deed which he considers in his heart to be important

One of my Professor related to me an event which happened to him. Hazrat Maulana Khair Muhammad Sahib رحمة الله عليه who was a great successor of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه once complained to professor Sahib that he never paid a visit to him (i.e. Maulana) nor did he maintain any contact with him even through correspondence. In reply professor sahib said, that he did not get time for that. Hazrat Maulana Khair Muhammad Sahib رحمة الله عليه said: Look here! when it is said about anything that one could not get time for that it only means that no importance is given to the work. A man is sure to spare time for something when he realizes its importance in his heart. When this importance is absent in his heart the man ignores the work by saying that he has no time to do it.

Important work shall be accorded preference

It should be borne in mind that when many items of work accumulate with a person he cannot undertake all of them at one and the same time. In such a situation he will classify these items in order of their importance. If a person is doing a job but a more important job comes to him, then he will begin to work on the new job and postpone work on the first one for some time. This means that a man somehow or other finds time for a work when he realizes its importance. For example you have in hand many items of work and in the meantime you receive a call from the Prime Minister to see him. Will you ignore the Prime Minister's call for want of time? No, you will not do that, because now the response to the Prime Minister's call is more important. Postponing good deeds means that man does not realize their importance in his heart. He can find time for doing them only when he realizes their importance.

You have at your disposal only today

What a wonderufl sentence has Hazrat Hasan Basri رحمة الله عليه spoken next:

فانك بيومك ولست بغد وان يكن غدلك فكس فى غد

كما كست فى اليوم

This means that it is certain that today is at your disposal, but about tomorrow you are not certain. When tomorrow is not certain then dispose of your important business today on the belief that you will not see tomorrow and that whatever you have to do you must do today. Fortunately, if you get tomorrow then treat it in the same way as you are treating today, that this is at your disposal today and there will be no tomorrow. In this way work on the basis that the day at your disposal (i.e. today) is the last day of your life.

This Namaz (Prayer) may perhaps be the last Namaz of my life

That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said:

When you pray, pray like one who is going to leave the world for ever and who may not get another opportunity to pray again. So, offer the present prayer as best as possible, because you are not sure of getting an opportunity to offer another prayer.(Ibn Majah, Kitabuz -Zuhd-Hikmah)

Anyway, every Muslim knows with belief and certainty the points and principles which Hazrat Hasan Basri رحمة الله عليه has explained, this knowledge is of no use unless it is acted upon. True knowledge is that which includes a man to action. The sayings of these learned saints have this effect that if they are listened to or read with due attention and sincere desire they, by the grace of Allah, are sure to urge man to action.

Summary

From what we have discussed in the foregoing pages may be concluded that we should all realize the value of every moment of our lives and try to spend it in the rememberance of, and obedience to Almighty Allah. We should shun negligence, carelessness and wastage of time in useless pursuits. How nicely has someone put this idea:-

یہ کہاں کا فسانہء سود و زیاں

جو گیا سو گیا جو ملا سو ملا

کہو دل سے کہ فرصت عمر ہے کم

جو دلا تو خدا ہی کی یاد دلا

It does not matter what you have gained or what you have lost. Profit and loss deserve no consideration. Forget them.

Life is very short. During this short life let your heart remain occupied with the remembrance of Almighty Allah.

May Allah, by His mercy, so mould our hearts that we may spend the time at our disposal in this life in the remembrance of, and obedience to, Allah and in the path of the Hereafter. We should refrain from useless pursuits.

May Allah help us all to act upon all these golden principles-Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العلمين

Venue : Islamic Centre,
London
Date : 31st August, 1993

ISLAM AND HUMAN RIGHTS

الحمدلله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له واشهد ان سيدنا وسندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطن الرجيم بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم

لَقَدْ كَانَ لَكُمْ فِيْ رَسُوْلِ اللهِ اُسْوَةٌ حَسَنَةٌ لِمَنْ كَانَ يَرْجُوا اللهَ وَالْيَوْمَ الْاٰخِرَ وَ ذَكَرَ اللهَ كَثِيْرًا (سورة الاحزاب : ٢١)

اٰمنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم وصدق رسوله النبى الكريم ونحن على ذلك من الشاهدين والشاكرين والحمد لله رب العالمين

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and forgiveness. We believe in

Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our selves and the vices of our deeds. None can misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom He lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no God except Allah, the One. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our Master, our authority, our Prophet and our Sire, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah have mercy on him, his household and his Companions رضی اللہ عنہ and bless them all abundantly.

And in the Messenger of Allah you have a good model, for him who looks to Allah and the Last Day and remembers Allah much. (33:21)

Respected Ulama',

Mr. President of the Assembly and Hon'ble Audience,

The mention of his Blessed name

It is an occasion of great delight and luck for me to participate in this assembly which has been held to revive the mention of the blessed name of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It is a fact that this auspicious "mention" of his ﷺ blessed name is a source of great joy for us as some poet has said:

ذکر حبیب کم نہیں وصل حبیب سے

To talk about the friend is not less enjoyable than an actual meeting with him.

Almighty Allah has bestowed on this "mention" of the Prophet ﷺ excellence that if a person recites the sacred Darood on the Holy Prophet ﷺ only once, the reward of ten good deeds are credited to the reciter's account, by Allah's mercy. It is, therefore, a matter of great joy and luck to take part whether as a speaker or as a listener in such an auspicious assembly which is held to revive the mention of the "friend", the Holy Prophet ﷺ. May Allah bestow upon us all the blessings of this assembly. Aameen!

His ﷺ attributes and accomplishments

We are going to say something about the sacred biography of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It is so comprehensive a topic that one cannot do full justice even to only one aspect of it during the whole night. So thoroughly had Allah endowed his ﷺ sacred life with all the imaginable human accomplilshments! Someone has referred to them in a Persian couplet, this:

حسن یوسف دم عیسیٰ ید بیضا داری
آنچہ خوباں ہمہ دارند تو تنہا داری

This means: You (i.e. the Holy Prophet ﷺ possesses the beauty of Hazrat Yusuf علیہ السلام, the enliving breath of 'Eesa علیہ السلام and the miracle of the "White hand" of Hazrat Moosa علیہ السلام. In other words you combine in you all the attributes which others possessed one by one.

There is no exaggeration in this. He came to this world as a masterpiece of Allah's creation. He ﷺ appeared to be an embodiment of perfection from whatever angle of vision one looked at him ﷺ. Therefore, the speaker finds himself in a fix as to which aspect of his sacred biography he should select for his speech and which aspect he should ignore.

زفرق تابقدم ہر کجا کہ می نگرم
کرشمہ دامن دل می کشد کہ جا اینجا است

This is a persian couplet, meaning: When I look at the beautiful body of my beloved from the forehead right up to the feet, I find that every spot of the body is equally charming to attract the lover's heart.

The famous Urdu poet, Mirza Ghalib has also expressed the same idea in his couplet:

غالب ثنائے خواجہ با یزداں گذاشتیم
کاں ذاتِ پاک مرتبہ دانِ محمدؐ است

The poet says that he has left the matter of praising the Prophet Muhammad ﷺ to Almighty Allah, because it is He alone Who knows the dignified status of the Prophet ﷺ.

The Propaganda of Todays World

It is not possible for man to do full jsutice to the praise of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Our polluted mouths, and dirty tongues do not really deserve to be permitted to utter the name of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It is, however, a great mercy of Almighty Allah that not only did He accord this permission, but He also permitted us to seek guidance and benefit from this. The biography of the Holy Prophet ﷺ contains countless topics, but respected Hazrat Maulana Zahiuur-Rashidi has proposed that we should discuss that aspect of the Prophet's sacred biography which contains guidance on the subject of Human Rights. The reason for adopting this topic is that presently a campaign of propaganda has been launched throughout the world that a practical implementation of Islam shall violate the Human Rights. It is being widely publicized that the concept of Human Rights was conceived and raised from the chambers of the western world and the first to confer rights on humanity are the people of the west and that no concept is available, - God forbid - regarding Human Rights in the teachings of the Holy Prophet, Muhammad ﷺ. In deference to the command of Maulana Zahidur-Rashidi, I shall try to confine my speech to this topic. The topic has a somewhat scienfitic aspect which calls for careful and keen attention. So, I request all to bestow their best thought and reflection on this delicate topic. May Allah enlighten our hearts with something right and convincing on this topic!

The concept of Human Rights

An important question arises whether or not there is a comprehensive concept in Islam about Human Rights, in the light of the teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ? We have to find an answer to this question. This important question arises, because in this age a strange tendency is seen of evolving a concept of Human Rights in the light of an arbitrary and self-conceived principle and to present it to the world, as something sacred and inviolable requiring protection and implementation. Islam is being tested and judged by the yard-stick of this man-made conception of Human Rights. If any of these so-called Human Rights are found in Islam, or, for that matter, in the teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, then these worldly-wise champions of Human Rights can stoop to recognize them, otherwise not. I take the liberty to put a question to these "thinkers and wise men". What is the norm and basis on which you have evolved these "Human Rights"?

The Human Rights have been changing from age to age

If you cast an eye on the past history of the world from its creation till the present day, you will find that the concepts of Human Rights have been changing from age to age, and region to region. Something regarded as a human right in one age or palce was considered to be a violation of Human Rights in another age or another place. If you go through the annals of human history, you will find that whenever a concept of Human Rights was evolved in any age, intensive propaganda was launched in its favour that it was declared a cognisable crime to speak against it.

When the Holy Prophet ﷺ was commissioned as the last Messenger of Allah to this world, the concept of Human Rights was in existence, widely prevailing throughout the world. This concept was regarded as an irrefutable standard of Human Rights. Just take an example: According to that concept a slave in those days was not allowed to exercise any right over his life, property, and his body. What is more, he was deprived of every other conceivable human rights and gains and interests. It was the basic right of the master to put a collar on the neck of his slave or paly fetters on his feet. To justify it and to prove that it was in conformity with justice, they had evolved many principles and philosophies. You can verify this from their literature which is easily available. The modern champions of Human Rights may reject this by saying that this happened in ancient periods or at least fourteen centuries ago. All right, go back and to one hundred or one hundred and fifty years back when Nazi-ism and Fascism had sprung up in Germany and Italy, respectively. Today the names of Nazi-ism and Fascism have become words of abuse, and are hated throughout the world. Even so, go through their philosophies. They are so cleverly worded that you will find it difficult to condemn them purely on the basis of rational thinking. The concept they had put forward was that the strong has the right of ruling over the weak. It was considered a basic right of the powerful. The weak were ordained to bend heads before the powerful. Thus, we see that in the history of human thinking, the concept of Human Rights have never been the same and uniform. It has always been changing. Something considered as a right in one age was rejected and substituted in another age. The items considered as Human Rights in any age were given protection of the law and it was considered, a cognisable offence to speak against them. What is the guarantee that the Human Rights for which the protection of the law is being demanded today will not be chagned tomorrow? Again, on what basis can they be regarded as right, incapable of being changed?

Determination of the correct Human Rights

The greatest contribution of the Holy Prophet ﷺ to the philosophy of Human Rights is that he ﷺ has furnished the right basis for the determination of Human Rights - the basis in the light of which it can be decided which of the Human Rights deserve, and which do not deserve protection. If the guidance and directions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ are not recognized as a basis, then no other basis is available in the world to settle the issue of protection.

An Organisation advocating the cause of Human Rights

It will be interesting to know that some time ago when I was sitting in my house after the Maghrib prayer, I received a visiting card from some person who wanted to see me. The card belonged to the internationally renowned organisation named "Amnesty International" which claims to be a champion for the protection of all the basic Human Rights. A Director of this organisation had come to Pakistan who wanted to see me. I called him in. There was no prior appointment for this interview. A responsible officer of the Pakistan Foreign Ministry was also with him. You may probably be aware that the "Amnesty International" is that organisation which is regarded as champion for the protection of Human Rights and the freedom of writing and speech. The organisation has been objecting to and protesting against certain Shari'ah Laws promulgated in Pakistan or certain restrictions imposed on the Qadianis. When we met each other he said that he had come to see me, because his organisation had appointed him to make a survey of the public opinion obtaining in the South East Countries about the freedom of writing and speech and Human Rights. In other word, he wanted to know how the Muslims of South East Asia thought about Human Rights, freedom of writing and speech and freedom of expression and how far they were prepared to cooperate with his organisation. For this purpose he wanted to interview me. He apologized to me for not making a prior appointment for want of time. He desired me to answer a few questions on this issue to enable him to draw up a report.

The Kind of Surveys carried out nowadays

The following dialogue took place between us:

I : When did you arrive here?

He: I arrived here only yesterday.

I : What is your future programme?

He: I am going to Islamabad tomorrow.

I : What next?

He: After staying at Islamabad for a day or two I shall fly to Delhi.

I : How long will you stay there?

He: Two days.

I : What next?

He: After that I shall go to Malaysia.

I : You came to Karachi yesterday and to day in the evening you have called on me and tomorrow morning you are going to Islamabad. Today you have been in Karachi. Have you made a survey of the public opinion of the people of Karachi? He was very much upset at this question and went on saying:

He: A complete survey could not indeed be made during such a short time. Still, I have interviewed some persons and have been able to get some idea.

I : How many persons did you interview?

He: I have interviewed five persons and you are the sixth.

I :After interviewing only six persons you have made a survey in Karachi. Tomorrow you are going to Islamabad where you will stay only one day. You will complete your survey at Islamabad by interviewing another six men there. Thereafter you will go to Delhi and stay there for two days. After interviewing a few persons there you will have completed your survey at Delhi. Please let me know if this is the way of carrying out a survey.

He: You are reasonably right. I am not giving the time to this work as I should but I have insufficient time at my disposal.

I : If you do not have sufficient time then how did it become necessary for you to carry out a survey on this subject. If at all necessary, this survey work should have been taken up by a person who had the requisite time and who could call upon people and interview them for the purpose. It was hardly necessary to take up the survey if adequate time was not available.

He: You are quite right, but this was their time allowed to me for the work and I was helpless.

I : Excuse me, please. I am doubtful about the sincerity of this survey of yours; so I am not prepared to become a party to your survey, nor am I inclined to answer any of your questions. This is because only after interviewing five or six persons you will submit a report, claiming that this is the public opinion on the issue. What value can such a report have? Again he was very much upset at this argument.

He: Technically you are quite right, yet as I have called upon you to make our inquiry, please answer a few of my questions.

I : No. I shall not answer any question put by you. I am not going to become a party to this so-called survey, unless I become convinced that your survey has a scientific background and is based on sincerity. Kindly excuse me for this. However, you are my guest and as such I shall entertain you to the best of my ability.

Is the Theory of Freedom of Thought absolute?

I : If I am unreasonable and mistaken in my stand, kindly let me know that.

He: Your stand is quite reasonable, yet I request you as a brother to answer some of my questions.

I : I am afraid, I cannot answer your questions, but I want to put to you a few questions.

He: I had called on you to get answers to certain questions, but you do not want to oblige me with your answrs. Anyway, you may put your questions. What are they?

I : You have come out, flying the banner of Freedom of thought and Human Rights which you have been vehemently propagating. Is this Freedom of Thought and Human Rights Absolute with no restrictions or conditions or do they need to be qualified with some restrictions and conditions?

He: I could not understand what you mean.

I : The meaning is quite clear. I want to know if the Freedom of Thought which you have been preaching is such that everyone is free to express openly whatever opinion or thought comes to his mind. Is this the intention? If so, a man may think that these rich men have earned and amassed great wealth and the poorer classes are starving. So the wealth of the rich should be robbed and distributed among the poorer classes. Suppose a man forms an association or an organisation in all sincerity and honesty to snatch the wealth and property of the rich through an organised form of dacoity and robbery for distribution among the poor. Will you uphold such Freedom of Thought?

He: Certainly not. It will not be permitted to rob others' property and wealth for distribution among the poorer classes.

I : This is exactly what I wanted to know. That is to say that Freedom of expression or of thought is not so absolute as not to require some restriction or condition must be imposed on it.

He: Yes, there must be some restriction or condition.

I : Tell me what will be the basis for imposing that restriction or conditoin? Who will impose that? Who will decide as to which kind of expression of though is lawful and which is unlawful. What will be the basis for taking such a decision? I would like to know if your organisation has conducted some scientific survey or research in this behalf.

He: We did not reflect beforehand on this aspect of the issue.

I : Look here: You have come out on such a grand mission of procuring for the entire humanity the Freedom of expression of thought and opinion, but you have not yet resolved as to what should be the basis for the grant of this Freedom. What should be the restrictions and the conditions to be imposed on that Freedom?

He: All right, kindly let me know what they should be?

I : I have told you at the very outset that I am not going to answer any question. On the other hand I am asking you what restrictions and conditions should be imposed. I have requested you to tell me the answer to this question in the light of your angle of vision and that of your respectable organisation.

You have no standard

He : So far I have no formula in my mind for this. I, however, think that freedom of expression of an opinion that favours violence should not be allowed.

I : It has occurred to your mind that violence should be disallowed but another man may hold another opinion quite different from yours. Now who will decide, and on what basis, as to which form of expression of opinion should be allowed and which should be disallowed? After all, there should be some formula and standard.

He : After hearing your views the importance of the question about a formula or standard has dawned upon my mind which I shall convey to my chiefs. If I come across any literature about it, I shall send it to you.

I : God willing, I shall be waiting for that literature and I shall also be grateful to you for any philosophy that you can furnish me concerning this issue. I am telling you in all sincerity to find out a formula and it should be furnished to me. I cannot help mentioning that despite all your theories and philosophies you cannot bring out an agreed formula which may be unanimously accepted by the whole world that freedom of expression should be allowed on such and such issues and disallowed on other issues. I shall feel highly obliged to you on helping me in the matter.

A period of one and a half year has passed, but I have received no reply.

The human intellect has its limitations

In fact these are vague slogans that there should be 'Human Rights' freedom of expression of opinion and freedom of writing and speech. They have no basis nor is it possible for them to have any basis, on which the world opinon will become unanimously agreed. Why? It is because whoever will evolve these bases will do so according to his own understanding and intelligence. The intellectual frames of two men, two groups or two ages can never be one and the same. So they differed and shall differ from one another and there is no way to uproot this difference. This is due to the fact that human intelligence has its own limitations; it has its jurisdiction which it cannot transgress. It is a great favour of the Holy Prophet, Muhammad ﷺ to the world that he ﷺ has taught that all such questions should be referred for answer to Allah, the creator of man and the entire universe. It is He and He alone Who can advise which Human Rights deserve, and which do not deserve protection. There is none except Him who can solve this problem.

Islam is not in need of you

There are some people who say that they will accept Islam only when they come to know what rights Islam grants them. If they have already decided that they will accept that faith which allows them their favourite rights and they wish to accept Islam because they can get their favourite rights in Islam, then they should be told that Islam is not in need of them. Islam demands that man should first confess his weakness, helplessness and inability and admit in all sincerity and submissiveness that his intellect is unable to solve these problems and that he needs the basis on which he can solve these problems. When a man turns to Islam with this point of view, Islam provides him with right guidance. It is هدى للمتقين - It is guidance for the righteous. The attribute (Mut-taqeen) implies confession of one's inability and helplessness and the need to turn to the creator for help and guidance.

It has now become a common fashion to ask before accepting Islam, what advantages Islam offers by way of Human Rights. Note carefully that this is not the way of entering the fold of Islam.

When the Holy Prophet ﷺ conveyed to this Ummah the message of Islam, he did not ask them to accept Islam, because in Islam they could get this and that benefit. He invited them to the worship of Allah unconditionally. He ﷺ said:

قولوا لا اله الا الله تفلحون

(O People!) Say: there is no god but Allah and (by so saying) you will be successful.

If a man accepts Islam for the sake of material gains and worldly interest and desires, he is not searching for the right path in sincerity and submissiveness. First of all man must confess his inability that he cannot solve these difficulties with the help of his intellect.

Jurisdiction of the Intellect

You should bear in mind that the human intellect is not useless. It is a very useful gift from Allah. It, however, remains useful as long as it is used within its bounds. If you use it for things which do not fall within its jurisdiction, it will begin to give misleading answers. Allah has granted man another source of kowledge and information beyond the human intellect. This is called Wahi (Revelation). Wahi (Revelation) comes to man's help to provide him right guidance at a time when the human intellect utterly fails.

Jurisdiction of the Senses

Almighty Allah has granted us eyes, ears, a tongue. These are very useful organs with the help of which we are able to know many things, by seeing hearing and tasting. Almighty Allah has, however, ordained a jurisdiction for each organ, beyond which it cannot operate. For example, the eye can see but it cannot hear. The ear can hear but it cannot see. Then comes beyond which neither the eye nor, the ear, nor the tongue can do anything. For this occasion Allah has bestowed upon man his intellect to guide him where these organs fail.

The Intellect alone is not sufficient

Take an example. This chair is lying before me. By seeing with my eyes I come to know that its handles are yellow; by touching them with the hand I came to know that they are smooth. A question arises whether the chair came itno existence by itself or it was made by someone. Neither the eye, nor the ear or the tongue can answer this question. For this purpose Allah has created another faculty. With the help of this faculty, that is the Intellect, I conclude that this beautiful handle cannot come into existence by itself, but it is the carpenter who made it. Next a fourth question arises, i.e., how should this chair be used? Where is its use profitable and where is it unprofitable? Even the intellect is unable to answer this question. To help man on such occasion Almighty Allah has created another channel of information. This is the Wahi (Revelation). It descends from Allah and decides what is good and what is evil, what is useful and what is harmful. In fact, Wahi comes into play where the human intellect becomes totally helpless. When Allah and His Prophet ﷺ issue some orders to guide man in situations where the intellect fails they should not be disobeyed on the ground that our Intellect fails to understand the wisdom of those orders. Such an attitude is due to the ignorance of the reality of the intellect and the Wahi. If all things could be understood through the Intellect, there was hardly any need to send down Wahi. It is sent down to guide man in matters which lie beyond the jurisdiction of the human intellect. If it had been within the jurisdiction of the Intellect to solve all problems it would have been enough for Almighty Allah to issue a command directing that He has granted man intellect which will help him in deciding what is good and what is bad, and that is all. Neither a Book, nor a Prophet, nor any Deen would have been necessary. Allah however, did not consider it enough to grant man Intellect, but He sent down Messengers, scriptures and Wahi (Revelation). This only means that the Intellect alone is not sufficient to guide man. Those who do not accept this fact are ignorant of the reality of Deen.

This provides answer to another question, which very frequently arises in man's mind. They say that the Holy Qur'an did not teach man to climb to the Moon, nor did the Holy Prophet ﷺ teach the way to conquer the space. The other nations worked to arrive at formulas for such miraculous strides and we have remained behind in spite of the Qur'an. Why did the Qur'an and the Sunnah not give us these formulas?

The answer to this question is not far to seek. Allah and His Prophet ﷺ did not reveal to the world formulas to conquer the space or climb to the Moon, because these subjects lie within the jurisdiction of the human Intellect. The more man studies science, makes experiments and uses his Intellect to master these fields, the more he will go ahead with his scientific discoveries. As these subjects are purely within the scope of the Intellect, it was not at all necessary either to send a Prophet or reveal a book for this purpose. They are needed only where the human itnellect becomes helpless. Likewise, the organisation of the "Amnesty International" is unable to decide which Human Rights or which form of expression of thought and opinion need or do not need, protection. As the human Intellect was quite helpeless in this matter the Holy Propeht ﷺ came with his enlightening formulas concerning this important issue.

How to protect the Rights?

It is the Holy Prophet ﷺ who decided which Human Right deserves and which does not deserve protection. This is indeed his ﷺ great contribution to the subject of Human Rights. Now consider which rights the Holy Prophet ﷺ bestowed upon man, which rights he ﷺ recognised and which rights discharged practically.

In today's world of ours there are many champions of Human Rights everywhere, crying hoarse with diverse slogans in favour of protection of rights, but when their own interests are at stake they trample upon all principles and norms of morality.

The condition of today's world

One requirement of Human Rights is that there should be Democracy - secualr Democracy. As American book named "The end of History and the Last man" has become very popular among all the educated circles. It claims that the theory of Democracy marks the end of human history and now it will not be necessary to evolve any new theory concerning the rise and fall of man, we believe in the "Finality of Prophethood" and now we have the Fianality of Theories". In other words, now no theory for the welfare of men will follow in the wake of the theory of Democracy.

On one hand, slogans are raised that what the majority says is the whole truth. On the other hand when the same majority wins the elections in Algeria, Democracy is defeated and its existence jeopardized. So, it is one thing to raise slogans and quite another thing to put them into practice.

It is quite all right to raise slogan that all men should get their rights, should have freedom of expression and the right of self-determination. All this looks very nice, but on the other hand by violating this very right of self-determination the people are being ruthlessly crushed and tyrannized. It is dangerous to say a word concerning them. The same advocates of Democracy and Freedom are now persecuting them. Only saying something with the tongue in favour of Human Rights and sitting idle without any action has no sense. It was the distinction of the Holy Prophet, Muhammad ﷺ that he himself actually worked to discharge the rights which he granted to others.

A promise must be honoured

It is occasion of the Battle of Badr and Hazrat Huzaifah bin Yaman رضی اللہ عنہ is going to Madinah Munaw-warah along with his father to see the Holy Prophet ﷺ. On the way they confronted Abu Jahl's army. The army men stopped them from going to the Holy Prophet Muhammad ﷺ, because they thought, that the two would join the Prophet's army to fight against them. After some argumentation they agreed to let them go on the promise that they would not join the Prophet's army. Hazrat Huzaifah and his father رضی اللہ عنہ made this promise and thus they got rid of the enemies. They at last arrived at the Prophet's camp and stayed with him ﷺ, until the battle was declared. It was a battle in which the Mushrikeen of Makkah numbered one thousand men strong, fully equipped. The Muslims only 313 uneqipped persons. They had only eight swords, two horses, seventy camels. Some had picked only sticks and pieces of stone. At such a critical time every individual had his value. Someone suggested to the Holy Prophet ﷺ to recruit for the battle these two new converts to Islam, irrespective of the promise which had been elicited from them by coercion. After all, this was a Jihad called "Yaumul-Furqan", about which the Holy Prophet ﷺ had said: Almighty Allah has forgiven all the past and future sins of the people of Badr. Hazrat Huzaifah bin Yaman رضی اللہ عنہ desired to take part in the Jihad along with the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The Holy Prophet ﷺ however, stopped him from joining the Jihad in honour of the promise he had made to the enemies. It is one thing to make verbal claims and quite another thing to discharge them. A man's integrity is tested on critical occasions. We are champions of Human Rights, but we destroyed the innocent people of Hiroshima and Nagasaki (Japan) with the atom bomb so ruthlessly that even their future generation are being born disabled and crippled. When one's own interest is involved, morals and character are set aside. (Al-isabah, Vol-1, Page 316)

To sum up not only did the Holy Prophet ﷺ teach Human Rights, but he ﷺ demonstrted them practically.

Protection of Life in Islam

The foremost among the Human Rights and the basic rights is the protection of man's life. None should kill a man by oppression.

وَلَا تَقْتُلُوا النَّفْسَ الَّتِيْ حَرَّمَ اللّٰهُ اِلَّا بِالْحَقِّ (سورہ بنی اسرائیل: ۳۳)

And do not kill the soul which Allah has forbidden, except with right. (17:33)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ directed his soldiers not to kill children, women nor old persons. These prohibitions were binding on the fighters in Jihad also. These were not empty words. They were followed in letter and spirit. As regards our present champions of Human Rights, you have just seen what havoc they played among the innocent population in Japan-God forbid!

Protection of wealth and property in Islam

The second basic right of man is the protection of his welath and property. Allah has said:

وَلَا تَأْكُلُوْا اَمْوَالَكُمْ بَيْنَكُمْ بِالْبَاطِلِ (البقرہ:۱۸۸)

And do not eat your property among yourselves unlawfully. (2:188).

The Muslims did not misappropriate others' property by creating false excuses. Today, these so-called champions are very honest and trusty, as long as their own interests are safe. When their interests and safety are at stake and matters develop into enmity leading to fighting, they commit all sorts of attrocities, including confiscating properties and freezing accounts. The sancity and importance of Human Rights vanish altogether. In such a crisis protection of property has no meaning.

I am mentioning below the exampel which the Holy Prophet ﷺ set during the battle of Khaibar between the Muslims and the Jews. The Holy Prophet, Muhammad ﷺ and his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم were besieging the fort of Khaiber. There was a poor herdsman in Khaiber who used to tend goats for wages. He saw the Holy Prophet ﷺ and his army surrounding the fort. He had already heard the name of the Prophet, Muhammad ﷺ. It occurred to his mind to see him ﷺ on this occasion and hear what he ﷺ has to say. He came out of the fort alongwith his goats and asked about the whereabouts of the Prophet ﷺ. On being guided to him ﷺ he was surprised to see that the commander of the Muslim army and such a great Prophet was staying in a lowly hut raised with date-palm leaves. When the hredsman entered the hut, he found there the man ﷺ he wanted to see. He said: O Prophet of Allah ﷺ what is your message? The Holy Prophet ﷺ briefly explained to him the belief concerning Tauheed (oneness of Allah). The herdsman asked: what will be my status, if I accept your message. The Holy Prophet ﷺ replied, saying: I will embrace you, you will become my brother and you will have the same rights which other Muslims enjoy. In utter surprise the herdsman reacted, saying: you are telling me such things, while I am a jet black herdsman in tattered and foul-smelling clothes. In such a pitiable condition you say, you will embrace me. In my present status I am scolded and disgraced. Why will you embrace a hated man like me? The Holy Prophet ﷺ said: I shall embrace you, because all Allah's creatures are equal in His sight. The herdsman said: If I accept your message and turn Muslim, what will be my fate? The Holy Prophet ﷺ said: If you die in this battle I bear witness that Allah will change the darkness of your face into shining white and the foul smell of your body into refreshing fragrance. The truthful words of the Holy Prophet ﷺ had their effect on the heart of the herdsman and he embraced Islam by pronouncing the Kalimah

After thus becoming a Muslim he offered to obey the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The Holy Prophet ﷺ did not command the herdsman to offer prayers or observe fasting. The first thing he ﷺ ordered him to do was to return the herd of goats to the owner, as it was a trust with him. Whose goats were these? They belonged to a jew with whose tribe the Muslims were at war. Their wealth and properties could be seized as war spoils

The Holy Prophet ﷺ explained to him that it was lawful to seize a property during the state of a waging war, but as the herdsman had tkaen possession of the goats under a contract, it should be fulfilled and the goats returned to the owner, jew, safe and sound. The herdsman siad: O Prophet of Allah ﷺ, the goats belong to your arch enemies, thirsty for your blood, yet you ﷺ desire the return of these goats to them. The Holy Prophet ﷺ insisted on the goats to be returned and they were returned.

Can anyone cite an example of this honesty and trustworthiness that full protection is being afforded to human property during the state of a raging battle. After returning the goats the herdsman came back to the Holy Prophet ﷺ and asked what he should do. The Holy Propeht ﷺ said to him: Neither is it prayer time that you should pray nor is it the month of Ramazan that you should observe fasting, nor you have money to pay Zakah (compulsory tax). The only form of worship for you is to take part in the Jihad. Accordingly, he joined the battle. His name was Aswad Ra'ee. It was the practice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ at the end of a battle that he ﷺ made a round of the battlefield to find out the battle casualties. He ﷺ saw that the Companions رضی الله عنهم had assembled at a place round the dead body of a black man whom they had not seen earleir. The Holy Prophet ﷺ recognized the body on going near it and thus addressed the Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم: I recognize this man and I see with my eyes that Almighty Allah has given him a bath with the sacred water of Kausar and Tasneem (rivers in Paradise) in the Paradise of "Al-Firdous" and has changed the darkness of his face with shining white. Likewise He has changed the foul smell of his body into refreshing fragrance. The Protection of wealth and property was not only the subject of formal talk. The Holy Prophet ﷺ actually demonstrated this by giving protection under a contract to property and wealth belonging to infidels and enemies.

Protection of honour in Islam

The third basic right of man consists in the protection of his honour and dignity. It is easy to find many champions of the protection of man's honour. Yet it was for the first time that the Prophet ﷺ taught that it is also a part of man's honour that none should backbite him. Not only is it forbidden to backbite anyone but it is also forbidden to listen to backbiting. There is, however, none among the so-called champions to raise his voice against this sin. Hazrat Abdullah bin Masood رضی اللہ عنہ, the most knowledgeable among the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم was once performing "Tawaf" (circumambulation) of the Ka'bah. Addressing the Ka'bah during Tawaf, the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: O House of Allah! How sacred, how magnificent you are! Then addressing Hazrat Abdullah bin Masood رضی اللہ عنہ he ﷺ said:O Abdullah! This House of Allah is very sacred, very honourable, yet there is a thing in this universe which is more sacred than this House of Allah, What is that? The life, property and honour of a Muslim are more sacred than the Ka'bah. A man who causes loss of life, wealth and property and violates anyone's honour without right then, according to the Holy Prophet ﷺ, he commtis a sin more heinous than demolsihing the Ka'bah. It is the Holy Prophet ﷺ who has granted this right.

Protection of livelihood in Islam

The protection of life, property and honour being man's basic right is indeed imperative. Then man also needs to earn livelihood to live in this world; he needs work and employment. On this question the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said: None can be permitted to close the door of livelihood upon others by force of one's wealth.

On one hand he ﷺ said that "Freedom of Contract" is allowed in Islam, in general. On the other hand he ﷺ ordered that all such contract agreements upset and disturb the common social order and close the door of livelihood upon others are prohibitted. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said: meaning, "The inhabitant of a city should not sell the goods of a villager." Suppose a man brings goods, e.g., agricultural products, vegetables, fruits etc., for sale in the city, no city-dweller should beocme his broker or commission agent. Apparently there is no objection to concluding such agreements between two persons. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has disclosed the defect underlying such an agreement. The city-dweller will hoard the goods with him and in this way he will become a monopolist and impose his monopolistic policy on the market. This will close the door of livelihood upon others. Hence the Prophet's ﷺ order: لا بیع حاضر لباد To conclude, everyone has a right to earn his living with reasonable freedom. It is unlawful to amass wealth by means of interest-bearing transactions, gambling, speculative bids, etc., and thus gain monopolistic control over the entire market. This policy stops others from entering the market for earning their livelihood. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has declared protection of livelihood as a basic right for all human beings. He ﷺ has said:

دعوالناس یرزق اللہ بعضھم ببعض

Leave the people free, so that Allah may provide them livelihood through one another.

This is the protection and guarantee of earning livelihood. It is the Holy Prophet ﷺ who has taught these Human Rights and he ﷺ has shown how to discharge them by his own acts and practices.

Protection of Belief in Islam

Everyone is free to entertain whatever beleif or faith one prefers. Islam lays no restrictions on anyone on one's freedom to adopt the faith of one's choice. The Holy Qur'an declares:

لَا اِكْرَاهَ فِی الدِّیْنِ

There is no compulsion in religion.(2:256)

If any person decides to remain a Christian, a Jew, or a Hindu, he is free to do so. None can force him to change his faith. Preaching of Islam is, however quite lawful. The principles and good points of Islam will be preached to all but they will be left free to accept or reject the preaching. As mentioned in the Holy Qur'an, none can be forced to accept Islam. It should, however,, be noted that if a man has accepted Islam by his own choice and without any pressure brought against him, he is not allowed to renounce Islam and become a renegade. If freedom to go back to apostasy is allowed to him he will spread corruption in the society. He will, therefore, be stopped from doing this mischief by means of capital punishment.

Anyway, I have already pointed out that the Holy Prophet ﷺ has provided the basis for resolving such issues. It is another matter that some may not be able to understand this. The true and genuine right is that which is recognized by Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. Intially everyone is free to adopt whatever faith one prefers, but after having accepted Islam one is not allowed to go back and become an apostate. Had this freedom been allowed the enemies of Islam would have made Islam a child's play, entering it in the morning and renouncing it in the evening.

After having once accepted Islam it is not permitted in a Darul-Islam (Muslim Land) to go back to Kufr (infidelity). While one is living in a Muslim land one is not allowed to spread corruption in this way.

The practice of Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ

The topic under consideration is quite lengthy. I have placed before you five examples: (1) Protection of life, (2) of wealth and property, (3) of honour, (4) of belief and (5) of the means of livelihood. These represent man's five basic necessaries of life. The important point worth noting in this behalf is that champions of these Rights are found everywhere but among the protectors and guarantors of these rights is only the Holy Prophet ﷺ and his Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and their followers.

It was during the Caliphate of Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ that the Jizya (Poll) tax was collected from the non-Muslims living in Baitul-Muqaddas (Jerusalem) in lieu of the protection provided to them for their lives and wealth and properties. Once it became necessary to detach the army from Jerusalem and send it to some other battle front under some emergency. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضی اللہ عنہ said that they had taken upon themselves to protect the lives and properties of the unbeleivers living in Jerusalem in lieu of Jazya. If the army was removed from there, who would provide them this protection? The situation was explained to the non-Muslims that under some emergency the army was being sent to some other front and they could not provide protection for their lives and properties. As such, the entire amount of the Jizya collected from them was returned to them.

The Practice of Hazrat Mu'a-wiyah رضی اللہ عنہ

Hazrat Mu 'a-wiyah رضی اللہ عنہ is one of the greatest companions and champions of Islam against whom his enemies have woven false defamatory stories. It is recorded in Abu Dawood that during the battle between the Muslims and the Romans an armistice was signed between the Muslim and the Christian armies. This armistice was valid up to a given date. Hazrat Mu'a-wiyah رضی اللہ عنہ was a very wise commander. The planned to station the army at the order on the date on which the armistice was to expire. The intention was that being on the border he would launch his attack on the enemy as soon as the date changed, marking the expiry of the armistice. He ﷺ followed his plan. no sooner did the date change than he attacked the enemy land, while the enemies were quite unaware of this plan. The Muslim army finding no resistance, entered far into the enemy land. While they were pressing forward with victory after victory. They heard a loud call coming from behind. The call was قفوا عباد اللہ! عباداللہ (O servants of Allah, stop). Hazrat Mu 'a-wiyah رضی اللہ عنہ stopped and came to know that the man making the call was Hazrat Amr bin 'Abasah رضی اللہ عنہ who was shouting that he had heard the Holy Prophet ﷺ saying:

من كان بينه وبين قوم عهد فلا يحلنه ولا يشدنه حتى يمضى امله

اوينبذ عليهم على سواء (ترمذی کتاب الجهاد، باب فی الغدر، حدیث نمبر ۱۵۸۰)

sThis means: when an agreement is concluded with a people not even the slightest change should be made neither in its opening nor its tying, until the expiry of its term or until it is declared openly that the agreement stands abrogated.

(Tirmizi, Book of Jihad.... Hadith No: 1580)

Hazrat Amr رضی اللہ عنہ further said: you stationed the army on the enemy's border during the validity of the agreement and you may perhaps have penetrated the border a little. This is a violation of the agreement and the land grabbed by you during this period is against Allah's will. Now see what Hazrat Amir Mu'a-wiyah رضی اللہ عنہ did in such a crisis. In obedience to the Holy Prophet's injunction he called the army back and vacated the conquered territory. Perhaps the world cannot cite another example in which a conqueror vacated his conquered territory for the only reason that a slight doubt had occurred in the interpretation of the agreement as to the period of its validity.

In short, firstly, it is the Holy Prophet ﷺ who has furnished the basis as to who will determine and define correctly the Human Rights. Secondly, the Holy Prophet ﷺ has himself put into practice the Human Rights which he has dictated to the world.

Human Rights, as being propagated today

Printed charters in the name of Human Rights are being circulaed worldwide with great pomp and show. These so-called champions of Human Rights feel no hesitation in killing and destroying innocent men by shooting down aeroplanes where these attrocities serve their vested interests. These worldly-wise champions of Human Rigts cry hoarse for the protection of these Rights only when their own profit and loss are affected and not otherwise. The Holy Prophet ﷺ does not recognise such Human Rights as are based on mere show and selfishness. There are people among us who take an apologatic attitude before the clarion propaganda of the west and try to distort the meaning of the Qur'an and the Ahadith in an attempt to accommodate in them the types of Human Rights preached by the so-called champions of the west. Remember, however, the truth contained with verse of the Holy Qur'an:

وَلَنْ تَرْضٰى عَنْكَ الْيَهُوْدُ وَلَا النَّصٰرٰى حَتّٰى تَتَّبِعَ مِلَّتَهُمْ ۭ قُلْ اِنَّ هُدَى اللّٰهِ هُوَ الْهُدٰى ۭ (البقرة: ۱۴۰)

And the Jews will not be pleased with you, nor the Christians, unless you follow their creed.

Say: Surely the guidance of Allah is the (true) guidance (2:120)

When the bare fact remains that the Jews and the Christians will never be pleased with you, until you follow their religion, then take no heed of their propaganda and stand firm against them in your stand in the light of the Qur'an and the Sunnah. May Allah guide us all on the straight path. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العلمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul Mukarram,
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi
After 'Asr Prayers

THE REALITY OF SHAAB-E-BARA'AT

الحمدلله نحمده ونستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له واشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له واشهد ان سيدنا وسندنا ونبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده و رسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and His pardon. We believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Allah from the evils of our souls and the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god except Allah the One, Who has no partner. I also bear witness that our master, our authority our Prophet and our Sire, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah send mercy on him, on his household and on his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and bless them and salute them all a great deal.

The month of Sha'ban has begun in which there is a blessed Night, named "Shab-e-Bara-'at". Some people think that the excellence of this night is not proved from the Qur'an and the Ahadith and it is baseless to keep vigil in this night. They think that worship and devotion in this Night have no special claim to reward. Moreover, they think that it is a Bid'ah (innovation) to specify this night for some special worship. As such, various questions are arising in the minds of the people about this night. Hence discourse about it.

Deen (Faith) consists in compliance

I must tell you here briefly that I have repeatedly clarified that it is a Bid'ah (innovation) to count as a part of Deen all those forms of worship which cannot be proved valid from the Holy Qur'an, the Sunnah, the statements and practices of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم as well as from the acts and practices of the Tabi'een (followers of the companions). I have also been telling you from time to time that it is no Deen to invent some practice from one's own mind and follow it as an item of Deen. On the other hand, Deen is the name of compliance and obedience - compliance with, and obedience to, the Holy Prophet ﷺ, his ﷺ companions رضی اللہ عنہ, the Tabi'een, and the righteous saints and savants. If it is proved that this Night carries no distinctive feature, then it will be Bid'ah to invent it with special importance. I have expressed the same opinion about the Night of Ascension (معراج) that the Qur'an and the Ahadith do not mention any special worship this Night.

It is not right to think that the excellence of this Night is baseless

It is in fact absolutely wrong to say that no excellence of Shab-e-Bara-'at is proved from the Hadith. It is a fact that ten Noble companions رضی اللہ عنہم have narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ did mention the excellence of this Night. Some of these Ahadith are indeed weak in authenticity. On this account some 'Ulama' have declared that the claim of excellence for this Night is baseless. It is, however, the decision of the Muhaddiseen and Doctors of religion that, if a weak Hadith is confirmed by many other Ahadith, its weakness in authenticity disappears. As I have already mentioned, narratives of ten companions ﷺ are available in support of the excellence of this Night. It is, therefore, not right to declare that the excellence of this Night is baseless.

Shab-e-Bara-'at and the earlier centuries

Care was taken to benefit from the excellence of this night during the earlier centuries of the Muslim Ummah. The people used to take special care to indulge in worship in this Night. It is, therefore, not right to call it a Bid'ah (innovation) or baseless. It is quite true that it is a Night of excellence which enjoys a special importance. It is a source of reward and divine favour to take to worship and devotion in this Night.

No specific form of worship is prescribed

It is, however, quite correct to say that no specific form of worship has been prescribed for this Night. Some people have invented various ways of praying from their own minds. They suggest, without any proof and authority, that so many Rak'ats with such and such verses should be offered and so many times. This is all baseless. One may take advantage of this sacred Night by offering Nafl prayers, reciting the Holy Qur'an, remembering Allah and counting over the beads (تسبیح) sacred words and phrases. They may also pass the Night by praying to Allah for His grants and favours. No specific form of worship is proved for this night.

To visit Graveyards in this Night

There is another act for this night which is proved by a narrative that the Holy Prophet ﷺ once visited the graveyard, named Jannatul Baqi' (جنت البقیع). The Muslims also began to visit the graveyards in compliance with this narrative. My father Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi' Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say something very useful about this issue. He said that in the matter of following the Holy Prophet ﷺ we should not try to overstep him ﷺ. It is narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ visited the graveyard of Janatul-Baqi' in this Night only once in his ﷺ sacred lifetime. Following this Sunnah, it is all right to visit some graveyard only once in life. It would be overstepping the Holy Prophet ﷺ to visit graveyard regularly as a compulsory duty and to cosnider this practice as an inseparable part of the Shab-e-Bara-'at and consider its omission as an omission of the Shab-e-Bara-'at itself. If anyone visits a graveyard once in defference to the Prophet's Sunnah, it is a good act deserving divine reward. This should, however, not be made a regular practice. It is a point of understanding Deen. Take everything concerning Deen at the same degree and level at which it is proved from the Ahadith and do not go beyond the permissible limits. You are free to observe other Nafl (optional) of worship and devotion, as you desire.

Offer Nafl (optional) Prayers at home

It has come to my knowledge that some people offer Nafl Prayers in this Night and in the Night of Power in congregation. Previously people offered Shabina Prayers (Recitation of Qur'an during Ramazan) in congregation, but now they have begun to pray the Salatut-Tasbeeh (A Nafl Prayer) also in congregation. Congregation of Salatut-Tasbeeh is not lawful in anyway. Note carefully a principle about congregational prayers. It is proved from the Holy Prophet ﷺ that prayers of Taraweeh, Kusoof and Istisqa may be offered in congregation. It is better that prayers other than these should be offered at home. It is only the Farz (obligatory) Prayers that need to be offered in congregation in the mosque. Not only is it better to do so, but it is also Sunnah Muakkada (confirmed), nearing in importance a compulsory prayer. The basic rule about Sunnah and Nafl prayers is that a man should offer them at home. When the Fuqaha (Islamic Jurists) saw that sometime the people omit the Sunnah prayers at home, they also advised that if there was likelihood for the Sunnah prayers to be ignored at home, then these too may be offered in the mosque. As regards Nafl prayers, there is a consensus of opinion among the Fuqaha that they should better be offered at home. Arranging congregation for Nafl Prayers is strictly unlawful in the opinion of the Hanafites. As such, to offer Nafl Prayers in congregation will, in their opinion be a sin instead of an act of virtue to deserve any reward.

Offer Farz (obligatory) Prayers in congregation

The Farz (obligatory) Prayers are a distincitive rite of Deen. It is imperative to offer them in the mosque in congregation. It is not lawful to offer Farz Prayers at home. It would not be lawful and right for anyone to think that it would be an act of ostentation to offer prayer in the mosque in a congregation. Farz Prayers must be offered in the mosque in congregation, because pryaing in this way is demonstration of a distinctive rite of Islam and Islam's might and dignity.

Seclusion is needed for Nafl Prayers

The Nafl (optional) Prayer is a form of worship which represents a personal relation between the Namazi and his Creator and Nourisher, Allah. This is demonstrated in what happened with Hazrat Siddiq Akbar رضی اللہ عنہ . The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked him رضی اللہ عنہ why he recited the Qur'an in such a low voice, He رضی اللہ عنہ replied saying:

اسمعت من ناجیت (ابو داؤد حدیث ۱۳۲۹)

(I was reciting it to Him Whom I was addressing in my Prayer.

(Abu Dawood, Book of Salat.....Hadith No: 1329)

In so far as Nafl Prayers are concerned, they are like a secret whisper between the devotee and his Allah. None should intervene between the two. Allah desires that His servants should establish direct contact with Him. That is why, congregations and assemblies have been declared disgustful in the matter of optional forms of worship. The servant of Allah has been commanded to approach his Allah alone and in seclusion. What a great prize is this seclusion and privacy! Just reflect on this divine gift and favour.

Come to Me in loneliness

The congregational prayer may be compared to a general assembly of Almighty Allah, just as there are general assemblies of worldly kings and presidents. In addition to general assemblies there are also secret or special assemblies with restricted audience. It is a great favour of Almighty Allah that in addition to His general assemblies, He admits His servants to this specific, private and secluded assemblies. If a man converts these secluded assemblies into general assemblies, it only means that he is not paying due regard to Allah's special court. Allah is calling you to approach Him in loneliness and privacy to receive His special favours but you are approaching Him with a large assembly.

You have disregarded this blessing

Take an example. You want to have an audience with a King and the King makes you an appointment to see you in privacy today at nine p.m. in the night. You call on the King at the appointed hour, not alone, but with a crowd of friends and relatives. Now think for yourself if you have in this way regarded or disregarded the King's appointment and favour. The King bestowed upon you a special favour by desiring to see you alone to establish special contact with you and you made light of his favour by visiting him in a large group. Thus, you did not pay due regard to the King's favour. Imam Abu Hanifah رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has advised us not to disregard Nafl Prayers in this way. Paying due regard to these Prayers consists in offering them in total seclusion and privacy where there is none to interevene between you and your Allah. It has, therefore, been prescribed concerning Nafl forms of worship that they should be performed alone and in seclusion. To perform them in congregation is nearly forbidden. Almighty Allah is calling you in this way:

اَلاَهَلْ مِنْ مُّسْتَغْفِرٍ فَاغْفِرْلَهٗ

That is: Is there anyone seeking forgiveness that I may forgive him?

Here the word مستغفر (Seeker of forgiveness) has been used in the singular number. This implies that Allah desires the petitioner to approach Him for forgiveness all alone. Against this desire of Allah what is our behaviour? We arrange an assembly with pomp and show and excessive illumination and many other formalities. This is simply showing lack of regard for Allah's favours. Therefore, it is not lawful to offer in congregation all forms of Nafl worship, like: Shabinah and Salatut-Tasbeeh, etc,.

The moments of loneliness

These Nights of excellence and blessings do not admit of hue and hubbub. These are not nights of revelry and festivals. They have been granted to you that sitting all alone you may establish your relationship with Allah when there is none to itnervene between you and Allah.

میانِ عاشق و معشوق رمزیست
کراماً کاتبیں را ہم خبر نیست

A persian couplet which means: Between the lover and the beloved there is a secret of which even the twin recording angels are not aware

Some people say, as an excuse, that while praying in loneliness sleep overwhelms the devotee. The attack of sleep is easily resisted when there is a gathering in the mosque full of men and when it is brightly illuminated with extra candles and bulbs. This excuse is not plausible.

If you succeed in getting a few moments for communion with Allah in loneliness and privacy, then these few moments are far better than the entire Night spent in the hue and hubbub of the crowds. The mometns spent in loneliness spent according to the Sunnah and the time spent otherwise in crowds is spent against the Sunnah. You must admit the blessings of the moments spent with Allah in loneliness according to the Sunnah.

Hours are not counted there

I have repeatedly mentioned that it is not Deen to work according to your own wisdom, nor is it Deen to satisfy your fancy, Deen consists in obeying Almighty Allah. Do you think that Allah will count the hours which you have spent in the mosque? No, hours are not counted. It is the sincerity that is valued. If you are lucky enough to get only a few moments of communion with Allah, those few moments will take you to the shore of salvation. Hours spent in worship against the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ will take you nowhere.

It is sincerity that matters

My Sheikh Hazrat Dr Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say in a state of great ecstasy: 'you rehearse in your prostrations the words سبحان ربی الاعلی (Subhaana rabbi-yal-a'laa) many times. You do this only mechanically and inattentively. If you rehearse these sacred words any day in all sincerity and from the core of your heart, even once, then as a reward of Allah will grant you salvation and success.

So, do not think that you will fall into sleep, if you worship Allah in loneliness at home. If you really feel sleeply, there is no harm in sleeping. However, if you spend a few moments in worship, make it sure that you spend them according to the Sunnah. It will be according to Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that, if you feel sleepy during reciting the Holy Qur'an, you go to sleep and then get up after refreshing yourself with a little sleep. This is necessary, so that you may not pronounce some words of the Holy Qur'an incorrectly on account of sleepiness. Thus, a man who has been awake only one hour in praying to Allah according to the Sunnah and in obedience to the commands of Allah is far better than one who spends entire night in worship, violating the injunctions of the Sunnah.

Keep every form of worship within its prescribed limits

In the court of Almighty Allah the deeds are not counted but they are weighed. If you have done countless good deeds but they are light in weight, they have no value. That is why it is advised that during worship, if you are overwhelmed with sleep, you should take a nap. On getting up engage yourself in worship again with alertness and attention with the help of Allah. Only take heed that you do not do anything in violation of the Sunnah. It is, therefore, advised that only those prayers should be offered in congregation which are proved and permitted for congregation. These are: All Farz (obligatory) prayers, Taraweeh and Witr Prayers in the month of Ramazan, the funeral prayers, the Two Eid Prayers and the Prayers of Istisqa and Kusoof. There is no congregation for prayers other than these. Allah desires that in the latter category of prayers for which there is no congregation His servant should approach Him all alone. The honour, which Allah has bestowed upon His servant of establishing contact with Him in loneliness is a great honour which should be acknowledged and valued with gratitude.

Congregation of women

What is the injunction about the congregation of female Namazis? It is not desirable for women to pray in congregation whether the prayer is Farz, Sunnah or Nafl. Allah has commanded women to worship in loneliness in their homes. So congregation for praying is not desirable for women. As I have mentioned earlier, Deen consists in obeying the injunction of the Shari'ah and not in the satisfaction of one's own choice or fancy. In the matter of Deen one's personal preference or choice has no place. We should not do things which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has not approved or permitted.

Sweetmeats and Shab-e-Bara-'at

This Shab-e-Bara-'at is a sacred Night of excellence. It is good to put in as much worship in this Night as possible. As regards other useless rites and customs invented for this Night, they are too evident to need any detailed exposition. One of these is the preparation of sweetmeats. This has nothing to do with this sacred Night. In fact, it is Satan's seduction to entangle the Muslims in such frivolities, so that they may remain away from the blessings of this Night. There is a narrative that in this Night Almighty Allah grants salvation to as many men as the number of the hair found on the goats of the Kalb tribe.

Treacherous Satan saw that it would be a great loss to him, if so many men received salvation. So he taught the people to prepare sweets on the occasion of the Shab-e-Bara-'at. It is qutie lawful to prepare sweetmeats and enjoy them throughout the year but this has nothing to do with this Night. This custom is proved neither from the Qur'an nor from the Ahadith, nor from the practices and sayings of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم. The people do not pay heed to worshp and good deeds as they do in preparing sweetmeats. This is due to the seduction of Satan.

Distinctive features of Bid'aat (Innovations)

Note carefully this important point. My father Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi' Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ used to say that when a man becomes involved in Bid'aat, his interest in following the Sunnah is considerably reduced. You may perhaps have noted that those who devote longer time in offering the Salatut-Tasbeeh in congregation, remain generally absent from the congregations for the five-time prayers. Similarly those who are used to Bid'aat like (sweetmeat) and Konda are generally neglectful of the Farz Prayers. While engrossed in these Bid'aat, they do not worry if they miss the congregation or even the prayers.

Allah and His Prophet ﷺ have emphatically commanded that when a man dies his legacy should be distributed according to the injunctions of the Shari'ah as early as possible. It is, however, seen that, ignoring these injunctions, the people engage themselves in the baseless customs of Teeja (the third day after death), Daswan (the tenth day) and Chaliswan (the fortieth day) and Barsi (Aniversary). This shows that Bid'aat have the effect of removing men from the Sunnah. May Allah save us from this vice - Aameen.

In short man should refrain from Bid'aat and other useless customs and acts at all costs. As regards this Night, it is not correct to think that it has no special excellence and distinction.

Fasting on the fifteenth Day of Sha'ban

There is another question asked about fasting on the day following the Shab-e-Bara-'at. viz., the fifteenth of Sha'ban. It should be noted that among the entire collection of the Ahadith, one narrative is a weak one. On this account some Ulama do not regard it an act of Sunnah or even a Mustahab (desirable) act to fast on the fifteenth Sha'ban. It is, however, proved that it is an act of excellence to observe fasting during the period from the first to the twenty-seventh of Sha'ban. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has forbidden to fast on the 28th and 29th days of Sha'ban, so that a man may remain well prepared and energetic for fasting in the month of Ramazan. It is, however, meritorious to observe fast on days in the period from the first to the twenth-seventh day of Sha'ban. Moreoever, this fifteenth day of Sha'ban is one of the three days of Ayyam Beez (the white days). i.e. the 13th, 14th and 15th of each month. The Holy Prophet ﷺ used to observe fasts frequently on these three days. If a man fasts on the 15th day of Sha'ban because firstly it is a day of the month of Sha'ban and secondly, because this day is one of the three days of Ayyam Beez, he will, God willing, be granted recompense for his fasting. It is, however, not right, in the opinion of some Ulama, to regard fasting on this day as Sunnah, only because it is a day of the month of Sha'ban. While mentioning the Mustahab (desirable) days of fasting, most Ulama have included for fasting the 10th of Muharram and the day of 'Arafah, but they have not said anything separately about fasting on the 15th of Sha'ban. All that they have said is that it is meritorious to fast on any day in the month of Sha'ban. If anyone observes fast on this day from this angle of vision he will be entitled to reward. Except for this, no other day has any importance.

I have already mentioned that every matter has to be dealt with within its prescribed limits and its approved level. In fact, Deen consists in the protection of the prescribed limits and not in transgressing these limits of one's own discretion and choice.

Fasting on the 15th of Sha'ban should be regarded as an act of Sunnah, yet if anyone fasts on this day will due regard to the limits, he will be entitled to divine reward.

Refrain from argumentation and altercation

What has been discussed above is a gist of the injunctions regarding Shab-e-Bara-'at and fasting on the day following it. It is, however, not advisable to carry the discussion too far to give rise to argumentation and altercation and thus create two groups quarrelling and disputing with each other. If you feel convinced of a view, act upon it and leave the matter there. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has forbidden to indulge in disputes and arguments. Imam Malik رحمة الله عليه has said:

المراء يطفئى نور العلم

This means: Quarrelling and arguing with one another in such matters destroy the light of learning and knowledge. The renowned poet Akbar of Allahabad (U.P. India) has very aptly mentioned this point in an Urdu couplet:

مذہبی بحث میں نے کی ہی نہیں
فالتو عقل مجھ میں تھی ہی نہیں

I never took part in religious controversies because I did not have superfluous intelligence for that.

It is not desirable to waste time in useless religious controversies. If you feel convinced of the correctness of the opinion of an Alim, follow that. Do not quarrel with those who advance some other opinion. This is the straight path for you to follow which will result in your salvation, God willing.

Prepare and purify yourself for the month of Ramazan

At any rate, it is not correct to say that this Night, the Shab-e-Bara-'at, has no basis to be regarded as a Night of virtues. I am inclined to feel that by appointing it two weeks before Ramazan Almighty Allah has made it a happy precursor for the sacred fasting of Ramazan month. It is a rehearsal of, and prepartion for, fasting in Ramazan, so as to qualify for the mercy and forgiveness of Allah so generously showered in this month. So get ready for this divine favour.

When a man intends to attend a magnificent court, he makes himself neat and clean and puts on nice clothes. In the same way when the most Dignified Court of Allah is going to be held in the form of Ramazan, Allah has granted one sacred Night for preparation before attending the divine Court. It is Allah's desire that by cleaning and purifying himself in body and soul and from sins man may be able to establish relationship with Him. When this is done man will be able to benefit from the flood of mercies and favours of Ramazan in the true sense. It is for this purpose that Allah has granted us this blessed Night. It should be respected and valued.

May Allah make us welcome this night with due regard and devote ourselves therein to worship. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العلمين

MODESTY - A MEANS TO RISE TO HIGH RANKS

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه، ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيئات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيد نا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا۔

اما بعد! فقد قال رسول الله سلى الله عليه وسلم :

من تواضع لله رفعه الله (ترمذى، كتاب البروالصلة، باب ماجاء فى التواضع)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and seek his forgiveness and believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our selves and the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom Allah lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god except Allah the One He has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, and our authority and our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah have mercy on him, his household and and on his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and bless them and salute them all in great abundance.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ said:

"Allah raises him in rank who takes to modesty for the sake of Allah".

I have read to you at the moment a saying of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It means that Allah raises him in rank who takes to modesty for the sake of Allah. Presently I want to explain briefly the reality of modesty, its importance, as implied in the Prophet's ﷺ saying, and how to practise modesty. May Almighty Allah help me, by His mercy, to tackle the topic rightly.

The Importance of Modesty

The importance of Modesty may be understood from the fact that a man who is deprived of this quality become Pharaoh and Namrood. This is because a heart vacant of the quality of modesty falls a victim to the vice of pride and self-esteem - vices which are the root of all spiritual diseases.

The Foundation of the First sin of Disobedience

The first sin of disobedience was committed in this universe by Iblis (Satan). It was he who sowed the first seed of this sin. Before him there was no concept of disobedience. When Almighty Allah created Hazrat Adam علیہ السلام and commanded all the angels to prostrate themselves before him علیہ السلام. Iblis refused to porstrate himself and said:

اَنَا خَيْرٌ مِنْهُ خَلَقْتَنِيْ مِنْ نَارٍ وَخَلَقْتَهٗ مِنْ طِيْنٍ (سورۃ ص:۷۶)

"I am better than he, because you have created me from Fire and have created him from clay."

(38 : 76)

Iblis thought that Fire being superior to clay, he was superior to Adam علیہ السلام. He could, therefore, not postrate himself before Adam علیہ السلام.Thus, this was, the first sin of disobedience in the universe and this sprang from a feeling of pride and self-esteem. Allah, therefore, condemned him till the Day of Judgment. This clearly shows that the root of all vices is pride. A heart harbouring pride must also harbour in it other vices.

Do not use your Intellect against Allah's Command

The reason for this pride was that Satan felt proud of his intellect. He thought that he was offering an inllectual proof which was, difficult to dismiss as, in his opinion, fire was better than clay. Thus, he used his intellect against Allah with the inevitable result that he was condemned for ever and turned away. Dr. Iqbal has very ably brought out this fine point:-

صبح ازل یہ مجھ سے کہا جبرئیل نے
جو عقل کا غلام ہو، وہ دل نہ کر قبول

That is: on the morning of eternity, Jibrael علیہ السلام advised me not to accept that heart which is a slave to the intellect.

See how Satan, becomng a slave to his intellect, disowned slavery to Allah. He failed to understand the truth that it was Allah Who created Adam علیہ السلام and the entire Universe. As such, it was his duty to bow down his head before Allah. He disobeyed Allah's command and was rightly condemned for ever.

Pride is the root of all sins

Anyway, pride is the root of all sins. Pride generates anger, jealousy, malice etc. It is due to pride that sins of injuring others feelings and backbiting are committed. It is impossible to get rid of these vices unless modesty is acquired and practised.

The Reality of Modesty

" تواضع " is an Arabic word. It means that one should consider oneself to be inferior. It is, however, not (modesty) to claim it (modesty) only verbally. It has become a fashion nowadays to call oneself meanest, worthless Guilty or sinner. They are under the impression that by using these words the quality of modesty is acquired. It should be noted that it is not modesty to call oneself modest. The real modesty is to feel and realize in the heart that one is modest. One should feel that one has no importance and if one has done anything good, it was due to Allah's help and mercy without which one could do nothing. This is the reality of modesty. If this true modesty has been attained it does not matter whether or not one calls oneself mean, worthless or good for nothing. Allah raises him in rank who acquires modesty in the true sense as pointed out above.

Examples of Modesty practised by our saintly elders

There are respected saints and learned men from whom we learn Deen (Faith) and virtuous acts. If we read their biographies we will know that they considered themselves the lowest of all. I have heard this statement of Maulana Ashraft Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه from many of my saintly elders:-

It is my behaviour that I regard every Muslim superior to me, because he is a believer in his existing state; and I regard every non-Muslim superior to me, because there is always a possibility of his becoming by the grace of Allah, a beleiver any time in the future and he may become a better Muslim than I.

Once Hazrat Maulana Khan Muhammad Sahib رحمة الله عليه, a favourite Khalifah of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه said to Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Hasan Sahib رحمة الله عليه he felt that he was inferior to all these present in the assembly of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه. Hearing this Hazrat Mufti Sahib رحمة الله عليه said that he too had the same feeling about himself. They both decided to submit this matter to Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه to know whether this was a good or a bad situation for them. Hearing this experience, Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه told them that there was nothing wrong in it and said that when he sat in the assemblies he also felt likewise that all the members present there were suprior to him.

This is the reality of modesty. When this sense of modesty overpowers a man he feels that he is inferior even to animals, what to say of men.

The Modesty of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

Hazrat Anas رضى الله عنه has narrated in a Hadith that when any man shook hands with the Holy Prophet ﷺ on meeting him ﷺ, he did not withdraw his hands until the other person withdrew his hands. The Holy Prophet ﷺ also did not turn his face until that person turned his face. When the Holy Prophet ﷺ was sitting in an assembly he did not place his knees so as to project them before those of others. In other words he did not sit in a distinctive pose. (Tirmizi, ... ch. No: 46)

It occurs in certain narratives that in the beginning it was the practice that the Holy Prophet ﷺ used to sit in assemblies along with the people without any distinction, but in this way new comers could not distinguish the Prophet ﷺ from others. When the assembly was large it sometimes became difficult for the people at the back to meet him ﷺ. They, therefore, proposed that the Holy Prophet ﷺ should take his seat at some raised place to enable the audience to see and hear him ﷺ with convenience. The Holy Prophet ﷺ accepted the proposal and a wooden bench was provided for him to sit on and talk to the people.

The style of walking of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

It appears from all this that man should not create for himself a distinctive and prominent position. He should pass his life among the common men like a commoner. It is, however, allowed to adopt a distinctive pose where it becomes unavoidable to do so There is a Hadith which describes the style of the Prophet's ﷺ walking:

" ما رأى رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم ياكل متكئاقط، ولا يطأ عقبه رجلان " (ابو داؤد، كتاب الا طعمة، باب فى الاكل متكا)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ was never seen eating, while supporting himself against a cushion, or walking followed by a group of men. It is, therefore, not desirable that a man should be walking with his disciples and pupils walking behind him at his heels. On such occasion the human self and Satan beguile him into the belief that such a large crowd is following him only because there is some superiority and attraction in him. Man should avoid such a situation as far as possible. Following the Prophet's style man should try to walk either all alone or alongwith the people and not as a leader walking in front of them.

Hazrat Thanawi's Announcement

It is written in the notebook of Maulana Thanawi's routine that he had made an announcement that nobody should follow him from behind, nor walk side by side with him. If he was walking alone he should be left alone. He said that he did not like at all that he should walk like a leader, two men walking on his right and another two men on his left. Man should walk like an ordinary man.. Once he announced that if he was going with something in his hand, none should try to take that thing from his hand, but he should be left to go undisturbed. This was to avoid creating any distinction for himself.

Take to Humbleness and Self-dedication

My Sheikh, Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say that what is needed is a matter of servitude, dedication and obedience, a matter of humbleness and submissiveness. The more man effaced his ego and the more he displayed his quality of servitude, the more acceptable he would become - God willing - in the sight of Allah. The Sheikh would then recite this Persian couplet:

فہم خاطر تیز کردن نیست راہ
جز شکستہ می نگیر و فضل شاہ

This means that one cannot find the straight path leading to Allah by claiming wisdom and cleverness. the King's (Allah's) mercy and favour overtake him who displays his humbleness and obedience

Expression of pomp and show and pride is nothing but mere vanity. The occasion for feeling joy and pride is that moment when at the time of departing from this world Almighty Allah should say:

يٰٓاَيَّتُهَا النَّفْسُ الْمُطْمَئِنَّةُ ارْجِعِيْٓ اِلٰى رَبِّكِ رَاضِيَةً مَّرْضِيَّةً فَادْخُلِيْ فِيْ عِبَادِيْ وَادْخُلِيْ جَنَّتِيْ (سورة الفجر:٢٧-٣٠)

"O contended soul! Return to your Lord satisfied and contented. Enter among My servants and enter (as a result) My Paradise.(89: 27-30)

Look! The soul is being addressed to enter into the group of Allah's servants. This shows that servitude (or obedience) is the highest station of man.

The way of the Holy Prophet ﷺ to express humbleness

In every matter the Holy Prophet ﷺ preferred that mode of life in which there was servitude, obedience and humbleness. Almighty Allah once asked his Prophet ﷺ, if he liked that the mount Uhud was turned into a mount of gold to remove his hardships. In reply to this divine offer the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: No, I prefer that I may remain hungry one day and satisfy my hunger the other day (اجوع يوما واشبع يوما), so that I may render thanks to You on the day I am well-fed and have patience on the day I am hungry and have to beg You to feed me. It occurs in a Hadith:

ماخير رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم بين امرين قط الااخذايسرهما

(صحيح بخارى، كتاب الادب، باب قول النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم: يسروا ولا تعسروا)

This means that when the Holy Prophet ﷺ had to choose between two alternatives, he ﷺ always chose the easier of the two. He ﷺ did so, because choosing the difficult alternative implies a claim to bravery and show of ability. On the other hand, choosing the easier alternative implies an admission of humbleness, submissiveness, obedience, weakness and helplessness. The road to success is, therefore, humbleness, obedience and self-dedication. Dedication means that man should adopt self-denial before Allah's pleasure and command. The dedication guarantees all success and salvation.

The Time is not yet Ripe

Our Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say very useful and wonderful points of wisdom and knowledge. One day he رحمة الله عليه said: When "Polaw" (a delicious dish of rice and meat) is cooked, the rice first begins to boil with a boiling sound and it circulates in the cooking pot. All this is a sign that the cooking is not complete and the dish of "Polaw" is not yet ready to eat. When the process of cooking nears completion, the rice settles down in the pot: it has no noise, no movement and no boiling. No sooner is the process of cooking complete, than the rice begins to give out refreshing and appetizing fragrance. Now it has become tasteful and palatable, worthy of being served and enjoyed.

صبا جو ملنا تو کہنا میرے یوسف سے
پھوٹ نکلی تیرے پیراھن سے بو تیری

The couplet contains a reference to the story of Prophet (Joseph) Yousuf علیہ السلام. Here the sudden fragrance emanating from the cooking pot has been compared to the smell emanating from the garment of Prophet Yusuf علیہ السلام.

Same is the example of a man. He is not ripe in his conduct, character and piety, as long as he claims openly or secretly that he has such and such qualities and accomplishments in him. On the other hand when he admits before Allah his worthlessness and nothingness by renouncing his high-sounding claims, he becomes a favourite of Allah from whose personality rays of goodness and piety radiate.

On such occasions Dr. Sahib used to recite this beautiful couplet:

میں عارفی، آوارہ صحراء فنا ہوں
ایک عالم بے نام و نشاں میرے لئے ہے

This means: Almighty Allah has made me an aimless wanderer in the desert of self-dedication and has taught me the lesson of self-dedication. I have, thus, been granted a world which has neither a name nor marks of location. May Almighty Allah bestow this favour upon us also - Aameen.

Hazrat Sayyid Sulaiman Nadwi رحمة الله عليه and "Modesty"

Hazrat Sayyid Sulaiman Nadwi رحمة الله عليه was an 'Alim widely renowned and respected for his learning and academic accomplishments. He has related his own story as under:

"When I completed the Prophet's Biography in six volumes, a question continuously arose in my heart: Is there any reflection in my own life of the life of the sacred person ﷺ whose biography I have compiled. If not, how should this reflection be attracted. For this purpose he thought of calling upon a man of God, a saint. He had heard the name of Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi Sahib رحمة الله عليه who was providing right guidance to the people those days. He, therefore, went to Thana Bhawan (U.P. India) and called upon Maulana Thanawi رحمة الله عليه.

He stayed with Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه for few days. At the time of his departure Hazrat Nadwi requested Maulana Thanawi رحمة الله عليه to give him some advice. In such a situation Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه found himself in a fix and prayed to Allah for help so that he could say something which could prove beneficial to both. Thereafter, Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه addressed Sayyid Sulaiman Nadwi رحمة الله عليه saying:

"Slef-effacement is the first and the final panacea in our system of spiritual discipline."

Hazrat Sayyid Sulaiman Nadwi رحمة الله عليه has said that while uttering these words he took his hand to his chest and brought it down with such a strong jerk that Hazrat Nadwi felt something like a shock on his heart.

Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه has reproted that after this incident Hazrat Nadwi رحمة الله عليه totally effaced his self that it is difficult to find another example. Dr. Sahib said that one day he saw Hazrat Nadwi رحمة الله عليه straightening the shoes of the visitors to the assembly of Maulana Thanawi رحمة الله عليه. Thus did Almighty Allah create this modesty and self-dedication in him. What was the result? Thereafter, emanated from him the fragrance of guidance and Allah raised him to a height which none but Allah alone Knows.

Expel the idol of Ego

It should be noted that as long as the idol of Ego is present in the heart the personality is immature and unripe. It will come to maturity like the boiling broth when the idol of "ego" has been smashed to pieces; this is the quality of self-dedication or self-effacement. Dedication means that man should purge his living and all his acts and movements from the vestiges of pride and arrogance and take to humbleness and modesty. The road to success will-God willing - be opened for him the very day he adopts humbleness. Pride is the greatest hurdle in the way leading to the Truth. However great and dignified does a proud man regard himself and however depressed and disgraced does he regard the rest of humanity, in the last resort Allah grants honour and dignity to the modest and disgraces the proud and the haughty.

The Example of a Proud man

There is a very wise parable in the Arbaic language. The example of a proud man is like one who is standing on a mountain peak and thinks that those at the foot of the mountain are small. In the same way those at the foot of the mountain think that the man at the peak of the mountain is small. This is an optical illusion, otherwise they are all equal. In the same way the entire world regards the proud man as mean and the proud man regards the entire world as mean. The truth is that Almighty grants honour to those who efface themselves before Allah.

May Allah inculcate in us also the quality of modesty and humbleness. Aameen.

Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه and Modesty

Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say that sometimes he walked in his house barefooted. He did this in compliance with a Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He had read in some narrative that the Holy Prophet ﷺ on a certain occasion had walked barefooted.He said: While walking barefooted I said to myself: Look here! your real worth is that you have neither shoes for your feet, nor a cap on your head nor clothes on your body. You are ultimately going to return to the dust.

Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه and Modesty

Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to relate an anecdote about Mufti Sahib رحمة الله عليه. He said that once he was sitting in his clinic on Robinson Road, Karachi, Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه was passing in front of the clinic all alone with some pot in his hand. Dr. Sahib asked those who were sitting with him if they knew the man who was passing by. Then he himself told them that he was the Grand Mufti of Pakistan who was going with a pot in his hand. None could guess from his clothes, style, and mode of walking that he was such a great Allamah.

Hazrat Mufti Aziz-ur-Rahman Sahib رحمة الله عليه and Modesty

Hazrat Mufti Aziz-ur-Rahman Sahib رحمة الله عليه was one of the teachers of my respected father and the grand Mufti of Darul-Uloom, Deoband (U.P. India). My respected father رحمة الله عليه told me that some widows also lived around Mufti Sahib's house. It was his daily routine that when he set off from his house for the Darul-Uloom, he would call upon those widows and ask them if they wanted him to purchase anyting for them from the market which he would bring for them. The widows would, each, tell him their requirements of their kitchen and households, e.g. spices vegetables, etc. He would do their shopping and hand over their goods to them. Sometimes the widows would complain about the quantity, quality, or the very nature of their needs. Mufti Sahib would again go to the market and bring back the goods in the desired quantity and quality. After this voluntary service Mufti Sahib would go to the Darul-Uloom to write Fatawa (Rligious Rulings). My father رحمة الله عليه said:

The man who was walking about in the market for the sake of the widows was the Grand Mufti, yet after seeing his simplicity and humbleness none could say that he is a mountain of learning and virtues. It is the outcome of his modesty that so far his Fatawa have been published in twelve volumes and work on this is still in progress, and the entire world is receiving benefit from his work. It is so to say:

پھوٹ نکلی تیرے پیراہن سے بو تیری

Your fragrance has issued forth suddenly from your garment.

He breathed his last while writing a Fatwa.

Hazrat Maulana Muhammad Qasim Sahib Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه and Modesty

Hazrat Maulana Muhammad Qasim Sahib Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه is the founder of Darul Uloom, Deoband. It is written about him that he always wore a long cloth and an ordinary Kurta (Shirt). None could guess from his appearance and clothes that he was such a great personality. He was a successful debater. The greatest of his competitors dared not stand for long before him. As regards the state of his modesty, he used to sweep the courtyard of the mosque clad in his long cloth and ordinary Kurta (Shirt). He had taken part in the Jihad against the British in India so as a warrant of arrest had been issued against him and a man had come to arrest him. Someone had spied that the Maulana resided in the mosque of Chatta.When the man came to the mosque he saw that a person wearing a vest and long-cloth was sweeping the courtyard of the mosque. The warrant of arrest bore the words, "Maulana Muhammad Qasim Nanotawi should be arrested." The man thought that the Maulana must be an Allamah of imposing personality clad in a long flowing robe who had headed such a tremendous movement. He could never imagine that the person sweeping the mosque was Maulana Qasim Nanotawi. He, therefore, asked this person about the whereabouts of the Maulana. In the meantime Hazrat Maulana's instuition guided him that a warrant had been issued for his arrest. The Maulana was now caught in a very confusing situation. He had to conceal his identity and yet he could not tell a lie. To get himself out of this awkward situation, he stepped back from the place where he was standing and said to the man. A little before the Maulana was here. The man thought that a little before the Maulana was in the mosque, but had left it and gone elsewhere.

Hazrat Sheikhul Hind رحمة الله عليه and Modesty

Hazrat Sheikh-ul-Hind Maulana Mahmoodul-Hasan is the man who launched such a vigorous freedom movement against the British Government of India as shook to the core of the whole of India, Afghanistan and Turkey. My respected father Maulana Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه related a story about him on the authority of Hazrat Maulana Mughis Sahib رحمة الله عليه An 'Alim of Ajmer (India), Maulana Mu'eenuddin Ajmeri رحمة الله عليه decided to go to Deoband to pay a visit to the Sheikhul-Hind. Accordingly, he reached Deoband and asked a Tonga driver to take him to Maulana Sheikhul-Hind. In Deoband he was know as Bare (big) Maulana Sahib. The Tonga-driver inquired: do you want to go to Bare Maulawi Sahib? The reply being in the affirmative, the Tonga-driver took him to the house of Hazrat Sheikhul-Hind. It was summer time, when this visitor knocked at the door, a man wearing a vest and a long cloth, came out of the house. The visitor told the man at the door that he had come from Ajmer to meet Hazrat Maulana Mahmoodul-Hasan Sahib رحمة الله عليه and that his own name was Mu'eenuddin Ajmeri. He was let in and asked to take his seat. The visitor repeated his desire to see the Sheikhul-Hind. The man asked him to have patience. As the season was hot he began to fan him. The visitor asked the man with some irritation to inform the Maulana that a man had come from Ajmer to see the Maulana. He went in came out with food. The visitor told the man that he had not come to take food; he wanted to see the Maulana. The man requested the visitor to take the food and he would soon meet the Maulana. The visitor took food and drank water. Then the visitor complained with some irritation that the man was not informing Sheikhul-Hind of his visit. The man (who was Sheikhul-Hind himself) said to the visitor: Hazrat! No Sheikhul-Hind resides here. Mahmoodul Hasan is indeed the name of the man standing before you. This was the character of our elder saints. May Allah grant us some of this colour: Aameen.

Hazrat Maulana Muzaffar Husain Sahib رحمة الله عليه and Modesty

Hazrat Maulana Muzaffar Husain Sahib Kandehlawi رحمة الله عليه was once returning from some place to Kandehla by rail. When he got off the train at the station he saw that an old man was going with a heavy bundle on his head. He was walking with difficulty on account of the heavy load. Feeling pity on the old man the Maulana asked his permission to carry the load himself. The old man agreed to this and thanked the stranger for the help. The Maulana took up the bundle on his head and both set off on the journey. On the way the following dialogue ensued between the two:

Maulana: Where are you going?
Old man: To Kandehla.
Maulana: Why are you going there?
Old man: I have heard that a great Maulawi Sahib resides there. I am going tomeet him.
Maulana: Who is that great Maulawi?
Old man: Maulana Muzaffar Husain Sahib Kandehlawi. I have heard that he is a very great Maulana and a big 'Alim.
Maulana: Yes he can read Arabic.

While this dialogue was going on they reached Kandehla. When the people saw Maulana carrying a load, they rushed towards him to pay regard to, and take the load from him. Seeing this the old man was very much upset and shocked that he had burdened the Maulana with such a heavy load. The Maulana solaced the oldman, saying: Brother, there is nothing to worry. When I saw that you are in trouble, Almighty Allah helped me to render this service. Thanks to Allah.

Another event relating to Hazrat Sheikhul-Hind رحمة الله عليه

It was a regular programme followed during Ramazan at the place of Hazrat Sheikhul-Hind رحمة الله عليه Maulana Mahmoodhul Hasan Sahib رحمة الله عليه that the Taraweeh prayer was started after the 'Isha prayer and continued throughout the night till dawn. The Qur'an was completed after every three or four days. A Hafiz recited the Qur'an and Sheikhul-Hind رحمة الله عليه listened to the recitation standing behind the Hafiz. He himself was not a Hafiz-e-Qur'an. At the end of the Taraweeh the Hafiz Sahib used to lie down for a short nap near the Sheikhul-Hind. The Hafiz Sahib related that one night when he opened his eyes he saw that someone was massaging his legs. He thought that it might be some pupil or student. When he looked up after sometime he found to his great surprise that it was Hazrat Sheikhul-Hind himself who was massaging his legs. The Hafiz Sahib at once got up and asked what the Sheikh was doing. The Sheikhul-Hind رحمة الله عليه replied: You remain standing during Taraweeh the whole night. I am massaging your legs that they may receive some comfort.

Maulana Muhammad Ya'qoob Sahib Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه and Modesty

Hazrat Maulana Muhammad Ya'qoob Sahib Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه was the principal of Darul-Uloom, Deoband. He was a high-ranking 'Alim. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has said that when anyone praised him in his presence, he would keep quiet, instead of uttering some formal common words like, "It is your good opinion about me, otherwise I am nothing, etc.." Such formal words are uttered with a concealed desire to hear more praise. This is false and not real modesty. The man praising Maulana thought on account of his silence that he was pleased with his praise.An observer might have thought that the Maulana had no modesty. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه said: These formalities do not mean modesty. Modesty is a quality of the heart. True modesty demands that a man should not consider any work, however low, below his dignity.

Another event about him, demonstrating Modesty

There is another event relating to Maulana Muahmmad Ya'qoob Sahib Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه. Someone invited Maulana Sahib to a feast and he accepted it. The village of the host was at some distance, but he provided no conveyance. Maulana Sahib رحمة الله عليه, therefore, set off for the place on foot. He did not at all mind the absence of conveyance. He took food along with mangoes. The host did not arrange conveyance even on Maulana's return journey and what is more, handed over to him a heavy load of mangoes to take home. Maulana accepted the gift of mangoes and set-off homewards with this heavy load. The load was too heavy for a man like Maulana Sahib who had never in his life lifted such a heavy load. To carry it he had to use both his hands alternately. When he approached Deoband both his hands had become almost paralysed. At long last he placed the load on his head. this brought some relief to his hands. At this he regretted that he did not place the load on his head in the very beginning to avoid all that distress. Maulana arrived home at Deoband with the load of mangoes on his head. He was supporting the load with one hand and shaking hands with the people who came to greet him with the other hand. The grand Maulana never thought that the work of carrying the load on his head was not worthy of his status. It is a token of modesty that man should never consider any work to be derogatory to his position.

An even Unique of its Kind

You might have heard the name of Hazrat Sayyid Ahmad Kabir Rifa'i رحمة الله عليه who was among the most dignified saitns of Allah. A unique event happened with him which had happened to none else in the world. He had a great longing in his heart to visit the Holy Shrine of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. After long waiting and longing Allah at last granted him an opportunity to perform the Hajj. After Hajj he went to Madinah Munaw-warah. When he visited the Holy Shrine of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, he spontaneously recited two couplets of Arabic poety:

فی حالة البعد روحی کنت ارسلها
تقبل الارض عنی وهی نائبتی

وهذه دولة الاشباح قد حضرت
فامدد یمینك کی تحظی بهاشفتی

That is: O Messenger of Allah! when I was at a distance from you I used to send my soul to kiss the earth on my behalf and as my representative. Today when I am present here in person, kindly; hold out to me your right hand that my lips may enjoy by kisisng it.

As soon as these couplets were recited, the sacred hand of the Holy Prophet ﷺ came out of his shrine and all present there graced themselves with its sight and Hazrat Sayyid Ahmad Kabir Rifa'i رحمة الله عليه kissed the Prophet's hand. Thereafter the hand went back. This unique event is recorded in history and the reality is known to Allah alone.

The Remedy to cure Pride

After the happening of this event Hazrat Sayyid Ahmad Kabir Rifa'i رحمة الله عليه thought of the great honour which Almighty Allah had conferred upon him which had not been conferred upon any person before. He feared lest this should create in his heart some vestige of pride. To forestall this he lay down at the gate of the Prophet's mosque and he requested the public on solemn oath to go out of the mosque by crossing over him, so as to remove all traces of pride and superiority from his heart. I have related this story only as an interlude, otherwise the main event which I want to relate is as follows:

The best Example of Public service

Once Hazrat Sayyid Ahmad Kabir Rifa'i رحمة الله عليه was going to the market when he saw on the way a weak and sick dog suffering from scabies and unable to walk.

The righteous servants of Allah are always full of love for Allah's creatures. This love and affection is a sign to show that they maintain special relationship with Allah. Sheikh Sa'di رحمة الله عليه the famous Persian Sufi poet of Shiraz has expressed the same point in his persian couplet:

زتسبیح و سجاده و دلق نیست
طریقت بجز خدمت خلق نیست

The way leading to Allah is nothing, but service to the creatures of Allah. It does not consist in counting over the rosary, the prayer carpet and the saint's long ragged robe.

My Sheikh Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say that when a servant of Allah loves Allah and Allah also loves him, then Allah infuses into the heart of his servant the love of creatures. As a result the hearts of men of God become full to the brim of the love of Allah's creatures. So deep is their love that it is beyond our imagination.

When Hazrat Sayyid Ahmad Rifa'i رحمة الله عليه saw this dog in such a sad plight he felt pity on it, he brought the dog with him, and provided for it medical treatment bandaged its wounds, until the dog recovered from its diseases. He looked after the dog with due care, being a God's creature.

Dialogue with a Dog

After the event mentioned above one day Hazrat Sayyid Ahmad Kabir Rifa'i رحمة الله عليه was going somewhere and it was the rainy season. He was walking on the raised path separating one field from the other, each filled with water and mire. Suddenly a dog appeared coming from the other side. Both stopped seeing each other, as the path was so narrow that both could not pass by each other. One of them must get down into the mire to let the other pass unsoiled. Hazrat Rifa'i رحمة الله عليه was in a fix what to do. It is said that a dialogue took place between the saint and the dog. Only Allah Knows how this dialogue became possible. None knows if it was a miracle worked by Allah or Hazrat Rifa'i رحمة الله عليه conceived it mentally. However, the dialogue runs thus:

Hazrat Rifa'i: Get down from the path so that I may pass on.

Dog: Why should I? You pose to be a great Wali (friend of Allah). A true Wali makes sacrifices for others. You are asking me to get down but why do you not get down yourself to let me pass on?

Hazrat Rifa'i: You and me. I am duty-bound and you are free from all obligations. I have to be clean to offer my prayers, but you are exempt from prayer. If my clothes become polluted by getting down the path I cannot pray in this condition. That is why I am asking you to get down the path to let me pass on.

Otherwise the heart will become polluted

Dog : Ha! what an excuse that your clothes will become polluted! you can clean by washing them with water. If I get down your heart will beocme polluted you will think that you are a man and far superior to a nasty dog. It is, therefore, better for you to save your heart from pollution by getting down instead of saving your clothes.

Hearing this reply of the dog Hazrat Rifa'i رحمة الله عليه accepted defeat and admitted the dog's logic that the clothes could be cleaned by washing but the heart could not be cleaned by washing. He, therefore, got down in the mire and made way for the dog to pass on.

At the end of this dialogue an inspiration came to Hazrat Rifa'i رحمة الله عليه in which Almighty Allah addressed him thus:

"O Ahmad Kabir, today I have graced you with such wealth of knowledge as has no equal. A few days ago you had felt pity on a poor, sick dog by providing medical treatment for it. As a reward for this I have granted you, through the dog, peerless knowledge. "A man should not consider himself to be superior even to a dog."

Hazrat Bayazeed Bustani رحمة الله عليه

Hazrat Bayazeed Bustani رحمة الله عليه has been a great Muslim saint of international fame. It is related about him that after his death someone saw him in a dream and asked him how Almighty Allah dealt with him. The saint replied, saying: Something very strange happened to me. When Allah asked me about deeds I had taken with me there, I replied that I had nothing with me, I have come empty handed. I totally depend on Your mercy. Almighty Allah said: Out of all the good deeds you did in the world I appreciated very much one of them. When you got up one night you saw that a kitten was shuddering with severe cold, you felt pity on it and provided it cover under your quilt and the kitten passed the night comfortably. This act of yours was based on sincerity and you did it exclusively for the sake of My pleasure. It pleased Me so much that I granted you forgiveness only on account of this deed.

Hazrat Bayazeed Bustani رحمة الله عليه has said that the learning and knowledge he had acquired in the world proved futile. Only one deed was counted as worthy in the sight of Allah. It was kindness to and nice behaviour with the creatures of Allah.

The gist of the discussion

Anyway, Hazrat Sayyid Ahmad Kabir Rifa'i رحمة الله عليه was instructed by means of this inspiration that the most valuable of all the learning is man's admission that he is "worthless" and that his own personality has no reality. This is the essence of all knowledge and is called "Modesty" - total freedom from Pride. All godly men take care to safeguard themselves from the vice of Pride in whatever form it may be.

The difference between "Modesty" and "Inferiroity Complex"

Nowadays the science of psychology has become very popular among the people. "Inferiority Complex" is a subject of this science which is regarded as something very undesirable. Medical treatment is provided for a person who falls a victim to this malady. Some people allege that the mystic formula of "modesty" or "selfeffacement" is only creating the feeling of "Inferiority Complex" among the people which is apparently not a desirable tendency.

It may be stated to clear that "Modesty" and "Inferiority Compelx" are two different traits of human behaviour. Those who evolved the science of psychology are totally ignorant of Deen (Faith), Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. They invented the term "Inferiority Complex", even though it has some good aspects as well. There is in reality a difference between "Modesty" and "Inferiority Complex".

"Inferiority Complex" a complaint against creation

"Inferiority Complex" consists accusation against Allah's creation, A man suffering from this complex thinks that he has been deprived of something which should have been given to him and that he has been pushed back. He has not been given his due share. He was born ugly, poor, sick or crippled, etc. Such complaints necessarily create irritation and, in turn, jealousy. They create in him dependency and dejection. At any rate, "Inferiority complex" is based on a complaint against dispensation and ordinance of Allah.

Modesty is the product of gratitude

As regards"Modesty", it cannot be acquired by complaining against Allah's Decree. It is acquired through rendering thanks to Allah for His grants and favours. The man practising "Modesty" thinks that he did not deserve any blessings, but Almighty Allah favoured him by His mercy and grace.

Now you can realize yourself the difference between "Inferiority Complex" and "Modesty". The qulaity of "Modesty is highly desirable. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said "Modesty" raises to honour and dignity whoso practises it". As against this, pride ultimately brings disgrace and humiliation. The man practising "Modesty" is ultimately favoured with honour, provided he is true and sincere in his "Modesty".

Show of "Modesty"

Sometimes we make a show of modesty by using formal words like, "I am worthless, the lowest, sinful" etc. This is no Modesty; it is only a show of modesty; it is an illusion of "Modesty." Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has givern us a very effective formula to test the modesty of anyone. When a person says that he is worthless, wrongdoer, guilty and good for nothing, etc., confirm to him his statements, syaing, "yes, really you are what you are telling about yourself." Now see his reactions. If he does not take ill what you have confirmed he is really sincere in his claim of modesty. On the other hand, if he feels offended then be sure that he was making only a show of "modesty". He was using words of modesty with the intention that his listeners may contradict him, saying "No sir, you are very honourable, pious and modest, etc." This is not "Modesty, but a show of modesty."

Modesty and Ingratitude

A man's life possesses many good aspects. Some have been favoured with learning and knowledge, some with health, some with wealth and still some with high status. How can a man deny these blessings? If he denies these blessings, it will be ingratitude on his part. To steer clear of this situation the saints have suggested that "Modesty" should not be strained so much as to touch the boundary of ingratitude. Modesty and gratitude should go together. The one should not repel the other.

This is not Modesty

Hazrat Maulana Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has related an event in one of his sermons. He has stated that once he was travelling by train and some passengers were sitting around him. As they were talking to one another, he could not sleep and came down from his berth. They sat down to take food and invited the Maulana also to it, saying: Kindly come and partake with us our poor and coarse food. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه objected to this that they were calling the food inferior which was Allah's gift. They replied that they called the food poor and coarse by way of modesty. It would be an act of pride to call the food to be of superior quality. The food was a gift from Allah. It was not at all right to call it poor and coarse. Likewise, if Allah has granted someone a blessing, one should be thankful to Allah for the valuable grant. The gift should not be taken lightly.

Refrain from Pride as well as ingratitude

On the one hand it is necessary for us to refrain from pride and on the other hand from ingratitude. We must refrain from both the vices. If there is man who offers prayers, observes fasting and thinks that he is doing something very praiseworthy, he is committing the sin of pride. If the same man thinks that his acts of pryaing and fasting are worthless and fruitless, this is an act of ingratitude in the sight of Allah.

How to combine Gratitude and Modesty

A question arises as to how to combine two virtues apparently quite different from each other - gratitude and pride at the same time. In other words, gratitude and modesty should go together. It is very easy to combine the two virtues. Man should think that he had no capacity at all to do this work which he was able to do only with the kind help of Almighty Allah. In this way both the virtues get combined. When man thinks that he is quite incapable and good for nothing, he practises modesty. When he thinks that he did something only with the help and mercy of Allah, he is showing gratitude to Allah. A servant who is grateful to Allah can never be proud, because gratitude implies in its meaning admission of weakness and inability. If he has done anything or attained any success it was through Allah's help and mercy. See how the Holy Prophet ﷺ combined both the virtues in himself:

انا سيد ولد ادم ولا فخر(ترمذی، کتاب المناقب، باب نمبر۳، حدیث نمبر ۳۶۳۲)

I am the leader of Adam's son yet, I take no pride in it. (Tirmizi..... ch. No: 3, Hadith No: 3632)

In this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has claimed that he ﷺ is the leader of Adam's progeny. This implies admission of superiority, yet it has been set off at the same time by the denial of pride (ولا فخر). The Holy Prophet ﷺ admittedly deny pride that his status of leadership is due only to Allah's favour and mercy and not to any qualification in his own self.

An Example

Hazrat Maulana Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has explained this by an example. In the olden days there used to be a class of slaves. They were owned by their masters like some property. Their masters had full authority to sell them in the market. A slave was solely bound to obey his master. If the master asked him to become a ruler in his absence, he had to assume that responsibility. Nothwithstanding this, basically he remains a slave. He can never think that the power he is holding is due to his own ability and competence. He understands quite well that when the master returns and asks him to clean the latrine he will have to do that. Now it becomes clear that, although the slave is officiating as a ruler, yet he realizes his real worth and position as a mere slave, having no authority, whatsoever.

A "servant's" position is below that of a slave

The position of a "servant" (بندہ) is much lower and inferior than a slave so when "Almighty Allah bestows some position upon His servant, he should think that the duty he is discharging is Allah's favour. He is a "servant" of Allah far inferior to the slave whom his master has authorized to work as a ruler. We know from the annals of history how many slaves there have been who ruled over countries, yet the spot of slavery remained sticking to them till the last.

A story full of morals

There was a slave who rebelled against his master, murdered him and took over the reins of the Kingdom. He continued as a King for a long time and princes were born to him. This slave King invited to his court Sheikh Izzuddin bin Abdus-Salam who was a Wali (friend) of Allah and a Mujaddid of his time. The slave King offered to appoint him Qazi (Chief Justice). The Sheikh replied: The right to appoint a Qazi vests in the rightful Caliph which you are not. You are a slave and have seized power by murdering your master. You have also seized much landed property to which you, as a slave, have no right. A slave cannot own any property. I shall, therefore, not accept any post from you, unless you rectify your position.

In those days goodness prevailed. The slave King had usurped power by murdering his master, yet he had some fear of Allah. The saint's words had also impressed him. He admitted the charges levied against him by the Sheikh that he was really a slave. He requested the Sheikh to tell him how he could extricate himself from the bonds of slavery. The Sheikh told him that there was only one way: The King as well as his princes should all stand in the market and offer themselves for sale. The sale money should be distributed among the heirs of the deceased master, i.e. the ousted King. Then the buyer should free his purchased slaves. Then the slave King and the princes would become free. How difficult a situation it was! However, some fear of Allah and of the punishment of the Hereafter, as the slave King had in his heart, he accepted to go through this ordeal.

It is a unique event of history that the King and his progeny taken to the market and offered for sale. They were auctioned. A rich man purchased them then set them free in return for an adequate compensation. Thus the Kingdom of the King was regularised. We have in our history such evetns the like of which will not be found elsewhere in any other nation. The lesson to be learnt from this unique event is that just as a slave King realizes that he is basically a slave, in the same way if a man is holding some dignified post, he should believe from the core of his heart that he is a slave of Allah. If man realizes this truth, he can never do wrong to others, while occupying his high and dignified post.

Modesty in Worship

Allah helps you, by His mercy, to become a Namazi (worshipper), do not begin to tell others that you are a Namazi, nor think, that you have become a very great saint as says the Arabic proverb:

صلي الحـائك ركعتين وانتـظر الوحى

A weaver once offered two Rak'ats of prayer and began to wait for a revelation from above. He foolishly thought that his act of praying was so sublime that he should receive revelation from Allah. You should, therefore, not regard your acts of worship so great that you should anticipate great results immediately, nor should you consider your act so inferior that you may become involved in ingratitude, by thinking that it is totally worthless and condemnable.

It is dereogatory to the sanctity of your prayer to utter derogatory words. You should be thankful to Almighty Allah that with His help you could perform the prayers whatever its worth and level.

You must do two things

Whenever Allah enables you to perform some worship you have to do two acts. Firstly, render thanks to Allah that He enabled you, by His mercy, to worship Him. How many men there are who remain away from this worship. Secondly, seek Allah's forgiveness for the faults you may have committed, and the defects and shortcomings that may have crept into your worship. It is hoped that on account of these two acts Allah shall accept your worship.

Ecstatic experiences and feelings are not the objective

We always feel worried that we find no change in ourselves, nor do we experience any spiritual elation, although we have been offering prayers counting over the beads, rememebring Allah's sacred names alongwith the Tahajjud and Ishraq prayers. You must bear in mind that these internal feelings of elation are not the objective. The good deeds you are doing, including those mentioned above, are in themselves a great favour of Allah. The anxiety about the acceptance or non-acceptance by Allah of your good actions, remembrance, prayer, etc. is quite appreciable, yet it should be realized and admitted that they are not in themselves worthy of being offered to, and accepted by Allah. Notwithstanding this you should also hope that when Allah has helped you to do these acts He will, by His mercy, accept them for reward.

A sign to indicate the acceptance of worship by Allah

Haji Imdadullah Sahib رحمة الله عليه was a great Sheikh. May Allah exalt his rank! A man who was a regular Namazi asked him if his prayers were accepted by Allah or not. The Sheikh replied, saying: If your first prayer had not been accepted you would not have been allowed the second, then the third then the fourth and so on so forth. When you have done a good deed and Allah helps you to do it again, then it is a clear indication that Allah has accepted the first deed by His infinite mercy. One should, therefore, never consider his praying and fasting to be altogether inferior and insignificant.

An event that occurred with a saint

Maulana Rumi رحمة الله عليه has related in his Masnawi the story of a saint. He was a very religious and pious man who had been offering prayers, observing fasts and remembering Allah and in other forms of worship. One day it occurred to him that he had devoted himself to Allah's worship for such a long period, but he did not receive any response from Allah so far about the acceptance or non-acceptance of his devotion. He submitted this thought to his Sheikh. The Sheikh reprimanded him and explained to him you have been continuously doing your deeds of righteousness and devotion with Allah's help and this is a response from Allah to you. If Allah had not accepted your devotion and worship, He would not have extended His help to you to continue your prayers and fastings, etc. It is not, therefore, necessary to wait for a response which is already there.

کہ گفت آں اللہ تو لبیک ماست

زیں نیاز دورو و سوزک ماست

The idea contained in this persian couplet is that if a man is rehearsing the names of Allah, then this rehearsal of Allah's name is Allah's response that man is enabled to rehearse the name of Allah again and agian and repeatedly.

The best Example

Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to give a very good example to illustrate how Allah accepts the worship of his servants. Hazrat Dr.Sahib رحمة الله عليه has suggested, saying: Go to a man and speak well of him. Do the same the second day and the third day.If he appreciates this act of yours he shall listen to you and will not forbid you to praise him. On the other hand, if he dislikes this act of yours he may tolerate you the first or the second day, but will surely turn you out the third day and will not allow to praise him. Just like this, when you praise Allah and He allows you to continue this praise of Him, this is a sure sign that Allah appreciates your act, even the act may be of an inferior standard. So, do not look down up this act as worthless, but thank Allah's magnanimity for accepting something which is in fact not worthy of this acceptance.

The gist of the entire discussion

Our respected Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to advise us to continue working in the path of Deen according to the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. In addition, we must render thanks to Allah that He who enabled us to do something good and right, as without His help we could do nothing. Then when we rememebr our fautls, sins and shortcomings we should seek Allah's forgiveness. If we follow this advice, we will be able to do justice to "Modesty" in our conduct, and offer gratitude to Allah and as a result we will be saved from pride.

How to acquire the quality of "Modesty"

In order to acquire the quality of "Modesty" you should regard yourself to be a servant of Allah and think that you are bound to do whatever Allah entrusts to you. If He appoints you to some high post resolve that you shall discharge the duties attached to that post honestly, because you are a slave of Allah and have no discretion of your own in the matter. You must admit that whatever you have been granted is Allah's gift and favour. Such trend of thought will ensure for you the quality of gratitude as well as of modesty.

The respected Sufis (mystics) say that the 'Arif (knower of the ways of Allah) has the ability of combining opposites which are apparently contradictory to each other. On the one hand you should not look down upon your good deeds and on the other hand you should not pride yourself upon them. You should think that, in so far as your acts are concerned, they are worthless, but in so far as Allah's attribute of acceptance is concerned, they are indeed valuable. By adopting such trend of thought you shall attain Modesty as well as the qulaity of gratitude.

Practise gratitude to the best of your ability

Our Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه laid great stress on the virtue of rendering thanks to Allah. The more one renders thanks to Allah, the more easily and quickly he will be cured of his inner and spiritual diseases. Previously we could not grasp the secret of these poitns. Now we have come to know that this virtue of thanks giving is a very effective remedy to cure the inner diseases of our hearts. He رحمة الله عليه used to say that people now-a-days are too weak in body and soul to go through the ordeals of those spiritual exercises and disciplines which the students of spiritual training used to perform in the past under the direct supervision of their Sheikh and underwent great hardships in this path. We have neither time nor strength for this tiring ordeals. Only one way is open for you and that is the way of rendering thanks to Allah as much as possible. This will create in us the virtue of "Modesty" and expel from our hearts the vice of pride. This will also lead us to the path of total cure from the inner diseases.

The meaning of Gratitude

When "thanksgiving" is so important we must understand the meaning of "thanks". Thanksgiving or gratitude is a belief that we are indeed not deserving of anything. Whatever we receive or attain comes to us only through Allah's grant or favour. This is what we call "Modesty". There is neither modesty nor gratitude in the belief that you deserved the success or the grant by dint of your own efforts and labour. Take an example. A debtor pays back his loan to the creditor. The creditor is not bound to thank the debtor for this payment, because the amount was legally and morally due to the creditor. By paying back his debt the debtor did not oblige the creditor with any favour. Thanks become due where a man receives some benefit or favour which he does not deserve or to which he has no title. At the time of rendering thanks to Allah for a favour you must realize that you did not deserve the favour; it was only Allah's favour and grant. By following such a trend of thought you shall attain the virtue of "Modesty". The Holy Prophet ﷺ has made a promise to a man who practises "Modesty" in the following words:

من تواضع لله رفعه الله

Allah raises him to honour and dignity who practises Modesty for the sake of Allah.

Summary

It should be borne in mind that "Modesty" is a quality of the heart. A man should think in his heart that he is worthless and good for nothing. To be able to preserve this trend in the heart, in actual practice one should think that it is modesty that one should be ready to do anything and should not consider any job below his status and dignity. He should be ready to handle any duty, however, lowly it may be. There should be no vestiges of pride and arrogance in man's sitting, standing, walking, in fact, in any of his movements. His conduct should always reflect modesty and humbleness. This is not total Modesty, yet this too is a means to attain total modesty. In short, a man should take to modesty even in his apparent acts and movements, which in turn will sow the seeds of gratitude and modesty in the heart.

May Almighty Allah create the virtue of Modesty in our hearts-Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi
Date : 18th June, 1993.

JEALOUSY - A FATAL DISEASE

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيد نا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

عن ابى هريرة رضى الله تعالى عنه ان النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم قال:

" ايا كم و الحسد، فان الحسد ياكل الحسنات كما تاكل النار الحطب، اوقال: العشب" (ابو داود، كتاب الادب، باب فى الحسد، حديث نمبر ٤٩٠٣)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and seek his forgiveness and believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our souls and the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom He guides and there is none to guide him whom He lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah the only One Who has no partner. I also bear witness that our master, our Prophet Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah shower His mercy on him, his household and his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and bless them in great abundance.

"Jealousy" is an Inner Diseasae

We are aware that among our apparent acts Allah has appointed some as Farz (obligatory duty), some as compulsory and some as sins. Exactly in the same way among our inner acts, many are Farz, and many others are sins and totally forbbidden. To refrain from these inner sins is as imperative as to refrain from our apparent major sins. Some of these have already been discussed. Today I want to dsicuss a very dangerous inner disease which is "Jealousy". In the Hadith recited before you just now, the Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned this disease. The Hadith may be translated as follows:

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Refrain from jealousy, because it consumes the good deeds of man just as fire consumes wood or grass. The narrator is doubtful whether the Holy Prophet ﷺ had used the word "wood" or "grass". The Hadith means that just as fire totally eats up dried grass or dried wood, in the same way the disease of jealousy eats up the good deeds of the jealous persons.

The Fire of Jealousy remains in flames

There is a kind of fire which destroys everything in a matter of minutes. There is another kind of fire which burns without flame but slowly and slowly eats away things in bits, till it consumes the entire wood. Likewise is jealousy which, just burns without fire, and annihilates man's good deeds stealthly and does not even feel this hidden process of loss. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has emphatically warned against this disease.

It is an obligatory duty to refrain from Jealousy

If we make a survey of the conditions prevailing in our society, we shall see that this disease of jealousy has encircled the entire society. There are a very few servants of Allah who are safe from it. Jealousy is so insidious a disease that somehow it finds access to the hearts. At the same time it is an obligatory duty to refrain from it at all costs. As for ourselves, we take no notice of this dangerous situation and do not even feel that we are suffering from this disease. It is, therefore, highly imperative to be cautious against the onslaught of this disease.

First of all we should try to understand the reality of jealousy, its categories, its causes and the remedy to cure it. These four issues are the topic of today's discussion. May Almighty Allah make today's discourse instrumental to the eradication of this disease.

The Reality of Jealousy

A man sees that another man is in possession of some blessing whether of this world or of the Hereafter. A grudge and ill-will springs up in him against the man gifted with the blessing. He begins to desire that the blessing of the other man may be snatched away from him. This is the reality of jealousy.

Take an example. Allah has bestowed upon some man wealth, good health, fame, honour or learning. A burning feeling crops up and starts imagining as to why this blessing was granted to him and that the blessing should better be taken away from him. It pains him to see another man in possession of one or many of these blessings and he is happy if some of these blessings are lost or snatched away from him.

Keeping in view this reality of jealousy if you reflect a bit you will feel that the jealous person raises objection to Allah's Decree as to why He bestowed that blessing upon another person, instead of him. It is a very serious sin that he is taking exception to the Omnipotent Providence and is at the same time wishing that the blessing granted by Allah to the other person may be seized from him which is too grievous a sin.

To 'envy' is lawful

Sometimes a man sees that another man is in possession of some blessing. A desire arises in his heart that he may also get that blessing. This desire is not jealousy; it is 'envy' for which the Arabic equivalent is غبطه. Sometime this word حسد is also confessed with the Arabic (Jealousy). For example, a man sees that a fellow man is in possession of a nice house, a lucrative post or erudite knowledge. Now he desires that he should also acquire these blessings. This desire is not jealousy; it is "envy". When this desire is accompanied by a desire that these blessings possessed by others may be seized from them, then it becomes the sin of jealousy.

Three Degrees of Jealousy

There are three degrees of jealousy. The first degree is the springing in the heart of a desire that you may get the like of a blessing which another person possesses. It is better that you may get the blessing without depriving the other person of his possession. If this is not possible, then the blessing of the other person may be taken away from him and given to you. This is the first degree of jealousy. The second degree of jealousy is that the blessing in the possession of some other person may be snatched away from him and given to you. This degree consists of two aspects. Firstly, the blessing may be taken away from its owner and secondly, that it may be given to you. The third degree of jealousy is in the desire that the blessing may be taken away from its owner along with the status and honour which he is enjoying by virtue of this blessing, whether that the blessing is passed on to you or not. This is the worst and most heinous degree of jealousy. May Almighty Allah protect us all from this. Aameen!

The First soul that committed the sin of Jealousy

The first to take resort to the sin of Jealousy was Iblis (Satan) when Almighty Allah created Hazrat Adam علیه السلام He announced that He was going to appoint him His vicegerent. Thereafter He commanded the angels to prostrate themselves before Adam علیه السلام. Iblis felt offended at this command and refused to obey the command of prostration. Satan was thus the first to commit the sins of jealousy and pride.

The inevitable consequences of Jealousy

It is an inevitabel consequence of jealousy that if the victim of jealousy suffers from some harm or loss or faces grief, the jealous person exults over the victim. Conversely, if the victim happens to receive some blessing in the form of money or success or in getting some important job, the jealous person feels annoyed and sad. Feeling pleasure at the distress of someone is called in the Arabic language (شماتت)

This is also a kind of jealousy. The Qur'an and the Ahadith have condemned this vice at many places. The Qur'an says:

اَمْ يَحْسُدُوْنَ النَّاسَ عَلٰى مَآ اٰتٰهُمُ اللّٰهُ مِنْ فَضْلِهٖ (سورة النساء: ٥٤)

This means: Or are they jealous of mankind because of that which Allah has bestowed upon them out of His bounty?

See how the jealous feels angry at Allah's grant and favour.

Two causes of Jealousy

There are two causes of the birth of this inner disease in a man. The first is the love of worldly wealth and property and status. It is a natural wish of a man to see himself in a respectable and dignified position. If another man supersedes him in the acquisition of wealth, property or status, the jealous fellow tries to bring him down. The second cause is hatred and malice. A man harbouring hatred and malice against anyone feels joy if the latter is afflicted with some distress, but feels offended and sad when the latter has some occasion of joy and satisfaction. A heart filled with these two vices must generate jealousy.

Jealousy leads to ruin both in this world and in the Hereafter

Jealousy is so dangerous an inner disease that not only does it destroy man's Hereafter but it also leads to destruction of man's interests and affairs in this world. Obviously a man wishing ill of others is always afflicted with mental torture and suffocation, particularly when he finds someone advancing towards success and happiness, which affects the health of the jealous person adversely.

The Jealous man keeps burning in the fire of his jealousy

Jealousy is just like fire. It is a natural property of fire that it eats up its fuel like wood or grass as long as it is available. When this fuel is exhausted, the fire begins to eat its own other parts until the fire gets extinguished. Exactly like this is the fire of jealousy. The man addicted to jealousy first tries to harm others with his jealousy, when he is unable to harm others, he perishes by burning internally in the fire of his own jealousy.

Remedy for the disease of Jealousy

The man suffering from the diesease of Jealousy should realize the truth that Almighty Allah has distributed His blessings in the world according to His wisdom and dispensation. If He has granted the blessing of wealth to one person, He has granted the blessing of good health to another eprson. Again, if He has granted the blessing of honour and dignity to one person, He has granted the blessings of beauty and charm, peace and tranquillity to other persons. There is no man in this world who has not been granted some blessings to enjoy or has not been afflicted with some distress and diseases from which he is suffering.

The Three Worlds

Almighty Allah has created in this Universe three worlds. One world is the world of Paradise which is full of endless bliss, joy and luxuries. There is no place in Paradise for distress, pain disease, worry and sorrow. May Allah admit all of us into it Aameen!

The second world is totally opposed to Paradise and that is Hell. It is full of grief, distress torment and all forms of torture and punishment. It has no trace of ease and comfort. May Allah protect us all from this world of torture, trial and tribulation. Aameen.

The third world is the world on which we live. It is a world which is a combination of the first and the second worlds. It has in it happiness as well as sorrow, comfort as well as trouble, and honour as well as disgrace. There is none in this world who can say that he has never had in his life any difficulty or trouble. There is also none here who can claim that he has never tasted in his life ease and comfort, joy and bliss. In this world every joy is tampered by sorrow and every sorrow is seasoned with a taste of joy. Totally pure and unmixed comfort and joy or distress and sorrow cannot be conceived in this world.

Who enjoys real comfort?

Almighty Allah has created this world with His wisdom and His own scheme of dispensation. He has distributed in this world different bounties to different persons, out of wealth, health, respect and honour, etc. Now the wealthy man is jealous of the healthy man and the latter is jealous of the former, grudging each other's gift. This distribution is indeed according to Allah's

Decree and depends on divine decision. Nobody can say who is really happy and who is sad; who is at ease and who is in trouble. We see that there is a mill-owner, possessing many bungalows, luxurious cars, servants and workers. On the other side there is the poor labourer who labours hard from morning till evening for scanty wages with which he makes both ends meet with great difficulty. This labourer will covet the luxurious life of the mill-owner. If we peep into the inner lives of the two we shall find that all is not gold that glitters and the reality is quite different from what it appears. For example, the mill-owner with all his wealth, bungalows, cars and attendants cannot sleep in his bed without taking sleeping pills. He has all the delicacies of food beautifully arranged on his dinning table, but he is not able to enjoy even a few morsels, because he is sufering from ulcer and has been advised by the physicians to abstain from rich foods. Now see, a rich man having all the comforts and luxuries of life can enjoy neither food nor sound sleep. As compared with this mill-owner, the poor labourer who, having worked hard for eight tedious hours, eats his fill the coarse food available to him and falls into sweet sleep. He gets up from his sleep after eight or ten hours. Now consider which of the two is happy and comfortable? Who is enjoying true and peaceful comforts? If you look closely into this situation, you will see that, while Allah bestowed upon the mill-owner all worldly resources and luxuries, He bestowed real peace and comfort upon the poor labourer. As already pointed out, these are all dependent on Allah's Decree and dispensation.

Sustenance is one form of blessing and to benefit by it is another form

My respected father, Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه once advised us to recite the following Du'a (supplication) after taking meals:

الحمد لله الذى اطعمنى هذا ورزقنيه من غير حول منى ولا قوة، غفرله ما تقدم من ذنبه (ترمذى شريف، ابواب الدعوات، باب مايقول اذا فرغ من الطعام، حديث نمبر ٣٥٢٣)

This means: All praise is for Allah Who has made me eat this food and has provided it for me without any effort and labour on my part. All his past sins (i.e. the minor ones only) will be forgiven who recites this Du'a after taking meals. (Tirmizie .... Hadith No: 3523)

Thereafter, my respected father رحمة الله عليه told us that in this narrative the Holy Prophet ﷺ has uttered two words, each separately. The one is رزقنيه (He has granted me this sustenance) and the other اطعمنى (He has made me eat it) When both the words have almost the same meaning, a question arises as to why they have been mentioned separately. Then he himself answered the question. He said that availability of sustenance is one independent blessing and the ability to eat that sustenance is another independent blessing. Sometimes all sorts of delicious foods are available in the house together with choicest fruit, but there is no appetite because of indigestion and because the physician has advised against eating anything. In such a situation رزقنا (He has granted me the sustenance) holds good but اطعمنا (He has made me eat it) does not hold good. Allah has granted sustenance but has not gratned the ability to eat it, as there is disorder in the digestion.

Anyway, Allah has distributed His bounties among His creatures, differing from individual to individual, not at random but according to a pre-planned scheme and measure.

Allah's Decree

To get rid of the sin of jealousy, the jealous person should consider calmly that if Allah has gratned some valuable blessing to a man which is the cause of jealousy, how many blessings the jealous person has been granted which the other person has not been granted. It is just possible that the jealous person has been granted better health or beauty and charm which the other man has not been granted. Allah's dispensation and providence are not at random; they are based on a pre-ordained divine plan. Thinking on these lines will mitigate the pressure of jealousy.

An Urdu proverb

There is a very common proverb of the Urdu language which means: Allah does not provide finger-nails to a bald-headed, so that he may not injure his head by scratching it with the nails. Likewise, it is just possible that if a man was given wealth in a large measure, he was liable to expose himself to punishment by the misuse of that wealth. If Allah does not grant anyone the blessing of wealth, this is in view of some justification known to Allah. Allah has said in the Holy Qur'an:

وَلَا تَتَمَنَّوْا مَافَضَّلَ اللّٰهُ بِهٖ بَعْضَكُمْ عَلٰى بَعْضٍ (سورة النساء:٣٢)

And do not covet the bounties in which Allah has made some of you excel others. (4:32)

The reason for the command that you should not covet the blessings which Allah has granted to some and withheld from some others is that it is Allah alone Who Knows the wisdom of His dispensation. It is quite possible that if you are granted what you wish, it may not be beneficial for you and may be harmful to you. You should, therefore, always think that the distribution of blessings made by Allah is according to the Divine Decree. To be jealous of anyone for what he has been gratned is to challenge Allah's Decree. This is due to ingorance. It is quite possible that the jealous person may have some blessing which the other person may not have been granted.

Look at the blessings in your possession

The cause of this vice lies in man's tendency to look at others instead of looking into his own position. He does not take into account the many blessings of Allah granted to him nor does he render thanks to Allah for these grants. Instead, he looks with a jealousy on what has been granted to others. If man forms the habit of looking at the countless bounties being showered upon him from morning till evening, he will have no jealousy.

Look of those who are below and inferior to you

Now in our society people have become very fond of making research and investigation in respect of others' affairs. For example, we are always trying to find out how such and such person is receiving large amounts of money, is building a large house and purchasing a car and so on so forth. As a result of this investigation if we find something attractive with someone, the instinct of jealousy is excited. To ward off such a situation, it is necessary to follow the maxim which has been mentioned earlier and is reproduced below.

"In worldly matters always look at those who are below you and inferior to you. In matters relating to Deen (Faith) always look at those who are above you and superior to you."

Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه and comfort

Hazrat Abdullah bin Mubarak رحمة الله عليه has related that he lived for a long time in the sector of the rich and had neighbourly relations with them. During those days none was more dejected and sorrowful than myself. Everyone that he saw he found that his clothes, carriage, house, etc. were much better than those of his own. This had placed me in an inferiority complex. Afterwords I changed residence and shifted to the sector of the poor. I lived among those poor people and had intimate dealings with them. This change brought relief to me. Here the situation was just the opposite. I saw that everyone else in that sector was below and inferior as regards clothes, conveyance and house, etc. were concerned. Consequently Allah granted me heartv comfort and satisfaction.

Desires are endless

Remember that if anyman desires to collect the resources of the world, there will be no end to his desire. The more he collects the more he will hanker for them, as says the Persian line:

کارِ دنیا کسے تمام نہ کرد

There is none who has been able to satisfy his desires for the worldly resources.

Go to the richest man of the world and ask him if he has acquired all his desired objects. He will reply that he requires a great deal more. He will desire to add more and more to his worldly possessions. The famous Arabic poet Mutanabbi has said something very wise about this world:

وما قضى احد منها لبانته
ولا انتهى ارب الا الى ارب

(ديوان متنبى. قافية الفاء، قال يرثى اخت سيف الدولة صفحه ٤٨)

This means: So far nobody could fill his belly with worldly riches. As soon as a wish is fulfilled, another wish arises.

This is because every wish gives rise to another wish. Similarly, every need gives rise to another need.

This is Allah's Dispensation

How far and how long will you go on committing the sin of jealousy at the blessings and possessions of others? You are sure to find men around you who are superior to you in one blessing or another. The best course open to you is to reflect that this is Allah's dispensation which Allah has made according to His wisdom and expedience which we cannot understand. Our range of reflection and thinking is very much limited as compared to Allah's wisdom. It encompasses the entire universe. It is He who decides how to distribute the bounties among the people; whom to grant a beauty and from whom to withhold it. If man reflects on this, the tendency to jealousy will be eradicated.

Another remedy for the disease of jealousy

There is another very efficacious remedy for the disease of jealousy. The patient of jealousy should think that his desire that someone's blessings should be snatched away from him has always the opposite effect. On the other hand the victim of jealousy stands to gain in this world as well as in the Hereafter. When you have made him your enemy he will, by the law of nature, be happy at your grief and distress. When you are in trouble and grieved on account of your jealousy, your enemy will be pleased with your sad plight. This is your enemy's gain in this world. As regards his gain in the Hereafter, the more you are jealous of him the more the balance of his good deeds will increase in the Record of his Deeds. As he has been wronged by your jealousy, his rank in the Hereafter will be raised. It is an inevitable characteristic of jealousy that it incites man to backbiting, finding fault, slandering and many other grievous sins. The result is that the good deeds of the jealous person are snatched away from him and credited to the balance of deeds of the victim of jealousy. Thus, the more you are jealous of him, the more you add to his good deeds. If a jealous man commits jealousy throughout his lifetime, he will lose all his good deeds to the benefit of the victim of jealousy.

An event that happened with a saint

Once a visitor told a saint that such and such person was speaking ill of him. The saint kept quiet and did not say anything in reply. At the end of the meeting when the saint went home, he arranged to send a valuable gift to the man who was reported to have spoken ill of him. The people asked the saint to tell them the reason for this strange dealing. The saint satisfied them by saying: He is my well-wisher, spekaing ill of me he has enhanced the balance of my good deeds. Thus he has done me good and I should repay that good. He has helped me in the Hereafter by increasing my good deeds and I have compensated him for this in this world by sending him some gifts.

Imam Abu Hanifah's refraining from Backbiting

It is well-known that none could commit backbiting in the assemblies of the Imam رحمة الله عليه. The Imam neither himself indulged in backbiting, nor did he listen to backbiting. His asemblies always remained free form this sin. One day Hazrat Imam Abu Hanifah رحمة الله عليه was explaining to his pupils the vices of backbiting. He told them that backbiting is such a grievous sin that it results in the transfer of the good deeds of the backbiter to the account of the victim of backbiting. That is why, said the Imam, he did not backbite anyone. If he were to backbite anyone he would backbite his own parents, so that the parents could receive benefit from the Imam's good deeds.

In this account, there is an indication that according to his belief the backbiter is wishing ill of others, but he is actually benefitting the victim of his backbiting in this world as well as in the Hereafter. At the same time he is causing harm to himself and putting at stake his own interests. How foolish is it then to indulge in backbiting!

Another event concerning Imam Abu Hanifah رحمة الله عليه

Hazrat Sufyan Sauri رحمة الله عليه was a contemporary of Hazrat Imam Abu Hanifah رحمة الله عليه. Both used to hold assemblies to deliver lectures and sermons. Once someone asked Hazrat Sufyan Sauri رحمة الله عليه of his opinion about Imam Abu Hanifah رحمة الله عليه. Hazrat Sufyan Sauri رحمة الله عليه told him that the Imam was a great miser. The man said with surprise that the Imam was renowned to be a very generous saint. Hazrat Sufyan Sauri said: the Imam is so miserly that he is not ready to pass on any of his good deeds to others, yet he secures for himself the good deeds of others. How does it happen? People backbite him and speak ill of him. As a result, their good deeds are transferred to the Imam's account. As for himslef, neither he backbites, nor does he listen to anyone's backbiting. Thus he does not forego any of his good deeds in favour of others. So, from the point of the Hereafter, there is none more miser than he رحمة الله عليه

In fact the man who backbites, or is jealous of anyone is transferring his good deeds to the victim of his backbiting and jealousy by depleting his own stock of good deeds.

Who is a real Pauper

It occurs in a Hadith that once the Holy Prophet ﷺ asked his Companions رضی الله عنهم: Who is a pauper. The Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم replied: A pauper is one who has no money. He ﷺ said: He is not a real pauper. A real pauper is one who leaves this world with a large collection of good deeds including prayers, fasts, Allah's rememberance, etc. When on the Day of Judgment he shall stand before Allah to render accounts, he shall find a large crowd of men demanding compensation from him for thier rights which this man had usurped. As is well-known, there will be no currency note in the Hereafter to pay off debts. The currency of the Hereafter is the good deeds of a man. Allah shall command that the good deeds of the man may be passed on to the claimants. As a result of this command, one man will take away his prayers, another one his fasts, someone will take away his remembrance and rehearsals, etc., and all his good deeds will beocme exhausted, yet their claims against this man will still remain unpaid. In such a situation Allah will command that the claims of the creditors may be paid off by adding to his account the sins of the claimants. When he appeared on the scene his Record of Deeds was full of good deeds, but at the time of leaving the place not only is the bag of his good deed emp , but he is taking with him the burden of sins committed by others. Therefore, this man is a real pauper. (Tirmizi..... Hadith No: 2533)

If Allah bestows, by His mercy upon anyone a heart clean and spotless like a mirror, altogether free from the filth of jealousy, malice, grudge and backbiting, he will be raised to a very high rank, even though he may not have in his Record of Deeds many optional prayers and virtues of remembrance and rehearsal, etc.

Glad tidings of Paradise

Hazrat Abdullah bin Amr bin al-As رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that once they were sitting in the Prophet's mosque with the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He ﷺ said: The man who will enter the mosque from this side will be an inmate of Paradise. When they looked that way, a man soon entered the mosque, while ablution water was dripping form his face and he was holding his shoes in his left hand. The Companions رضی اللہ عنہم very much envied him that the Holy Prophet ﷺ had given the glad tidings that he shall enter Paradise. At the end of the assembly Hazrat Abdullah bin Amr bin al-As رضی اللہ عنہ desired to see from a near distance the fortunate man. He wanted to find out his actions on account of which the Holy Prophet ﷺ had given the glad tidings that he would enter Paradise. So when the man was returning home Hazrat Abdullah رضی اللہ عنہ also followed him. On the way Hazrat Abdullah رضی اللہ عنہ asked the man for permission to live with him for two or three days. The man gave him permission. At night when Hazrat Abdullah رضی اللہ عنہ went to his bed he did not sleep at all, in order to observe the actions of that man. He saw that he did not get up at night for the Tahajjud prayer; he got up only for the Fajr prayer. Even in the day he did not do any particular act in the form of Nawafil (optional prayers) remembrance, etc. He, however, used to resort to the mosque for his five time regular prayers. Hazrat Abdullah رضی اللہ عنہ did not observe any particular act from him. However, he told him how the Holy Prophet ﷺ had given for him glad tidings for Paradise. He was glad to hear this and admitted that he did not devote himself to any special act of worship. He, however, told Hazrat Abdullah رضی اللہ عنہ that he never harboured any hatred, malice or jealousy against anybody. It occurs in certain narratives that it was Hazarat Sa'd bin Waqas رضی اللہ عنہ who had been given advance information about their being inmates of Paradise.

His gain and My loss

You have seen that there was nothing special in the actions of the Companion رضی اللہ عنہ mentioned above. He had no Nawafil and acts of remembrance in his record. He, however, maintained his heart clean like a mirror, free from all traces of jealousy malice and grudge, etc. So far as jealousy is concerned, the jealous person should think that the victim of his jealousy is considerably gaining, while he is going in great loss. This trend of thought is expected to diminish the malady of jealousy.

A third remedy for the disease of jealousy

As has already been mentioned, the root cause of jealousy lies in the love of the world and of worldly power and pelf. The third remedy, therefore, consists in man's banishing from the love of the world and of worldly power and pelf, pomp and show. To be able to do this man should keep in view that this world is short-lived and transitory and he may die any time without prior notice. He shall enter the world of the Hereafter, leaving behind all his wealth, honour, dignity pelf and power, pomp and show. His salvation will depend only on his good deeds and freedom from visible sins as well as inner. These are the three remedial steps by which man can get rid of this malady.

Two kinds of jealousy

An important point to be noted here that after Knowing the vices of jealousy, sometimes it occurs to the mind that the malady of jealousy is born in the heart unintentionally. When a man sees that some of his colleagues, friends or companions are promoted and made to supersede others, then an urge of jealousy and grudge arises spontaneously that the man has risen in status and remuneration. This happens all of a sudden and quite innocently without any pre-planning. How to ward off such a situation?

Note carefully that one kind of jealousy is that the jealous person desires that the blessing which a person has been granted may be taken away from him. Along with this desire, the jealous person speaks ill of the person concerned and tries to find fautls with him in meetings of his friends and colleagues. He does this in orer to degrade his victim in the sight of others. He also desires in various ways that the victim of jealousy may be deprived of this blessing. This kind of jealousy is totally unlawful and forbidden.

Sometimes an urge to jealousy arises in the heart, but the jealous person does not express this urge to anyone, either by words or by signs or actions, nor does he speak ill of the victim nor backbite him. He also neither desires nor acts that the blessing may be snatched from its owner. He only feels a pinch at the grant of the blessing to his colleauge. In reality this too is the sin of jealousy, but it can be overcome with a little care.

Seek pardon atonce

When the pinch of jealousy is born, one should at once condemn it as something too heinous and seek Allah's pardon for it. It should be attributed to the seduction of the self and Satan and considered as an evil. Thus, when the urge of jealousy is accompanied with the pinch of its evil also, the sin will be washed off.

Pray for the victim of jealousy

Our saintly elders have advised when you get jealous and envious on someone's blessing, pray to Allah in favour of the victim of his jealousy. No doubt you will find it very painful and piercing to indulge in such a prayer, yet it must be done without prejudice. At the same time you must pray to Allah for yourself that may Allah relieve you of the evil of jealousy. In short, one must do these three things:

1- Condemn exclusively the pinch you get at one's blessing and the desire that it may be lost from its owner.
2- Pray in favour of the victim of jealousy that Allah may preserve his blessing and grant him more.
3- Pray to Allah in your own favour that He may, by His mercy, purify your heart from the sin of jealousy.

Even after taking these three steps, if the urge to jealousy is felt unintentionally and spontaneously, it is hoped that Almighty Allah shall not call you to account for this. On the other hand, if you do not condemn the urge as an evil, nor do you try to resist it and atone for it, the sin may not be pardoned.

A clarification about usurpation of Rights

It has been repeatedly mentioned that it is easy to discharge those rights which are due to Allah. Pardon for them can be obtained by repentance and seeking forgiveness from Allah. As regards rights due to the servants of Allah and wrongs done to them, they cannot be excused merely through repentance, unless the claimants excuse them or the wrongs done are made good.

If you express by your tongue the urge of jealousy against anyone and backbite the victim of jealousy or do something to harm him, this will beocme an offence and a wrong against a servant of Allah. The offence of the wrong will not be remitted, unless the victim pardons it. On the other hand, if a man feels jealous of anyone but keeps it in his heart and does not disclose it to anyone, nor does he take any practical steps to deprive the victim of his blessing, then in such a situation the sin of jealousy is between the jealous man and Allah. It can be forgiven by Allah after repentance. The jealous person should, therefore, understand that as long as the sin remains concealed, it is easy to have it pardoned and made good. If the sin crosses this limit, then it becomes an offence against the servant of Allah and it becomes almost an impossibility to secure forgiveness for it.

It is also not good to go on envying anyone too far

As has been mentioned just now, if there is no desire in the heart that someone is deprived of his blessing, but the jealous man only desires that he too may be granted that blessing, then this is called envy. Although this does not come within the definition of jealousy. Yet to ponder over it too much leads one to jealousy gradually. If anyone envies another person for his wealth and property, this too is not desirable, because "envy" sometimes begets in the heart a lust for wealth and property and thus "envy" turns into jealousy.

It is good to envy anyone in the matter of Deen

If the urge to envy is born on account of enthusiasm for Deen (Faith), this is desirable. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith:

"لا حسد الافی اثنتین، رجل اتاه الله مالا فسلط علی هلکته فی الحق ورجل اتاه الله الحکمة، فهویقضی بها ویعلمها" (صحیح بخاری کتاب العلم، باب الاغتباط فی العلم والحکمة، حدیث نمبر ۷۳)

(Jealousy) has been used in this Hadith in the sense of envy. In fact envy is permitted in two things. It is good to envy that person whom Allah has favoured with wealth and he spends it in the path of Allah and deposits the reward for the sake of his salvation in the Hereafter. This man is worthy of being envied for his righteousness. The second is that man whom Allah has favoured with knowledge and he is spreading the light of his knowledge and learning with his speeches and writings. He is himself doing good deeds and is including others to do the same. Those who are impressed by his preaching and teaching and begin to follow Deen will thus reform themselves. Their reward for all good deed will also be added to the account of this second man. It is desirable to envy a righteous man in his righteousness and try to surpass him.

Envy is not desirable for the sake of the world

It is, therefore, not desirable to envy anyone, because he has much wealth and property and worldly honour and dignity. Envying one another too much in such worldly pelf and power ultimately creates lust which may in turn, give birth to jealousy. This trend needs to be discouraged. If such a thought ever occurs this should be dismissed by recollecting that if one person has been granted one blessing another person has been granted another blessing and Allah's dispensation is based on wisdom and justice. If you have not been granted some bounty it is in your own interest, although you may not uderstand the secret of it which is known only to Allah. If that blessing had been bestowed upon you, it is not unlikely that it might have brought to you some misfortune.

May Allah help us understanding these poitns and principles about jealousy and save us from its curses. Aameen!

A Shaikh and Guardian is needed

As I have mentioned repeatedly, it is necessary to secure the services of a spiritual physician or a Shaikh to get rid of the inner diseases like immorality, pride, jealousy, etc. The physician examines his patient and explains to him the nature of fever, its causes and the medicines to cure it. The patient may preserve these details in his memory when the patient has an attack of fever can he treat his fever with the medicines and the method of treatment he has preserved in his memory? Certainly he cannot do so. The symptoms differ from time to time and from patient to patient and he may misjudge in the selection of the medicines.

Just like the open physical diseases, are the inner spiritual diseases like hypocrisy, jealousy, malice, and pride. You have been told the reality of these diseases. When a man catches any one of these inner diseases he should submit himself for treatment to an experienced physician of inner diseases and tell him frankly the details of his disease to enable him to prescribe the correct treatment.

Sometimes it so happens that a man has no disease, yet he thinks that he is a patient, suffering from some disease. Conversely, sometimes a man thinks that he is hale and hearty, but in reality he is a sick person. Sometimes the sick person takes a wrong treatment other than the treatment needed to cure his disease. Basically it is necessary to seek the services of a Shaikh for the treatment and cure of his inner disease and follow his advice in the minutest details.

May Almighty Allah help us all in taking the right course. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi
Date : 24th September, 1993.

THE VALUE OF DREAMS IN THE LIGHT OF SHARI'AH

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيد نا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم، بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم.

عن ابى هريرة رضى الله عنه قال: قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم لم يبق من النبوة الا المبشرات قالوا: وما المبشرات قال الرؤيا الصالحة

(صحيح بخارى، كتاب التعبير، باب المبشرات حديث نمبر ٦٩٩٠)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him. We seek His help and His pardon. We believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our selves and from the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom Allah guides and there is none to guide him whom He lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god except Allah, the One. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our master, our authority, our Prophet and our sire, Muhammad ﷺ, is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah send mercy on him, his household and his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and bless them and salute them all a great deal.

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: The chain of Prophethood has terminated for ever and nothing of it has remained, except the "Mubash-shirat" (مبشرات). The Companions asked: O Messenger of Allah! what are Mubash-shirat? The Holy Prophet ﷺ replied, saying: True dreams - they announce glad tidings and form a part of Prophethood. The Holy Prophet ﷺ also said in another Hadith that a believer's dream is one forty-sixth part of Prophethood.(Sahih Bukhari ..... Hadith No: 68987)

True Dreams are a part of Prophethood

When the time of the Holy Prophet's ﷺ commission as a Prophet drew near, in the beginning he ﷺ did not receive any Wahi (Revelation) for about six months. During this period he had only true dreams. It occurs in the Ahadith that whenever he ﷺ had a dream during this period, it came true and clear as day light. This continued for about six months till he began to receive the Wahi (Revelations). After his appointment as a Prophet he ﷺ lived in this world for twentythree years. Out of these twentythree years, the period of the first six months was a period of true dreams only. By multiplying twentythree by two (23x2), we get fortysix (46). In other words if we divide the period of Prophethood by fortysix, we get six months during which the Holy Prophet ﷺ had only true dreams, and no Wahi. On this hypothasis the Holy Prophet ﷺ said that a believer's dream forms the forty-sixth part of Prophethood. There is also an indication that this process would continue after him ﷺ. The believers will have true dreams containing glad tidings. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has also said in a Hadith that during the period close to the Day of Judgment, the Muslims will generally have true dreams. All this goes to prove that dreams too are a blessing of Almighty Allah through which men receive glad tidings. So, if anyone receives some glad tidings through a dream he should render thanks to Almighty Allah.

Two opinions about Dreams

In our society people entertain extreme opinions about dreams. There are some who do not believe in the existence of true dreams,nor do they believe in the truth of their interpretation. This is not right.You have just now learnt that, according to a Hadith, true dreams form fortysixth part of Prophethood and that they are announcers of glad tidings. On the other extreme there are men who attach great importance to dreams and regard them as a means to salvation and superiority. Men place their trust in a person who happens to have a true dream. Sometimes the person having true dreams thinks about himself that he has become a great saint. These dreams come upon men during sleep. Sometimes Almighty Allah shows his servants some sights during their waking time. In the mystic terminology this is "Kashf", meaning ability to see hidden things through spiritual light. If someone by chance has "Kashf" the common people think that the man is a great saint, even though this man may not be following the path of the Sunnah during his waking hours. Bear in mind that the criterion of a man's superiority and righteousness does not lie in dreams and "Kashf". The real criterion for this depends on whether or not a man's living is according to the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. If a man's living during his waking hours is not according to the Sunnah, if he is not refraining from sins, nor is he obeying Allah, he is not a righteous person, whatever the numbers of supernatural feats displayed at his hands. Nowadays people have become awfully misguided in this matter. This display of miraculous or supernatural feats is considered an inseparable part of the mystic system of spiritual education and training. Ignorant men are always hankering after true dreams, disclosure of hidden secrets (Kashf) and supernatural performances.

The status of Dreams

Hazrat Muhammad bin Sireen رحمة الله عليه has been one of the most dignified Tabi'een (followers of the Companions). He was considered as Imam in the art of interpreting the meaning of dreams. There is no equal in this field among the entire Muslim Ummah. He had been endowed by Allah with an outstanding faculty for the interpretation of dreams. Many wondedrful feats are related about him in this field. A very small and meaningful sentence from him about interpreting dreams is worth remembering. He رحمة الله عليه has said:

الرؤياتسر ولا تغر

This means: Dream is a phenomenon which should be pleasing but it should not throw anyone into deception.

If a man has a true dream, he should not be tempted to think that he has become a very accomplished saint, so as to become, in turn, unmindful of the duties to be discharged during his waking hours.

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه and interpretation of Dreams

Many persons visited Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه to inquire of him the interpretation of their dreams. In reply Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه generally recited this Persian couplet:

نہ شبم نہ شب پرستم کہ حدیث خواب گویم
من غلام آفتابم ہمہ ز آفتاب گویم

"I am neither the night nor the worshipper of the night that I should tell things about dreams. I am the slave of the sun (the Holy Prophet ﷺ) and can speak only about the sun. If a man has a true dream with some glad tidings he should be grateful to Allah, because he may possibly get the blessing of the dream. One should, however, not take dreams as a criterion for superiority and saintliness."

Hazrat Mufti Sahib رحمة الله عليه and Mubash-shirat (that brings glad tidings)

There are many persons who used to have dreams about my respected father رحمة الله عليه. They used to intimate their dreams in writing. My respected father رحمة الله عليه had all these dreams recorded in a register. On the first page of this register he had himself written in his own handwriting the following paragraph.

"In this register I am recording those dreams which the righteous servants of Allah have seen about me. I am recording them because they contain glad tidings and good omen. May Allah correct me by virtue of these dreams. I am, however, warning all readers that they are not a criterion for superiority and righteousness. No decision should be taken about me on the basis of these dreams. The real criterion is the acts and dealings of man during his waking hours. Men should not fall into deception on account of these dreams.

The intention from recording this was to save people from falling into deception. This is the reality of dreams. When a man has a happy dream, he should thank Allah and pray to Him to turn the dream into reality and favour to him. He should have no misunderstanding about the dream either in his own favour or in the favour of any other person. This is all that a dream really means. There are two or three more Ahadith concerning dreams of which the people are not aware.It is useful to study these Ahadith also.

Satan cannot assume the image of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

عن ابی هریرة رضی الله عنه قال: قال رسول الله صلی الله علیه وسلم:

من رآنی فی المنام فقدر انی لایتمثل الشیطان بی

(صحیح مسلم، کتاب الرؤیا، باب قول النبی صلی الله علیه وسلم: من رآنی فی المنام)

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Whoever sees me in a dream does really see me, as Satan cannot assume my image (Saheeh Muslim).

It is a great blessing for a man who sees by the grace of Allah the Holy Prophet ﷺ in a dream. A man who sees the the Holy Prophet ﷺ in a dream in the image and form which have been described and stand proved in the Ahadith, surely sees only the Holy Prophet ﷺ and nobody else. Satan canot deceive anyone, because he cannot assume the Prophet's image. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned this as a special peculiarity concerning his ﷺ image and appearance before anyone in dream.

It is a great fortune to have a glimpse of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

By His grace, Almighty Allah grants many persons the good fortune of seeing the Holy Prophet ﷺ in dreams. Our elder saints have had different attitudes towards this blessing. The attitude of one group is that special efforts are made to get this opportunity by going through various spiritual exercises and disciplines which have been devised and prescribed for this purpose. For example, rehearsal of the sacred Darood so many times and certain other exercises on Friday nights are considered effective in this matter. There are other exercises and practices in vogue among the public for winning this fortune. If anyone indulges in these exercises and disciplines to win this blessing, there is no objection.

Where is the qualification for this "meeting"

There are some other saints who take a different attitude towards this issue. A gentleman used to visit my respected father رحمة الله عليه. Once he expressed to my father his burning desire to see the Holy Prophet ﷺ in a dream and asked him for some spiritual exercise for this. My father said to him: My dear brother, you are indeed a very ambitious man that you have this auspicious desire. I do not have the courage to entertain this desire, because I think that I do not deserve this honour, I, therefore, never thought of learning and doing such exercises and disciplines to have a meeting with the Holy Prophet ﷺ in a dream. Even if I am graced with such a meeting how can I do full justice to the required etiquettes? That is why I did not aspire for the honour of this meeting. If Almighty Allah Himself graces me with this meeting it will be His great favour to me. In that case He shall teach me the requisite etiquettes also. However, just like any other believer, I too bear a desire for this. Anyway there have been varying attitudes towards this matter.

Hazrat Mufti Sahib and a visit to the sacred shrine of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

I have related to you this incident of my respected father even before. He told us that he could never approach the metallic network around the Prophet's shrine. He would not face the network but would stand close to a pillar in front of it. If there was a man he would stand behind him. One day he told us:

"Once it occurred to my mind that perhaps I was a callous-hearted man that I could not dare approach the sacred network of the Prophet's shrine, when the majority of the visitors reach it and thus attain nearness to the Prophet's ﷺ soul, which is a great blessing and honour. Thereafter, I felt as if I was hearing this voice coming from the shrine:

He who follows my Sunnah is close to me, even though he may be thousands of miles away from me. On the other hand, he who does not follow my Sunnah is far away from me, even if he is sticking to my network.

It is the deeds done during the waking hours that count

The real worth lies in following the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The true blessing consists in following the path of the Sunnah. This is the true criterion for nearness to the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It is an act of audacity to go near and stick to the nets and be heedless of the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It is not good to hanker after these dreams, yet it is a blessing from Allah if they prove auspicious and bring some glad tidings. The main source of success and salvation depends on following the Sunnah. These dreams do not help in raising the rank of anyone nor do they help in earning reward of the Hereafter. So we should ameliorate, and take care of, our actions, conduct and behaviour during waking hours.

Let not a good dream deceive you

If anyone has a dream in which he finds himself strolling in the gardens of Paradise, it is a good omen, but he should not think that he has got a passport to Paradise and that he has been exempted from doing anything. This is a misleading notion. If after having a dream a man becomes more active in following the Sunnah, this is an indication that the dream was true and messenger of glad tidings. On the other hand if he becomes slack in his actions, he has been deceived by the dream.

What should be done if the Holy Prophet ﷺ commands in a dream to do something

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that, if anyone sees him ﷺ in a dream he truly sees him ﷺ, because Satan cannot assume the Prophet's image and form. If the Holy Prophet ﷺ commands during a dream for doing any deed which does not contravene the injunctions of the Shari'ah, then the command should be obeyed with due care and attention. This dream should be regarded as genuine and true. To ignore the instructions received in this dream may prove to be inauspicious and harmful.

A dream does not serve as a proof in the matter of the Shari'ah

If in a dream the Holy Prophet ﷺ commands to do something which does not fall within the jurisdiction of the Shari'ah, it must be noted carefully that such a command received through a dream must not be acted upon. Almighty Allah has not ordained things seen in dreams to serve as proofs in issues concerning the Shari'ah. As regards the Ahadith which have come to us through authentic sources, the injunctions contained in them must be obeyed. It is not necessary to comply with injunctions received through dreams. It is right that Satan cannot assume the image of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, but sometimes the things seen in the dream get mixed with the dreamer personal thoughts or are distorted on account of his weak memory, so dreams do not serve as proofs.

A strange event concerning a dream

There was a Qazi (Judge) who used to decide cases referred to him for judgment. A case was submitted to him for decision. The Qazi heard the case, examined the witnesses and made up his mind about the final judgment to be announced in a day or two. In the meantime in the night he saw the Holy Prophet ﷺ in a dream. The Holy Prophet ﷺ did not, so felt the Qazi, concur in the Qazi's judgment but advised him to change his judgment. When the Qazi awoke from sleep and reconsidered the details of the case thoroughly, he felt convinced that the Holy Prophet's judgment did not fit with the framework of the Shari'ah. The issue took a very serious turn. The Qazi could not decide what to do.

The Qazi called on the Caliph and told him in detail his predicament due to this strange dream. In order to resolve the difficulty, a meeting was arranged of all the Ulama of the capital and the problem was put before them. The Ulama feeling convinced of the genuineness of the dream were inclined to decide the case according to the direction of the Holy Prophet ﷺ received through the dream. A great savant and learned man of his age Hazrat Izzuddin bin Abdus Salam رحمة الله عليه was also present in the meeting. He was regarded as a Mujaddid of his time. He stood up and addressed the meeting as follows:

It is my considered opinion that the case should be decided according to the provision of the Shari'ah. I am in favour of a judgment which is according to the Shari'ah. I take all the responsibilities for the sins, if any, invovled in this judgment. It is not lawful to decide a case in the light of indications contained in a dream. We are required to obey only those directions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ which have come to us through reliable authorities. So, the case should be decided according to the injunctions of the Shari'ah, and not to the directions received in a dream.

Injunctions of the Shari'ah about Dreams and "Kashf", etc.

It requires a great courage of conviction to say: I take all responsibilities for sins, if any, invovled in this judgment. Allah, however, sends such brave and dauntless souls for the protection of His Deen. If it is accepted even once that the injunctions of the Shari'ah can be changed through dreams, then the Shari'ah would go with the wind in no time. How many ignorant "Pirs" (guides) and "Professors" there are who claim miracles! The term "Kashf" means bringing to light hidden secrets by spiritual insight, but its authenticity is not recognized in the Shari'ah. So, the rules of the Shari'ah cannot be replaced or amended through these processes.

An event that happened to Hazrat Sheikh Abdul Qadir Jilani رحمة الله عليه

The Head of the saints, Sheikh Abdul Qadir Jilani رحمة الله عليه was one night busy with his worship. It was Tahajjud time. At this time a very dazzling light shone from one side and a voice emerged from it saying: O Abdul Qadir! you have done full justice to My worship. Now you have reached such a high station that from now onwards you are exempt from all sorts of worship for My sake. You are now exempt from Prayers, Fasting, Hajj and Zakah. Now do whatever you please. We have reserved Paradise for you. No sooner did Sheikh Abdul Qadir Jilani hear these words, than he replied to the voice in these words: Get lost! O accursed fellow. Neither the Holy Prophet ﷺ, nor his Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم were exempted from this prayer. How can I get exemption from it? With these words the Sheikh expelled Satan from his presence. A much brighter light shone in the wake of the earleir light from which His voice emerged: O Abdul Qadir! your learning came to your rescue today, otherwise with this strategem I have ruined many grand saints. If you had not possessed this learning you too would have been ruined to day. The Sheikh retorted, saying: O accursed Satan! you are deceiving me again! It was Almighty Allah and not my learning that saved me. The learned have observed that the second Satanic strategem was more dangerous than the first one. In the second one Satan wanted to deceive him by trying to create in him the pride of learning. The Sheikh, however, was saved from this attack by Allah's mercy.

It is not lawful to refute a Hadith with a Dream

This is a very dangerous trend of a conduct. Nowadays people have become very fond of dreams, 'Kashf', supernatural feats, revelations, etc. They do not care to know the requirements of the Shari'ah. Quite educated and religious persons have begun to claim that they have come to know by means of 'Kashf' that such and such Hadith is not right and that certain Ahadith of Bukhari and Muslim were forged by the Jews. If 'Kashf' is attained and interpreted in this way the very foundation of Deen shall be jolted. May Almighty Allah shower His mercy on those Ulama who were entrusted with the task of protecting our Deen and they proved true to the task. They are the protectors and defenders of Deen. These Ulama have declared in clear terms that neither dreams, nor 'Kashf' nor supernatural feats can be regarded as proofs in matters concerning Deen. The basis of proof are those injunctions and directions which are proved to have been received from the Holy Prophet ﷺ during his waking hours and through authentic narratives. It is advised that we should not rely on dreams, 'Kashf', revelations and supernatural feats. Hazrat Maulana Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has said that 'Kashf' is a phonomenon which is sometime seen coming from madness and even infidels. So, we should never be deceived by experiences like beholding some light, "running" of the heart or its pulpitation, etc., etc. These things have absolutely no place and credence in the Shari'ah.

What should a Dreamer do?

Hazrat Qatadah رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: A good dream is from Allah and a bad dream is from Satan. So, when a man has a bad and undesirable dream he should make a spitting gesture on his left side three times and recite this:

اعوذ باللہ من الشیطٰن الرجیم

He should also change the side on which he was sleeping, while having the dream. Then this undesirable dream will do him no harm - God wiling. Some times man has a frightening or otherwise some disgustful dream. At such a time he must follow this advice of the Holy Prophet. If he has a pleasant dream with a promise of some worldly or spiritual promotion or gain he may inform his kins and wellwishers such dream and not to others. A careless stranger may give an incorrect interpretation and it is said that the first interpretation generally comes true which may turn harmful. The dreamer should, therefore, disclose the dream only to his well-wishers and should thank Almighty Allah for all that.(Sahih Bukhari..... Hadith No: 6986)

To pray for the man who has a dream

When anyone informed the Holy Prophet ﷺ of his dreams, it was his ﷺ routines practice to recite this Du'a:

خیراً تلقاہ وشراً توقاہ، خیرلنا وشرلا عدائنا

This means: May Allah grant you the good of this dream and protect you from its evil. May this be good for us and bad for our enemies.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has combined in this Du'a many good things. If anyone comes to you and tells you his dream, pray for him in these words. If you do not remember the Arabic words you may recite it in your own mother tongue.

In short, these are the etiquettes, values and possible effects of dreams which should be kept in mind. We should keep away from false notions about dreams which are prevailing among the people.

May Almighty Allah save us all from these vices and help us to take the right course of Deen. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد للہ رب العالمین

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi
Date : 24th September, 1993.

SMARTNESS - A REMEDY FOR LAZINESS

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه، ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيد نا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالىٰ عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم، بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

والذين جاهدوا فينا لنهدينهم سبلناط وان الله لمع المحسنين (العنكبوت، ٦٩)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and seek his forgiveness and believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our souls and from the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom He guides and there is none to guide him whom He lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah the One who has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, and our authority and our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah have mercy on him, his household and his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and bless them and salute them all in great abundance.

"As for those who strive in Us, We surely guide them to Our paths. Allah is indeed with the righteous. (29:69)

Cure Laziness with "Courage"

Recently I have been on tours to different cities of Burma. During these tours I had to address many gatherings, sometimes at the rate of five per day. By chance tomorrow I am booked for a visit to the Haramain Sharifaiyn (the two sacred Mosques). As a result of tiredness it occurred to me that there was no harm in missing my address on one Friday more when I had already missed it the last Friday on account of my foreign tours. At the same time I remembered an advice of Hazrat Doctor Abdul Hai Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ. Once he said:

When you are feeling laziness in carrying out some routine practice, that is the very time of man's test. There are two alternatives. Surrender yourself to the feeling of tiredness and obey your self's demand. In such a situation you will become used to surrendering yourself to the demand of tiredness and laziness, until you become a habitual sluggard.

The other alternative is that man should resist the attack of laziness with courage and do the job which he is inclined to put off on account of his laziness. As a result of this blessed effort on his part Allah will help him to carry out all his routine duties with ease and regularity.

These two Principles are the essence of Tasaw-wuf (Mysticism)

On such occasions Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ used to read to us a statement of Hazrat Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ which is worth rememebring. Hazrat Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ often said:

"When you feel lethargic in obeying some command resist the lethargy and obey the command. Similarly, when you feel tempted to commit a sin, resist that temptation and refrain from that sin. This is the essence of Tasaw-wuf (mysticism). When you reach this stage nothing more is needed. This creates in the heart "relationship with Allah", then strengthens it and develops it.

Anyway, there is only one way of getting rid of laziness and that is to resist it with courage. It is wrong to think that the Sheikh shall prescribe for you some formula to cure laziness. Resistance is the only remedy to cure laziness.

Tempt the "self" to do the right work

Hazrat Dr. Abdu Hai Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ used to say that we should tempt and induce our "selves" to work. Thereafter, he related to us an incident of his own. He said: One day when I got up at night for the Tahajjud prayer, I felt very much depressed and lethargic. I was inclined to think that being advanced in age, indolent and tired there was no harm in missing the Tahajjud prayer, one night, when it was neither obligatory nor compulsory. As against this, the Sheikh also thought: Although these excuses seem to be quite plausible, yet it is the blessed time when Allah accepts the supplications of his servants. When one-third of the night has passed, Allah's mercy descends on the earth and an announcement is made on behalf of Almighty Allah: Is there anyone to beg forgiveness that I may forgive him? I, therefore, thought that it was not proper to waste such precious hours. Then I addressed my "self" in this way. All right, do not offer the prayer, but get up and make some supplication, sitting on the bed, then fall into sleep again. I at once got up from sleep and began to make the supplication. During supplication I again tempted my "self" in this way: When you have disturbed your sleep, go to the latrine, clean yourself then sleep comfortably. After coming back from the latrine and cleaning myself I was disposed to perform ablution as supplication with ablution is more likely to be accepted by Allah. I, therfore, performed ablution, sat on my bedding and started Du'a. Then I told my "self" : The bedding is not a fit place for Du'a there. With this argumentation I dragged the "self" to the prayer-cloth. Then I made "intention" for two Rak'ats of Tahajjud.

The Sheikh told that in this way the "self" has to be tempted to take the right course and do its work. He advised further: When the "self" plays tricks with you, you should also play tricks with it. It is hoped that by the blessing of this strategem, Almighty Allah will assist us to take right course.

What will you do, if you receive a call from the President?

Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to advise us on this issue in the following style:

You have drawn up a programme for your reciting the Qur'an and for the Nawafil (optional prayers), etc., but sometimes you are tempted to violate this programme on account of laziness . On such occasions you should try to train your "self". One way of doing this is to argue with it, saying: All right, this time you are feeling lethargic and you are not inclined to get up from your bed, but what will you do if you receive a message from the President of the country to call upon him, only because he wants to grant you a valuable prize or appoint you to a high post. Will you take the plea of laziness and tiredness on such an ocasion? Will you refuse to respond to the call, because you are feeling sleepy? There is hardly a man who will not be overjoyed at such an invitation and will not shake off his laziness to rush to receive the President's favour.

If the "self" responds to the Presidential call with the promptitude, it only means that there is no genuine excuse to respond to the call of Allah. You should consider for a while how promptly you are preparing to respond to the call of a worldly dignitary, i.e. the President, who is inviting you to receive a prize or a post, although he is himself extremely weak and helpless. On the other hand, the King of Kings, the Omnipotent, Creator, Nourisher, Provider, Giver and Snatcher is inviting you and you are making false excuses of laziness and tiredness to turn down His call. How unjust it is! If you try to cure the malady of laziness by thinking in this way, you can get rid of it.

Do not put off till tomorrow what you can do today

Sometimes a man feels inclined in his heart to do a good deed, but his "self" deceives him by suggesting that the good deed may be done "tomorrow". Beware that this is the seduction of the "self". "Tomorrow" will never come. It is, therefore, necessary that you must do it today, rather immediately, what you propose to do tomorrow. It is not certain that you will get time or there will be the urge for doing the work tomorrow. None knows whether the circumstances will be favourable or you will be alive tomorrow. Allah has said in the Holy Qur'an:

وَسَارِعُوْٓا اِلٰى مَغْفِرَةٍ مِّنْ رَّبِّكُمْ وَجَنَّةٍ عَرْضُهَا السَّمٰوٰتُ وَالْاَرْضُ ۙ

(سورۃ آل عمران:۱۳۳)

Rush to the forgiveness from your Lord and for a Paradise as wide as the heavens and the earth (3:133)

I was telling you that I was feeling tired today, but when I remembered these directions of my Sheikh رحمة الله عليه, I became active and courageous to present myself here before you.

I attend these meetings for my own gain

I come here for my own gain. Allah's servants assemble here with good intentions and desires. I too receive blessings from them. In fact, when the servants of Allah get together for the sake of Deen (Faith) at a place, they receive reflections of blessings from one another. I always attend these meetings with the intention of receiving my share of the blessings radiating from these pious men.

What is the use of those moments?

When Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه was confined to his death-bed, his physicians had strictly forbidden him to see, or talk to anyone. One day when he was lying down on his bed with his eyes closed, he suddenly looked up and desired to see Maulawi Muhammad Shafi

Sahib رحمة الله عليه ie., my respected father. Hazrat Thanawi Sahib رحمة الله عليه had entrusted to my father the compilation of "Ahkam-ul-Qur'an" in the Arabic language. When my father appeared before him رحمة الله عليه he said: you are compiling the "Ahkam-ul-Qur'an". Just now it has occurred to me that a certain injunction can be deduced from a certain verse of the Holy Qur'an which I have not seen anywhere earlier. When you come to that verse, you should include this injunction also. After having said these words he closed his eyes and lay down. Look here! The Sheikh is lying down on his death-bed, yet his mind is occupied with the Holy Qur'an and the explanation of its verses. After a short while he again opened his eyes and called for another person. When he came the Sheikh asked him to do something. When this process continued for sometime, the manager of the Khanqah (monastery) and a close friend of the Sheikh reminded him of the strict instructions of his physicians not to indulge in conversation. In reply the Sheikh said:

You are right, but I consider those mometns of life which are not spent on some body's service - are a waste.

Worldly High offices and Positions

The office of "serving humanity" is something very wonderful. May Almighty Allah create in us love for service. Try to become a public "servant" and serve humanity. Create in yourself an urge to serve others. Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to explain the dignity of service by an example. It is very difficult to succeed in attaining a position you desire. It is not in your power to become the President of the country, or its Prime Minister, an Assembly member or any other similar high office. You cannot secure with ease a good post, unless you cross so many hurdles, like submitting applications, giving written and oral tests, facing interviews and passing through so many other hurdles. If after crossing successfully all these hurdles you succeed in securing a post, you have to face the jealous eyes of many, their enmity and conspiracies, so that you may be deprived of the post secured with so many tests, trials and torments. Thus, it is neither in your power to attain a position, nor to maintain it.

Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه offered to tell his disciples a high office which is easy to secure and also to maintain it. None shall be jealous of you, nor will anyone dispute with you about it, nor can anyone suspend or discharge you from it. It is the office of a خادم (servant). It is in your power to secure this office for which no application, no voting and no election is needed. None will envy you for this, nor dismiss you from this offie. So become a "servant" of your household, your wife, your children, your friends, acquaintances neighbours, and the pious men. Whatever you want to do, do it with the intention of service. If you are delivering a sermon, composing or compiling a book or doing any other work of general utitlity, do it with the motto of "service". The entire difficulty lies in being حاكم (the Master) but there is ease and comfort in being a 'servant'. The Sheikh himself claimed to be a 'servant' a servant of wife, children, disciples, and acquaintances. This is an 'office' which is to a great extent free from the whisperings of Satan. Self-esteem, pride and superiority complex are born in respect of offices which are regarded as grand from the worldly point of view. As regards the office of a 'servant', it has no trace of superiority and glamour. Therefore, try to secure this unprecedental 'office'.

The benefit of attending on Saints and Sheikhs

I was telling that today I was feeling tired and a bit indisposed. However, I suddenly remembered the directions of my Sheikh and I gathered courage to say something before this honourable gathering. This is one of the benefits of establishing and maintaining contacts with the pious saints. Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to favour us with his valuable advice on his own free will without any request from us. Now those directions are proving beneficial to us on one or the other occasion with suitable timings.

That topic become your property

Hazrat Dr Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say: some people want to commit to memory every word that is spoken in assemblies, but this is not always posisble. Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه related to his own case in the following words:

Whenever I was present in the assemblies of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه I desired to write down the sayings of the Sheikh. Some persons did so, but I could not do that, because I was slow in writing. One day I complained to Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه that I could not write down his sermon nor could I commit them to memory. To this complaint of Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه replied: There is no need to write down my speech. Why do you not begin yourself to dictate your saying ? Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه was very much upset to hear this remark, as he did not feel that he was qualified for that Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه went on saying: If there is something true and is based on sound understanding and thinking which your heart has accepted then that becomes your property. It does not matter if you are not able to retain it in your memory word by word. It will recur to your memory in the nick of time and by the mercy of Allah you will be enabled to act upon it.

It is desirbale to attend meetings of righteous elders and to listen to their sermons. They pour into your ears useful and wise point of guidance and righteousness, which impress human mind and are revived in the memory on proper occasions.

To thrust points of advice into the ears

My respected father, Hazrat Dr. Shib and Maulana Masihullah Khan رحمة الله عليه were righteous God-fearing men. I had contacts with them. By virtue of my contacts with these saints of Allah I have been greatly benefitted. They thrust into my ears points of wisdom and piety of their own free will without any demand or request from my side. Thereafter, good points are revived to my memory on occasions when they are badly needed. It is a great blessing to attend meetings of elders and to listen to their sermons. Today these pious saints are not living amongst us but they have left behind their sermons, advices and directions in the form of written books. It is highly beneficial to study these books.

May Allah help us in maintaining our spiritual contacts with these godly men. Aamen

Difference between "Excuse" and "Laziness"

I advise you to resist laziness whenever it overpowers you and to complete your daily routine and acts of devotion at all costs. There is a difference between "Excuse" and "Lethargy" or "Laziness". If one misses some routine practice on account of some genuine excuse, there is nothing to worry. When Almighty Allah Himself does not take us to tasks for missing some routine practice on account of some genuine excuse or reason and has allowed concession for this omission who are we to impose any compulsion in this behalf. So, if a routine is missed owing to a genuine excuse, there is no cause to regret.

For the sake of whom were you fasting?

While quoting a statement of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه, Dr. Abdu Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه once said: A man fell sick during the month of Ramazan and had to give up fasting because of his sickness. This omission made him very sad. The Sheikh said that there was no occasion for sorrow and regret, as the man was not fasting for his own pleasure but was fasting for the pleasure of Allah. Allah has Himself given leave that fasting may be given up during sickness and compensated later on according to the rules of the Shari'ah.

It is possible to miss the Ramazan fasting or some other routine acts on account of genuine excuses recognized in the Shari'ah, e.g. sickness, journey, menses in women, or any other handicap arising from an injunction of the Shari'ah, e.g. attendance on parents during their sickness. There is no cause of regret in such situations. It is, however, not good to miss routine practices of Deen on account of carelessness and laziness.

The Remedy for Laziness

The only possible remedy for laziness is to resist it with courage. Leave no loop hole to overpower it. If we succeed in eradicating the disease of laziness and lethargy from our lives and become active and smart, we have done half the job. We have then to work hard to complete the other half.

May Almighty Allah assist us in facing and resisting laziness with courage. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
Darul-Uloom,
Karachi

Date : 25th Ramadhan
After Zuhur Prayers

PROTECT YOUR GLANCES

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيد نا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالىٰ عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطان الرحيم، بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

قُلْ لِّلْمُؤْمِنِيْنَ يَغُضُّوْا مِنْ اَبْصَارِهِمْ وَيَحْفَظُوْا فُرُوْجَهُمْ ذٰلِكَ اَزْكٰى لَهُمْ اِنَّ اللّٰهَ خَبِيْرٌ بِمَا يَصْنَعُوْنَ. (سورة النور: ٣٠)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم وصدق رسوله النبى الكريم ونحن على ذالك من الشاهدين والشاكرين والحمدلله رب العالمين

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and seek his forgiveness and believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our souls and from the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom He guides and there is none to guide him whom He lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah the One who has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, and our authority, our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah have mercy on him, his household and his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and bless them and salute them all in great abundance.

(O Prophet!) Tell the believers to lower their glances and protect their private parts. This is purer for them. Indeed, Allah is Aware of what they do! (24: 30)

Casting evil glances a deadly disease

In this verse Almighty Allah has mentioned a deadly disease. This is a disease fraught with many vices. Many have become addicted to this sin from among those who sit in the company of Ulama and godly men, also religious men regular in their prayers and fasting. Today the situation has deteriorated to such an extent that when you go out, you find it very difficult to protect your eyes from evil glances. Wherever you turn, you will find captivating scenes from which it is difficult to shield the eyes.

The Reality of "evil glances"

"Evil glances" mean casting glances at women who are not closely related to you, particularly when the glances are amorous and lustful or are intended for enjoyment. It is also a sin to cast such covetous glances even at the pictures and photos of those gazing at whom falls within the definition of "evil glances". The sin of casting evil glances is a great hindrance in reforming human soul. Of all the conceivable sins it is the most damaging to man's spiritual and inner soundness. The reform of the inner self of man is almost inconceivable, unless control on glancing is attained. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith:

النظر سهم مسموم من سهام ابليس (مجمع الزوائد، ج۸ص ٦٣)

The glance is one of the poisoned arrows of Iblis. If anyone is hit by this poisonous arrow and fails to ward it off, it becomes very difficult for him to ameliorate his inner self. Of all the factors of destruction, the evil glances of the eye is the most effective.

You shall have to take this bitter dose

I have heard my Sheikh Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة اللہ علیہ saying: An evil glance is a fatal poison. If anyone desires to reform his inner self he will have to protect his glances from being misdirected. This is, however, a very difficult task, as you cannot find refuge anywhere. Wherever you turn you find violation of Purdah, nudity, lewdness, etc. It is very difficult for anyone to protect his eyes from forbidden glances. However, you have to take this bitter dose, if you want to taste the sweetness of Eeman and establish nearness with Almighty Allah and win His love to purify your inner self. You can make no headway in this field without taking this bitter dose. The dose is bitter only in the beginning. When you get used to it, its bitterness turns into sweetness which you cannot afford to miss.

The coffee of the Arabs

The Arabs are very fond of coffee which they take in small cups specially made for it. When I was a small boy, an Arab Sheikh visited Karachi. My respected father went to see him and I also accompanied my father. It was the first time that I saw coffee which was served in small coffee-cups to all the guests. I thought that it might be sweet and tasteful drink, but as soon as I sipped a little of it I found it very bitter. As I could not spit the draught out in that meeting, I had to gulp it down with difficulty when it went down the throat, I felt its activating effect. Later on I had an opportunity to take it in one or two other meetings. Gradually I got used to it and now I find it very tasteful.

You will find it sweet and tasteful

Just like coffee which tastes very bitter in the beginning, but becomes very tasteful when one has become used to its exhilarating effect. May Almighty Allah grant all its sweetness. Aameen.

In the same way casting evil glances is also a very formidable task in the beginning, but when one gathers courage to protect himself, the task becomes easy and enjoyable. The taste of protecting the eyes from this sin becomes more enjoyable than that of polluting them by casting evil glances on forbidden scenes.

The eyes are a great blessings

Our eyes are a natural optical machine which Almighty Allah has conferred upon us by His mercy, without any request from our side. This is a blessing which we have received from Allah free of charge and without any labour and cost. That is why, we do not value this invaluable blessing. If you want to get an idea of this God-given blessing go and ask those who are born blind or have lost their eyes or eyesight through some disease or accident. If something adverse happens to the eyes, the unfortunate victim will like its restoration at any cost. This is indeed a very delicate machine the like of which none has invented so far.

Seven miles' journey in one moment

I had read in a book that the pupil of the eye expands in darkness and contracts in light. When a man goes into darkness or enters light the pupil expands or contracts respectively during this process of expansion and contraction the muscles of the eye travel at the speed of seven miles per moment, but man does not feel this tremendous speed. So these eyes are such a wonderful blessing of Allah.

Right use of the eyes

If you put this blessing of the eyes to its right use, Allah has promised to reward you. For example, if you cast on your parents loving glances, you will, according to a Hadith, get recompense equal to that for performing one Hajj and one Umrah. It occurs in another Hadith that when a husband enters his house and he and his wife both east on each other loving glances then Almighty Alalh casts on both of them His glance of mercy. When the eyes are put to the right use then not only does Allah grant joy and happiness, but He also grants them reward and compensation in the Hereafter. On the other hand, if they use their eyes in looking at forbidden scenes and objects then the torment for this is also very severe. In addition, this evil act destroys the integrity of man internally.

Remedy for recovery from the disease of casting evil glances

There is only one way to get rid of the vice of casting evil glances. Be firm and courageous to resolve and you shall never cast your glances at forbidden scenes and objects. Having so resolved, stick to it with fortitude:

آرزوئیں خون ہوں، یا حسرتیں برباد ہوں
اب تو اس دل کو بنانا ہے ترے قابل مجھے

This Urdu couplet means: I have resolved firmly that I shall make my heart worthy of Allah, however, seriously this resolution may frustrate my wishes and aspirations

Save the eyes from the sin of casting evil glances with courage and firm resolution. If you do this you will receive Allah's assistance in your resolution. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has suggested some measures to save ourselves from the sin of casting evil glances. He رحمة الله عليه has said:

If a man comes across a woman and the "self" incites him to cast a glance at her, because you will not go beyond this glancing. It should be understood well that this is a deception of the "self". Safety lies if the "self" is not obeyed. (Aufas-e-Eesa, Pt-I, P-142)

To think that there is no harm in casting a glance is Satan's deception. The only remedy is to resist this temptation and deception and turn the glance away from forbidden scene.

Remedy for the cure of lustful thinking

Once Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه advised us to banish from our minds lustful thoughts in this way. When a very strong urge is born to cast an evil glance on some forbidden scene or object, imagine that your father is watching you. Would you dare to commit this sin even then? Or would you commit this sin, if your Sheikh or your own children are watching you? Certainly you would not do that, despite your urge to commit the sin.

These persons whether watching or not watching you at that moment does not affect your life in this world or the life in the Hereafter. You should think that Allah, the King of all Kings, is certainly watching you Who has the power to punish you for this sin. By virtue of this trend of thinking there is every hope that Almighty Allah will protect you from this sin.

What will happen if the film depicting your life is shown?

I also remember a speech of Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه in which he asked us to imagine Allah making this proposal:

All right, I shall save you from Hell on one condition. I shall run a film depicting the details of your entire life, of your childhood, your youth, your old age till death which will be shown to people including your parents, your brothers, sisters, your own sons and daughters, your pupils, your teachers and your relatives, friends and acquaintances. If you approve this proposal I shall spare you from Hell.

In such an awkward and humiliating situation said the Sheikh, a man will probably tolerate the punishment of Hell instead of the disclosure of the secrets of his life before all his near and dear ones.

Now for a while consider that when you will not like to be exposed and disgraced before your relations and so many other people how will you tolerate the disgrace of being so exposed before Almighty Allah.

The Heart's insistence on, and an inclination to a sin, is not a sin

In another speech Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه has said:

"Casting an evil glance is a matter of inclination which is an unintentional act and is not accountable. The next stage is to act upon the demand of this inclination and it is accountable. (Anfas-e-Eesa).

The inclination of the heart means its great desire and a pressing urge to see some forbidden scene or object. It is not accountable, because it is unintentional and it is, therefore, not a sin. The next stage, as indicated above is that the demand of this unintentional inclination is acted upon by casting a glance at a forbidden scene. This is intentional and will be subject to accountability. There is another aspect of the issue. If a man's glances fall at a forbidden object unintentionally, but he intentionally lets his glance remain fixed on the object, this becomes a sin and is accountable. Thus, the first inclination, being unintentional is neither a sin nor accountable. However, the second stage being intentional is a sin and is also accountable.

It is forbidden to seek pleasure through imagination

"This imaginary act includes glancing at something intentionally and to think about it. It may be remedied by applying a check to the "self" and to lower down the eyes."

To seek pleasure, in imagination, from a forbidden woman is as unlawful as to cast a glance at a woman with sinful intention. To get rid of this evil it is suggested to control your "self" and keep looking downwards. Do not look all around rather keep your eyes low towards the ground.

While walking, let your glances point downwards

Hazrat Dr Sahib رحمة الله عليه said that when Almighty Allah expelled Satan from Paradise, then he prayed to Allah to grant him a respite till the Day of Judgment and Allah did grant him this respite. Having succeeded in receiving this resptie he proudly said, as reproted in the Holy Qur'an:

لَاٰتِيَنَّهُمْ مِنْۢ بَيْنِ اَيْدِيْهِمْ وَمِنْ خَلْفِهِمْ وَعَنْ اَيْمَانِهِمْ وَعَنْ شَمَآئِلِهِمْ ؕ

(سورة الاعراف: ١٧)

This means: I shall come upon them from before them and from behind them and from their right and left hands.. (7: 17)

As you see, in his prayer Satan mentioned only four directions i.e., the front, the back, the right and the left. This means that Satan launches his attack only from these four directions. He omitted the two directions "above" and "below" which are immune from Satan's attack. During walking we cannot look upwards for fear of stumbling against some hurdles in the way. We can however, point our glances donwards, as far as possible, to be safe from Satan's attacks with Allah's mercy. So while walking you should not look unnecessarily right and left and at the back, but you shuld look downwards. If you follow this advice you shall see how Allah's help and protection come to you. Almighty Allah has said in the Qur'an:

قُلْ لِّلْمُؤْمِنِيْنَ يَغُضُّوْا مِنْ اَبْصَارِهِمْ وَيَحْفَظُوْا فُرُوْجَهُمْ (سورة النور: ٣٠)

That is: (O Prophet !) Tell the believers to lower their gaze and guard their modesty. This is purer for them. (24:30)

Thus, in this divine command there is an injunction to lower your glances which will result in protecting the purity of your private parts.

This Distress is less severe than the Distress of Hell

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has further stated:

One should pluck up courage to act upon these (two) injunctions, though they may prove very distressing. This Distress will, however, be less severe than the Distress of Hell.

The severity of the Distress of Hell cannot be imagined which is endless and eternal, but the trials and tribulations of this world, however severe, are shortlived.

Pluck up courage

If you follow this formula for a few days with courage, this inclination (to cast evil glances) will be diminished. This is the only remedy and the last remedy.

Almighty Allah has made a promise for those who take pains and strive hard in His way:

والذين جاهدوا فينا لنهدينهم سبلنا. سورة العنكبوت:٦٩)

We surely guide on to Our path those who strive hard in Us. (29 : 69)

So in compliance with this divine command take pains in keeping your glances downwards and as a result Almighty Allah shall reduce the temptation to the sin of casting evil glances. This is the only available remedy for this disease. The people wrongly think that the Sheikh shall prescribe for them some formula of sacred words or blow over the patient after rehearsing something that will bring cure to them of this disease. You should all know that firm resolution accompanied with unyielding courage is the only solution to the problem.

Do Two things

Resolve to do two things. Firstly, pluck up courage to resist the temptation, to the best of your ability. Secondly, turn to Almighty Allah for assistance. Turning to Allah means that you should at once seek Allah's help and seek refuge with Him as soon as you are face to face with a situation in which Satan may involve you in this heinous sin. Thus, you should have full confidence that none except Allah can rescue you from the dangerous situation.

Adopt the character of Hazrat Yusuf عليه السلام

We are all well aware of the story of Hazrat Yusuf عليه السلام, as related in the Holy Qur'an. When he عليه السلام was caught in the severe trial, he عليه السلام too took resort to the formula of using his courage and resolution. When Zulaikha, the King's wife locked all the doors and invited Yusuf عليه السلام to sin, he عليه السلام saw that there was no way out. However, he عليه السلام ran towards the doors which had been locked. He did whatever he was able to do and become entitled to pray to Allah to help him out of his difficulty and distress, as he himself could do no more. Allah then did His part of the job by breaking the locks and opening the doors. Maulana Rumi has expressed this incident beautifully in his Persian couplet:

گرچہ رخنہ نیست عالم را پدید
کیرہ یوسف وار می باید دوید

You are not getting a way out of the vices of the world, nor a refuge from them. You should try to the best of your ability to save yourself from them, just as Hazrat Yusuf عليه السلام had done to save himself.

If one does these two things, viz., try his best to save himself from the grip of sins and seek Allah's help to save you by His mercy from the critical situation. If you follow this formula, you are sure to succeed.

Take the course of Hazrat Yunus عليه السلام

Our Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه said about Hazrat Yunus عليه السلام, as we also know, that Almighty Allah imprisoned him عليه السلام in the belly of a fish for three days. Hazrat Yunus عليه السلام had no way to get out of this prison. Darkness was on all sides. He himself had become qutie helpless and could do nothing to save himself. In such a critical situation he besought Allah in the following words:

لا اله الا انت سبحانك انى كنت من الظلمين

There is no God, except You. Be You glorified.
I have indeed been a wrongdoer, (21;87).

Almighty Allah responded to this prayer in the following words whereby He accepted his عليه السلام prayer:

فَاسْتَجَبْنَا لَهُ وَنَجَّيْنٰهُ مِنَ الْغَمِّ ؕ وَكَذٰلِكَ نُنْجِي الْمُؤْمِنِيْنَ(سورة الانبياء:٨٨)

Then we heard his prayer and saved him from the anguish. And thus do We save the believers. (21:88)

Thus, he came out of the belly of the fish after three days. That is how Almighty Allah comes to the rescue of His believing servants.

Dr. Hazrat Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه has invited us to consider the real meaning of these verses in which Allah has said: And thus do We save the believers. Does it mean that a believer will first have to get into the belly of a fish and will call Allah from there, and then Allah shall come to his rescue? This is not the meaning of the verse. It really means that just as Hazrat Yunus عليه السلام had been imprisoned in the darkness of the belly of the fish, you too may be imprisoned in the darkness of some other kind. There also your refuge is the same personality as that of Hazrat Yunus عليه السلام, viz., call Allah in these words:

لا اله الا انت سبحنك انى كنت من الظالمين

That is, when you pray to Allah in these words, He shall rescue you from whatever darkness you may have fallen into.

Call Me

So, when you are surrounded by the darkness of the demands of your 'self', and of the environments, etc., then call Allah for help against these darknesses and for rescue from their evils. If you make such a supplication with sincerity and from the core of your heart, your supplication is sure to be accepted by All Compassionate Allah.

To pray to Allah for worldly gains and objectives

Sometimes a man prays to Allah for worldly gains and objectives, e.g., health, wealth, some post or high office. It is Allah's mercy that He accepts all reasonable prayers of His servants, although the mode of acceptance differs from prayer to prayer and man to man. Sometimes Allah grants exactly the same object which his servant desires, e.g. health, wealth or post, etc. Sometimes Almighty Allah Knows - and who can know better than He that the object of the prayer is not in the best interest of the man. For example, by getting wealth or a high office the man will become proud or tyrant like Pharaoh and will destroy his Hereafter. So the object desired in the prayer is not granted. Instead, Almighty Allah grants the man a substitute that is better for him in this world as well as in the Hereafter.

A Prayer for some gain of Deen (Faith) is sure to be granted

Sometimes a sincere man prays to Allah to guide him on to the path of Deen and the Sunnah, protect him from sins, from going astray and from disobedience. As there can be no better substitute for such requests, Allah grants them by His mercy. So while asking Allah for some boon, the petitioner must feel sure that his petition shall find acceptance with Merciful Allah.

What to do if a sin is committed after prayer?

Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه pointed out that if you pray to Allah to save yourself from sin and yet you happen to commit a sin, does it mean that your prayer had not been accepted. If a prayer for some worldly gain is not accepted it was pointed out that Allah shall grant the applicant some better substitute. Is it possible to say the same thing in the case of a prayer for protection from sin? Can there be a better substitute than saving the suppliant from sins? Certainly not. Then what is the answer?

Allah grants an opportunity for repentance for sins

You must note it carefully that the prayer was granted by Allah, but if, in some rare case, the man again commits the sin, Allah grants him an early opportunity to turn to Allah in repentance and seek His pardon. Sometimes true and sincere repentance after the commission of a sin raises a servant's rank to a height hardly conceivable. A servant's remorse after committing a sin and offering hearty repentance are very valuable in the sight of Merciful Allah.

Then I shall raise you to a high station

Dr. Hazrat Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say that, if by chance you commit a sin after this prayer, do not mistrust Allah that He did not grant your prayer. You do not know anything about Allah's intention about the height to which He wishes to raise you. When by chance you happen to commit a sin, Allah grants you an opportunity for repentance and shall make you a recipient of the benefits emanating from His attributes as the veiler of sins, being All-Merciful and All-Forgiving...so never think that your prayer has gone waste. Persist in doing these two things, i.e. pluck up courage and seek Allah's bounties with your prayers and wait for the miraculous results.

There is only one formula for safety from sins

I have mentioned a few points about the sin of casting evil glances. May Allah help us by His mercy to act upon these points of advice. Aameen! It is not imperative only for the sin of casting evil glances but for all other sins that these should be resisted with repeated and renewed courage and by turning to Allah with repentance and prayer. Only one of the expedient will not do; both are necessary. Using only one of the two expedients may be likened to a man desiring to go westward, but running Eastward. How is it possible? Take the right direction and then hope to reach your desired destination. Anticipate the acceptance of your prayer after it has been directed in the right manner and in the right direction.

So turn to the right direction, pluck up courage, then go ahead and beg of Allah your boon. This is the only formula for refraining from sins. This is also the formula for attaining all other virtues, devotion and righteousness. May Allah help us, by His mercy, to act upon these pieces of advice. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi
Date : 22nd July, 1993.

ETIQUETTES OF TAKING MEALS

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيد نا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالىٰ عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

عن عمرو بن ابى سلمة رضى الله تعالى عنهما قال: كنت غلامافى حجر رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم. وكانت يدى تطيش فى الصحفة، فقال لى رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم: يا غلام سم الله، وكل بيمينك وكل مما يليك (صحيح بخارى، كتاب الاطعمة، باب التسمية على الطعام، حديث نمبر ٥٣٧٦)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and seek his forgiveness and believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our souls and from the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom He guides and there is none to guide him whom He lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah the One who has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, and our authority and our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah have mercy on him, his household and his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and bless them and salute them all in great deal.

Hazrat Amr bin Abi Salmah رضی اللہ عنہما has narrated: I was a boy in the Prophet's house. Once, while taking meals with him ﷺ, my hand was moving here and there in the plate. The Holy Prophet ﷺ then said to me: O boy! Pronounce Allah's name and eat with your right hand and from the side that is near you.Bukhari..... Hadith No: 5376)

There are Five branches of Deen (Faith)

I have repeatedly stated earlier that the injunctions that have been imposed on us can be divided into five branches, viz., basic beliefs, worshp, transactions and dealings, social life and the ethics. These five branches make up what is called Deen. If any of these five branches is omitted then Deen is incomplete. Therefore the demands of each of these branches should be fully met, i.e. our beliefs, worship, dealings with the people and business transactions, our social living and our ethical conduct and character should all be complete and up to the mark.

Deen is incomplete without reforming the social life

So far we have discussed and studied the subject of ethics. Imam Nuwa-wee رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has framed a new chapter "Mu'asharah" (co-living with other men) and has cited Ahadith concerning this branch. This considers how we should eat, drink, live in the house or the neighbourhood with others. All these activities form part of "Mu'asharah" i.e. social life.

Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ used to say: Nowadays people have excluded "Mu'asharah" from definition of Deen. They do not accept that the injunction concerning Deen also apply to this important subject that is "Mu'asharah". This is the stand even of those people who are very punctual and sincere in other activities of Deen, e.g. prayers, fasting, Tahajjud, remembrance etc. As a result, their Deen is incomplete.

It is, therefore, necessary to know and act upon the injunctions and teachings which Allah and His Prophet ﷺ have issued on the subject of "Mu'asharah". May Allah help us all to act upon these injunctions and teachings.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us everything

Allamah Nuwa-wee رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has commenced the first chapter on "Mu'asharah" with the etiquettes of drinking and eating. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has given us very important directions on drinking and eating as he ﷺ has given directions on other walks of life. Once a polytheist raised an objection to Islam and said to Hazrat Salman Farsi رضی اللہ عنہ:

انی اری صاحبکم یعلمکم کل شئی حتی الخراء ة قال: اجل، امرنا

ان لا نستقبل القبلة ولا نستنجى بايماننا الخ(ابن ماجه كتاب الحجاره باب الا ستنجاء بالجحارة)

That is: Your Prophet ﷺ teaches you everything, even the way of easing yourself in the latrine.

The polytheist said this by way of finding fault with Islam that the Prophet ﷺ taught the Muslims such insignificant things of life like the use of the urinal and the latrine. Hazrat Salman رضی اللہ عنہ replied to him saying: We consider your objection as insignificant. In fact it is a matter of pride for us. Our Prophet ﷺ has taught us everything of life, including the etiquettes of sitting in and using the toilet. He ﷺ has taught us just as the parents teach their children every big and small things of life, if children were not taught these aspects of life they would never know them to become polished and civilized members of the society. Being kinder to us than our parents, the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us such nice etiquettes about drinking and eating that by following them our drinking and eating become an act of worship entitled to recompense.

Three etiquettes of taking meals

In the Hadith which has been quoted above, Hazrat Amr bin Salmah رضی اللہ عنہما has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said to him: At the time of eating pronounce the name of Allah i.e. بسم اللہ (Bismillah) and eat with your right hand and from that part of the plate which is nearer to you. Do not extend your hand to take the food from any other part of the plate. Thus in this Hadith three etiquettes have been mentioned.

The first etiquette is to pronounce بسم اللہ (Bismillah)

Hazrat 'Ayesha رضی اللہ عنہا has narrated another Hadith in which the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: When anyone of you begins eating he should pronounce the name of Allah. If by chance anyone forgets to pronounce Allah's name then on remembering he should pronounce these words later:

بسم اللہ، اولہ و آخر(ابو داؤد، کتاب الاطعمة، باب التسمیة علی الطعام، حدیث نمبر ۳۷۶۷)

"I begin with the name of Allah in the beginning as well as in the end."

Do not provide for Satan's lodging and fooding

Hazrat Jabir رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated a Hadith saying that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: When anyone pronounces Allah's name on entering his house and at the time of eating, Satan feels frustrated and informs his companions that they have in that house neither place to pass the night nor food to eat, because the owner has pronounced the name of Allah at the time of entering the house and at the time of eating the food. When Allah's name is not pronounced on entering the house, Satan tells his companions that they can pass the night in that house. When the man does not pronounce the name of Allah at the time of eating, Satan informs his companions that they can take their meal also in the house. (Abu Dawood.... Hadith No: 3765)

This shows that when Allah's name is not pronounced, as mentioned above, Satan gets an opportunity to interfere with the affairs of the house. He can now seduce and misguide you as he likes and incite you to commit sins with his whisperings. Satan's interference in the matter of food means that, there will be no blessing and spiritual light in it.

Du'a (supplication) to enter the house

In this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has emphasized two points i.e. to pronounce Allah's name when one enters one's house. It is still better to recite this Du'a which the Holy Prophet ﷺ is reproted to have taught his Ummah:

اللهم انى اسئلك خير المولج وخير المخرج، بسم الله ولجنا وبسم الله خرجنا، وعلى الله ربنا تو كلنا (ابو داؤد، كتاب الاداب، باب مايقول اذا خرج من بيته، حديث نمبر ٥٩٦)

It was the routine practice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that he recited the Du'a at the time of entering his house which is translated as follows:

"O Allah! I beg You to grant me the best entry and the best exit. With the name of Allah we have entered and with the name Allah we have gone out and we have put our trust on our Lord."

When a man enters his house he does not know what happened in his house during his absence and he may hear something undesirable on entry. So, it is necessary to seek Allah's help and blessing before entering one's house. Similarly, the help and blessings of Allah should be sought at the time of going out of the house. This is to ward off trouble and distress at both these times, by virtue of this Du'a.

In order to ensure that you do not omit to recite the Du'a, write it on a piece of paper and hang it on the door of the house. This Du'a is halpful and effective in keeping distress and mishaps away and it is a means to earn reward in the Hereafter. It is not possible for Satan to stay in a house where exit and entry is controlled by this Du'a. So, Satan departs murmuring that there is no place for him in this house.

The elder should be the first to begin the meal

Hazrat Huzaifah رضى الله عنه has narrated that when they took food with the Holy Prophet ﷺ they did not extend their hands towards the food until the Holy Prophet ﷺ had started eating.

The jurists have deduced from this Hadith the injunction that when elders and youngers both are eating together, the rule of etiquette demands that the youngers should wait for elders to start eating.

Satan wants to make the meal lawful for him

Hazrat Huzaifah رضى الله عنه has narrated that once they were sitting with the Holy Prophet ﷺ for a meal but had not yet started eating. In the meantime a little girl came running. It seemed that she was awfully hungry. When she extended her hand towards the food, the Holy Prophet ﷺ caught hold of her hand and stopped her from eating the food. Shortly after, a villager also came and rushed towards the food. The Holy Prophet ﷺ caught hold of his hand also and stopped him from eating the food. Then addressing all the companions رضى الله عنهم present there the Holy Prophet ﷺ said:

ان الشيطان يستحل الطعام ان لا يذكر اسم الله تعالى عليه وانه جاء بهذه الجارية ليستحل بها، فاخذت بيدها، فجاء هذا الا عرابى ليستحل به، فاخذت بيده، والذى نفسى بيده، ان يده فى يدى مع يدها (صحيح مسلم كتاب الاشربة باب آداب الطعام والشراب واحكامهما. حديث نمبر ٢٠١٧)

That is: Satan desired to make this food lawful for him by ensuring that Allah's name was not pronounced upon it. He wanted to do this by means of this girl, but I caught hold of the girl's hand. Thereafter, Satan watned to make the food lawful for him through this villager, but I caught hold of his hand also. By God, Satan's hand is in my hand along with the hand of this girl.

Look after the children

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has indicated in this Hadith that if a minor begins to eat food in the presence of elders without pronouncing Allah's name, it is the duty of the elders to warn the child against this and should, if necessary, catch hold of his hand to stop him from eating, and ask him to pronounce (Bismillah) before eating.

Today we sit on the dining-table or the dining-cloth along with our children, but we do not mind at all if they have no regard for the Islamic etiquettes of dining. In this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has drawn our attention to this state of affairs and advised that the elders should be watching the behaviour of the minors and correcting them as and when necessary to preserve the blessing of the foods being eaten.

Satan vomited the food

Hazrat Umayyah bin Mahshi رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that once the Holy Prophet ﷺ was sitting, a man started eating food before him ﷺ without pronouncing the name of Allah and finished the meal, except that only one morsel was left. While taking this last morsel to his mouth the man remembered that he had not pronounced before starting eating his meal. When he remembered the injunction of the Holy Prophet ﷺ for this occasion he pronounced the words بسم اللہ اولہ واخرہ (with the name of Allah in the beginning and at the end of it). On seeing this the Holy Prophet ﷺ smiled and said: Satan was also sharing the food with the man. When he pronounced the words

Satan vomited whatever he had eaten. Satan thus lost his share of the food by virtue of this short phrase. The Holy Prophet ﷺ smiled on seeing this scene. By this incident He ﷺ indicated that if a man forgets to pronounce Allah's name in the beginning, on remembering this omission he should pronounce the words بسم اللہ اولہ و اخرہ (with the name of Allah in the beginning and at the end of it). This action will protect the blessing of the food from being lost.(Abu Dawood..... Hadith No: 3768)

The meal is Allah's bounty

It appears from these Ahadith that the sacred words بسم اللہ الرحمن الرحیم (in the name of Allah, the Merciful, the Beneficent) should be pronounced before beginning the meal. It looks to be a very simple act but it is in reality a magnificent form of worship. On the one hand it becomes a form of worship deserving reward. On the other hand if a man pronounces the words with due attention, the wide door to the knowledge of Almighty Allah will be opened for him. It is because the scared words of the Qur'anic verse بسم اللہ الرحمن الرحیم invites man to realize the truth that the food made available to him is not the product of his own labour, but it is a gift of Giver that is Almighty Allah.

How did the food reach you?

Your pronouncing the words "بسم اللہ" invites your attention to the fact that countless sources of power and efforts of the universe have been harnessed to the process of making this one morsel of food which you have swallowed down your throat so easily and comfortably in a moment. Just think a bit how this piece of bread has reached you. A farmer put in long and arduous hours of labour in ploughing the field and rendering it worthy of cultivation. Then he sowed it with seeds and watered it. Then the forces of nature viz., the wind, sun, the moon, the rains etc. worked on the field. Then sprouted from tiny seeds tiny and tender seedlings too feeble to bear a little touch. This seedling is raising its head by tearing the hard crust of the earth. Gradually and wonderfully it grows into a plant, then into a tree. The tree then blossoms, brings out small blades of grain which grows to maturity and ripens. Then so many men, animals are crushing and winnowing machines work to bring out of the chaff smooth and clean grains. That grain through the intervention of so many small and big businessmen reached the market of your city. A large number of wholesale and retail dealers work hard to make the bags of grain accessible to grinding mills and from there to the market. You purchase the flour and bring it for yourself and your family. After going through different stages the bread is cooked and is before you for eating.

Now consider a bit. Was it possible for you to assemble together all these various powers of nature to the making of a loaf of bread, to bring down the rain water from the sky or to attract the sun rays to ripen the grains? Moreover, was it within your power to pierce the seeds and bring out the sprouts? Almighty Allah has said in the Holy Qur'an:

أَفَرَءَيْتُم مَّا تَحْرُثُونَ ۝ ءَأَنتُمْ تَزْرَعُونَهُۥٓ أَمْ نَحْنُ ٱلزَّٰرِعُونَ (سورہ واقعہ:٦٣)

"Have you seen the seed that you sow, Is it you that cause it grow or is it We Who make it grow? (56:63-64)

This is to say that you could not get even a small morsel of food in spite of all your resources put in the work. It is only Allah's infinite mercy that He is feeding you and all His creation with the choicest of foods. If you take your food with this admission of gratefulness acknowledgement of divine benevolence, then your entire eating will become an item of worship deserving of recompense from Almighty Allah.

The difference between a believer's and non-believer's eating

Our Dr. Abdul Hai رحمة الله عليه used to tell us that Deen is the name of a change in the viewpoint. On effecting a little change in the viewpoint the world becomes Deen. Take the example of your food. If you take it without prouncing the words بسم الله and without admitting that it is a blessing granted by Allah, then in so far as eating is concerned, there is no difference between you and an infidel. You and an infidel both take food. This food will appease your hunger and afford you some taste, but it is purely a worldly affair, having nothing to do with your Deen. You are satisfying your hunger by taking food. The animals like cows, buffaloes, goats, etc. are also taking their foods. So there is no difference between you and these animals.

It is no credit to eat too much

During the time of Hazrat Maulana Muhammad Qasim Sahib Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه the Hindus of the Arya Samaj (a new Hindu sect) had raised a great hue and cry against Islam. To highlight the truth of Islam Hazrat Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه used to debate on religious topics with the leaders of the Arya Samaj. One day he went out for a debating programme against a Hindu Pandit. The debate was to begin after taking the meal. Hazrat Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه got up after taking only a few morsels but the Hindu Pandit ate his fill. After the meal was over the host complained to Hazrat Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه that he had eaten very little. Maulana's reply was that he had eaten according to his desire. The Arya Samaji Pandit was also sitting there. He tauntingly said: Maulana! In the eating competition you have been defeated. This is a bad omen for you. You may also lose the debate in the matter of arguments. Hazrat Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه replied, saying: If the intention was to hold an eating competition, a buffalo or a bullock would have been the right rival. I have come here to take part in a debate with arguments and not to take part in an eating competition.

The difference between an animal and a man

In his reply referred to above Hazrat Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه has pointed out that there is no difference between a man and an animal in the matter of drinking and eating. Both take food to keep themselves alive with Allah's sustenance. Sometimes Allah provides better sustenance to the animals. To distinguish yourself from animals you must pronounce the name of your Nourisher, Allah, before beginning to eat your food.

Hazrat Sulaiman عليه السلام, invited Allah's creatures to a feast

It is written in books that when Almighty Allah conferred on Hazrat Sulaiman عليه السلام the Kingdom of the entire universe, the Prophet عليه السلام, requested Almighty Allah to allow him to feast His entire creation for a full one year as an expression of gratitude to Allah. Allah told him that the project was n within his capacity. He repeated his request for one month's feast. Allah again told him that this too was not within his capacity. Then Hazrat Sulaiman عليه السلام repeated his request for one day's feast. Allah told him that this too was not within his power, As he عليه السلام was insisting on his request, Allah granted his request for one day. On receipt of this permission Hazrat Sulaiman عليه السلام began to make preparations for this tremendous project of feasting with the help of the services of men and jinn. This took many months. At long last a huge dining - cloth was spread on the sea-shore and the food was placed on it. He عليه السلام commanded the wind to continue blowing over the food so that it might not get bad. Thereafter, Hazrat Sulaiman عليه السلام requested Almighty Allah to send some of His creation. Allah told him that He would first send a fish to partake of his feast. So, a fish came out of the sea-water and asked the Prophet عليه السلام about the feast. Hazrat Sulaiman عليه السلام welcomed and invited it to the feast. The fish started eating from one side and ate up the entire food to the other side and asked the Prophet Sulaiman عليه السلام for more. Hazrat Sulaiman عليه السلام complained that it had exhausted the entire food. The fish replied: Is a guest answered in this way? I have been eating my fill ever since I was born. On account of your feast I have remained hungry. Almighty Allah, provides for me every day two times with double the quantity that you have provided. Today I could not eat my fill.

Hazrat Sulaiman عليه السلام realized his delusion, prostrated himself and begged pardon for this. (Nafhatul-Arab, P-110)

Thank Allah after taking meals

Almighty Allah is providing everyone of His creation with sustenance, in the bottom of the sea and its darkness or wherever one may be. He has said in the Qur'an:

وَمَا مِنْ دَابَّةٍ فِي الْأَرْضِ إِلَّا عَلَى اللهِ رِزْقُهَا (سورة هود:٦)

"And there is not an animal on the earth, but its sustenance depends on Allah." (11:6)

Allah has taken upon Himself to provide everyone of His creatures with sustenance, and there is no difference between men and animals in the matter of sustenance. Let animals alone Allah is providing sustenance to his disbelieving enemies also who deny even Allah's existence. They are ridiculing and insulting Him and are making a fun of His Deen. So far as eating is concerned, there is no difference between a Muslim and a non-Muslim, except that the non-muslim eats only to appease his hunger and enjoys the taste of the dishes and he does not care to pronounce Allah's name before eating. As a Muslim, you are advised to pronouncing Allah's name before eating and thank him for the sustenance He has provided for you. By so doing your act of eating will become and an act of Deen and are act of worship.

Change the viewpoint at the time of doing every act

Dr. Hazrat Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to tell us that he practised this principle for years and years and explained by saying:

I am sitting on the dining - cloth. The food is there, I am hungry too. I refrain from eating for a moment and think that I would not eat the food. The very next moment I realize that the food before me is only Allah's bounty and not the result of any effort on my part. It was the practice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that when food was placed before him ﷺ he ate it with Allah's thanksgiving. I too will eat the food placed before me in compliance with the Prophet's Sunnah. Thereafter, I begin eating with the name of Allah (بسم الله).

I entered the house and felt happy to see the playful, lovely baby. I felt an urge to take the baby in my lap and fondle him with love. Yet I kept back for a moment and thought that it was not good to take the baby only for the sake of my liking. The very next moment I remembered that the Holy Prophet ﷺ loved children very much and took them in his lap. Now following his ﷺ Sunnah I will also pick the baby in my lap. With this notion I picked the child in my lap. After relating to us this practice he recited this couplet:

جگر پانی کیا ہے مدتوں غم کی کشا کشی میں
کوئی آسان ہے کیا خوگر آزار ہو جانا

This means: It is not an easy job to make oneself used to grief and distress (in love). This is achieved by putting up with the tensions of grief and pain for a long period.

He went of saying: I have attained this by the grace of Allah, by constant practice and I hardly miss the opportunity. Whenever, some blessing of this kind comes before me, I feel at once that it is from Allah and thank Him and after pronouncing بسم الله I do the job. I have now become used to it. This is what I call " a change in vision" As a result of this change, a worldly act becomes an act of Deen and an act of worship.

The Food - A Blessing of Allah

Once I had an opportunity to atttend a feast with Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه. When the food was brought we began eating it. Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه began to point out the various blessings present in that food. Firstly, the food is in itself an absolute blessing. If a man is dying of hunger he will jump at anything worth eating to save his life, even if it may be of the worst quality. He shall eat it as one of the greatest blessings of Allah. As man appeases his hunger with it, the food is in itself an independent blessing.

A tasteful food - The second blessing

The second blessing is that the food is very tasteful and agreeable to one's palate and desire. A hungry man will even eat a tasteless food to satisfy his hunger, but here he finds the food tasteful and appetising. Thus, a tasteful food is another blessing of Allah.

Availabiity of food with honour - the third blessing

The third blessing about food is that the host is serving the food to the guests or the invitees with honour. If tasteful food was provided but it was not served to the guests with honour or was served as is served to beggars and menial servants, the taste and quality of the food would be meaningless and disgusting, as someone has said:

اے طائر لاہوتی اس رزق سے موت اچھی
جس رزق سے آتی ہو پرواز میں کوتاہی

"O celestial bird (i.e. man), death is better than the sustenance which retards the freedom of flying."

Thus, if anyone is providing you with food in a manner which is insulting and degrading, then there is no blessing and taste in that food. Praise be to Allah that the provider is providing food with honour and grace.

To have appetite for food - the fourth blessing

The fourth blessing consists in the presence of appetite and desire for food. The food is available, it is tasteful and has been served with honour. If there is no appetite due to indigestion, even the food of the best quality and standard is useless. Praise be to Allah that we are getting our sustenance which is tasteful, served with honour and there is also a good appetite.

Peace and security at the time of eating - the fifth blessing

It is the fifth blessing in respect of food that we are eating it with peace and ease without anxiety and fear. Good and tasteful food is available with grace and honour, but there is some worry torturing the mind like some mishap or bad tidings. In such a situation even the best kind of food becomes repelling and disgustful. Praise be to Allah that we are getting our food in a peaceful and congenial atmosphere.

To take food in the company of friends - the sixth blessing

It is the sixth blessing that we are taking our food in the company of our best friends. To take food all alone despite all the foregoing blessings is very much different from taking the same food in the company of our friends. Taking food in the company of friends and relations has a distinctive pleasure which is not available in eating it alone or in the company of strangers. Food is indeed a great blessing and this blessing is accompanied with so many other blessings. You must then be grateful to Almighty Allah for all these blessings.

This food is a combination of various forms of worships

When you take food with the belief that Almighty Allah has granted you so many blessings, you must render thanks to Allah. Taking food after pronouncing بسم الله (Bismillah) is indeed a worship. However, remembering all the blessings available in the act of eating and expressing thanks to Allah for all the blessings concealed in this one blessing becomes composite worship. Now this food which is a worldly gift, becomes a gift of the Hereafter by becoming a form of worship. On the one hand you are enjoying taste, satisfaction of hunger and health for your body and on the other hand you are adding to your good deeds. This is what is called "Change of viewpoint". This "change of viewpoint" has the effect of changing your world into Deen. Hazrat Sheikh Sadi رحمة الله عليه has said in Persian couplet:

ابرو بادو مہ و خورشید و فلک در کار اند
تا تو نانے بکف آری و بغفلت نخوری

(گلستان سعدی)

The clouds, the winds, the moon, the sun and the sky are all doing their respective jobs, so that you may earn your bread. You should therefore, not eat this bread carelessly (and without rendering thanks to Allah).

You have already been advised that you should always begin eating with the name of Allah بسم الله If you by chance ever forget then pronounce these words when you remember during course of eating.

بسم الله اوله و آخره

How to compensate for an optional act?

Relying on this Hadith regarding the omission of saying بسم الله, Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه has said that if a person forgets to do some optional worship at its appointed time, he should not think that the time having passed, it is no longer necessary to compensate for it. He should do that optional worhsip later on as and when he gets time for that. Once we were going in the company of Hazrat Dr. Sahib to attend some gathering which was scheduled to be held after the Maghrib prayer. We set off from our place late and had to offer the Maghrib prayer on the way. In order to save time Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه offered only the three Rak'ats of the Farz (obligatory) prayer and the two Rak'ats of the Sunnah, omitting the two Nafl Rak'ats. We also did the same and rushed to reach the destination. On arriving there we joined the assembly, listened to the lectures and set off on the return journey after offering the 'Isha prayer there at about ten p.m. At the time of returning the Sheikh asked us about the six Rak'ats of the Aw-waabeen prayers (Nafl prayer after Maghrib). We told him that these were missed for want of time. He said that, by the grace of Allah, he offered all his usual nafl (optional) prayers along with his 'Isha prayer. He added that in this way he compensated for the missed six Rak'ats of the Aw-waabeen prayers.

Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه further said: You are maulawis. You will rule that no compensation is required for missed Nafl prayers, because this is necessary only in the case of Farz and wajib (obligatory and compulsory) prayers and not Sunnah and Nafl prayers. You will, therefore, take objections to my act of compensating for the missed six Rak'ats of the Aw-wabeen.

He رحمة الله عليه continued: Did you not read the Hadith in which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that if you forget to pronounce Allah's name (بسم الله) when beginning to take your food, you should pronounce the words "بسم الله اوله و اخره" when you remember the first omission during your eating or at the end of it. On the analogy of this Hadith Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه has advised that if anyone misses some Nafl worship, it should not be abandoned altogether. In order to add to the record of our good deeds for the benefit of the Hereafter, we should compensate for these omissions as far as possible, no matter you call it Qaza or something else.

These are some of the fine points which one needs to learn from the learned Sheikhs. It is true that according to the books of Fiqh (jurisproudence) there is no Qaza (compensation) for missed Nafl prayers. However, as advised by Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه, there is no restriction in compensating for these missed prayers. This will add to the balance of our good deeds. May Almighty Allah enhance the status of our Sheikh رحمة الله عليه. Aameen.

Du'a at the time of folding up the dining-cloth

عن ابى امامة رضى الله عنه ان النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم كان اذا رفع مائد ته قال: الحمد لله كثيرا طيبا مباركافيه، غير مكفى ولا مودع ولا مستغنى عنه ربنا (صحيح بخارى، كتاب الاطعمة باب مايقول اذا فرغ من طعامه، حديث نمبر ٥٤٥٨)

Hazrat Abu Amamah رضى الله عنه has narrated that when the dining-cloth was folded up at the end of the meal, the Holy Prophet ﷺ used to recite this Du'a which means: O our Lord! Abundant praise is for You for this clean and blessed food (which You provided) which is neither insufficient nor unwanted nor dispensable.

This is a unique Du'a which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught, keeping in view the human nature and temparament. When man is hungry, he feels a great longing for food to appease his hunger. As soon as his hunger is appeased he becomes disgusted to see the same food of which he was so keenly desirous a few minutes earlier. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ taught this wonderful Du'a, lest having satisfied his hunger man should become indifferent to Allah's blessings and grow ungrateful to Him particularly when he will require these blessings again and again, throughout his life. This Du'a also implies an appeal to Almighty Allah to grant his sustenance again and again.

Get your sins pardoned after reciting this Du'a at the end of your meal

عن معاذ بن انس رضى الله عنه قال: قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم: من اكل طعاما فقال! الحمد لله الذى اطعمنى هذا ورزقنيه من غير حول منى ولا قوة غفرله ما تقدم من ذنبه (ترمذى، كتاب الدعوات باب مايقول اذا فرغ من الطعام، حديث نمبر ٣٤٥٤)

It is narrated by Hazrat Ma'az رضى الله عنه who has reported that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: The past sins of him are pardoned who says after taking his food: All praise is for Allah Who provided for me food to eat and granted me this food without any effort and labour on my part. (Tirmizi..... Hadith No: 3454)

Just think what a generous grant of reward and recompense for such a small and easy act! How merciful and Benevolent is Almighty Allah!

A small deed yielding a great reward

Please note that I have already mentioned this point that when it is mentioned in a Hadith that by doing a certain act sins are forgiven, the sins imply only minor sins. As regards major sins, they are not forgiven without repentance. Likewise sins involving usurpation of the rights or dues of the servants of Allah cannot be forgiven, unless the claimants write off their claims in favour of the liable persons. If a person recites this Du'a after food, Almighty Allah shall forgive all these minor sins. So small an act and so great its reward! Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه frequently said about this Du'a that in the form of this Du'a the Holy Prophet ﷺ has given us an elexir of life. A man becomes entitled to blessings and the virtue of gratitude, whether he recites this Du'a loudly, in low voice or in his heart. May Almighty Allah help us all to observe these etiquettes. Aameen!

Do not find fault with food

عن ابی هریرة رضی الله عنه قال: ماعاب رسول الله صلی الله علیه وسلم طعاماقط، ان اشتهاه اکله، وان کرهه ترکه (صحیح بخاری، کتاب الاطعمة باب ماعاب النبی صلی الله علیه وسلم طعاما حدیث نمبر ۵۴۰۹)

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ never found fault with any food. If he liked,he ate the food, but if he did not like, he left it.

We learn from this Hadith that all sorts of food are a gift from Allah and it is our bounden duty to respect and value the sustenance granted by Allah which is a great favour to us from Him.

None is bad or worthless in the Universe

There is nothing in this world which Almighty Allah has not created with some wisdom and expedience. Everything found in the world has some benefit and utility. The famous Urdu Poet, Dr. M. Iqbal has very aptly said:

نہیں ہے چیز نکمی کوئی زمانے میں
کوئی برا نہیں قدرت کے کارخانے میں

This means: There is nothing worthless in this world and there is nothing bad in the workshop of Nature.

Allah has, in His infinite wisdom created things which have some definite use, although we may not know the purpose of the creation of those things. We count snakes, scorpions, etc., among deadly reptiles, yet they too possess some advantage and use in the overall scheme of Universe, no matter we know it or are in dark about it.

The story of a King and a Fly

It is related about a King that one day he was sitting in his court with all pomp and show when a fly sat on his nose. You might have seen that some flies are very obstinate. They sit on your body again and again, however, forcibly you may try to drive them away. The fly that sat on the King's nose also belonged to that category. On seeing this the King raised objection to Allah's creation of flies which, in the King's opinion, were a troublesome creature. A saintly person present in the King's court heard this objection and could not help replying to the King in these words: One wisdom in the creation of this fly is that it is defying an arrogant despot like you, Allah has demonstrated that you are too helpless to save yourself from the distress you are suffering on account of this fly. You cannot underrate the expedience and widom of the creation of this small fly.

A strange incident about a Scorpion

Imam Razi رحمة الله علیه has been a famous saint and an expert theologian who compiled the renowned commentary of the Holy Qur'an under the name Tafsir Kabir. It is such a detailed commentary book that the commentary on the Surah Fatiha alone covers two hundred pages. Writing the commentary on the first Surah of al-Fatihah he has related an incident on the direct narration of another saint who lived in Baghdad. The saint said that while taking a walk along the side of the River Tigris, he saw that a scorpion was also going along the riverside in front of him. The saint thought that being a creation of Allah, it was also created for some purpose.

We decided to follow the scorpion to find out its destination. After covering a long distance, the scorpion turned towards the river and stopped at the riverside. The saint also stood there. A little later the saint saw that a tortoise was swimming towards the scorpion when it reached the shore the scorpion jumped on the back of the tortoise. In this way Almighty Allah provided a boat for the scorpion to cross the river. As he had resolved to know the final result he also hired a boat and set off in the direction of the tortoise and the scorpion. When the tortoise reached the other side of the river the saint again started chasing it. After some time he saw that a man was sleeping under a tree. He thought that the scorpion was going to sting that man. The saint went near the sleeping man to wake him up and inform him of the scorpion's sting, but he saw that a poisonous snake was there spreading its hood over the man and ready to bite him. The scorpion quickly got on the snake and stung it so hard that the snake writhed and died instantly. The scorpion moved away in another direction. All of a sudden the sleeping man awoke from sleep and saw that a scorpion was creeping away nearby. He ran to kill the scorpion with a stone. The saint at once caught hold of the man's hand and told him that the scorpion had saved his life . The scorpion was the man's well-wisher because Allah had deputed it to kill the snake and save the man's life. The saint has said that on that day he observed the wonderful Omnipotence and power of Almighty Alalh. This incident shows that there is some wisdom and purpose in everything which Allah has created in this universe.

The worms that are born in filth

I have also seen another incident, although I am not sure of its genuineness. If it is a genuine incident it is full of morals. While sitting in a latrine a man saw there very small white worms which are some times also born in man's intestines. While admitting that Allah has created everything for some purpose and with wisdom he felt no doubt about the secret and wisdom of creating those useless worms.

After some days that man suffered from some eye disease. He did all that was possible for him to recover from that disease but all in vain. At last he came across an eye physician who told the patient that only one treatment was available which sometimes proves effective. He told the patient that a paste prepared from the worms that are found in man's stomach had sometimes been found to be efficacious in such a disease. When I heard this story I became fully convinced that Almigty Allah has created everything for some purpose, even though we may not be able to grasp the use and wisdom of that creation

Likewise, there is a wisdom and some purpose in the cration of that food which we do not relish and refuse to eat. At any rate, all food items are forms of sustenance granted to man by Almighty Allah whcih we must value and respect. If you do not like any food do not speak ill of it, nor try to find fault with it. This is dishonouring Allah's benevolence and blessing which is no doubt very bad indeed.

Do not disparage food

This is also a very valuable advice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that we should value and respect Allahs' sustenance. This is an Islamic etiquette but it is being badly violated in our society. We are initating the non-Muslims in this matter as we are doing in other matters. We have no respect for Allah's sustenance. We throw away the superfluous food in dustbins. Sometimes our hearts shudder to see this disrespect to food which is being shown by the Muslims. Particularly in hotels and marriage feasts large quantities of valuable food dumped in dustbins and garbage heaps. According to the teachings of our Deen we should value even a small piece of bread we find lying anywhere, we should pick it up and place it at a raised ground, so that an animal or bird may eat it.

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه and the value of sustenance

I have heart Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه relating an anecdote of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه. Once Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه felt sick and during his sickness someone offered him milk to drink. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه drank that milk. A little of it remained which he placed under his bed and fell into sleep. When he awoke from sleep he inquired about the left over milk. He was told that it had been thrown away as it was hardly a drought. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه got very much displeased. He scolded the man for having thrown away Allah's sustenance. He رحمة الله عليه said that if he could not drink that milk someone else could have drunk it or it could have been offered to a cat or a parrot, so as to help with it some creature of Allah. After this he رحمة الله عليه mentioned a principle:

It is binding on man to value and respect the small quantities of those things from large quantities of which he receives benefit in his ordinary life.

For example, man eats a large quantity of food to appease his hunger. If a small quantity is left over, man is duty-bound to value and respect that left over quantity. It is not lawful to waste it. This too should be put to some use.

The Right way of shaking off the dining-cloth

Sayyid Asghar Husain Sahib رحمة الله عليه, known as "Mian Sahib" was a teacher in the Darul-Uloom Deoband. He was a unique saint. His life recalls to our memory the days of the Noble Companions رضى الله عنهم. My respected father told us that once he called upon him رحمة الله عليه. As it was meal time the saint invited my father to dine with him. Accordingly, my father sat with him on the dining-cloth. When they had finished eating my father began to fold up the dining-cloth so that he might shake it off to clean it. Mian Sahib asked my father: Do you know how to shake off and clean a dining-cloth? My father replied: Hazrat, it does not require any special knowledge or art nor any special training. I shall take it out and shake it off. Hazrat Mian Sahib رحمة الله عليه said: That is why I asked you this question. Now it appears that you do not know the job. This is also an art. My father requested Mian Sahib to teach him that art.

Mian Sahib then reopened the dining-cloth and separated the bones from the food scraps, etc. He sorted out the bones which had some pieces of flesh sticking to them, and the big and very small pieces of bread. Addressing my father he said: See, these are four different things and in my house each is kept in a different place. The meat bones with some flesh have a different place which is known to the cat. The bones without flesh have a different place known to the dogs of the area. As for these pieces of bread I place the bigger ones of them on this wall for birds, like kites and crows. As for the very fine pieces of the bread, these are placed near a hole of ants. He added saying: This is Allah's sustenance; no part of it should be laid waste. This, my respected father رحمة الله عليه was convinced that the act of shaking off and rolling up the dining-cloth was also an art.

Our plight today

What do we do now? We shake off the dining-cloth on the dustbin or the dust-heap, without thinking that this is disparaging Alalh's sustenance. Do you not see these countless creatures for whom Almighty Allah has produced this sustenance. If you cannot eat a thing yourself, keep it for some other creature of Allah. In olden days children were taught to value and respect Allah's sustenance. If a piece of bread was lying somewhere they were taught to pick it up and keep it with due regard at some raised place. As the western civilisation is gaining ground in our society, our Islamic values sand etiquettes are disappearing gradually. It is an injunction of the Holy Prophet ﷺ: If you like a food, eat it; if you do not like it, leave it, but neither speak ill of it, nor find fault with it nor disparage it. It is imperative to revive this Sunnah. These things are not being mentioned by way of story-telling and for enjoyment. They are for action in all sincerity. We should value and respect the sustenance granted to us by Almighty Allah. We should also observe the etiquettes taught by the Holy Prophet ﷺ about it. These form part of our Deen and are its distinctive features. We must at the same time do our best to get rid of the vices which the western civilization has imposed on our soceity.

Vinegar is also a sort of 'Salan' (Curry)

عن جابر رضی اللہ عنه ان النبی صلی اللہ علیه وسلم سئل اهله الادم، فقالوا: ماعندنا الاخل، فدعا به، فجعل یاکل، ویقول: نعم الادم الخل، نعم الادم الخل. (صحیح مسلم، کتاب الاشربة، باب فضیلة الخل، والتادم به، حدیث نمبر ۲۰۵۲)

Hazrat Jabir رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that once the Holy Prophet ﷺ asked the inmates of his house to fetch him some curry (Salan), (bread was available). They told him ﷺ that they had nothing except vinegar. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Bring it. Hazrat Jabir رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ ate bread with the vinegar, repeatedly saying: The venegar is a very good curry.

The condition of the Household of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

It is stated about the household of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that he ﷺ used to provide for his sacred wives one year's provision. Despite this nothing was available there to serve as curry (Salan). After all they were the wives of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. They spent most of their resources in the path of Allah. According to a Hadith narrated by Hazrat ʿAyeshah رضی اللہ عنہا fire was not lighted in her house for cooking for periods of three months continuously. They lived only on two items, dates and water. (Sahih Bukhari.... Hadith No: 2567).

The Holy Prophet ﷺ valued and respected a blessing

It appears from this Hadith that the Holy Prophet ﷺ greatly valued and respected a blessing which he ﷺ was granted by Allah, and he rendered thanks for that. In the society in general vinegar is not used as a curry; it is used only as a pickle to change the taste of the food and to make it more palatable. See how not only did the Holy Prophet ﷺ eat his bread with it, but he also repeatedly praised it as a very nice and delicious curry.

We should praise the food

On the authority of this Hadith the Muhadditheen (scholars of Hadith) have said that if anyone uses vinegar with the intention that the Holy Prophet ﷺ ate and praised it, he will receive reward for this. Another point that can be deduced from this Hadith is that a man should say something in praise of the food which pleases him. Praising the food implies gratitude for Allah that he granted the food. It also implies an appreciation of the cook who cooked the food. It is very improper on the part of a person that he satisfies his hunger and enjoys the food but does not say a word of gratitude and praise. The cook deserves a few words of praise and encouragement for the pains he has taken in cooking food for you. He is a great miser who cannot utter a few words of praise for someone.

The cook should be praised

Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه once related this anecdote that occurred with him. He said that a gentleman used to call upon him from time to time. He and his wife both were among his disciples for spiritual training. One day they invited him to a feast at their house. He called on them and took his food there. The food was very delicious and had been nicely cooked. It was the habit of Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه that whenever he took food at any place, he praised that food and also praised the cook who cooked it. He did this by way of expressing gratitude for Allah and praise and encouragement for the person who cooked the food. When Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه had partaken of the food, that housewife came near Dr. Sahib from behind the curtain and bade "Salam" to him رحمة الله عليه. Dr. Sahib uttered a few words of praise for the food and for her who had cooked it so nicely. On hearing these words of praise she began to weep and Dr. Sahib heard her sobbings. Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه was astonished at this and thought that perhaps she was offended at some of his words. On being asked the reason for her weeping, controlling herself with some difficulty she said that she had been living with her husband for about forty years, but during this long period of association she never heard from her husband a word of praise about her cooking. She said that on hearing from the Sheikh a word of praise about the food, she was moved to tears. As her husband was a disciple of the Sheikh, the latter reprimanded him on his miserliness in the matter of saying a few words of praise about his wife's cooking in order to please her. The moral we learn from this anecdote is that after taking food we should praise the food as well as the cook who cooked it. This ensures rendering thanks to Almighty Allah as well as pleasing the cook.

To praise a gift

When a gift is presented to anyone the reciver of the gift generally utters a few formal words like this: It was not at all necessary. Why did you take this trouble, etc. Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه followed a different way of receiving a gift when it was presented to him by some of his close friends with due respect and love. He would show much fondness for that gift and his appreciation as if it was something which he badly needed.

Once I presented to him a piece of cloth. while accepting the humble gift, he said:

I was in search of such cloth. The colour of the cloth is particularly appealing to me.

About gifts he advised that the affection of the giver of the gift should be acknowledged with a few words of appreciation and praise. There is a Hadith " تها دوا تحابوا " meaning, increase love among yourselves by exchange of gifts. This increase of love will materialize only when you receive the gifts with a few words of happiness and appreciation.

Express gratitude to the people also

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith:

من لم يشكر الناس لم يشكر الله (ترمذی، کتاب البر والصلة، باب ماجاء فی الشکر لمن احسن الیك، حدیث نمبر ۱۹۵٤)

This means: One who does not thank man does not also thank Allah.

That is to say, you must render at least verbal thanks to a man and praise him who behaves with you with love and sincerity and provides you with some benefit. This is an act of the Sunnah, based on the teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. If we follow these directions we shall soon see the birth of love and betterment of mutual relations among families and individuals in the society, resulting in the end of enemities, hatred and malice, etc.

May Allah help us to follow the right course. Aameen!

The Holy Prophet ﷺ teaching his stepson good manners

Hazrat Amr bin Salmah رضی الله عنهما has narrated this Hadith which has already bee cited.

عن عمروبن ابی سلمة رضی الله عنهما قال: کنت غلامافی حجر رسول الله صلی الله علیه وسلم، وکانت یدی تطیش فی الصحفة، قال لی رسول الله سلی الله علیه وسلم: یا غلام، سم الله وکل بیمینك، وکل ممایلیك

(صحیح بخاری، کتاب الاطعمة باب التسمیة علی الطعام، حدیث نمبر ٥٣٧٦)

Hazrat Amr bin Salmah رضی الله عنهما narrated this Hadith which has already been cited. The narrator Hazrat Amr رضی الله عنه was a stepson of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Hazrat Abu Salmah رضی الله عنه was Hazrat Umm Salmah's رضی الله عنها first husband. After his death the Holy Prophet ﷺ married Hazrat Umma Salmah رضی الله عنها After this second marriage the son also came to the house of the Holy Prophet ﷺ alongwith his mother, Hazrat Umma Salmah رضی الله عنها. The son, Hazrat Amr رضی الله عنه, thus came under the direct training of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He رضی الله عنه has said: When I was a child and under training of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, I once sat with him ﷺ to take food. During eating my hand moved in the plate on all sides. When the Holy Prophet ﷺ observed this, he ﷺ said: O boy, pronounce Allah's name, بسم الله before beginning the meal and eat with your right hand from part of the plate which is before you.

It is a rule of etiquette to eat from one's front

In this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned three rules of etiquettes. Firstly ,begin eating after pronouncing the words بسم الله . Secondly, eat with your right hand. Thirdly, eat from the part of the plate which is facing you and not from all sides. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has laid great emphasis on observing this etiquette for obvious reasons. While eating food facing you if some food is left, it will not look clumsy someone shall eat it without feeling any disgust, otherwise the food will have to be thrown away.

Blessings descend on the middle of the food

According to a Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ blessings of Allah descend on the middle of a food when it is served. If the food is eaten from the middle of it, the blessings will disappear. These divine blessings prolong, if the food is eaten from the sides. A qeustion arises about the meaning and significance of these blessings. What are they? How do they descend on the middle of the plate only? The answer is that we cannot grasp these divine secrets with our limited knowledge and intellect. These are the wisdom and expedients of Allah best known to Him and His Prophet ﷺ. It is also not necessary for us to involve ourselves in this issue. We have been taught to eat food facing us and not from the middle of the plate. (Tirmizi..Hadith No: 1806)

If there are many items on the plate we can extend our hands to other sides also

The foregoing rule of etiquette is applicable only when there is only one item of food on the plate. If there are many items of food, it is permissible to extend one's hand from side to side to pick up the item of one's choice. Hazrat ʿAkraish bin Zaeeb رضی اللہ عنہ who is a companion رضی اللہ عنہ has said: Once I called upon the Holy Prophet ﷺ who was going to attend some feast. He took me also with him ﷺ when we reached the place of the feast "Sareed" was placed on the dining-cloth. (Sareed is prepared with crushed pieces of dried bread soaked in curry. The Holy Prophet ﷺ was very fond of this dish and he ﷺ has spoken about its excellence). When I started eating I omitted pronouncing the words بسم اللہ. The Holy Prophet advised me to pronounce these sacred words before taking food. In addition to this, I picked up the morsels from different sides of the plate. Seeing me do this the Holy Prophet ﷺ said:

يا عكراش، كل من موضع واحد، فانه طعام واحد

"O ʿAkraish, take the food from one place because the food is of one kind.

So I began to eat from one side. Thereafter a very big plate was placed before us with different kinds of dates. According to the common saying that "once bitten twice shy", I began to eat the dates from one side, as the Holy Prophet ﷺ had advised me earlier. When the Holy Prophet ﷺ saw that I was picking up the dates from one side only he ﷺ said:

يا عكراش، كل من حيث مئشت، فانه غيرلون واحد

That is O ʿAkraish, eat from wherever you like because the dates are of different kinds.

Through this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught that when the food is of one kind it should be eaten from the front of the person eating it. If the food is of different kinds, there is no harm in eating it by extending the hand to different sides to take up the morsels. (Tirmizi, Book of foods..... Hadith No: 1849).

It is not lawful to take food with the left hand

وعن سلمة بن الا كوع رضى الله عنه ان رجلا اكل عند رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم بشماله فقال كل بيمينك قال لا استطيع قال لا استطعت ما منعه الا الكبر فما رفعها الى فيه (صحيح مسلم، كتاب الاشربة، باب آداب الطعام والشراب، حديث نمبر ٢٠٢١)

Hazrat Salmah bin Akwaʿ رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that once a man sitting with the Holy Prophet ﷺ was eating with his left hand. The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked him to eat with the right hand. He replied, saying: I am unable to eat with the right hand. (Apparently he was a hypocrite who was telling a lie). It is a very serious sin and crime to tell a lie to a Prophet of Allah and to insist on one's mistake and sin. Allah does not like this audacity. The Holy Prophet ﷺ cursed him saying: لااستطعت (May you never have the ability to eat with your right hand). The curse of the Holy Prophet ﷺ had its effect. It occurs in a narrative that thereafter the man was not able to raise his right hand to his mouth. May Almighty Allah save us from such a trial. Aameen!

If one commits a mistake, one should admit it and seek pardon for it

If a man commits a mistake on account of his weakness as a man, but admits his mistake and expresses regret and remorse for it and asks for forgiveness then merciful Allah forgives him. It is a heinous sin to deny the mistake committed and to insist on it, particularly before the Prophet ﷺ of Allah.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ hardly cursed anyone. He ﷺ did not curse even his enemies. In respect of his arch-enemies he ﷺ prayed:

اللهم اهد قومی فانهم لا یعلمون

O Allah! Guide my community, because they do not know me.

As regards this hypocrite, the Holy Prophet ﷺ was informed through a revelation that he was refusing to eat with the right hand because of his hypocrisy and enmity, and that there was no disability with him. Due to this the Holy Prophet ﷺ cursed him which was at once accepted by Almighty Allah.

It is not right to insist upon one's mistake

Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say: If a man calls upon saints and godly men in a state that he is addicted to bad habits and is a sinner, there is no harm. It is, however, very serious and harmful to tell lies to these saintly men and to insist upon their sins. To tell lies to the Prophets of Allah is much more dangerous and heinous. Sometimes Allah discloses the secrets of such men to the successors of the Prophets علیهم السلام. To illustrate this Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه related an incident concerning Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه. Once Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه was delivering a sermon. In the gathering a man was sitting in an arrogant style, supporting his back against the wall and spreading out his legs. To sit in a gathering in such a style is against the etiquettes of assemblies. In order to correct the eprson, Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه took objection to the man and told him that it was against the etiquettes of an assembly to sit in that way and that he should sit with due regard and discipline. Instead of doing the needful, the man said that he was suffering from pain in his waist. Perhaps by this reply he wanted to say that it was wrong to warn him, as the Sheikh رحمة الله عليه was not aware of his pain. Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه told us that Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه bent down his neck for a while and closed his eyes. then raising up his neck he said to the man: you are lying. You have no pain in your waist, you should get up and leave the assembly. It appears that sometimes Allah informs His righteous servants of hidden things and conditions. It is, therefore, very dangerous to tell lies to, and deceive saintly men. Instead, if by chance a sin is committed the sinner should regret the sin and seek repentance. Allah will by His mercy, forgive that sin or mistake.

People contacted the man who had been turned out of the assembly and asked him to tell the fact. He admitted that he had no pain in his waist; he had told a lie to the Sheikh to justify his sitting. What the Sheikh said was true.

Refrain from being audacious to saintly men

Look! who is there in the world who does not commit a sin, a mistake or some shortcoming. Man, by dint of his very nature, does commit mistakes or sins. If anyone is not following the course appointed by these Sheikhs and saints, even then Allah sometimes helps him to repent for his sins and take the right course. However, to behave disrespectfully and rudely with the saints, to speak ill of them or to insist upon one's sins and to try to prove them right are such a grievous curse that sometimes it jeopardises the very 'Eeman' of a person. Never mind, if you do not appreciate something in a saint, do not be insolent and disrespectful towards them, lest Almighty Allah should become displeased and may prove harmful to a man's Eeman (belief). May Almighty Allah protect us from this. Aameen!

Nowadays people have become addicted to disowning their faults. They have become so bold that they commit sins and try to prove that what they have committed is not a sin. For example, to allege that a certain saint is a worldly-wise man, he is neither a Sheikh nor a saint is something very dangerous. Refrain from this yourself and advise others to refrain from such misconduct.

Do not eat two dates together

عن جبلة بن سحيم رضى الله عنه قال اصابنا عام سنة مع ابن الزبير، فرزقنا تمرا، فكان عبدالله بن عمر رضى الله عنهما يمربنا ونحن ناكل، فيقول: لا تقارنوا، فان النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم نهى عن القران، ثم يقول، الا ان يستادن الرجل اخاه (صحيح بخارى، كتاب الاطعمة باب القران فى التمر، حديث نمبر ٥٤٤٦)

Hazrat Jabalah bin Saheem رضى الله عنه has narrated that during the caliphate of Hazrat Abdullah bin Zubair رضى الله عنه famine occurred in the land. During this hard time Allah favoured them with a quantity of dates. When they were eating those dates, Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضى الله عنه passed by them and forbade them to eat two dates together. The act of eating two dates together is called قران in the Arabic language. All who were eating the dates were equally entitled to share the available dates. It was therefore not right that some should take only a single date and some others two dates together. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ forbade people to eat two dates together. Eating two dates together when others were eating only one is not just.

This Hadith teaches that it is not fair to usurp othes' rights.

How to use things of common use and joint ownership

In the above Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has also taught the principle that a man should not try to derive more benefit than others from something which is a common property meant for the benefit of all. By disobeying this principle one appropriates more than one's share, violating the rights of others. This is not lawful. Not only does this principle apply to dates, but it also applies to all common and public properties that are meant for the benefit of all on equal terms.

For example the system of self-service is in vogue nowadays in the marriage or other dinners. The invitees help themseles by taking their shares of the food themselves from the common pool. All invitees have equal right to the food. Now if a man takes in his plate more than his due share, depriving others of their shares - and this is what actually happens - he does something unlawful and commits the sin involved in the Arabic word "Qiran" (قران).

Take out the food in your plate with due care

This principle has been stated to teach the Ummah that it is a Muslim's duty to make sacrifice for his other Muslim brothers and not to usurp their rights, irrespective of that the rights may be significant or insignificant in value. It is, therefore, necessary for every man to safeguard the rights of others instead of being selfish.

My respected father Hazrat Maulana Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه once explained the same principle while sitting on the dining-cloth. He رحمة الله عليه said: when the food has been served on the dining-cloth, count the men sitting round the cloth and if the food is equally distributed among them how much of it will fall to your share. Then eat only your share. If you eat more it will fall within the definition of Qiran (قران) which is unlawful.

It is not lawful to occupy sitting space in a Railway compartment more than your due share

Once my respected father رحمة الله عليه explained to us a point concerning sitting arrangements in a Railway compartment. He pointed out that it is written for information in every compartment that there is sitting capacity for 22 passengers only. A passenger enters the compartment earlier and reserves for himself three or four men's seats and spreads thereon his bedding to lie down, compelling three or four men to remain standing. This too comes within the definition of قران . This is absolutely unlawful, because he had the right to take only one man's seat. By occupying more than one seat he has committed two sins. Firstly, he purchased only one ticket for himself but occupied two or three seats without paying for them which he had no right. Secondly, by occupying unrightfully the seats of others he violated their rights. Thus, he committed two sins. By the first sin he violated a right of Almigty Allah and by the second sin, the rights of the servants of Allah.

The Rights of companions on a journey

It is a right of Allahs' servants and it is very difficult to have it pardoned. The rights and dues of men cannot be forgiven unless the claimants or the creditors forgive their rights or dues. If at anytime Almighty Allah creates in you an urge to repent for your sin, how can you search for the passenger who travelled with you whose right you had usurped? Now there is no way out for you to clear the liability lying on your shoulders. It is, therefore, very imperative for you to be cautious about these pitfalls. The Holy Qur'an has given comands on many occasions about this point:

وَالصَّاحِبِ بِالْجَنْبِ (سورة النساء:٣٦)

Literally the words "صاحب بالجنب" mean "And the companion by your side." He is the person who has by chance taken his seat by your side, while travelling on a bus, railway train or an aeroplane. He too has some rights which you should not usurp. You should do some sacrifice for his sake. The journey is short and shall end very soon. If you commit some sin it shall remain on record in the roll of your deeds for the whole of your lifetime. It will be very difficult for you to have it pardoned.

It is compulsory to maintain proper accounts in a partnership business

It is a common practice prevailing nowadays that a few brothers are carrying on a partnership business, yet they maintain no accounts. They think that, being brothers, accounting is not necessary among them; it is necessary for outsiders. In the absence of this accounting none knows the share of each brother in the assets of the business, the profits and the capital invested. Everything is being done at randoms. Matters remain smooth in the beginning but, misgivings and suspicions agianst one another develop gradually later on. This mutual relations get bitter and end in litigation and closure of the business which causes loss to all.

All this happens, because we have remained away from the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It is binding on every Muslim to keep proper accounts of common enterprizes and transactions. If no accounts are maintained the person responsible for this is himself committing a sin and is also involving others in such a sin. Remember that mutual reliance and confidence in business due to brotherly relationship continue for sometime and develop into mistrust and hatred later on. All this ultimately leads to endless litigation and quarrels. This is happening everywhere and everyday in the society.

Distinction among the properties of one another is a requirement of the Shar'iah

Distinction in ownership of properties is very necessary. It is necessary that there should be clear-cut definition of, and distinction between, properties of relatives like father and son and husband and wife, etc. Hazrat Ashraf Ali Thanawi Sahib رحمة الله عليه had two wives who had each a house of her own. He رحمة الله عليه said that his property and those of his wives were quite distinct and different from each other. The properties in the house of the senior wife belonged to her and those in the house of the junior belonged to her. The properties and goods in the Khanqah (a Muslims monastery) belonged to Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه himself. He said that the ownership of these properties and goods were so defined and clear-cut that if he passed away he would have nothing to advise anyone about these.

Hazrat Mufti Sahib's clarification about ownership of property

My respected father Hazrat Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه also followed the same principle of defining and segregating properties of one another. During the closing days of his life he had a bed placed in his room on which he lay day and night. We all attended on him in that room. When we brought to his room something from another room, my father insisted on returning that thing after it was no longer necessary. He felt offended and became displeased if it was delayed.

Sometimes I thought that it was hardly necessary to return the thing so hurriedly. One day my respected father رحمة الله عليه himself told us the reason. He said: I have mentioned in my will that whatever there is in my room is my property and whatever there is in the room of my wife is her property. When something belonging to other person comes to my room, I fear lest it should remain in the room and regarded as my property as mentioned in my will, when I have passed away. That is why I take special care that things belonging to others should be returned without loss of time.

All these topics are a part of Deen, although we have excluded them from Deen. These things need to be learnt from our saintly elders. All these points are deduced from the basic principle taught by the Holy Prophet ﷺ that we should refrain from قران (i.e. joining together two things).

How to use common properties and goods?

My respected father used to tell us that there are things of common use in a house which are used by every inmate. These are kept at specific places. It is necessary to keep each such article in its specified place after using it. It is a major sin to misplace such things, because a person not finding it in its specific place will be subjected to inconvenience and distress. To cause distress to a Muslim is a major sin. It had never occurred to me earlier that it is a major sin. I thought that it was only a worldly affair and an administrative problem of the household. Note it carefully that there is not a single aspect of life which is not covered by an injunction of Deen. We should all think if we are following this principle of placing every article of common use in its proper place. This is a very trifling matter still on account of our inattention and indifference we are committing sins. Why is it so? It is because we attach no importance to matters concerning Deen and have no fear that one day we shall be called upon by Allah to render accounts. Another reason is that people are generally ignorant of these matters.

Anyway, all these topics fall within the definition of Qiran (قران). In short, everything by which the right of another person is violated or causes distress is a case of قران.

How to use a common Latrine?

There are certain acts for which man feels shy to talk about. For example, after using the latrine the excrement is not flushed out. This causes disgust to others. It is a major sin to cause distress and inconvenience to another Muslim. We should all refrain from such acts.

The non-Muslims have adopted Islamic modes of living

Once I had the opportunity to accompany my respected father in a journey by air to Dacca (Bangladesh). During the flight I felt the need to go to toilet. You may have seen in the toilet a notice above the washbasin to this effect:

After having used the wash-basin kindly clean it with the cloth and dry it so that those coming later may not feel disgusted.

After I returned from the toilet my father رحمة الله عليه said to me: The notice written above the wash-basin means the same warning which I have been giving you off and on that it is a part of our Deen to save others from distress and inconvenience. The non-Muslims have adopted this principle and Almighty Allah has bestowed upon them success and progress in this world. We, on the other hand, have excluded these principles from Deen and have confined Deen only to prayers and fasting etc. We have totally ignored the rules and etiquettes of social living or "Mu'asharah". The result is that we are going back to deterioration and failure. Allah has planned the affairs of this world on the principle of cause and effect. Therefore, the results, good or bad, depend on man's deeds. This is a law of nature which according to Allah's Decree, applies to all, whether they are believers or non-believers.

An incident relating to an English Lady

Last year I had to go to London. From there I was going to Edinburgh by train. On the way I felt the need to use the toilet. When I reached the toilet I saw that an English lady was standing there. I concluded that the toilet was engaged and the lady was waiting for her turn. I came back to my place. A long time passed neither anyone came out of the toilet nor the lady went in. I again went and saw the sign of 'vacant' on the toilet door. I asked the lady to use the toilet if she wants to. The lady told me that she was waiting for the train to move. It is the law of the country neither to flush nor use the toilet while the train is stationed. No sooner the train leaves the platform she will flush the toilet which she forgot earlier.

Now think that a lady was waiting only to flush the toilet which she could not do earlier. She is not flushing it presently because the law of the Railway stands in her way. At that time I remembered the advice of my father رحمة الله عليه that it is a part of Deen to take care of such small matters as flushing toilets and latrines, so that the omission may not be a cause of inconvenience and disgust to those who come to use the facility later. Our behaviour in such matters is just the opposite. We have formed the habit of looking to our own comfort and convenience, leaving others to mind their own business.

Why are non-Muslim Nations making progress

Bear it in mind that Almighty Allah has, in His wisdom, planned the affairs of this world on the principle of cause and effect. Following this divine principle, the non-Muslims began to work hard and reap the benefit of their labour according to the divine law of nature. They have no share in the blessings of the Hereafter because of their disbelief, yet by following the principles and etiquettes taught by the Prophet of Allah Muhammad ﷺ, they have made themselves entitled to the blessings of success and progress in this world. Being Muslims and believers we feel jealous of them for their success and progress in this world, but we do not compare our ways of dealings with theirs. These non-Muslims do not tell lies in business, nor do they betray trusts, nor are they lovers of ease and comfort. They work hard with honesty and self-sacrifice and reap the fruits of their labour according to Allah's dispensation. The Muslims have given up these manly traits of conduct and have confined Deen only to the four walls of the mosques and Madrasahs (religious schools). We have excluded from Deen other walks of life. In this way we have suffered a double loss - remoteness from Deen as well as disgrace and humility in the worldly life. In spite of the fact that the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us all the principles and formulas effective in attaining success in matters relating to this world as well as to the Hereafter. If we find ourselves backwards and disgraced, the fault is our own. This chain of discussion started from the rule of etiquette "not to eat two dates together", but how many important principles have emerged out of this simple rule of etiquette!

May Almighty Allah help us see things in their right perspectives - Aameen.

It is against Sunnah to take food, while supporting one's back against something

عن ابی جحیفة رضی الله عنه قال: قال رسول الله علیه وسلم : انی لااکل متکئا

(صحیح بخاری، کتاب الاطعمة، باب الاکل متکئا، حدیث نمبر ۵۳۹۸)

Hazrat Abu Juhaifah رضی الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: I do not take food while supporting my back against something.

In another narrative Hazrat Anas رضی الله عنه has said:

رأیت رسول الله صلی الله علیه وسلم جالسا مقعیا یأ کل تمرا

(صحیح مسلم، کتاب الاشربة، باب استحباب تواضع الاکل، حدیث نمبر ۲۰۴۴)

"I saw the Holy Prophet ﷺ eating dates, in squatting position.

It is an act of Sunnah to eat in squatting position

Some misunderstanding prevails among the people about the pose of sitting, while taking food. It is necessary to clarify the position. In the light of the Ahadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, the best posture of sitting considered 'Mustahab' (desirable) is the posture should ensure respect for the food as well as modesty. It should not be indicative of arrogance and pride. The common notion prevalent among the people that the Holy Prophet ﷺ used to eat in squatting position is not correct. I could not come across any narrative to prove such a notion. The posture described in the preceeding Hadith of Hazrat Anas رضی اللہ عنہ means that, sitting on the ground, the Holy Prophet ﷺ had placed both his knees standing erect in the front. The Hadith does not suggest squatting position. It is however, quite correct that his posture of sitting, while taking food, indicated modesty and total absence of any vestiges of pride, arrogance or haughtiness. Instead, it indicated complete "servitude" (عبدیت).

The best posture for eating

A Companion رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that once he called upon the Holy Prophet ﷺ and saw that he ﷺ was taking food like a slave. What the Ulama have concluded from the collection of Ahadith is that a man should eat while squatting on the knees. This posture ensures modesty as well as respect for the food and it checks gluttony. A man sitting at ease with the legs spread wide is likely to eat more. The saintly elders have stated that sitting with one leg erected and the other spread on the ground is also regarded as a desirable posture ensuring modesty. In this posture there are benefits of this world as well as of the Hereafter.

It is also lawful to eat, while sitting cross-legged

While taking food, it is also lawful to sit cross-legged. It involves no sin but it is not as near to modesty as to other two postures mentioned above. It is much better to form a habit to eat, sitting in the above-mentioned two postures. However, if anyone feels some inconvenience he may eat sitting cross-legged. It is wrong to say, as some people allege, that it is unlawful to eat sitting in this posture. After all, the first two postures are preferable, as they allow for better respect for the food and more modesty.

To use tables and chairs for dining

To take food sitting round dining tables and on chairs is also lawful and it involves no sin. Taking food, sitting on the ground is nearer to the Prophet's Sunnah and ensures reward for following the Sunnah style. Sitting on the ground for taking food is much more preferable as already emphasized, but it must be noted that using dining tables and chairs is quite lawful and it involves no sin.

It is an act of Sunnah to eat, sitting on the ground

The Holy Prophet ﷺ used to take food, sitting on the ground for two reasons. Firstly, in those days the people led simple lives and the use of table and chairs was not in vogue. So, they used to sit on the ground. Secondly, to eat, sitting on the ground ensures greater modesty and deeper respect for the food eaten. You may experiment it for yourself that the state of the heart, while eating sitting round dining tables and on chairs and that eating, while sitting on the ground are widely different from each other. Taking food, while sitting on the ground ensures more modesty, humbleness, meekness and submissiveness. This advantage is not available in taking food, while sititng round the dining tables and on chairs. If by chance a man has to take food, sitting round a dining tabel, this is quite lawful. It is, therefore, wrong to condemn this way of taking food as unlawful and sinful.

Provided this Sunnah is not ridiculed

I have mentioned just now that it is nearer to the Sunnah much better and entitled to more recompense to take food, sitting on the ground. This is, however, subject to the condition that action on this Sunnah is not made a laughing stock. If it is feared that sitting on the ground to take food may be laughed at, then one should not insist. Once while taking his class, my respected father one day told us a story saying:

One day I and some of my friends went to Delhi from Deoband. There we went to a hotel to take food. Two of us refused to eat on the dining table as it was against the Sunnah. They therefore, decided to take food in the hotel sitting on the ground. My father stopped them from this act and advised them to take food, sitting round the dining tables and on the chairs like the rest of the party. They seemed to be adamant in their decision. My father explained to them that this act of their would expose the Sunnah of the Prophet ﷺ to ridicule which was a very heinous sin. Moreover, this sin may sometimes take man to the boundary of Kufr (infidelity).

An incident full of morals

On this occasion my respected father told them another story. There was a very pious saint, known as Sulaiman ʿAmash. He was a teacher of Imam Abu Hanifah رحمة الله عليه All the books of Ahadith are full of his narratives. The Arabic word اعمش (A ʿmash) means blear eyed. The eyes of a blear-eyed man become dazzled on account of light. A student came to him to study who was اعرج i.e. lame. He was a student who always remained attached to his A ʿmash teacher and accompanied him wherever he went. When both passed through the market the people ridiculed the two by remarking: "Look at the blear-eyed teacher and the lame student." The Imam A ʿmash رحمة الله عليه one day forbade his lame student to accompany him, because the people made fun of both of them. The student replied:

مالنا نوجرو يأ ثمون

We should not mind their jokes, because we receive reward and they earn sins.

Imam Aʿmash رحمة الله عليه replied saying:

نسلم ويسلمون خير من ان نوجرويأ ثمون

They and we both should become safe from sinning is much better than that we earn reward and they earn sins by our present practice. The best policy is that in future you should not accompany me to the market.

Do not mind being ridiculed at such times!

If people ridicule you for avoiding a sinful act, never mind their ridicule. You should remember that it is not lawful to commit a sin to avoid people's ridicule and derision. Similarly, it is not lawful to give up an obligatory or compulsory duty lest the people should make fun of you. However, if you have to choose between something which is only lawful and permissible and something which is superior and preferable, there is no harm in accepting what is only lawful and permissible and in rejecting what is superior and preferable, if thereby you can save people from committing sins.

Do not use dining tables and chairs for eating unnecessarily

Once Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه was compelled by circumstances to take food sitting round a dining table and chairs. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه admitted that eating on table and chair was not unlawful, yet it had some similarity to the mode of eating adopted by the English infidels. In order to avoid this similarity Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه ate his food on the Table placing his legs on the chair. In this way he eliminated the possibility of similarity to the English style of eating.

Anyway, it is quite lawful to take food sitting round dining tables and chairs. There is no sin involved in it. It should, however, be noted that the nearer a man's actions are to the Sunnah, the greater will be the blessing in the actions and the reward for them. It is not good to make it a regular habit to eat sitting round dining tables and chairs unnecessarily. It is better to eat sitting on the ground as far as possible. The dining table and chair may be used for this purpose only in very compelling circumstances. One must take care not to support his back against something while eating. He should stoop the body forward. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has declared it a style of the arrogant to take food while supporting the back against something. This style must be avoided.

To take food, sitting on a cot

It is lawful to take food on a cot; it is better than eating, sitting round a table and on a chair. That style of eating is better in which the food and the man eating that food are on the same level, than the style in which the food is at a higher level.

The best style is to eat food sitting on the ground. It ensures more modesty, greater reward and it is nearer to the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

May Allah take us nearer to the Sunnah of His Prophet ﷺ - Aameen!

To indulge in conversation during meals

A wrong belief is prevalent among the people that it is not lawful to indulge in conversation, while taking food. This has no basis in the Shari'ah. It is quite lawful to talk during eating, if necessary. This is proved from the Ahadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has, however, suggested that the conversation during eating should be light and not on topics requiring serious thinking. The food also has a right that it should be taken with due attention and regard. Occasional light discourses of a recreative nature are quite lawful.

It is lawful to wipe the hands with something after eating

عن ابن عباس رضى الله عنهما قال: قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم: اذا اكل احد كم طعاما فلايمسح اصابعه حتى يلعقها او يلعقها.

(صحيح بخارى، كتاب الاطعمة، باب لعق الاصابع ومصها، حديث نمبر ٥٤٥٦)

Hazrat Abdullah bin Abbas رضى الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: When anyone of you has taken food, he should not clean his fingers unless he has licked them himself or has got them licked by someone else.

The Ulama have said that two principles are deducible from this Hadith and it states two rules of etiquette. The first is that after taking food it is lawful to wipe the hands with a piece of cloth or tissue paper in case water is not available or is available but cannot be used on account of some disease. It is, however, much better to wash the hands with water after licking the fingers.

It is an act of Sunnah to lick the fingers after eating

The second principle which is the main objective of narrating this Hadith is that the fingers should be licked before washing or wiping the hands. This was the sacred practice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ himself that after eating he ﷺ used to lick his fingers, so as to take in the small particles of food sticking to them. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has disclosed the wisdom of this practice in another Hadith, saying: You do not know which part of the food contains the blessing. It is possible that Almighty Allah may have endowed with blessing these last particles of the food sticking to the fingers which may not be found in the rest of the food. So do not waste this part of the food, thinking that its worthless.

What is this (blessing)

The world of today which is drowned deep in materialism is hankering after material things from morning till evening. It has lost the ability to peep into what lies beyond the stratum of this materialism. That is why the people do not understand what is "Barkat" or blessing. You should know that "Barkat" or blessing is such a comprehensive word which includes the prosperity and success of the world as well as of the Hereafter. This blessing is a gift of Allah which you may have seen in your life several times. Sometimes man collects countless resources to acquire someting, yet he fails to receive any benefit from them. For example, you may have collected in your house all the means of comforts and luxuries, most modern and costly furniture along with numerous servants and attendants, yet you cannot sleep at night. This means that there is no blessing (Barkat) in these possessions and pomp and show. Are these resources in themselves an objective and an end ? They are only a means to some end and that is comfort and peace. They have failed to provide this comfort and peace, because these are a gift from Allah. You can have comfort and peace only when Allah bestows them upon you and not otherwise. So, we come to the whole truth that the only and exclusive source of peace, ease and comfort is Allah's grant and nothing else.

Material resoruces are not peace and comfort

Let everyone make a survey of the resources he possessed about forty years ago and those which he is possessing now. Surely the result of the survey shall disclose to you that a considerable increase has taken place in the resoruces during these years. They have now a better house with better furniture and amenities. Yes, but have they acquired more peace and comfort? If not, then it means that Almighty Allah has not granted the owner "Barkat" (blessing) through these costly properties and goods. It is said that such and such things contain blessings. This means that the benefit expected from these things is being received. Conversely, the things are devoid of "Barkat", if the benefit expected from them is not received.

Peace and comforts are gifts from Allah

Note carefully that comfort, peace and ease cannot be purchased from the market with money. They are exclusively Allah's gifts which He bestows upon whomsoever He wills. On account of the mercy and benevolence of Allah people having little money and worldly resources enjoying more peace, comforts and ease than those who possess more worldly wealth and resources.

For example, there is a millionaire possessing all the worldly resources, factories, cars, fancy furniture, servants and attendants and all kinds of delicacies of food. He cannot, however, enjoy any of these, because he is suffering from indigestion. This is called absence of "Barakat" or divine blessing.

Now, look at the other side of the picture. There is a poor labourer who could earn only one hundred rupees after hard labour. He purchased coarse food from hotel and ate it. In this way he satisfied his genuine hunger. He found full enjoyment from his coarse and rough food. Then he lay down on his broken wooden cot and fell into deep and sweet sleep which he enjoyed for about eight peaceful hours. Thus, this poor labourer enjoyed the taste of the food he ate and the peace of deep sleep, except that he has no pomp and show around him. It is a convincing illustration of "Barkat" placed by Allah in little cheap articles, not traceable in precious articles of luxuries.

What is the meaning of "Barkat" in food?

Look! The food you are eating is not an end in itself. It is a means to generate energy in the body, appeasing hunger, affording pleasure for the palate, etc. All these advantages can be obtained from food only when Almighty Allah is pleased to grant them. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned in this Hadith that, may be, the last remnants of the food sticking to the fingers may have the divine "Barkat" and the main part of the food may be devoid of it. The main part of the food which you ate, being devoid of "Barkat", was not absorbed by the body and failed to generate the energy that was expected from it.

The influence of food on the inner self of man

Whatever has been discussed in the foregoing pages belongs to externally palpable effects of food. People whom Allah has granted inner insight can look into things much farther and deeper. They can easily find out by the light of their spiritual intuition which foods have salubrious effect on the emotions and thoughts of man and which darken the inner soul of man leading to the birth of dirty thoughts and urging him to commit sins. Some foods are so full of blessings (برکت) that they please and elate the inner personality of man and provide nourishment to the soul which induces him to do good deeds. We, however, do not perceive this fine difference between one food and another and thier enlightening or darkening effects. During these days of material race we have become blind to the real qualities and inner properties of things.

An incident illustrating the influence of food

Probably this incident relates to Hazrat Maulana Muhammad Yaqoob Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه who was the Rector of Darul-uloom, Deoband (U.P. India) and a teacher of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه. Once a man invited the Sheikh to dinner. He رحمة الله عليه went to the place of invitation and began eating. After putting only one morsel into his mouth he realized that the income of the man who had invited him was not lawful. He atonce left the food and came back. He said that he felt for about two months the darkness of the one morsel he had swallowed. He felt during these two months an urge to commit sins. The experience related by the Sheikh appears to us to be incredible, because our chests are filled with darkness. Take the example of a white-sheet of cloth full of spots. If one more spot is added it will make no difference. On the other hand even if a small spot is put somehow on a spotless white cloth sheet, it can be easily seen from a distance. Such is the similitude of the hearts of saintly men. So it is not at all surprising that Hazrat Maulana Muhammad Yaqoob Nanotawi رحمة الله عليه instantly felt the adverse effect of the unlawful morsel which created in his pure heart an urge to commit sins. This was due to the darkness spread by that unlawful morsel. There is something which is called inner "Barkat" by virtue of which man develops in him spiritual integrity and ameliorates his conduct, character and thoughts.

We are caught in the mire of materialism

Today we are caught in the mire of materialism and are hankering after money, worldly comforts and luxuries and show. As a result the inner essence of everything has gone out of our minds and talks about these matters appear to be alien to us. We neither understand the meaning of "Barkat", nor do we attach any importance to it. If someone says that Rupees one thousand will be paid for eating food in this way we shall hurry to do that but if it is promised that eating in such and such style contains "Barkat" or blessings we shall pay no attention to this promise, because we do not know what is "Barkat".

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has guided us through his Ahadith to the sources of "Barkat" and has also warned us against the ways which have no "Barkat". We cannot understand nor can we attain "Barkat" unless we follow sincerely the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. In this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has laid emphasis on licking the fingers after taking food because the small particles of food sticking to the fingers may have "Barkat" in them.

Is it against the rules of etiquette to lick the fingers?

We are living today in an age of fashions. The people have invented for themselves new rules of etiquette. If they are taking food on a dining-cloth along with others, they consider it a violation of etiquette to lick their fingers to clean them of the traces of curry sticking to them. They do not lick their fingers for fear of being dubbed as ill-mannered and un-civilized.

Good manners and civilized behaviour lie in following the Sunnah

Remember that good manners and civilized behaviour consist in following the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. What the Holy Prophet ﷺ has defined as mannerliness is acceptable as good etiquette and not that which this fashion -ridden modern society has invented. These fashions are changing from day to day and have no stability. Something which is in fashion today may go out of fahsion tomorrow.

It is unmannerliness to take food, while standing

Now it has become a fashion to take food in standing posture. A man holds the plate with one hand and eats with the otehr hand. Bread, curry, salad and all other items are dumped in the same plate. When the guests approach the dining tabels there is a competition among them to snatch the foods and fill their plates in quantities which they cannot eat. Nobody objects to this way of eating, although in the past this style of eating was condemned as being out of etiquette and unmannerly. The change of fashion is deplorable. The human style of eating is to eat while sitting comfortably.

Do not be a slave to fashion

So do not be a slave to fashion, because fashion is changing from day to day. It is not at all reliable. Reliable is the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ which guides us to "Barkat". The Sunnah way of eating is a source of "Barkat" In this world as well as in the Hereafter. If you unfortunately give up this blessed way of living you will expose yourself to anxieties, worries and failures. There will be darkness instead of light in your heart. In order to reap "Barkat" you must lick your fingers after eating as emphasized in this Hadith.

It is an act of Sunnah to eat with three fingers

It was a regular habit of the Holy Prophet ﷺ to take food with three fingers, i.e. the thumb, the index fingers and the middle finger. He generally picked up the morsel with these three fingers. The ulama have pointed out that one reason for this habit was that in those days the meal used to be very simple; there were not many items on the dining-cloth, as is today. The second reason is that the morsels taken up with three fingers are small and easy to digest. Another reason is that it is not expressive of greed as are large morsels of food. Small morsels picked up with three fingers are expressive of contentment. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ generally used only three fingers in eating, although, in rare cases he has employed four fingers also. It occurs in certain narratives that once he ﷺ used all the five fingers in taking food. Thereby he ﷺ has taught his Ummah that it is also lawful to take food with four and five fingers.(Sahih Muslim.... chap. eating Hadith No: 2031)

Observance of an oder in licking the fingers

Look at the love and concern of the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, that they have preserved and left behind for our convenience every movement of the Prophet ﷺ of Allah. They رضی اللہ عنہم have, thus, infromed us of the order in which he ﷺ used to lick his fingers. The order was firstly the middle finger then the Index finger and in the last the thumb. When the Companions رضی اللہ عنہم met and sat with one another, they talked about the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and induced one another to folow the Sunnah. There is, however, no sin in not licking the fingers, except that the man loses the much deserved Barkat.

How long will you fear being laughed at?

You may think that if you lick the fingers after eating, the people will laugh at and dub you as uncivilized and ill-mannered. Remember that you cannot stop the people from laughing at you, you have to ignore them and take a firm resolve to follow the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ at all costs. It is this weakness and shyness on our part that today we find ourselves totally transformed into the western way of life, culture and dress. Has this aping earned for you any respect in the eyes of the westerner? No, even today they look down upon you and do their best to harm you. Why is it so? It is, because you have given up the blessed path of the Sunnah to please your western masters. Despite that they consider you to be outmoded, fundamentalists, conservatives and retrogressive.

These taunts are the legacy of the Prophets علیہم السلام

You must make a final resolve to ignore the ridicules and taunts of the people in order to follow the Sunnah of the Prophet of Allah. It is an old habit of the people to laugh at those who follow the true path. What to say of you, do you not know that the Prophets of Allah had to face the same taunts and jokes from their people? The Qur'an says:

ما نراك اتبعك الا الذين هم اراذلنا بادى الرأى (سورة هود:٢٧)

(The polytheists said): We see that only the mean and depressed among us follow you who have no power to think (11:27)

If you are believers and followers of the Prophets of Allah you must remember that these taunts and ridicules are also among the legacies you have inherited from them. Face these pinching taunts with courage and welcome them with open hearts. Remember that unless you pluck up courage and ignore these taunts, you cannot escape them, as the unbelievers will not stop from laughing at you. An urdu poet has very nicely expressed this idea in a couplet:

ہنسے جانے سے جب تک تم ڈرو گے
زمانہ تم پر ہنستا ہی رہے گا

This means: The people of the world will not refrain from laughing at you as long as you are afraid of their laughter.

Do not care for what the world is saying about you, but care for what the Holy Prophet ﷺ has exhorted you to do vide his sacred Sunnah. Try to follow the Sunnah and you shall soon see how honour, prosperity and success are attracted towards you.

The announcement of a Great Glad Tidings for following the Sunnah

As a recompense for following the Sunnah Allah has announced the greatest of glad tidings in the Holy Qur'an:

قل ان كنتم تحبون الله فاتبعونى يحببكم الله (آل عمران:٣١)

(Say, O Muhammad !) If you love Allah follow me: Allah will love you, and forgive you your sins. (3:31)

The verse means to suggest that it is not in your power to love Allah as He should be loved, but Almighty Allah will Himself love you if you act upon the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Hazrat Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say that a man becomes the beloved of Allah at the time he is following the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It is an act of Sunnah to recite:

اللهم ان اعوذبك من الخبث والخبائث before entering the latrine and enter it by putting first one's left leg. The moment you put your left leg in the latrine in compliance with the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ you become a beloved of Allah.

Allah will make you His beloved

Similarly, when you are licking your fingers after eating, as this is a Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, you become a beloved of Allah. What have you to do with the people, when the Creator and Master of all is loving you? when He appreciates this act of yours why should you worry about others and what they think of your actions? You should, therefore, try to make the Sunnah a part of your life without caring the jokes and taunts of the people.

People say that it is very difficult to follow Deen in these times. It is not the times but we ourselves who have created these imaginary difficulties. Just consider, who is standing in your way and what hindrance do you experience in your ease and comfort or what loss of wealth and property do you incur in licking the fingers after eating? Who Knows that by following a small Sunnah Allah may bestow upon you a great reward? May Allah help us to follow the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ Aameen!

It is lawful to have the fingers licked by others

This Hadith offers another advantage by the words. The Ulama have stated that sometimes a man is not able to lick his own fingers on account of some handicap. In such a situation he may have his fingers likced by someone else, say, a child, a cat or a bird. The intention should be to prevent Allah's sustenance from being wasted.

To lick the plate after eating food

عن جابر رضى الله عنه ان رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم امربلعق الاصابع والصحفة، وقال: انكم لا تدرون فى اى طعامكم البركة (صحيح مسلم، كتاب الاشربة، باب استحباب لعق الاصابع، حديث نمبر ٢٠٣٣)

Hazrat Jabir رضى الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ has commanded (the Ummah) to lick the fingers and the plate, saying: You do not know which part of your food contains "Barkat" (Blessings). Thus, the command requires that the fingers as well as the plate both should be licked. To avoid wastage of food only as much food should be taken in the plate as one can easily eat. By chance if some food in the plate which you cannot eat, leave it in the plate neat and clean on one side of the plate, so that it may be eaten by another person without feeling any disgust. A wrong impression prevails among the people that the food taken in the plate must be eaten in full by the person concerned. This is wrong. The Shari'ah hs not imposed any such compulsion.

The spoon should be licked

Sometimes men take their food with spoons and forks. How can such men follow the Sunnah of licking the fingers? In such a situation they should lick the spoons to secure the "Barkat" of the food sticking to the spoon. Some Ulama have said that this too shall, God willing, secure the "Barkat" of licking the fingers.

The morsel which drops down from the hand should be picked up cleaned and eaten

وعن جابر رضى الله عنه ان رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم قال: اذا وقعت لقمة احد كم فليأ خذ ها فليمط ماكان بهامن اذى وليأ كلها، ولا يدعها للشيطان، ولا يمسح يده بالمنديل حتى يلعق اصابعه، فانه لا يدرى فى اى طعامه البركة (صحيح مسلم، كتاب الاشربة، باب استحباب لعق الاصابع، حديث نمبر ٢٠٣٣)

Hazrat Jabir رضى الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: If anybody's morsel drops down from his hand, he should pick it up clean it of any dirt or dust that may have stuck to it and then eat it, instead of leaving it for Satan. He should also not wipe his hand with a handkerchief, unless he has licked his fingers. This is because he does not know which part of the food contains "Barkat"

This Hadith teaches us the Islamic etiquette that if a morsel or any other eatable article drops down it should be picked up, cleaned and eaten, unless it has become too much soiled in dirt to be eaten. Some people feel ashamed to do this but this is not proper. The advice given by the Holy Prophet ﷺ in the Hadith ensures due respect for Allah's sustenance and for availaing the "Barkat" contained in it. The same reason for fearing people's taunts and jeering is at work here also. The incident related below will be helpful in understanding the importance of this Hadith.

An incident concerning Hazrat Huzaifah bin Yaman رضی اللہ عنہ

The Hazrat Huzaifah bin Yaman رضی اللہ عنہ was one of the most devoted Companions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He the was known as being a confident of the Prophet ﷺ. At the time when the Muslims attacked Khosran's Empire of Iran, Iran was a world Super Power with a most advanced and sophisticated civilization. The other great power was the Roman Empire but Iran was superior to it in many respects, particularly of its advanced and highly devel. ped culture and civilization. When Iran was invaded the Emperor of Iran, Khosran, invited the Muslims to a reconciliatory negotiation. Hazrat Huzaifah and Hazrat Rub'ee bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہم accepted the invitation.

We shall not give up our dress

When Hazrat Huzaifah and Hazrat Rub'ee bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہم proceeded for the negotiation and were entering Khosran's Palace, they were putting on their simple Arabic dress which might possibly have become dirty during the journey. Seeing them in that condition, the gate-keeper stopped them, objected to their poor clothes and offered them gowns to put on for appearing before the Royal Court. Hazrat Rub'ee bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہ said to the gate-keeper if it was compulsory to wear this gown they were not prepared to attend the Emperor's court. They would meet the Emperor in the dress they were wearing or would go back without meeting him.

You have seen the sword, now see the arm also that will wield it

The gate-keeper sent words to the court authoriteis telling them that strange men had arrived who were not accepting the gowns offered to them to wear for attending the court. In the meantime Hazrat Rub'ee bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہ was re-arranging the scraps of cloth with which the broken part of the sword had been unrapped. The gate-keeper wanted to see the sword closely. It was given to him. When he examined it he said tauntingly: Are you going to conquer Iran with this sword ? Hazrat Rub'ee bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہ replied: so far you have seen only the sword; you have not yet seen the arm that will wield it. The gate-keeper desired to see the arm also. Hazrat Rub'ee bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہ asked the gate-keeper to get the strongest shield available there to ward off the stroke of his sword. Then a steel shield was brought and a man held it before Hazrat Rub'ee bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہ struck the shield with his sword with such might that the shield was cut in two. All present were stunned to see that scene. The gate-keeper then sent words to the court that the new-comer had cut the strongest shield in two. Then they were called in.

Should I give up the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ for the sake of these fools?

When they went in, food was served to welcome them and they started eating it. While eating, a morsel dropped down from his hand. There is a Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that on such occasion the morsel should be picked up, cleaned and eaten as a mark of respect for Allah's sustenance and to save it from being wasted. Hazrat Huzaifah رضی اللہ عنہ remembered this Hadith and held down his hand to pick up the fallen morsel. A man sitting by his side hinted to him not to do that in the court of an Empire that was regarded as the Super-power of that age. That action would degrade them in their eyes. The occasion was, therefore, not appropriate to follow that Sunnah. Hazrat Huzaifah رضی اللہ عنہ replied saying:

اترك سنة رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم لهؤلاء الحمقى؟

"Should I give up the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ for the sake of these fools? I cannot give up the Sunnah, whatever these infidels thought of us or how contemptuously they laughed at us. So he picked up the morsel, cleaned it and ate it.

These are the conquerors of Iran

It was the custom of Khosran's court that, while he was sitting on his throne, the rest were standing in their respective places. Hazrat Rub'ee bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہ told Khosran that they followed the teachings of the Holy Prophet Muhammad ﷺ who had forbidden that, one man should be sitting and the rest standing before him as is the custom in his court. They were, therefore, not prepared to take part in the negotiations in that way. So, either they should be provided to sit down or the Emperor should also stand before them. Khosran felt his insult in meeting this demand. He refused to talk to them and ordered that they should be sent back with a basket full of earth placed on their heads. Hazrat Rub'ee bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہ placed that basket on his head. While leaving the court, he رضی اللہ عنہ said: O Khosran! Rememebr that you have bestowed upon us the earth (i.e. land) of Iran. The Iranians were very superstitious people who took this event as an ill omen. Khosran, therefore, sent some of his men to overtake them and get back the basket of earth. They could not find Hazrat Rub'ee bin 'Amir رضی اللہ عنہ who quickly escaped with the basket of Iran's earth.

The Pride of Khosran was levelled with the dust

Now consider a bit! Did they attain any honour by their pride or are we attaining any honour today by renouncing the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ? It is the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم who attained honour by eating the fallen morsels in compliance with the Sunnah and turned to disgrace the pride of the arrogant Emperor of Iran Khosran. The Holy Prophet ﷺ had already said in a Hadith:

اذا هلك كسرى فلا كسرى بعده

After this Khosran has perished there will be no Khosran again.

The Hadith proved true cent percent and Khosran's name was effaced forever. We must, therefore, strictly follow the Sunnah of licking the fingers after eating and eating a fallen morsel after picking it up and cleaning it.

It is not lawful to give up a Sunnah for fear of being ridiculed

I have already mentioned that it is lawful to ignore a Sunnah if it is feared that some careless and the so called advanced Muslims will reidcule the followers of that Sunnah and involve themselves in infidelity and apostacy by this ridiculing. It is lawful to suspend on such an occasion action on this Sunnah. For example, it is nearer to Sunnah to take food sitting on the ground. If you are taking food in a hotel or a restraurant furnished with dining tables and chairs, you should not insist on taking food there on the ground, in compliance with the Sunnah. This may lead to ridicule the Sunnah. In such a situation it is better to ignore the Sunnah and take food, sitting round dining tables and chairs as a matter of expedience.

This concession holds good only in such situations in which it is lawful to abandon this Sunnah. It cannot be abandoned for fear of being ridiculed or laughed at, where it is neither lawful nor permissible to abandon it under an injunction of the Shari'ah. Again, there is a difference between the Muslims and the unbeleivers in this matter. There is a possibility that by ridiculing a Sunnah a Muslim may lose his Eeman (Faith). As regards the unbelievers, they are already deprived of Eeman and it makes no difference if they laugh at the Muslims for following this Sunnah.

What to do, if a guest arrives at the time of taking food?

وعن جابر رضى الله عنه قال: سمعت رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم يقول: طعام الواحد يكفى الاثنين، وطعام الاثنين يكفى الاربعة، وطعام الاربعة يكفى الثمانية (صحيح مسلم، كتاب الاشربة، باب فضيلة المواساة فى الطعام. حديث نمبر ٢٠٥٩)

Hazrat Jabir رضى الله عنه has narrated that he heard the Holy Prophet ﷺ saying: One man's food is sufficient for two, and two men's food is sufficient for four and four men's food is sufficient for eight men. (Sahih Muslim)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has advised in this Hadith, saying: If you are taking food, and a guest or a needy person suddenly arrives, do not turn him away out of fear that one man's food will not suffice for the new comer. He ﷺ has assured that one man's food will be sufficient for the other man also. Therefore, share your food with him and Almighty Allah shall create blessing in the food that is available. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has also explained in the Hadith that one man's food becomes quite sufficient for two, two men's for four and four men's for eight men.

Do not turn away a beggar with a menace

A strange custom has developed among us that we regard as our guest only that person who is on an equal footing with us or is a friend or a relation of ours equal to us in status. If a helpless, poor man arrives none accepts him as his guest, but he is regarded as a beggar. In fact, he too is a guest sent to you by Allah. As a Muslim it is your responsibility to welcome this man also as a God-sent guest and share your food with him, if you are taking your food. If a beggar calls on you at this time, it is not good to turn him away dejected. Give him something, then let him go. Care should be taken in all circumstances not to turn a beggar away with a scolding. Allah has said in the Holy Qur'an:

واما السائل فلا تنهر (سورة الضحى)

Do not, therefore, turn away the beggar. (93:10)

When the Holy Qur'an itself is warning us against turning away a beggar, we should be careful not to let such an occasion arise. This is to avoid harmful and dangerous repurcussions.

An incident full of morals

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has related in his printed sermons the story of a very rich man. Once he was going to take food with his wife. The food was nicely cooked and he sat at the dining-cloth with a great desire and fondness. In the meantime a beggar called at the door. He felt offended at the arrival of the beggar and turned him away with a stern scolding and contempt. Sometimes a man's action attracts Alah's wrath. After sometime enmity developed between the couple which ultimately led to divorce. The divorced wife passed the period of her 'Iddah' (the prescribed period of waiting) with her parents and after its expiry married another rich man. One day she was taking food with her new husband when a beggar knocked at the door. The wife told the husband that a sad event had happend with her in the past, so she must give something to the beggar to ward off Allah's wrath. The husband agreed to the proposal. When she went out she saw to her great surprise that the beggar was her first divorced husband. Thereafter she related to her present husband the old story in detail.

This second husband told his wife that he had to relate a still more surprising story. He told his wife that the beggar who had called at the door of the wife's first husband was he (the second husband) himself.

Take warning, O, men! see how Almighty Allah transferred the wealth of the first husband to the second one and the latter's poverty to the former.

May Almighty Allah by His mercy protect us all from bad times, Aameen!

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has sought refuge with Allah from such ups and downs:

اللهم انی اعوذبك من الحور بعد الكور

Anyway, try to avoid scolding a beggar, as far as possible. Sometimes occasions do arise when it becomes necessary to scold a beggar. the Fuqaha (Jurists) have allowed to scold beggars on rare occasions. It is, however, much better to get rid of a beggar by giving him something.

This Hadith has a second meaning. Do not make the quantity of food you eat fixed and unalterable. In times of need you should be prepared to reduce the quantity you eat. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has stated that one, two and four men's food becomes sufficient for two, four and eight men respectively.

The advice of Hazrat Mujaddid Alf Sani رحمة الله عليه

Most acts of Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ concerning the etiquette of taking food have been discussed in the foregoing pages. All that is wanted is that we should resolve firmly to act upn them from today. By acting upon these minor items of the Prophet's Sunnah you will receive the spiritual light and other wonderful benefits which Allah has palced in following the Sunnah.

What Mujaddid Alf Sani رحمة الله عليه has said in this behalf deserves to be noted with rapt attention. He رحمة الله عليه has said:

Almighty Allah taught me all the external courses of knowledge and granted me perfection in them. Then it occurred to me that I should also know what the respected Sufis (mystics) say and what knowledge they have with them. I, therefore, turned to them and acquired knowledge from them. The respected Sufis have four orders of Tasaw-wuf (Mysticism), i.e. the Suharwardiyah, the Qadriyah, the Chistiyah and Naqashbandiyah. I wanted to know what knowledge every one of these, imparted of its disciples. I joined everyone of these, learnt and practised their disciplines and went through all their usual exertions and exercises. As a result, Almighty Allah bestowed upon me such a status that the Holy Prophet ﷺ himself put on my body the robe of honour. Thereafter, Almighty Allah raised me up to such an elevated station that if I disclose its reality, the Ulama of the external knowledge will issue against me their rulings of Kufr (infidelity), and the Ulama of the internal knowledge issue their ruling of Zandaqah (Heresy). Even so, Almighty Allah has granted me, by His mercy, all these spiritual ranks. Now I address to Allah a prayer. He will-God willing - receive salvation who joins me in this Du á by uttering "Aameen".

O Allah, help me to act upon the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ-Aameen.

O Allah, let me live on the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ - Aameen.

O Allah, let me die on the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ - Aameen.

Act upon the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

We have gone far enough in our survey of these topics. At the end we come to the conclusion that if we want to acquire good, we can acquire it only by following the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ and again what Hazrat Mujaddid Alf Sani رحمة الله عليه has said: I have come to this conclusion after traversing all these places and you will arrive on it the very first day that you can acquire your heart's desire only by following the Sunnah and, not otherwise. So resolve firmly just today to act upon all the Sunnahs of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. This will give you light, peace and a happy life. The happiness of life does not lie in disobedience and sins. Inquire about the enjoyments of life from those who have moulded their lives on the pattern of the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

Hazrat Sufyan Sauri رحمة الله عليه has said that if the Kings of the world come to know the enjoyment and pleasures of life which Almighty Allah has bestowed upon us, they will wage a war against us in order to snatch from us our privilege. Anyone can achieve this honour and advantge of acting upon the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Just by this easy formula of elixir and see the result.

May Allah help us all to act upon the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ - Aameen!

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi
Date : 6th August, 1993.

ETIQUETTES OF DRINKIG

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيد نا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيراكثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم، بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

عن انس رضى الله عنه ان رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم كان يتنفس فى الشراب ثلاثا يعنى يتنفس خارج الاناء (مسلم كتاب الاشربة باب كراهة التنفس فى نفس الاناء)

وعن ابن عباس رضى الله عنهما قال قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم لاتشربوا واحدا كشرب البعير ولكن اشربوا مثنى وثلات وسموا اذا انتم شربتم وا حمد وا اذا انتم رفعتم (ترمذى، كتاب الاشربة، باب

ماجاء فی النفس فی الاناء)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and seek His forgiveness and we believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our souls and from the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom He guides and there is none to guide him whom He lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god but Allah the One who has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, and our authority and our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah have mercy on him, his household and his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and bless them and salute them all in great abundance.

The first equiette of drinking water

The Ahadith mentioned so far dealt with the etiquettes of taking meals. The Ahadith being mentioned today deal mostly with the etiquettes of drinking water. The first of these was narrated by Hazrat Anas رضی اللہ عنہ who said: The Holy Prophet ﷺ used to drink water or any other beverage in three breaths and that during drinking he ﷺ breathed after taking the pot away from his mouth.

The other Hadith was narrated by Hazrat Abdullah bin Abbas رضی اللہ عنہ He has reported that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: If you have to drink anything, do not drink it all at once, (in one breath) like a camel but drink it in two or three breaths. Begin drinking with Allah's name and praise Him after taking off the pot.

My father Hazrat Mufti Muhmmad Shafi Sahib رحمۃ

اللہ علیہ has compiled a small treatise, titled "The virtues of (Bismillah) and the rules about it. It is a very comprehensive writing having enlightening directions about drinking anything. In this treatise my respected father رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has advised us to think how and wherefrom the water comes to us.

Miracle of the Divine water-supply system

Almighty Allah has made the oceans a reservoir for water. He had made the huge quantity of water so stored up saltish. If the water was made sweet it would become putridified after sometime. It is on account of these sea-salts deposited in the sea-water, that the water remains fresh and pure. How could man get even this salt-water from the far off seas? To solve this difficulty Allah raises the monsoon clouds from the surface of the seas, so miraculously that they absorb in their bodies the sea-water leaving the salts in the sea. Thus, the clouds rise up laden only with sweet, potable water. Then in His infinite wisdom

Almighty Allah did not rain down the entire world's requirement of water in one instalment, asking men to store up this huge quantity with them. This was only impossible, as men could not procure such a huge reservoir for this purpose. All-compassionate Allah has Himself solved this difficulty also. He has said in the Holy Qur'an :

فَاَسْكَنّٰهُ فِی الْاَرْضِ (سورۃ المؤمنون:۱۸)

That is : We sent down from the sky water in a measure, then we stored it up in the earth.

(23:18)

In storing the water in this way under the earth, Allah first sent the rains on the high mountains and stored water there in the form of ice-blocks. Melting slowly and slowly, the water reaches the plains through rivers and rivulets. From there it is taken to fields where it is required for irrigation. This is not all. Some volume of water sinks down into the bottom of the earth running through subterranean canals from which it is raised up to the surface of the earth through wells and other mechanical devices. Praise to Allah! how wonderfully He has stored the water in a huge underground reservoir and has provided a supply-line to enable His servants and creatures to obtain their requirements almost free of charge. It was not possible for the most sophisticated and advanced technology of artificial hydraulic engineering to provide such an unfailing water-supply system. Now think; after passing through so many stages a glass of water has reached you? This is why you are being advised to pronounce the words Bismillah (بسم الله) before drinking water.

The entire Kingdom is hardly worth a glass of water

Caliph Haroon Rasheed was once wandering in a forest on a hunting spree. By chance he lost his way. He had also no food with him. While wandering hither and thither, he became very thirsty. At last he came across a hut and asked the dweller for a glass of water. The man provided water to the Caliph. When the Caliph held the glass to drink the water, the man requested him to wait for a moment. He addressed the Caliph, saying: What price would you pay for this glass of water, if the water was not available free of charge and your thirst had the same severity? The Caliph said as it was the question of saving life he would purchase it for the half of his Kingdom.

Hearing this answer the man allowed the Caliph to drink the water and the Caliph drank it. The man then asked Caliph, saying: If the water you have drunk just now is blocked up in your body and you become unable to urinate what would you spend for its remedy? The Caliph replied that the blockade of the urine was a more serious and fatal malady. He would offer the remaining half of the Kingdom to get rid of the malady. After hearing this reply the man said: The price of one glass of water is your entire Kingdom. Have you ever considered how many glasses of water you drink from morning till evening and what a great blessing is this water!

The command that you should drink water after pronouncing the words بسم الله (Bismillah) is to make you realize this great blessing of Almighty Allah. In addition, it is a form of worship deserving of a reward to pronounce this sacred name of Allah.

Cool water is a great blessing

Hazrat Haji Imdadullah Sahib رحمة الله عليه once asked his disciple, Hazrat Thanawi, saying: O Ashraf Ali, whenever you feel thirsty, always drink cool water, so that every pore of your body may feel grateful to Almighty Allah. When a believer satisfies his thirst with cool water, he is sure to feel grateful to Allah spontaneously. That is why cool water was one of the favourite objects of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

We do not find any narrative to show that the Holy Prophet ﷺ had a special choice for any food. He ﷺ was, however, fond of cool water. There was a well named Ghars at a distance of two miles from Madinah which was noted for its cool water. Arrangements were made to provide water for the Holy Prophet ﷺ from that well. He ﷺ had also left a will that after death the water of that well should be used for giving bath to his ﷺ sacred body. The ruins of this well can still be seen, although it is now a dry well. The Holy Prophet ﷺ was fond of cool water, because it induces man to express gratitude to Allah.

Water should be drunk in three breaths

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us in these Ahadith the etiquettes of drinking water. One of them is that a man should drink water in three breaths. The Ulama have pointed out that drinking in three breaths is better and nearer to the Sunnah, but it is also lawful to drink water in two and four breaths. It is, however, not appropriate to drink it in one breath. It is also injurious medically to do so. Any way, the Holy Prophet ﷺ has forbidden to drink water in this way. The Ulama, however, agree that it has not been declared to be a sin to drink water in one breath; it is only a violation of the Sunnah and it is undesirable.

The different capacities and positions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

In fact, the Holy Prophet ﷺ has different capacities and positions in relation to his ﷺ Ummah. In his capacity as a Messenger of Allah, he ﷺ was entrusted with conveying to the people the message of Allah - Islam. If he ﷺ has forbidden something in his capacity as a Messenger that thing will become unlawful (Haram). Another capacity of him is that of a kind guide. If he ﷺ has forbidden his Ummah from some action out of kindness and well-wishing, it only means that the action is not good nor profitable; it does not mean that it has been declared unlawful and a sin. If a man does an action in violation of such advice, he will not become a sinner. It should be borne in mind that not only will a person who bears in his heart some love for the Holy Prophet ﷺ give up all that has been declared unlawful but he ﷺ will also shun those acts which the Prophet of Allah ﷺ did not appreciate or approve.

Drink water and earn recompense

I have clarified above that it is neither unlawful nor a sin to drink water in one breath. It is, however, a fact that a true lover of the Holy Prophet ﷺ will not go near such acts which the Holy Prophet ﷺ did not like. It is, therefore, the bounden duty of a Muslim not to do, as far as possible acts which did not please the Holy Prophet ﷺ, even though such acts may not be sins. Why should then a man drink water only in one breath instead of the approved and desirable way of drinking in three breaths? This way of drinking is a Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ which will earn you spiritual light and blessings and Allah's love. Why should you then lose such invaluable gains which cost you nothing except a little care and attention?

The Distinctive mark of a Muslim

Every religion and community has some distinctive mark by which it is recognized. This way of drinking water in three breaths is one of the distinctive marks of a Muslim. In the past children were taught to drink water in three breaths. However, the values have changed now. The children are left unbridled to go the way they like. They are not checked if found violating the rules of Islamic etiquettes. Some lovers of the Holy Prophet ﷺ have been seen drinking water in three breaths even if the quantity of the water was hardly sufficient for one breath.

While breathing, remove aside the glass from the mouth

عن ابي قتاده رضى الله عنه ان النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم نهى ان يتنفس فى الاناء (ترمذى، كتاب الاشربة، باب ماجاء فى كراهية التنفس فى الاناء)

Hazrat Abu Qatadah رضى الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ has forbidden to breathe into the pot.

This means that, if one has to breathe while drinking water one should breathe after removing the pot or the glass away from the mouth. It has been narrated in another Hadith that a man called upon the Holy Prophet ﷺ and complained to him ﷺ that while drinking water he had to breathe many times. Then he asked how he should breathe. The Holy Prophet ﷺ advised him that while breathing, he should remove the glass away from his mouth. It is against the Sunnah and out of etqiuette to breathe into and blow over the glass, while drinking water.

Only one Sunnah act may earn the reward of many acts of Sunnah

Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to tell us that to act upon the Sunnah carries reward so generously that they may be compared to a windfall. If you make the intention to comply with all the acts of Sunnah involved in a single act, you shall reap the benefits of all these Sunnah acts. For example, when going to drink water, make the intention to drink it in three breaths, to remove the glass away from your mouth on each breath and so on. Here you reap the reward for two Sunnah acts only in one act, along with the spiritual lights and blessigns attached therewith. By acting upon the Sunnah a man becomes a beloved of Allah. So you to shall receive this divine love. Why should one not earn such benefits and blessings by bestowing a little care and attention on these easy acts of the Sunnah?

Distribute thigns from the right side

عن انس رضى الله عنه ان رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم اتى بلبن قد شيب بماء، وعن يمينه اعرابى، وعن يساره ابوبكر رضى الله عنه، فشرب، ثم اعطى الاعرابى. وقال: الايمن فلا يمن (ترمذى، كتاب الاشربة، باب ماجاء ان الايمن احق بالشراب)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned in this Hadith another important rule of etiquette which is a distinctive feature of the Muslim Ummah. This rule is also being widely ignored in our society. The rule has been stated in the Hadith with reference to an event. A man brought to the Holy Prophet ﷺ a mixture of milk and water. (This mixing of water with the milk was not by way of adulteration. Milk diluted with water was considered among the Arabs more nourishing and digestive). The Holy Prophet ﷺ drank some portion of the milk and desired to distribute the rest among those present there. On the Prophet's right side was a bedouin and on his left side was Hazrat Abu Bakr رضى الله عنه. The Holy Prophet ﷺ passed on the left-over milk to the bedouin who was sitting on the right side, ignoring Hazrat Abu Bakr رضى الله عنه He ﷺ at the same time said: الايمن فلا يمن i.e. distribution should begin from the right side.

The status of Hazrat Siddiq Akbar رضى الله عنه

The Holy Prophet ﷺ attached so much importance to this order of distribution that he ﷺ ignored in this matter a godly personality like Hazrat Siddiq Akbar رضى الله عنه - the highest and most honoured personality in the sight of Allah on the surface of the earth, after the Prophets of Allah عليهم السلام. Hazrat Mujaddid Alf Sani رحمة الله عليه has given an idea of the status of Hazrat Siddiq رضى الله عنه by an example. He رحمة الله عليه has said: If a Prophet of Allah stands before a mirror, then the personality standing before the mirror is the Propeht عليه السلام and his image reflected inside the mirror is the "Siddiq". Thus a "Siddiq" is a complete reflection and copy of Prophethood. He رضى الله عنه is a vicegerent of the Prophet عليه السلام in the true sense of the word. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضى الله عنه once said about Hazrat Siddiq رضى الله عنه : If Hazrat Siddiq Akbar رضى الله عنه exchanges with me all the good deeds of my entire lifetime for one act of his of passing that one night with the Holy Prophet ﷺ in the cave of "Saur", while migrating to Madinah Munaw-warah, the bargain will be cheap for him (i.e. Hazrat Umar Farooq رضى الله عنه . Notwithstanding this highly elevated station of Hazrat Siddiq Akbar رضى الله عنه , the Holy Prophet ﷺ passed on the cup of milk left-over to the bedouin sitting on the right side, ignoring Hazrat Siddiq Akbar رضى الله عنه . This was in compliance with the principle, "الايمن فالايمن" because at the time of the distribution of something the man on the right has a preference.

The right side contains blessings

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us in this Hadith that at the time of distributing something, e.g., food, water, dates, etc., the distribution should be commenced from the right side. The Arabic word "يمين" means the right side and this word also means "blessed." Beginning work from the right side brings blessings. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has commanded that we should eat, drink, put on shoes with the right hand or from the right side. When walking alongside a road, we should also take to the right side. Following this principle the Holy Prophet ﷺ combed his hair from the right side, then from the left. To begin, things from the right side is an act of Sunnah and a means of earning blessings.

Importance of the right side

There is another Hadith dealing with the same topic.

Once some beverage was presented to the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He ﷺ drank a portion of it, leaving the rest of it. At that time a young boy was sitting on the right side of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. On the left were people grown up in age and senior in learning and experience. Feeling regard for the people sitting on the left on account of their age and accomplishments, the Holy Prophet ﷺ asked the young boy to forgo his right to take the drink first in favour of his seniors sitting on the left. The boy was intelligent. He replied, saying: O Prophet of Allah, if there had been something else, I would surely have preferred these respectable men to myself. Here the question is of sharing a drink which has remained after your drinking. So I request you to favour me with it, if it is my right. The Holy Prophet ﷺ, therefore, handed over the drink to the boy. This young boy was Hazrat Abdullah bin 'Abbas رضى الله عنه . (Muslim the Book of Drink, etc...)

Note the great importance the Holy Prophet ﷺ attached to the right side by favouring a young boy with the drink, although many elders and seniors were sitting on the left side, and even the Prophet ﷺ himself desired that the elder persons should be favoured with the gift of the drink. He ﷺ however, did not violate the principle of starting things from the right side. Everyday we find occasions on which we have to distribute things, gifts, e.g., food, sweets. On these occasions, if we follow the principle of commencing distribution from the right side with the intention of complying with the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, we shall soon realize the blessings and lights emanating from this act of Sunnah.

Drinking water by mouth from a big water-container

عن ابی سعید الخدری رضی الله عنه، قال:نهی رسول الله صلی الله علیه وسلم عن اختناث الاسقیه، یعنی ان تکسر افواهها ویشرب منها (مسلم، کتاب الاشربة، باب آداب الطعام والشراب)

In this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned another rule of etiquette regarding drinking water. Hazrat Abu Saeed Khudri رضی الله عنه has narrated: The Holy Prophet ﷺ has prohibited drinking water by putting the mouth on the openings of big water containers like pitchers and water skin-bags, commonly in use in those days.

Two reasons for this prohibition

The learned men have mentioned two reaosns for prohibiting this way of drinking. Firstly, such containers hold large quantities of water. This water may possibly contain something harmful and may have become injurious for health. This happens when some animal (rats etc) falls into such containers and renders the water poisonous, or polluted from the Shara'ee point.

Secondly, they have pointed out that when a man drinks water direct by mouth from such a large water containers quantity of the water may get down into his stomach and damage his normal water absorption system leading to serious repurcussions.

The kindness of the Holy Prophet ﷺ to his Ummah

As I have already mentioned, the prohibitions which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has imposed on his Ummah are of two kinds:

(i) Those which are unlawful and involve sin and

(ii) Those which are neither unlawful nor a sin, yet they are indcedent and contrary to the rules of etiquette.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has sometimes himself done such things only to show that they are not sins, yet being against the rules of etiquette, they should better be avoided. Thus, it occurs in the Ahadith that on rare occasiosn the Holy Prophet ﷺ has himself drunk water by putting his sacred mouth on the openings of skin water-bags. The Ulama have explained that this prohibition applies to all big water containers like skin-bags, large earthen pots and other metallic cans. There may, of course, be some exceptions to this rule which are dealt with in the next Hadith.

Drinking water with the mouth placed on the opening of skin Water bags

وعن ام ثابت کبشة بنت ثابت، اخت حسان بن ثابت رضی الله عنه وعنها قالت: دخل علی رسول الله صلی الله علیه وسلم، فشرب من فی قربة معلقة قائما، فقمت الی فیها، فقطعته (ترمذی، کتاب الاشربة، باب ماجاء فی عن اختناث الاسقیة)

Hazrat Kabshah, daughter of Hazrat Sabit and a sister of Hazrat Hassan bin Sabit رضی الله عنه has narrated, saying: Once the Holy Prophet ﷺ called at our house. A skin water-bag was hanging in the house and he ﷺ stood up and drank water from it with his sacred mouth. By this act he ﷺ showed that it was not unlawful to drink water by putting the mouth direct on to the water-bag. The prohibition was imposed only as a matter of kindness and advice. Hazrat Kabshah رضی اللہ عنہا has narrated that after, the Holy Prophet ﷺ had left her house, she cut off the part of the bag on which he ﷺ had placed his mouth and preserved that piece of skin as a sacred relic of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

How sacred becomes the spot that comes in contact with the Prophet's sacred lips!

All his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم had a burning love for the Holy Prophet ﷺ, ever ready to sacrifice their lives for the beloved Prophet ﷺ. An example of this ardent love and regard is in Hazrat Kabshah رضی اللہ عنہا who took care to preserve the piece of the skin-bag which the sacred lips of the Holy Prophet ﷺ had touched. She cut off that rare piece from the bag and preserved it in her house as an invaluable relic from the Prophet of Allah ﷺ.

This hair became sacred

Hazrat Abu Makhdoorah رضی اللہ عنہ is a companion whom the Holy Prophet ﷺ had appointed as a Muazzin in the Holy city of Makkah. He embraced Islam at a very tender age. The Holy Prophet ﷺ placed his sacred hand on the boy's head, as people generally do with small boys to show their affection. Hazrat Abu Makhdoorah رضی اللہ عنہ said that he never in his lifetime shaved the hair on that part of his head that had come in direct contact with the sacred hand of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. He used to mention proudly that the hair on that spot had become sacred by coming in contact with the sacred hand of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

The nature of sacred Relics

These incidents provide a proof that there is no objection to preserving as sacred relics some thing belonging or related to the Holy Prophet ﷺ or for that mater, to a Companion رضی اللہ عنہ, Tabi'een or Wali or a saint. Nowadays people have become extremists about this issue. Some men become irritated to see some relic and regard this attitude as a form of shirk, while there are others who regard these relics as everything. The truth lies in between the two extremes. One should not place so much faith in these relics as to touch the boundary of shirk. Likewise, one should not disregard these sacred relics, so as to become disrespectful to them. We should realize that Allah showers down His mercy on relics that come from His-beloved servants. You have just now seen the regard of Hazrat Abu Kabshah رضی اللہ عنہا for the piece of the skin-bag touched by the sacred lips of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

The sacred Dirhams

Once the Holy Prophet ﷺ offered to Hazrat Jabir رضی اللہ عنہ a few silver Dirhams. Hazrat Jabir رضی اللہ عنہ did not spend these Dirhams the whole of his lifetime, but preserved them as precious and sacred relics from the Prophet of Allah. He left a will for his successors and sons asking them not to spend those Dirhams but preserve them in the house as sacred relics of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. As such, those Dirhams contained to be handed down from generation to generation in his family for a long time. They were however, lost during some disturbance.

The sacred Sweat of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

Hazrat Umme Sulaim, رضی اللہ عنہا a lady Companion, has related that she once saw the Holy Prophet ﷺ sleeping at a place during the severely hot summer of the Arab land. Sweat was flowing down his sacred body. She, therefore, collected and preserved some of the Prophet's sweat in a phial. That sweat was, she admitted more fragnant than musk and saffron. She preserved the phial of the Prophet's sweat in her house and mixed a few drops of it with the scent in her use.

The sacred Hair of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

A lady Companion رضی اللہ عنہا got from somewhere a hair of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. She said that she preserved that hair by putting it in a phial filled with water. Whenever anyone of her tribe fell sick, she would put a drop of the water in the phial with her into some water and give that water to the sick person as a medicne. By virtue of the Prophet's hair Allah brought cure to the patient.

This is how the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم treated with regard and respect the sacred relics of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

The Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and the sacred Relics

Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضی اللہ عنہ has said that there are many places beteen Makkah Mukarramah and Madinah Munawwarh at which the Holy Prophet ﷺ halted during his journeys between these cities. Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضی اللہ عنہ used to get down at each of these places to offer two Rak'ats of Nafl before proceeding ahead.

In this way the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم took great care in collecting and preserving the sacred relics of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. However, these Companions رضی اللہ عنہم were also well aware of the reality of these relics. They did not indulge in exaggeration nor were they extremists in this regard. They did not regard these relics as a means of working miracles, bringing cure or solving difficulties. They never made these relics a cause of Shirk, as people do now.

The origin of Idolation

Idolatry took its origin in Arabia as a result of exaggeration in dealing with relics. The mother of Hazrat Ismael علیہ السلام, Hazrat Hajirah علیہ السلام stayed near the House of Allah in Makkah Mukarramah. Thereafter there was a battle between Bani Jarham and some other tribe. As a result of this battle the other tribe expelled the people of Bani Jarham from Makkah Mukarramah who were forced to migrate from there. While leaving Makkah Mukarramah, they took with them some soil, stone and the like to serve as relics and some other memorials of the House of Allah and the Holy city of Makkah. When they settled at another place, they protected and preserved these relics with great care and regard. With the passage of time, when none remained to guide them to the right path the later generations made out of these relics some idols which they began to worship as their gods. It is from this incident that Idol worship took its origin in Arabia.

Moderation is necessary in the matter of sacred Relics

If moderation is not maintained in the respect and regard paid to these relics, this gradually leads to shirk (Idolatry). It is, therefore, imperative to be cautious in this matter. We should neither treat them with so much regard as to touch the boundary of Shirk nor take them too lightly and carelessly so as to slight and disgrace them.

The right course is that we should preserve them with due regard for the sake of virtue and blessing which they may contain, because they are related to some spiritual guide or saint. Maulana Jami رحمة الله عليه ha said:

I have regard even for a dog belonging to the city of Madinah Munaw-warah, because that dog is related to the Propeht's city. All these emotions emanate from true love. Anything having the slightest connection with the belief attracts respect and regard. Allah grants recompense to him who has respect for the connection that exists between a Wali and Allah, provided he maintains the due limits and does not transgress them. Despite all this people go to the extremes in these matters and suffer from distress and inconvenience.

May Almighty Allah help us in maintaining moderation. Aameen!

It is an act of sunnah to drink water while sitting

عن انس رضى الله عنه عن النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم انه نهى ان يشرب الرجل قائما (مسلم، كتاب الاشربة، باب كراهية الشرب قائما)

Hazrat Anas رضى الله عنه has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ has prohibited drinking water while standing. The learned have advised in compliance with this Hadith that as far as possible people should not drink water while standing. It was the general practice of the Holy Prophet ﷺ to drink water while sitting.

It is also lawful to drink water while standing

It should be borne in mind that when the Holy Prophet ﷺ prohibited something, even though that is not a sin, he ﷺ himself sometimes ignored that prohibition. This was to show that the act prohibited was not a sin. That is why there were occasions on which he ﷺ drank water, while standing. You have seen just now how the Holy Prophet ﷺ drank water from the skin-bag of Hazrat Kabshah رضى الله عنها, while standing and with his sacred mouth placed on the opening of the bag. The Ulama have, therefore, advised that there is no objection to drinking water standing when one cannot drink it while sitting. As demonstrated by the Holy Prophet ﷺ himself, this is neither unlawful nor a sin. Hazrat Nizal bin Sabrah رضى الله عنه has narrated that once Hazrat Ali رضى الله عنه went to the Rahbah Gate (باب الرحبه) in Kufah and there he drank water while standing and said:

انى رأيت رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم فعل كما رأيتمونى فعلت (صحيح بخارى، كتاب الاشربة، باب الشرب قائما)

That is: I saw the Holy Prophet ﷺ doing the same as you have seen me doing, that I drank water standing. (Bukhari).

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has, by his own action, shown that no sin is involved in this.

The excellence of drinking while sitting

The etiquette which the Holy Prophet ﷺ taught his Ummah, emphasized it and which he ﷺ himself followed the whole of his lifetime is that he drank water, while sitting as far as possible. This way of drinking water thus became one of the most important acts of his Sunnah. For the sake of compensation and reward and its blessings every Muslim should try to act upon it himself and teach others to do the same. The children, in particular, should be instructed to drink water while sitting, as there is no inconvenience in following this Sunnah. In addition, it is a means of earning divine reward and blessings. Why should we lose the virtues, lights and blessings of this Sunnah?

Form the habit of acting upon the Sunnah

Once Hazrat Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه related the following incident:

"Once I entered a mosque for prayer and was feeling thirsty. I took out water in a pot from the earthen jar provided in the mosque. According to my habit I sat down to drink the weter. A man who was standing nearby objected to this way of my drinking and told me that I could have as well drunk the water while standing. I told him that it was my habit to drink while sitting. The man retorted, saying that it ws a great virtue and honour to form the habit of something which is a Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The man was quite right. When a man is prone to form many habits he should try to form habits which are acts of the Sunnah and which are expected to earn for him great rewards and blessings from Almighty Allah.

The Idea of doing a good Deed is a "guest" from Allah

Hazrat Maulana Maseehullah Khan Sahib of Jalalabad رحمة الله عليه has said when an idea is born in the heart of doing some good deed, this idea in the terminology of the mystics is called "Warid" meaning a spontaneous urge. They say that the "idea" is in fact a guest sent by Allah which should be welcomed and honoured. For example, drinking of water while standing you are reminded suddenly that you should follow the Sunnah of drinking while sitting and then you sit down to drink. Now this "Warid" or the "Idea" will come to you again and again and urge you to follow many other acts of the Sunnah.

Thus, you will go on increasing your good deeds. On the other hand if you do not welcome this "divine guest" but turn it away you shall be a loser. For example, you are drinking water standing but you fail to correct yourself when you are reminded that you should drink while sitting, on the ground that thereby you are not commiting a sin. This act of yours is tantamount to turning away the "divine guest". When you repeat this apathy on your part the "Divine Guest" will naturally forsake you. This will result in the hardening of your heart. Instead of the "Idea" to do good deeds, "Ideas" to do bad deeds and commit sins will visit your heart.

The moral we draw from this discussion is that whenever an urge occurs in the heart to act upon the Sunnah the opportunity should be seized atonce and the urge should be satisfied by immediate actions. A little practice on this line will put you on the right tract of the Sunnah.

How to drink Zamzam water?

عن ابن عباس رضى الله عنهما قال: سقيت النبى صلى الله عليه وسلم من زمزم، فشرب وهو قايم. (صحيح بخارى كتاب الاشربه)

Hazrat Abdullah bin Abbas رضى الله عنه has narrated, saying: Once I offered Zamzam water to the Holy Prophet ﷺ to drink. He ﷺ drank the water, while standing.

Some Ulama think on the basis of this Hadith it is better and more virtuous to drink Zamzam water standing instead of sitting. It has, therefore, become a widely known belief that there are two kinds of water which should be drunk while standing - the Zamzam water and the water left after performing ablution (Wudu). This is because it is "Mustahab" (desirable) to drink the water left after ablution. There is, however, a class of Ulama who are of the opinion that it is better to drink both these kinds of water while sitting. They argue about the Hadith of Hazrat Abdullah bin Abbas رضی اللہ عنہ that the Holy Prophet ﷺ drank the Zamzam water because the well being crowded with men and surrounded with mire and mud on all sides, there was no place for the Holy Prophet ﷺ in the vicinity to drink while, sitting. Therefore, this Hadith does not make it a binding that Zamzam water should be drunk while standing, and that this way of drinking is better and more virtuous.

It is better and more virtuous to drink, while sitting, Zamzam and Wudu (Ablution) water

On the basis of a research carried out by him my respected father, Hazrat Maulana Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ came to the conclusion that it is better to drink both Zamzam as well Wudu water, while sitting. It is, however, lawful to drink these waters while standing like any other kind of water, when there is some handicap in drinking while sittting.

Taking food while standing

عن انس رضی اللہ عنہ ان النبی صلی اللہ علیہ وسلم انہ نھی ان یشرب الرجل قائما:قال قتادہ: فقلنا لانس: فالا کل؟ قال: ذلك اشرا واخبث (صحیح مسلم، کتاب الاشربۃ، باب کراھیۃ الشرب قائما)

Hazrat Anas رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated, saying: The Holy Prophet ﷺ has forbidden to drink water, while standing. Hazrat Qatadah رضی اللہ عنہ said to Hazrat Anas رضی اللہ عنہ : What about eating while standing ? The reply was : It is worse and more hateful. (Sahih Muslim).

In other words, to eat while standing is more hateful than to drink standing.

On the basis of this Hadith some Ulama have said that to drink while standing is only disgustful but to eat while standing is prohibited in the Shari'ah.

Avoid eating while standing

There are people who argue on the basis of a Hadith of Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضی اللہ عنہ that it is lawful to eat while standing. Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضی اللہ عنہ has said in this Hadith that during the time of the Holy Prophet ﷺ they ate while walking and drank water while standing. The people, therefore, ask why they are being forbidden to eat while standing when the Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم were free to do so.

You have just now heard the Hadith of Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضی اللہ عنہ , saying: that it is worse and more hateful to eat while standing. In other words it is unlawful to eat while standing. This Hadith refers to the meals eaten regularly two, or three times daily. The other Hadith of Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضی اللہ عنہ refers to small bits of eatables, like chocolates almonds and dates etc., which can be eaten while standing and walking. As for the regular meals dinners and lunches, it is totally unlawful to eat them while standing and walking. The system of eating while standing has become very popular in the feasts arranged now. This must be condemned and abolished, because this is not human. It is a beastly way of eating. My respected father described this way of eating as a form of 'grazing' and not as human eating; snatching the food from here and there. This is sheer incivility and also insulting to the guests. For God's sake give up this way of eating. Only a little care is needed to get rid of this beastly system.

Some people justify this by alleging that this ensures economy in expenditure. Only a small space is needed and the heavy cost of furniture is saved. This is meaningless. What about the costly chairs arranged in the marriage hall and the decorative costly lights? In addition, huge amounts are wasted on useless customs, the preparation of video films and so many other sinful practices. Where is the idea of economy? The fact remains that all this is due to the craze of a blind following of fashion and nothing else.

Only a little resolution and courage are needed. Resolve today that you shall entertain your guests with food on dining chairs and tables or on the ground furnished with clean sheets, irrespective of the costs involved. Once you have taken a firm decision to do away with this beastly way of eating and entertaining, Allah will help you in abolishing this inhuman style of feasting.

May Almighty Allah help us all in getting rid of this bad custom. Aameen!

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi
Date : 9th July, 1993.

ETIQUETTES OF INVITING GUESTS TO A FEAST

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه، ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيات اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيدنا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

عن ابى هريرة رضى الله عنه قال قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم اذا دعى اجد كم فليجب فان كان صائما فليصل وان كان مفطرا فليطعم

(ترمذى، كتاب الصوم، باب ماجاء فى اجابة الصائم الدعوة)

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and seek His forgiveness and believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our selves and from the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom He guides and there is none to guide him whom He lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god except Allah the One who has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, our authority, our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah have mercy on him, his household and his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and bless them and salute them all in great abundance.

It is the right of a Muslim to accept Invitation

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: When anyone of you is invited to a feast, he should accept the invitation. If he is fasting he should pray for the inviter by calling at his house. If he is not fasting he should go and dine with him.

In this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has emphasized that a Muslim's invitation should be accepted. He ﷺ has enjoined that to accept an invitation is the right of a Muslim. He ﷺ has said in another Hadith:

حق المسلم على المسلم خمس، ردالسلام، تشميت العاطس، اجابت الدعوة، اتباع الجنائز، وعيادة المريض (صحیح بخاری، کتاب الجنائز، باب الامرباتباع الجنائز)

This means: A Muslim has five rights due to him by another Muslim (i) to respond to سلام (salutation) (ii) to say "یرحمك اللہ" if anyone sneezes; (iii) to accept an invitation; (iv) to accompany a funeral; and (v) to call on a sick person to inquire after his health.

Thus the Holy Prophet ﷺ has granted a Muslim these five rights due to him by another Muslim. The acceptance of an invitation is one of them. He ﷺ has, therefore, emphasized that the invitation must be accepted.

The objective of accepting an invitation

An invitation should be accepted with the belief that it is from a brother who has invited his brother with affection. This affection should be acknowledged to please the inviter. To accept an invitation is an act of the Sunnah which carries recompense and reward from Allah. It is very bad that the act of acceptance should depend on the standard of the food which may be high or low. It should be accepted at any rate because the exclusive purpose is to please the inviting brother. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in another Hadith:

ولودعيت الى كراع لقبلت (صحیح بخاری، کتاب الهبة، باب القلیل من الهبة)

This means: I shall accept an invitation even if it is for eating a goat's leg.

In these days a feast of goat's trotter is regarded as a very nice and attractive dish but in the Prophet's days it was considered to be worthless. An invitation to a feast must be accepted with the intention of pleasing a brother. No distinction should be made between a rich and a poor inviter. On the contrary, it is better and more virtuous to accept the invitation of a poor man.

There is a spiritual light in a feast in which only boiled rice with Dal (curry of cereals) is served

I have heard this story many times from my respected father رحمۃ اللہ علیہ about a grass-cutter of Deoband (India) who earned a living by cutting and selling grass. He did not earn more than six pice a week. Being a single person he spent two pice on his food, two pice on charity and retained the remaining two pice as a saving. After every one or two months he entertained with this saving some saintly professors of the Darul-Uloom (university) of Deoband. The entertainment consisted only of boiled rice and Dal. My father told me that at that time Hazrat Maulana Muhammad Yaqoob Nanotawi Sahib رحمة الله عليه was the Rector of the University. He said that he anxiously waited the whole month for the entertainment of the grass-cutter. The reason was that the spiritual light and satisfaction which he received from that simple food could not be obtained from the best of rich dishes generally served in rich banquets.

The reality of a feast lies in the expression of "Affection"

The reality of inviting persons to a feast and of accepting the invitation lies in the expression of affection. It was the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that he ﷺ never turned down an invitation, however poor and lowly the inviter was. Sometimes he ﷺ walked miles to attend a feast. So the reality of an invitation lies in the fact that it should be issued with affection and sincerity and it should be accepted with the same feelings of affection and sincerity. Only then will a feast contain and radiate spiritual light and fetch to both the parties reward and recompense.

Invitation to feast or invitation to enmity

Today our feast and banquets are subjected to useless customs and formalities. To accept or reject an invitation to such feasts is a difficult matter. In either case, there are suspicions and complaints. That is why Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه said that an invitation to a feast should not lead to enmity. A feast should not be made a cause of inconvenience and distress. Some people issue invitations and insist on its acceptance without considering the difficulties and loss of time the acceptance and attendance may entail. This is no feast; it is a source of distress. If you are to gain someone's affection through arranging a feast, you should first think about providing comfort to the guest and avoiding inconvenience to him.

The best form of a Feast

Hakimul-Ummat, Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه used to say that there are three categories of feasts-viz., the best, the middle and the lowest. During the present conditions of the society, the best form of feast is to present some cash to the guest invited. This will cause no inconvenience to him and he will be free to spend the amount according to his need and choice. This way of arranging a feast is more comfortable and beneficial to the guest and free from any inconvenience to him.

The middle-category of a Feast

The seconed category of a feast consists in sending the food to the invited guest at his house. In such a case the guest has no alternative but to partake the food sent to him. He has been thereby saved from all sorts of inconveniences and discomforts as he was provided with the food at his own house.

The lowest category of a Feast

The third and lowest category of a feast consists in requesting the guest to call at your house to take the food. This is very inconvenient and expensive too. Nowadays people lead a busy life, live at long distances of thirty to forty miles. The acceptance of invitation to such a feast means spending at least two hours and fifty rupees for attending the feast. This is no feast, but an attempt to cause inconvenience and financial loss to the guest. It could be more convenient to the guest if cash was presented to him or the food sent to him at his house.

A strange way of arranging a Feast

Hazrat Maulana Muhammad Idris Kandehlawi رحمة الله عليه was one of my father's most intimate friends. He lived at Lahore. Once when he came to Karachi he also came to the Darul-Uloom Korangi, to see my respected father رحمة الله عليه. My father was highly pleased to see him. He visited the Darul-Uloom at about 10 (ten) a.m. When asked about his stay at Karachi, he said that he was staying at Agra colony and was due to go back to Lahore the next day. After having some conversation he was preparing to leave the Darul-Uloom my father رحمة الله عليه expressed his wish to invite him to a feast in his honour. At the same time my father said to him that it would be very inconvenient and troublesome for him to visit the Darul-Uloom again from such a long distance for partaking of the feast, specially when he was leaving for Lahore the next day. In lieu of the feast my father رحمة الله عليه presented to the honourbale guest a 100-rupee note an humble gift. Maulana Muhammad Idris Sahib رحمة الله عليه placed that note on his head, saying: This is a great blessing from you that I have been honoured by your feast without undergoing any inconvenience and discomforts. He then took leave to depart.

Affection demands that ease and comfort should be provided

This is an example of avoiding undue formality and providing comfort. If there had been some person other than the Mufti Sahib رحمة الله عليه he would have insisted on the guest to visit the host's house again for the feast. If there had been a guest other than Hazrat Maulana Idris Sahib رحمة الله عليه he would have rejected the 100 rupee note, saying: Am I hungry and a beggar that you are offering me money to spend it on food?

Bear it in mind that the first demand of affection is that ease and comfort should be provided for the person loved, liked and invited instead of causing inconvenience and distress. My elder brother Zaki Kaifi رحمة الله عليه used to compose very nice poetry. One of his beautiful couplets is as follows:

میرے محبوب میری ایسی وفا سے توبہ
جو تیرے دل کی کدورت کا سبب بن جائے

This means: O my beloved! I forsake such faith as may become a cause of displeasing your heart.

When my late brother recited this couplet I told him that thereby, he had dismissed all forms of 'Bid'ah' (innovation). All innovations take rise from this tendency of a man that he invents from his own mind new ways of showing faith and loyalty. He hardly thinks that this way of showing loyalty only creates displeasure in the beloved's heart.

It is an art to invite a guest to a feast

Any way, it is an art to arrange a feast and invite guests to it. The aim should be to provide comfort and ease, instead of inconvenience and distress. Secondly, the main aim of arranging feasts is to express affection and to meet the demands of this affection. This has nothing to do with customs. For example, feast, are arranged on the occasions of 'Aqiqa, or the third, tenth and fortieth days of someone's death. Remember, that these formal feasts have nothing to do with the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Indeed a feast is that which is arranged with an open heart without any condition and customs, whatsoever.

The foregoing observations are about arranging a feast. As regards the matter of accepting the invitation to a feast, the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said, that it is the right of a Muslim to accept the invitation of the inviter. However, the meaning of accepting an invitation is that the man accepting the invitation should have love and affection for the inviter. An invitation should not be accepted for the reason that its non-acceptance will cause dishonour and disgrace to him in his family circle. Acceptance of an invitation with this idea is not in compliance with the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It will be in conformity with the Sunnah only when an invitation is accepted with a desire that the acceptance will pelase the heart of the inviter.

The condition to accept an invitation to a Feast

The Shari'ah has imposed a condition on accepting an invitation to a feast. This acceptance will become an act of Sunnah only when this does not involve the guest invited in some sin. It is not an act of Sunnah to accept an invitation where major sins are being committed as generally happens in the functions held nowadays. It is written on the marriage invitation cards وليمه مسنونه (a feast according to the Sunnah). The people know that it is an act of Sunnah to arrange a Walimah (mariage feast), but they do not know how to make this feast according to the Sunnah. In such feasts there is a violation of the purdah system. There are mixed gatherings of both the sexes and major sins are freely committed.

How long shall you go on surrendering yourself to this situation?

Why is all this happening ? It is happening, because we are passively surrendering ourselves to the vices. This has resulted in the spreading of the sins in the society e.g disobedience, indulgence in prohibited acts and lewdness, etc. If on the occasions of such feasts some members of the family had refused to attend the feasts and gatherings such vices would not have spread so fast. If the people are advised not to participate in a mixed gathering of males and females, they say in reply that by so doing they shall be expelled from the family and the soceity. It is suggested that it is much better that a man gets expelled from the clan and the society for the sake of saving himself from displeasing Allah. A man inviting should also abide by your principles and preferences. If he does not do this it is none of your respnsibility to accept his invitation.

The guests invited should take a strong stand in this matter and tell the members of their families and their relatives in clear cut words that they shall not attend a feast in a mixed gathering of men and women. They shall attend a feast where there is a separate arrangement for men and women. They will find that after sometime the vice will be stopped, as it has not yet gone beyond control. The difficulty is that religious-minded people feel ashamed to take this stand, that for the fear the people will dub them as conservative, backwards, fundamentalists and extremists. As against this, those who take the path of faithlessness and unbridled freedom, invite the people without any hitch and hesitation to shamelessness and lewdness. This vice has gone so far that young girls have begun to dance before men. Despite all this people are taking part in such marriage parties. Think a bit for God sake how long will you drift in this flood and cooperate with the members of your family? If this trend continues for sometime more, it is not unlikely that the vices and curses of the western civilization will overpower our society. There must be a limit at which you must halt. It is, therefore, necessary that you should try to stop this flood of obscinity and absurdity. Therefore, resolve just now that you shall not participate in a function in which sins are committed and men and women sit and eat together. If you resist this ugly situation with courage and determination it is still possible to stop this flood of ever-increasing custom of shamelessness and lewdness.

The Purdah observing ladies become untouchable, in such mixed gatherings

On hearing these comments some hosts say that only a few purdah observing ladies attend these functions and separate arrangements can be made for them. Do you want to treat these ladies as utouchables? If a purdahless woman sits away from the men what does she lose? On the other hand, if a woman in purdah is compelled to appear without purdah before the male guests she spoils her religion. There is no difficulty in making separate arrangements for men and women. Only a little care and courage is needed to achieve this goal and eradicate the evil.

The injunction of the Sharee'ah to accept an invitation

The Islamic Sharee'ah enjoins that it is not lawful to attend a feast when it is known that some of the major sins will be committed there and there is a possibility that the person invited shall also be involved in these sins. It is, however, permissible to attend a feast in which there will be sin, but the guest will manage shoehow to keep himself aloof from those sins. This permission is applicable to persons belonging to the general public and not to those important persons whom people raise their eyes for guidance. This is an important principle of accepting an invitation, that the guest does not beocme involved in a sin by his acceptance of the invitation to the feast.

To abandon an optional fast for the sake of a Feast

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has also mentioned in the Hadith quoted in the beginning that if the guest who has been invited cannot partake of the food, because he is fasting he should pray for the host. The Jurists in the light of certain Ahadith, have gone to the extent that, if the man invited is observing an optional fast he has permission to break his fast and accept the invitation in order to please the host. He should compensate for that fast later on. If he does not feel inclined to break the fast, he should at least pray for the host.

An uninvited guest

عن ابی مسعود البدری رضی الله عنه، قال: دعا رجل النبی صلی الله علیه وسلم لطعام صنعه له خامس خمسة، فتبعهم رجل، فلما بلغ الباب قال النبی صلی الله علیه وسلم: ان هذا تبعنا فان شئت ان تأذن وان شئت رجع، قال: بل اذن له یا رسول الله (صحیح بخاری، کتاب الاطعمة، باب الرجل یدعی الی طعام فیقول: وهذا معی)

Hazrat Abu Masoodal-Badri رضی الله عنه has narrated that a man invited the Holy Prophet ﷺ to a feast along with four other persons with him ﷺ. Those were the days of simplicity, so when a man invited the Holy Prophet ﷺ he would permit him ﷺ to take with him three or four persons to share the feast. In the present case the host had invited five persons, including the Holy Prophet ﷺ. When the Holy Prophet ﷺ was going to the feast a sixth person joined these five. When the Holy Prophet ﷺ reached the door of the host he ﷺ informed him that a sixth person had followed him who had not been invited. If the host permitted him he would enter the door, otherwise he would go back. The host gladly allowed the uninvited person to enter the house and partake of the food.

That man is a thief and a plunderer

In this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us that when we are going to attend a feast and by chance an uninvited person follows us to the house of the host, it is our duty to inform the host about this uninvited person. If the host allows this uninvited person, only then he can attend the feast. It occurs in a Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ that the person who attends a feast without invitation enters the feast as a thief and leaves it as a plunderer.

Some rights of the Host

This teaching of the Holy Prophet ﷺ points out a very important principle which we have forgotten. We have impressed upon our minds that a guest has many rights due to him by his host, e.g.,due respect, provision of comfort and nice food, etc. In this Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught that just as there are rights due to a guest by his host in the same way there are rights due to the host by the guest. If the right due to a host that the guest should not take with him uninvited persons to burden the host, as is the habit of certain Pirs and Faqirs who do not attend a feast unless there is a platoon of disciples and attendants to accompany them to the venue of the feast. At the sudden appearance of such a crowd the host gets nervous and upset. How to accommodate so many unexpected arrivals? That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that an uninvited person enters a feast as a thief and gets out of it as a plunderer. There is, however, an exception, when the guest and the host are on very intimate and friendly terms the guest may take a few common friends with him, feeling that the host will be pleased with this addition. In case the addition is likely to cause the slightest inconvenience to the host his prior permission must be obtained.

The Host must be informed in advance

Likewise, it is a right due to the host that his guest must give him advance information about his visit. The guest should visit the host, so as to allow him sufficient time to arrange for his food conveniently. If a guest visits his host at an odd hour it will be difficult for the latter to arrange for the lodging and fooding of the guest. This is a right of the host.

A guest should not observe fast without the permission of the host

May our lives be sacrificed for the Holy Prophet ﷺ that he ﷺ has mentioned in a Hadith that it is not lawful for a guest to observe fast without telling his host that he is fasting. This is becausae the host will arrange for the guest's breakfast and dinner etc., and he does not know that the guest is fasting. if the guest tells him at a late hour about his fasting all this labour of the host will be lost, along with the amounts spent on food, etc. By his behaviour the guest has also caused him mental torture. Therefore, the guest as well as the host have both their respective rights.

The Guest must be present at the meal time

The host appoints a time for serving the food but a guest is absent at this time and the host is searching for him. He himself cannot take food alone without his guest. The Islamic etiquettes demand that if a guest is not inclined to take food or will be late for the meal time, he must inform the guest of his intention and programme, so that the host may be saved from the inconvenience of searching and waiting.

It is a major sin to cause distress to a host

Deen (Faith) is not confined only to prayers, fasting and rehearsing the various sacred words. These rules of etiquette also form part of Deen, which in the Islamic terminology are called Mu'ashrat (social living). It is seen with regret that even great religious persons who are very particular in the matter of their routine prayers, do not care for these rules of 'Mu'ashrat'. This carelessness involves them in sins. If, by ignoring these rules, you cause distress to your host, you incur the major sin of causing distress to a Muslim. You must be careful about it.

My respected father Maulana Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to say that to cause distress to a Muslim by one's words or acts is a major sin, like that of drinking wine, committing theft or adultery. Thus, if by any of his acts a guest causes distress to his host, he in fact causes distress to a Muslim and commits a major sin. All these points are included in the principle which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has very mercifully mentioned in the Hadith referred to earlier.

May Almighty Allah help us all in complying with these injunctions. Aameen!

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi
Date : 13th August, 1993.

ISLAMIC SHARA'EE (LEGAL) PRINCIPLES ABOUT DRESS

الحمد لله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره و نؤمن به و نتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسناومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له و نشهد ان لا اله الا الله وحده لاشريك له ونشهدان سيد نا و سندنا و نبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالىٰ عليه وعلى اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كثيرا

اما بعد

فاعوذ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم بسم الله الرحمٰن الرحيم

يٰبَنِيٓ اٰدَمَ قَدْ اَنْزَلْنَا عَلَيْكُمْ لِبَاسًا يُّوَارِيْ سَوْاٰتِكُمْ وَرِيْشًا ط وَلِبَاسُ التَّقْوٰى ذٰلِكَ خَيْرٌ ط (الاعراف:٢٦)

امنت بالله صدق الله مولانا العظيم، وصدق رسوله النبى الكريم، ونحن على ذالك من الشاهدين والشاكرين. والحمد لله رب العالمين.

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him and seek His help and seek His forgiveness and believe in Him and rely on Him. We seek refuge with Him from the evils of our souls and from the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom He guides and there is none to guide him whom He lets go astray. I bear witness that there is no god except Allah, the One and the only. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, and our authority and our Prophet and our Master, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Almighty Allah have mercy on him, his household and his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and may He bless them and salute them all in a great deal.

That is: O children of Adam! We have revealed to you raiment to conceal your shame and (have also revealed) splendid vesture, but the raiment of righteousness, that is better. (7:26)

Introduction

As I have already mentioned the Islamic teachigns encompass within its orbit every branch of life. It is concerned with every part of social living and social activities without any exception. Dress is also an important aspect of human life. That is why it finds a detailed account in the Holy Qur'an and the Sunnah.

The present day propaganda

Nowadays a propaganda campaign is being launched that Dress is something which is related to the specific conditions of every nation and community. It is, therefore, a matter of narrow-mindedness to involve the rules of the Sharee'ah therein and apply them in cases in which men prefer dresses in accordance with their choice and their environment. People are frequently heard saying that these Molvis have imposed conditions and restrictions on Deen which is something very easy and simple. Almighty Allah and His Prophet ﷺ did not prescribe these restrictions in Deen. These mullahs have imposed self-styled restrictions. Due to their short-sightedness they themselves have avoided many restrictions and are involving others.

Every type of dress has its specific impact

Bear in mind that the question of dress is not so simple, that a man may choose for him whatever style of dress he prefers without being affected in his Deen, his conduct and character, his life and his behaviour, by the dress he adopts. It is a fact admitted not only by the Sharee'ah but by the scientists as well as the Psychologists that the style of dress does have its impact on the behaviour, conduct and character of man. The dress is not only a few pieces of cloth sewn together. It is something which deeply affects the thinking, mentality and sentiments of man.

The effect of his gown on Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ

It has been narrated about Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ that once when he came to the Prophet's mosque to deliver a Khutbah (sermon) he was wearing a very magnificent gown. After having delivered the Khutbah when he went back home, he put off that gown with the resolution that he would not wear it again, because it created in him a sense of pride and superiority. The gown in itself was something neither prohibited nor unlawful. Those who have been granted by Almighty Allah crystal-clear hearts are able to realize the slightest of vice in their inner selves. This may be illustrated by the example of a piece of cloth full of dirty spots. If one more spot is added to it, it will make no noticeable difference. The example of our hearts is like the example of the spotted cloth, full of countless spots of sins. We do not, therefore, at all realize in our hearts the bad effects of the sins we commit from time to time. Contrary to this, the hearts of the righteous are like spotless cloth. If a spot appears on it, it is clearly visible. The incident of Hazrat Umar رضی اللہ عنہ demonstrates that the dress-style of man does have an impact on his conduct, character and trend of thought. One should, therefore, realize the importance of dress and obey the injunctions of the Sharee'ah about it.

Another propaganda of the present day

Remember that the injunctions of Deen are applicable equally to the soul and the body, the inside as well as the outside. The Qur'an says:

وَذَرُوْا ظَاهِرَ الْاِثْمِ وَبَاطِنَهٗ (سورۃ الانعام: ۱۲۰)

This means: Forsake the outwardness of the sin and the inwardness thereof. (6:120)

Almighty Allah has commanded His servants to give up the open as well as the hidden sins. Mind well that it is a deception of Satan to think that the inside of man is quite sound, notwithstanding the unsoundness of his outside. Remember that the outside becomes spoiled only when the inside is spoiled. The soundness of the outside depends on the soundness of the inside.

A beautiful example

One of our saints used to give an example to illustrate this point. When a fruit gets rotten in its inside the effect of this rottenness appears on its outside in the form of ugly spots. If the fruit is not rotten in its inside, the outside remains sound and sightly. Similarly, if the outside of a man is unsound, it is a sign that his inside is also unsound to a certain degree. It is therefore, not correct to claim that our inside is all right, no matter what is the condition of the outside.

Attention is paid to the betterment of the outside also in our worldly affairs

People take care to improve their inner as well as their outer appearance in the matters of their worldly affairs. It is a paradox to say that the btterment of the outside is not needed in the matter of "Deen". Take an example. While building a house, you have raised the structure with its covered walls and then the walls are plastered. The walls as well as its doors and windows and decorate them with paints to render its external apperance attractive. Now when the main structure which is the inside of the house is safe and sound what is the use of decorating and beautifying its exterior? In the matter of your house or your car you are not satisfied with the soundness of its inside but spend large amounts on decorating its outside. Why do you not apply the same principle in the matter of Deen about which you say that when its inside is safe and sound, there is nothing to worry about its outside condition.

This is a Satanic deception

The notion that it is not necessary to take care of the outside as long as the inside is all right is a Satanic deception. It is necessary to ameliorate the inside as well as the outside. The outside requiring amelioration conists of your "Dress", food, conduct and character in the society. Their soundness has a bearing upon the soundness of the inside which is the soul. Those who do not think on these lines have really no real understanding of Deen. If matters had been as these ignorant persons presume, the Holy Prophet ﷺ would not have issued so many injunctions about dress, as he ﷺ has done. In principle he ﷺ has issued his kind injunctions in matters in which people are likely to go astray. It is, therefore, necessary to hear and obey these valuable principles and teachings of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

The Sharee'ah has not specifically prescribed any dress

The Islamic Sharee'ah has been very moderate in the matter of dress-style. It has not prescribed any specific form and style to be adopted by all Muslims. It would be against Islam to disregard the prescribed pattern of dress. Being a Deen of nature, Islam does recognise that styles of dress worn by the people may differ from place to place, according to the conditions, climates, seasons, customs and the needs of different regions. Islam has, however, prescribed only some basic principles of dress which must be understood well and adhered to strictly.

Four basic principles of dress for Muslims

Mentioning the four basic principles of dress Almighty Allah has said in the Holy Qur'an:

يٰبَنِيْٓ اٰدَمَ قَدْ اَنْزَلْنَا عَلَيْكُمْ لِبَاسًا يُّوَارِيْ سَوْاٰتِكُمْ وَرِيْشًا ؕ وَلِبَاسُ التَّقْوٰى ذٰلِكَ خَيْرٌ ؕ (الاعراف:٢٦)

This means: O children of Adam! We have revealed to you raiment to conceal your shame and (have also revealed) splendid vesture, but the raiment of righteousness that is better. (7:26)

Almighty Allah has endowed these three sentences with a world of meanings.

The first basic principle of dress

The first basic principle as revealed in the verse is that the dress should conceal your hidden, private parts. The Arabic word سواة means that part of the body by showing or talking about which a man feels a sense of shame. (the concealable part) is meant here. Thus, the basic aim of dress is to conceal this سواة Allah has described some parts of men and women as سواة that which must be kept concealed from view. This concealable part in a man is what lies between the navel and the knees. It is not lawful to bare this part, except when it becomes unavoidable to bare it before a physician for medical treatment. As regards a woman her entire body is ستر (concealable), except the face and the hands up to the wrists. It is not lawful to open any part of this concealable part in a woman.

The basic aim of a dress is to cover the parts which the Sharee'ah has enjoined to be covered. A dress which does not meet this requirement is not recognized by the Sharee'ah as a dress. Indeed it is no dress at all.

Three defects in a dress

There are three aspects in which a dress does not fulfil the basic principle concerning "dress":-

i) It is so short that it leaves some of the concealable parts bared.

ii) The dress is large enough to cover two concealable parts, yet it is so and thin that the concealed parts are reflected throught it.

iii) The dress tight-fitting that the depressions and projections of the body can be easily viewed. This also violates the rules of covering the ستر.

It is, therefore, necessary to cover the body with such thick cloth as does not reflect the concealed parts. It should not be of tight-fitting but of loose-fitting to conceal fully the internal parts. The same three principles are applicable to the female dress also.

The present naked garments

The fashion of the present age has totally defeated the aim of dress. Today such half-naked garments have been introduced among men and women as do not ensure which parts of the body are covered and which are visible to the eyes. Such funny garments are not recognized by the Islamic Sharee'ah as dress. There are women who wear very fine and tight-fitting garments which reveal the depressions and projections of their bodies to others. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said about such women :-

كاسيات عاريات (صحيح مسلم، كتاب اللباس، باب النساء الكاسيات)

Those women will be naked even in their garments. (Sahih Muslim)

By wearing such garments the basic aim will not be fulfilled for which Almighty Allah has revealed dress. This trend has spread among women of today like an epidemic and shame and modesty have lost their meaning. Garments and dresses have been designed by professional designers which instead of concealing help to reeal the body. We should for God's sake realize this and ban such garments at least in our houses, as they violate these injuctions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

May Allah create, by His grace, this feeling among all of us. Aameen.

Women should conceal these limbs

Hardly a Friday passed on which our respected Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه did not say something on this topic to draw our attention to the importance of the matter. He used to insist upon us to do some thing to stop this scourage which has become a common fashion. Women are attending public meetings and functions with their heads, arms, chests and bellies bare to view. The injunctions about concealing the body lay down that it is not lawful for a man to open his concealable parts before another man. Similarly, it is unlawful for a woman to open her concealable parts before another woman. For example a woman cannot appear before another woman with her chest, belly, arms, etc. bare, far less her appearing in this half-naked condition before men. These limbs are among her concealable parts.

Harmful results of sins

Just attend a marriage party of these days and see for yourself what is happening there. In these functions women appear before men in half-naked dresses without any hitch, hesitation or shame. This is only a way of inviting Allah's curse and wrath by flagrantly flouting the commands of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. The disturbances, murders, thefts and dacoities we see around us every day are due to these sins and acts of disobedience. The Holy Qur'an has said:

وَمَآ اَصَابَكُمْ مِّنْ مُّصِيْبَةٍ فَبِمَا كَسَبَتْ اَيْدِيْكُمْ وَيَعْفُوْا عَنْ كَثِيْرٍ

(سورہ الشوری: ۳۰)

Whatever misfortune befalls you, it is due to what your (own) hands have earned. And He forgives much. (42: 30)

We, therefore, appeal to you earnestly to banish this scourage and sin at least from your houses.

The state of women during the age near the Day of Judgment

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has drawn in a Hadith such a vivid picture of the contemporary societies that we would have been at a loss to understand its meaning, if we had not seen the conditions with our own eyes. In those olden days it was not possible to visualise these conditions. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said: During the age near the Day of Judgment women will be naked, even though they will be putting on garments. The hair on their heads will be like camel humps. The modern fashion of our age has corroborated the predictions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It seems as though he ﷺ made this prediction after seeing these women. (Sahih Muslim).

Next he ﷺ said:

مميلات مائلات

Those women will attract others towards them by their gait, decorations, make-up.

They will come riding on thrones and get down at the doors of the mosques. The commentators of Ahadith were at a loss to interpret this Hadith. The conditiosn obtaining in our times have clarified the meaning of this Hadith that women will move about sitting on cars. The situations we are facing today are due to an open rebellion by the people against the injunctions of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

Those who are committing sins openly

It should be noted that there are two kinds of sins. In the first kind of sin man commits a sin secretly and not openly. Sometimes he feels ashamed at his sins and repents for them. In the second category man commits sins openly above board and with pride. This is a very dangerous matter. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith:

كل امتى معافى الا المجاهرين(صحيح بخارى، كتاب الادب، باب ستر المومنين على نفسه حديث نمبر ٦٠٦٩)

It is hoped that all the sinners in my Ummah shall be forgiven by the grace of Allah, either by repentance or by Allah's own mercy.

There are those who commit sins openly, feel proud of their sins and more than that regard their sins as good deeds. They are ready to defend themselves by arguments. They want to go with the age and do not want to displease the society. There is no hope, God-forbid, of forgiveness for such hardened sinners.

Relinqish the society

Just consider! Is it not a very good bargain that by relinquishing your society, you straighten your relations with Allah? How long will this society cooperate with you and for what? Note that after entering the grave there will be no companion except the good deeds you sent before hand from your life in the world. Your society will leave you alone at the grave. It will not come to your rescue in the grave. At such a critical juncture there will be none except your deeds to save you from the troment of Allah. About the horrors of that time Allah has said:

مَالَكُمْ مِّنْ دُوْنِ اللّٰهِ مِنْ وَّلِيٍّ وَّلَا نَصِيْرٍ (البقرہ: ١٠٧)

This means: .... and you have not, beside

Allah, any friend or helper. (2:107)

In other words on that hectic day there will be none to save you except Almighty Allah.

An event that is full of morals

In surah 37-Saffat of the Holy Qur'an there is an event relating to a person whom Allah will, by His mercy admit into Paradise and bestow upon him all the blessings of Paradise. At such an auspicious time he will remember a friend of him who used to incite him in the world to sins and bad deeds. He used to delude him by describing the conditions and demands of the society. This inmate of Paradise desired to see and find out the fate of his ill-advised friend. He, therefore, began to peep into the Hell to search for the latter. The Holy Qur'an says:

فَاطَّلَعَ فَرَاٰهُ فِيْ سَوَاۗءِ الْجَحِيْمِ ۝ قَالَ تَاللّٰهِ اِنْ كِدْتَّ لَتُرْدِيْنِ ۝ وَلَوْلَا نِعْمَةُ رَبِّيْ لَكُنْتُ مِنَ الْمُحْضَرِيْنَ (الصافات: ۵۵ تا ۵۷)

These verses mean:

Then he looked down and saw him in the depth of the Hell. He said: By Allah you had indeed almost ruined me. and had it not been for the favour of my Lord I too would have been among those brought forth (to doom). (37: 55-57).

Anyway, the affairs of this society appear to be very pleasant and attractive to those who have no Eeman (Faith) but those who have Eeman in Allah, the Last Day and the Day of Judgment should not be beguiled by the charms of the society. If you firmly beleive that one day you have to appear before your creater Allah, and render your accounts to Him, then you must turn to the commands of Allah and His Prophet ﷺ and put up, with a smiling face, with the taunts and jeerings of this society. Do not mind at all if the society dubs you as backward, outmoded and an extremists. So, take up courage and tell this society frankly that you are as the society describes you, yet you do not care at all for this errant and bewildered society and that under no circumstances you are prepared to take the path to Hell.

These taunts are a blessing for the Muslims

The Prophets of Allah علیهم السلام had also been subjected by the infidels to taunts. A man who wants to take the path of Deen has to tolerate these taunts. However, rememebr that you cannot succeed unless you declare these taunts to be a matter of pride for yourself. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a narrative:

اکثرواذ کر اللہ حتی یقولوا "مجنون" (مسند احمد ج۳ ص۶۸)

Indulge in Allah's remembrance so intensely that the people may take for a madman.

Do not follow the society blindly, but take the opposite direction and try to change the direction of the society's current. It is seen that people dub him as a madman who is honest and trustworthy in his work. They say that the man is crazy. Thus, those who refrain from taking or giving bribe, avoid interest-bearing transactions' and unlawful acts and obey the injunctions of Allah in the matter of dress deserve these taunting remarks. Note that such degrading titles from the society are glad tidings for you from the Holy Prophet ﷺ and a cause of pride too. This is the title which he ﷺ has himself conferred on you. You should, therefore, offer two Rak'ats of thanksgiving prayers to Allah and express joy on the day these titles are directed to you. Allah has in this way elevated you on this day to the high position which his Prophet ﷺ has appointed for a Mu'min (believer). So, there is nothing to fear and worry about. How nicely Maulana Zafar Ali Khan رحمة الله عليه has expressed this idea in a couplet:

توحید تو یہ ہے کہ خدا حشر میں کہہ دے
یہ بندہ دو عالم سے خفا میرے لئے ہے

Tauheed (Monotheism) is that on the Day Ressurrection Allah Himself declares. Look! This servant was angry with the two worlds for "My sake!"

If by turning your eyes from the entire world you establish firmly your relations with Allah it is not a bad and cheap bargain. This worldly life is too shortlived. The day you pass away from this transitory life to the everlasting life of the next world, you shall be given a warm reception. You shall see that on the Day of Judgment those who used to taunt and jeer at you in the world are weeping. How long will you go on cooperating with, and surrendering yourself to this society? How long will you follow it blindly? Just take courage and resolute firmly to eradicate nakedness and nudity from the society. May Allah help us all in this matter. Aameen!

Allah has mentioned the first principle concerning dress which is to conceal ستر (concealable parts of the body). A dress that does not meet this requirement is no dress; it is a form of nudity.

The second principle concerning dress

Almighty Allah has mentioned the second principle of dress by using the word ریش (vesture), a sort of decoration and decency for you. A man's beauty lies in his dress. A dress should, therefore, be well designed and sewn so that the man wearing it should feel ease and happiness. It should not be ill-designed nor ill-fitting to disgust the people. It should be decent and attractive in some degree.

To wear costly dresses to pleasae one's heart

Sometimes a man finds himself in a state of doubt about the dress he should put on. If he wears a costly dress it may be prodigality. If he chooses an ordinary dress, how ordinary should it be ? The learned saint Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has advised us about a dress that it should fully cover the ستر (concealable parts) and should at the same time provide some comfort to the body. There is no harm in wearing such dress. For example it is quite lawful to put on a dress made of thin cloth for the sake of comfort. In the same way a man purchasaes a garment at the rate of Rs 15/- per yard instead of Rs 10/- per yard, because the cost is within his means and he thinks that in addition to being comfortable it also pleases his heart. This comes neither within the definition of prodigality nor is it a sin. It is quite lawful to wear such dress.

A rich man should wear a decent dress

It is not good for a wealthy man to wear a very lowly and third-grade dress. It occurs in a Hadith that a man called on the Holy Prophet ﷺ who was in a very shabby wornout and unsightly dress. He ﷺ asked him, saying:

الك مال؟ قال نعم، قال: من اى المال؟ قال قد اتانى الله من الابل والغنم والخيل والرقيق، قال: فاذا اتاك الله مالا فلير اثر نعمة الله عليك وكرامته

(ابو داؤد "كتاب اللباس" باب غسل الثواب، حديث نمبر ٤٠٦٣)

Have you got some property ? He replied: Yes. The Holy Prophet ﷺ asked him : What kind of property is it? He replied: Allah has granted me all sorts of properties out of camels, goats, horses and slaves. The Holy Prophet ﷺ said: When Allah has granted you property, the effect of this grant should appear from your dress also.

In other words, it should not happen that a man enjoying Allah's gifts should appear as a pauper and beggar. In a way, it is showing ingratitude towards the favours of Allah. Thus, it is no sin, but quite lawful to purchase a dress out of Allah's grant which should provide comfort and pelase the heart of the person wearing it.

Sometimes the Holy Prophet ﷺ has worn costly dresses

The Holy Prophet ﷺ is generally called by the common people "the Prophet ﷺ with the black blanket" and the poets have in their poems given great publicity to this attribute. It is quite true that he ﷺ for the most part of his sacred life preferred simple living. It is narrated about him ﷺ that he ﷺ used to put on generally garments of coarse cloth and wore thick sheets. Likewise, it is also narrated about him ﷺ that once he ﷺ put on a gown which valued about two thousand Dinars. As every act of the Holy Prophet ﷺ was going to become a Sunnah and a part of the Sharee'ah for the Ummah his advice for weaker people like us is that it is quite lawful to put on costly dress for one's comfort and for the expression of decency. One is quite free to do so.

Ostentation and show are not lawful

It may be the intention by acquiring and putting on a costly dress to display to the people that the man is putting on such a costly dress and he is a very rich man and is superior to others. He may do this to impose his greatness and superiority on others. All these trends come within the definition of "ostentation and show" and are totally forbidden and are unlawful.

A Sheikh (spiritual guide) is needed

There is a very imperceptible difference between the two points, viz., whether costly dress has been put on to pelase one's own heart or to make a show of superiority to others. Who should decide on this very fine difference. It is not everybody's job. A reformer and guide is needed here. He will tell whether the costly dress has been put on really to please one's heart or it is a deception of Satan. It is the spiritual guide (Pir) who will guide correctly on such occasions of doubts and suspicions. This point is involved not only in the matter of dress but in all other personal matters, like food, shoes, houses, etc. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has given us a golden formula to find out the difference.

Refrain from prodigality and pride

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned a very fine principle in this behalf in the following Hadith:

كل ماشئت والبس ماشئت ما اخطئتك اثنتان: سرف ومخيلة

(صحيح بخاری، کتاب اللباس، باب نمبر ۱)

This means: Eat and wear whatever you like but refrain from two acts: prodigality and pride.

In other words, the intention is to say that prodigality comes in the picture when a man dresses himself with the intention of making a show of his dress. So, one should refrain from putting on a garment that creates pride. However, a spiritual guide is needed to say which dress leads to prodigality and which to pride.

We are discussing the second principle of dress which is decency and decoration. Decency and decoration have their limits. Remaining within these limits decorate yourself as you like. Keeping that decency and decoration beyond the prescribed limits are unlawful (Haram).

Do not run after fashion

People have formed a strange habit of going after the fasion of the day, irrespective of that the garment in fashions suits or does not suit their own choice and convenience. The criterion before them is to accept what is in fahsion and discard what goes out of fashion. For example, once long and flowing shirts had become a fashion with the result that not only did everyone wear it but also began to praise its many qualities. When shorter shirts came into fashion, it displaced the longer shirts and people accepted it as something unique, forgetting their fancy for the longer shirts previously in fahsion. It is not right to decide upon the suitability or unsuitability of something on the basis of fashion. Subject to the permission of the Sharee'ah you are free to wear whatever pleases you and suits your fancy and convenience.

Eat and wear whatever you like

There is a popular saying in Hindi :

It means that you should eat what you like, but wear what the world (the general public) likes.

The Islamic Sharee'ah does not recognize this principle. Instead, it enjoins upon you to eat what you like and wear what you like. The Islamic Sharee'ah has allowed you to eat and wear what you like, keeping within the limits prescribed by the Holy Prophet ﷺ. It is not at all lawful to wear a dress which has become a fashion and which is intended to be shown to others. It is totally forbidden (Haram).

Women and love of fashion

The mentality of our women is particularly in need of reform and guidance. They think that the garment is not for them, but it is for others to see and appreciate, so that they may declare it to be in accordance with the latest fashion and realize that the woman wearing it belongs to a rich family. As a result in their own houses they are generally seen ill-dressed before their near and dear ones and their husbands. However, when they have to go out to attend a function, they take every care to ensure that the dress should be attractive and according to the ruling fashion and design and that the people may believe that they are ladies of the privileged class. For each function they have a different suit of clothes. They will not wear in another function the suit which they have worn in an earlier. The love of show and display and not thier own choice or preference is the root-cause. This spree of exhibtion is unlawful and a sin. there is no sin if a woman changes her suits from day to day not for show but to please her ego.

Hazrat Iman Malik رحمة الله عليه and a new suit of clothes

Some of our own saints are known to be fond of fine dresses. Hazrat Imam Malik رحمة الله عليه is one of them. He lived at Madinah Munawwarah and was known as the Imam of Darul-Hijrah. It is related about him that he used to put on a new suit every day. This means that every year three hudnred and sixty suits were prepared for him, as after having put on a suit once he did not wear again. Someone objected to this, saying that it was prodigality on his part. The Imam رحمة الله عليه replied to this objection as follows:

I am unable to avoid this. At the commencement of every year a friend of mine brings me three hundred and sixty suits, requesting me that I should put on a new suit every day. If I do not accept his gift, this will displease him, and if I do not put on a suit every day this will be defeating the purpose of the gift. So I change my clothes every day and hand over the cast off suit to a poor man. Thus, many poor men receive benefit from this practice."

Anyway, this act of Hazrat Imam Malik رحمة الله عليه was to please his own heart and the heart of the donor and not to show and display his richness and finery.

An event of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه

It is an event full of morals which I heard from my respected father رحمة الله عليه, Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه had two wives, one being senior and the other junior. The senior wife being an old-timer wanted to serve and please her husband to the best of her ability. The Eid festival was near at hand. She thought of presenting the Maulana a gown made of fine cloth as an Eid gift. She got from the market a piece of costly cloth of bright colour and began to sew the gown. She did not inform the Maulana beforehand with the idea that it would be more pelasing to present the gift as an Eid surprise. After hard labour when the gown was ready, it was sent to the Maulana on the night before Eid, she advised him to proceed to the prayer-ground with that gown on his person. The gown, made of a piece of bright colour, was far from being to the liking of the Maulana رحمة الله عليه. The Maulana was indeed in a fix. What to do? He wanted to please his wife who had put in so much toil during the whole of Ramazan in the preparation of that gown. He, therefore, put on that gown and conducted the Eid prayer with the gown on his body. At the end of the prayer a man came to the Maulana and told him that the gown did not suit him. The Maulana accepted is remark then putting off the gown gifted it to that man.

To please the hearts of others

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه related this event to my father Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمة الله عليه and told him tht while going to the prayer-ground in that gown his heart was undergoing great torture, as he had never in his life worn garments of bright colours. I took upon myself this torture and some tautns too, only to please the heart of my wife who had taken so much pains in preparing that gown with her own hands.

There is no sin if a man puts on best dresses to please his own heart and the hearts of his near and dear ones in the family including the heart of the donor of a gift. It is, however, a cause of punishment and totally forbidden to put on costly dresses with the intention of show and display of his richness and superiority to the people.

The third principle concerning dress

The third principle mentioned by the Islamic Sharee'ah concerning dress is that it should not resemble the dresses of other nations and communities. This practice has been called in the Sharee'ah تشبہ (imitation). It is a great sin to put on a dress with the intention of imitating the member of another nation, irrespective of that the dress put on is good on bad, likeable or unlikeable. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has expressed in a Hadith a great warning on those who put on a dress for the only purpose of imitating some other community:

من تشبہ بقوم فھو منھم (ابو داؤد، کتاب اللباس، باب فی لبس الشھرہ. حدیث نمبر ٤٠٣١)

It means that a man who puts on the dress of another community with the express intention of mimicking that community is one of them, as if he is not from among the Muslim community. (chap: Garments, Abu Dawood).

This act of imitating another community in dress etc. is an indirect way of expressing love for it. Such a man will be raised up in the Hereafter with the community he imitated. How terrible ! May Allah save us all from this! Aameen.

The reality of تشبہ (Imitation)

It should be understood well when this (Imitaion) comes into play and when it is forbidden. Firstly imitation is forbidden (Haram) in an act which is in itself a vice and against the principles of the Sharee'ah. Secondly, the act in itself is not unlawful, but it is permissible. A man is, however, doing that act with the intention of imitating the member of that alien community and to appear as one of them. In a situation like this even permissible act becomes unlawful.

To put a Zunnar round the neck

The Hindus wear a Zunnar (a sacred thread) round their necks. If a Muslim also wears a Zunar only by chance, it is not unlawful but it is only permissible for him. If he wears a zunnar with the intention of imitating a Hindu, it becomes unlawful and forbidden (Haram), as it comes within the meaning of تشبہ (imitation)

To put on mark made by Hindus on the forehead

Hindu women put on a red mark on their foreheads. If the Hindu women did not do this and a Muslim women puts this mark on her forehead as a mark of decoration this practice is in itself permissible, it is neither unlawful nor forbidden. On the other hand if a Msulim woman puts on her forehead a red mark only to mimic the practice of the Hindus and to resemble them, this becomes unlawful and forbidden. We are given to understand that this fashion of putting on Qashqah (Mark) has started in Pakistan also. If so, our women are doing so to imitate the Hindu women. This is unlawful. If an act is in itself lawful and permissible, but it is done to mimic a non-Muslim community it comes within the definition of تشبہ (imitation) and becomes unlawful and forbidden.

It is not lawful to imitate other nations

On the basis of this principle it can be said that it is unlawful and prohibited to adopt and imitate the dress of a nation which has beocme the specific mark and a distinction of that nation by which it is recognized and distinguished from other nations. For example, nowadays it has become a common fashion among men to wear trousers and jackets. Some aspects of this dress are unlawful, irrespective of that this dress may or may not involve (imitation). One defect in it is that it is worn below the ankles. No dress which covers the ankles is lawful for men. Another drawback is that if the trousers are of tight-fittings it does not provide the ستر (cover) which is the basic purpose of a dress, because the depressions and projections of the body are quite visible. For these two drawbacks. it is not lawful to put on trousers and jackets. However, if anyone takes care that the trousers reach up to the ankles and are loose enough not to show the contours of the body, then in itself it is permissibel to put on this dress.

To wear Trousers

If anyone puts on trousers to imitate the English and to become like them, then it is unlawful to adopt this dress, because it comes within the definition of تشبہ (imitation). If imitation is not intended and care is also taken to see that it does not cover the ankles and is also loose enough, then in such a situation it has not been declared borbidden to wear it. Even so, it is not good to wear it, as it is not free from being disgustful. Why is it so? Try to understand this point carefully.

The difference between تشبہ (imitation) and مشابہت (resemblance)

These are two different acts quite distinct from each other. تشبہ (imitation) means that a man intentionally tries to imitate some other community to become like them. This is entirely forbidden. As for مشابہت (resemblance) the act of resemblance is not deliberate but it takes place spontaneously. This is not forbidden. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has however, advised against (resemblance) when it is not at all necessary. He ﷺ has advised his Ummah to keep themselves distinguished from the other nations, as far as possible. There should be a distinctive mark of the Muslim nation so that there may be no doubt in recognizing a Muslim from a non-Muslim. It is not permissible to change one's identity so that it may become difficult to recognize whether the person is a Muslim or a non-Muslim and whether to bid him the Islamic (salute) or not.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ took care to refrian from مشابہت (resemblance)

It is a matter of great virtue to fast on the ʿAshoorah Day (the 10th of the month of Muharram). When the Holy Prophet ﷺ migrated to Madinah Munawwarah, in the beginning fasting on the ʿAshoorah Day was obligatory. By that time the Ramazan fasting had not been prescribed as an obligatory duty. When the Ramazan fasting was made obligatory, the obligatory nature of ʿAshoorah fasting was cancelled. After this cancellation it became optional and permisisble only. When the Holy Prophet ﷺ came to know that the Jews also fasted on the ʿAshoorah Day, he ﷺ said that if he ﷺ remained alive, the next year he would add another day to ʿAshoorah for fasting, i.e. he ﷺ would fast also either on the ninth or the eleventh day of Muharram, so as to fast two days to avoid imitation of the Jews. (Musnad Ahamd vol. I, P. 236)

See how the Holy Prohet ﷺ did not like the (resemblance) with the Jews even in a worship like fasting. That is why he ﷺ asked his Ummah to add to the ʿAshoorah either the nineth or the eleventh day of Muharram to make the fasting days two instead of one to avoide resemblance with the Jews. Thus,تشبہ (imitation) is quite unlawful, but (resemblance) too is not desirbale. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has advised us to avoid it as far as possible.

Oppose the Mushrikeen (polytheists)

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith:

خالفوا المشرکین(صحیح بخاری، کتاب اللباس، باب تقلیم الاظفار، حدیث نمبر ۵۸۹۲)

Oppose the polytheists in all matters as far as possible and create for you your own modes of life as distinguished from those of the Mushrikeen.

He ﷺ has said in another Hadith:-

فرق ما بینا وبین المشرکین العمائم علی القلانس (ابو داؤد کتاب اللباس، باب فی العمام، حدیث نمبر ٤٠٧٨)

That is our putting on caps under our turbans makes us distinguished from the polytheists, because they do not wear caps under their turbans.

That is why we have been asked to put on caps under our turbans in opposing the polytheists. It is not an unlawful act to put on turbans without caps, but the advice to put on caps is only to avoid resemblance to the polytheists. It is not desirable to make ourselves resemble other non-Muslim communities. It is better to refrain from this act as far as possible. The Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم took great care not to resemble the non-Muslim communities.

The Muslims are a distinguished nation

You should know that Almighty Allah has created you as a separate nation and included you in His Own Party under the name of حزب اللہ (Allah's party). You stand in isolation quite distinct from the entire world. The Holy Qur'an has said that basically there are only two groups in the entire world:

خَلَقَكُمْ فَمِنْكُمْ كَافِرٌ وَّمِنْكُمْ مُّؤْمِنٌ (سورہ التغابن:۲)

Allah has created you in two groups, one of you being disbelievers and the other being believers. (64:2)

The group of the believers should, therefore, never mix up with that of the disbeleivers. The beleivers should stand distinguished from the disbelievers, by their dress, their behaviour and life in general. Everything concerning the believers should have an Islamic stamp on it. This purpose is defeated if the Muslims adopt the ways of other commnities.

Just see for yourself how everyone, Muslim or non-Muslim, is putting on the same dress. If you go to an assembly of men it will be very difficult for you to know either from their dress or from their behaviour and conduct who is a Muslim and who is a non-Muslim It is difficult to decide whether to bid them the Islamic Salam or not, and on what topic one should talk to them. To forestall these vices the Holy Prophet ﷺ has advised us to avoid تشبہ (imitation), because it is totally un- lawful and also مشابہت (resemblance) which is neither likeable nor desirable.

It is shamelessness

How shameless it is that you should wear the dress of a nation that enslaved you for long, tyrannized, you in different ways, conspired against you and killed you in great numbers. It left no limit in torturing and disgracing you. How shameless it is indeed that you are adopting the dress and ways of such a tyrant nation?

The narrow-mindedness of the English

People say that it is narrow-mindedness to stop them from using the dress of the disbeleiving English people. Do you not know or have you forgotten the narrow-mindedness of this English community when they occupied India ? They made the flowing gowns, Shalwars and turbans of the Mughal, a uniform for their menial servants, like gate-keepers, peons, butlers and waiters. Why did they do so ? They did so only to disgrace the Muslims and to show them that they attired their low-grade servants in the dress of the Muslim Kings. As against all this the broad-mindedness of we Muslims is that we are putting on the dress of these tyrants with great gusto and pride. What a shame! If anyone tells them that it is against honour and self-respect to put on such dress they retort by saying: "This is narrow-mindedness".

خرد کا نام جنوں رکھ دیا جنوں کا خرد
جو چاہے آپ کا حسن کرشمہ ساز کرے

On account of the miraculous beauty of the beloved madness has been named wisdom and wisdom madness.

In this attitude lies the worst kind of shamelessness, in addition to the fact that it is undesirable in the light of the Sharee'ah.

May you change all your ways, yet..... !

Note it very carefully that, however, much you may change your ways by wearing their dress and adopting their life-style, yet you cannot find for you any respect in their eyes. The Holy Qur'an has clearly stated:

وَلَنْ تَرْضٰى عَنْكَ الْيَهُوْدُ وَلَا النَّصٰرٰى حَتّٰى تَتَّبِعَ مِلَّتَهُمْ

(سورة البقرة: ۱۲۰)

And the Jews will not be pleased with you, nor will the Christians, till you follow their creed.

(2:120)

The Jews and Christians will not be pleased with you, however, much you may adopt their dress and take to their life-style, unless you accept their creed. You have changed yourselves from head to foot on the pattern of their living, yet they have always hated you and tried to ruin you. You have seen this attitude on their part and are seeing it now more vividly. They will never accord you any honour and resepct for your putting on their dress.

Dr Iqbal's comments on the Western civilization

Late Dr. Iqbal has sometimes said very sensible and wise things in his poetry. While commenting on the Western dress and life-style he has said:

قوت مغرب نہ از چنگ و رباب
نے زرقص دختران بے حجاب

نے زسحر سامران لالہ روس
نے زعریاں ساق، نے از قطع موش

Dr. Iqbal elaborates further:

قوت افرنگ از علم و فن است
از ہمیں آتش چراغش روشن است

The idea expressed in these couplets may be summarised as follows:

The power of the west does not lie in music, nor in the dance of their unveiled daughters, nor in the atraction of the tulip-faced beauties nor in the naked legs and short hair-locks on their heads.

Iqbal goes on to say further:

The secret of the power and supremacy of the west lie in their hard work in the field of art and science. Their advancement, progress and superiority all are due to their devoted research and experiment.

In the end he has said:

حکمت از قطع و برید جامہ نیست
مانع علم و ہنر عمامہ نیست

Wisdom, art and science do not depend on any particular style of dress. The eastern dress consisting of the gown and the turban too is not the cause of backwardness. It is nothing but hard work in the field of knowledge and science is needed.

You did not acquire from the west what would have really helped you viz. knowledge and technology, but you relied on imitating their dress, life-style. In this way you disgraced yourself. The world honours and respects those who have regard and love for their own way of life. So the world shall accord no credit to you for this habit of mimicking others.

Refrain from تشبہ (imitation) and مشابہت (resemblance) both

I have already mentioned the injunction of the Sharee'ah that تشبہ (imitation) is unlawful and a sin, because it is practised deliberately. As regards مشابہت (resemblance), if this intention is not involved, but some similarity occurs spontaneously without intention and attempt. It is neither a sin nor unlawful, yet it is not free from disgust and repulsion. However, it is totally against honour and self-respect. Therefore, it is necessary to avoid both as far as possible.

The fourth principle regarding dress

It is unlawful to put on a dress by which a feeling of pride and superiority is born, even if that dress may have been prepared from jute-cloth. For example, a man wears such rough and coarse dress with the intention that such a dress will make him look in the sight of the people like a great saint and Sufi, then this may create a sense of greatness and superiority and lead him to look down upon others. In this condition that jute-cloth dress also becomes a cuase of pride and arrogance and is, therefore, unlawful. Hazrat Sufyan Sauri رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has said that pride is not created by a dress; it is born by looking down upon others. Sometimes a man thinks that he is putting on an humble and ordinary dress, yet his heart is full of pride.

It is not lawful to cover the ankles

Hazrat Abdullah bin Umar رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Almighty Allah will not look at a man with an eye of mercy on the Day of Judgment who drags down his garment on the ground with pride. (Sahih Bukhari....Hadith No: 5791)

In another Hadith the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said that the portion of a man's lower garment (trousers, etc) which covers and goes below the ankles will enter Hell.

This shows that it is not lawful for men to wear a dress (trousers, sheet, etc) which covers and goes down the ankles. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has mentioned two warnings for this. Firstly, the portion of the dress that covers and reaches beyond the ankles will be in Hell. Secondly, on the Day of Judgment Allah will not cast a glance of mercy on this sinner. Now see that it is a very simple matter to let your lower garment remain above the ankles. What harm is there if one wears his trousers, etc. so as to remain an inch or so above the ankles? On the other hand, you will save yourself from the displeasure of Allah and attract His glance of mercy. This is a tasteless sin in which the entire nation is involved and none cares about it.

It is a sign of pride to cover the ankles

The Holy Prophet ﷺ was sent to the world with his mission as a Prophet during the Days of ignorance. In those days it was a common fashion to cover the ankles and let the lower dress reach beyond them. It was even considered better if the dress dragged on the ground while walking. A book of Arbaic peotry (Hamasah) حماسہ is taught in the Arabic schools to students of the famous Dars-e-Nizami course. It contains poetry composed during the Days of ignorance. In this book a poet expresses his thoughts with pride:

اذا ما اصطبحت اربعا خط میزری

When after drinking four glasses of wine I go out in the morning, my lower dress gets dragged along, drawing lines on the ground.

Now see how this poet has described this action of his as a proud performance. When the Holy Prophet ﷺ came with his mission, he abolished this custom as he abolished many other customs of the Days of ignorance. He ﷺ commanded that the lower dress should be worn above the ankles as it gives rise to pride and feelings of superiority to let down the dress to cover the ankles.

This also refutes the propaganda which is being spread widely nowadays that the Holy Prophet ﷺ adopted many of the customs, dresses and styles which were common among the Quraish. What is the harm, they ask, if they adopt some of the modes and customs which are in vogue in our times?

Bear in mind that the Holy Prophet ﷺ never adopted the modes and styles which were common during his days. On the other hand, he ﷺ declared them to be unlawful and amended them to conform to the Islamic ways. Not only are the people nowadays committing this sin but they raise objection and ask what is the harm in it. They should know that the harm lies in the fact that this practice invites Allah's wrath and shall take the sinner to Hell.

At the bidding of the English man they have bared their knees too

A saintly person late Hazrat Maulana Ihtishamul Haq Thanawi رحمة الله عليه once said in a lecture that when the Holy Prophet ﷺ has asked us to keep the ankles open as it is not lawful to conceal them, we are not prepared to obey the Prophet ﷺ in this matter. On the other hand, when the English asked us to open the knees we at once obeyd them by putting on knickers. How shameless it is! If we have any love for the Holy Prophet ﷺ, that love has a claim on us. How is it possible for a Muslim to appreciate something which the Holy Propeht ﷺ has disapproved?

An event relating to Hazrat Usman Ghani رضی الله عنه

On the occasion of the treaty of Hudaibiah Hazrat Usman Ghani رضی الله عنه was going to Makkah to negotiate terms with the disbelievers. His cousin who was accompanying him pointed out to him that his trousers were above the ankles and the dignitaries of Makkah with whom you are going to negotiate look down upon a man whose trousers remain above the ankles. He, therefore, advised Hazrat Usman Ghani to cover his ankles by lowering his trousers. Hazrat Usman Ghani رضی الله عنه replied:

لا، هكذا ازرة صاحبنا رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم

"I cannot do this as the trousers of my master were like this I have nothing to worry about what these infidels think of me. I must follow the ways of the Holy Prophet ﷺ".

These are our ancestors who compelled the world to bow before them, while we are afraid of the world and are feeling ashamed to follow the ways of Islam and the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. We are simply hankering after fashion. Kindly for God's sake reform your ways and inculcate in your heart an enthusiasm to act upon the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ.

Is it permissible to cover the ankles, if there is no involvement of pride?

Some people think that the Holy Prophet ﷺ had commanded not to cover the ankles to forestall pride and arrogance. There should be no harm in covering the ankles, if no pride is invovled. They support their claim with the Hadith regarding Hazrat Abu Bakr رضی اللہ عنہ.

Once Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddiq رضی اللہ عنہ complained to the Holy Prophet ﷺ that his trousers frequently slipped down the ankles. What should he do ? The Holy Prophet ﷺ replied: The slipping down of your trousers is not due to pride but it is due to disability. You are, therefore, not among them. (Abu Dawood..... Hadith No: 4085).

On the basis of this Hadith people say that they too do not lower their trousers on account of pride, so this should be lawful for them. Now who is going to decide whether you are covering the ankles with or without pride? Just think who can be more away from pride than the Holy Prophet ﷺ , and yet he never covered his ankles at any time in his lifetime?

The permission given to Hazrat Siddiq Akbar رضی اللہ عنہ was due to some disability in his body in the presence of which trousers slipped down his ankles oft and on. Is there any disability with you also? As regards the question of pride, no proud person ever thinks that he is proud. The Islamic Sharee'ah has issued its injunctions in the light of the indications and symptoms. In this particular case the injunction does not say that if there is pride keep the trousers above the ankles, otherwise keep them down. Despite the command of the Holy Prophet ﷺ to keep the trousers above the ankles, you are lowering them down. This means that you are doing so on account of pride. This practice is unlawful in all circumstances.

The correct decision of the Research Scholars

There are learned men who have said that if the trousers are lowered to cover the ankles on account of pride, the act is unlawful. If it is not due to pride then the act is repulsive and abominable. Research Scholars, however, agree that lower the trousers to cover the ankles is unlawful in all circumstances. It is not an easy job to find out the presence of pride in each and every case. The only way to save oneself from this sin is to keep the trousers above the ankles and eradicate pride from its very roots.

May Allah help us, by His mercy, to act upon these injunction. Aameen.

Anyway, these are the four principles of "Dress":

(i) It should cover the entire coverable parts of the body

(ii) It should be a means of decorating the body, within the limits of the Sharee'ah.

(iii) It should not resemble the dress of a non-Muslim.

(iv) It should not indicate pride and arrogance.

Now we mention below a few Ahadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ about "Dress" in general.

White Dresses are desirable

عن ابن عباس رضی اللہ تعالی عنہما عن النبی صلی اللہ علیہ وسلم قال:

البسوا من ثیابکم البیاض، فانها من خیر ثیا بکم، و کفنوا فیها موتا کم

(ابو داؤد، کتاب الطب، باب فی الامر بالکحل، حدیث نمبر ۳۸۷۸)

Hazrat Abdullah bin Abbas رضی اللہ عنہما has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: Wear white dresses as they are better and shroud your dead therewith. It appears from this Hadith that the Holy Prophet ﷺ has approved white dresses for men, although it is neither unlawful nor forbidden to wear dresses of other colours. It is proved that the Holy Prophet ﷺ has himself worn sometimes dresses of other colours. Generally he ﷺ wore white dresses. If a man puts on white dress with the intention that the Holy Prophet ﷺ generally wore white dresses and he ﷺ approved them for others he will earn reward for acting upon the Sunnah. It is allowed for men with certain conditions to put on dresses of other colours. It is not unlawful to do so.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has put on red striped garments

عن براء بن عازب رضى الله عنه قال: كان رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم مربوعا، وقد رايته فى حلة حمراء مارايت شيئا قط احسن منه

(صحيح بخارى، كتاب اللباس، باب الثوب الاحمر، حديث نمبر ٥٨٤٨)

Hazrat Barrau bin Azib رضى الله عنه has narrated, saying: Once I saw the Holy Prophet ﷺ putting on a red dress and then I did not see a more beautiful person than he. It is probably Hazrat Jabir bin Sumrah رضى الله عنه who has narrated: Once on a fourteenth moon-lit night the Holy Prophet ﷺ was sitting with a red garment on his body. At that time I sometimes looked at the full moon and sometimes at the Holy Prophet ﷺ. At last I decided that the Holy Prophet ﷺ looked far more beautiful than the moon.

These Ahadith prove that the Holy Prophet ﷺ has put on red garments also.

Dresses of pure red colour are not lawful for men

It should be noted that the dress was not totally red in colour. In the light of other Ahadith, the Ulama have said that in those days red striped sheets came from Yemen. They were not fully red. Those sheets were regarded as very valuable and of high class. The Holy Prophet ﷺ is reported to have put on a suit made of these sheets of Yemen. The Holy Prophet ﷺ put on that suit to show to the Ummah that it was quite lawful to put on dresses of that type and colour. It is not lawful for men to wear dresses totally red in colour. Similarly, it is not lawful for men to put on dresses which are specifically meant for women, to avoid تشبه (imitation) with women, as it is not lawful.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has also put on dresses of green colour

عن رفاعة التيمى رضى الله عنه، قال: رايت رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم وعليه ثوبان اخضران (ابو داؤد، كتاب اللباس، باب فى الخضرة حديث نمبر ٤٠٦٥)

Hazrat Rifa'ah Taimi رضى الله عنه has narrated that he saw the Holy Prophet ﷺ wearing two garmetns of green colour.

It appears from this Hadith that the Holy Prophet ﷺ has sometimes put on a green suit. Thus by wearing garments of other colours, he ﷺ has shown that it is quite lawful to do so. However, the Prophet's favourite wear was white garments.

The colours of the Turbans of the Holy Prophet ﷺ

وعن جابر رضى الله عنه، ان رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم دخل عام الفتح مكة وعليه عمامة سوداء (ابو داود، كتاب اللباس، باب فى العمائم، حديث نمبر ٤٠٧٦)

Hazrat Jabir رضى الله عنه has narrated that when in the year of the victory of Makkah the Holy Prophet ﷺ entered Makkah, he ﷺ had a black Turban on his head. It is proved from various narratives that the Holy Prophet ﷺ has worn white, black and sometimes green Turbans also.

How long should be the sleeves?

وعن اسماء بنت يزيد رضى الله عنها قالت: كان كم قميص رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم الى الرسغ (ابو داؤد، كتاب اللباس، باب ماجاء فى القميص، حديث نمبر ٤٠٢٧)

This means: The sleeve of the shirt of the Holy Prophet ﷺ reached up to the wrists. It is, therefore, an act of Sunnah for men to keep their sleeves up to the wrists. Sleeves shorter than this are also lawful but not according to the Sunnah. It is by no means lawful for women to keep the parts above the wrists open; it is totally forbidden (Haram). So far as women are concerned the entire wrist above the palm forms part of ستر (concealable). This is totally unlawful to keep if open. It has now become a fashion among women to wear half-sleeve garments and sometimes the entire arms are bare. Once the Holy Prophet ﷺ called his wife's sister Hazrat Asma رضى الله عنها and told her that when a girl comes of age, no part of her body should remain open except the palms of the hands and the face. If the sleeves are short, it means that the portion to be covered ستر has been left bare on a permanent basis, and such women are committing the sin of opening their ستر (concealable parts). Women should save themselves from this sin. It is also the duty of men to guide their women on the right path of the Sunnah.

May Almighty Allah help us tc earnestly follow the path of the Sunnah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ. Aameen.

وآخر دعوانا ان الحمد لله رب العالمين

Venue : Jame' Masjid Baitul-Mukarram
Gulshan-e-Iqbal,
Karachi

Date : Friday 31th December, 1993.

REPENTANCE - AN ANTIDOTE OF SINS

الحمدلله نحمده و نستعينه ونستغفره ونؤمن به ونتوكل عليه ونعوذ بالله من شرور انفسنا ومن سيأت اعمالنا من يهده الله فلا مضل له ومن يضلله فلا هادى له ونشهدان لا اله الا الله وحده لا شريك له ونشهد ان سيدنا و سندنا ونبينا ومولانا محمدا عبده ورسوله صلى الله تعالى عليه وعلىٰ اله واصحابه وبارك وسلم تسليما كثيرا كيثرا

اما بعد!

All praise is for Allah. We praise Him, seek His help and forgiveness and believe in Him. We rely on Him. We seek refuge with Allah from the evils of our selves and from the vices of our deeds. There is none to misguide him whom He guides and there is none to guide him whom He let go astray. I bear witness that there is no god except Allah, the One and the only. He has no partner. I also bear witness that our sire, and our authority, our Master and our Prophet, Muhammad ﷺ is His servant and His Messenger. May Allah shower His mercy on him, on his household and on his Companions رضی اللہ عنہم and salute and bless them all in great abundance.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ recited Istighfar (to seek forgiveness) one hundred times

وعن الاغرالمزنی رضی اللہ عنہ قال سمعت رسول اللہ صلی اللہ علیہ وسلم یقول انہ لیغان علی قلبی حتی استغفر اللہ فی الیوم مائة مرة (صحیح مسلم کتاب الذکر باب استحباب الاستغفار والاستکثار منہ حدیث نمبر ۲۷۰۲)

It is narrated by Hazrat Aghar Al-Muzni رضی اللہ عنہ that he heard the Holy Prophet ﷺ, saying: Sometimes a cloud like thing settles on my heart also, so I seek Allah's forgiveness one hundred times.

Look! These are the words of our Holy Prophet ﷺ whom Allah created innocent of all sins. It was not possible for him ﷺ to commit any sins. In case, he ever committed some lapses being a human being and through forgetfulness. Almighty Allah was kind enough to declare in the Holy Qur'an:

لِيَغْفِرَ لَكَ اللّٰهُ مَا تَقَدَّمَ مِنْ ذَنْۢبِكَ وَمَا تَاَخَّرَ (سورۃ الفتح ۲)

That Allah shall forgive you (O Muhammad) of your sin that which is part and that which is to come. (48:2)

In spite of the fact that all his past and future sins, if any, stand forgiven vide this divine declaration, the Prophet of Allah ﷺ said that he ﷺ sought Allah's forgiveness by reciting Istighfar one hundred times every day. It should be noted that the figure of one hundred used here only means that the Prophet ﷺ recited Istighfar in large numbers and not exactly one hundred times. This is how some Ulama have interpreted the figure of "one hundred" used in the Hadith.

Everyone suffers from suspicions and doubts about sins

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has also mentioned in this Hadith the cause of his reciting Istighfar in such a large number. It was because sometimes some thing like a cloud (suspicions about sins) settled on his heart also. After all a Prophet علیہ السلام is also a human being and may feel in his heart whisperings and suspicions about sins. However God-fearing and righteous a man may be, he cannot remain immune from reflections and shadows of sins. It is difficult to find a single saint, Wali (friend of Allah) or a favourite of Allah who remained safe from the attack of sinful suspicions and misgivings or Satanic seductions. However, the difference between ourselves and these men of God is that we promptly yield to these suspicions and commit sins. These favourite personalities of Allah steer clear of these suspicions and get rid of them by virtue of their devotion and obedience to Allah and His Prophet ﷺ. They seldom succumb to these Satanic suggestions and are not an easy prey.

The Holy Qur'an says about Hazrat Yusuf علیہ السلام:

وَلَقَدْ هَمَّتْ بِهٖ وَهَمَّ بِهَا (سورہ یوسف: ۲۴)

She surely desired him and he desired her, but that he saw the evidence of his Lord. (12:24)

In other words, they were both inclined to commit the sin, but Almighty Allah deterred him from it.

This is a wrong notion

One should not think that after attaching oneself to the disciplines of a mystic order or the practical following of the Tareeqah (the practical disciplines of the Shari'ah), the natural temptations to commit sins and the inherent tendencies to vices and deprivities can be eradicated altogether, and the urge to sins will not be there in the heart. This is not possible. The man concerned only suppresses and obtains control over the promptings and temptations to sins. In such a situation man is able to kick aside these Satanic whisperings and save himself from falling into the trap of sins. This is a great success of a man. It is quite wrong to think that after undergoing these spiritual and mystical disciplines. the urge to sins will never enter man's heart -- being human is not possible.

Take to repentance while still young

Almighty Allah has created in man the urge and temptation to commit sins. He has said in the Holy Qur'an:

فَأَلْهَمَهَا فُجُوْرَهَا وَتَقْوٰهَا (سورة الشمس ٨)

And He inspired it (with the conscience of what is wrong for it and (what is) right for it. (91:8)

Allah has mentioned in this verse that He has created in man the urge to vices as well as to righteousness. In this lies a test for man. If there had been no capacity of sin in man, there would have been no credit in him in remaining innocent and totally free from sins and vices. In such a state there was no need to struggle against the temptations of the self and Satan. What could then entitle man to Paradise which is a reward for struggling against the urges of sins and keeping oneself pure and free from their pollutions? Almighty Allah has created Paradise for those who fear Him and fear the horrors of the Hereafter and who refuses to obey the insinuations of his self and Satan. The renowned persian mystic poet Sheikh Sa'di رحمة الله عليه has said:

وقت پیری گرگ ظالم مے شود پرہیزگار
در جوانی توبہ کردن شیوہ پیغمبری

It is quite easy to understand that even the most ferocious and dangerous wolf becomes righteous in its old age. At this last stage of its life it has no capacity to kill and harm anyone. What is really creditable and a characteristic of the Prophets عليه السلام is that a man should repent for his sins and take to righteousness while he is still young and possesses the capacity and power to commit sins, but he restrains himself from the path of sins and vices for fear of Allah.

Influence of the company of the pious

There are some wishful thinking people that thinks God-fearing saints may cast on them such a glance as will fill their hearts with divine light and purge them of all urges to sins and vices. This is impossible. The man thinking in this way is deluding himself. If this were correct, there would be no disbeleivers on the surface of the earth, as all would be converted to Islam by the miraculous glance and attention of these pious saints who are found every where.

Once a man called on Hazrat Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanawi رحمة الله عليه and requested him for advice. The Maulana obliged him. At the time of departing that man requested the Maulana to impart to him from his chest some spiritual light (نور) to make the problems of the Hereafter easy for him and to eradicate from his heart the temptations of sins. The Maulana replied: What should I grant you from my chest? It is full of phlegm. You may take it, if you like. Anyway, it is totally a wrong notion that these pious saints can change the life of a man by their miraculous glance.

ایں خیال است و محال است و جنوں

This is only wishful thinking and madness. It is true that the company of the holy saints does have auspicious effects on men's life. Yet those who want to gain something must strive in the path themsleves and should not wait for miracles.

Keep a watch over yourselves every moment

A man may attain elevated status, he cannot attain total immunity from the suspicions and whisperings about sins. It is only posisble by sincere work to suppress and control them and weaken their virulence. It is possible for a man that by keeping company with saintly men he may attain piety, fear of Allah, relationship with Him and so many other spiritual accomplishments. Notwithstanding all this, it is necessary to keep a strict watch over his self at every step and every moment. It is quite misleading to think that after attaining all these qualities and a certificate of proficiency from the Sheikh, a man becomes a Sheikh himself. Now he is free to go which way he likes. It is true that the attention of the Sheikh has helped to weaken and suppress the disciple's instinct to sin, yet constant watch over the self and against Satan's seduction is required at all times. Beware that the urge to commit sins may get revived again at any time:

اندریں رہ مے تراش و مے خراش
تادمِ آخر دمے فارغ مباش

It is necessary in the path of Allah to be on one's guard and be correcting and reforming oneself continuously. This is necessary till the last moments of life. This self and Satan may deceive you at any time and at any stage.

The story of a wood-cutter

Maulana Rumi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has related in his famous book, the Masnavi, the story of a wood-cutter who used to cut and bring wood from the forest. Once it so happened that a big serpent got entangled and tied up with the bundle of his wood. The wood-cutter was quite unaware about the serpent. When he opened the bundle in his house he saw that a dead serpent was also among the sticks of the wood and paid no attention. When the serpent received heat it began to crawl slowly till it reached the wood-cutter and bit him. The inmates of the house were stunned to see this mishap. How could a dead serpent bite anyone as it had bitten the wood-cutter?

Man's self is also a serpent

After having related this story Maulana Rumi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has compared man's self to a serpent. When a man undergoes spiritual exercises, disciplines and drills under the care and supervision of a Sheikh, his self beocmes very weak and looks as if it is dead, but in reality it is still alive. Like the serpent it can bite and kill a man when it finds its victim unwary. The Maulana has explained the same idea in another persian couplet:

نفس اژدھا است مردہ است
ازغمے بے آلتی افسردہ است

The above couplet means that self of man is like a serpent, which seems to be dead but it is alive. It paralysed and benumbed on account of the shocks and blows it has received from the spiritual exercises and disciplines. It may become revived and may bite anyone at any time.

One should not, therefore, become negligent about his self at any moment. He should always be cautious.

Taubah (repentance) and Istighfar (seeking forgiveness) are antidotes to sins

Allah has created two deadly poisons in the forms of Satan and the human self that are always attacking and damaging man's religious and spiritual integrity. At the same time, Allah has also created two very effective antidotes to these two archenemies of man. Those antidotes are Taubah (Repentance) and Istighfar (seeking forgiveness). Whenever you feel that you are in danger of being bitten by this serpent of self, you are advised to take resort to these antidotes, i.e. Taubah and Istighfar and recite these words:

استغفر الله ربی من کل ذنب واتوب الیه

This ISTIGHFAR or antidote will instantly counteract effectively the poisons of the serpent of self or Satan.

A wonderful marvel of nature

Once I was on a Railway journey in South Africa around Cape Town. The trian stopped in a hilly track. We got down from the train to offer prayer. I saw a plant which was very beautiful and attractive. So charming to the eyes that I could not help extending my hand to pluck a few of its leaves. No sooner did I extend my hand to reach the plant, my guide cried loudly to stop me from what I was going to do. So I held back my hand. He told me that it was a very poisonous plant, although it looked so beautiful and charming. If anyone touched it he would be poisoned just like the poison of a scorpion's sting. I was saved from its poison as a result of this timely warning, yet an ignorant man is always exposed to this danger.

On this my guide showed me something more exciting than this. There is another plant to counter the effects of this poisonous plant. This would be the antidote to the poison of that poisonous plant. If someone touched the poisonous plant and was affected, by touching the others plant, the poison could be instantly countered.

The same is the case of our sins and of Repentance and Istighfar. As soon as you feel that the poison of your sins is increasing, you should counteract it at once by taking resort to Repentance and Istighfar.

Allah appointed man his vicegerent and fortified him with antidotes

Our Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله علیه once told us that Almighty Allah placed in man the faculty of committing sins and then sent him to this world as His vicegerent. On the other hand, there is another creation of Allah the Angels whom He did not consider fit for the honour of being His vicegerent as they did not possess the faculty of committing sins. To afford a sample and practice He let the first man commit a fault. When Almighty Allah lodged Hazrat Adam علیه السلام, the first man in Paradise, he commanded him not to approach such and such tree. Satan, however, beguiled Hazrat Adam علیه السلام on account of which he علیه السلام ate the fruit of the forbidden tree and committed a sin. Hazrat Adam علیه السلام was in fact, induced to commit the sin, as this fault could not have been without the will of Almighty Allah. Once Hazrat Adam علیه السلام had committed this fault, he felt ashamed and he sincerely repented for that. Thereupon Almighty Allah taught him these few words and asked him to recite them:

رَبَّنَا ظَلَمْنَـآ اَنْفُسَنَا ۖ وَاِنْ لَّمْ تَغْفِرْلَنَا وَتَرْحَمْنَا لَنَكُوْنَنَّ مِنَ الْخٰسِرِيْنَ

(الاعراف:٢٣)

Our Lord! We have wronged ourselves. If you do not forgive us nor have mercy on us, surely we shall be among the losers. (7:23)

There is an important point to note. It was possible for Allah to grant Hazrat Adam عليه السلام forgiveness without teaching him these words and seeking through them Allah's forgiveness. He could have told Hazrat Adam عليه السلام direct: All right, I grant you My pardon. But Almighty Allah did not do so. Dr. Abdul Hai Sahib رحمة الله عليه has said that the intention of Allah was to teach Hazrat Adam عليه السلام that the latter will have to face such mishaps in the world where he was going. There will be Satan and the human self to misguide him and induce him to commit sins off and on. It would not be possible to live in the world a clean and contented life without the antidotes of Istighfar or Taubh. Almighty Allah therefore, sent Hazrat Adam عليه السلام equipped with these. Only speak with your tongue with repentance in your heart, the words استغفر الله، توبه (I seek Allah's pardon) and the sin will be pardoned-Allah willing-at once.

Repentance is a combination of three elements

For tauba two words are generally used - (i) ISTIGHFAR (seeking forgiveness) and (ii) TAUBAH (Repentance). The main word is TAUBAH (Repentance) and the word ISTIGHFAR refers to the path that leads to TAUBAH. Taubah consists of three elements which must be present to make Taubah materialize and effective.

These three elements are:

1. To feel ashamed at the sin committed.
2. To give up the sin committed at once without any hitch and hesitation.
3. A firm resolve not to repeat that sin in the future under any circumstances.

To resort to Repentance in this way the sinner becomes purified from his sin. It occurs in a Hadith:

التائب من الذنب كمن لاذنب له (ابن ماجه، كتاب الزهد، باب ذكر التوبة، حديث نمبر ٤٣٠٤)

One who repents for his sin is like one who has committed no sin at all.

By repentance the entire trace of sin is effaced from the Register where the sin was recorded. How infinite is the mercy of Allah! There will be no trace and reference to this sin in the Hereafter.

Of the two recording Angels (كراما كاتبين) one is head and the other is his subordinate

I have not read this in any book but have heard it from my Sheikh رحمة الله عليه that every man is accompanied by two Angels who are called Kiraman Katibeen and who have been appointed by Allah to record in a Register the deeds of men. The Angel on the right side records good deeds and that on the left records bad deeds. My Sheikh رحمة الله عليه told us that the Angel on the right side is incharge of the Angel on the left side. This is in conformity with Allah's command that when two men are engaged on a job, one of them should be the incharge and the other his subordinate. When a man does a good deed the Angel on the right side records that deed without delay. Being incharge, he is not required to consult the Angel on the left side for this recording. On the other hand when a man does some bad deed, the Angel on the left side has to record this deed in the Register of Deeds but before recording, he has to consult the Angel on the right side who is the Incharge. The Angel on the right side asks his subordinate Angel on the left side to delay recording this sin and to wait for some time more in anticipation of the sinner's repentance for the sin. If the man does not repent, the Angel on the left side consults his incharge again and again, until it is the third time. If the sinner has not repented even this third time the Angel incharge permits his subordinate to record the sin in the Register of Deeds.

Never mind if you have violated your Taubah
A hundred times. Come back and repent again

It is an infinite mercy of Almighty Allah that He allows respite to His sinning servant again and again, so that the sin he has committed may not have to be recorded in the Register of Deeds. If this unfortunate sinner does not offer repentance, the sin is at last recorded against him. Even after this recording the door to TAUBAH remains wide open till the last moments of the man's life. The door to TAUBAH remains open till the time the throes of death have not overtaken him. How kind and Merciful is Almighty Allah!

باز آ باز آ هر آنچه هستی باز آ
گر کافر و گبروبت پرستی باز آ
ایں درگہ ما درگہ نو امیدی نیست
صد بار گر توبہ شکستی باز آ

These persian couplets express the same infinite mercy of Allah in accepting the repentance of His sinning servants. Allah's Court is not a court of despondency. Allah is ready to accept repentance even from such a servant as has violated his repentance for hundreds of times.

Repent for your sins before going to bed

There was a saint among us named Hazrat Baba Najam Ahsan Sahib رحمة الله عليه who was a Khalifah (spiritual successors of Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه. He was a saint endowed with wonderful ways, habits. sense and insight. One day he was speaking on the subject of TAUBAH and I was also sitting by his side. A young man visited him at that time for some purpose. Addressing that young man Baba Sahib رحمة الله عليه said: The people think that this Deen (Islam) is very complicated. I say that it is very easy, sit before Almighty Allah every night and repent before Him for your sins and misdeeds. This is the essence of our Deen.

The fear of sins is not contrary to resolve

When that young man had departed, I told Baba Sahib رحمة الله عليه that "this TAUBAH is immensely wonderul", yet I had some doubts about it. I told him رحمة الله عليه that this TAUBAH materializes on the fulfilment of three conditions:- (i) There should be a feeling of remorse and shame (ii) One must give up sin at once and (iii) A firm resolve that in future the sinner shall not commit the sin again. It is easy to fulfil the first two conditions. The third condition appears to be very difficult - that there should be a firm resolve not to commit the sin again and feel sure about the firmness of the resolve. If the resolve is not firm the TAUBAH will also not be true and as such, the sin concerned may remain unpardoned. This is a casue for anxiety. In reply to my misgivings Hazrat Baba Sahib رحمة الله عليه said:

"Resolve means that a man shall not commit such and such sin in the future. If inspite of this the man does not feel sure that he shall remain true to his resolve, then he should know that such a doubt or misgiving is not contrary to the resolve made. This does not affect the TAUBAH in any way, if the resolve made is firm so far as the man's intention is concerned. As regards the doubt arising in this behalf, it may be remedied by submitting a prayer to Almighty Allah in this way:

O Allah! I have taken resort to repentance with a firm resolve, yet being too weak and helpless, I do not know whether I shall be able to remain firm on this repentance and resolve. You Alone have the power to keep me firm on this resolve. After making this supplication, the doubts and misgivings in this regard will vanish by the mercy and will of Allah."

I must confess that the moment Baba Sahib رحمة الله عليه expressed this clarification,all my doubts disappeared and I was fully convinced and satisfied.

Do not lose heart

Hazrat Sri Saqti رحمة الله عليه was one of the most renowned saints of his time. He was also the Sheikh of the famous wali (Allah's friend) Hazrat Junaid Baghdadi رحمة الله عليه. He has advised that there is no justification for you at all to give way to dejection and become hopeless, as long as you are afraid of sins and feel shame and regret after committing a sin. It is, however, very dangerous when the fear of sins vanishes from the heart, and the heart become devoid of any sense of shame and regret after a sin is committed.

In addition, he becomes bold on sins and tries to argue that what he has done is quite lawful. However, there is no justification at all for despondency when remorse for the sin is born in the heart. My Sheikh frequently recited this couplet:

سوئے نو امیدی مرو کہ امیدہا است
سوئے تاریکی مرو کہ خورشیدہا است

Do not proceed in the direction of despondency, because the avenues of hopes are open before you. Similarly, do not proceed in the direction of darkness when so many illuminating suns are available for you. Just take to repentance to give the final blow to your sins.

Satan creates despondency

As already clarified, there is no place for despondency, as long as Almighty Allah has kept the doors to TAUBAH open. It is you who create despondency in your hearts by brooding in your minds that you are a great sinner, and a condemned fellow unable to do any good. This is Satan's weapon of cunning with which he creates despondency and dejection in you and makes you idle. Do you not see how Merciful and Compassionate Almighty Allah is Who has kept the door to TAUBAH open till the last moments of a man's life? He has also declared that He shall efface the sins of His servants who has repent for their sins. Is there any occasion to give way to dejection and despondence? There is of course none. What is needed is that a servant should present himself before Allah in all humility and submissiveness and seek forgiveness for his sins. All his sins will surely be forgiven.

Woe to my sins

What is the reality of these sins which vanish in a few moments by virtue of the antidotes of Repentance and Istighfar? Hazrat Baba Sahib رحمة الله عليه referred to earlier, was also a very good poet who used to compose very enlightening and encouraging poetry. In one of his couplets he has said:

دولتیں ملی گئیں ہیں آہوں کی
ایسی تیسی میرے گناہوں کی

Almighty Allah has granted me the wealth of warm sighs (to repent) which procure for me His forgiveness. Why should I care for my sins in the presence of this forgiveness?

You should, therefore, note very carefully that there is no justification for dejection as long as the door to TAUBAH is open and as you know it shall remain open till the last moment.

The meaning of Istighfar

You have already seen that TAUBAH (Repentance) has three conditions without which the fulfilment does not materialize. The other term in relation to TAUBAH is Istighfar (seeking forgiveness). This term is commonly used as compared with TAUBAH. The term Istighfar means seeking Allah's forgiveness. According to Imam Ghazzali رحمة الله عليه there are three conditions present in TAUBAH that are not present in Istighfar. Anyone may indulge in Istighfar or seeking Allah's forgiveness at any time and in any circumstances. When some suspicion or misgiving is born in the heart, some default occurs in worship or when some sin is committed. While seeking divine forgiveness one should utter these words of Istighfar with full confidence in their acceptance:

استغفر الله ربی من کل ذنب واتوب الیه

I seek forgiveness of Allah, my Lord, from all sins and turn to Him in repentance.

Should such a man lose heart?

Hazrat Ghazzali رحمة الله عليه has advised that the main door open before a believer is that he should resort to TAUBAH (Repentance), fulfilling all its three conditoins and give up all the sins to which he is addicted. There may however, be a sin sticknig to him which he is not able to give up in spite of his best efforts, should such a person become dejected and lose his confidence in TAUBAH and sit idle in utter hopelessness? What should such a man do?

What should a man earning unlawful income do?

For example, a man is employed in a Bank and Bank employment has been declared forbidden (حرام), because Banks flourish on interest-bearing transactions. The bank employee has given up all his sins and has become punctual in pryaers, fasting, payment of Zakat, etc. and has moulded his life on the pattern of the Shari'ah. He however, finds himself baffled about his source of living which is not lawful according to the Fatwa. What should he do, when he is not in a position to leave his bank service and become unemployed? He is, indeed, doing his best to search for some lawful employment, but he is not successful. Is there any way out for this man to get out of the predicament in which he has been entangled?

Not Taubah, but Istighfar is the right course for such a person

Imam Ghazzali رحمة الله عليه has said that a way out is available even for a man in such a predicament. He should make his best efforts to find out a lawful employment, and should not resign his existing employment. He should continue it till he succeeds in getting an alternative, lawful job. The man cannot resort to TAUBAH, because one of its conditions is to give up the sin involved and he cannot fulfil this condition. The only way now open before him is to ask for Allah's forgiveness (Istighfar) and help for success in his efforts to find an alternative, lawful employment. Imam Ghazzali رحمة الله عليه has said that one who takes this path will find sooner or later an opportunity to get a lawful job and get rid of the bank employment. The Imam has supported his argument with this Hadith:

ما اصر من استغفر (ترمذی، کتاب الدعوات، باب نمبر ۱۱۹، حدیث نمبر ۳۵۵٤)

He who seeks Allahs' forgiveness for a sin is not counted among those who insist on their sins.

Almighty Allah has mentioned the same point in a verse of the Holy Qur'an :

وَالَّذِيْنَ اِذَا فَعَلُوْا فَاحِشَةً اَوْ ظَلَمُوْٓا اَنْفُسَهُمْ ذَكَرُوا اللّٰهَ فَاسْتَغْفَرُوْا لِذُنُوْبِهِمْ ۫ وَمَنْ يَّغْفِرُ الذُّنُوْبَ اِلَّا اللّٰهُ ۣ وَلَمْ يُصِرُّوْا عَلٰى مَا فَعَلُوْا وَهُمْ يَعْلَمُوْنَ (آل عمران ۱۳۵)

And those who, when they do an evil thing or wrong themselves, remember Allah and implore forgiveness for their sins - Who can forgive sins except Allah only? - and will not knowingly repeat (the wrong) they did". (3:135)

So resorting to Istighfar is inevitable at all costs, even when a man is not able to give up a sin. Some learned saints have suggested that this should be done on the same spot on which the sin is committed. The secret of this suggestion lies that when a sin is being done that spot will testify to that a sin committed was on it, it will also testify to the Istighfar recited on for the forgiveness of that sin.

The best words of Istighfar

May our lives be sacrificed for the Holy Prophet ﷺ who has taught his Ummah such words of Istighfar as no man could think of despite his best efforts. For example, take these words:

رَبِّ اغْفِرْ وَارْحَمْ وَاعْفُ عَنَّا وَتَكَرَّمْ وَتَجَاوَزْ عَمَّا تَعْلَمْ فَاِنَّكَ تَعْلَمُ مَالَا نَعْلَمُ اِنَّكَ اَنْتَ الْاَعَزُّ الْاَكْرَمُ

The Holy Prophet ﷺ used to utter the words of Istighfar between the two green signals, while performing his Sa'ee between the rocks of Safa and Marwah. These words may be translated as:

"O Allah, forgive us, have mercy on us, excuse us and pardon us for the sins which You know and which we do not know. You indeed, are the most Honourable, the most Respectable".

There are many sins which people do not feel that they are sins, nor do they know that they are sins. The number and varieties of sins are so vast that they can hardly be counted or comprehended. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has solved this problem by including in his sacred Hadith the words which "You know and which we do not know".

The master Istighfar

It is much better to memorize سید الاستغفار (Master Istighfar) and recite it as a matter of daily routine. It runs thus:

اَللّٰهُمَّ اَنْتَ رَبِّيْ لَا اِلٰهَ اِلَّا اَنْتَ خَلَقْتَنِيْ وَاَنَا عَبْدُكَ وَاَنَا عَلٰى عَهْدِكَ وَوَعْدِكَ مَااسْتَطَعْتُ اَعُوْذُبِكَ مِنْ شَرِّمَا صَنَعْتُ اَبُوْءُ اِلَيْكَ بِنِعْمَتِكَ عَلَيَّ وَاَبُوْءُ لَكَ بِذَنْبِيْ فَاغْفِرْلِيْ ذُنُوْبِيْ فَاِنَّهٗ لَا يَغْفِرُ الذُّنُوْبَ اِلَّا اَنْتَ (صحیح بخاری کتاب الدعوات باب افضل الاستغفار حدیث نمبر ٦٣٠٦)

This may be translated as follows:

"O Allah ! You are my Sustaining Lord. There is none worthy of worship except You. You created me and I am a slave of You. As far as possible I abide by the undertaking and promise I have made with You. I seek refuge with You from what (sins) I have done. I turn to you (in gratitude) with the blessings You have granted me. I also turn to You in repentance for my sins. So forgive my sins, as there is none except You who can forgive sins".

It occurs in a Hadith that if a man recites this Master Istighfar in the morning with full faith and conviction, and if he dies during that day he shall enter Paradise direct. Similarly, if anyone recites it in the evening and dies during that night he will enter Paradise direct. Let everyone make it his daily routine to recite this Master Istighfar every morning and evening or still better, after every prayer, because the Holy Prophet ﷺ has himself named it سید الاستغفار (Master Istighfar).

Almighty Allah has taught His Prophet ﷺ these sacred words and the latter (he) ﷺ has, in turn, taught his Ummah the same words. This goes to prove that Almighty Allah desires to forgive His servants through this Master Istighfar. It is, therefore, recommended emphatically that all should include it in their daily routine. If you so desire, you may also memorise the following brief words of Istighfar:

اَسْتَغْفِرُ اللّٰهَ رَبِّیْ مِنْ کُلِّ ذَنْبٍ وَّاَتُوْبُ اِلَیْهِ

There is also no harm if only the words استغفر اللہ (I seek Allah's forgivenes) are rehearsed, as they too contain the essence of Istighfar and are effective.

The best Hadith

عن ابی هریرة رضی الله تعالی عنه قال:قال رسول الله صلی الله علیه وسلم:والذی نفسی بیده لولم تذنبوا لذهب الله تعالی بکم،ولجاء بقوم یذنبون فیستغفرون الله تعالی فیغفرلهم" (صحیح مسلم، کتاب التوبة، باب سقوط الذنوب بالاستغفارحدیث نمبر ۲۷۴۹)

Hazrat Abu Hurairah رضی اللہ عنہ has narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said: By that personality in Whose hands is my life (the Holy Prophet ﷺ always spoke on oath about important issues) if you do not commit sins at all, Almighty Allah will take you away and bring (in your place) another community who will commit sins, will seek forgiveness and will be granted forgiveness. (Sahih Muslim)

Allah has created in man the faculty of committing sins

This Hadith contains in it an indication about Allah's wisdom in creating man. If it had been the intention of Almighty Allah to create a community that had no ability to commit sins, He would not have created man at all. The Angels were enough for that. The Angels are a community that are always engaged in worshipping Allah and in rehearsing His sacred names. This community of Angels is deprived of the ability of committing sins, it cannot commit sins even if it desired to do so.

On the other hand, man is a creation who has been endowed with the faculties of both doing good and committing sins. It was Allah's will that man should refrain from sins, despite his inherent ability to commit sins and should at once seek forgiveness. If he ever committed a sin, it would thus defeat the very purpose of creating man.

We should remember that when Almighty Allah created man to live on the earth as Allah's vicegerent the Angels objected to this scheme, because such a creature would create disturbances and would shed blood on the earth. They said that they were always busy with singing Allah's praise and glorifying Him. Almighty Allah dismissed their objection by saying:

اِنِّیۡۤ اَعۡلَمُ مَالَا تَعۡلَمُوۡنَ (سورۃ البقرۃ)

Surely, I know what you do not know (2:30)

This is no credit of the Angels

It is not creditable if the Angels are not committing any sins, because they have not been endowed with the ability to commit sins. The credit goes to that community which possesses the ability to commit sins, yet it keeps itself away from sins.

For example, there is a blind man who does not see undesirable and obscene sights, including films and filthy pictures. There is no credit of his in these abstinences, because he has no eyesight. On the other hand, there is a man who can see, has ambitions and feelings to enjoy the charming scenes around him, yet he avoids casting glances on undesirable and unlawful objects and sights. This God-fearing man is occupying a position for which Almighty Allah has promised Paradise.

The pleasures of Paradise are reserved only for man

Although the Angels are residing permanently in Paraidse, yet they cannot enjoy its tastes and pleasures, because they have not been granted the ability for such enjoyments. Almighty Alalh has created the pleasures and enjoyments of Paradise for such a creature (man) whom He has granted the ability to commit sins as well as the ability to take to the path of piety and righteousness. Who can interfere with the supreme wisdom and unquestionable will of Almighty Allah? It is in response to this wisdom that He created this unique universe, so that He may raise a creature having the ability to commit sins, yet he would at the same time avoid these sins to the best of his ability. He would also seek Allah's forgiveness, if he ever happened to commit a sin by chance. As a result of this Istighfar, he becomes a point of attraction for Allah's grace, mercy and forgiveness. How could Allah's attribute of mercy be demonstrated, if man did not commit sins?

Creation of Kufr (infidelity) too is not free from wisdom

The learned saints have said that everything in this universe has some wisdom and purpose behind it. A most repulsive trait like KUFR (infidelity) has also some wisdom at its back. Maulana Rumi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has thus said in a couplet:

در کارخانہ عشق از کفر ناگزیر است
آتش کرا بسوزد گر بولہب نباشد

In this universe Kufr (infidelity) has also its purpose. Whom should the Fire of Hell burn if a Kafir like Abu Lahab did not exist?

Thus, it is not difficult to understand that sins too form part of Allah's will. The temptation to commit sins has been placed in man's nature, so that he may strive to crush this temptation. The more a man suppresses and crushes this temptation for sins, the more will he attain the blessings and a high place of righteousness.

Worldly desires and sins are like fuel

Maulana Rumi رحمة الله عليه was, by the grace of Allah, an adept in conceiving and setting apt examples. In one of his couplet he رحمة الله عليه has said so nicely:

شہوت دنیا مثال گلخن است
کہ ازو حمام تقوی روشن است

This means that these worldly desires, pleasures, enjoyments and sins possess an advantage in them, because Almighty Allah has created them to serve as fuel, so that by burning this fuel you may light the warm-bath of righteousness تقوی.

You may be facing a situation in which irresistible temptation is rising in your heart; your heart is being overwhelmed with an urge to commit a sin too tempting for you to resist it. What should you do in such a situation? In order to please Allah, crush this sinful desire and control your defiant self. If you do this the light of righteousness تقوی will illumine in you. If this urge to sin had not existed how could you warm up the bath of Taqwa?

The sweetness of Eeman (belief)

It occurs in a Hadith that once a strong desire arose in the heart of a man to cast an unlawful glance at a strange woman. This man, however, suppressed this sinful desire for fear of Allah. In such a critical situation when a man restrains his desires for no other reason but for the fear of Allah, Allah grants him the sweetness of Eeman (belief) the likes of which he could never get by satisfying his lustful desires. Now consider how this desire to commit a sin became a means of attaining the sweetness of Eeman. How could this be possible if there was no urge and no desire for sin?

The wisdom of creating sin

Now a question arises why Almighty Allah has created sin when it is neither His will nor His pleasure that His servants should commit sins. The reply to this question is that Allah has placed in the creation of sin two aspects of wisdom. The first is that when a servant of Allah does his best to refrain from a sin, he receives the light of Taqwa (Righteousness) and the honour of nearness to Allah. The more a man keeps himself away from sins, the higher he rises in status and dignity in the sight of Allah. Almighty Allah has said in the Holy Qur'an:

وَمَنْ يَّتَّقِ اللّٰهَ يَجْعَلْ لَّهٗ مَخْرَجًا (الطلاق:٢)

And whosoever fears Allah, Allah will appoint a way out for him (65:2)

Rise to higher stations by means of Taubah (repentance)

As a human being man does sometime fall into sins in spite of all his efforts to shun them. In such a situation it is expected of him to turn to Almighty Allah in repentance with deep feelings of regret and remorse. He should recite the following words of Istighfar:

استغفر الله ربی من کل ذنب و اتوب الیه

I seek forgiveness of Allah, my Lord, from all sins and turn to Him (in repentance).

As a result of the expression of this feeling of shame and regret in seeking forgiveness, his status will be raised. He will thus become a point of attraction for Allah's mercy and forgiveness. This is the second aspect of wisdom in creating sins.

These are very delicate and subtle points. May Almighty Allah protect us form falling into error about their right interpretation. A man should never be bold after committing sins. However, if by chance a sin is committed there is no cause for becoming dejected. Almighty Allah has opened the doors of Taubah and Istighfar for such occasions to save his servants from falling into dejection and despondency.

A man commits a sin and feels ashamed, then turns to Allah in repentance with profound regret and shamefulness sometimes elevates him to a position of righteousness which he could not attain without committing that sin.

An account of Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ

Hakimul Ummat Hazrat Maulana Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has related an event concerning Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ. Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ used to get up every night for the Tahajjud prayer. One night he رضی اللہ عنہ could not get up in time and missed his Tahajjud prayer. As it was the first time that he رضی اللہ عنہ had missed Tahajjud prayer, he رضی اللہ عنہ was grieved to such an extent that he spent the entire day in weeping. The next night at Tahajjud time an elderly man approached and awoke him رضی اللہ عنہ for the prayer. Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ got up promptly and asked the man who he was. He replied that he was the same notorious Iblees. Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ asked him why he was advising him to offer the prayer when it was his duty to misguide the servants of Allah. Iblees tried to avoid answering this question but when he was pressed by Hazrat Mu'awiyah رضی اللہ عنہ he divulged the secret, saying: The last night I had kept you away from the prayer and you had missed it. As a result of this ommission you spent the entire day weeping and sobbing. This resulted in the increase of your status which you would not have attained by offering the prayer. I feel that I was a great loser. I, therefore, awoke you for the prayer so that you may not attain promotion in your status.

Replacement by another creature

The learned saints therefore, say that a man after having committed a sin must repent for the sin and seek Allah's forgiveness with feelings of shame, remorse and sorrow. Sometimes the status of such a repentant sinner is raised very high, beyond ones imagination. These TAUBAH and ISTIGHFAR are great blessings. That is why the Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in this Hadith that "if you do not commit sins at all, Almighty Allah will take you away and bring (in your place) another community who will commit sins, will seek forgiveness and will be granted forgiveness".

Through this Hadith, the Holy Prophet ﷺ has taught us a practical lesson. If we ever commit some sin, we should not feel dejected, frustrated or hopeless. We should take resort to Taubah and Istighfar to attract Allah's forgiveness. We should, however, not commit a sin intentionally. We should do our best to refrain from sins at all times and in all circumstances.

It is a prescribed obligatory duty to refrain from sins

By experiencing the blessings of Taubah and Istighfar, one may think that it is hardly necessary to refrain from sins which Allah, by His mercy, forgives so promptly and easily. Bear in mind that it is a prescribed obligatory (فرض) duty imposed on everyone that he should protect himself from sins at every step in his life. However, as a human being, if he by chance commits a sin, he should not give way to dejection and hopelessness but should turn to repentance. If a man is committing a sin and it is not possible for him to give up that sin, as in the case of a Bank employee, he should be on the look out for an alternative, lawful employment as sincerely and desperately as does a person who is out of employment. In the meantime he should also indulge in Taubah and Istighfar, as needed.

Promotion in status on account of sickness

You may have heard this Hadith that on account of sickness the sins of the sick person are forgiven and his status is raised in proportion to the severity of the sickness. Does this Hadith mean that man should pray to Allah to inflict him with sickness or should he try to fall sick intentionally in order to reap the benefits and blessings of sickness? Certainly not. None can desire sickness by any means. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has himself taught his Ummah, through his Ahadith, to seek from Almighty Allah health not sickness. However, if sickness befalls you suddenly, then take it as an act of Allah's will meant for increasing your status. Just like sickness the case of sin should be shunned at all costs. However, if surrounded by unfavourable circumstances a man commits a sin only by chance and not by choice, he has no alternative but to take resort to Taubah and Istighfar. This will lead to the promotion of his status. This is the reality of Istighfar.

There are three categories of Taubah and Istighfar

There are three categories of Taubah and Istighfar, viz.

1- Repentance and seeking forgiveness for sins.

2- Istighfar for the sake of defaults in devotion and worship.

3- Istighfar for defaults and carelessness committed in the matter of Istighfar itself.

Perfection of Taubah

The first category viz., Istighfar for sins is an obligatory duty imposed on every individual without any exception, whatsoever. Everyone is required to repent and seek forgiveness for his sins. That is why in (تکمیل توبہ) Islamic mysticism and Tareeqat (the practical application of the Sharee'ah) perfection of Taubah is regarded as the first step on which are based all other steps. When anyone calls on a Sheikh for his spiritual reform, the latter directs him to make his Taubah perfect in all respects. Imam Ghazzali رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has said:

هو اول اقدام المريدين

It is the first step of a person who submits himself to a Sheikh for his reform and guidance.

The undertaking (بیعت) that is made at the hands of the Sheikh is also an undertaking for perfect Taubah. At the time of this undertaking the disciple repents for all his past sins and resolves and undertakes not to commit any sin in the future. Thereafter, the Sheikh assists him in completing his Taubah.

Taubah* in breif

The Sheikhs say that the process of perfection of Taubah consists of two stages - Taubah in brief (توبہ اجمالی) and Taubah in detail (توبہ تفصیلی). In Taubah in brief, a man is required to review all the sins of his past life in brief and to repent for them all in the presence of Almighty Allah. The best way of performing Taubah in brief is to offer two Rak'ats with the intention of Salat-e-Taubah. Thereafter, he (repentant) should resovle to give up once and for all each and every sin whether it is major or minor, whether it relates to the usurpation of a right of Allah or that of His servant. This in short is Taubah in brief (توبہ اجمالی).

Taubah in detail

The resolve made in Taubah in brief does not mean that a man has become quite clean and sinless and has nothing more to do. The next comes the second stage of Taubah in detail (توبہ تفصیلی). In this second stage of Taubah, the repentant should start making good all his sins and lapses as far as possible. Unless this is done, his Taubah will not be complete. For example, he has missed obligatory (فرض) prayers. It is compulsory (فرض) for him to compensate for these missed prayers before his death. The first step in reforming one's self is to complete one's Taubah in this way. This is inevitable for the perfection of Taubah and, in turn, for the reform of the self.

Make a calculation of your prayers

Prayer (Salat) occupies the first place in Taubah in detail. You have to calculate the number of prayers you have missed from the day you attained maturity till this day. Attaining maturity means in the case of a boy, the age at which he begins to have nocturnal emissions. In the case of a girl, it is the age at which she starts her menses. If there is anyone in whom these symptoms do not appear in time, it should be understood that the boy or the girl has attained maturity at the age of fifteen years. From this age the obligations of prayers, fasting and other religious duties fall due and become effective.

A disciple has therefore, to calculate the number of all his missed prayers since the day he/she attained maturity till the day. Among them there will be men who were fortunate enough to be born and brought up in the homes of religious parents and were put on the straight path of Deen (religion). Thus, such fortunate persons will have no liability of oustanding prayers, since they attained matuirty till the day. Such a situation is most welcome.

The Holy Prophet ﷺ has advised that a boy should be instructed about prayers at the age of seven years. At the age of ten years, he should be forced to offer prayers and may be given light beating, if necessary. In case some prayers have been missed even after attaining maturity on account of negligence, it is an obligatory duty to compensate for them. How to do this? This may be done by making an accurate calculation of the prayers missed during life. If it is not possible to make a very accurate calculation of the number, it may be estimated with care but be liberal in your estimation so that it may be more, but not less, than the prayers actually missed. It may be recorded in a register in this way:

Today, dated (date) I am liable to compensate for (number) prayers. I am commencing these compensatory prayers from today. If I am not able to compensate for the missed prayers during my life, I hereby leave a will that compensation money for the prayers not compensated may be calculated and paid out of my legacy. Signature and date.

Draw up a Will

It is necessary to draw up a will in writing, because if the liable person dies before discharging this liability, then in the absence of such a will the Shari'ah does not bind the inheritors to discharge this liability. If he makes a will in writing to this effect, then according to Shari'ah, the inheritors will be duty-bound to pay the compensation money for the missed prayers to the extent of one third of the total legacy.

> The Holy Prophet ﷺ has advised that if a man who beleives in Allah and the Last Day and has anything to write by way of a will then it is not lawful for him to pass even two nights without writing this will. (Jami Tirmazi)

If a person has to compensate for missed prayers he must draw up a will to this effect in the light of this Hadith. Consider how many of us have written our wills ? It is a permanent sin not to wirte a will and the sin will continue as long as the will remains unwritten. We should, therefore, draw up our will just now.

How to compensate for lifelong missed prayers

Thereafter, he should commence compensating for the prayers missed throughout his lifeline. These are called قضاء عمری(compensation for lifelong missed prayers). This may be done by offering a compensatory prayer along with the currently due prayer. If one has time to spare, one may offer more than one compensatory prayer along with the currently due prayer. This is to ensure the discharge of this liability as early as possible. It is better to offer these compensatory prayers in place of the optional prayers attached with the currently due prayers. No optional prayer is lawful after the Fajr (Dawn) prayer and the Asr (later afternoon) prayer, but it is lawful to offer compensatory prayers during these intervals. This is a facility provided by Almighty Allah and we should take advantage of this facility. The number of compensatory prayers offered and the number outstanding should be noted in the record maintained for this purpose.

It is not right to offer compensatory prayers in place of Sunnah prayers

Some people inquire if they can ignore the Sunnah prayers and utilize the time so saved for offering compensatory prayers. The answer to this question is that it is not right to ignore and miss the affirmed Sunnah (مؤکدہ) prayers. It is, however, quite lawful to offer compensatory prayers in place of optional prayers.

Calculation of missed Fasts and writing a Will about them

Likewise, you should examine the position about your fasts. Have you missed any obligatory Fasts from the time you attained maturity till this day? If you are liable for any missed Fast during the period of your attaining maturity then make a calculation and record the details about these fasts as follows :

On this day dated..... I am liable for .... (number) missed fasts for which I am beginning to compensate one by one. If I am not able to discharge this liability during my life, compensation money for the outstanding Fasts should be paid from my legacy. Note in your record the number of fasts compensated and the number outstanding. This is to keep the account quite clear and free from any doubt. Signature and date

Calculation of Zakat due for payment and its record in the Will

In the same way, you should examine the position in your Zakat account. Zakat falls due as an obligatory duty after a man attains maturity. At this age, if a man had properties assessable for Zakat but did not pay it, Zakat should be calculated separately for each year and the outstanding amounts paid as accurately as possible. In case exact and very accurate calculation is not possible, make a liberal estimate of the liability which should be more, but not less, than the amount due for payment. Thereafter, commence payment and enter each payment and the balance outstanding in the record maintained for this purpose. Try to discharge this liability as soon as possible.

In the same way it is obligatory to perform Hajj once in life. If it has fallen due but has not yet been performed, do this now or as early as possible. These are all rights due to Almighty Allah which form part of Taubah in detail (توبہ تفصیلی).

Discharge the rights of the servants (of Allah) or get them waived

After the rights due to Almighty Allah, examine the position of your liability towards the servants of Allah. Not only does it include financial liabilities, but it also includes actions or sayings whereby you may have displeased or harmed a person. It is necessary to have the wrongs done by you pardoned by the victims. It occurs in a Hadith that once the Holy Prophet ﷺ made this announcement in an assembly of his Noble Companions رضی اللہ عنہم about himself:

> I request you to pardon me, if I have caused to anyone of you any distress or any grief or if anyone's right is outstanding against me. Today I am standing here before you. The claimant may either take revenge on me or pardon me.

When the Holy Prophet ﷺ himself has sought pardon for his own sake, where do we stand? It is therefore, necessary to establish contact personally, in writing or as convenient with all your relations, friends, school and office colleagues, and business partners, etc. to whom you may be owing some amount or whom you may have harmed, insulted or displeased in any way. After contact pay their dues to them or have them waived by them. Similarly, request them to pardon you for any wrong, distress or pain caused to them. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in another Hadith:

> If any man has wronged another man in any way financially, mentally or physically, he should seek pardon of the man wronged. He should have his liabilities cleared by payment of gold or silver, before the arrival of a Day when there will be no Dirhams nor Dinars, and neither will gold or silver be of any avail.

Accounts of those who were worried about their Hereafter

Those whom Almighty Allah has granted fear and anxiety about their Hereafter, approach all their creditors and claimants, one by one, and discharge their rights or beg them to condone their dues. In view of the importance of this issue, Hazrat Thanawi رحمۃ اللہ علیہ wrote a pamphlet titled العذر والنظر (Al-uzr wan-Nazr) and circulated it among all his friends, acquaintances and colleagues. In this pamphlet he رحمۃ اللہ علیہ addressed an appeal to all of them to receive from him or to condone and pardon whatever amounts, dues or liabilities might be outstanding against him رحمۃ اللہ علیہ. Similarly, my father, Mufti Muhammad Shafi Sahib رحمۃ اللہ علیہ addressed a letter titled تلافی مافات (compensation of past liabilities) to all his elders, friends and acquaintances requesting them to condone their rights and pardon the wrongs, if any, done to them.

What to do when some rights of the servants of Allah remain undischarged?

The rights of Allah are forgiven by Him through Taubah. As for the rights that are due to the servants of Allah, they cannot be wiped of unless they are paid to the claimants or the latter condone them. Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has mentioned by way of an example, a case in which a man could not discharge the rights due by him to a servants of Allah. Later on, Almighty Allah reminded him of the lapses on his part and also guided him to repent for his sins. As a result of this turning point in his life, he began to search for his creditors and claimants and pay their dues. Death, however overtook him before he could clear his liabilities in full, by payment or by getting them condoned. Now is there any way out for such a man to save himself from the punishment of the Hereafter? Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has said that even such a man should not despair of rescue and salvation, as he had resorted to repentance and started discharging his liabilities and was doing his best on this behalf. It is hoped that by virtue of his sincere striving Allah will make his claimants condone their claims against this man and forgive him, by His grace and intervention.

A wonderful example of Allah's forgiveness

In support of his opinion, Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has cited a famous incident narrated in the Hadith about a murderer who had commutted ninety-nine murders. After having committed these horrible sins, he became worried about the punishment of the Hereafter. In order to find a way out of this predicament he visited a Christian Monk and informed him about his sin of ninety-nine murders. He asked him if there was any way out for him. The Monk told him that there was none and that he had totally ruined himself. This reply added to the man's dejection. In his great dejection he killed this Monk also, thus raising the number of his murders to one hundred. As the man was determined to find some way out for himself, he called upon another godly saint and related to him his harrowing tale. This saint convinced the murderer that there was nothing at all to feel dejected for. He advised the sinner first to repent for his sins, leave the place for another village and stay there, as it was the abode of righteous men. Their company would benefit him. As he had repented for his sins, he set off for that village, as he had been advised to do.

While he was still on the way, death overtook him. It occurs in narrative that even in his struggle for life and death, he tried to take himself nearer and nearer to the place of his destination by dragging himself in that direction on his chest. At last he died and the Angles of mercy and the Angels of punishment both reached the spot to get hold of the man's soul. A dispute arose between the two. The Angels of mercy argued that they would take the man's soul with them, as he had repented for his sins and was going to the village of righteous men. The Angels of punishment argued that it was their right to get the man's soul, as he had murdered one hundred men and had not yet been granted forgiveness. To settle this disptue Almighty Allah decided that it should be seen whether at the time of death the man was nearer to the village from which he had started or to the village of the righteous men to which he was going. When the distance travelled was measured it was found that he was nearer to the village to which he was going. His soul was therefore handed over to the Angels of mercy. Almighty Allah forgave the sin of murdering one hundred men, by virtue of his sincere effort for salvation. (Sahih Muslim.. .. Hadith No: 2766)

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has further said that although the man had rights of the servants of Allah outstanding against him, yet Allah granted him salvation by virtue of the sincere efforts he made for it. This story contains the analogy of a man who offers repentance and starts his efforts to pay the rights of the servants of Allah outstanding against him, but in the meantime death overtakes him. It can be said on the basis of this analogy that Allah will, by His mercy, grant salvation even to such a murderer and make his claimants satisfied and agreeable to forgo their rights against the man. This will come to pass on account of Allah's infinite mercy.

Thus, it is necessary to offer these two categories of Taubah. (i) Taubah in breif (اجمالی) and (ii) Taubah in detail (تفصیلی).

Forget your past sins

Our Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه used to advise us that after having offered these two categories of Taubah : Taubah in brief and Taubah in detail, we should forget our past sins. To remember the sins after having once repented for them is to disregard and under-rate Allah's attribute of forgiveness. Almighty Allah has promised that He shall accept our Taubah and Istighfar and forgive our sins and efface the entries of the sins made in the Register of Deeds. This trend of recalling to the mind the past sins which have already been forgiven is an act of disparaging Allah's attribute of mercy. You should note that brooding over the past sins sometimes proves a veil and hindrance in your way.

Offer Istighfar on remembering your past sins

There is a great difference between a specialist and a non-specialist. A non-specialist sometimes shows the opposite path. A friend of mine was a very righteous man, regular in his prayers, fasts, etc. He told me that his Sheikh had advised him to bring back to memory all the past sins at Tahajjud time and feel sorry for them with tearful eyes. On the other hand our Dr Sahib رحمة الله عليه did not appreciate such practice. Not only has Almighty Allah accepted our Taubah and forgiven our sins, but He has also erased them from the Register of Deeds. By insisting on reviving the memory of these past forgiven and obliterated sins, do you want to insist that you will not let them be forgiven and erased? This is disregarding and disparaging Allah's attribute of mercy. So forget those sins once and for all. However, if ever they recur to your memory unintentionally, get rid of them by reciting Istighfar.

Reform your present

What a valuable piece of advice has my Sheikh, Dr. Sahib رحمة الله عليه given us! He has advised us that, when we have once repented, we should give up brooding over the past. We should hope that Allah has accepted our Taubah and Allah fulfil His promise. We also should not think of the future. We should pay attention to the present and do our best to ameliorate it and pass it in obeying Allah and His Prophet ﷺ.

Presently we are passing our days in brooding over the past and feeling afraid of the consequences of the sins committed in those days. This attitude breeds despondency and has an adverse effect on our present conditions. Some of us are prone to think in advance about the future and what it has in store for us. What can we gain by such trend of thinking? We always say "future will take care of itself". Why should we worry about it now? We should concentrate our attention on the present because in due course of time, this present will become the past and the future will become the present. We should, therefore, take care to ameliorate the present which we have in hand. In fact, it is Satan who is beguiling us and drawing our attention to the past and the sins we have committed in it and to the future which we may spoil by similar sins. By bringing before our eyes the past and future he is bent upon ruining our present. So do not be misled by this cunning Satan and take care to ameliorate our present which is before us.

May Almighty Allah grant us the right trend of thinking. Aameen.

عن ابی قلابة رحمه الله تعالی قال ان الله لمالعن ابلیس سئله النظرة فانظره الی یوم الدین قال وعزتك لا اخرج من قلب ابن ادم مادام فیه الروح قال الله تعالی وعزتی لا احجب عنه التوبة مادام الروح فی الجسد

The best age

Hazrat Abu Qalabah رحمة الله عليه is one of the most dignified Tabi'een. If anyone had the honour of seeing Holy Prophet ﷺ in a state of having Eeman (belief) in him ﷺ, he is called a Sahabi (Companion). A believer who saw a Companion رضی الله عنه is called a Tabi'ee, while a believer who saw a Tabi'ee is called a Taba'-Tabi'ee. These are the three ages which the Holy Prophet ﷺ has described as the Best ages. He ﷺ has thus said in a Hadith:

خیرالناس قرنی ثم الذین یلونهم ثم الذین یلونهم (صحیح بخاری، باب فضائل اصحاب النبی صلی الله علیه وسلم)

The best people are those who are living in my age, then those who will come after them and then those who will come after the latter.

The Tabi'een too had been granted by Almighty Allah a very high status by virtue of the auspicious company of the Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم. Hazrat Abu Qalabah رحمة الله عليه is one of the Tabi'een. He did not have a direct contact with the Holy Prophet ﷺ, yet he had the honour of meeting many of the Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم. He was a favourite pupil of Hazrat Anas رضی الله عنه.

The precaution and fear exercised by the Tabi'een

Hazrat Abu Qalabah رحمة الله عليه has narrated this Hadith as a saying of his own, yet in reality it possesses the characteristics of a Hadith. He did this, because he could not say such a thing on the authority of his own intellect. He has narrated this as a saying of his own because the Tabi'een were afraid of attributing anything to the Holy Prophet ﷺ, lest they should commit a fault in so doing and be held accountable for that. The Holy Prophet ﷺ has said in a Hadith:

من کذب علی متعمدا فلیتبوأ مقعده من النار (صحیح بخاری، کتاب العلم، باب اثم من کذب علی النبی صلی الله علیه وسلم)

A man who attributes a lies to me intentionally should make Hell his final resort. (Sahih Bukhari)

The Noble Companions رضی الله عنهم, therefore, shuddered with fear at this severe warning, when they narrated any Hadith.

Great precaution should be taken in narrating a Hadith

A Tabi'ee رحمة الله عليه has stated about a Sahabi (Companion) that when the latter narrated before him any Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ, his face turned pale and sometimes he shuddered with fear, lest he should commit some mistake in his narration. In order to be cautious while narrating a Hadith, some Companions رضی اللہ عنہم took care to add these words "The Holy Prophet ﷺ said something like this or that." They did all this as a precaution against the possibility of attributing to the Holy Prophet ﷺ something which he did not say. We should all learn a lesson from this. Sometimes we open our mouth to narrate a Hadith without due care and authority. None should narrate words as Hadith, unless one is sure of the exact words of the Hadith. Just see how in this very narrative Hazrat Abu Qalabah رحمۃاللہ علیہ has not narrated that the Holy Prophet ﷺ said this or that. Although what he narrated is a Hadith, yet as a precaution he has narrated the words as a saying of his own.

He رحمۃ اللہ علیہ has said that Almighty Allah expelled Iblees from His Court for disobeying His command to prostrate himself before Hazrat Adam علیہ السلام. Every Muslim is well aware of this story, as related in the Holy Qur'an.

Iblees was right, but.....

Apparently it seems that what Iblees alleged was perhaps not so objectionable. It would hardly seem to be incorrect and objectionable if in reply to the divine command Iblees had said: This forehead is reserved for You. It cannot bend before anyone other than You. Why should I prostrate myself before this figure made of clay which You have shaped with Your hands? My prostration is for You alone. Although, the argument looks apparently quite plausible, yet it is quite fallacious and wrong, because Almighty Allah Himself commanded Iblees to bow before Hazrat Adam علیہ السلام. After this command there was no alternative left for Iblees but to obey it without any hesitation, instead of putting forward frivolous excuses.

It is quite true to say that man does not deserve that another man should bow down before him. When the last Ummah of the Holy Prophet ﷺ was raised on this earth the final command was issued that it was unlawful for a man to bow in prostration before another man. This was the original command about prostration. Here when the Authority issuing this command is Allah Himself who is asking someone to bow down before another man or before his figure, there is no room for disobedience on the dictates of one's intellect. This was Satan's first fault in relying on his intellect in disobeying Allah's command.

I am superior to Adam علیہ السلام

The second fault Satan committed was that in refusing to prostrate himself before Adam علیہ السلام he did not justify his disobedience by saying that his forehead was reserved for Allah alone. He argued that Adam علیہ السلام was created from clay while he (Satan) was created from fire. As fire is superior to clay so he could not prostrate himself before Adam علیہ السلام. As a result of his pride and disobedience, Almighty Allah turned Satan out of His court condemned, cursed and rejected him for all times.

Iblees obtained respite from Allah

When Almighty Allah condemned Iblees and turned him out, he asked Allah for resptie and said:

اَنْظِرْنِی اِلٰی یَوْمِ یُبْعَثُوْنَ (الاعراف: ۱٤)

Grant me respite till the day when they are raised (to life). (7:14).

Thus, he appealed for life till the Day of Judgment and his appeal was granted.

Satan possesses great knowledge

Hazrat Thanawi رحمة الله عليه has mentioned that it appeared to him from this event that Satan has great knowledge about Almighty Allah. See how at a time when he was being cursed, condemned, turned out and exposed to Allah's wrath, he succeeded in appealing for respite which he was granted. He knew it very well that Almighty Allah is never overpowered by wrath and that He grants requests even during such moments of anger and displeasure. Thus Satan was able to receive respite.

I shall remain beguiling him till death

Almighty Allah said in reply :

إِنَّكَ مِنَ الْمُنْظَرِيْنَ إِلَى يَوْمِ الْوَقْتِ الْمَعْلُوْمِ (الحجر:٣٨)

Certainly, you are of those granted respite till an appointed time. (15:38).

Thus, when Satan got respite till the Day of Judgment, he addressed Almighty Allah saying" I swear by Your honour that I shall not get out of the son of Adam, as long as there is soul in his body, i.e. as long as he is alive. I shall be seducing this man and sowing in his heart the seed of wrongs and misleading thoughts. On account of whom I have been expelled from the Divine Court. It shall be my duty to incite him towards all sorts of sins, crimes and lewdness, as long as he is aliver.

I shall be accepting Taubah (Repentance) till the Day of Judgment

Almighty Allah also swore by His honour and said: "By My honour, I shall not close the door of repentance on the sons of Adam عليه السلام as long as they are alive. You swear by My honour that you shall not get out of them and I also swear by My honour that I shall not close the door of Taubah (repentance) on them. After a man has offered his Taubah, then by virtue of that Taubah I shall wipe off instantly all the traces of your seductions, your deception and your frauds."

Thus, Almighty Allah declared a general amnesty and His mercy in favour of the sons of Adam عليه السلام. He also advised man not to think that in the shape of Satan Allah has imposed on man some supernatural power from which man cannot save himself.

Satan is a trial

Allah has said that He has created Satan as a trial and test for men. It is He who created him and granted him the power to misguide and seduce human being. He, however, did not grant such power as you cannot resist and overpower. Allah has clearly declared in the Holy Qur'an:

إِنَّ كَيْدَ الشَّيْطٰنِ كَانَ ضَعِيْفًا (النساء:٧٦)

Surely, Satan's strategy is ever weak. (4:76).

It is Allah's assertion that the treacherous schemes, conspiracies and frauds which Satan fabricates for deluding His servants are very feeble. They fail and give way to a little resistance offered by the beleivers against this cobweb of Satan. This treacherous Satan overpowers only those who are coward and do not pull courage to stand before this enemy, nor do they want to give up their sins. Even for such coward persons who cannot stand against Satan's strategy, Allah has created the antidotes of Taubah (repentance) and Istighfar (Seeking forgiveness). By taking advantage of these antidotes the poison of Satan's seduction is rendered ineffective and powerless at once. So feeble and transitory is Satan's network of treachery and seduction!

Become the best sinner

This heading seems to be a queer paradox, yet it is not so. The truth contained in it is confirmed by another Hadith of the Holy Prophet ﷺ which runs thus:-

كلكم خطاؤن و خير الخطائين التوابون (ترمذى، صفة القيامة، باب المومن يرى ذنبه كالجبل فوقه)

